The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

September 3, 1997

Volume CVII Issue 1 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Back to School Issue, Fall 1997

Songs of summer

Our top picks for summer's best concerts, as well as some survival tips for getting through another year on campus (see Arts & Living, section A).

Khari ball

Khari Samuel and the Massachusetts football team is looking for its first conference title since 1990. Check out the rest of the fall sports previews, (see Sports, section S).

UMASS BRIEFS

New Programs and Courses

Through the combination of a number of departments, a Native American Studies Program will now be offered at the University of Massachusetts. Native American English professor Ron Welburn will be the director of the program. A required course in the program, "Contemporary Issue for Native Americans," will bring Native American activists from New England and New York to speak on such issues as identity, traditions, community and resource control. Not only will the visitors give lectures, but they will also interact with the students and faculty over their two-day visits. Funds for this program were provided by the deputy provost's office.

The geosphere, biosphere, atmosphere, hydrosphere, cyrosphere, and the human interaction within these spheres is the focus of a new degree program in Earth System Sciences, via geosciences. The purpose of the program is to discover a holistic understanding of the interactions of large- scale systems on Earth and the impact of human activities on these systems.

Awards a plenty

English professor Martin Espada was awarded the American Book Award by the Before Columbus Foundation for his book of poetry titled, "Imagine the Angels of Bread" (Norton). The BCF, of Oakland, CA., recognizes the achievements of people of color. Espada's fifth collection of poetry keeps with the political tone of his earlier collections.

For his novel, "The Cattle Killing," English professor John Edgar Wideman (Houghton–Mifflin) was awarded the James Fenimore Cooper Prize for Historical Fiction, which honors works of literary fiction which significantly advance the historical imagination. Prize–winners are judged on literary quality and historical scholarship and receive and certificate and a cash award of $2,500. Wideman's novel takes place in Philadelphia in the 1780's and tells of racial persecution and cruelty throughout the centuries.

Going places

After nearly 10 years, the plans of German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to build a national Holocaust memorial in Berlin will come to fruition and English and Judaic Studies professor James E. Young has been named to the search commission that will choose the memorial's design. After participating in a public debate in Berlin concerning the memorial, Speaker of the Berlin Senate Peter Radunski invited Young, who will be the only foreign member of the commission.

UMass alumnus William D. O'Leary became the secretary of the Executive Office of Health and Human Services (EOHHS) under the direction of Governor Paul Cellucci. As secretary of EOHHS, O'Leary is a member of the cabinet of Cellucci and serves as his chief policy advisor on all health and human services issues. Some of the major issues under O'Leary's management are youth services, social services, public health, mental health, services for the blind and hard of hearing, child care services, Medicaid administration and immigrant services. Previously O'Leary served as the Commissioner for the Department of Youth Services, where he was a leader in the crusade to crack down on juvenile crime.

— compiled by Jonathan Liberty

INSIDE

Arts & Living .....page A1

Black Affairs.....page 11

Editorial .....page 4

News.....page 2

Sports .....page S1

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Chancellor's search ends with Marrett appointed provost

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Chancellor David K. Scott has appointed Cora Bagley Marrett provost and vice chancellor for Academic Affairs, ending a nationwide search for a new provost that began in October 1996.

As provost, Marrett will head Academic Affairs and control the budget for all academic departments and programs on campus, a total of approximately two–thirds of the University budget.

Marrett said she is excited to begin her new job, and her initial task will be to orient herself to the campus and familiarize herself with the University's programs.

"I am looking forward to the beginning of the academic year," Marrett said. "The first thing is finding out more about the activities underway."

As provost, Marrett said, her first priority will be the enhancement of scholarships at UMass.

"I like to say the position carries with it two titles, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, which is what I want to emphasize," Marrett said. "My concern is first and foremost with scholarship."

Marrett said one way she will enhance scholarship at UMass is by encouraging research projects that bring undergraduates, graduate students and faculty together.

Her former post at the National Science Foundation, Marrett said, will aid her in finding grants for

Turn to PROVOST, page 8

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

New UMass Provost Cora Bagley Marrett.

NPR shuns UMass professor's poem; Espada reacts to media censorship

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Renowned poet and University of Massachusetts English professor Martin Espada was commissioned by National Public Radio (NPR) to write a poem which would be aired during National Poetry Month on the NPR program All Things Considered.

The only parameter that Espada had to follow was to write the poem in a journalistic vain.

According to Espada, he was visiting Philadelphia in April 1997 and while he was looking at the tomb of Walt Whitman, he was inspired to write a poem about Mumia Abu–Jamal, the convicted death row inmate who allegedly killed a police officer in Philadelphia.

Upon completion of the poem titled, "Another Nameless Prostitute Says the Man Is Innocent," Espada faxed it to All Things Considered.

However, NPR/All Things Considered refused to air the poem.

The problem

"I fulfilled the requirements of the assignment to the letter," Espada said. "The only reason NPR would not air the poem is the political suppression of Mumia Abu–Jamal."

But, according to Espada, a representative of All Things Considered told him that there were two major reasons for the exclusion of the poem from NPR airwaves. The first reason cited is a legal matter involving NPR and Abu–Jamal; in 1994, NPR had agreed to air a series of commentaries by Abu–Jamal from death row, but then decided not to run them. Abu–Jamal then took NPR to court and because the case is still pending, NPR said that the poem presented a legal conflict.

"While the court case continues, NPR will not use any materials to advocate for the innocence or guilt of Abu– Jamal," said NPR News Director Kathy Scott in a WFCR radio news report.

News Analysis

In response, Espada said that his poem has nothing to do with the legal case.

"The subject of the lawsuit and the subject of the poem are totally different," Espada said. "The poem is not about Mumia's censored commentaries, nor about his First Amendment rights."

Also, NPR's Amherst affiliate, WFCR, did broadcast Espada's poem without any legal problems.

"Essentially it was a news story about a local poet, that's how we saw it," WFCR News Director Nancy Cohen said. WFCR aired a news story expressing the views of Espada and NPR, then played the poem.

"It was my decision, and it was our perspective to try and provide something fair," Cohen said.

"Why could WFCR broadcast the poem without worrying about being burnt down the next day, while All Things Considered could not? WFCR did it without intent, but my poem does not express the intent of NPR," Espada said.

According to Espada, NPR then told him that they are a news organization which does not advocate for any person or group, and thus could not air his poem about Abu–Jamal.

"But I'm not NPR," Espada said. "If I want to advocate for Mumia, it should not matter.

"Every news organization takes a position on something. NPR's reasoning is very transparent."

"NPR's policy, even if ex post facto, perpetuates Mumia's silence by silencing those who would speak for him," Espada said in the July issue of Progressive.

Phone calls made to Kathy Scott and other NPR representatives were not returned.

Turn to POEM, page 3

Another Nameless Prostitute Says the Man is Innocent

– for Mumia Abu–Jamal, Philadelphia, PA/Camden, NJ, April 1997
By Martin Espada

(Editor's Note: poem not printed in original line form)
The board–blinded windows knew what happened;
the pavement sleepers of Philadelphia, groaning in their ghost–infested sleep, knew what happened;
every black man blessed with the gashed eyebrow of nightsticks
knew what happened;
even Walt Whitman knew what happened, poet a century dead, keeping vigil
from the tomb on the other side of the bridge.

More than fifteen years ago,
the cataract stare of the cruiser's headlights,
the impossible angle of the bullet,
the tributaries and lakes of blood,
Officer Faulkner dead, suspect Mumia shot in the chest,
the witnesses who saw a gunman running away, his heart and feet thudding.

The nameless prostitutes know,
hunched at the curb, their bare legs chilled,
Their faces squinted to see that night,
rouged with fading bruises, Now the faces fade,
Perhaps an eye witness putrefies eyes open in a bed of soil or floats in the warm gulf stream of her addiction, or hides from the fanged whispers of the police in the tomb of Walt Whitman, where the granite door is open
and fugitive slaves may rest.

Mumia: the Panther beret, the thinking dreadlocks, dissident words that swarmed the microphone like a hive,
sharing meals with people named Africa, calling out their names even after the police bombardment that charred their black bodies.
So the governor has signed the death warrant.
The executioner's needle would flush the poison down into Mumia's writing hand so the fingers curl like a burned spider;
his clam questioning mouth would grow numb,
and everywhere radios sputter to silence, in his memory.

The veiled prostitutes are gone, gone to the sacred balcony of whores. (note: this should be one line!)
But the newspaper reports that another nameless prostitute says the man is innocent, that she will testify at the next hearing.
Beyond the courthouse, a multitude of witnesses chants, prays, shouts for his prison to collapse, a shack in a hurricane.

Mumia, if the last nameless prostitute becomes an unraveling turban of steam, if the judges' robes become clouds of ink swirling like octopus deception,
if the shroud becomes your Amish quilt,
if your dreadlocks are snipped during autopsy,
then drift above the ruined RCA factory that once berthed radios to the tomb of Walt Whitman,
where the granite door is open
and fugitive slaves may rest.

Board of Higher Education approves new honors college

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Board of Higher Education voted at its June meeting to establish a Commonwealth (Honors) College at the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts.

The Board approved both the creation of Commonwealth College, "a free-standing honors college of distinction at the University of Massachusetts Amherst" and the development of a system–wide honors program under the leadership of UMass –Amherst.

The Board also directed the Chancellor of Higher Education to submit an implementation plan and budget to the Board by December 1997.

Norman Aitken, deputy provost, said the campus will be working this fall to determine the housing and operating costs of the Commonwealth College and to draw up a preliminary curriculum for the college.

"The goal is to open the College by the fall of 1999," Aitken said. "In order to do so, a lot of things have to be pulled together. Funding is an issue. Right now, the campus is putting together information on the cost of operating and housing the facility, which we will submit to the Chancellor."

If the Board of Higher Education approves the plans for the Commonwealth College and the system–wide honors program submitted by the Chancellor of Higher Education, the Board will then go to the State Legislature and seek funding for the programs.

Aitken said currently the University is proposing the construction of a new academic building near Orchard Hill Residential Area to house the college.

"We have a space deficit on campus, so that we would really need to have a new facility," Aitken said. "We are proposing an academic building that would house classrooms, a small lecture hall, seminar and computer rooms and advising space."

The building would most likely be located on the north side of Dickinson resident hall or on the corner of Orchard Hill and East Pleasant Street.

"We have looked at Orchard Hill primarily because the way we envision the Commonwealth College is as a deliverer of general education classes," Aitken said. "We would locate it near Orchard Hill Residential Area because it is the traditional primary location for freshmen honors students and because there is available open space and ample parking."

Aitken said plans for a new building are very preliminary. The construction would have to be approved by the State Legislature and the whole process would take five to seven years to complete.

In the mean time, Aitken said the University hopes to have the Commonwealth College established on campus without a new building. "We hope to have it operating with its curriculum, advising and full staffing," Aitken said.

The college would offer some of the same honors classes available now, as well as new, interdisciplinary courses taught by both UMass faculty and distinguished visiting faculty. Current honors students would have the option of graduating

Turn to HONOR, page 7

UMass' largest lecture hall gets face-lift

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Mahar Auditorium, the largest lecture hall at the University of Massachusetts which seats 469 students, was completely renovated in both physical and audio/visual aspects over the summer break.

"It's like night and day," said Roger Fink, an architect of the University Planning office and a member of the Classroom Improvement Committee (CIC).

According to Fink, the CIC identifies classrooms in need of renovations and then prioritizes the need due to size and use.

Construction on the building began last February by Nault Architects of Worcester, Mass.

Not only are there new physical components in Mahar such as cushioned seats, desk tops and rugs, but the audio/visual components have also been upgraded.

According to CIC member Steve Pielock, the capability of Mahar has been upgraded to project video, super VHS, 16 /35 mm film, slides and video laser disc.

"But the big change comes in January when we'll be able to project computer images and dual video projection," Pielock said.

"Eventually students will be able to see real–time lectures from professors all over the world," Fink said. "It's more than a gimmick; it deserves real merit."

Turn to MAHAR, page 6

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Newly renovated Mahar Auditorium ready to greet returning students this fall.

UMass, Mexico collaborate in LMT project

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is one step closer to completing its largest scientific project ever.

Construction of a large millimeter wave telescope (LMT) by the University and the government of Mexico received international scientific approval in August 1997. Following approval, the joint project team began creating final plans for the project, which began in 1989.

The 150-foot diameter telescope will be the world's most sensitive radio telescope, allowing astronomers to pick up faint radio signals which originated over 10 billion years ago, when galaxies in our universe were first being formed.

Stephen Strom, chair of the Five College Astronomy Department and the project's chief astronomer, said the telescope's large size and precise shape will let astronomers observe signals previously too weak to be picked up by other telescopes.

"It will be the largest of its kind in the world, which will let us detect fainter signals than have ever been detected before," Strom said.

"Our hope is to look at galaxies like the Milky Way when they were first forming, to look at the birthplaces of stars and planets and learn exactly how the material assembled. We can also see signals from stars being formed today."

The telescope will also be used to observe comets and meteors, and to investigate the creation of complex, biogenic (light) molecules.

The LMT will be a successor to the University's Radio Astronomy Observatory, which was constructed at the Quabbin Reservoir in the 1970's.

According to Jaap Baars, the project's chief scientist, recent advances in the creation of composite materials will allow the LMT to have a much larger diameter than previous radio telescope and still maintain the precise parabolic shape necessary for accurate reception of radio waves.

"New composite materials, such as carbon-fiber reinforced plastic, have become available which have a thermal expansion coefficient of just about zero," Baars said. "This avoids problems of the telescope loosing its shape, and the whole structure becomes more possible."

Advances in computer and laser technologies will also allow the telescope to maintain its position with much greater precision.

"A laser based measuring system in the structure will measure any changes and detect if the telescope is out of position," Baars said.

The telescope will be located on the peak of Mont Cerro LaNegra, a 15,000 foot mountain in central Mexico 70 miles southeast of Mexico City.

According to Strom, the extremely low water vapor in the atmosphere around Cerro LaNegra, as well as the low winds and low annual rainfall in the area, make it an ideal site for the telescope.

Building the telescope will be no easy feat. Its large scale and high altitude location will make the construction an engineering challenge.

Project manager Allen Langord said that when the telescope is constructed, it will stand as high as the Lederle Graduate Research Tower.

"This telescope will be as tall as this building and weigh three million pounds," Langord said. "That's how big it is. It's a monumental program."

The project will have a total cost of approximately $50 million, with half of the funding coming from the Mexican government and the rest from the U.S. government and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Up to 80 percent of the total U.S. contribution to the LMT's design and manufacturing will be spent in Massachusetts while a considerable amount of work on the project will also be done in Mexico.

The project team will be evaluating proposals for final plans this fall, and construction on the telescope is expected to begin in the summer of 1998.

Langord said the telescope should be in place by the end of the year 2000, but it will take an additional two years or so to fine tune the telescope and achieve optimum results.

Satellite links will allow the telescope to be operated at UMass, and astronomers from all over the world are expected to come to UMass to get observation time.

"As things proceed, UMass will be the focal point of the astronomy in the U.S.," Strom said. "They'll [astronomers] come to Amherst to work with the folks who designed the instruments. It will provide a very rich environment for the students."

In addition, the instruments needed to interpret the information gathered by the radio telescope will be designed and built by UMass students and faculty.

"All of the super sensitive new instruments will be conceived, designed and built right here in this building (the LGRT)," Langord said.

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

The large millimeter wave telescope development team in front of a picture of their work.

Debit, long distance service offered with "UCard" I.D.

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

Beginning this semester, students will be able to make on- campus purchases with their school I.D., dubbed the "UCard," limiting the amount of cash that they must carry around on campus.

Every student at the University of Massachusetts will be given the option of opening a debit account on their new digitized school I.D. produced by the AT&T All Campus Card System.

Purchases can be made at any store across campus. However, students should know that once they deposit money into the debit account they cannot get any cash back until they leave the University.

"Once an account is opened and money is placed on the debit card, cash cannot be given back to the student. That is part of the banking regulations of having a debit card account," said Linda Overing, Campus Card Manager.

"An account is closed only when a student leaves the University. Accounts are not closed between semesters," Overing said.

According to Overing, over 1,000 accounts have been opened via the mail and she expects that many more will open once students return to campus.

In addition to the debit card, students also will have access to a new calling card.

"The optional calling card is intended for calls made off campus, not for students who live on-campus because on- campus students already have the AT&T Accus account," Overing said.

Regardless of a student's interest in the two optional programs, all students at the University must get a new I.D. card because they serve several other purposes.

"The students that the new I.D. cards will have the biggest impact on at the beginning of the semester will be those students who are on a meal plan and those who live in a dorm with card access," Overing said.

"A great majority of freshman and sophomores have received their new I.D. and those who haven't were sent temporary ones that are good for the first two weeks of classes," Overing said.

She commented that juniors and seniors were not sent temporary I.D.'s because most on campus residents are freshman and sophomores.

In addition, students will no longer need semester validation stickers or library bar codes.

Any students who still needs a new ID or wishes to open a debit or calling card account should go to the ID office in Franklin Dining Common.

The office is extending hours during the first week. Call 545-0197 for hours.

The Collegian News Desk currently has two open positions for Associate Editors. News Associate is a paid position and involves in-depth reporting and feature writing with specific focus in an assigned beat.

For an application or more details regarding the position, come down to 113 Campus Center and ask for Jonathan Liberty, News Editor, or call 545-1762.

The Collegian is an equal-opportunity employer.

PARKING SERVICES DOES NOT WANT YOUR BUSINESS!!!

TOP FIVE REASONS WHY A CAR IS TOWED FROM CAMPUS:

1. NO UMASS PARKING PERMIT..... $ 25
2. VIOLATION OF A SPECIAL ENFORCEMENT ZONE... $ 50
3. PERMIT NOT VALID FOR LOT OR AREA..... $ 25
4. VIOLATION OF A HANDICAP SPACE..... $100
5. FRAUDULENT USE OF A PERMIT..... $100

Einstein says: "PLEASE PARK SMART!! Purchase a UMass Parking Permit."

THE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY APPRECIATES YOUR COOPERATION!!

Regular office hours: Monday through Friday 8:15 – 4:45

Location: Parking Services is located in lot 25 north of the Mullins Center. Just look for the Blue Awning.

DON'T FORGET: PLEASE BRING YOUR UNIVERSITY ID AND VEHICLE REGISTRATION!!!

SGA forms plans for new semester

By Victoria Groves
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) is starting off the new year with a focus on involvement and recruitment of new students for all organizations on campus.

Over 5,000 letters were sent out during the summer to all incoming freshman and transfer students from the SGA. The mailing gave the incoming students the opportunity to choose which Registered Student Organizations (RSOs) they are interested in receiving more information about. Upon being received, the SGA will forward these names to the respective organizations.

"By doing this, we're getting to the new students before they even get to UMass, so we're expediting the process," Senate Speaker Peter Kilbourne said.

"We're inputting all data and submitting names to organizations so they can recruit all the incoming students. We need to increase the involvement level," Student Attorney General Tom Sadlowski said.

With a new campaign entitled "Inspiring Tomorrow" the SGA has introduced a multi-year platform to better serve students.

According to the written introduction to the campaign, the "UMass SGA is aiming towards looking at its own interior conflicts [and] resolving them, before focusing on the larger issues that directly affect every student on campus."

The SGA Executive Cabinet also plans to work together on several central issues they feel are the most important to students including the revamping of the judicial system on campus, limited litigation rights for the Student Legal Services Office, and food services.

With a known history of internal conflicts, the cabinet is also planning to make the SGA focus more on working for students more effectively.

"We're trying to pick which [issues] we want to ride on. We're planning our long term-agenda and what we are going to tackle because if we can't function, nobody else can function. So we need to internally change ourselves," Sadlowski said.

The work accomplished by the year-old Women's Issues Committee, which included a safety walk and a submitted plan for more call boxes, was considered one of SGA's most successful endeavors, according to former senator Jennifer Casasanto.

"They [the Women's Issues Committee] made groundbreaking work... traditionally women haven't been involved in student government; I saw how much the committee did and I'm very happy about it. I hope we continue along that same path," Casasanto said.

Brian McManus, also a former senator, stated that during the past semester student activism did rise, and that the increase can be partially attributed to the work of the SGA.

"I, among other people, want to look at admissions and financial aid quotas. I think that's going to be a major issue this year," McManus said. "I think SGA needs to take a serious look at it and see who is being helped by it and if all students are being equally represented."

Distribution of financial aid and enrollment were addressed by student protesters during the March 1997 takeover of the Goodell Administration Building. One of the 21 student demands accepted was that the administration achieve and maintain an overall goal of 20 percent ALANA undergraduates through recruitment and retention.

■ poem

continued from page 1

The left sways right

"I was aware that NPR might be a little reluctant to air the poem, but their outward refusal was an over-reaction," said Espada, who has had poems aired by NPR many times in the past.

"The openness of their censorship is very unique," Espada said.

Espada said he feels the implications of NPR's overt censorship are far ranging.

"What does it mean when public radio has open censorship? It puts them in the same category of those who would silence them," Espada said.

When NPR originally pulled Abu-Jamal's death row commentaries due to high amounts of negative criticism, it challenged their "good guy" public image.

"Their reputation for liberal tolerance does not extend to Mumia," Espada said. "Hypocrisy is what we are dealing with here."

"Mumia contradicts NPR's illusions of themselves," Espada said.

Espada said that is was difficult not to take NPR's act of censorship personally.

"Whenever your work is suppressed, it is painful, but I know this is not about me, it is about NPR's fear of the Right and of Mumia," Espada said.

"Their political retreat will not placate the constituency who wishes to silence them," Espada said.

According to Espada, he is not alone.

"Other writers I've spoken with have felt similar suppression coming from the left," Espada said. "It is a trend that has been going on, what's different now is the identification of this trend."

The last bastion: college radio

In July, Espada recorded a tape of "Another Nameless Prostitute Says the Man Is Innocent," for UMass radio station WMUA, where it has seen air play on several different shows.

"Once NPR censored Espada's poem, it made it important for us to get it out there," WMUA Advisor Glenn Siegel said.

Siegel said that the position of college radio stations has become increasingly unique.

"We're not tied down with financial or political constraints so we can put forth alternative views and opinions without trouble," Siegel said.

"Normally, a poem, no matter what it's content has no format in conventional radio, which makes college radio extremely important," Siegel said.

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Jump!
Thirteen year old Tony Strombily of Northampton rail slides his way through the FAC last week.

YOU DEMAND POWER, SPEED, AND MOBILITY.

Color StyleWriter® 4500
Now $319 BEFORE REBATE

Save another $50 cash back*

Power Macintosh® 6500/250
32/3GB/12XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Zip Drive/Ethernet/Video In/NTSC Out/Kbd
Now $2,199 (or $43/month) BEFORE REBATE

$300 cash back*

got it yet?

WANT SOME CASH TO GO WITH THAT?

PowerBook® 1400c/133
16/1GB/6XCD/L2/11.3" TFT display
Now $2,999 (or $56/month) BEFORE REBATE

$200 cash back*

Now is the right time to get an Apple Power Macintosh or PowerBook. Because in addition to getting the computer that lets you do more than you can imagine, you can save big time. For a limited time, students are eligible for special cash rebates.

*This is a limited time rebate coupon offer. See your Apple campus reseller today for complete details.

The University Store
Campus Center
Hours: M-F 9-5, Sat. 11-4
(413) 545-2619
http://www.aux.umass.edu/computers

Power Macintosh® 4400/200
16/2GB/8XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Ethernet/Kbd
Now $1,818 (or $35/month) BEFORE REBATE

$100 cash back*

Offer expires October 10, 1997. No payment of interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during the 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest, which will be included in the repayment schedule. For example, the month of May 5, 1997, had an interest rate of 12.40% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.32%. A monthly payment of $20.54 for the Power Macintosh 6500/250 system is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $2,340.43, which includes a sample purchase price of $2,199 and a 6% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Prime Rate as reported on the 5th business day of the month in The Wall Street Journal plus a spread of 3.9%. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer system prices, total loan amounts, state and local sales taxes and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. ©1997 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Mac, Macintosh, PowerBook, Power Macintosh and StyleWriter are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. OneScanner and QuickTake are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Apple mail-in rebate offer valid from July 13, 1997 through October 10, 1997, while supplies last and subject to availability. Void where prohibited by law. See participating reseller for further rules and details. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

A letter from the editor

Welcome to the editorial/opinion page of the Collegian.

It looks like it's going to be a good semester here. A number of strong writers are returning, and we have new talents, as well as some syndicated features including Sara Eckel's column "Focus on Women" and Matt Davies' sardonic editorial cartoons. Of course, we remain your daily source for Gary Trudeau's "Doonesbury."

We'll continue to be more than willing to get involved with campus controversies and provide a forum for opinions from all perspectives.

This week's "Focus on Labor Issues" series, in honor of Labor Day, is just the first step. We will also be doing regular "Point/Counterpoint" features, and other series such as our upcoming "Focus on Race."

It's also important to us that we print as many of your letters as we can, promoting communication and discussion on campus. Please be sure to read our guidelines for submitting letters, which appear below.

One of the questions people often ask is whether there are positions available for columnists. We will always consider editorials submitted by members of the University community. Material from undergraduates takes priority, but graduate students, faculty, staff, alumni and other Five College students are also encouraged to contribute.

If you have any questions, want to comment on or get involved with the Collegian opinion/editorial page, you can reach me at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement, by calling 545-1491, or by sending e-mail to "letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu".

Yours,

Daniel Bodah

Taken for a ride

The struggle is on again

Labor Issues

Daniel Bodah & Mark McGrath

When the International Brotherhood of Teamsters went on strike against the United Parcel Service this summer, we finally saw some hope for democracy.

What do I mean by democracy? Let me explain.

Democracy isn't all about fundraising, votes and candidates. If there is any core idea in the United States' system that people can get excited about, it is the simple idea that we govern ourselves. How better to govern ourselves than through direct action?

People used to think that the king ruled because that was the Law of Nature. God just made things that way. Nowadays we are godless enough that we vote for our own leaders, believing that we have a natural right to choose our political system.

Why don't we make the connection with our economy? Since the economy controls how we eat, where we live, and all those other essential survival needs, you'd think we would want to have a say in it.

Instead, we gulp down the "free market" swill poured into our television and newspaper (yes, this one too) troughs.

Thank the Teamsters for demonstrating that the economy is not a force of nature, like the sun, which we have no control over. They show how we make it what it is consciously and through effort, as they refuse to continue to produce millions of dollars of profit without having a place at the table in deciding how that money is used.

However, Teamsters President Ron Carey's recently overturned election involving shady campaign contributions is taken by many as a sign that the labor movement is corrupt. Certainly there are plenty of problems with any organization that has elected leaders in charge of all the money, yet even though the labor movement has problems, it is a movement we need to thank.

The labor movement has given us great gifts over the last century, gifts we take too much for granted. Gifts like the weekend and the minimum wage.

Imagine: workers were gunned down and died in struggles to reduce the working day to 12 hours. Twelve hours!

Maybe it seems that we have it easy now, with our 40 hour weeks, worker's compensation and unemployment insurance. We might feel there's no need for workers to fight anymore. But the corporate climate is still viciously focused on ripping workers off as much as possible in order to stuff the pockets of investors.

Take, for an oft-cited example, the culture of downsizing, down-benefiting, and down-waging throughout the corporate world. Take the flight of companies to countries like Mexico, Guatemala or Vietnam where unions are nonexistent or management-puppets, and the workers can be exploited with relative impunity.

Maybe, as critics contend, there is still rampant corruption in the Teamsters union. Maybe the labor movement has been sold out by greedy professional organizers who mooch off rank and file dues. But the situation today is so far from friendly to workers that every step forward is a great step.

Like the form of our economy, the vitality of worker efforts for self-determination is not controlled by the waxing and waning of the moon. It is a struggle requiring great effort. The Teamsters, as well as the revitalized leadership of the AFL-CIO, are taking great pains to mobilize workers in the face of a globalized economy, reekingly stagnant wages and increased union-busting.

Corporations have never stopped striving to make the rich richer and the poor poorer. It's time for workers to start fighting for economic democracy again.

Daniel Bodah is a Collegian columnist.

Despite being speckled with a number of notable news stories (biting boxers, kissing Kennedys, Mr. Weld goes to Washington) this summer may perhaps be best remembered as the summer when the country came to a halt because the big brown trucks stopped rolling — at least for 16 days.

Over the course of the United Parcel Service strike, what began as "just another protest" became a major headache for anyone who sends or receives anything through the shipping industry. When the end came after two full weeks of confusion, most breathed a mandatory sigh of relief, knowing the order of their affairs would again be restored.

While the settlement was indeed welcomed, it was, by its nature, forced on the American people. They had to like the settlement because it was just that — a settlement. Had they taken their time to look at the underlying issues, they would have seen that like UPS and its workers, they were taken for a ride.

To guage the merits and accomplishments of the strike, we must first examine its participants and its motives. Involved in this strike were UPS and the Teamsters, a union made up of 1.4 million workers. According to the Teamsters, the issues of the strike were full time jobs, wages, pensions, limits on subcontracting and health and safety issues. Of those issues, the most important were full time jobs and pensions.

Because of the nature of the shipping industry and the popularity of overnight and next-day shipping, companies like UPS need to employ an army of workers from 6 – 10:30 a.m. Common business sense dictates that they would have to hire part-timers to work these hours, because otherwise, they would lose money during the remaining hours of a full-time working day. Part time jobs are often taken by college students. Their work earns them over $10 an hour and they also receive benefits. With the strike, the part-timers, many of them Teamsters, were pushing for the creation of more full time positions which pay significantly higher.

The other real issue at hand involved pension funds. UPS currently pays pension money to 31 separate Teamsters-controlled pension plans. The way the system is structured, UPS pays money to plans that benefit not only UPS workers, but others who had never been affiliated with the company, others who cut off of UPS's table merely because they are affiliated with the Teamsters.

UPS had recently made a proposal to put together a new pension plan that would consolidate all UPS workers in a single plan. The result would have UPS paying money only to UPS workers and retirees, who would receive about 50 percent more than they had been receiving. The Teamsters couldn't stand for losing control over all the pension funds and their ability to share with other Teamsters which was the primary reason for their willingness to lead the strike.

After a hard-fought 16 days, the teamsters finally persuaded UPS to give in to their primary demands. In the settlement, UPS agreed to create 10,000 new full time jobs and increase pensions under the Teamsters' plans. The Teamsters hailed a huge victory for the workers of America, but we can't be expected to take their word for it.

> "The Teamsters hailed a huge victory for the workers of America, but we can't be expected to take their word for it."

We must ask ourselves, "Who were the winners in the UPS strike?"

Did the American public win? Let's see — For two weeks, hundreds of millions of daily routines were disrupted because of the shipping industry's inability to cope with the UPS strike. Because mail order companies (and anyone else who depends on shipping) have seen how dangerous it is to put all their proverbial eggs into one basket, they are sure to direct a larger portion of shipments away from UPS, which, before the strike, controlled 90 percent of the shipping market. The result will be a noticeable (if not sharp) decline in UPS shipments. To cope with the higher operation costs, also brought about because of the strike, UPS will have to increase its prices indefinitely. The American people can hardly be considered the winners here.

How about the full time UPS workers? Before the strike, they were well-paid employees ($19.95 an hour) with benefits who had to share their pension funds with other Teamsters. After the strike, they are still well-paid ($3 more per hour), still have benefits and still have to share. The only difference this time around is that they now work for a company that will be reeling because of the strike. If UPS goes into the decline that many are predicting, the company will be unable to hire for the 10,000 new full time jobs conceded to the strikers. In fact, many who currently work for the company may lose their jobs in the end. Even though the Teamsters carried on the strike in the name of those workers, it seems they may have gotten the shortest end of the stick.

Part time workers? Well, if they expect to be given the newly created full time positions, they'd better hope UPS can recover from this strike. I would be willing to bet that UPS ends up laying off more workers than it creates full time positions.

The company? This one is a no-brainer. In the entire process, UPS operated only out of common sense and for the benefit of its workers, and what does it get? Outside of the lost revenues and the coming decline, UPS has also had its image tarnished by the strike. That could be hard to overcome.

The Teamsters? Finally, someone who can smile at the results of the strike. Teamsters members and retirees, regardless of where they work or worked, can resume eating at the UPS table. After all, the most important issue of the strike was the

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to commend you on the appearance of the Daily Collegian on the Internet. I just got here and as a 1995 grad, the electronic version looks much nicer than the paper! But I still miss that good old entertaining rag I picked up for free every day with all that you needed to know as a UMass student. After all, how else were you to know when to avoid the dining commons when the infamous scrod was being served in all its various adjective forms (baked, fried, blackened).

Also, I would like to know when the Morrill Science Center is going to be rebuilt just like that busy little corner of Engineering Land. Going back to UMass two weeks ago, I found it disheartening again that the life science side of campus still looks decrepit versus the engineering corner. After all, we members of the life science community are just as valuable to UMass as the engineers. I hope some staff take this into account when writing grants, and the administration when contemplating capital improvements...

Thank you for a wonderful paper. I intend to come back frequently to read and catch up. Have a nice semester.

Kathy Ucinski, Zoology 1995
zoomer@interaccess.com

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst, MA 01003, or by email to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity and style.

Ten simple rules

C.J. Poletto

First impressions are sacred.

You can't avoid them, only instigate them, or make the best effort when you find yourself being introduced to some new stranger. Even if you find yourself deadlocked in the middle of the worst possible situation, you're forced to make the best of it.

Maybe you could care less about the impression you make on others, but we all know that all of us, at one time or another, regret the impression we've made on someone, somewhere. So, maybe it does feel worse than spilled milk, but we can all agree it's not as bad as stepping on a nail. Still, negative impressions are right on the cusp of misery and can leave you feeling pretty unfulfilled for days, and unfortunately, regret is one of the worst possible feelings to harbor.

So, before you find yourself on the roller coaster of this downward spiral of distress, let's see exactly what an impression is made of before we start making them. Get ready kids, this might get messy!

Now this social butterfly of an author would say that an impression is all about the body language. It rests on the placement of the arms, the movement of the hands and the intensity in the facial features. The eyes and the way they hold your attention, maybe the corners of a potential smile.

Regardless, an impression can only be properly executed with the proper attitude, as well as vocabulary and one's ability to keep another's interest peaked. Follow these 10 simple rules and you could be a star impression-maker before you know it!

> "Follow these 10 simple rules and you could be a star impression-maker before you know it!"

Rule number one:

Tight pants don't prove anything. Gentlemen, you know who you are. Ladies, no comment. There's just no need to elaborate. Do you really think we care about the size of your... oh never mind, just take our word.

Rule number two:

Beware of the dreaded bad breath — it makes for a hard life. It could even be considered a handicap. But, because halitosis is so taboo, nobody is going to come right out and say "Look man, your mouth reeks every time you open it." Essentially, brush your breath, chew gum, gnaw on exotic plants, do whatever it takes, just don't let them call you a dooty-mouth!

Rule number three:

Now before we get carried away with person-to-person situations, just remember an impression can be made upon another, even if you're not speaking directly to them. With that in mind, make sure you don't whisper more than necessary when you're describing the "zongas on the booty maid" in the row in front of you. Who knows, with a school this size, you just might be related to the booty maid!

Rule number four:

Think about everything you say before it spills from your mouth forever. Take it from me, a mouth that moves faster than the mind isn't a quality anyone should possess. Strike one, two and three! You're out!

Rule number five:

Eye contact is the only option for impression in the library. Being a loudmouth and guffawing like a donkey only makes you out like one. Very unacceptable. Didn't your dad ever tell you that "nobody likes a funny guy?"

Rule number six:

Using vocabulary words you don't know the definitions of. Granted, I'm not advocating the use of pre-pubescent jargon, but in reality, we all know when you're trying too hard to impress. Essentially, don't try to insert the word antidisestablishmentarianism more than once per paragraph!

Rules number seven, eight, nine and ten:

Listen, don't hear. Speak, don't just talk to anybody. It makes a world of difference if you actually pretend that you could be interested in what the other person is saying to you. Even if things don't pan out, at least that person will hold you in nothing but the highest regards. We swear, they'll think you're swell, even if you do have bad breath and wear tight pants!

So, UMass, as you embark on a new year of life, learning and relationships, just remember that it only takes a millisecond to make or break the person who could make or break you. Any questions? Good. Now put on your cleanest socks, your brightest smile and go out there and get 'em, kids. Go make an impression on the nearest nameless face today! Hell, make two or three if you can. Oh, and don't forget... nobody deserves a second chance, so why should you?

C.J. Poletto is a Collegian staff member.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Christopher Stamm Editor-in-Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn F. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1950. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

"How was your summer?"

Luke Meredith

Well, hey there, snugglebear.

Here we are, back at it for another year. Before I try to wax philosophic on my current neurosis (this is the year of the big word, I can feel it) we have to take care of business.

I'll make it quick.

First, the whole "How was your summer?" thing. I refuse to deal with it this year. So, I'm giving everyone my answer right here, in plain English.

"Yeah, the summer was a lot of fun."

Then when people say, "What did you do?" I say, "Just worked, you know. It wasn't too bad."

Alright, there we go.

Now onto my first crack at writing in three months. This should be interesting, because even though I've had that entire time to write this piece, I didn't start this until 10 minutes ago.

I'm not going to do the whole "summer recap" thing. But if there was a theme, (oh, and there has to be), it could be like the book "Why Bad Things Happen to Good People." See, I'm a good person, I think. Of course the only evidence that I am comes from my dad, who after screaming at me for getting kicked off the bus for a week in 7th grade, said to me "you're a good kid, most of the time."

But random bad things have plagued me since I left you guys last.

For instance, in June I bought a shiny new Phillies hat, the funky one with the blue star. I had been looking for one for months, and had to drive to Albany to find it.

But then, in the process of a little "light surgery" to make it fit my weird little head, I cut a hole in it. My friends dubbed it the "$24 hole." (You see, they charge $24 for bars in Albany). I have, to date, worn it twice.

Of course, I've worn my $5 Penn hat and my free Royals twill hat every day — P.J., my dad, picked it up in Kansas City on a business trip.

Go figure.

My financial aid is another one. It seems the powers that be down in Whitmore decided that I wouldn't be needing loans anymore because I sent in some forms late. (I still have absolutely no idea what these forms look like, or that a deadline even existed)

So they took away $5,000 from the "Luke goes to UMass" fund.

Without telling me.

Through a flurry of yellow sheets, blue sheets and sheets where you have to correct things that don't need correcting, I recaptured my financial aid.

But of course it's not all good.

The restructuring of my package left me without my job in Central Mail. Three years of sorting, filing and delivery experience have been flushed down the drain. It was a great job, but now it's gone.

I went to Hooters for the first time in June, and got excited when I saw Vera, our waitress, who brought new meaning to the term "in shape."

But then I ordered the wings, and they came out breaded. I had one and almost puked. Soiled the whole Hooters "experience."

There have been other anecdotes, but they're too stupid and meaningless to write about. (Come to think of it, they were all stupid and meaningless. Oh well.)

And as long as we're telling the truth here, I got to 'fess up.

I did try to write this summer.

Once.

It was at the end of July. Eight of us were staying in my friend's father's beach house in Scituate, and were partying like rock stars. It was one of only five days off in 12 weeks, so we decided to celebrate by drinking it away.

It was 10:30 in the morning, and we were already pretty much in the bag. This girl Tasha, whom I'll describe only as a Phish-loving nympho from Missoula, Monatana whips out this journal and asks everyone to write a page in it. I tried to slip out of the room, but she caught me and said, "Hey Luke, you write at school, right? Why can't you just scribble a page."

So I grabbed this thing, a typical chick-like book with daisies and petunias on the front and the standard "Best friends 4-Eva" picture on the inside cover. Feeling the false bravado of a good pre-noon summer buzz, I tried to compensate for two months of non-writing in one fell swoop.

What I came up with was, well, crap. I actually began with the following line.

"Here we are, on the edge of the world." Because it was the ocean and all, you know.

You can see why I only tried once. But it is nice to be back. At least the Collegian doesn't have petunias on the cover.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

Burning fears

Danielle Zerbonne

I was five years old when I realized my fate had been sealed. One sunny, giggling day, just a few years out of diapers and without ever having laid eyes on the sparkling utopia of Disney World, I was to meet a horrible and smoldering death. Despite my utmost faith in Mom's ability to tend even the most critical tricycle injuries, I was pretty sure not even she could protect me from this tragic but inevitable end. And so, rather than darken her poor pure soul with the black knowledge of her first-born's damned future, I remained bravely silent. Even a little kid can comprehend the enormity of such a secret. A secret no young child should ever be forced to keep. My fate was sealed, alright. Death by volcano.

A noble end for a kindergartner, to be sure. That concept was slightly lost on me, though, as I lost sleep over just how very hot and uncomfortable this particular day was sure to be. I mean, I was a wimp about a too-warm bath. However would I endure? Why was this malicious force of nature so intent (I was sure it was) on taunting me, biding its time before a deep rumble from its belly signaled its first fiery belches, aimed right at the little girl in the cookie monster tee shirt?

Nevermind that while this terror lurked in the back of my mind I remained snug in my yawning New England suburb, crunching up grilled cheeses and skinning my knees like every other kid in my town. As far as I know, I'd never once had a history lesson on Pompeii or even heard of the ill-fated Monserrat. And yet somehow I'd so fully integrated this fear into my young psyche that for a while, every lava- free day seemed a precious gift. If only I had known that volcanoes did not sprout up out of the ground overnight like some murderous dandelion (and even if that were possible, that they simply weren't native to eastern Massachusetts.)

And don't think my fears were limited to scorching lava flow. Tidal waves were another biggie; the heave and crash of 50-foot waves that could swallow me in one crunch. Then there was the creature I often dreamed about in preschool who, if the fancy struck him, turned kids into pulsating blobs of raspberry jell-O — yikes! So much for the innocence of youth.

I look back now with the admittedly shaky wisdom of 21 years in a sort of awe. How in the world did I conjure such morbid and terrifying images? Frozen in the headlights of unfounded paranoia during my formative years, why aren't I the timid shivering wreck such a childhood might have foreshadowed?

But that's just it, I decided recently. The nights I spent sweating over the vampiric six-eyed pediatrician lurking beneath my bed now serve as lessons to me, years later and in a completely different context. Of course, panic over natural disasters has given way to wondering if there will be a job for me when I graduate. But in a way, they're similar issues. There's a severe futility factor in worrying about either of them. What-if'ing is completely useless when it is about issues that not only have not yet happened, but have no real relevance to your life at this very moment — the only time that has any significance at all.

So when I feel the belly-churn of random nervous musings (What if my children dedicate their lives to the radical right? What if everyone reading my article figures out I'm making it all up?) I remind myself not to go wading in rivers of lava. It's a painful waste of time to allow the tiresome grip of worry to infiltrate my calm. Instead, I'm learning to settle back, take slower deeper breaths, and simply appreciate right now.

Danielle Zerbonne is a UMass student.

All in a day's work

As the minute hand ticks just six, the first shift bolts out of the warehouse like clockwork. At 2:30 p.m., eight hours of lifting, paper shuffling and cursing are over. With my brown lunch bag tucked under my arm, the bottom tearing apart from the humid summer air, I begin the winding trek to my station in the shipping department, battling against the flow of fleeing first-shift workers.

Scurrying beneath a labyrinth of conveyor belts, I pass the sort desk tucked away from the bustle of ever-honking forklifts, where I find one of my co-workers.

"Hola José!" I manage in my best self-conscious high school Spanish. The reply is a nod and smile, accented with a quick thumbs up as the middle-aged Dominican native routs packages through the warehouse.

As I start work, the man next to me welcomes me with a less than comforting greeting. "What are you talking to him for? You should stick to your own." Before I can even ask him which rock he crawled out from under this morning, I know I am in a land far, far away from the diversity- conscious college world.

> "I am just another temporary worker, here for a few months taking up a space that was, at one time, a fully benefited job held by a company employee."
>
> Chris Stamm

My colleagues seem less than thrilled to be working with me. A motley array of frustrated workers and near alcoholic white-trash forced to swallow the bitter pill of "downsizing" day after day, wondering if they will be next.

From day one they have seemed threatened by my existence in their blue collar clique. What do I have to offer them? I am just another temporary worker, here for a few months taking up a space that was, at one time, a fully benefited job held by a company employee.

But simply being a company employee does not guarantee acceptance into the group. Just ask José.

To my co-workers José is lazy. He never works as hard as they do. As for his English, "well, he's been in the country for so long, he should learn the damn language," (you can be assured their words are not as even handed). Day after day I heard the comments, never made to his face of course, and with each remark thought of ways to offend the "white majority."

When he came to work in my section, I made a point to scrape the rust off the Spanish I hadn't studied in three years. We talked about the success of Dominican ball players like Sammy Sousa finally getting their due in the major leagues.

The more I got to know José, the worse my co-workers' comments became. He was the president of the neighboring city's parent advisory council, he hosted a political segment on the local Spanish language radio station and he wrote for a Hispanic newspaper. One night, as we tried to keep up with the packages hurling down the line at us, we had an hour and a half conversation about the globalization of world economies and how the United States needs to exert more force in expanding third world industry.

Talk with the other men in the group seldom strayed beyond the realm of cars and sports.

Every night I could not help but think how my co-workers would survive if they were transplanted out of their native land. If their economic security were taken away, would they have the courage to move to another country, learn the language, learn the system, or analyze the politics? How far would an analysis of last night's exhibition Pats game and a 30-pack of Coors Light get them?

José sees problems in the community and seeks to fix them — through writing about them, talking about them, and taking action with community groups. I am not implying that all my other co-workers were racist bigots. not all of them were. By the end of the summer most gave first-hand accounts on the value of the college degree.

However, it seemed that the most backward of the bunch were the most vocal, and the ones that knew better kept their mouths shut.

I made a lot of observations this summer (never argue with a self-affirmed Libertarian — you can't win, don't eat those ready-made vending machine sandwiches no matter how hungry you are, etc...) but the most important was that people need to open their eyes. In another year, I will be a fully functioning member of society (or so I've heard) and I can't help but wonder:

What type of pressure allows someone to keep their ears open and their mouth closed?

Chris Stamm is a Collegian columnist.

A house divided...

The world had reason to believe that the peace process was getting back on track earlier this year when Israel's Prime Minister, Binyamin Netanyahu and Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat reached an agreement over the withdrawal of the majority of Israeli forces from Hebron. However, this summer produced a series of tragic events that have been a grim reality check for the world. It may take an observer with a bit of optimism to deny that there was a downward spiral this summer, and that the United States' diplomatic intervention was the only thing preventing the peace process from being completely derailed.

> "...the question is, what can possibly be done to halt this cycle and formulate a lasting peace between two people?"
>
> Bryan Schwartzman

On his watch, the right-wing Likud party leader Netanyahu had seen relatively few deaths in 1997 caused by terrorism. Then two suicide bombers wearing suits and ties blew the Mahane Yehuda market in Jerusalem to pieces, taking 15 people with them and injuring countless others. This was the worst case of terrorism in Israel since before the Prime Minister was elected over a year ago.

And of course Netanyahu, perhaps with good reason, insisted that Arafat and the Palestinian Authority were not doing all they could to imprison terrorists. Once again the cycle that had endangered the peace process prior to the Hebron deal, the same cycle which had troubled his predecessor Shimon Peres, was in full swing.

The bombing was followed by fighting in southern Lebanon, resulting in civilian casualties on both sides. The search for members of Hamas or Hezbollah usually includes some restriction on Palestinian movement, such as the one imposed recently on several cities including Bethlehem. U.S. envoy Dennis Ross has done a commendable job maintaining a presence in the Middle East, trying to get two leaders who do not trust each other to work together.

So the question is, what can possibly be done to halt this cycle and formulate a lasting peace between two people? Assuming that the occasional bombings continue, and the political leaders cannot direct the peace process, what can Israeli and Palestinian people do to create a more stable climate?

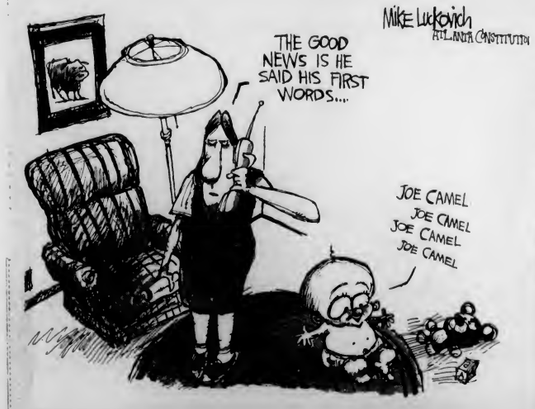
It is difficult to determine if the Palestinian people support, or ever supported, the peace process. Some polls have had the number of supporters as low as 10 percent. What is certain is that the Israeli people remain a deeply divided people on a number of different issues, of which the peace process is just one.

The rift between Orthodox and less religious Israelis surfaced in an ugly episode in early August — which provided an excellent example of what not to do in times of tremendous uncertainty.

At the Western Wall, a group of Reform and Conservative Jews, men and women, prayed in the section designated for men only. They were forcibly removed from the area, causing a near-riot scene. Without discussing the philosophical issues behind prayer at the Western Wall, such a short time after a national tragedy one would think that worshippers in the Old City might have something else on their minds besides heaping violence on their fellow Jews.

What does this isolated event have to do with the broad picture of the Middle East peace process? Israel's internal conflicts between religious and secular Jews, and between Jews of European descent and Middle Eastern descent, are almost as great a threat to the survival of the peace process as the suicide bombings.

This sad fact was illustrated when one of the peace process' architects, former Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin, was assassinated by a right-wing Israeli. The trouble at the Western Wall was just another example of how far hate can go between Israelis, let alone between Palestinians and Israelis.



The cohesion and consensus of the Israeli people on religious and social issues, as well as the peace process, are instrumental for both the survival of the peace process and the future of the nation.

Bryan Schwartzman is a Collegian columnist.

The Editorial/Opinion desk is now hiring.

There is one Editorial Associate Editor position open. The job involves helping with all tasks from typing to designing layout, and gives you the opportunity to write for the newspaper.

This position pays 5 hours/week at the regular student rate. For more information, contact Dan Bodah at 545-1491 or letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu, or stop by the Collegian office and fill out an application.

Focus on Race

The Collegian Editorial page needs writers for an upcoming series, Focus on Race. If you are interested in contributing: call 545-1491, e-mail "letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu," or come by the Collegian offices at 113 Campus Center and speak with Dan Bodah.

Write for Ed/Op

The Collegian Editorial page needs new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, satire, lifestyle, or any of a thousand other styles — let us be as broad as the student body is.

All who are interested should attend a New Writer's meeting on Friday, September 5 at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, call 545- 1491.

Police remind students of dorm safety

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

Two peeping tom incidents in Southwest Residential Area at the end of last semester prompted University of Massachusetts police to educate on-campus residents about dormitory safety measures.

On Wednesday April 16, Waco O. Taylor, 26, was arrested for entering 12 female resident's unlocked dorm rooms and sexually assaulting some of them during early morning hours in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall. Waco was a JQA resident.

UMass Police Chief John Luippold said, "We strongly, strongly urge students to keep their doors locked at all times, even when students are in their rooms, regardless if they are studying, watching TV or sleeping."

The second incident included two reports of a male peeking in women's shower stalls in Cance and MacKimmie Residence Halls.

According to Luippold the unidentified man was not found last semester.

Both women gave UMPD similar descriptions of the perpetrator.

Police describe the suspect as a "white male in his early 20s, approximately 5'7" tall, and plump. He had a shaved head with light brown or blonde hair."

"Students should pay attention before entering showers. They should make sure that no one is lurking around the halls or the bathrooms," Luippold said.

Although both acts were restricted to Southwest Area, University Police want all students to be aware of people around them because these incidents could occur anywhere on campus.

Residents should notify police immediately at 545-2121 if they observer anyone acting suspiciously on the floor at anytime of day.

■ mahar

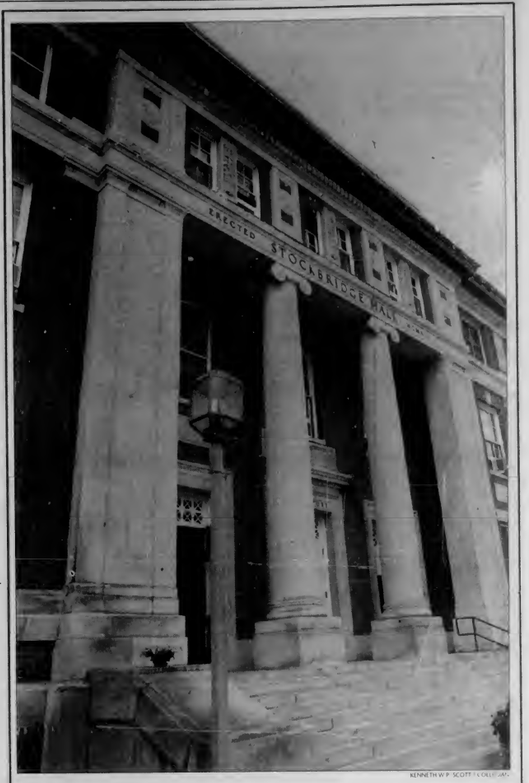
continued from page 1

"We wanted to make sure that the audio/visual renovations were comparable to the physical renovations," said John Stacey, the Director of the audio/visual department.

Much thought went into the sound quality of the newly renovated Mahar. According to Fink, one of their programmatic requirements was to be able to hear an unamplified voice from any point across the room which he displayed clearly.

The ceiling has been opened up to allow for better acoustics. Fink said the six large acoustical clouds in the ceiling optimize sound waves, allowing people in the back of the classroom to hear their professor easily.

Even the upholstery on the new seats was a consideration of sound amplification.



Besides being able to hear the professor better, students sitting to the sides will now be able to see more clearly due to two 37-inch monitors which will display any images seen on the new 20-foot wide screen in front of the classroom. There is also another 10-foot screen which can be lowered for dual-projection.

Lighting can be easily monitored by the professor due to the touch screen technology now in Mahar.

"All the professor will have to do is touch the screen and select from a menu of pre-set lighting," Stacey said. Another addition to the auditorium is a three-stop lift for physically disabled students and professors.

One of Fink's concerns about Mahar is the on-going vandalism which progresses on the University campus.

"Before we had a trashy area, so people continued to trash it," Fink said, "but now we hope that people respect this new space."

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Standing tall
Stockbridge Hall is a powerful symbol of earth sciences here on campus.

WANTED:
Managers
For People's Market
People's Market is a Non-Profit Food Store in the Student Union. We are Undergraduate Students Working Together to Serve the Community, and We are Looking for a Few Good Workers to Dedicate Their Time to Helping us Grow. This is Not a Job for the Weak Hearted, but It Will Give you Experience to Last a Lifetime.
Applications are Available at the People's Market (second floor of Student Union)
Or outside the Center for Student Businesses (406 Student Union)
Get Paid to Learn How to Manage a Small Business

Welcome Back!
ANTONIO'S
Come join us at two convenient locations in Downtown Amherst and at the Hampden Snackbar
Special $1.00 cheese slices
E' SEMPRE BUONA
OPEN 7 DAYS 12PM - 1AM
HAMPDEN SNACKBAR SOUTHWEST

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Under fire
Martha Feron, along with others, are being trained as part of a student fireforce.

■ honor

continued from page 1

from the College if they choose to fulfill some additional requirements, such as a thesis or research project.

"Existing honors students would be grandfathered in and could graduate from the Commonwealth College," Aitken said.

Aitken said he feels the Commonwealth College, if created, will benefit all UMass students by increasing the prestige of a UMass degree and by bringing distinguished faculty to campus to interact with the student body in general.

"I think it is an excellent idea. This provides an opportunity to really improve the reputation of public higher education in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Aitken said. "It is a way of creating both a high quality college and a symbol of quality in higher education."

DO YOU OR A FRIEND OR COLLEAGUE HAVE A PROBLEM WITH ALCOHOL OR OTHER DRUGS?
THERE ARE RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO HELP:
Alcoholics Anonymous: 532-2111
Narcotics Anonymous: 538-7479
Alanon: 253-5261 (for friends and relatives of alcoholics)
Adult Children of Alcoholics: 253-5261
Mental Health Services 545-2337
uhs
For more information, contact UHS at 577-5000

SHOOTERS WANTED
C is looking for a few shooters for some missions this fall.
Applications for and currently being accepted.
Work with some of the best at UMass.
Apply at our headquarters (113 campus center), and see Scott, Kenneth W.P. Scott or Vy, Thang Vo.

Welcome to the Newman Center
472 North Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002 (413) 549-0300
The Newman Center at the University of Massachusetts houses the Catholic Chapel on campus. This centrally located building serves the members of the University community throughout the year and offers to all:
•a 500 seat chapel for prayer
•a library for study and reading
•two lounges for study and relaxation
•a large cafeteria for food
•a billiards room for recreation
•a BankBoston ATM machine for money
•Mad Dasher Note Taking Services
•Java Hut Coffe Bar
•Building Hours: Sun-Thur: 7:00am-5:00pm Fri: 7:00am-5:00pm Sat:7:00am-6:00pm
•Sacrament of Reconciliation Saturday 2:30-3:30 & by appointment
•Cafeteria Hours: Mon-Thurs: 7:00am-7:30pm Fri: 7:00am-3:00pm Sat: 8:00am-3:00pm Sun: 8:00am-3:00pm
•Mass Schedule: Sat: 9:00am,4:00pm Sun: 8:00am, 10:30am, 7:00pm Mon-Fri: 5:15pm
SCHEDULE EFFECTIVE BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 3, 1997

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!
Hamm's BEER
Beer Prices Available at the following locations:
Big Y Liquors
Hsing Liquors
Liquors 44 - Hadley
Liquors 44 - Northampton
Northampton Liquors
Pleasant St. Liquors
Pop's - Northampton
R&P Liquors
Russel's Package
Scott's Liquors
Spirit Haus

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Serenity
The Fine Arts Center

provost

continued from page 1

undergraduate research projects, as well as in bringing distinguished scientists and researchers to the UMass campus.

"There are national grants available for undergraduate research that you can get routinely," Marrett said. "I want to make people aware of those and recognize innovative things that are already going on."

Advising, mentoring and retention are other issues at the top of her list, according to Marrett.

"I want to see what I can do personally to promote advising and mentoring. That's one area to focus on," Marrett said. "Another over arching interest is retention. We should make it possible for people to succeed."

In order to increase retention, Marrett said, she will be working closely with the Student Affairs Office to find ways to aid students.

One project which Marrett began working on immediately is the budget request for fiscal year 1999. She said the large increase in the state appropriation to the University for fiscal year 1998 will allow her to plan faculty searches and other projects for 1999.

"I am very pleased about the budget, about the response of friends and alumni from the capital campaign and the donations to individual departments," Marrett said. "The continued growth in funding from federal agencies and agencies within the Commonwealth also suggests the quality of work that takes place here and the position of the University in the national context."

In addition to these projects, Marrett will aid in planning for the Commonwealth (Honors) College, the creation of which has been approved by the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education.

Marrett said that she, Deputy Provost Norman Aitken and others will spend time this fall deciding how the ideal Commonwealth College would be set up, in hopes that the State Legislature will allocate funding for the College.

"We have some money for planning and thinking through what it should look like," Marrett said. "I hope it will be recognized as extremely important."

Marrett, a former professor of sociology and Afro- American studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, was assistant director of the National Science Foundation from 1992 to 1996. She is also the former director of the United Negro College Fund/Andrew Mellon Programs.

Patricia Crosson, who served as interim provost for the past three years, will take a year's sabbatical before returning to the faculty of the School of Education in the department of educational policy, research and administration.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

GET INVOLVED!

Are you critical about the UMass community? Do you want to inform your peers about events happening on campus? If you possess strong writing skills and dedication – one report for the Collegian – we always need news writers. The News Desk is a great place to start. Come down to 113 Campus Center and speak to Jonathan Liberty, News Editor.

HAVEN'T GOT YOUR PICTURE TAKEN FOR THE UCARD YET?

PHOTO OPPORTUNITIES!

UCard™

• CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE
10:00 - 4 p.m., Tuesday
Sept. 2, Friday, Sept. 5

• UCARD OFFICE, FRANKLIN DINING HALL
Sept. 1 -4, 8:30a.m. to 7,
Sept. 5, 8:30 - 5 p.m.

UCard Debit Accounts should be opened at the UCard Office, Franklin Dining Hall, 545-0197

DO YOU OR A FRIEND OR COLLEAGUE HAVE A PROBLEM WITH ALCOHOL OR OTHER DRUGS?

THERE ARE RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO HELP:

Alcoholics Anonymous: 532-2111
Narcotics Anonymous: 538-7479
Alanon: 253-5261 (for friends and relatives of alcoholics)
Adult Children of Alcoholics: 253-5261
Mental Health Services 545-2337

uhs For more information, contact UHS at 577-5000

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING

• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass Continuing Education at 545-0474

THE BIGGEST BACK TO SCHOOL POSTER SALE

1000's of Choices

Where:
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

When:
MON. SEPT. 1 THRU FRI. SEPT. 5

Time:
9 AM - 4:30 PM

Sponsor:
WMUA 91.1 FM

Incredible Selection

CHECK OUT OUR GREAT POSTERS AND PRICES!!

MOST IMAGES
ONLY $6, $7 AND $8

THE LAUNDRY CLUB

The Club Med of Laundromats
8am - 11pm • 7 days

★Coin Operated Washers and Dryers
★State of the Art Machines
★Snack Bar
★Big Screen T.V.
★Pool Table and Video Games

$1.00 OFF any Size Washer
Limit 1 coupon per visit
expires September 21, 1997

$2.00 OFF Drop Off Service Wash, Dry and Fold
12 lbs. minimum
Limit 1 coupon per visit
expires September 21, 1997

Dry Cleaning

6 University Drive - Next to Victory Supermarket - Amherst (413) 549-2640

COURTESY OF KENT HIGGINS

Habitat for Humanity volunteers at the Rosemary Baptist Church in South Carolina.

UCF, Habitat rebuild S.C. church burned in racially motivated blaze

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

For one week in May, a group of 14 University of Massachusetts students from the United Christian Foundation (UCF) and Five College students from Habitat for Humanity traveled to Barnwell County, S.C. to rebuild the Rosemary Baptist Church, which was burnt out in a racially motivated attack on Easter, 1995.

"The trip was everything we had hoped for and more," Kent Higgins, the University Chaplain for UCF said.

The students learned proper insulation and dry-wall installation.

"We put in a lot of indoor insulation and sheet rock, lots of hammers and nails," Higgins said.

"It was a simple hard work project," Higgins said.

According to Higgins, the students worked side by side with approximately 20 other West Virginians, most of whom were retired coal miners.

"Many people learned a lot of things down there," Higgins said. "It was a good experience for both groups."

Higgins said that the students also took part in discussion sections on racism and worshiped at a nearby African- American church.

The group stayed in housing at the work site, and their meals and transportation were provided, according to Higgins.

Although the students were only there for one week, the volunteer effort went on for four months. The new church will be dedicated the weekend of Oct. 4.

Higgins said that one of the major improvements was rebuilding the sanctuary, which doubled in size.

"We hope that RSOs [Registered Student Organizations] and other campus organizations like UCF and Habitat for Humanity will continue to form inter-religious and civic- religious alliances in the future," Higgins said.

The trip was funded by donations from civic groups and churches in the Valley.

Future Plans

In conjunction with the Holyoke Land Trust, Habitat for Humanity is planning half-day trips to Holyoke on weekends to rebuild multi-family homes.

UCF student fellowship has planned a service retreat to Harlem, N.Y., the weekend of Oct. 24.

According to Higgins, during the retreat students will be able to sample a variety of outreach projects in the city, while staying at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine; the cost for students will be very low.

Presently, UCF is looking for interested students to plan an intercession or spring break trip to the south, possible destinations include the Sea Islands of Georgia, Mississippi or Costa Rica.

According to Higgins, a local party to celebrate their trip to Barnwell County and to look at similar ventures for the future, is planned for Sunday, Oct. 5 at 7 p.m. at the UCF House, 367 North Pleasant Street, Amherst.

Interested students can contact campus ministers John Ike or Kent Higgins.

COURTESY OF KENT HIGGINS

Rosemary Baptist Church in the middle of reconstruction.

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!

• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including
Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!

Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

Welcome Back Students

◆ FREE HEAT & HOT WATER
◆ EURO-STYLE KITCHENS
◆ ELEGANT MIRRORED ACCENTS
◆ DESIGNER BATHS
◆ WALL TO WALL CARPETING
◆ SPARKLING IN-GROUND POOL
◆ SAND VOLLEYBALL COURT
◆ ON PVTA BUSLINE
◆ WASHERS/DRYERS

SUGARLOAF ESTATES
28 RIVER ROAD (RTE. 47)
SUNDERLAND, MA 01375
665-3856

LUXURY 2 BEDROOM APARTMENT HOMES

Campus Center - 545 - 2619
Open 'til 7 pm this Wednesday and Thursday.
Regular Hours M-F 9-5.

THE University Store
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

Clothing Department
New for Fall
New Styles New Clothes New Designs

Cotton Exchange "Sports Logo" Oxford Grey Tees
Introductory Price $10.99 reg. $14.99

"Tumbling Bears" Tees From Fitzgerald
Now $11.99 reg. $15.99

MV CORP Lined Windpants Embr
Now $29.99 reg. $35.99

Cotton Twill Barn Jacket w/ Courduroy Collar and Cuffs
Now $54.99 reg. $64.99 Just in Time for Fall Weather

Crewneck Sweatshirt from MV CORP
Now $24.99 Reg. $29.99 University of Massachusetts Design Grey or Navy Only

Get Your BasketBall Shirt and Sweats Now

TIME OUT
UMass Basketball Tee
Now $9.99

Crewneck Sweatshirt
Now $28.99
Reg. $32.99

20% Off All Duffle Bags From TEAGERMFG, EASTPAK, OUTDOR PRODUCTS

Shop Early for Best Selection
SALE ENDS SATURDAY SEPT 6, 1997

THE OFF CAMPUS MEAL PLAN

Don't Be Stuck in the Kitchen While The World Passes You by.

classé cafe

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

CUTTY'S

WALKER'S GRILL

Superior Pizzeria

Charlie's tavern

Amherst DELIVERS Deli

The Ground Round

The Black Sheep Deli & Bakery

SUBWAY

Amber Waves

PASTA E BASTA

TOC Bistro & Grill

Bueno Y Sano

DELANO'S

Applebee's Neighborhood Grill & Bar America's favorite Neighbor

BANANADAMA Fabulous Frozen YOGURT

Newman Center Cafeteria

d'angelo sandwich shops

ANTONIO'S E' SEMPRE BUONA

Friendly's

BRUEGGER'S Fresh Bagels BAGEL BAKERY

Supplemental Plans Available for those on campus

More Restaurants to Come By Fall of "97"

FOR MORE INFO: 1-888-211-6267

Good Thyme Deli

The Futon Experts

Ultra-Trifold lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Twin $89 Full $99 Queen $109

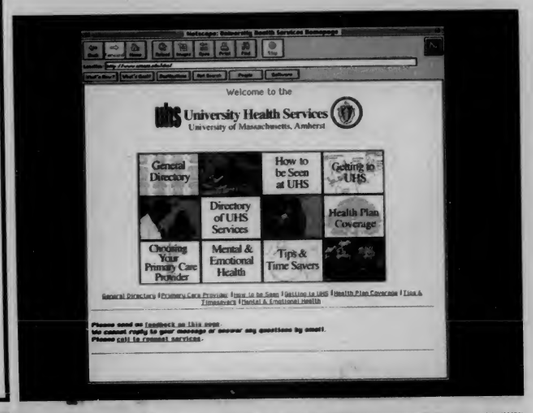
The Lowdown lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Full $99 Queen $109

The Super E-Z Sofa lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Full $159 Queen $169

The Stealth lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Twin $149 Full $159 Queen $169

The Metro lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Full $139

The Southwood lifetime guarantee ✱ frame only Full $179 Queen $199



FREE DELIVERY

FLY BY NIGHT™

SINCE 1988

Fantastic Futons. Fantastic prices.

21 State Street • Northampton • 413-586-1464 • flybynightfuton.com

PREREQUISITE: ADRENALINE

Drive. Intensity. Those aren't words you're likely to see in many course requirements. Then again Army ROTC is unlike any other elective. It's hands-on excitement. ROTC will challenge you mentally and physically through intense leadership training. Training that builds your character, confidence and decision-making skills. Again, words other courses seldom use. But they're the credits you need to succeed in life. ROTC is open to freshmen and sophomores without obligation and requires about five hours per week. Register this term for Army ROTC.

ARMY ROTC

THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE

Add Adventure and Challenge to your Fall Schedule.
Register now for Army ROTC.

GREAT PLACE WITH GREAT PRICES

MIKE'S WESTVIEW

Mike's Welcomes Back its Students
With its 22ounce Big One
Your choice of Bud or Bud Lite
Also our Surprise cocktail of the Week

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Inside this Issue:	Men's Soccer page 2	Field Hockey page 3	Women's Soccer page 4	Water Polo page 6	Volleyball page 11	Features: Khari Samuel (pg.1)	Mike Butler (pg.5)	Danielle Dion (pg.7)

BACK TO SCHOOL FALL 1997

UMass Softball advances to College World Series

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Exam week can be like getting beaned on the head by Randy Johnson.

Imagine that at about six o'clock on Sunday evening, your head is buzzing with theories and equations destined to be forgotten in a few days when you learn that in 36 hours you have to be completely packed up, out of your dorm, and on a plane to pastoral Oklahoma.

Unpleasant yes, but after an intense 3–2 extra–inning win over Colorado St in their NCAA Regional Championship Game, members of the Massachusetts softball team wouldn't have had it any other way, as they embarked for the Women's College World Series. People hadn't been so ecstatic about the tourist mecca that is the Sooner State since the Land Run of 1889.

"This is the ultimate goal of every college softball player," coach Elaine Sortino said after the Regional win, delirious with euphoria. "This is like going to see God."

Playing at Hall of Fame Stadium on Memorial Day, means that you've "made it" — your dreams have been fulfilled. The toil, blood, sweat, tears and anguish of years, come to fruition when your name goes up in lights on the hallowed stadium's scoreboard and is cheered by the game's legends.

But this sense of fulfillment was not enough. UMass wanted to win too, something it displayed vividly before the eyes of the softball world as it tangled with eventual National Champion, Arizona. The team that would later hammer UCLA and Olympic–team pitcher Christa Williams for 10 runs in a mercy–ruled title game could only scrap five hits off of UMass ace Danielle "Harry" Henderson.

The Wildcats took a 1–0 lead in the first on the always exciting sacrifice fly against a jittery UMass team, but Sortino calmed the Minutewomen before any further runs scored.

UMass evened the score in the fourth when senior Sam Cardenas sent WCWS MVP Nancy Evans' 1–1 riseball deep to left and into the bleachers for her second home run.

The game progressed into extra innings, although in the mean time, UMass produced better scoring chances than Arizona (57–4 entering the game), which was hitting an ungodly .387 as a team. In a performance that would ultimately land her on the All–Tournament team, Henderson held Arizona hitless after the third inning, until Alison Johnsen's controversial double to lead off the eighth.

Olympic–team member Leah O'Brien would eventually single home Johnsen, giving the Wildcats a 2–1 win. It was now obvious to all that the scrappy Minutewomen could beat any team behind the strong arm of Henderson, who was named All–American at the pre–tournament gala banquet at the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Facing elimination in a high noon showdown with Fresno State, UMass came out shooting before more fans than the rest of the season's games combined. Senior Stephanie Mareina drove a single in the first and would score on a single by Kim Gutridge, giving UMass an early 1–0 lead.

The Bulldogs were held at bay for most of the game, their only serious rally coming in the top of the third, where they loaded the bases with no outs, on an error, double and hit batter, for All–American Robin Yorke. The .442 hitter tapped back to Henderson though, who went home to catcher Kelly Buckley for the first out.

Next up was All–American Nina Lindenberg who provided the difference in a narrow 5–4 Fresno St. win over UMass on Feb. 15 at Arizona State with a monstrous solo shot off Henderson. This time, Lindenberg grounded to Cardenas at third, who fired to Buckley for out number two.

Fresno St. cleanup hitter Angela Cervantez's effort to salvage what could have been a game–breaking inning resulted in a grounder to second. The ball was booted though, allowing two runs to score. It might not have been the big inning Bulldog coach Margie Wright had hoped for, but it was just enough as Fresno St. held on for a 2–1 win.

The trip was without a victory, but not without intrinsic value. Having gone through the experience, the team now wants to go back in 1998 even more, and will know how to handle the hoopla when it gets there.

Perhaps more memorable than anything that happened on the field in Oklahoma, just how UMass got there blows it away like the twisters that

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 58

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Led by NCAA Regional MVP Danielle Henderson, the Massachusetts softball team advanced to the College World Series in late May for only the second time in school history.

Inexperienced Minutemen get chance in new A–10

By Jonathan M. Place
Collegian Staff

Plateau — n., a relatively stable or quiescent period or state; a leveling off.

That's an accurate description of the last three seasons for the Massachusetts football team. Since 1994, the Minutemen have gone 5–6, 6–5 and 6–5 under the leadership of coach Mike Hodges.

It's now up to one of the youngest UMass teams in recent memory to turn the tide. In fact, over two–thirds of the Minutemen's pre–season roster consists of underclassmen. In the last four seasons Hodges has relied on freshman quarterbacks to carry the load of the offense.

This year, with fingers crossed, the Minutemen hope that sophomore Jeff Smith will take over where he left off last year and remain the leader of the offensive attack. It's now up to the experienced sophomore to keep his job and bring Massachusetts, once a powerhouse in the old Yankee Conference, (now the Atlantic 10 Football Conference), back to respectability.

To raise the anxiety level a little more for coaches and fans, the offensive line is brand new. Therefore, experience and size is out; youth, quickness and mobility are in. One positive that can be taken from this is that this core of linemen were together last season, backing up a group that was among the Yankee Conference's elite lines. They've learned together and they've grown together.

"They've looked great," Smith said. "I'm very confident in this offensive line."

Junior line–backer and tri–captain Khari Samuel also feels confident in the new line.

"Last year these guys were in the shadows. They studied (the old line), they watched them. Now they are being given a chance to show what they can do."

Although the Minutemen lost its top two runners of a year ago, Ron Brockington and Frank Alessio, things aren't as bad as they seem. Taking over for Brockington at fullback is sophomore Jaime Holston. Last season Holston ran for 296 yards, and averaged a whopping 8.2 yards per carry. Alessio's replacement will be junior Matt Jordan, who was named New Hampshire's Gatorade Player of the Year in high school.

1997 Fall Preview
Massachusetts Football
Back To School Issue

Led by two–sport star Doug Clark, UMass' core of receivers will attempt to spread out opposing defenses and make it easier for the Minutemen to move the ball down the field. Clark, who caught 20 passes last season, has established his knack for the big play, leading the team with a 19.0 yards per catch average.

Actually, Hodges is lucky to have Clark back on the gridiron for another year. Clark, who earned third–team All– American honors in baseball in the spring after hitting .415 with 11 home runs and 60 RBIs, was drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers in the 20th round in baseball's June 1997 draft, but decided to remain in school and play both sports.

Senior wide–out Darryl Thomas returns to the Minutemen after sitting out last season with a strained ligament in his left ankle. Kerry Taylor replaces Erik Henry at tight end.

Coach Hodges feels that this season Taylor will be more than able to fill the vold.

"He's big, he's strong and he's talented," Hodges said. "It's not going to be a three–man rotation. It's going to be Taylor."

Although the points must come from the offensive side of the ball, the Minutemen's motivation and experience comes from the defensive side of the ball. Led by Samuel, a pre– season first team All–Atlantic 10 selection, the youthful linebacking squad will attempt to dominate the middle of the field. Since senior tri–captain Mike Dawson is moving to defensive end, Samuel takes over

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 58

Switch no problem for UM's Khari Samuel

By Jonathan M. Place
Collegian Staff

Among the 22 starting players on the Massachusetts football team, there is one man whose assignment carries the most weight. Khari Samuel, the 6–foot–3, 232 pound junior, has been moved to the position of middle linebacker.

As the center of UMass' 4–3 defensive set, it is up to Samuel not only to learn a new position, but to assure the Minutemen coaches that for the next two years, they have the right man for the job. To Samuel, the change doesn't matter. As a linebacker, it is important to understand all three positions.

"I've played linebacker since high school," Samuel said. "I've played all three positions, and you have to know how to play them all depending on how the game is going."

No matter how Samuel performs on the field, it's what he means to the team that is most important. He's a natural leader who, as a junior, was named a captain.

"I'll just try to contribute any way I can to the program," Samuel said.

Samuel understands his new role, and under the direction of newly acquired defensive coordinator Jerry Azzinaro, known by the team as "Coach Az", the entire defense is conforming nicely to the new look.

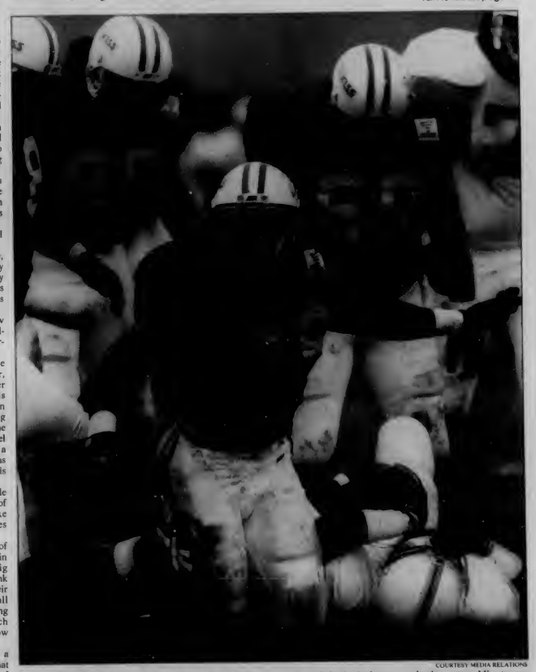
"We've really picked up the new defense well," Samuel said. "I'm really proud of how these guys have performed."

Last season, tri–captain Mike Dawson played middle linebacker, with Samuel on his right and former UMass great Justin Reimer on his left. Now in 1997, Dawson has been moved to defensive end, bringing experience, speed and maturity to the position. This move has left Samuel with the task of helping mature a whole new set of linebackers such as sophomores Matt Dawson and Chris Price.

"The move of Samuel to the inside will allow him to take advantage of his great athletic ability and make more plays," coach Mike Hodges said.

Three years ago, UMass was one of the only schools really confident in Samuel's ability. Most of the big name, Div. I– A schools didn't think he had what it took to play at their level. Now as a proven leader, all Samuel wants to do is give everything he has back to the program which gave him the opportunity to show what he could do.

"I try to do the best I can, as a player," Samuel said. "I try to do that so others see me and do the same. I try to give 110 percent all the time so I can make myself a better person."



The team has reacted to Samuel's work ethic. UMass coaches have nothing but the best to say about how this team has practiced and gotten themselves ready for the season.

"The last time we were this young, we went 5–6," Hodges said. "There were times when I would come off the field so aggravated because they didn't know how to practice. This team knows how to practice, they know what's expected of them and they are fun to be around."

The humility Samuel possesses during press conferences is abandoned once he's on the gridiron, leaving running backs, quarterbacks and receivers in his wake.

In the last two seasons, he has racked up enough tackles to rank ninth on UMass' all–time charts. In total, Samuel has made 212 tackles in

Turn to KHARI, page 58

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

First team All–Atlantic 10 linebacker Khari Samuel (No. 26) will be looked upon to lead a young Minuteman defense.

Minutemen look to Butler and Castma in '97

By Matthew J. Perrault
Collegian Staff

As summer's heat fades away and the eyes of most fall sports fans turn to our form of football, the real football season is poised to begin. The Massachusetts men's soccer squad is as mixed as the fall colors and would love to steal the spotlight, but how the team will blend this year is yet to be determined.

1997 Fall Preview
UMass Men's Soccer
Back To School Issue

This year the team has a balance of great offensive fire power combined with a stingy defense and strong goal keeping. There is plenty of experience to go around, but don't look past the new guys. They will have plenty to say about what this year's version of the Minutemen will produce.

UMass will be looking to their star to help take this team to the next level. Senior Mike Butler will make opposing coaches lose sleep because of his dangerous footwork and scoring touch. The two-time first team Atlantic 10 selection with 24 career goals and 17 career assists will be marked heavily throughout season. Still, coach Sam Koch expects big things from his premier player.

"We will be looking toward Mike to handle most of the scoring load and really be the man this year," Koch said. "The key will be to get others involved in the scoring and let Mike distribute the ball to open players."

Butler won't be alone in goal scoring department this year if fellow senior Joenal Castma has anything to say about it. Castma spent most the of '96 campaign nursing a sore ankle and didn't produce like he could. The speedy forward transferred to UMass from St. John's, where he netted 11 goals and was named Big East Conference Tournament MVP in 1995.

Enter the question marks. Transfer sophomore Gavin Hewitt and freshman Seth Lilburn both carry impressive resumes into Amherst and should contribute this year. Hewitt came to Amherst from Cal State Northridge, where he scored six points and was a member of the Olympic Development Program in Washington.

Lilburn is coming to UMass from New Jersey, where he led his high school to a record of 61–15–1 in his four years at Mountain Lake and Gill St. Bernard's high schools. He was also a member of the Under 17 National team.

"Lilburn and Hewitt both have had good preseasons and could really help us up front," Koch said. "In the past, the teams that have had three or four players that could score have faired better for us."

The Minutemen would like to change up their formations often, but one determining factor will be the play of the midfield. Seasoned juniors Jake Brodsky, Paul Cocoran and Marc Saad and sophomore James Redmond should step up and take control of the center of the field, but they will need to be able to come back and help the defense. Leaving only three in back would be great for the offensive attack but could leave the defense vulnerable. The midfielders have speed which should help in their efforts.

The defense is spearheaded by juniors Carmelo Garcia and Brad Kurowski. Garcia was a standout last season around the goal for the Minutemen and was one the most versatile defenders in the entire A–10. Kurowski has 23 career starts for UMass and can also play every position in the back. Returning to the Minutemen after a year's hiatus is junior Steve Jones. Jones started all 22 games for UMass in 1995 and should do the same in 1997. Those three should help take the pressure off the keepers and play a major role in the success of the team.

The men in charge of keeping the ball out of the back of the net have been fighting it out for the starting position in goal. Jeff Jablonski is the starter and has played very well this preseason, but so has redshirt freshman Todd Fowler.

"I feel confident with both men in the net. Jeff is the starter, but either one could step in and play" Koch said.

They both were tested in an exhibition loss to Indiana on Aug. 23, where they pelted with 28 shots, allowing four goals.

The regular season features some premier games hosted here in Amherst. The Minutemen will now play their home games at Totman Field and welcome the likes of power Boston University, A–10 champ Fordham, and URI which handed UMass a ticket out of the post season last year with shoot out defeat in the regular season finals.

UMass is looking at one of the toughest schedules ever for the team. They will be tested early and often. The Atlantic 10 is growing in strength, with more schools beefing up their programs. The new teams to watch are Virginia Tech, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure. All have increased their talent levels and should make the A–10 one of the strongest leagues in the country.

The future looks bright for the Minutemen. They have seasoned veterans to lead, unproven young talent, strong defense, killer offensive attack and good goal keeping. The pieces of the puzzle are on the table, and Koch now has the responsibility of putting them together.

1997 Massachusetts Men's Soccer Schedule

Aug. 23 vs. Indiana	7:00 p.m.
Aug. 29 vs. Cal Poly SLO	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 4 vs. McGill University	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 7 at Siena	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 13 Maine	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 17 at New Hampshire	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 20 Boston University	2:00 p.m.
Sept. 23 at Hartford	7:30 p.m.
Sept. 26 at St. Bonaventure	3:00 p.m.
Sept. 28 at Duquesne	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 3 St. Joseph's	3:30 p.m.
Oct. 5 Temple	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 8 Rhode Island	3:30 p.m.
Oct. 10 Virginia Tech	3:30 p.m.
Oct. 12 George Washington	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 17 at Dayton	7:30 p.m.
Oct. 19 at Xavier	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 24 Fordham	3:00 p.m.
Oct. 26 La Salle	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 31 at UCLA	11:00 p.m.
Nov. 2 vs. Cal St. Fullerton	1:30 p.m.
Nov. 7–9 Atlantic 10 Championships

Sam Koch

Senior Forward Mike Butler
COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Home Games displayed in Bold and played at Totman Field

Shea takes over for legendary UM coach Pat Hixon

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

If new Massachusetts women's field hockey coach Patty Shea needs any advice on how to deal with the ups and downs that come with being the first–year head coach of a top notch program, she knows where to turn.

"When I accepted the position, Bruiser Flint came in and he said, 'If you want to know how to follow a legend, come talk to me.'"

However, while she fully acknowledges the pressures of succeeding as prominent a figure as Pam Hixon — who resigned in April to concentrate on coaching the U.S. National team — Shea is not overwhelmed by what lies ahead of her.

"There is a tradition to uphold," Shea said. "That is just fact. The expectations are high from myself, as well as from my administration. And if they weren't high, I shouldn't be sitting in this chair.

"If I didn't have high expectations, if I didn't want to compete, if I didn't want to bring this program to the top level, then I am doing no justice to this athletic program and to this University."

Shea's commitment to UMass began in 1980, when she signed to play for Hixon as a freshman. For a goalie who had never won a high school game, the change to Hixon's system was swift and successful. In 1981, Shea was named second team All-American, in '82 and '83, she received first team honors. The Minutewomen advanced to the NCAA final four in her sophomore and senoir years.

1997 Fall Preview
UMass Field Hockey
Back To School Issue

She is not unfamiliar with the college game, having served as an assistant coach at Iowa for seven years, during which time the Hawkeyes reached five final fours.

Shea has been away from the coaching ranks since December of 1995. From that point until the end of the Atlanta Olympics, she served as the starting goalie for Hixon's U.S. National team.

Now, coaching has brought Shea back to her roots — her homestate and her alma mater.

"I love this place," Shea said. "I believed in this system and I believed in this program, this University, to come to school here years ago. Now, for me to have the opportunity to come back and give back and be a part of something that was so integral in my life is just a huge opportunity.

"I'm honored to be a part of this program because I've seen it from a different perspective than most coaches see the programs they're working in. I know the history and the tradition."

That viewpoint should help Shea's transition into the top spot on the sidelines.

"I know what's expected of a UMass student–athlete, academically and on the field."

On the field, Shea faces the job of filling the void left by former standouts. Kyle Rothenberge, Hilary Rose and Melanie Core graduated, while Atlantic 10 rookie of the year Saskia Fuchs has returned to her native Netherlands.

"You can't replace those players," Shea said. "But you can fill the spots they left. You can fill the void."

The Minutewomen do return an experienced core of both offensive and defensive players. On the attack, Erica Johnston, who tied for the team lead in goals with 13, and Cortney MacLean, who is working her way back from off– season surgery will lead a charge that will have help from Kate Putnam, who racked up 11 assists last year.

Defensively, Amy Ott and Jen Gutzman will provide experienced anchors. Sharon Hughes and Laura Phelan should also handle defensive duties.

Shea has brought in six new players to compliment her already established veteran corps.

While no position is guaranteed, perhaps the spot most in question is the goal. Michelle Crooks, who backed up Rose last year, transfer Zowie Tucker and freshman Erica Yeaton will compete for time in front of the cage.

This new era of UMass field hockey has come with more changes than just the head coach. Gone are Amy Robertson and Ainslee Press, who served as Minutewomen assistant coaches for the past five and four years respectively.

Emily Smith, a 1997 graduate of Iowa who played for Shea while a Hawkeye, joins the staff as a full time assistant. Iowa won for Big 10 titles in Smith's time at the school, and in 1994, she led the nation with 19 assists. Rose will work as a volunteer assistant while she completes her sport management degree.

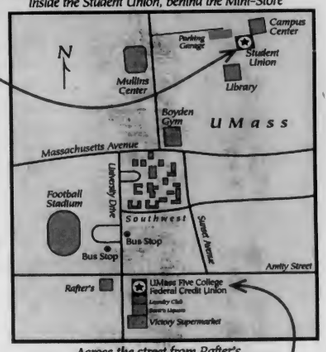
One of the most important changes is the change to an astroturf surface at Richard F. Garber field. The long–awaited switch to turf means that the field hockey program — as well as both the men's and women's lacrosse teams — will receive a boost in terms of scheduling, recruiting and maintaining a top–caliber program.

"It needs to be in persepective about how amazing it has been for UMass to be as consistent and as much of a power as they have been playing on grass," Shea said. "It changes the game, it's a much faster game on turf. Getting turf says a lot about the school's commitment to this program."

Shea and the Minutewomen open their season against California on Sept. 6 at 11 a.m. in the inaugural UMass/Phoenix Invitational.

1997 Massachusetts Field Hockey Schedule

Sept. 6 vs. California
Sept. 7 Consolation\ Championships– UMass Invitational
Sept. 10 Boston College	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 12 vs. Davis and Elkins	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 14 at James Madison	12:00 p.m.
Sept. 17 at Yale	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 20 at Northeastern	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 24 Rhode Island	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 28 Temple	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 4 at North Carolina	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 5 vs. Wake Forest	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 8 at Boston University	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 12 vs. Ball State	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 13 at Syracuse	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 15 Providence	3:30 p.m.
Oct 18 La Salle	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 25 Connecticut	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 29 Dartmouth	2:00 p.m.
Oct. 31 at West Chester	2:00 p.m.
Nov. 2 at St. Joseph's	2:00 p.m.
Nov. 7–9 Atlantic 10 Championships



Jr. Laura Phelan

Erica Johnston
COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Home Games displayed in Bold and and played at Richard F. Garber field.

Welcome Back!
ANTONIO'S

Come join us at two convenient locations in Downtown Amherst and at the Hampden Snackbar
Special $1.00 cheese slices
E' SEMPRE BUONA
OPEN 7 DAYS 12PM - 1AM
HAMPDEN SNACKBAR SOUTHWEST

UMass students and employees – You are eligible for the best deal in financial services!
• No Fee checking
• Free ATM cards
• Low rates on computer loans
• Easy terms on car loans
• Free 24 hour audio teller service
• Stafford and PLUS student loans
New UMass location! The Student Union (Opening In Sept. 97)
Visit our sign-up table in the Campus Center Sept 5, 9 & 10 11 am – 2 pm
It only takes $5 to open an account!
Inside the Student Union, behind the Mini-Store

Across the street from Rafter's, In the Victory Market Shopping Plaza
6 University Drive
UMass Five College Federal Credit Union
AMHERST • WORCESTER • DARTMOUTH
6 University Drive • Student Union
Amherst UMass
413·549·7400
NCUA
Students of UMass/Amherst and employees, faculty, and staff of UMass, Hampshire College, Amherst College, Smith [illegible] and Mount Holyoke College and their immediate families are eligible to be UMass/Five College Federal Cre[illegible]

UM women's soccer young; Le Duc returns to UM

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something... maroon?

The mere mention of the color blue, in its darker shade, around the No. 15 Massachusetts women's soccer team can be harmful to your health, especially considering a certain regional rivalry with the University of Connecticut.

1997 Fall Preview
Massachusetts Women's Soccer
Back To School Issue

So, working around a superstition that concerns a big step forward in life is a necessary evil when talking about the Minutewomen's upcoming season.

Last minute jitters included, coach Jim Rudy and his squad have dealt with all of the above in the preseason, but don't mention being left at the altar — in this case, the NCAA Tournament altar. Any more bad breaks for Rudy this season could mean missing the hallowed land of NCAA postseason action for the first time since 1990, and only the second time in the 20 years of UMass women's soccer.

With last minute defections in star recruit Misa Froehlich, season-ending injuries in another star recruit, Kathleen Machamer, and a plethora of bumps and bruises, the coaching skills of the man who eclipsed the 200-win mark last season will be put to the test.

"Cautious optimism," Rudy said, about two-thirds of his team who made it to the Sweet 16 last year. "Right now, there are a lot of unanswered questions as to who we are, and where we are — and that's the best that we can do.

"We've had one key freshman player neglect to come (Froehlich), another key freshman player out for the season (Machamer), a third key player, Kate Webb, is out, and compounded with all our injuries, this might be my first year that I've been here where we will have a totally unbalanced system of play," Rudy said.

However, all is not so disconsolate, and for the aforementioned reasons, UMass has a lot of things to build on in this rebuilding season:

• "Something old" — You cannot consider five people who average an age of 22 years old "old" per se. But, there is a wealth of experience in the senior class, and the return of one of the top players in UMass history, as an assistant coach, to rely upon this season. Goalkeeper Danielle Dion, defenders Erica Iverson and Amy Burrill, an All-American transfer from Div. II Barry University, midfielder Liz Rutherford and assistant coach Rachel LeDuc have the on-the-job experience to train the team's 11 underclassmen.

"A key thing with Rachel is 'been there, done that'... to use an overused cliche," Rudy said. "She's been to a Final Four, she's been through everything that the young kids are going to go through: the training, the homesickness, the insecurities about who they are and how they fit in, the academic end, Add-Drop and dealing with the parking police. Plus, its always nice to get back some of your own people."

• "Something new" — Even with the two subtractions, Rudy still has a freshman group that can fill holes for his side. Flexibility has been key in the preseason, with midfielder Brooke Bartlett and forward Kara Green solidifying playing time with their hard-nosed work ethic.

Bartlett shrugged off a pulled quadriceps to log quality time in the Minutewomen's 2–1 exhibition win over Vermont on Aug. 24, and Green has already displayed her sneaky–deadly scoring potential that made her a All–State star at Shenendehowa High School in Clifton Park, N.Y.

"Me and our old assistant-Chris Chamides had a laugh the other day, and out of our top four recruits, only Green is playing steadily for us right now," Rudy said. "Out of our other three, we have to consider Bartlett as one of our top freshmen, and we hardly recruited her. So, what the hell do we know about recruiting?"

• "Something borrowed" — If you are a person that says when you borrow you really mean that you keep, then UMass' late summer addition, University of Maine transfer Sophie Lecot (17g, 4a, 38 pts), is staying for the next two seasons.

From The Land That Time Forgot to the Pioneer Valley, Lecot, last year's America East Player of the Year, has assured herself a starting forward spot in the UMass lineup. Rudy is more than familiar with Lecot, as she competed against the Minutewomen last spring with her club team, Omega du Montréal.

• "Something... maroon?" — With the aforementioned possibility of missing the NCAA Tournament for only the second time in 20 years, team pride and continuity will be as important as ever for UMass this season.

The senior class will be looking to keep a tradition alive, and its experience will have to be passed on to the underclassmen for the Minutewomen to make it to the NCAA postseason.

Luck is already on their side, since an automatic bid has been awarded to the postseason tournament champion of the Atlantic 10 Conference. No pun intended, with the way the season has gone so far, a trip to the Big Dance would be a marriage made in heaven, and an early vacation would make a blue, blue Christmas for all involved.

1997 Massachusetts Women's Soccer Schedule

Aug. 30 vs. Fairfield	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 5 Michigan	4:30 p.m.
Sept. 9 Rhode Island	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 12 Duquesne	4:00 p.m.
Sept. 14 St. Bonaventure	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 20 Colorado	12:00 p.m.
Sept. 23 Connecticut	3:30 p.m.
Sept. 26 at Southern Methodist	7:30 p.m.
Sept. 28 vs. California	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 4 at St. Joseph's	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 5 at Temple	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 10 at Virginia Tech	4:00 p.m.
Oct. 12 at George Washington	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 17 Dayton	3:00 p.m.
Oct. 19 Xavier	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 24 at Fordham	4:00 p.m.
Oct. 26 at LaSalle	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 31 vs. Clemson	1:00 p.m.
Nov. 2 at Georgia	2:00 p.m.
Nov. 7–9 Atlantic 10 Championship

Home Games displayed in Bold and played at Totman Field

Jim Rudy

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS
Danielle Dion

Senior Mike Butler key to Minutemen's success

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

As Lusitano White celebrated its 2–1 triple overtime victory over Inter-Amherst in the Pioneer Valley Summer Soccer League championship game, one thing the two teams held in common was pretty simple — utter exhaustion. However, one thing that Inter-Amherst may have wished they held in common with the champions is their star player who hails from Springfield.

That player was senior forward Mike Butler (career: 24 goals, 17 assists, 65 points) of the Massachusetts men's soccer team. The summer league's leading scorer capped off a successful offseason by clinching league title at Lusitano Field in Ludlow. This experience has supplied him with a level of competition that has prepared him for his final season in a UMass uniform.

It was different scenario last year. Butler had to recover from a broken arm suffered in the spring, and came into last season as cold as ice. This season, Butler wants to take this summer of success and translate it to an Atlantic 10 Championship, with the automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament to boot.

"Playing this summer helped me out an unbelievable amount," Butler said, who helped win the title against a former teammate in Tashi Tshering, and a current teammate, goalkeeper Todd Fowler.

"The players on my team were very talented, and the only way you can get better is to play with people who are at your level, or better than you.

"So, we had a lot of good competition, and I got a lot of experience up front — controlling the ball, and shooting and scoring, so it probably was one of the most successful summers I've had. I want to carry all that hard work over this summer to this fall."

In the beginning, soccer originally was not Butler's top sport, playing the game as filler between basketball and baseball seasons. After he got into junior high school, he began to develop a love for the game. From hands–on to feet–first, the challenge of soccer intrigued Butler because the learning process was, and still is, a continuing one — not just for him, but any person that plays the game.

That learning process will continue with the forward situation for this year's UMass squad. The Minutemen lost the services of Dave Siljanovski to graduation, and the decision for coach Sam Koch lies in who will be paired with Butler on the frontline. Chemistry is key, and the choice between freshman Seth Lilburn and sophomore Gavin Hewitt is one he will have to make.

"The forward situation is a question mark for us right now," Koch said. "Butler is our go–to guy, and we need him at the top of our lineup. We can't have him hanging around the midfield, and we're going to have to see whether Hewitt or Lilburn will be upfront with him."

Team–wise, Butler believes one of the keys to this season's success is an age–old philosophy: practice the way you play. The team got together this preseason, and the first issue addressed was simple; everyone has to be on the same page.

For Butler, there will be no debating that there is no "I" in "team."

"I feel really positive because the group of recruits that we got this year, and the players who have returned from last year have a much better attitude," Butler said. "So,

Turn to BUTLER, page S11

JORMA KANSANEN/ COLLEGIAN
Heads up! Senior forward Mike Butler will try to head the UMass offense to the A–10 championship this season.

UMass tennis seeking to build on last year's efforts

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Staff

Balancing the head coaching job of both the men's and women's tennis team here at the University of Massachusetts is hard enough. But asking for unprecedented success from both programs? If that sounds like too much to ask of anyone, you're probably right.

Fortunately for UMass, Judy Dixon isn't just anyone.

1997 Fall Preview
Massachusetts Tennis
Back To School Issue

Dixon, the head coach of the men's and women's tennis team, led each to its best season ever in 1996. The men's team went 16–2 and captured its first ever New England Championship, and the women's squad ended a 14–5 campaign with its first ever regional ranking. But the best news of all is that the men return the entire 1996 squad, and the women lose only one member.

The Minutemen upgraded their schedule for the fall, which means that they might lose a few more matches. But Dixon insists it was a move they had to make.

"The men's team is just about a year behind the women's team in terms of breaking through at the national level," Dixon said. "We were 16–2 last season. I don't want to be 16–2 again. That does no good for anyone. The schedule I've put together this year is far more challenging than last year's, which means that we're going to lose a few more matches.

"It's not so much the wins and losses that are important, but the overall goals of our program. Our goal is to achieve a regional ranking by the end of the year," Dixon said.

Todd Cheney and Rob Manchester will man the number one and number two singles positions. Cheney was the number one last year and was named All–Atlantic 10. Manchester went 22–3 as a freshman in the number–three slot last season.

Patrick Slyman and Alejandro Aller will fill out the number three and four slots for Dixon.

Despite last year's success, Dixon feels their is room for improvement as the far the women's team is concerned.

"We had a good year," Dixon said. "But every other year I have been here has been a superb year. We sort of leveled off and didn't meet our goals. We won the games we were supposed to win and we lost the games we were supposed to lose. We never had that breakthrough win, which is what the players and I are looking for to happen this year."

Sophomore Ola Gerisamova will re–assume the number– one singles position. Gerismova went 13–7 in that slot last year. Junior Jackie Braunstein, who led the Minutewomen with a 19–8 record last year, will move up to the number two position.

The Minutewomen face 10 nationally ranked opponents this year, including Rutgers on September 27.

Welcome Back UMass
Regency Hairstylists
189 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
MULLINS CENTER JOB FAIR
Sept.4, Mullins Center
VIP Rm., 6-8pm
All depts. hiring;
appx. 200 positions avail.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

GET SIX HAIRCUTS, SEVENTH IS HALF PRICE!
1 2 3 4 5 6 7
We cut all styles ... yours included!
UNIVERSITY BARBERS
Conveniently located in the Campus Center 549-0123

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
GET THOSE FORMS IN BY
Flag Football (M/W/C) 9/15
Soccer (M/W) 9/15
Co-ed Softball 9/16
Field Hockey 9/16
Ice Hockey (M/W) 9/17
Track & Cross Country (M/W) 9/23
On the Web: http://www.umass.edu/imim/
Don't Miss The ACTION
For entry forms and info 545-2693 545-0022
LATE ENTRANTS SHOULD CHECK FOR EXTENSIONS IN BOYDEN 215

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

LABOR DAY SAVINGS You don't have to work for Don't Drink and Drive

Coors & Coors Light
30 PACK SALE $14.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -5.00 FINAL COST $9.99 + DEP.
CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS
BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT
30 PACK $10.49 + DEP.
CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS
Miller GENUINE DRAFT & GENUINE DRAFT LIGHT
$9.49 + DEP.
CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES
MOLSON GOLDEN, LIGHT & ICE
SALE $13.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -2.00 FINAL COST $11.49 + DEP
CASE OF 3-12 PK. BOTTLES
MICRO MADNESS
SAM ADAMS, HARPOON OTTER CREEK $4.99 + DEP.
ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES
CIDER JACK $4.99
ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES
GENESEE CREAM ALE, ICE, RED
SALE $9.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -3.00 FINAL COST $6.49 + DEP.
CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS
1/2 KEGS $39.99 + DEP.
BUD, BUD LIGHT, LITE, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICH, MICH LT, MICH AMBER BOCK, ROLLING ROCK

WINE OF THE MONTH
Hardy's Nottage Hill Wines CHARDONNAY & MERLOT 750 ML $4.99
FRANZIA WINES CHABLIS, BLUSH, RHINE, FRENCH COLOMBARD, CUVEE BLANC, WESTFIELD RED, WHITE GRENACHE, CHILLABLE RED 5.0 LITER BAG-IN-A-BOX $6.99
CORBETT CANYON CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 1.5L $6.99
BLACKSTONE MERLOT 750 ML $7.99
KENDALL JACKSON VINTNER'S CHARDONNAY 750 ML $9.49
E & J GALLO WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5L $4.99
BOONES WINES ALL FLAVORS 750 ML $1.99
Seagram's COOLERS ALL FLAVORS 4 PK. BOTTLES SALE $2.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -1.00 FINAL COST $1.99 + DEP.
COKE, DIET COKE, SPRITE, DIET SPRITE 12 PK. CANS $2.99 + DEP.

SMIRNOFF VODKA 1.75L $14.49
BACARDI RUM LIGHT & DARK 1.75L $14.99
SOUTHERN COMFORT 1.75L $15.49
Canadian Club WHISKEY 1.75L $16.49
Captain Morgan SPICED RUM 750 ML $9.49
T.G.I. FRIDAY'S AUTHENTIC FROZEN DRINKS ALL FLAVORS 1.75L $11.49
SEAGRAM'S GIN & SEAGRAM'S LIME GIN 1.75L SALE $12.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -3.00 FINAL COST $9.49
SAUZA GOLD TEQUILA 750 ML $8.99

We Accept Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY 253-9344 NORTHAMPTON 586-3007 HOLYOKE 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 8/28/97 THRU WEDS. 9/3/97
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
Free HFC T-Shirt
The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446
•PVTA bus route to Rolling Green • • Pool •
• Aerobics •
• Aqua-aerobics • •Steps •
• Nautilus •
•Racquetball•
• Free weights •
•Jacuzzi•
• Sauna • Massage • •Bikes•
• Indoor tennis & Basketball • • Rowers •
•Treadmills •
HAMPSHIRE FITNESS club
90 Gatehouse Road
Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center
Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($169) & get a free HFC T-Shirt

Campus Center - 545-2619
Open 'til 7 pm this Wednesday and Thursday.
Regular Hours M-F 9-5.
THE University Ustore
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
Clothing Department
New for Fall
New Styles New Clothes New Designs
Cotton Exchange "Sports Logo" Oxford Grey Tees
Introductory Price $10.99 reg. $14.99
"Tumbling Bears" Tees From Fitzgerald
Now $11.99 reg. $15.99
MV CORP Lined Windpants Embr
Now $29.99 reg. $35.99
Cotton Twill Barn Jacket w/ Courduroy Collar and Cuffs
Now $54.99 reg. $64.99 Just in Time for Fall Weather
Crewneck Sweatshirt from MV CORP
Now $24.99 Reg. $29.99 University of Massachusetts Design Grey or Navy Only
Get Your BasketBall Shirt and Sweats Now
TIME OUT
UMass Basketball Tee
Now $9.99
Reg. $12.99
Crewneck Sweatshirt
Now $28.99
Reg. $32.99
20% Off All Duffle Bags From TRAGERMFG, EASTPAK, OUTDOR PRODUCTS
Shop Early for Best Selection
SALE ENDS SATURDAY SEPT 6, 1997

Water Polo squad looks to continue winning ways

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

1997 Fall Preview

Massachusetts Water Polo

Back To School Issue

On a team laden with nuclear–strength firepower thanks to the presence of the Fab Four — Brian Stahl, Gabriel Marrero, Aldo Roman and J.C. Limardo — why should Massachusetts men's water polo sophomore Richard Huntley be the player blinded by the spotlight?

He's the new goalie.

After backing up senior co–captain Paul Engin in last year's fourth consecutive Eastern Championship season, Huntley treads in deep water between pipes that haven't been guarded with this little collegiate experience since before the All–American career of Alex Mujica in the early '90s.

Like Mujica, Huntley hails from Puerto Rico where he spent three years on the junior national team. Like Engin, Huntley is enveloped by the large shadow cast during the record–setting Mujica era.

The diminutive keeper, who was the backbone of three straight Eastern Championship teams from 1993–95 is the all–time leader in saves (743), steals (190) and quarters played in goal (314) for the Minutemen. Mujica also holds a pair of single–season UMass marks.

And like both Mujica and Engin before him, Huntley inherits the history and the pressure of taking over the goaltending duties for a championship level team.

Engin guided UMass to a 22–win season and a second– straight Final Four appearance last autumn despite a rigorous schedule and key injuries throughout his first — and only — starting campaign. As a freshman in 1992, Mujica led the Minutemen to a 25–3 season that included a 19–match winning streak and a New England Championship after the team won 16 games in '91.

Mujica was the stalwart in goal for four years in which the Minutemen notched 104 wins against just 28 defeats.

So, after 126 wins in the Mujica–Engin years, Huntley has to step in and step up to help keep UMass at the championship level.

Minuteman coach Russ Yarworth doesn't expect to miss a championship beat.

"We know [Huntley] has the talent to be a great goaltender like we've had here in the past, but he can't be a freshman anymore. Richard has to turn into a leader and take control of the team.

"I'm hoping Richard can step up and show the leadership and the ability and the intensity that he needs to start in goal," Yarworth said. "It's his job to lose."

If the goal keeper's job is Huntley's to lose, then who's behind him to win it?

A pair of true freshman will battle each other for the primary back–up position and a spot on the travel roster. Both Gerard Gust and J.R. Vanderwall are tall and lanky with athletic potential. But more importantly, both youngsters have tremendous wingspans, perfect for blocking high shots or reaching loose balls.

They'll get their opportunities if Huntley should falter.

"I think [Huntley] has the ability; I just hope he can turn on the intensity level," Yarworth said. "If not, we have the freshmen."

Yarworth has more than just a couple of freshman goalies as insurance for Huntley. He has one of the most potent and talented two–meter attacks in the nation.

In Stahl, Roman, Marrero and Limardo, Yarworth has a collection of dynamic performers each of whom brings something different and altogether spectacular to the pool.

Stahl is pure offensive fire power. The Pennsylvania native already ranks fourth on the Minuteman all–time list in both goals (175) and points (257). He will easily advance to third on both charts this season, barring a serious injury. His size (listed at 225 pounds) makes him nearly impossible to defend one–on–one in the hole, and he has one of the most ferocious outside shots in the country.

One defender who would have a legitimate shot at shutting down Stahl is Roman. He is considered by many, the dominant defensive player — at any position — in the East and his offensive skills continue to improve. Roman is a physical specimen who looks like he has muscles in his teeth.

Marrero is an exceptional all–around performer and one of the best clutch players on the squad. He needs to develop into a consistent performer to approach his potential. Limardo is the younger brother of UMass water polo legend Luis who holds the all–time Minuteman goal–scoring record (306) and is second in total points (402). The younger Limardo has had two frustrating, injury–plagued years, and as a co–captain this season has the talent to step forward and be a catalyst and a leader.

The other senior co–captain is Marc Staudenbauer who also suffered through an injury shortened '96 campaign.

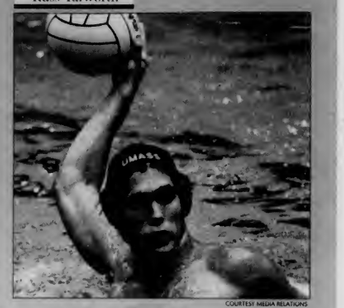
"He's not a flashy player, but he's someone you put in the pool and he doesn't make mistakes," Yarworth said. "He gives you stability, and if we can have that stability for a whole season, it's definitely a positive thing."

The core is in place for a strong season, supplemented with a group of youngsters led by sophomores Rich Slinglluff and Timmy Troupis.

The quest for an unprecedented fifth–straight Eastern Championship for the Minutemen starts Sept. 6 in Annapolis at the Navy Invitational, but will an Eastern title be enough?

"No," said a definitive Yarworth. "We have to win it, but my goal is to win a first–round game at the NCAAs, and that gets you playing for the national championship."

The quest for Yarworth and his squad could end Dec. 7 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.



1997 Massachusetts Water Polo Schedule

Sept. 6–7 Navy Invitational
Sept. 12 Harvard	8:00 p.m.
Sept. 13 Lehman College	11:30 a.m.
Iona	3:30 p.m.
Queen	6:30 p.m.
Sept. 20 Brown Invitational
Sept. 26 at Harvard	8:00 p.m.
Sept. 27 Boston College	11:30 a.m.
M.I.T.	2:30 p.m.
Brown	5:30 p.m.
Oct. 4–5 Princeton Invitational
Oct. 8 Boston College	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 11 at U.S. Merchant Marine Academy	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 12 Fordham	2:00 p.m.
Oct. 12 St. Francis	5:00 p.m.
Oct. 17 at California	11:30 a.m.
Oct. 17 vs. Santa Clara	5:00 p.m.

Home Games displayed in Bold

Russ Yarworth

Vince Elizarde

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior Dion solidifies goal for young UM squad

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Over the past three years, there have been few things Danielle Dion has not been able to stop. From one–woman performances in the NCAA Tournament, like her career best 20–save performance against Harvard last year, to being perennially considered at the top of her trade, the Massachusetts women's soccer team has stopped almost anything put in her way.

Beside the slight discomfort she feels amidst the media spotlight, the only thing Dion cannot stop is Father Time. After years of hearing about the Minutewomen's last appearance in the Final Four in 1993 from prior teammates, the sands of time appear to be piling up against Dion and her fellow upperclassmen.

Dion (career: 0.76 GAA, on 26.5 shutouts) has faced a career at UMass that has possessed the highest of highs (the 2–1 win over Harvard), and the lowest of lows (last season's loss to Dayton in the Atlantic 10 championship game) and she wants this season to hold the ultimate high of all — another Final Four appearance.

"We'll write that loss to Dayton off as a big mistake," Dion said, sarcastically. "I think the loss in the A–10 Championship is my main motivating point, but I don't like to think about the low points. They come, I try to forget about them, and we all laugh about them afterwards.

"But I don't want to ever be put into that situation again. Every team has its peaks and valleys, and the good ones fight through the valleys to get to the peak again. Hopefully, we haven't reached the high point yet... let's put it that way. Its coming this year."

While Dion is the first to say she is not in the upper echelon of goalkeepers coach Jim Rudy has developed over the years, Rudy will. From U.S. National keepers like current starter Briana Scurry and past ones like Kim Wyant, Rudy has seen the best, and has one of the best.

"Dion has more than adequately continued the tradition," Rudy said. "She's probably the steadiest keeper that we've ever had here. Even Bri, on occasions, would give up one or two soft goals, where the key to Danielle is her steadiness.

"She gets the job done, and that's what you want your keeper to do. The keeper doesn't have to be flashy, or jump around all over the place. It is somebody who can defend the pipes and keep the ball out. She's does that."

It was no summer vacation for Dion, and now, like the Grateful Dead once said, "summertime done come and gone... my oh my."

Travelling back to her hometown, Dion competed in the W–USISL for the Atlanta Classics, minding the net as her team won its region. Dion is both grateful for the experience, and grateful the two to three game a week schedule has not left her exhausted.

Dion was able to brush up on the intangibles, and she wants to take the experience of the top professional league in women's soccer to heart and mind.

"If I did learn anything, I couldn't really tell you exactly what I learned," Dion said. "It was more game experience, and getting in and seeing more of the game itself. For any player, it is important to get in the game and learn."

According to Rudy, the competition in the W–USISL has had a positive effect on her game. Over time, Dion has quickly addressed the few weaknesses Rudy has noticed in her game. Her experience this summer has more than helped one aspect of her game.

"The one thing I've liked that we've seen from her this preseason, and is a real important thing to us, is her ability to seal the space behind the defense," Rudy said. "Which means, i.e. come out and use your feet, or come out and save the ball before they become one–on–ones.

"The hardest part for defenders is to defend while facing their own goal. She's had a reluctance to come out of net, but she's a smart kid, and of the few weaknesses we've identified in her game over the years, she's corrected them. It doesn't take long with Danielle."

The proof of the pudding will be how Dion and her fellow teammates react to a preseason that has not even been close to fine. The season–ending injury of projected starter, freshman Kathleen Machamer, and dents and nicks to sophomores Kate Webb and Cindy Garceau and others could have left both Rudy and the Minutewomen in a quandary — why us, and why now?

A rebuilding season after the loss of six seniors to graduation has literally become just that, but Dion is more than confident that this team will bounce back. She thinks a lot of teams will be surprised this season, thinking that UMass will not be as strong as they used to be.

"I really feel like our team can overcome this adversity, and we have some great freshmen that have come in this year," Dion said. "The freshmen that we did get in, and the ones that came in healthy, are amazing. But I do hope that as the season goes on our team does get completely healthy. We have no choice. We have to overcome this."

The key to this season's success for Dion and the Minutewomen will be how the team can recover from this injurious preseason, and then find a common identity on both competitive and personal bases. The golden road to NCAA success will be paved on how they can come together, and as a unit, fight off Father Time.

"As the season progresses, and we'll have to live with each other for six weeks on the road, then we'll really get to know a lot about each other," Dion said, referring to the fact that UMass will only have two home games after Sept. 23. "We'll be in the NCAA's again. I know it. I have that feeling, and I have the utmost confidence in my team to pull through and do it."

JORMA KANSANEN/ COLLEGIAN

For UMass opponents, they have not seen much of this while facing senior keeper Danielle Dion over the years, due to her status as one of the best in the nation.

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.- Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.

WELCOME BACK!!!

THANK YOU FOR YOUR PATRONAGE

Bud & Bud Light 24 12oz. cans $11.99 +dep.
Ice House & Red Dog 30-packs $11.99 +dep.
Busch & Busch Light 30-packs $10.49 +dep.
Heineken & Amstel Light 12-packs $9.99 +dep.
Lowenbreau 12-pack bottles $6.99 +dep.
Guinness Stout 6-packs $6.19 +dep.
Lone Trail 6-packs $4.99 +dep.
Magic Hat 6-packs $5.99 +dep.
Miller Genuine Draft (Reg. & Light), 24 12oz. bottles $9.49 +dep.

Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials

20% OFF ANY 12 WINES from our lay down wine section. Sale items excluded

Rubinoff Vodka 1.75 liter $8.99
Southern Comfort 750 ml $8.49
Kahlua 750 ml $13.49
Alize 750 ml $11.99
Bacardi Limon 750 ml $8.99
Captain Morgan 1.75 liter $17.49

Boones Wines 3 for $5.99
Andrea Champagnes 2 for $5.99
Sutter Home White Zinfandel 1.5 Liter $6.99
Cider Jack 6-packs $4.99

COME IN AND REGISTER TO WIN A FREE COLOR T.V.!! Must Be 21 Years Old to enter. NO Purchase Necessary

KONA

BICYCLE WORLDS' FALL KICK-OFF SALE Thru 9/30/97

SAVE 10%
JANDD BAGS & PACKS
KRYPTONITE LOCKS AND ACCESSORIES
THULE ROOF RACK SYSTEMS

SAVE 20%
GIRO HELMETS
ARNETTE SUNGLASSES
CYCLING SHOES

Rock Shox
Indy S $149.95
Indy C $179.95
Indy XC SALE $199.95
Indy SL $275.95
Judy XC $289.95

SAVE 50%
CLEARENCE TIRES
SPECIAL CLOTHING RACK
CLEARENCE TABLE

Free Water Bottle Thru 9/15 With Coupon — With Any Purchase — Free Water Bottle Thru 9/15 With Coupon — Free Water Bottle

32 Masonic ST Northampton 585-9100
104 Federal St Greenfield 774-3701
63 S. Pleasant St Amherst 253-7722

KONA

Campus Design & Copy
403 Student Union, Umass, Amherst, MA 01002
Phone (413) 545-2271, Fax (413) 545-0210
email: cdcopy@stuaf.umass.edu

Look at what we can do for you!

5 1/2¢ copies
Large paper selection
Transparencies
Resumés
Table Tents
Binding
Course Packets
Class Notes
Graphic Design
Computer Use
Fax Service

10 free copies OR % off any fax
Campus Design & Copy
401 Student Union, UMass. Open M-F 9:30 am-5:00pm

Campus Design and Copy is a non-profit, student-run business located on the second floor of the Student Union. We operate under the model of "Students Working for Students."

softball

continued from page S1

plague the plains.

UMass topped Boston College 2-0 in its opening game of the double-elimination regional, and then faced WAC Champion Colorado State. UMass outplayed the vaunted Rams, but would fall. Henderson was perfect until the sixth, when Colorado St. pushed across a pair of unearned runs, while UMass left nine runners on base in the game.

The Minutewomen were visibly shaken by the loss, as they prepared for a loser's bracket rematch with the Eagles. Rain postponed the game a day. The depressed UMass team now had a day to forget the CSU loss, its first in 12 games, and regain its composure, but, it now had to sweep a triplheader, beating BC once and CSU twice on Sunday.

In the end, the postponement was a blessing. A box of rain eased the pain and now love would see them through.

UMass busted loose for four runs in the first inning, en- route to eliminating BC, and then topped CSU 3-1 to force a seventh game. UMass spotted the Rams a pair of unearned runs in the first, and CSU carried the 2-0 lead until the bottom of the seventh.

UMass was 0-18 on the year when trailing in the seventh and the WCWS seemed light years away as the team's six, seven and eight hitters prepared to take their cuts. A singer from Yukon, Oklahoma once sang about how a dream is like a river. Although this river hadn't quite run dry, the WCWS dream was down to the trickle of a leaky faucet.

Chris Martens opened the inning with a single to right and the senior lumbered in to score on a massive throwing error of Tracey Osier's sacrifice bunt. Osier stayed at third until there were two outs, when Mandy Galas sent a soft roller to short. The swift sophomore sped down the line, and beat out the throw with an aggressive head-first slide, allowing Osier to score safely and tie the game.

With two outs in the bottom of the eighth, Osier dropped a bloop single to left that plated Gutridge with the winning run, euphorically sending UMass to its second WCWS.

W/COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Tracy Osier, UMass' all-time leader in career stolen bases, played a pivotal role in the Minutewomen's second CWS appearance.

football

continued from page S1

at middle linebacker.

To Samuel, the change will not affect his performance.

"It's not that big of a difference for me," Samuel said of the switch. "I've played linebacker since high school at all three positions. I just want to try to contribute to the program any way I can."

Dawson now brings speed to the defensive line.

"I like it. Defensive end is better for me," said Dawson, who will be joined by brother Matt on defense. "It gives me a chance to play with my brother. It makes the defense faster."

The secondary will also have a new look. The lone returning starter is sophomore strong safety Jerard White. White recorded 52 tackles and two interceptions as a freshman in 1996. Senior Bryan Mooney, who missed last season because of injury, is slated to man the free safety position.

The cornerback positions are still up for grabs between Ben Scott, Mike Smith and Bryan King.

Special teams is the least of UMass' worries. With junior punter Andy Maclay, best known for exploits on the basketball team, and kicker Matt Murphy returning, there should be no problem with who's starting there.

Khari

continued from page S1

his first two years, 139 unassisted. He also has 13 sacks, leading the team with six last year.

"Khari has the ability to play at the next level," Hodges said. "Those guys look for two things: is he big and can he run? Well, he is big and he can run. And the next thing they look for is production: does he make plays? Well, he makes plays."

Playing football at the professional level has crossed Samuel's mind, but has not diverted his attention from the task at hand.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE
You have to see it to believe it
Over 500 Beers
Over 50 Single Malt Scotches
Many Small Batch Bourbons
80 Belgian Ales
Glassware, Homebrew Supplies
State of the Art Humidor from Vilgilant with Large Selection of Cigars
More than 500 Fine Wines from Around the World
Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Weekly Specials
Discover, Visa, Mastercard Accepted
Open 9am - 11pm
Rt. 9/ 338 College Street (413) 253-5384
Take I-91 to exit 19/Rt. 9 East
Spirit Haus is 1 mile East of Amherst, Mass.

Write for Sports
Luke said so.
Luke Meredith, Sports editor Call 5-1852

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

World Industries • DC • Vans • K2 • Palmer • GNU • Nitro • Hook-ups • Droors • Split
Best Selection in the Valley!
6 Trumbull Road, Northampton
Behind Subway™ on King St.
Easy to get to!!
SNOWBOARDS ★ SKATEBOARDS ★ CLOTHING
BOARD ROOM
K2 IN-LINE SKATES ★ FOOTWEAR ★ ACCESSORIES
$10 Off Footwear Good Until Oct. 6, 1997
586-8857
$5 Off $20 Purchase Good Until Oct. 6, 1997
A-Team • Birdhouse • Freedom • Alien Workshop • Duffs • Ezekiel • Thirty-Two • Sessions
DC • Dub • Fresh Jive • es • Arnette • Dragon • Oakley • Black Fly's • Duffs

HAMPDEN'S MUNCHIES & MORE
WELCOMES THE CLASS OF 2001
COME VISIT US SOON. WE FEATURE ...
• Fresh made top order subs and deli sandwiches
• All day breakfast
• A variety of salads
• Buffalo wings
• Assorted grill items
• Frozen yogurt & fresh pasteries
• Daily specials
•Coke •Snapple •Arizona teas •Frito Lay products
"AT THE TOP OF THE HORSESHOE IN SOUTHWEST"

Welcome Class of 2001!
Campus Center Hotel
We're Here to Serve You... and your guests, colleagues, family and friends.
A FULL SERVICE HOTEL FREE HBO
Available to Anyone in The 5 College Community
FEATURING
• 116 Modern Hotel Rooms •
• Several Dining Alternatives •
• Special Parking Rates in the Adjoining Garage •
• A Central Location in the Pioneer Valley •
• Short Walk to the Mullins Center •
CALL TODAY: 549-6000 for your reservations
Campus Center Hotel University of Massachusetts

THE WELCOME BACK TO SCHOOL AND KEEP-THAT-SUMMER-BODY LOOKING-GOOD
BODY SHOP DISCOUNT MEMBERSHIP SPECIAL
SIGN UP AT EITHER THE BOYDEN 17 or TOTMAN 8 LOCATIONS FROM SEPTEMBER 2ND TO 8TH FOR FULL USE of any of the FIVE BODY SHOP locations (Totman Gym 8, Boyden Gym 17, Washington Tower 19, Webster/Hilltop or Gorman/Crossan) and pay only
$55 FOR A FULL FALL SEMESTER MEMBERSHIP
$90 FOR A FULL FALL & SPRING MEMBERSHIP WORK EVERY MUSCLE IN YOUR BODY WITH POWERLINE® WEIGHT TRAINING MACHINES
LIFEFITNESS® STATIONARY BICYCLES & STAIR CLIMBERS CONCEPT II® ROWING MACHINES NORDIC TRACK® SKI MACHINES
LANDICE® TREADMILLS
and
FREE WEIGHTS
The Body Shop Fitness Center
DISCOUNT
EXPIRES 9/8/97
FULL REFUND AVAILABLE FOR 14 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PURCHASE WITH ORIGINAL RECEIPT

Washington No. 1, Ron Dayne living large

College Football
Luke Meredith

So I'm sitting on my dad's couch in beautiful Methuen on a frigid evening late last December watching the Holiday Bowl, (sorry, the Thrifty Car Rental Holiday Bowl), and though the University of Colorado was entertaining a double-digit lead, my eyes kept drifting to the other team. They had speed and size on defense, a super-quick backfield and a freshman quarterback with poise, intelligence and a gun for a right arm.

And they were young, and they were hungry.

I knew then who my 1997 pre-season sleeper would be, and I was convinced I was the only one who thought these guys could make a serious run for the National Championship.

When their leading rusher, who was only a sophomore, declared himself eligible for the NFL draft, I wasn't turned off, because I knew his backup was just as good.

Then I saw the schedule. A home date with Nebraska in early September, a road game at BYU for the season opener, but an otherwise easy schedule filled with Pacific-10 creampuffs.

I thought to myself, "They would have to start Bette Midler at tailback to avoid winning it all."

But with Bette booked on an late fall tour, (tentatively titled Beaches Revisited), I felt confident enough to make the call.

Congratulations, Washington, you're my pre-season No. 1.

The Huskies are jacked. They've got five pre-season All- PAC 10 starters on offense, and a deep defense, led by 1996 PAC-10 Player of the Year Jason Chorak. Sophomore sensation Brock Huard could be the best quarterback west of Peyton Manning, and tailback Rashan Shehee finally has the chance to star with the defection of Corey Dillon to the pros.

Overall, the Huskies return 16 starters, and with a PAC-10 that will be as weak as it's been in a while, Washington should cruise until the National Championship game.

Of course, there are a lot of teams out there that could make a run at the big enchilada. Unfortunately for most of America, your Associated Press Top 25 poll lists them horribly wrong. Fortunately for you, you have me to set you straight.

1. Washington
Will benefit from a soft schedule while the rest of the Top 10 beats up on itself back east.

2. Florida
Danny who? Florida just keeps reloading, and the Tennessee game is in Gainseville this time around, (as is the Florida St. game).

3. Ohio St.
They're still the best in the Midwest, and Big-10 passing leader Joe Germaine and super-soph Andy Katzenmoyer are back.

4. Florida St.
I'd just like you to know that I hate FSU. Thad Busby will not lead the Seminoles to the promised land, but neither will Dan Kendra. At least not this year.

5. Tennessee
Peyton Manning would have to be arraigned on assault charges to lose the Heisman this time. But he better beat Florida, or at least look pretty losing.

6. Syracuse
My sleeper. Donovan McNabb could very well be the most exciting player in the country, and they'll remember last year's awful start and hit the ground running.

7. Penn St.
They lost QB Wally Richardson. That's a good thing.

8. North Carolina

Turn to COLLEGE FOOTBALL page 10

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Ola!
Ola Gerisamova and the Massachusetts women's tennis team open the fall season on Sept. 9 at Hartford.

Your guide to UM athletics; Why call it the Atlantic 10?

Leigh Torbin

This campus just makes no sense at all, even for a senior, so if you're new in this neck of the woods forget it. There's a Dickinson House and a Dickinson Hall, and a French Hall right next to a Fernald Hall. I've even heard rumors there are some dorms called Sylvan out past Northeast, but my car usually runs out of gas before I get that far. Few things make sense around here, but the athletic scene can be mastered easily enough.

• How many schools can say that pound for pound the best team on campus is the men's water polo team, which has been to the last two final fours? It might sound like I'm also trying to convince you that Barbara Bush is Playboy's Miss October, but it's true. Hoops included, the rowdiest, drunkest crowds on campus aren't even on campus but at the Amherst College pool, where the team plays and the roof comes off.

This, of course, is not to be confused with the women's soccer fans who bring maracas and sing through the games; or the fun-loving Minuteman marching band, one of the nation's best, and a frequent show-stealer at football games.

Here are some more musical tips for the fall:

• The average age of the volleyball team's players for Friday's season opener was an almost infantile 18 years, five months and nine days. Some teams don't have anyone that young, let alone an average close to that. With an emphasis on team defense and blocking this year, it was only

Turn to ATLANTIC 10, page S10

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst • 258-0080

take Kaplan and get into the right school.
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
• Highly trained, expert teachers who know the tests inside and out.
• Personalized, computerized study plans, tailored to your individual needs.
• Proven methods, guaranteed to raise your score.
CRUSH THE EXAM!
the leader in test prep and admissions counseling
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
www.kaplan.com

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

"Best Barbecue Joint in New England" from USA Today to Yankee Magazine
Enjoy BUB's famous Ribs • Chicken • Pork Catfish • Salmon Red Snapper T-Bone Steak & More!
Open Daily
LUNCH AND DINNER
Eat in or Under the Tent
RTE. 116 • OLD AMHERST RD • SUNDERLAND
413/548-9630

Minutemaniacs

Member Registration 1997-98

UMass Athletic Fund Member

UMass' student athletic booster club, the Minutemaniacs, is looking for 500 blue chip recruits for the '97-'98 season!

Minutemaniac Benefits:
- Advance Ticket Pickup
- Minutemaniac T-Shirt
- Game Receptions
- "The UMass Maniac" Newsletter
- Membership Card

Great Value at $25.00 to Join!

LIMITED TO ONLY 500 UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS

You may also join us at the following games and fill out a registration form:
Women's Soccer v. Michigan on Friday, Sept. 5, at 4:30 p.m., Totman Field
Field Hockey v. California on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 11:00 a.m., Garber Field
Volleyball v. Dayton on Friday Sept. 19, at 7:00 p.m., Curry Hicks Cage

If you have any questions, give us a call at 545-9672.

Complete form below, cut, and mail to Minutemaniacs at:
308 Mullins Center ● University of Massachusetts ● Box 35910 ● Amherst, MA 01003

Application for Minutemaniacs Membership

Student Name:_____
Student #:_____
Local Address:_____
Local Phone:_____ Year at UMass:_____
Home Address:_____
City:_____ State:_____ Zip:_____ Home Phone:_____
Make checks payable to: UMAF
Or Charge to your credit card: Visa ☐ Mastercard ☐ Discover ☐
Number_____ Expiration Date_____

COMPETITIVE EDGE Ski & Bike Outlet
TWO GREAT TENT SALES!!!
3 DAYS ONLY
September 5th, 6th, & 7th
FAT TRAX SNOWBOARD SHOP
4th ANNUAL SUMMER SNOWBOARD TENT SALE AND BOARD SWAP!!
(call for details on when to drop off used equipment)
Save on all Inline Skates & BMX Bikes
SALE HOURS: Fri. 3-8, Sat. 10-7, Sun. 12-5
SAVE UP TO 60% on Burton, Ride, Morrow Sims, and much, more!
Corner of Rt 5 & East St. Easthampton 586-8766
Sale: Thursday, September 4th - Sunday, September 7th
Thurs & Fri 10-8, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-6
SKIS BOOTS CLOTHING
SAVE 40-80%
BIKES Specialized-Gary Fisher-Pro Flex-Raleigh MOUNTAIN-CROSS-ROAD-BMX
LOWEST PRICES on all 96 & 97 MODELS
IN-LINE SAVE! K2-OXYGEN -ROLLERBLADE -TECNICA
COMPETITIVE EDGE Ski & Bike Outlet
Rte. 9, Hadley 585-8833
Rte. 5, Holyoke 538-7662
HOURS: Mon-Fri 10-8, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

■ atlantic 10

continued from page S9

natural for the cover of their media guide to feature the theme "New Kids on the Block." Danny, Donny, Joey, Jordan and Mark were an instant success off the mean streets of Dorchester, but they burnt out. Hopefully Courtney, Emilie, Jennifer, Lymarie and Rebecca will hang tough.

• Hey fans, don't miss the football team play I-AA power Delaware on Oct. 25 and remember to squint a little. Through blurry eyes (One Eyed Jack will work even better) it will almost look like we're playing Michigan. Unfortunately, the only Wolverines coming to Amherst this fall are coming for women's soccer. UMass teams will also play Colorado, Penn State, UCLA, North Carolina, Clemson and others this fall, but none of them on the gridiron.

The Atlantic 10 was rated the second highest football conference last year for I-AA, and UMass' slate (which includes a Blue Hen team much tougher than its wimpy nickname) is formidable... just relatively speaking.

Under the direction of their third coach in three years, members of the field hockey team won't be able to slip up on the slick new Astrourf surface at Richard F. Garber Field. Like endings to old familiar songs, sometimes nothing remains the same. Pam Hixon has left to coach the U.S. National team, leaving the coaching reigns to her former player at both UMass and in the Olympics, Patty Shea.

Right now Shea is busy on the team's new home field trying to replace the last year's top three players. But, after 23 years on grass, the bastard child of field hockey playing surfaces, a long-awaited new field has renewed hopes.

• Just get this straight. The Atlantic 10 Conference has 12 teams and hasn't had 10 teams since Penn State left in 1991, giving the Big Ten 11 teams and the A-10 nine. Then Rutgers and West Virginia left for the Big East and, if only for a moment, the A-10 had seven teams. Soon though, five teams were added to give the league 12.

The logic goes that the A-10 wants some consistency in its name, but this theory doesn't fly in all walks of life. Try convincing your parents that a string of C's on your report card are really B's, but the people in the registrar's office didn't feel like changing them. Didn't work did it?

Anyway, the league had a chance to rectify the problem when it took over the Yankee Conference for football last winter, but that 12-team league will also be called the Atlantic 10. That doesn't make sense since it's new and no precedent has been set, but it still beats anything called the Yankee Conference which is based in Richmond, Virginia.

• If anyone loves the women's soccer schedule it's the folks at McGreggor Travel. Of course, if you're coach Jim Rudy, looking straight down the barrel of playing only two home games after Sept. 23, you just might pull that trigger, rather than face a hell worse than VH1's Partridge Family revival.

Instead of Totman Field, the real new home of the Minutewomen is a U.S. Express bus and the Holiday Inn. Don't get too attached to people on the team, because you won't see much of them this fall. They'll be covering the whole alphabet: Athens, Georgia; Blacksburg, Virginia; Cincinnati, Ohio; Dallas, Texas etc.

Of course, this will just be a warm-up for basketball for the McGreggor people. The Minutemen head to The Great Alaska Shootout, Fresno, Las Vegas, Kansas and other

Turn to ATLANTIC 10, page S11

■ college football

continued from page S9

If they can beat Florida St. in Chapel Hill, they'll be a lot higher than eight.

9. Texas

They're probably overrated, but whatever. Ricky Williams is one of the best players to ever come out of the Big 12. in it's oh-so storied two year existence.

10. Nebraska, Miami, Colorado, Michigan and Notre Dame.

It will be a miraculous tie, I swear. (Plus, I'll be covered because, hey, they were all my Top 10, you know?)

Pre-Season Pimp Daddy of the Year

The negative fog of the Schwag has been lifted, replaced by a year-long fiesta of pimpness, in the form of the Pimp Daddy of the Week. Now, pimpness has a lot more to do with "swaggah," as my childhood friends from Methuen would call it, than it does with production.

Therefore, my Pimp Daddy is not Peyton Manning. Nice kid, but let's face it — if Manning went to UMass, he'd be the guy who nursed Cokes all night uptown and said things like, "Hey guys, you almost ready to go? I got class in the morning."

Curtis Enis? Come on. he plays for Penn State. Joe Paterno would rather have Wally Richardson back than have a player with personality.

Ron Powlus? Are you kidding me? A lot of people point to the problems Powlus has had and say, "Man, he'll be awesome if he could just put It all behind him." But those people have It wrong. Ron has only one problem. He can't throw a football.

Which leaves me with one choice. He's 5-foot-10, 261 pounds and ran for over 1600 yards as a freshman.

Yeah, he eats.

Wisconsin tailback Ron Dayne is not only the best running back in America, but his embodiment of the "Pimp Daddy" essence made him the only choice, really. I'll just have to remember to get more bologna for the awards dinner.

The "Hey, that's a big game" games...

Sept. 20 Nebraska at Washington

The Huskies' main obstacle to an undefeated season. Depending on how bad Nebraska loses, (oh, and they'll lose), this game could serve as a symbol of the passing of college football power, a process that Texas started In the Big 12 Championship game last year.

Nov. 8 Florida St. at North Carolina

This could be the year that FSU loses its first Atlantic Coast Conference Championship. Remember, North Carolina lost only 13-0 to the Seminoles in Tallahassee last season.

Turn to COLLEGE FOOTBALL page S11

1997 Massachusetts Football Schedule

Aug. 30 Richmond	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 13 at Maine	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 20 at James Madison	6:00 p.m.
Sept. 27 Rhode Island (Homecoming)	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 4 New Hampshire	12:00 p.m.
Oct. 11 at Villanova	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 18 at Buffalo	1:30 p.m.
Oct. 25 Delaware	1:00 p.m.
Nov. 1 Hofstra	12:30 p.m.
Nov. 8 at Boston University	1:00 p.m.
Nov. 15 Connecticut	12:30 p.m.

UMass

Mike Hodges

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Jamie Holston

Home Games displayed in Bold and played at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139
4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0080

R&P
Liquors
• Weekly Specials on Regular Beers
• Fine Wines
• Largest Selection of Micro-Brews in S.Amherst
• Fridge Rentals

NEWMAN CENTER FALL OPPORTUNITIES
Be A Part of the Newman Community
HOW?
• As a Lector - training on 9/15 or 9/16 at 7 PM
• As a Eucharistic Minister - training on 9/17 or 9/18 at 7 pm
• As a Musician (singers and instrumentalists) for Liturgies
• Join NSA (The Newman Student Association) or The Graduate Student Group -meetings on Sundays at 5 PM
• Join RCIA (The Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults): Do you want to be confirmed? Be a sponsor
• Enroll in the Course: The Christian Spiritual Journey (3 credit, Gen.Ed.-ID, transferable to UMass
• Join the Bible Study/Prayer Group for students
For more information on these programs contact the Newman Center office at 549-0300.
The Newman Center - 472 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 01002

DO YOU OR A FRIEND OR COLLEAGUE HAVE A PROBLEM WITH ALCOHOL OR OTHER DRUGS?
THERE ARE RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO HELP:
Alcohol and Drug Education Program
248 University Health Services Room General information, referral, training, peer workshops. 577-5181. M-F, 8:30-5:00. Ask for the Alcohol/Drug Educator in the Health Education Division.
First Call for Help, Town of Amherst. Information about resources and self-help groups in the local area. 256-0121. M-F 9:00-4:45.
Athletic Health Enhancement Program (AHEP), 256 Boyden information, educational programs, consultation, and referrals for student athletes, coaches, and staff. 545-4588. M-F, 8:30-5:00.
Residential Education Alcohol Program (REAP) Moore Lobby in Southwest. Referral, multi-session education and court-mandated counseling, individual counseling for students. 545-0137. M-F, 9:00-5:00.
uhs For more information, contact University Health Services at 577-5000.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

Alfredo's
PHOGRAPHIC GALLERY
Beautiful Quality Color, Black and White Photographs
Great Posters for Rooms
Sports Photographs and Posters of Your Favorite Player or Team
Reasonably Priced Sculptures
Amherst Center, 29 South Pleasant Street • 413-253-1707

WELCOME GRADUATE STUDENTS!
THE GRADUATE SCHOOL
STAFF WISH YOU SUCCESS IN YOUR ACADEMIC CAREER AND LOOK FORWARD TO SEEING YOU AT GRADUATION!
BUT --IN BETWEEN TIMES IF YOU HAVE A PROBLEM AND NEED ASSISTANCE OR IF YOU NEED
INFORMATION
WE ARE HERE TO HELP YOU OR FIND SOMEONE THAT CAN. WE ARE LOCATED IN THE GOODELL BUILDING
STOP BY AND SAY HELLO.
WELCOME GRADUATE STUDENTS!

■ Butler

continued from page S5

right off the bat this group has got together, and got along. I don't think we will experience any of the problems we had with some of the players last year.

"We had a lot of ego problems, and a lot of extraneous problems off the field. It's difficult, because some of that stuff carries over onto the field."

Those extraneous problems did carry over onto the field last season, as a preseason ranking of No. 20 ushered in high expectations for the Minutemen. After a 1–1 tie with perennial powerhouse Duke in an exhibition match at Szot Park in Chicopee, those expectations looked to be valid.

However, after a disappointing campaign that saw UMass fail to qualify for the Atlantic 10 tournament, Butler looks forward to looking at the top from a more sane angle.

"Since we didn't do well last year, we're kind of like the underdogs," Butler said. "Everyone knows how good UMass can play, but we're approaching it from a whole new perspective. Its much easier to play without those huge expectations."

Butler's final wish In a Minuteman uniform is to make it to the NCAA Tournament, and UMass has been one step away with two losses in the A-10 championship game in the past three years. The senior forward wants to end this year with not one championship under his belt, but two.

"It's a possibility, and with that in perspective, I would love to make it into the [NCAA] Tournament," Butler said. "But, first we have to win the A-10 Championship, and I think we have the team to do it. It's not going to be a cake walk, and I'm glad that it's not, because we need to play these top teams to be ready for the postseason."

■ college football

continued from page S10

Sept. 20 Tennessee at Florida

This is the game Peyton stayed for. But Florida still has the firepower, and with a National Championship bid a real possibility for the winner, look for the defending champs to play like it.

Nov. 22 Ohio State at Michigan

The Buckeyes just can't seem to shake the curse of the Maize and Blue, but with a Rose Bowl bid almost definitely on the line, they better forget about it and play. Once again, National Championship ramifications abound.

Oct. 4 Miami at Florida St.

After some years of struggle, Miami should be ready to make a run again. If they can get past the Seminoles in Tallahassee, there will be an Alliance slot with their name written on it.

I have to say, it's nice to be back. I love the optimism of early September, when everything is new again, and no one has lost too much money on the games yet. If there was ever a time to kick back and watch some football, it's these next two weeks. So party on, my little "pimp daddies."

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

■ atlantic 10

continued from page S10

distant locales this winter in their annual pursuit of an impossible non-conference slate.

• Sugar Ray Leonard, the Rolling Stones and Ross Perot combined don't have a thing on softball coach Elaine Sortino. Two years ago, the winningest coach in UMass history, tearfully resigned to focus on her duties as the athletic department's Senior Women's Administrator. She was paraded through a whole farewell tour, and saw her career supposedly end disappointingly in the NCAA Regionals.

Stunning many after the tribute, she returned last August for one final year as a coach. She went through the whole farewell thing again this year and her emotional team took her to the College World Series. Then, lo and behold, this summer's nation-wide search for a coach found that the best woman for the job was Elaine Sortino, who will begin her third stint as head coach to the elation of her players.

Posting a 565-267–3 record in a coaching career that spans back to when disco was popular the first time, Sortino will stay on full–time, or so she says.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

Nolan, Paciorek lead young Minutewomen into '97

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

Head Coach Bonnie Kenny and her top Massachusetts volleyball players were hardly the most sought after interviews as the team concluded its preseason training last week.

The smart writers were flocking to talk with Katie VanEarden, arguably the busiest trainer on campus. Kenny only had seven players healthy enough to play in Friday night's season opener against Northeastern, and not all of them at 100–percent.

Thankfully, Kenny will have a pair of seniors to call upon for guidance with her young club this season. Lesley Nolan and Michelle Paciorek will be called upon to lead by example in 1997.

Nolan is a devastating outside hitter, a three–year starter, and only the second Minutewoman to record over 1,000 career kills and digs. Paciorek, a 6–0 middle blocker from Sunderland, already holds the school's career blocks record (309) and is the team's most experienced player with 108 matches played.

"They will be held accountable for setting the tone and holding up the discipline aspect of the program," Kenny said of her seniors. "They need to make the freshmen aware of what's expected of them, since they know what it takes. These freshmen have the potential to realize what it takes."

UMass won't have a big, physical team this year, which will place a lot of the offensive focus on having a diverse means of attack. The setter is responsible for that, and freshman Jennifer Drennan will lead the UMass attack.

"Jenny's a step above any setter we've had here, but it will take time for her to get used to running our offense," Kenny said. "We can't afford to redshirt her so she can learn it, but this chance to get some experience under her belt is also valuable."

The Long Beach native will be tested early and often, as Kenny has assembled an ominous schedule for her squad. The team is off to Loyola Marymount this weekend, a homecoming trip for the teams' five California residents, four of them coming from Greater–Los Angeles. There, the Minutewomen will face No. 12 UC–Santa Barbara and the host No. 16 Lions.

Next weekend UMass faces No. 2 Penn State. The Lady Lions have already announced their national championship contention this year with a three–game crushing of the defending champion Stanford Cardinal (15–8, 15–13, 15–10).

One of the team's biggest hurdles in its quest to claim the Atlantic 10 Championship will be replacing senior Dionne Nash, the program's heart and soul and holder of 13 school records. UMass will sorely miss the outside hitter's on–court presence where she dominated and was eager to deliver a fatal, game–ending blow with her lethal spike. Invitations have been extended to all team members to fill the role.

"We don't have a terminator like Dionne," Kenny said. "We need someone to step up — someone who wants the ball when it's 13–13 in the fifth game. Someone who wants to terminate a rally and not just keep the rally going. That person hasn't been established yet. No one has taken it on."

In addition to its seniors, UMass features a strong core of three sophomores, who will be increasingly called upon.

Jill Meyers was an All–Atlantic 10 pick last year, the only freshman on the team, and will be looked to as a go–to player for UMass. Kari Hogancamp made an immediate impact as a true freshman in 1996 and will be used as an outside hitter, and also be called upon to quarterback the team's offense on occasion as a setter. Sarah Watters is coming off an ankle injury that limited her to just 3.1 innings pitched for the softball team in the spring, but should return to the form that saw her start the last 16 matches and average 2.35 kills–per–game.

1997 UMass Volleyball Team Schedule

Aug. 29 Northeastern	7:00 p.m.
Aug. 30 Mercer	1:00 p.m.
Indiana	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 5 UC–Santa Barbara	5:00 p.m.
Sept. 6 Loyola Marymount	12:00 p.m.
Sept. 6 Duke	5:00 p.m.
Sept. 12 UNC–Asheville	5:00 p.m.
Sept. 13 West Virginia	1:00 p.m.
Sept. 13 Penn State	7:30 p.m.
Sept. 19 Dayton	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 20 Xavier	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 26 at St. Bonaventure	7:00 p.m.
Sept. 27 at Duquesne	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 1 Rhode Island	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 3 Virginia Tech	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 7 Harvard	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 10 George Washington	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 11 Fordham	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 17 at Temple	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 18 at LaSalle	1:00 p.m.
Oct. 21 Connecticut	7:00 p.m.
Oct. 24 at Xavier	6:00 p.m.
Oct. 25 at Dayton	6:30 p.m.
Oct. 31 Duquesne	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 1 St. Bonaventure	4:00 p.m.
Nov. 5 at Rhode Island	6:00 p.m.
Nov. 8 at Virginia Tech	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 15 at Fordham	2:00 p.m.
Nov. 16 at George Washington	2:00 p.m.
Nov. 21 La Salle	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 22 Temple	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 28–29 Atlantic 10 Championships

Home Games displayed in Bold and played at the Curry Hicks Cage

UMass

Bonnie Kenny

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Jill Meyers

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Eliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

WELCOME
THE OFFICE OF GREEK AFFAIRS,
THE UMass INTERFRATENITY COUNCIL,
PANHELLENIC COUNCIL,
UMass PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL,
AND ITS MEMBER
FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES
WELCOME NEW AND RETURNING STUDENTS
TO THE UNIVERSITY
FRATERNITY IS FRIENDSHIP
"Hold a true friend with both your hands."
-Nigerian Proverb

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139
4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0080

PIZZA SUBS GYROS
the SUB
33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5160
Pizza
Subs
Calzones
and more...
WE DELIVER!
Hours: 11am - 2am
549-5160
UMass' Best! ★ 1997 ★
UMass' Best! ★ 1997 ★

WELCOME BACK
From
Big Guy Liquors
We're Big on Friendly Service
New Second Location Across from Cliffside Apts
Come see us in North Amherst
Rt 63 next to Superior Pizza
Check out our Specials

$109.00!!
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
PRORATED

WELCOME BACK!!
The Above "Fun 4Se" only offered at PRUDDY'S
TROPICAL BARBERI!!

MENU

- FOOD
- Live DJ's
- Outdoor Patio (w/ outdoor bar & grill) NEW!
- Service with a Smile
- Best Music in Town
- Weekly Specials
- The BEST Tropical Drinks
- Home of the P.R. ICED-T
- Free Pool Table
- Never a Cover before 10:00

TUE-SUN 5p.m.-1a.m
doors close @12a.m
main st. Amherst 253-2899
www.dfdesigns.com/pruddys

NO problems, just... positive vibes, baby!

Coupon required at time of order.
Your Art!
That's Right!
Screen Printed T-Shirts On 100% Cotton!
COOL DESIGN HERE
Many Colors to Choose From!
Only $5.60
PRINT SHACK & APPAREL UNLIMITED
322 Russell Street • Hadley, Mass.
Call Today 586-6933
Coupon required at time of order.

VALLEY BICYCLES SINCE 1981
Award Winning!
Sales • Service • Rentals
Accessories • Shipping • Storage
FUN FITNESS TRANSPORTATION
ALWAYS A FREE Helmet with any new bike purchase
Uptown
319 Main Street • Amherst
256-0880
Trailside
8 Railroad Street • Hadley
584-4466
UMass Best! ★ 1997 ★
ADVOCATE ★ BEST ★ OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1996
VALLEY BICYCLES SINCE 1981

Back To School Sale
Welcome Back UMass Students
Free Gift with Purchase *
CAMPUS GEAR
CAMPUS GEAR, 255 TRIANGLE ST. AMHERST 549-0944
Between Daily Mail & Northampton Co-Op Bank
* offer good while supplies last *

Leadership
THE PLATOON LEADERS CLASS

CHALLENGE
We want strong leaders. As an Officer of the Marines, you will be just that. The Platoon Leaders Class (PLC) will challenge the limits of your mental and physical capabilities. It is a demanding test that reveals your true character and lets you prove you have what it takes to be a leader of the Marines.

DESCRIPTION
• The Platoon Leaders Class is a summer training program that requires no interruption of you academic year, and pays approximately $3,000 for 10 weeks of training.
• Is totally voluntary and requires no commitment after completion of summer training.
• Is open to female sophomores, juniors, and seniors, and male freshmen through seniors.
• GUARANTEED AVIATION
Guarantees a seat at the Flight School in Pensacola, Florida, for qualified students (both male and female) with 20/30 or better vision. Fly and plane in the Marine Corps.
• Requires no special classes, drills, or uniforms on campus (unlink ROTC).
• Will provide tuition assistance.
• Offers career opportunities in fields such as Public Relations, Finance, Law, Intelligence, Military Police, Computer Science, Air Traffic Control, and Engineering.
• Specialties are open to all academic majors.
• GUARANTEED LAW For College Seniors or students currently enrolled in law school.
• Guarantees full-time employment upon successful completion of program and graduation from college.
• Provides a starting salary of $28,000 – $34,000.

Marines The Few. The Proud.
FOR MORE INFORMATION:
CALL 1-800-255-8762
CAPT. PETERS
SGT. RIQUIER

Black Affairs

Back to School Issue, Fall 1997

Pointing the generational finger

Humphrey brown III

To this day I still remember the wave of shock and disbelief I felt when I first heard the news. I was at the Collegian, in the Campus Center basement, scrolling through screen after screen of Associated Press stories, when I finally found what I had been looking for, but really never wanted to find.

The headline read something like, "Gangster Rapper, Notorious B.I.G., slain in California Shooting." The story that followed was even colder than its headline, but the message was clear.

The Hip-Hop Generation had taken another one of its own.

To many of us, the music we use to define ourselves (hip-hop) is more precious than life itself. This may also be part of the problem, but it's what's real nonetheless. Hip- hop is our life's blood. It's what gets us up in the morning and puts us to sleep at night. We hear it on the way to class, on the way to work, and for some of us, on our way to church (i.e. the hugely played-out "Stomp").

To be a part of this generation, you have to be about more than phat gear and an extensive knowledge of street lingo (the so-called and dreaded "Ebonics"). The young men and women of this generation are bold, brash and not afraid to speak their minds. We're a generation that doesn't remember much about Vietnam (if we were even alive when it was going on) and we still don't understand all the hype over Elvis or the Beatles.

Despite our youth, we have deceptively old minds. We're well aware of the power of money and the evils it brings, but we also know you can't get anywhere without it; so we peruse it with great zeal and fervor. We're all about the Benjamins and we don't want to wait for our cut of the pie. Say what you will about our sense of fashion, but you have to admire our drive.

We are a safe sex-conscious bunch who don't always practice what we preach, but we aren't exactly Baby Boomers either. We're too smart to do crack, but not that bright when it comes to cigarettes. You can't get us to accept the police as our friends, nor do we put faith in our reigning government, but we rocked the hell out of the vote these past elections.

Even with having to deal with inner city drug problems, the rapid spread of AIDS and growing up in single parent households (usually at or below lower middle class status) we've managed to get into college and make a few power moves here and there. There are young blacks moving their way up the corporate ladder and doing it with a realness that has never been witnessed before. Being a success no longer requires becoming a "sell out." You can keep it real and still make the papers. Just ask Puffy.

There are a million and one great things about this generation of young black men and women that makes it so unique, distinguished and captivating, but you're not going to hear much about that stuff.

When Tupac Shakur and Biggie Smalls were killed, the hip hop generation came under more fire than it ever had. It was as if everyone and anyone who wasn't down with us read the headlines, shook their heads and said, "I told you so."

Most black people from our parents' generation kind of threw up their hands and gave up on us. Sure, they made it good for themselves and worked their way out of the ghettos and low budget housing into middle class nirvana, but we had become the generation that everybody feared. The generation that nobody could do anything for was so out of control that it was taking out their own.

In the eyes of older generations, we are merely a product of the society in which we were raised. In the eyes of many of our parent's generation, we are the products of our own destruction. They made it great for us when they marched with Martin Luther King Jr. and got us into white schools. Now, we're expected to take our people into the promised land.

We carry the dreams and aspirations of an entire nation on our shoulders, but no one seems to understand.

We are supposed to be the ones who have it easy. We are the ones who supposedly have all the advantages our parents didn't have, but we're screwing it up. We are a lost generation.

If you believe that ideology or follow that kind of thought, then the fate of an entire black nation is doomed. It seems as if the generation gap between us and our parents just gets wider and wider. The problem doesn't lie in the changing of times, but in the separation of minds.

We are severely misunderstood and underestimated. There are those who think that we don't care and those who think that we are only concerned with ourselves. We are a young nation of great potential and intelligent minds, but potential is nothing without direction and guidance. Of course, we don't make it any better for ourselves when we don't treat one another with the respect each other deserves. The extremes of those actions make the news and headlines faster than we can count them.

There is a lot of work to be done, and we are taking steps in the right direction, but one thing we can't afford to do is let the few derail the many. Like any generation, we have our faults and bad seeds, but don't think for a minute that we aren't for real. We are as real as it gets, good or bad.

What we need is some acceptance, a little guidance and we'll take care of the rest. Burning us for problems we didn't start is like punishing the son for the sins of the father. We didn't ask to grow up in a society where the lines between righteousness and evil are constantly blurred, but we'll take it.

Humphrey brown III is a Collegian columnist.

The big picture

Gregory H. Casimir

Three weeks ago in New York City, the notorious New York City Police Department committed yet another act of viciousness against the very citizens it is supposed to serve and protect.

Haitian immigrant Abner Louima, the victim, was arrested during a brawl at a party. He assaulted a cop before he was apprehended. En route, the arresting officers beat Louima to teach him that this is what happens to anyone who assaults a cop.

Now, this part of the incident didn't surprise me. Although it was police brutality for the officers to retaliate, anyone stupid enough to hit a cop is going to get dealt with. But upon arriving at the police station, the officers sunk to new and gruesome depths of cruelty.

Louima was beaten and sodomized with a plunger stick, and then suffered the humiliation of being dragged around with his pants down. He sustained severe internal bleeding.

Days after, all the Haitians in the Flatbush community organized a huge rally that stretched all the way to the Brooklyn Bridge. At first, many people viewed it as a Haitian problem. But soon blacks from other communities joined, making it an even bigger rally. The city viewed it as another black problem. However, when Latinos, Jews and whites joined the rally, Mayor Rudolph Gulliani and the other city officials realized that they just had a problem. That's the bottom line.

What happened to Louima wasn't just an unspeakable act against a black man; it was one against another human being. Although it seems quite typical in American society for an act of police violence to be perpetrated against a black man, this doesn't mean that it only affects black people. Any time an individual has his or her rights infringed upon, it affects all of us as a people.

If we start getting apathetic when something affects everyone else except our group, then slowly but steadily there will be no one left to help us when our own group gets into trouble. It was the combination of different people getting involved that was instrumental in forcing the city of New York to act as quickly as it did.

In being a diverse body of students, we should embrace and celebrate our cultures and within our own groups and share them with others. Yet at the same time, we should also cherish our siliarities; taking pride in those things that unite us all as just students, regardless of our color, race, creed, or disabilities (apparent or otherwise).

Like fingers on a hand, we can strike a powerful blow when joined together than we can apart. In the long run, the only race that matters is the human race. That's the bigger picture.

Gregory H. Casimir is a Collegian columnist.

Is it a black thing?

Millicent Jackson

I recently attended a gathering with a group of friends in which, throughout the course of a conversation with a casual acquaintance I was asked what the highlight of my summer was. My response was the vacation I took to Martha's Vineyard in a little place situated along the marina. Immediately, this person's face turned up and then with an instantaneous snippy tone remarked, "So you are one of those folks who doesn't act black."

Sad to say, this is not the first time I have been the recipient of this sort of statement, not that it has been the first time I have heard it about some of my other brothers and sisters; some of whom I've personally known and others with whom I've never met. This reply lead me to embark on a serious mission on which I was determined to decipher what it exactly meant for a person to act black. What would one deem appropriate behavior for a person of color? I wasn't aware their were some sort of guidelines. The last time I looked in the mirror the reflection that I found looking me back was that of a black woman.

Choosing not to engage myself in a never-ending debate about what the meaning of acting black was, I simply responded by saying that the Vineyard is a place that I have frequented for the last few summers because of its beautiful scenery, convenient location and excellent networking opportunities.

Webster's Dictionary defines the word act as something done, a deed, behave. This definition leads me back to the pressing question, "What is acting black?" It is my belief the negative stereotypes the media has chosen to portray African-Americans in, throughout the years, are the primary root from which the problem stems.

It is very evident the images portrayed were of a people who came from uneducated poor backgrounds. We were not well read or traveled and any of us who were fortunate enough to have received an education were the exception, rather than the rule. We had rhythm and we could cook. We excelled at sports. Seemingly, because we were exposed to such images, over a period of time we subconsciously began to internalize these messages and adopt them as our own. This may or may not be the answer, but where else could this term "acting black" come from?

As a people we are offended (and justifiably so) when a person outside of our race categorizes us as being thieves, uneducated, without class; yet isn't that what we are saying to one another? By making the statement that a person is not acting black, in essence, what we are saying is that we feel a person is not acting in the manner in which they have been stereotyped by society. A perfect example of this is "The Cosby Show," which successfully boosted NBC's ratings, making it the most watched show at the Thursday time slot. The show depicted a doctor and a lawyer, both very well educated — the parents of five intelligent, well behaved black children. Despite the success of this show, many complained that it was not realistic and that black people didn't act this way or live that way. This is hardly the case.

I find no reason why black people cannot enjoy themselves on Martha Vineyard among white people and still maintain their cultural identity. I see no reason why we cannot be well read, well informed on various social issues and still be regarded as claiming our ethnicity. Yes, many would say that this is not what they mean, but this is what comes out of their mouth. It is a total contradiction.

I was raised by a father who is from the inner city streets of Newark, N.J. My father was one of seven children who lived in the projects and slept with his two other brothers in a bed. He played basketball on courts where glass occupied more space than the pavement and drunk and homeless people were the spectators. My mother, on the other hand, was raised in a big house surrounded by a picket fence in Upstate New York. She had a big back yard in which to play where there was a flower garden and luscious green grass. She ice skated in the winter and took tap dance and ballet lessons throughout the week. Both of my parents went on to pursue their educations at a black institution. My mother went on to open her own business, as my father has gone on to become the founder of his own highly successful, non-profit organization. Some could easily reason that my mother could not be considered black enough, yet my father nor anyone else in my family has ever questioned her identity. My father loves her no less, nor does she love him any less because of their very different upbringing.

I was raised in a home where I was exposed to a wealth of music, literature and food, from black, hispanic and white cultures. I was educated thoroughly on the cause that Dr. Martin Luther King fought for, but I was also made aware that he believed we were all equal, black and white and black and black. I knew about the courageous acts of Rosa Parks and what Malcolm X stood for. I was also aware that not all white people approved of segregation. I was taught to say please and thank you. I was taught that all people should be judged by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin. I was taught that there are no greater than or less than signs after any of our names in this mathematical equation of life, simply equal.

My upbringing has enabled me to come make friends from all walks of life. Some of these friends were raised in black communities, mixed communities and attended prestigious white institutions as well as prestigious black institutions. Some have traveled to Africa, seen the pyramids of Egypt, dined in the cafes of Paris, while others have never been outside of their community. None of this makes one more black or less black than the other, simply by having different circumstances.

It is my belief that instead of addressing the term "acting black" we should concentrate on the content of one's character. A black person who has a certain manner of speaking, or certain preference as to where they choose to live or what institution of higher learning they pursue their education at should not be cast as not acting black. Chances are that a person who has these preferences would have these same preferences regardless of their color. There are also issues of self esteem that come into play and upbringing. Few of us are trained psychologists, therefore it is not our job to analyze what a person's problem is, if in fact they have one at all.

Talk show mogul Oprah Winfrey, a woman whom I hold in very high regard and consider to be an excellent role model recently replied to a comment made about her in regards to her acting white. Winfrey's response was it saddened her to hear such negativity. Winfrey has struggled throughout her entire life — having been raised by her grandmother, she was impoverished, raped as a teenager, pregnant and overcame a drug problem — until recently when she has been able to affect people, all people, both black and white on a larger scale. Winfrey makes it very clear that her mission as a communicator is to give her public a positive message. Winfrey knows what it is firsthand to be overweight, black, struggling, impoverished, discriminated against as well as shunned. She has been all of these, fortunately now is her time to give back. Due to her production studio and a love for literature not only has she been able to spawn a new readership in the publishing world, but she it putting the works of black authors on the big screen. The works of Toni Morrison, Zora Neale Hurston and Dorothy West of the Harlem Renaissance are a few of the projects she has in mind.

At this diverse college campus which we are affiliated with in one way or another, we have a multiplicity of African American men and women who are doing very positive things for the University, as well as the community. Since our primary objective here is to better ourselves and make the most out of our education, why waste unnecessary energy with one's actions? Aside from expanding our minds, if we have to be concerned with people's actions, let it be on their character. Let each one be given a chance to prove him or herself. Let's try to steer clear of dwelling on the fact that this area may not meet your standards of what you feel is appropriate minority population. Instead look at the flip-side of the coin and view this as an opportunity to be exposed to dealing with various people, which will better equip you to deal with life once you graduate and move on to the next stage of your life. More times than not, we will find ourselves in a situation where we are not going to be the majority. Can you deal with that? In order to make it anywhere you must have good communication skills, and not just in a black environment.

My primary concern with a view to my education is to write, no to write per se for an all-black audience or for an all-white audience, but to write and be heard. I write to invoke thought and to generate some sort of emotion, whether it be good or bad or undecided. Hopefully it is the first of the three.

As I look forward to vacationing back on the Vineyard next summer, I hope that my goal has been accomplished.

Millicent Jackson is a Collegian columnist.

One Time For the Mind

Allana E. Todman

"Perhaps most discouraging has been the high drop-out rate for African-American college students: Those who do not finish college within six years is 62%, compared with a national dropout rate of 41%" — American Council on Education, 1995-1996

Looking at these statistics allows us to realize the significance of education for African-American students.

What do these statistics prove? For starters it is important to recognize causal factors that may have not been included for these findings.

Financial aid is what the majority of minorities use to help with the heavy burden of paying tuition.

African-Americans realize that, financially, the bursar's bill is the first priority that needs to be taken care of. A simple call to Mom or Dad on the phone will not clear the bill. Neither will going to CEEBMS (Collegiate Comm. for Education of Black and other Minority Students) for questions about financial aid (after awards have been given out) speed up the process.

Deadlines from the bursar's office, time constraints and actual processing of financial aid can distract students. Knowing that you have an outstanding bill and can be administratively withdrawn from the University at anytime can be discouraging.

Whether this was included in The American Council's study on the high drop out rate of African-American students, is questionable.

Having been a part of the Metco program, which busses city children to suburban schools, one can observe some reasons other than capability that my academics were hindered.

As a fourth grader entering the program, I was stunned on my first day of arrival. Realizing I was the only one out of two black students in my class, I cried to my teacher, "Where are all of the black people?"

I could not run to the corner store during recess and get an "Icy" with my girls like I normally would. Instead, I was running to the nurse's office to get fluoride. That was something we never did in the city school I used to attend.

I couldn't play hair salon any more, because everyone in my new school was too busy wondering why I used so much grease in my hair.

Then I had to sit next to this white boy my age, who kept asking me if I was outside in my neighborhood the day someone in the city got killed by a gang.

So, before I had a chance to adjust as a student, I adjusted as a target — someone who always had to be ready to answer many of the ignorant questions of my peers. For many of them, they didn't know any better, but unfortunately I lost my inner motivation to succeed.

I figured that if I messed up then that would be another negative mark on my list of being a poorly educated student from the city.

Instead of raising my hand to answer questions, I answered the questions in my head.

Feelings of being a target rather than an average student, pose a threat towards a students academic achievements. The chance of being overly criticized and singled out is another way a student can feel in a classroom setting.

Claude M. Steele's theory of "stereotype threat" is described as a hostile environment created when a false perception hinders a student from concentrating on the motives of the class.

His theory allowed me to observe the way I removed myself from the domain of the classroom by not participating, and losing self confidence in the class. Dealing with the stereotypes that being in the classroom allowed me to experience distracted me.

Steele observed, when compared, that black and white students (even though they may have the same equal education) show a major gap in grade results.

Placement exams, which can become very competitive, have allowed many educational observers to question the gap of academic scores when African-Americans and white students are compared.

Using my personal experience as a fourth grader in a suburban school, a good example of how the placement exam affected me is evident. At the end of the year when I took the math placement exam, I scored 23 wrong out of 25.

Due to the fact that the teachers knew I was capable of scoring better, they allowed me to retake the exam.

Taking the exam alone with my Metco advisor in her office, I felt no pressure. I also felt no threat of not performing as well as my other classmates. Since I knew that my advisor did not question my capability to perform high scores academically, I had complete concentration while taking my exam.

Receiving a B on the retake of the exam, the teachers could not understand why I scored better taking the exam in my advisor's office. Why I would be distracted in a classroom where the rest of the students silently took the exam, was a wonder to them.

"One must surely turn first to social structure: limits on educational access that have been imposed on these groups by socio-economic disadvantage, segregating social practices, and restrictive cultural orientations, limits of both historical and ongoing effect... should make it more difficult to identify with academic domains," Steele wrote.

Like my fourth grade teacher, many other people in the educational field ask similar questions to problems that were like mine. To answer these questions, Steele gives more factors in the statement that many can consider in answering theses questions.

Part of the reason for my scoring low was due to my lack of motivation. I figured that if I messed up then that would be another aspect of being a poor educated student from the city.

After being in the program for years, I realized that the threats that existed within my classroom setting of mostly white students did not have to hinder me from performing as well as they did. It was all about choosing not to allow the stigmatism to academically affect me.

Though I'm in college, these threats still come out every now and then.

Overall it is important to acknowledge that they do exist. In observing the different threats that may hinder minority students, it is clear that being lazy is not the primary reason for African-Americans dropping out of school. Though the financial burden is frequently a factor, motivation to compete academically is another important factor not discussed as much.

This has been One Time for the Mind showing you how the threat that hinders intellect affects us all.

Allana E. Todman is a Collegian columnist.

needs to spread the word And motivate
If interested Please call and ask for Humphrey brown III and

Campus Police Log

Accident —Personal Injury
June 1
A pedestrian, Elizette Varela, 23, of 363 Albany St., Boston was struck by a vehicle on Campus Center Way. She was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, where she treated and released.

Accident — Property Damage
July 23
A vehicle traveling north on University Drive attempted to turn into parking lot 22 when it collided with a southbound vehicle. Two individuals were injured and transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital. The accident is under investigation.
Aug. 7
A vehicle crossing parking lot 11 struck a divider on Stadium Drive.

Alarm — Fire
June 10
A small fire in Goesmann laboratory was extinguished by Amherst fire Department and Environmental Health and Safety.

Animal Complaint
May 14
An individual reported a horse loose on Orchard Hill Drive.
June 18
A baby raccoon was stuck in a barrel by Hampshire House.
July 22
Individuals reported a bat in Pierpont Residence Hall.
July 23
Environmental Police were notified of a large owl stuck in a soccer net near Stadium Drive. The owl was extricated.
Aug. 6
An individual reported that there was a goose with broken wings in the Campus Pond.

Annoying Behavior
May 20
A bus driver reported two individuals rolled a tire into the roadway, striking the bus and a car.
July 2
An individual reported harassment from another individual at Lincoln Apartments.
July 4
An individual in costume was demonstrating near the Mullins Center.

Annoying Telephone Calls
Aug. 18
There was a report of children playing with a telephone in North Village Apartments.

Assist Agency
Aug. 8
The UMass Police Department assisted the Amherst Police Department with a state vehicle accident.

Burglary/Breaking and Entering
July 22
A laptop computer was stolen from an office in the Mullins Center.

Disturbance
May 16
Residential Staff requested assistance with individuals using water guns on the 15th floor of Washington Residence Hall.

Family Offenses, Domestics
July 18
A judge issued an emergency restraining order for an individual in Lincoln Apartments.

Hazardous Materials/ Spills
Aug. 18
A gas leak was repaired at the PVTA bus facility.
Aug. 19
There was a minor oil spill on Commonwealth Avenue. Environmental Health and Safety was called to help clean up the area.

Health/Safety Hazard
July 2
A box of road flares was removed from parking lot 79 on North Pleasant Street.
Environmental Health and Safety was notified to check on two barrels of material in Paige Laboratory.
July 4
A barricade was put up around a large hole on Stadium Drive.
July 8
An individual reported an open manhole on Stockbridge Road.
July 11
Environmental Health and Safety assisted Amherst Fire Department extinguished a fire in a container outside of the Recycling Facility on Tillson Farm Road.
Aug. 12
An individual reported that the lights outside of Melville Residence Hall were not working.
Aug. 13
There was a report of a gas can left in the crosswalk near the Newman Center.

Larceny
May 20
Cash was stolen from a drawer in the pool room in the Campus Center.
May 21
Packages delivered to the Cluster Office in Baker Residence Hall were reported stolen.
May 22
An individual reported clothing and personal property stolen from his room in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall.
An individual reported his wallet and credit cards stolen from his room in Pierpont Residence Hall.
June 3
Telephones were reported stolen from an office in the Morrill Science Building.
June 26
Three fans were stolen from Stockbridge Hall.
July 4
UMPD stopped an attempted theft of a TV/VCR in Herter Hall.
July 5
A bicycle was reported stolen from the Campus Center.
July 11
A duffel bag and calculator was stolen from a sidewalk area near Leach Residence Hall.
A laptop was stolen from a vehicle parked in the Campus Center Garage
July 12
An individual in the Campus Center reported a fanny pack containing a camera stolen.

Suspicious Person/Activity
June 23
Kevin J. Smith, 41, of 86 Prospect St., Jaffrey, N.H. was arrested in the Campus Center for trespassing.

Traffic Stop
June 26
Ryan E. Curtis, 19, of 9 Thorton St., Greenville, R.I., was arrested on North Pleasant Street for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license and for speeding 42 miles per hour in a posted 25 miles per hour.
July 10
Patricia A. Ocicki, 44, of 128 Rocky Hill Rd., Hadley, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol and drugs.
July 13
Sanford R. Jones, 26, of of 38 Hubbardston Rd., Templeton, was arrested for operational a motor vehicle with a defective front light and expired license.

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0080

PREMAJOR ADVISING SERVICES
SERVING THE UNDECLARED AND SELECTED PREMAJORS
(BDIC, COMMUNICATION, COMPUTER SCIENCE, JOURNALISM, ENGINEERING, ENGLISH, PSYCHOLOGY & WOMEN'S STUDIES) come by with your questions regarding...
✓ choosing a major
✓ add/drop help
✓ getting out of academic difficulty
✓ picking classes
✓ who is your advisor
ADVISOR'S HOURS: 9:00am to 4:30pm
Appointments and walk-in
EMAIL: advising@casiac.umass.edu
E-20 Machmer
545-2191

THE CAMPUS SENDER
224 CAMPUS CENTER
UMASS, AMHERST
549-6000 ext. 7906
• Peter Pan Bus Tickets
• Shipping via UPS
• Packaging Supplies
• Fax Service: 545-4279
• U.S. Post Office
CAMPUS CENTER PRINT SHOP
Xerox® Copying • Offset Printing
Desktop Publishing • Design
Vinyl Signs & Banners
Color Copying
545-0371
2nd Floor, Campus Center
UMass, Amherst

J. Crew
Clothing Sale
Sept. 16 - Sept. 19
Temporary Help needed for large J. Crew Clothing Sale to be held at The Mullins Center at the University of Massachusetts September 16 - 19, 1997
To sign up, stop by table #20 in the Campus Center Concourse next to the Information Booth on Monday 9/8 from 9am - 4pm and Tuesday 9/9 from 9am - 1pm

UMass' Best! 1997
YOUR NEW ROCK ALTERNATIVE
Live On Campus Sept. 4
TODAY'S 99.3 MODERN ROCK
WHMP-FM
JOIN US TOMORROW ON THE STEPS OF THE STUDENT UNION BUILDING
WE'LL BE GIVING AWAY GREAT STUFF ALL DAY!

SGA proposes to increase Dean of Students' efficiency

$13.2 million budget increase from legislature allows for changes in UMass disciplinary system

University system budget increased by state; Chancellor to put funds to work for students

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

In an attempt to increase the effectiveness of the Dean of Students Office and to revamp the disciplinary system, the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) has created and submitted a proposal to Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Tom Robinson and Chancellor David K. Scott.

A financial spark
Due to a seven percent, or $13.2 million, increase in the University budget which came from the state legislature in July, the SGA decided to create a proposal which would be feasible due to these new funds.
"Once we knew the University received the increase, we knew we could make a proposal, but we had to decide what was the best target," SGA President Lia Wong said.
Wong, along with fellow student leaders, Speaker of the Senate Peter Kilbourne, Student Trustee Brian Tirrell and Jason Vecchio, Student Coordinator of the Student Center for Education, Research and Advocacy (SCERA) worked on a proposal which would essentially separate the Dean of Students Office into two offices while appointing new administrative advocates into these offices.

The proposal
Part 1: student affairs
"We'd like to see Student Affairs be more effective in dealing with the everyday problems of students," Vecchio said. "There needs to be some real changes made, and the proposal really gets to the heart of the problem."
"We're unsatisfied with the treatment of students in Whitmore," Tirrell said. "Finding an administrative advocate in Whitmore is extremely difficult for the average student. We need an office that is always open to students."
In order to create that office, the proposal would appoint Assistant Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Ricardo Townes as the Dean of Students/Associate Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.
"We asked ourselves, who could be a tremendous student- friendly advocate? A few names came up, but Ric was our choice," Tirrell said.
Concerning Townes, the proposal reads, "Townes has 20 years of multi-faceted, progressive experience in student affairs administration... He is great on student-student and administration-student relations."
"With Ric as a Dean, new lines of communication will be opened between students and the administration," Tirrell said. "With more communication we can avoid future incidents like the Goodell takeover."
"I think that the SGA proposition identifies an area of concern involving their relationship with the administration," Townes said. "They want a direct relationship with somebody they have confidence in."

Part 2: disciplinary changes
Presently, the University disciplinary system is part of the Dean of Students office.
But according to Kilbourne, this system creates a conflict of interest.
"How can the same office [Dean of Students] that is taking disciplinary action against a student also advocate for that student?" Kilbourne asked. "There is an obvious conflict of interest that needs to be changed."
Within the proposal, the disciplinary system would be separated from the Dean of Students office, creating the Judicial Affairs Office while Charles Dimare, Director of Student Legal Services would become the Judicial Affairs Officer.
Dimare has been a practicing attorney for 20 years, with 18 years in public higher education law with a master's degree in public administration; he also has 15 years experience as a Student Affairs administrator.
If the proposal comes to fruition, Kilbourne said that he hopes Dimare will make a major policy change involving representation of students.
According to Kilbourne, present policy says that in matters of expulsion, suspension, or eviction from housing, University students are allowed due process but denied legal representation.
"Even elementary and middle school students are allowed to be represented by a lawyer," Kilbourne said.

News Analysis

The feasibility of it all
Once new money surfaces at the University, there are many proposals put forth to the Chancellor, all of which can only come to life through proper allocations and funding. Due to the budget increase, UMass has the money which the administration will allocate it in accordance with its priorities.
New resources requested within the proposal total $206,000, the Dean of Students position receiving $106,000, the Judicial Affairs Officer receiving $80,000 and an additional $20,000 for office technology and supplies.
"The feasibility of this proposal depends on how much the administration is willing to give us," Kilbourne said. "But we do understand that we are primarily concerned with students, while the Administration has to be concerned not only with students, but also with other administrative departments."
According to Wong, Robinson expressed interest in making the proposal work.
Robinson was unavailable for comment.
"If there is a problem, it's a conflict of philosophies," Vecchio said. "I'm not convinced that Student Affairs wants students to deal with the policy changes that this proposal addresses."
According to Wong, the proposal was presented on July 24 to Robinson and July 29 to Scott. No definite time line has been set, but Scott has said that allocations of funds will be made by late September.

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has received a $13.2 million, or seven percent, increase in its allocation from the State Legislature for fiscal year 1998.
Budget Director Joyce Hatch called the $195.3 million allocation to the University "a very good increase."
"It is higher than other years," Hatch said. "Everyone is very pleased."
Chancellor Scott said in a press release that the additional funds will allow the University to improve the quality of education at UMass. "The increase in the fiscal year '98 appropriation for the University system is very good news indeed," Scott said.
"We're very pleased with the increase," Scott said. "We appreciate the work of the Senate and the House to give us an increase that pretty much equaled our request.
"This budget, combined with our continuing program of internal reallocation and fund-raising efforts, will make it possible for us to even better serve our students and the citizens of Massachusetts."
The Campus Chronicle reported that Scott plans to use the additional funds for increased scholarship aid, improving the undergraduate curriculum and advising, the library system, and the creation of a new college of life sciences and a multidisciplinary master's degree program in public policy.
The final campus budget allocations will be released later this month.

Place your classified ad now!
Classifieds WILL be running in the next issue of the Collegian.
Come down to the campus center basement rm 113 and place your classified today.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

People's Market
STUDENTS WORKING FOR STUDENTS
A Healthy Alternative to School Food. We Sell Bagels and Snacks and Perhaps the Best Cup Of Coffee on Campus. Come Find Out For Yourself, We are Located on the Second Floor of the Student Union, Around The Back. Just Listen For the Music and Follow Your Tummy!
See You Soon

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

WELCOMING BACK STUDENTS
UNIVERSITY STORES AT UMASS AMHERST
Textbook Annex
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex
University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT
Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.
1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.
2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.
3. Always have your ID available. This is required for any refund transactions.
The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After this date you may not be able to purchase the books you need.

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19TH, 1997.
Beginning MONDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1997 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.
The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore: do not wait for them to mail.
New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.
Any incorrect titles purchased after SEPT. 19, 1997 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase.
Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.
Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is FRIDAY SEPT. 19 1997.
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex
textbook annex Fall '97 Schedule
We accept cash, personal check, Visa, MasterCard as forms of payment.
We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback		annex rush
9/02/97	9 am – 5 pm	8/31/97	12 pm – 4 pm
9/03/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/01/97	10 am – 2 pm
9/04/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/02/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/05/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/03/97	9 am – 9 pm
9/06/97	NO BUYBACK	9/04/97	9 am – 9 pm
9/07/97	CLOSED	9/05/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/08/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/06/97	11 am – 5 pm
9/09/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/07/97	CLOSED
9/10/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/08/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/11/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/09/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/12/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/10/97	9 am – 6 pm
		9/11/97	9 am – 6 pm
		9/12/97	9 am – 6 pm

U.S. citizens suspicious of latest tobacco deal's benefits

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans are highly suspicious of the proposed tobacco deal, saying it won't even achieve a prime objective of lowering teen-age smoking unless cigarette prices rise much more than expected, according to an Associated Press poll. More than half of those surveyed say the deal is not worth giving up the key concession that cigarette makers demand — banning class-action lawsuits. And two-thirds expect tobacco companies to sell as many cigarettes as ever.

Seventy percent say the price of a pack of cigarettes would have to rise by more than $1 — much more than expected under the deal — to have much effect on teen smokers.

Congress and President Clinton begin grappling with the proposed deal next month, and such poll findings are bound to figure in the debate.

"This reflects a huge amount of cynicism and skepticism about tobacco," said Massachusetts Attorney General Scott Harshbarger, who insists the public is missing the deal's good points.

"If it is left to the current, polarizing debate... this is going to be a major problem. We will miss an opportunity that may not come again, and tobacco wins."

The findings present a dilemma for deal supporters, who would like to toughen some provisions but without going so far that tobacco companies back out. Yet, public distrust plays into deal opponents' hands.

Indeed, critics immediately seized on the findings.

"The American people have it right: They're not against a settlement, they're against a bad settlement," Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said in a statement. "It's exactly this kind of public opposition to the deal that's going to force Congress to make significant changes."

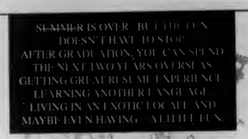
The proposed deal would settle state lawsuits against tobacco companies by setting new national policy. Companies would pay $368.5 billion over 25 years, curb advertising and marketing and pay fines if teen smoking doesn't fall significantly. In return, they won the class-action ban and other legal protections, plus restrictions on pending government control over nicotine.

Clinton has said he will stiffen the deal, including a demand for full government nicotine regulation. The AP's telephone poll of 1,003 adults, conducted Aug. 20-24, found 58 percent of Americans support such regulation, including 54 percent of smokers.

An additional 54 percent said a deal isn't worth the class-action lawsuit ban. But the smokers who would file such suits were split evenly: 39.5 percent said a deal was worth that concession vs. 41 percent who said it wasn't.

The poll was done by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa. The margin of error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The deal is expected to force cigarette companies to raise prices by 62 cents a pack. Currently, the cost of a pack averages $1.74, including tax. A key question is whether that increase would cut teen smoking.



Eight in 10 Americans said a jump of even 75 cents is insufficient to do that. Seventy percent said prices would have to rise more than $1 a pack to curb teen smokers significantly — including 61 percent of the smokers whose wallets would be hit. "The poll appears to be in accordance with the best evidence," said Massachusetts Institute of Technology economist Jeffrey Harris.

His calculations indicate prices would have to rise between $1.15 and $1.50 a pack to reduce teen smoking by the amounts the deal requires — roughly 30 percent over five years.

But Harris cautioned that public perceptions are a little too cynical — cigarette sales would drop some under the deal. Every 10 percent increase in price would lower the number of cigarettes sold by 4 percent, his calculations indicate. Half of that drop comes from people who kick the habit, the rest from people who just smoke less.

In other words, raising prices the expected 62 cents would lower U.S. cigarette consumption from 24 billion packs a year to about 20.8 billion packs — and cut the overall number of smokers by 3.5 million to 4 million, Harris said.

The American Medical Association, a chief lobbying force behind the deal, has called for a $1 a pack increase. The AP's poll found 10.4 percent of Americans, and 14 percent of smokers, think that would be enough.

If you are interested, Peace Corps has a place for you.

Peace Corps is now accepting applications to fill over 200 volunteer positions for business advisors, elementary and high school teachers, health educators, nutritionists, environmental educators, construction workers and farmers leaving this Spring and Summer.

The person we're looking for might have a major in business, health science, environmental studies, sociology, forestry, horticulture, primary or secondary education, philosophy, life science, mathematics, social work, French, or TEFL.

No matter what your background Peace Corps can put your skills to good use helping others help themselves.

To find out more about Peace Corps, stop by the Peace Corps office located on campus at 112 Stockbridge Hall or call:

(413) 545-2105

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 months
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116

Here's looking at you
A row of seven-foot high sunflowers on Cemetery Rd. in Hadley.

KENNETH W P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

The UCard has Arrived for Fall '97

The UCard is the University's new ID Card. In addition to verifying your enrollment on campus, it can be used as a

- Library Card - accepted at all campus libraries
- Meal Plan Ticket - necessary to take advantage of your campus Dining Plan
- Residence Hall Key - required to access any residence hall with the Card Security System
- Verify access to Athletic Facilities, Body Shops, Mullins Skating Rink and the purchase of tickets on campus at student discounts.

NO MORE STICKERS!

The Ucard has replaced the semester sticker with electronic validation. As of Fall 1997, semester stickers no longer will be issued. In order to take advantage of stickerless validation, you must have a UCard.

UCARD DEBIT ACCOUNTS

Open a UCard Debit Account, make a deposit and you can spend it by swiping your UCard on campus to purchase for food, goods, vending, tickets and more without additional fees. No more looking for the right change or the nearest ATM! Open UCard Debit Accounts at the UCard Office in Franklin Dining Hall.

LONG DISTANCE CALLING CARD PROGRAM

This service offers competitive rates and individualized billing for calls placed from off campus, with the instructions for use on the back of your UCard. Representatives from Student Telephone Services, the UCard' Office's partner in the plan, will be on the Campus Center Concourse, Sept. 1 - Sept. 4, to answer questions and sign up students for this service.

WHERE CAN I GET A STUDENT UCARD DURING OPENING WEEK?

Campus Center Concourse, 10:00 - 4 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 2 - Friday, Sept. 5
UCard Office, Franklin Dining Hall, Sept. 1 - 4, 8:30 a.m. to 7, Sept. 5, 8:30 - 5 p.m.
Questions about the UCard - Contact the UCard Office at 545-0197

Parking Services Wants You!!

Parking Hearing Review Board Members needed:

The Parking Services office is seeking faculty, staff and students to serve on the newly formed Parking Hearing Review Board. This Board will be part of a pool from which five members will be periodically scheduled to review and render decisions on contested campus parking citations. In preparation for becoming a Board member each person must take part in a formal two-hour training session that includes an explanation and review of the hearing process, and a "walk through" of an actual hearing.

After training, Hearing Board members will serve on a rotating basis, meeting approximately once every three months. Members should be prepared to render fair and unbiased decisions based upon published UMASS parking regulations. Training sessions are scheduled for Monday Sept. 8 and Thursday Sept. 11 from 3:30 -5:30 PM in the Review Board should contact Sharon Kennedy (s.kennedy@umassp.edu or hearings@admin.umass.edu) at the Parking Services Office (413-545-6581) located in the Trailer Complex in Lot 25 just North of the Mullins Center. Inquiries should be received no later than Wednesday September 10, 1997

The Collegian has several editorial and support staff positions available for the fall semester. Each of the following is a paid position:

- Assistant to the Managing Editor
- Copy Editors
- Developing Nations Editor
- Librarian
- Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender Issues Editor
- Women's Issues Editor

Applications will be accepted until Wednesday, Sept 10 at 5 p.m. For an application and complete job descriptions, come to 113 Campus Center or call 545–1809 and speak to Laura Stock, Managing Editor. Collegian business hours are 9 a.m.–4 p.m. Monday – Thursday.; 1–4 p.m. Sunday.

World Wide Web gives students convenience of applying to school in comfort of their own homes

By Robert Greene
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Applying to college by computer was only natural for Mark Garneau.

The 18-year-old from Closter, N.J., spends two or three hours a day exploring the Internet. Virginia Tech, one of the most heavily wired campuses, had the most detailed Web page — and an online application form.

He could apply without leaving his perch or dragging out a typewriter, a foreign practice for many youngsters yet still required at many institutions.

"The other ones, I had to think about keeping them neat and typed and stuff like that," said Garneau, now an incoming freshman at the university.

Knowing there's a whole generation of Web-literate teen-agers out there, universities are struggling to meet the demand for online applications in time for the college-hunting season this fall.

"Clearly, the paper application is doomed," said the summary of a poll released last winter by the Art & Science Group Inc., a Baltimore research company that found a sharp rise in Web access among high school seniors. More than one-third said they would rather apply online, up from 11 percent a year earlier.

Going online saves paper, lets institutions hear from a wider range of applicants and lets them promote themselves as technologically advanced, the colleges say.

But the new world also has created some special headaches for universities.

Sophisticated probers who look at a college's Web site also can often gain access to such things as campus crime reports, faculty ratings or other information through unofficial channels.

And students are sometimes bombarding faculty with questions by e-mail, creating a burden that not all colleges or faculty might be able to handle.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

TAU Distribution

YOU CAN:
Pick up a TAU
Start an EMAIL Account
Purchase Necessary Software

Thursday September 4th &
Friday September 5th
9am- 5pm
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 165-69

For on Campus Residents Only.
You Must Have a Student ID.
Please note: You will not be issued a TAU if you live in a building connected to the Residential Network

Office of Information Technologies
University of Massachusetts

computers students can use

OIT (the Office of Information Technologies) supports computing for students, faculty and staff on the UMass campus.

•To access the Internet and use graphical web browsers from your own computer, you need a UMAccess account
•To use Intel-based PCs or Macs in OIT's computer classrooms/labs, or to use OIT's printers, you need a UMAccess account
•To use OIT's host computers (running UNIX or OpenVMS), for example, to send and receive e-mail, you need a traditional OIT host computer account

Students can use any of all of these services for a fee of $20 per semester.

How do I get an account?

That depends on whether you've used OIT services before or not...

•If you have never had an OIT or UMAccess account you are considered a New Client. Bring your UMass picture ID-or your UCard-to the Campus Center rooms 168-172
•On Thursday, Sept. 4, Monday & Tuesday, Sept. 8 & 9-between 9am and 9pm
•On Friday, Sept. 5-between 9am and 5pm
•On Sunday, Sept 7-between 1pm and 9pm to make an appointment-choose a time that's convenient for you to spend about half an hour getting your account and information about using it.

Beggining September 11th, bring your UCard to Lederle GRC room A111 any Monday-Friday, 9-5-but beware, the line may be long!

•If you used an OIT or UMAccess account in spring '97, you don't need to stand in line anywhere! Simply log on using the same username and password and start using it. Logging on activates the account and you will be billed $20 later in the semester. If you did not have a UMAccess account, you will need to go to Lederle GRC A111 to get one if you want to use the OIT classrooms. Again, bring your UMass picture ID-or your UCard-with you!

•If you had an OIT or UMAccess account but need to change something (get a new password, add a service, etc.), bring your UMass picture ID-or your UCard-to Lederle GRC room A111 Monday-Friday, 9-5.

Questions?
call the HelpDesk at 545-9400

And, of course, the HelpDesk is open in Lederle lowrise A109 to answer questions about using your account, using Windows or Mac computers, using the Web, etc.

Get student discounted rates!
Subscribe to:

The Boston Globe

Fall Term Subscription
9/8/97 to 12/12/97
7 Days MON-SUN...$37.65
6 Days MON-SAT...$22.80
5 Days MON-FRI...$19.50
Sunday ONLY...$14.85

Full Year Subscription
9/8/97 to 5/14/98
7 Days MON-SUN...$80.70
6 Days MON-SAT...$48.30
5 Days MON-FRI...$41.10
Sunday ONLY...$32.40

The New York Times

Fall Term Subscription
9/8/97 to 12/12/97
7 Days MON-SUN...$66.80
6 Days MON-SAT...$30.80
5 Days MON-FRI...$25.60
Sunday ONLY...$36.00

Full Year Subscription
9/8/97 to 5/14/98
7 Days MON-SUN...$139.80
6 Days MON-SAT...$64.80
5 Days MON-FRI...$54.40
Sunday ONLY...$75.00

To get The Boston Globe and The New York Times delivered to your dorm or office:
Please mail payment to:
John Riley
College News Service
Campus Center Hotel, UMASS Amherst
Amherst, MA 01035

Looking for a part-time job...*work delivering papers.
Please call John Riley at 413-584-7804

I like to move it, move it

Jim Ott, a campus security employee, moves his belongings into Northeast Residential Area.

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

TV's SMART system looks to topple Nielsen's viewer ratings stronghold

By David Bauder
Associated Press

NEW YORK — They went almost unnoticed in the quiet of August, but two announcements this month drew television's last great monopoly closer to some real competition.

Fox made a multi-million dollar donation to Statistical Research Inc. — a New Jersey company that is testing an alternative to Nielsen Media Research's method for measuring what the nation's 98 million television households are watching. NBC, CBS and ABC are already bankrolling SRI.

The Discovery Channel, Lifetime, USA and ESPN also became the first cable networks to contribute to SRI's SMART (Systems for Measuring and Reporting Television) project.

They're giving less money than Fox, but their participation may be more important. Until this month, cable has turned a cold shoulder to SMART for fear that it would shortchange their audience in favor of the broadcast networks.

The developments shouldn't be overstated — Nielsen competitors have failed before, and it's a long way from a test project to a full-fledged rival — but it nonetheless means discontent with Nielsen has found a lightning rod.

"These are statements of real support," said Gale Metzgar, SRI's president. "I don't know if I'll get it, but I do know there is a higher probability of getting it today than there was a few weeks ago."

Grumbling about Nielsen among the broadcast networks has grown louder in the past year, not coincidentally while Nielsen has relentlessly documented the dramatic erosion of their audience. The numbers generated by researchers govern billions of dollars in advertising spending and often decide whether shows succeed or fail.

The SMART system, in the works since 1994 and now being tested in 500 homes in Philadelphia, is similar to Nielsen in relying on volunteer families to report their viewing habits. But there are important differences.

For instance, SMART will rely on electronic codes embedded in television shows to measure what people are watching instead of requiring that host families have their television sets rewired, as Nielsen does. SMART also promises a more user-friendly system: children can press a button with a smiley face to note they are watching TV.

SMART believes it will have fewer families dropping out or neglecting to participate than Nielsen, making its research more reliable.

Already, SMART's research shows significantly more children watching TV than Nielsen, particularly those camped in front of a set at a friend's house, Metzgar said.

In a subtle but vital distinction, SMART will measure as viewers anybody who is in a room with a television set on, even if they don't consider themselves actively "watching" TV.

This acknowledges that many people use TV as background noise, "tuning in" mentally when something catches their interest, he said. It also virtually guarantees that SMART's system will claim more television viewers than Nielsen, which is exactly what all the networks want to hear. Nielsen spokesman Jack Loftus said. "What they're doing is they're spiking the ratings," he said. Metzgar, a former Nielsen employee in the 1960s whose company has done extensive research for legal proceedings, fumed that he'd be foolish to put out flawed information.

Although its critics contend Nielsen has shown the arrogant hallmarks of a company with no competition, Loftus said Nielsen's market position makes it an easy target.

Nielsen contends that SMART also stands for SLOW. It's a valid point: the idea has been in development since 1994 and no actual ratings numbers have been made public. "So far, they've been all talk and no action," Loftus said.

But Nielsen hasn't ignored the potential rival. The company admits the prospect of competition has pushed it toward more aggressive development of its own ideas for refining the system. Some in the industry privately believe it's more likely that Nielsen will eventually swallow up SMART than compete with it. Though encouraged by support of around $40 million from networks and advertisers during the testing stage, Metzgar concedes he will need commitments of $100 million in funding to turn SMART from an idea to a reality.

"We've dedicated our lives to this," he said, "but we're not willing to dedicate our life savings."

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Collegian Graphics is Hiring!
Production Supervisors
Night Production Staff
Must be available one night weekly. Quark, Photoshop, or desktop publishing experience helpful but not needed. See Josh in the Graphics dept. in 113 campus center or call 545-3500 for more info, or apply on the concourse all week!

Barts HOMEMADE
DART'S BURGER + Bacon Cheese Soda + Chips = 3.99
Lunch Served Round the Clock
Open 7 days a week
7:30 am - 12pm
103 N. Pleasant St. • Downtown Amherst • 253-9371

Get The Class You've Always Wanted.

If you want to make a good impression this year, there's a class you should register for no matter what your major. It's the class you'll get from Cort Furniture Rental.

- Serving Boston for over a decade
- Flexible rental terms
- Easy monthly payment terms
- Packages available
- 72-hour delivery & setup
- Housewares & Electronics available
- Convenient ordering by phone or fax
- Extensive selection of quality, name-brand furniture
- Previously leased furniture: save 30%–60%

$50 OFF* First Month's Rent or $50 off your $250 Purchase at our Brighton Clearance Center
CORT
Rental Showrooms:
Boston: 98 Boylston Street, (617) 542-8383 • Burlington: 54 Middlesex Turnpike, (617) 221-1350
Rental Showroom and Clearance Center: Brighton: 155 North Beacon Street, (617) 254-5455
*Does not apply to other promotional discounts. Minimum 5-month lease

It looks like the real world.
It feels like the real world.
It pays like the real world.
It's an internship.
Unreal.
Call for more information on this unbelievable opportunity.
Kate Kane
The Steffen Agency
1351 Main Street
Springfield, MA 01103
413/748-6000
For sales career opportunities 1-800-CALL-NML
Northwestern Mutual Life®
The Quiet Company®
http://www.NorthwesternMutual.com
©1997 The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company • Milwaukee 7030-23

IRON HORSE
Music Hall
Center St. Northampton
ALL AGES ALL THE TIME
friday, september 5, 10 pm
Jazz Mandolin Project
Rooby jazz grooves, $8 adv.
saturday, september 6 7 pm $10 adv.
Jill Sobule
ALTERNAPOP ANTHEMS
saturday, september 6, 10 pm
Electric Blue & the Kozmik Truth bluesified groove rock, $5 adv.
sunday, september 7, 8:30 pm
Guster
PLUS THANKS TO GRAVITY
acoustic rock & surf pop, $8 adv.
thursday, september 11, 7 pm
Huffamoose
AND THE MAGGIES
TWO BANDS FOR TWO BUCKS
thursay, september 11, 10 pm
Belizbeha
plus the Kristin Mueller Trio, $6 adv.
friday, september 12, 7 pm
GLENN TILBROOK
SQUEEZE VETERAN SOLO SHOW, $16 adv.
friday, september 12, 10 pm
Moonboot Lover
Funky jam $5 adv.
saturday, september 13, 7 pm
Mose Allison
jazz piano great $13 adv.
SEPTEMBER 15: MICHAEL ROSE PLUS DUB STATION
TICKETS: For the Record, at the Northampton Box Office or call 586-8686
24-HOUR CONCERT INFO: 413 584-0610

Wait before you open

Mike Clift of Coca–Cola, who has 13 years of experience, urges students to wait before opening 20 oz. sodas.

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

ATTENTION STUDENT ARTISTS:

THE COLLEGIAN IS CURRENTLY ACCEPTING COMIC STRIP SUBMISSIONS FROM UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS. SPACE IS LIMITED ON THE COMICS PAGE, AND THE SEMESTER PRINT SCHEDULE WILL BE SET EARLY, SO BRING YOUR SAMPLES DOWN TO 113 CAMPUS CENTER AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

FOR A COMPLETE LIST OF COMICS GUIDELINES OR TO DISCUSS YOUR WORK, ASK TO SPEAK WITH LAURA STOCK, MANAGING EDITOR.

Adult newspaper seized from public racks in Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) — Law enforcement officers in black ski masks seized hundreds of copies of an adult newspaper in raids stemming from a new law that restricts the sale of sexually explicit publications from public racks.

The publisher of The Beat said that seizing copies of his newspaper from sidewalk vending machines was a violation of his constitutional freedom of expression, a position backed by at least one First Amendment expert.

"I'll just put it on the streets for free. What are they going to do — seize the sidewalks?" said publisher Jerry Evenson. Bill FitzGerald, a spokesman for the Maricopa County Attorney's Office, disagreed.

"This is not a First Amendment issue," FitzGerald said. "It has to do with the distribution of pornography and its availability to minors."

The raids Wednesday of 15 sites in Phoenix and the surrounding suburbs stem from a law that took effect July 21 making it a felony to sell or display sexually oriented material that is harmful to minors except via access-card or token-activated machines or in businesses that cater to adults.

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

WELCOME

THE OFFICE OF GREEK AFFAIRS,
THE UMass INTERFRATENITY COUNCIL,
PANHELLENIC COUNCIL,
UMass PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL,
AND ITS MEMBER
FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES
WELCOME NEW AND RETURNING STUDENTS
TO THE UNIVERSITY
FRATERNITY IS FRIENDSHIP
"Hold a true friend with both your hands."
-Nigerian Proverb

HEY! NEED A JOB?
WHY NOT BE A BARTENDER!

- Only professional school in Western Mass
- Hands-on training in a real bar/club setting
- National certification in alcohol awareness - FREE!
- Lifetime refresher courses • Photo ID Card • Resume
- Special UMASS Student discount
- Many excellent positions available
- Over 80 affiliate schools across the USA
- Conveniently located in West Springfield, MA

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL
(413) 747-9888

come work for the collegian. it'll be fun!
apply for various positions in the campus center. stop in 113 campus center.

The Right Place to Be!
3 Barbers Everyday
Unisex Hair Styling
Amherst Barbers
Tel. 253-1722
40 Main Street, Amherst, MA
(Next to Newbury Comics)
Jim
Guys & Gals
Layer Cuts
Flat Tops
Fades
Clipper Cuts
Razor Cuts
Kids Cuts
Appointment Not Neccessary
Terri
Gabe
$8 & up
Hours: Mon- Wed & Fri, 8-5:15pm • Thurs 8-7pm • Sat 8-4:45pm

Campaign UMass
ANNUAL FUND
IS HIRING
•$5.50/HOUR + FANTASTIC BONUSES
•FLEXIBLE EVENING HOURS
•GAIN COMPUTER EXPERIENCE & MARKETABLE COMMUNICATION SKILLS
•CONVENIENT ON CAMPUS LOCATION
JOIN A WINNING TEAM OF STUDENTS MAKING A DIFFERENCE ON CAMPUS!
COME TO THE BASEMENT OF MEMORIAL HALL & APPLY TODAY!
545-350

A·J·Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer and Stationer
You don't have to go far for school supplies!
College Clothing • Pens • Paper
Printer Ribbons • Cartridges
Resumé Paper • Calculators
Greeting Cards
Magazines • Notebooks
"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst."
45 S. Pleasant St. • 253-2840 • Mon.-Sat. 5 am to 9 pm, Sun. 5 am to 5 pm

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

DEPARTMENT OF GERMANIC LANGUAGES & LITERATURES
OPEN CLASSES
510 Herter Hall 545-2350
• All German Language Courses, Elementary To Advanced
• All German Literature Courses Taught In German
• The Following General-Interest Courses (Taught In English):

• German 297A	Crusades and The Image of Islam MWF 12:20
• German 304	From Berlin To Hollywood (AT) TTH 1:00-2:15 W 6-9 PM, Screening
• German 365	Scandinavian Mythology (AL) MWF 1:25
• And: Dutch 110	Elementary Dutch TTH 11:15-12:30

WOW!
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
585-0241
All American Food
Great Burgers Hot Dogs
Shakes Clams Chicken
Philly Cheese Steaks
26 Flavors of Soft Serve http://www.javanet.com/~mrburger/
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA

PEOPLE WILL ACTUALLY THINK YOU GET PAID
FOR YOUR INTERNSHIP.

Styles may vary by store.

T.J.maxx®

This fall's best looking designer clothes at prices even a lowly college student can afford.

SEE WHAT'S NEW THIS WEEK™

Store nearest campus: In Hadley at Campus Plaza at Rt. 116 and Rt. 9,
Open Mon.-Sat. 9:30 am-9:30 pm, Sun. 10 am-6 pm.

ARTS & LIVING

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian — Back To School Issue, 1997

UMass 101

Some senior advice to incoming freshmen

Marty Keane

So what's it like to be a freshman? Well, a few thousand of you are about to find out the hard way, by experiencing the phenomenon first–hand. Some will be brilliant successes, and others will be like my freshman roommate — politely asked to leave after a year. No matter the result, life will be quite different. All of you, for better or worse, will change.

I didn't notice this much initially, but looking back at who I was as a person three years ago and comparing that to my present self, no one (including my parents) would argue that I have changed significantly over the course of my time spent here at the University of Massachusetts.

Being from the Midwest, Chicago to be exact, "going away to school" meant starting completely over for me. I was — I think for the better — forced to learn how to live on my own. My first semester at UMass now seems like a lifetime ago, but my memories remain fresh. In recalling some observations I've made, some things I learned in my first semester, as well as what I would have done differently, I came up with the following list of suggestions that might help you to make the transition to college life a bit smoother:

• Learn how to motivate yourself; no one else is going to do it for you. When ever you're feeling lazy, consider how much your parents paid for you to go here. That's always done the trick for me.

• Start off with an open mind, because you're going to spend a lot of time with people who come from different backgrounds than you, who have totally different experiences.

• Keeping busy and active are the best ways to combat homesickness. Going home every weekend and crying to mommy, are not.

• Contrary to popular belief, you don't get F's, you earn them.

• The much–hyped "maze" over by McGuirk Stadium really isn't anything more than a big, annoying fence. Try and remember that when someone asks you to walk over there from Central Residence Area at 3 a.m.

• Note to the gentlemen: It's no longer considered "cool" to take out the stitching of a certain letter on that UMass hat. In fact, it makes you look like an... well, no need to explain further. "Pat, I'd like to buy a vowel."

• On a related note: Guys, don't be afraid to vary that wardrobe of flannel shirts, ripped jeans and white hats. Just a suggestion.

• Dropping by to shoot the breeze with your professors can go a long way come December.

• My final piece of advice, and most important, consist of only two words: BE YOURSELF. I can remember so many of the people I knew as a freshman acted like chameleons, desperately trying to fit in everywhere. Listen to your gut instincts, and learn to trust them.

Best of luck to all of you, and remember, please bus your tray.

Marty Keane is a Collegian staff member.

UMass A TO Z

A light–hearted guide to campus life

Chris Stamm & Luke Meredith

A — Antonio's. You might as well swap your UMass I.D. for a precious "pizza card." After you realize Pastabilities does not offer nearly as many "abilities" they told you at orientation, you'll soon see why Antonio's is an Amherst institution.

B — Basketball. Give 'em time kids. While this year's crew may not be the rim shakers of the '95–'96 Final Four squad, Tyrone Weeks and Charlton Clarke have a shot at leading the Minutemen into another NCAA berth. Oh, and they probably won't sell out to agents, soil the school's name, walk away or get arrested.

C — Collegian. Everyday you're in class, so are we. Remember, during your 8 a.m. lecture, the crossword is on the inside back page.

D — Dining Commons: Southern Fried Steak is neither Southern nor Steak. Discuss.

E — E–mail, the great alternative to AT&T's ACUS plan. It's cheap, it's sitting on your desk, and it's a great way to put off starting that term paper that's due tomorrow.

F — Fraternities. Forget about the image of refined young gentlemen reading in dimly lit, wood–paneled studies. Rumor has it a summa cum laude degree

Turn to GUIDE, page A9

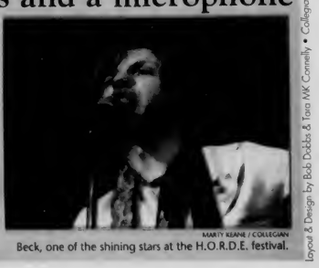
Summer concerts feature a lot more than two turntables and a microphone

MARTY KEANE / COLLEGIAN

U2 bassist Adam Clayt at this summer's PopMart tour.

U2 — POPMART TOUR
Soldier Field
June 27



Marty Keane

CHICAGO, Ill. — The PopMart Tour — U2's first American trek in four years— looked, on paper at least, to be the epitome of tackiness and over–the–top kitsch. With a 40–foot lemon mirror ball, 100–foot swizzle stick with olive, and the world's largest LED video screen ever assembled to contend with, Bono and his band of Irish blokes would need to summon all the charisma and personality they had in order to avoid becoming anonymous stage puppets.

Amazingly, U2 emerged from the shadow of this gratuitous splendor to somehow give a performance in which the music itself managed to eclipse the stage set's overwhelming garishness and glitz. Visually on a par with Pink Floyd and KISS, U2's show took the "rock as theater" theme one step further, and succeeded.

Whereas the two above–mentioned acts have always preferred to let blimps and fireworks, respectively, mask their musical mediocrity, U2 showed PopMart shoppers why they have become so huge in the first place: by carrying the songs themselves. From the Edge's glorious guitar squalls during "Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me, Kill Me," to Adam Clayton's towering bass lines in "Mysterious Ways," U2 consistently showcased

Turn to CONCERTS, page A5

MARTY KEANE / COLLEGIAN

Beck, one of the shining stars at the H.O.R.D.E. festival.

Layout & Design by Bob Dubbs & Traci Mc Connelly • Collegian Art by Jon Alpert

Holy blockbuster bomb, Batman! Summer films offer a mixed bag

Every summer, Hollywood continuously creates bigger and louder explosions, more and more dazzling effects, and increasing numbers of bullet infested dead bodies falling from airplanes thousands of feet above. In order to allow enough time for all of these necessary situations to occur, the formula of the summer blockbuster has been forced to alter itself immensely. In fact, searching for substance amidst the senseless blood and guts is a bit more complicated than finding Waldo, but all hope was not lost. Yes, it was yet another typical summer in movie houses across the country, except for a few notable surprises.

But, what the summer of 1997 will forever mean to money-hungry movie executives, is that this was the summer that killed the sequel. With disappointing ticket sales compared to past years, we may finally say goodbye to such former franchise kings as Jurassic Park, Speed and Batman. This summer also made Julia Roberts a superstar all over again and turned Nicholas Cage from a serious and respectable actor into a grunting, missile-launching action hero.

Like anyone else stuck within the confines of the Pioneer Valley this past summer I can also attest to the fact that there wasn't a whole lot going on. No better way to beat that dreadful New England humidity than by spending a day at the movies. So, in a nutshell, here are some of this summer's best and worst, though most of them seemed to tread smoothly somewhere in between.

Air Force One

Thank goodness for Gary Oldman, the world's most versatile actor. After all, he was the one who truly saved the day in Wolfgang Peterson's (Das Boot, Enemy Mine) latest action thriller. With Oldman's absence, Air Force One would have crossed the border from harmless entertainment into a new level of in-your-face propaganda. Although Oldman was forced to play the role of the psychotic terrorist who kidnaps the president on board the now-infamous Air Force One (a bit over-the-top), he still secured somewhat of a political balance weakening the film's preachiness.

Harrison Ford as the butt kickin' President Marshall, was played rather nicely too, and Ford is definitely the only actor in the business who could have been convincing in the role building anxiety with every clever facial expression.

Air Force One is exactly what we have come to expect from the "summer movie phenomenon." It's intelligent enough to keep you guessing about what's going to happen next, but also dumb enough to be amazingly predictable at the same time. B

Men in Black

Definitely the most commercialized move of the summer, so much in fact, that I kept feeling like they were blatantly trying to sell something. The best thing about Barry Sonnenfeld's (Adam's Family Values, Get Shorty) super blockbuster hit was that from start to finish it was sheer enjoyment. The worst thing about it was that it seemed the theater must have lost a few reels. The story spent the first hour and a half setting up the character development and then reserved the final 15 minutes for the plot. MIB also contained this summer's slickest special effects and the most interesting crime fighting duo ever to be seen in a buddy movie in quite some time. Will Smith and Tommy Lee Jones played off each other with excellent comic precision.

As top secret special agents, Smith and Jones really don't do a whole lot except submerge themselves within the clever effects and attempt to look cool doing it. Unfortunately, Vincent D'Onfrio hit a career low as a Beetlejuice look alike alien who is more agitating than entertaining, especially as his human skin begins to deteriorate.

MIB is really just an over priced cartoon that would serve as the ideal mindless study break. If nothing else, one cannot help but appreciate the amazing sets and effects as well as the energetic, suavespunk of Will Smith, the new king of the sci-fi genre. Not to mention, MIB does pay particular close attention to covering its tracks, for example, the lengths the agents will go through to cover their secrets and the reasoning behind choosing not to disclose information, all makes believable sense. Well, sort of. B.

Batman and Robin

By far the most disappointing of the series, not to mention the first not to have Tim Burton listed anywhere in the credits. Batman and Robin is one of the movies that trav-

Turn to BLOCKBUSTER, page A7

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

You may recogize these faces from this summer's much-hyped Men In Black.

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL & PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION

MUSIC ACTING DANCE

REGISTRATION SEPTEMBER 2-12

CALL: PAD (413) 545-0519
73 BARTLETT HALL/UMASS

Healthy Choice! Healthy Choice! Healthy Choice!

ICHIBAN いちばん

Authentic Japanese Restaurant

1 Roundhouse Plaza, Northampton, MA
(413)585-1185
(Behind city Hall, Off Main St.)

What is the Difference?

#1 Sushi
Daily Fresh fish over sushi rice.
Stay healthy & live longer!
"This one is what everyone falls in love with."

#2 Tatami Room
Cozy and private, parties available up to 25 people

#3 Daily Special
Daily special Price!!!

TOTAL FITNESS Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

Preston offers summertime sizzler, Steel's new novel rusts out

JACKIE BY JOSIE
Caroline Preston
Scribner's

Caroline Preston debuts with a fresh and quirky novel about life. For a first novel, Preston establishes herself nicely with an entertaining story about a wife and mother who finds herself in the midst of a crisis.

Josie Trask is a decidedly unglamorous grad student who has lurched to a stop on her thesis about a little-known 19th Century poet. She's married to Peter, the glamour boy of the American Civilization Department.

Josie's life consists of caring for her three-year-old son, Henry, and musing about Peter's relationship with another grad student, Monica.

As Peter's career takes off and he heads to California to start a new job, Josie stays behind with Henry to do some research for a new book on Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. During the time apart from Peter, Josie wonders if her marriage is on the rocks. At the same time, she grows suspicious of her trusting mother's boyfriend, an ex-con. Add Josie's neurotic sister, Leslie, to the combination (along with colorful commentary supplied by Jacqueline Kennedy) and the recipe for a thoroughly entertaining novel is born. Preston's writing is light and witty. There are no extra details here. Preston sets out only what is needed to make the story complete.

Using facts about Jackie, Preston manages to draw parallels between Josie and the former first lady.

In Jackie by Rosie, Preston creates a light-hearted comedy of manners. A

THE FIRST $20 MILLION IS ALWAYS THE HARDEST
Po Bronson
Random House

Po Bronson (Bombadiers) sets his second novel in the Silicon Valley. There, equipped with plenty of technobabble, he creates a cutthroat novel with little or no character development or plot. It's a tale even the most computer- savvy wizard would find difficult to digest.

Bronson uses the metaphor of an infinite loop to tell the story of Andy Caspar. Caspar is brilliant young engineer, who dreams of working on a new chip — the 686, however, his ambition is thwarted by a group of older and more powerful men.

First is Lloyd Acheson, a terribly complex and boring character. Acheson's firm, Omega Logic, is counting on the 686 to keep its stock prices up. Meanwhile, at the lab responsible for designing the new chip, employee Hank Menzinger gets the lab in financial trouble and needs Omega to bail him out.

Finally, Francis Benoit has a grudge of his own. He claims his previous chip for Omega, the Falcon 486, was dumbed down by the company and he vows that he will never let Omega get the better of him again.

Benoit sticks Caspar on a project that's bound to raise the ire of everyone involved — designing a computer that will sell for a mere $300.

It's here where the story gets shaky. The new project, dubbed the VWPC (after the Volkswagen Bug) has tempers flaring. Instead of getting ahead with every success, Caspar finds himself betrayed by the men at the top.

The First $20 Million is the Hardest has the potential to be a very good book. Its weakness lies in its complexity. The plot is too intricate, the dialogue too weird. Bronson spends too much time delving into the twists and turns of the computer industry and peppering the book with lots of technical detail.

There's an arrogance in Bronson's style of writing. In some cases the arrogance would be hard to overlook, but in this particular book, it works well. The characters, while thinly sketched, are good at what they do and they know it. In that sense, Bronson projects arrogance not only into the characters, but also into his overall tone.

For those interested in the computer world and the ins and outs of the business, this book is fairly competent. But if you're searching for a relaxing book, this is not it. Bronson makes you work too hard to understand what's going on. B

POWER OF A WOMAN
Barbara Taylor Bradford
Harper Collins

Barbara Taylor Bradford (The Women In His Life) is good at ordinary stories. Stories about ordinary people in extraordinary situations, that is. Her latest best-seller Power of a Woman, is such a novel.

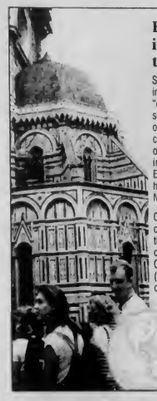
Stephanie Iardine has a good life. She runs the American branch of Iardine's, the crown Jewelers of London. Her life is fairly peaceful, scarred only by the occasional run-in with her pompous son, Nigel.

It is only when tragedy strikes Nigel's wife and Stephanie's daughter, Chloe, that she forces herself to confront the secrets of the past.

Bradford's latest offering is more ordinary than exciting. However, it is well-written, and rich with scenery and character.



The rich detail attracts attention but the slow pace of the novel and the lack of coherent plot weakens the book. In addition, Bradford leaves many questions unanswered. Power of a Woman offers little excitement, yet more substance than most summer-time reads. B

THE RANCH
Danielle Steel
Delacorte Press

The world of Danielle Steel (Silent Honor) strays even more into the realm of every woman's fantasies in her 39th novel, The Ranch.

Steel's newest land of make-believe features Mary Stuart Walker, the perfect wife and mother. Unfortunately, in the past year, Mary Stuart's life has gone terribly wrong and her marriage is starting to crumble. Mary Stuart's best friend, Tanya Thomas, is the you-go girl of the novel. A famous singer and actress, Tanya's marriage is also falling apart. The trio is completed by Dr. Zoe

Turn to NOVEL, page A8

Fairfield University invites you to explore the world!

Study the rich legacy of Britain and live in a 16th century abbey near Oxford's "dreaming spires." Spend a summer, a semester or a year studying in the center of the historic "cradle of Renaissance civilization" in Florence, Italy where we offer a dazzling variety of courses. Or immerse yourself in Russian and European art, music, dance, literature, history and politics during the White Nights of Summer in St. Petersburg.

Our programs offer the opportunity to combine a solid academic program with the chance to travel and experience new cultures. For more information call Cris Bowers, Tour Assistant, at (203) 254-4220 or e-mail her at cbbowers@fair1.fairfield.edu.

FAIRFIELD UNIVERSITY
Dolan House
Fairfield, CT
06430-5955

www/fairfield.edu/sce/studyabroad/studyabroad.htm

• BIRTHDAY • FRIENDSHIP • HUMOROUS • RELIGIOUS • GETWELL • ANNIVERSARY • WEDDING • CONGRADULATIONS • SYMPATHY • GRADUATION • CHRISTMAS • VALENTINE • MOTHER'S DAY • FATHER'S DAY • THANKSGIVING • HALLOWEEN • ROSH HASHANAH • HANUKKAH • NEW YEAR

FREE 2D POSTER WITH THIS AD. WHILE SUPPLIES LAST

All Greeting Cards 50% Off...Always!!!

"Come see our incredible selection of the finest quality cards you'll find anywhere."

PEG & RAY'S 1/2 PRICE CARD SHOP

Campus Plaza • Route 9 • Hadley • 253.7588
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)

HEALTHY SKIN
Begins with a deep pore cleansing facial.
Also lash and brow tinting, brow shaping, leg waxing, make-up, therapeutic massage.
Skincare for Men & Women
34 Main St., Suite 1, Amherst, MA 253-9879 AESTHETICS

Stamell Strings
-Violin makers
-Dealers
-Appraisers
-Restorers
Full selection of strings, accessories, books, and music stands
413.256.0936 - 18 Kellogg Ave. - Amherst cousins MARKET

WHOLE & NATURAL FOODS • GROCERY
• DELI
• DAIRY
• PRODUCE
• BEER & WINE
OPEN: 9 AM-11:00 PM
11 E. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 549-3500

TOTAL FITNESS Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

LUNCH BUFFET $4.49
ALL YOU CAN EAT!
pizza, pasta, salad, & breadsticks
monday-friday 11:30am-1:30pm

Mondays Only ! 2 Medium Pizzas with 1 Topping $10
4PM to close, Mondays only
Please mention offer when ordering. One coupon per party per visit at participating Pizza Hut® locations. Not valid in combination with any other special offer coupon. © The Horizon Collective, Inc

Wednesdays Only ! Large Pizza for a Medium Charge!
4PM to close, Wednesdays only
Please mention offer when ordering. One coupon per party per visit at participating Pizza Hut® locations. Not valid in combination with any other special offer coupon. © The Horizon Collective, Inc

Dinner Time ! Medium Cheese Pizza Carryout Only $6.99
add 12 wings for $4 !
Offer expires September 31, 1997. Please mention coupon when ordering. One coupon per party per visit at participating Pizza Hut® locations. Not valid in combination with any other special offer coupon. © The Horizon Collective, Inc

Pizza Hut
253-9787
HOURS:
MON-SAT
11AM-11PM
SUN 11AM-10PM
424 RUSSELL ST.
(ROUTE 9)
DINE-IN &CARRY-OUT
CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED

Pearl Street NIGHTCLUB
10 pearl street
northampton, ma
584-7111

tickets
Ticks Unlimited (Umass campus), For The Record (Amherst 256-6134), Northampton Box Office (586-8686), and All Strawberries Locations available at

LIVE SHOWS
• Seven Mary Three, 9/3, 18+
• Integrity/Hatebreed, 9/4, All Ages
• The Iguanas, 9/5, 21+
• John Cafferty & The Beaver Brown Band 9/6, 21+
• They Might Be Giants, 9/7, All Ages
• 10,000 Maniacs, 9/9, 18+
• MOE, 9/10, 18+
• Obituary, 9/11, All Ages
• Max Creek, 9/13, 18+
• Burning Spear, 9/16, 18+
• Battle of the Funk, 9/19, 18+
• Fools Progress, 9/25, 18+
• Lobsterz From Marz, 9/26, 18+
• Sister Hazel, 10/10, 18+

DANCE CLUB
EVERY THURSDAY
HIGH ENERGY DANCE PARTY
9 - 2 AM
A Full House Every Week. Sponsored By Today's 99.3 18+
EVERY FRIDAY
Selectroution the game of high-tech flirtation
9 - 2 AM
Top 40 Dance Hits. Every Friday.
21+

Keep An Eye Out For All of Your Favorite SKA, PUNK AND HARDCORE BANDS At The All Ages Shows Brought To You By COLORFEST PRODUCTIONS

CHECK-OUT-OUR-STRIP-AD-EVERY-THURSDAY-OR-VISIT-US-AT-http:virtual-valley-com/pearlstreet

311's Transistor fizzles; Puff Daddy & the Family full of hot air

TRANSISTOR
311
Capricorn

It was only a matter of time before 311's punk/rap/reggae fusion ran its course, and Transistor (Capricorn) is the end of that road. The pop savvy that drove tunes like "Don't Stay Home," and "Down" has been watered down to the point of near-total dilution. A true exercise in excess, there are a whopping 21 songs here, at least 16 of which are filler. Didn't anyone tell these Omaha stoners that just because a CD holds 75 minutes of music, you don't have to use it all? Only "What was I Thinking?" reeks of the kind of raw, in your face sonic attack that merits a second listen.

The vast majority of Transistor merely recycles the dregs of the band's previous work, all too often with no particular place to go and nothing to say. When they dare stray from their trademark blend of hard rock crunch and Bob Marley- inspired rastafarianisms, the results are equally embarrassing. On "Light Year," 311 wholeheartedly embrace dub, but lack the skill to create its hallmark, mesmerizing tripiness. It comes off as a shallow, self-indulgent ploy to stay hip. Further proof that anyone who knows three chords and has a trendy sound can make a buck. Avoid, obviously. F

NO WAY OUT
Puff Daddy & The Family

COURTESY COLIN HAWKINS

Empirion makes their U.S. debut with Advanced Technology.

Arista

Sean "Puffy" Combs' production credits include albums by Mary J. Blige, Jodeci and the Notorious B.I.G. His Bad Boy label is the anchor of the East Coast rap scene which has helped to define the sound of young black America in recent years. However, as a rapper, Combs is painfully ordinary. His debut album, No Way Out (Arista), is sprinkled with cameos from more skilled MCs, including Biggie, Lil'Kim, Foxy Brown and Busta Rhymes. He mourns Biggie's recent murder, and while the friendship they had was obviously heartfelt, Combs middles too often in overblown melodrama with softly spoken passages that effectively render his otherwise genuine soul-searching angst meaningless. The sole exception is "Pain," in which Combs carves striking images into a sparse, haunted soundscape.

Elsewhere, his creativity runs drier than the Sahara. In fact, most of No Way Out reeks of alarming lack of originality. "Is This the End" cops the rapid-fire cadences of Midwestern hip-hoppers such as Cleveland's Bone Thugs-N- Harmony and Chicago's Crucial Conflict. "I'll Be Missing You" and "Can't Hold Me Down," both already million- selling singles, are simply retooled versions of Police and Grand Master Flash songs, and Combs already borrows tunes from David Bowie and Diana Ross. Quite simply, Puff Daddy is far too talented to put out an album chock-full of yawn-inducing drivel. Coming from one of the rap community's most gifted and innovative behind-the-scenes talents, No Way Out is a major disappointment. D+

STRAIGHT ON TILL MORNING
Blues Traveler
A&M

On Blues Traveler's studio follow-up to 1994's smash Four, the pop sensibility and compact songwriting that spawned several radio-friendly ditties has been replaced by an overabundance of rambling, pointless tunes that redefine what it means to be long-winded. Straight On Till Morning (A&M), while a worthy display of their considerable musical chops, falls into the same trap that so many other jam bands fall into — how to replicate the improvisation and spontaneity of their live shows in a recording studio. Phish hasn't done it yet, the Grateful Dead never did and Blues Traveler has failed again on this mediocre

Turn to TRAX, page A9

1973-1998
CELEBRATING
25
UMASS
DEPARTMENT OF THEATER
TWENTY-FIVE YEARS
One-Acts: October 8 - 11
The Tempest: October 30 - November 8
Assassins: December 3 - 13 Quinceanera: February 4 - 7
Marisol: February 26 - March 7
Tales of the Lost Formicans: April 2 - 11
Bo Far (World Premier): April 30 - May 9

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Kelser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

★ ARMY BARRACKS, INC. ★
Genuine U.S. Surplus Military Clothing & Equipment
Recycle the Military!
257 Main Street, Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 585-9330 • www.army barracks.com
Student Advantage Member

INTERESTED IN FILM STUDIES?
Sign up now for the FILM STUDIES CERTIFICATE in the Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies. You get:
- a certificate for 18 credits of coursework in four years
- individual advising
- the only on-campus resource for graduate programs and schools in film and video
- exciting information on internships and jobs
- free subscription to the newsletter In Focus, with film course listings
- advance notice of upcoming film screenings and lectures
- a community of students interested in film and video
Apply in 101 South College during office hours or call 545-3659.
CHECK OUT OUR NEW WEBSITE!
http://www.umass.edu/film including listings of film courses, internships and competitions, grants and festivals, and links to other film sites

■ concerts

continued from page A1

an uncanny array of musicianship, never wavering into self-seriousness: a campy Edge-led karaoke version of Neil Diamond's "Sweet Caroline" saw to that. PopMart was a graphic illustration of what's possible when sight and sound are thoughtfully integrated.

With DJ Howie B pumping the M's "Pop Muzik" through the stadium, the band made their entrance through the aisles of Soldier Field. One by one, the band members climbed onto a catwalk extending out several rows into the sold-out crowd of 450,000, with Bono — ever the showman — dressed in a shiny, hooded prizefighter's robe shadow boxing his way toward the stage. Once he arrived under the giant yellow arch at center stage, the mood was clear from the outset.

Openly confiding with "Mofo," it was evident that U2 were not about to embark on a trip down memory lane. Playing nine cuts off Pop was a dangerous move, especially considering the cavernous environment. Though the 1980's anthems "Pride (In the Name of Love)," "With or Without You" and "Where the Streets Have No Name" drew the biggest cheers, nostalgia took a backseat to the present.

Not content to just play the hits, U2 demanded more from their audience and steadfastly refused to pander to those yearning simply for old favorites. While much of this newer material went into the starry sky and over the crowd's head — an ill-advised acoustic duet of "Staring at the Sun" drifted aimlessly — several tunes off Pop connected well with the crowd, most notably the transcendent "Please" and the loungy "Discotheque."

While many undoubtedly felt disappointed to learn of U2's bold new direction, it's their loss. In a time where bands are constantly re-uniting and re-forming for no reason other than money, it is refreshing to know that U2's forward-looking journey as a band is far from over.

LOLLAPALOOZA
Alpine Valley Music Theatre
July 27

EAST TROY, Wis. — Things were off to a shaky start, and the first band wasn't even scheduled to hit the stage for two hours. Such was the case at this year's Lollapalooza festival, which lost one of its main attractions, Korn, due to the sudden illness of guitarist J. "Munky" Shaffer.

But even without Korn, or any other big draw, Lollapalooza '97 plowed on and its diverse main-stage lineup, the best since 1995, signalled a return to the festival's original vision, something that was desperately lacking on last summer's testosterone-heavy bill, headlined by Metallica and Soundgarden.

Lollapalooza '97, although a success in fulfilling founder Perry Farrell's goal of gathering fringe acts from different corners of the rock and rap spectrum, failed to do much business at the box office. Only 10,000 of Alpine Valley's 43,000 seats were sold, a fact perhaps due to increased competition from other festivals such as Smokin' Grooves, H.O.R.D.E. and the women-only Lilith Fair. However, what Lollapalooza lacked in star power and ticket sales, it made up with its eclectic blend of genre-hopping acts that brought together a diversity of musical styles that was unmatched by any other festival bill this summer.

Julian & Damien Marley and the Uprising Band opened the festivities with a brief set of Caribbean-tinged songs that faithfully replicated the sound and feel-good nature perfected by their more famous father. A high-energy version of the classic "Exodus" got the early arrivers on their feet with propulsive rhythms that verged on ska.

Looking like they had just stolen U2's PopMart wardrobe, the English septet James played a delightful mix of wistful love songs and soaring pop songs, including their lone U.S. hit, the pseudo-sexual anthem, "Laid." As he ran up and down the concourse working and interacting with the crowd as only Monty "Let's Make a Deal" Hall could, lead singer Tim Booth perfectly exemplified the trait James has that so many of their English breathren lack, earnestness without pretentiousness.

The only programming disappointment was over the smaller second stage, which in the past years has provided spectators with some of Lollapalooza's most memorable performances. Heavy on young acts such as Failure and Molly MaGuire, these bands delivered bland guitar rock and offered nothing revaltory. The Pugs were certainly different, but any originality they had was quickly overcome by the fact that they were just plain annoying. The Lost Boyz, riding high on the success of their new album Love, Peace and Nappiness, succeeded in communicating the party-like atmosphere that dominates both their albums through an infectious mix of audience participation and good old- fashioned energy.

On the main-stage, fellow rapper Snoop Doggy Dogg also won over the masses with his insinuating drawl and sing-a- long odes to the thug life. Most interesting was his pointed shout-out to Tupac Shakur and Notorious B.I.G. which prefaced a heartfelt plea for the end of the East/West coast rivalry for hip-hop supremacy.

Show closers Devo, once the torchbearers of new-wave synth-pop, pranced onstage with trademark flowerpot hats and biohazard outfits and displayed the quirky charms that made songs like "Whip It" and "Gates of Steel" geek classics. Tool's moody, brooding hard rock was punctuated by dazzling mood-lit staging and lighting which only made lead singer Maynard James Keenan's androgynous jester costume look all the more haunting. Most haunting of all however was the performance of Tricky, a pioneer in the burgeoning trip-hop scene.

The former member of the seminal electronic outfit Massive Attack who has gone on to a successful career as a solo artist, producer, remixer and most recently actor, chose the road less travelled in his show-stopping set. Not as accessible as James or Marley's, not as effusive as Snoop or Tool, Tricky was a considerable departure from the work- the-crowd persona of fellow main-stage acts. He nonetheless delivered a breath-taking performance wrought with raw, naked emotion that was perfectly personified in his body, hands desperately clutching the microphone for dear life as the rest of his gaunt frame shook uncontrollably.

Used to playing in small clubs with only minimal lighting, his naturally unnerving stage presence played out on an even grander scale in broad daylight which made for a set that was as challenging as it was rewarding. His performance alone illustrated why Lollapalooza still matters.

H.O.R.D.E. FESTIVAL
Alpine Valley Music Theatre
Aug. 2

EAST TROY, Wisc. — Blues Traveller frontman John Popper's creation, the H.O.R.D.E. (Horizons Of Rock Developing Everywhere) festival was originally dominated by hard-touring bands that relied on improvisation and instrumental virtuosity to woo audiences. Now in its sixth year, H.O.R.D.E. has broadened its horizons and the festival's strongest lineup ever — featuring the legendary Neil Young & Crazy Horse and emerging superstar Beck — provided a much-appreciated respite from the festival's one- dimensional past.

Typical of this new direction, the second stage afforded two bands that each operate outside the guitar/bass/drum realm a chance to take their message to the people. Boston's Morphine delivered a typically swaggering, finger-snapping set played on drums, sax and two-string slide bass that headlined the smaller second stage, set up in the venue's parking lot. Also performing on the second stage were the Ben Folds Five, a North Carolina–based trio. They turned in an adventurous set, highlighted by Folds' Little Richard–like showmanship on his piano as he belted out his heartfelt sentiments over a two-person string section.

Over the main-stage, a slew of up-and-coming bands pounded out one workmanlike performance after another. Toad The Wet Sprocket, Kula Shaker and Primus each invigorated a willing audience through the perfect mix of sincerity and solid musical chops. However, compared with the two names at the top of the bill, they were merely mildly engaging fodder for what was to come.

Beck, whose set ran the gamut from the Dylanisms of "One Foot in the Grave" to the hip-hop sloganeering of the flippant "Ya Gotta Regulate," somehow managed to steer clear of the self-parody and camp as his patchwork revue, radiated feel-good energy. His captivating musical skills seem to know no boundaries, which only affirms his panoramic vision of music and what it can become. Aided by an accomplished a varied backing band of musicians, including a DJ and horn section, Beck was able to draw from a nearly bottomless supply of innovation that kept things vibrant and spontaneous. By combining bits and pieces of songs and recreating them into something totally fresh, Beck has placed himself a the head of the class as far as new talent is concerned. On a night when Beck's star shone brightly, the North star had yet to be seen in the night sky.

Bunched together on a dimly lit stage, Neil Young and the three scruffy-looking members of his crack backing band Crazy Horse huddled together, mapping out their strategy before playing a single chord. Then, with one fell swoop, they proceeded to destroy every misnomer about middle- aged mens' ability to "rock" and thrashed through a set that ebbed and flowed magnificently while spanning three decades of making music together. Most striking was the simple, straightforward nature of this glorious noise, such as "Rockin' In the Free World," and "Tonight's the Night."

Opening with "Hey Hey, My My," a celabratory ode to Johnny Rotten and his once–mighty Sex Pistols, Young and the Horse wasted no time in showing why their music still matters. Throughout the 90-minute set, Young waged an epic battle with his guitar as he endlessly convulsed in spastic fits while trying to wrestle out the riffs like a shamen commanding his people. Crazy Horse guitarist Poncho Sampedro and bassist Billy Talbot took their cues from Young as they laid powerful yet restrained sonic textures to his fierce playing. It all worked magnificently to no end as Young and the Horse exposed the H.O.R.D.E. masses to a completely different style, and altogether more powerful style of jamming.

Kurt Cobain borrowed Young's iconoclastic lyric in his suicide note as he wrote, "It's better to burn out than to fade away." Judging from their H.O.R.D.E. performance and the enthusiastic crowd response, the fire is still blowin' strong in the wind.

Marty Keane is a Collegian staff member.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Kelser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Munchie Madness 3-6PM MONDAY-FRIDAY
Fried Cheese & Onion Rings 6.50 3.25
Shrimp Cocktail 5.25 2.88
Lite Potato Skins 7.50 3.75
1/2 PRICE!
Judie's DOWNTOWN AMHERST
51 N. Pleasant Street 253-3491
http://virtual-valley.com/judies

Knitting Classes & Workshops For All Levels.
Knitting has been shown to reduce stress!
Mon. - Sat. 10-5 pm Thurs. till 9
Patterns • Yarns
11 Pleasant St., Northampton, MA 01060 • 413-586-4331

Welcome Back Students
Any car troubles? Come right down the street to the best auto body around!
STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 S. Prospect, Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385
• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
• State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+/- 0.5mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
• Advanced European technology painting and refinishing systems
• We provide substitute transportation
• Users of Sikkens paint products
Remember it's YOUR car and YOUR choice of repair facilities
Shop Registration #RS1212

September '97

ARTS ON CAMPUS...

A monthly calendar of art events at UMass brought to you by the UMass Arts Council.

Exhibits

Augusta Savage Gallery
101 New Africa House
545-5177
Mon-Tues 1-7 pm, Wed-Fri 1-5 pm
CHICAGO: MEMORIES AND FANTASIES, The Malcolm X Series
by Robert Henry Graham
Sept 24 - Oct 21
Opening Reception: Sept 24, 5-7 pm

Hampden Gallery
Hampden Dining Halls, Southwest
545-0880
Mon-Fri 3-7 pm, Sun 2-5 pm
New Works in Stone
by Donald R. Blanton
Sept 16 - Oct 3
Opening Reception: Sept 16, 5-7 pm. A gallery shuttle van will operate during the opening reception, connecting with Wheeler Gallery.

Herter Art Gallery
125A Herter Hall
545-0976
Mon-Fri 11 am-4 pm, Sun 2-5 pm
Foundations 1997
Works by students in the first year BFA program, the class of 2000
Sept 8 - 25
Awards Ceremony and Closing Reception: Sept 25, 4-6 pm

Student Union Visual & Performing Arts Space
Student Union Building
545-0792
Mon-Thur 10 am-5 pm, Fri 10 am-3 pm
Over the Edge
by Lydia K. Netzler
Sept 11 - Oct 3
Opening Reception: Sept 11, 4:30 pm. Live music will be performed at the reception.

University Gallery
Fine Arts Center
545-3670
Tue-Fri 11 am-4:30 pm, Sat-Sun 2-5 pm
The Lois Bearman Torf Print Collection
Sept 6 - Oct 17
Opening Reception: Sept 5, 5-7 pm
Seven By Five: 7 Works x 5 Artists
Sept 6 - Oct 17
Opening Reception: Sept 5, 5-7 pm

Wheeler Gallery
Central Residential Area
545-0680
Mon-Thur 4-8 pm, Sun 2-5 pm
Apprentices
Multimedia group exhibition by individuals with whom Don Blanton works (see Hampden Gallery)
Sept 16 - Oct 2
Opening Reception: Sept 16, 5-7 pm A gallery shuttle van will operate during the opening reception, connecting with Hampden Gallery

Events

Please note! If you have an art event that you would like to list in our monthly arts calendar, please call 545-0202 for a list of calendar submission deadlines!

Friday, September 12
🎭 LECTURE/DEMONSTRATION The Jazz Scene in India by Trilok Gurtu and Glimpse. 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall. Call 545-1980 for more information.

Saturday, September 13
🎭 MUSIC PERFORMANCE Trilok Gurtu and the Glimpse Ensemble 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. $ 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

Friday, September 19
🎭 THEATER PERFORMANCE The Return of Elijah, The African 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. $ 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

Wednesday, September 24
PERFORMANCE WORKSHOP Indonesian Arts Project with I Ngurah Supartha 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. & 2-5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Call 545-1980 for more information.

Thursday, September 25
PERFORMANCE WORKSHOP Indonesian Arts Project with I Ngurah Supartha See 9/24

Friday, September 26
🎭 THEATER PERFORMANCE Greetings from a Queer Señorita Written and performed by Monica Palacios. 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. $ 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

Sunday, September 28
🎭 THEATER PERFORMANCE How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying 7 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. $ 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

🎭 5-College students can attend any Fine Arts Center series event for only $5!

ARTS COUNCIL INFORMATION:

Act Now!

Now is the time to apply for a grant from the UMass Arts Council! The Arts Council awards grants to UMass organizations (such as RSO's) who are sponsoring an art event on campus. Even if your event isn't scheduled until the spring, you may apply for funding from the Council as early as September! It's easy and we're here to help. Call the Council today at 545-0202 for more information and a free application packet. This year's grant application deadlines are

September 17
October 22
November 19
February 4
March 11

9/97

UMass Arts Council, 101 Hasbrouck Lab, 545-0202

The Campus Activities Office presents
First Week '97

"Tonight" Wednesday, September 3
Campus Center Auditorium
8pm
FREE

On Wednesday September 3, the 5-person acappella singing group REGENCY will perform in the Campus Center Auditorium. Performing the music of the Temptations, Sam Cooke, Otis Redding, and others this group from Baltimore Maryland will light up the stage in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8:00pm. UMass student Allana E. Todman will open with her award winning voice.

The First Week Comedy Show and Movie take center stage at 8 o-clock on Thursday night in the Campus Center Auditorium. Comedian Michael Dean Ester will bring his comic views on people, life, and love as first week continues. A showing of the summer smash hit "Con Air" with Nicolas Cage will follow at 10pm.

Friday night brings us 2 more showings of "Con Air" in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 & 10pm for people who missed it on Thursday.

Rounding out the First Week '97 program will be the "Ladies Night Out Comedy Show" in the Student Union Ballroom at 8pm. Marla Schultz, Cory Kahaney, and Wanda Sykes-Hall are three very funny women who will provide the laughs for the evening.

MORE INFO: http://www.umass.edu/campact/events/calsept.htm

FUTON • FUTON • FUTON • FUTON • FUTON • FUTON • FUTON • FUTON
Futon & Frame $169

NEW DAWN
Futon and Furniture
29 Main St • Northampton • 585-0090
Contemporary Designs Classic Hardwood Furniture
Back to School Special • Futon & Frame full-size $169

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Computer Bleud Electrolisis
- Student Discount -
- Free Parking -
- On Busline -
John V. Ryan, R.E.
664 Main Street
253-9534

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

An early look at NE concert schedule

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

The upcoming semester promises to be one of strongest concert seasons in recent memory. In addition to a slew of shows at Pearl Street and the Iron Horse, several of music's most-established acts will be passing through New England this fall, with many blockbuster names taking the show on the road and a few touching down right here at the University of Massachusetts.

• In what will undoubtedly be the highlight of the local concert season, pop's answer to Liberace, the incomparable Elton John will hit the Mullins Center on November 4. Few artists can command a concert stage like this consummate entertainer, and his catalog of hits is seemingly endless, which should make for a memorable performance.

• Hot off this summer's Lilith Fair, Amy & Emily, known to most as the Indigo Girls, will also hit the Mullins Center this fall. Tickets are already on sale for their September 12 show.

• The ageless Rolling Stones will roll into Foxboro Stadium on October 20 with more New England dates, possibly in cozier confines, a strong possibility. How they'll top the spectacle of U2's PopMart is anyone's guess, but I'm sure Mick, Keith, Ronnie and Charlie will give those Irish blokes a run for their money, probably literally.

• Talk about playing in smaller venues, megastars David Bowie and Morrissey each visit Boston's 2,800-capacity Orpheum Theater later this month. Bowie will be there for two nights, September 29 and 30, while the Mozzer hits Beantown on September 14. Both are scintillating live performers with considerable charisma that can woo even the most jaded audiences. Hopefully, Morrissey won't get homesick again and cancel what will be his first U.S. concert in five years.

• The never-ending travelling rock carnival known as Phish will follow up their mammoth summer shows in Maine with a date at the Harvard Civic Center on November 26, and three shows in Worcester at the Centrum November 28–30.

• The lure of big money "reunion tour" has struck yet again. Fleetwood Mac, featuring the Rumours-era lineup of Stevie Nicks, Christine McVie, John McVie, Lindsay Buckingham and Mick Fleetwood open a 40-date U.S. tour at the Meadows Music Theatre in Hartford on September 17.

• While sales of country music have experienced a sharp decline recently, Alan Jackson and teen Grammy-winner LeAnn Rimes should have no trouble filling the Worcester Centrum on September 11.

• Also at the Centrum, Mary J. Blige headlines a stellar hip-hop bill featuring Aaliyah, Dru Hill, Ginuwine and the vastly underrated Bone Thugs 'N Harmony on September 14.

• Although not yet confirmed, Oasis will be invading the States some time in October/November to promote their third album, Be Here Now (Epic). Let's hope this tour doesn't end in disaster like the last one.

FAC schedule draws from far and near

Four entertainment companies bring song and dance to UMass

By Alex Iglesias
Collegian Staff

In just a few short weeks, the Fine Arts Center performing arts season will be fine-tuned and ready to kick off another spectacular year of weekly entertainment. This year's schedule is filled with an impressive assortment of performances, which circle the globe from Estonia, to Australia, and back over to our very own University of Massachusetts.

Performances will be brought to you from a pool of four separate entertainment companies including the Center Series, Asian Dance and Music, the Off Center Series and the well established New World Theater. The performances will collaborate to bring you nearly 40 nationally and internationally acclaimed artists.

The spotlight begins with the Center Series hosting national tours such the Majestic Ensemble of the St. Louis Philharmonic and the Estonian Philharmonic. In addition, the FAC will host he hottest tap dance show Tap Dogs from the land down under. Winner of the 1996 Olivier Award for best choreography, Tap Dogs is the most unique dance experience of the year. Soothing the audience with their breezy, jazz harmonies, five-time Grammy Award winner Take 6 will step into the FAC spotlight.

The shows continue as the New World Theater and the Asian Dance and Music program run consecutive performances of their own unique styles. The New World Theater will present nine touring events including The Return of the African. The Asian Dance and Music Program will present a few choice performances, as well as focusing highly on lectures and workshops for the benefit of improving creative processes. The extremely popular annual Festival of Lights will take place throughout the celebration of South Asian Culture.

Finishing off the season is the hip Off Center Series which will present the smallest number of performances. Off Center brings forth a group of four ambitious rising artists, including the Providence-based dance Company Groundwerx and the unique works of Adam Rudolph's Moving Pictures featuring butoh dancer Oguri.

The 1997–98 Arts Center Series overflows with a fantastic array of internationally renowned entertainers. It's a display of unique artistry from home and beyond.

For a listing of events or to purchase tickets, please call

Fine Arts Center Box Office at (413)545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS. There is also a complete schedule at the FAC web site www.umass.edu/fac.

The Collegian is on the web, and with a new look!
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

ARE YOU NUTS?
Miss Out On Our MEAL DEAL and You Must Be!
Add Chips and a Drink for Just $1 Dollar!
SUBWAY
Sunday - Thursday 10am - 12pm
Friday & Saturday 10am - 2pm
4 Main Street Amherst

TOTAL FITNESS Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst • 256-0060

CAHILLANE Rentals
• 7 & 15 Passenger Vans
• Free Pick-up and Drop-off
• Approved 5-College Vendor
• Short and Long Term Leasing
• Airport Drop-off Available
• Open 6 days a week
Now in Amherst
Amherst 549-8099
Northampton 584-8099
LEASING RENTALS
on the Web @ http://www.cahillane.com
Rt 9 @ Howard Johnson's in Amherst • 48 Damon Rd, Northampton

BankBoston Friendly's
CROSSWORLDS
A CONVERSATION
PERSUASIVE VOICES OF CONSTRUCTIVE CHANGE
CORETTA SCOTT KING PAT SCHROEDER
EVENT SPEAKERS:
Coretta Scott King, Widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Patricia Schroeder, Former Congresswoman of Colorado
Thursday, September 25, 1997
7:30 pm, Mullins Center
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Ticket Prices: General Public - $20, $15, $10; Students - $5.
Tickets on sale at the Mullins Center Box Office (413) 545-0505 and Ticketmaster (413) 733-2500 beginning August 25, 1997 at 10:00 am
Dream Act Lead
RESERVED SEATING: Available at box office until sold out. TTY (413) 545-3102

GREAT NORTHEAST PRODUCTIONS INC. & JHP present
INDIGO GIRLS
TICKETS ON SALE NOW!
FRIDAY SEPT. 12 8:00pm
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Honor the Earth TOUR with special guest tba
ALL AGES!
THE NEW ALBUM AVAILABLE NOW.
ALL SEATS RESERVED
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE 413-545-0505, ALL TICKETMASTER LOCATIONS OR CHARGE BY PHONE 413-733-2500
A LIMITED NUMBER OF GOLDEN CIRCLE SEATS WILL BE AVAILABLE FOR THIS EVENT. FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL: 545-0505

■ blockbuster

continued from page A2

els really fast in absolutely no direction at all. You would think that maybe it will be, if nothing else, fun to watch, but Joel Schumacher's second attempt in the Batman franchise falls short of anything except ultimate lunacy. If only Schumacher was not so pretentious that he could have thrown in a little bit of camp, then maybe one might feel a bit nostalgic of the '60s TV show. Yet, Batman and Robin has the Dark Knight and Boy Wonder performing circus tricks for peanuts rather than realize Burton's initial intention of casting a sinister cultish shadow over Gotham City's macabre skyline.

George Clooney and Chris O'Donnell trade irritating remarks back and forth while Arnold Schwarzenegger and Uma Thurman perform so over-the-top that one can not help but cringe every time they open their mouths. Surprisingly, Alicia Silverstone as Batgirl is the only character that does not get on your nerves.

The most ridiculous thing about this movie is how Schumacher attempts to create melodrama amid the flashy, homoerotic chaos by throwing in a subplot about Alfred's life-threatening disease. How do these superheroes take care of their families, fight bad guys who wear silly costumes, and still manage to look so dumb doing it? D

My Best Friend's Wedding

After her masterful performance in My Best Friend's Wedding, critics hailed the big "return" of Julia Roberts. Not because she actually went anywhere, but rather because she finally returned to roles to which she is better suited — i.e. the endearing Pretty Woman instead of the (unintentionally) scary Mary Reilly.

However, it wasn't even Roberts or co-stars Dermot Mulroney and Cameron Diaz who made the film worth seeing. It was Rupert Everett, playing Roberts' gay friend/makeshift fiancé, who undeniably stole the show. The heartwarming make-you-laugh, make-you-cry screenplay also made the Wedding one of the gala events of the summer. B+

Ulee's Gold

Peter Fonda may finally be remembered for something other than Easy Rider. His brilliant performance as a withdrawn, southern beekeeper is not only the role he was born to play, but it has allowed him some well deserved recognition. Written and directed by Victor Nuñez (Ruby Paradise) Ulee's Gold is a sincere, passionate story of one man's struggle for contentedness in a world which just won't seem to let its claws release him.

Nuñez allows his camera to quietly follow Fonda through the lush Florida scenery putting the viewer in the position of objective spectator, watching the amazing story unfold before our eyes. "Home Improvement's" Patricia Richardson also provides more than adequate support as Ulee's next door neighbor who finds herself entangled within the bitter web of Ulee's life.

Fonda rarely allows a smile to brace his lips, but the solemn gaze in his eyes tells the story of a thousand heartbreaks. He is a true middle-aged hero, providing the best he can for his broken family and attempting to seize the one thing that makes him happy, the golden honey of the bees he cares for. In a summer of nonsense, Ulee's Gold is a true treasure. A

Dream with the Fishes

Dream with the Fishes is the greatest summer movie to have slipped away perfectly unnoticed by the blockbuster- going crowds. A clever, intelligent story which adequately showcases the intensity that is only allowed in the quiet world of true independent cinema. Dream with the Fishes is the directorial debut of Finn Taylor and the movie that should make David Arquette the most respected member of his famous family.

Dream is a unique addition to the road movie genre and its grainy texture and down to earth acting also help increase its intensity. It is a story of two men each in search of two very different things: one wants life, the other death. Their unlikely friendship is one of the most beautiful bonds filmed in quite some time and the adventure they share is both inspiring and breathtaking.

Arquette plays a bitter voyeur who chooses to see life through a pair of cheap binoculars for this is, after all, the closest he feels he can get to reality. Brand Hunt is a hip urbanite, plagued with a terminally ill disease. He has only weeks to live and yet his only fear is not having all of his dreams come true. Hunt indirectly saves Arquette from a suicide attempt and then uses him to experience life vicariously through his new found friend. Dream is a remarkable cinematic achievement from a talented, young freshman. A

Face/Off

Another far-fetched adventure yarn from John Woo. Worth seeing merely for Nicholas Cage and John Travolta's "trading places." B-

Contact

At least this one has a brain and Jodie Foster plays a decent role as an alien-obsessed scientist whose disbelief in God nearly ruins her chances for space travel and romance. B+

Con Air

Non-stop guns and stuff from blood & guts-obsessed producer Jerry Bruckenheimer. Cage in his other big-budget blow 'em up summer blockbuster. Best parts are over-the-top performances by the bad guys. B-

The Lost World

Spellberg's darker, less plot-driven remake of the first one, but with considerably less charm and surprises. Jeff Goldblum reluctantly returns to battle more ferocious dinosaurs with the help of his daughter and girlfriend.

Nothing to Lose

One of the few comedies of this summer's season. Cute move with some hilarious lines by Martin Lawrence, but a little low brow for Tim Robbins' usual style. C+

Adam Levine is a Collegian staff member.

Collegian staff member Laura

IRON HORSE MUSIC HALL
20 Center St. Northampton
ALL AGES ALL THE TIME
friday, september 5, 10 pm Jazz Mandolin Project Roshy jazz grooves, $8 adv.
saturday, september 6, 7 pm, $10 adv Jill Sobule ALTERNAPOP ANTHEMS saturday, september 6, 10 pm Electric Blue & the Kozmik Truth bluesified groove rock, $5 adv.
sunday, september 7, 8:30 pm Guster PLUS THANKS TO GRAVITY acoustic rock & art-pop, $8 adv.
thursday, september 11, 7 pm Huffamoose AND THE MAGGIES TWO BANDS FOR TWO BUCKS
thursay, september 11, 10 pm Belizbeha plus the Kristie Mueller Trio, $6 adv.
friday, september 12, 7 pm GLENN TILBROOK SQUEEZE VETERAN SOLO SHOW, $16 adv.
friday, september 12, 10 pm Moonboot Lover funky jams, $5 adv
saturday, september 13, 7 pm Mose Allison jazz piano-icon, $14 adv.
SEPTEMBER 15 MICHAEL ROSE PLUS OUR STATION
TICKETS: For the Record, at the Northampton Box Office or call 586-8686.
24 HOUR CONCERT INFO: 413.584.0610

TOTAL FITNESS WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

DESIGN YOUR BILLBOARD!!
IT'S YOUR PAPER, SO WHY NOT HELP DESIGN IT, AND MAKE A LITTLE $$$ ALONG THE WAY?

BETTER YET
VINTAGE CLOTHING & HOME
15 MARKET STREET NORTHAMPTON
12 - 5 PM Daily
584-3978

MYSTERY TRAIN
LOTS OF MORE CRAZED CDS LPS
FOUR TIMES AS LARGE!
ALWAYS BUYING! CDS, LPS CASSETTES GOOD JUNK
OUR NEW PAD 12 No. Pleasant AMHERST 253-4776 (open daily 10 to 6)

MUSIC MALL
5 SHOPS UNDER 1 ROOF
A Division of Falcetti Music
Come see the premier music store in Western Mass!
Welcome Back Students!!
Service, PA rentals, & Education!
Bring in College ID for these great savings:
Guitar Shop: Over 300 electric, acoustic & bass guitars & amps. From Gibson, Ibanez, Martin, Takamine, Peavey, Ovation, Yamaha, and ESP
Sound Shop: Features 4-track recorders, DAT machines, PA heads, speakers, rack effects, microphones, & much more
Vic Firth drumsticks $4.50/pair!
Guitar strings for $2.99!
also, 30%-50% off any regularly priced item!
Drum Shop: Huge selection of drum sets, percussion, & snares — plus a great selection of Afro-Latin percussion
Keyboard Shop: A large variety of synthesizers, samplers, digitals, portables, drum machines, modules, MIDI controllers, & software
(413) 543-1002 1755 Boston Road Springfield

Save Money on Stereo Stuff

B&W DM305
Floor-standing speaker. New Prism technology from Britain's finest speaker manufacturer
Sale Price $399
Regular price $500 pair

Conrad-Johnson Specials
CJ MF-2100 100 w.p.c. amp, $1,199 ($1,500)
CJ MF-2200 200 w.p.c. amp, $1,599 ($2,000)
CJ PF-2L preamp, $1,099 ($1,400)
CJ D/A3 D/A converter, demo $699 ($1,200)
CJ MF-2100 amplifier, demo $1,099 ($1,500)
CJ PF-2L preamp, demo ($999)
Used, Specials, & Demos
Atlantic Technology System 220 six-speaker home theater system ,demo, $699 ($1,176)
Boston Acoustics SS Six spks, demo $99/PR ($200/PR)
Boston Acoustics VR-2000 subwoofer, $699 ($1,200)
B&K Pro 10 MC preamp, demo $749.95 ($1,000)
B&K ST-3030 amp, 200 w.p.c., demo $749 ($1,000)
Cal Audio Delta CD transport, demo $599.95 ($900)
Cal Audio Sigma II CD D-A, demo $449.95 ($750)
Cambridge Audio CD-4 CD player, sale $329 ($399)
Cambridge Audio CD-6 CD player, sale $549 ($650)
Celestion SL-6Si spks, black or wal, $650/PR ($900)

Audio Innovations Alto Integrated Amp
Special Purchase Regularly $650
Sale Price $299

Celestion 300 speakers, walnut, demo $999/PR
Definitive Tech DR-7 spks, demo $349/PR ($500/PR)
Definitive Tech BP-30 spks, demo$999/PR($1,600/PR)
Klipsch KV-1 Center channel spk, sale $129 ($179)
Klipsch KV-2 Center channel spk, sale $179 ($250)
Onkyo ES-600 proc/amp remote, demo $269 ($399)
Onkyo TA-R410 cassette deck, sale $169 ($280)
Signet 5.0me phono cartridge, closeout $125 ($250)
Signet 5.0fe phono cartridge, closeout $175 ($350)
Sonic Frontiers Translac D-A, demo $399.95 ($600)
Sony STR-D565 Pro Logic receiver, sale $199 ($300)
Teac V-377 cassette deck, sale $99
Teac W-518R double cassette deck, sale $139
Townsend ISTD Seismic Sink, demo $269 ($349)
Tributaries SA 1.3 S-VHS dist. amp, demo $349 ($500)
Audio Alchemy DTI & XDP D-A, used $299 ($808)
Carver DPL-33 Pro logic proc/amp,used$269 ($470)
Classe S-700 power amp., used $1,800 ($3,495)
Krell KSL preamp, used $995 ($2,500)
McIntosh MR-7082 tuner, used. $899 ($1,579)

Budget Audiophile System
Rotel RA-931, NHT SuperOnes, and Cambridge Audio CD-4 CD Player
Package price $829
If purchased separately $1050

NAD 2400 amplifier, used $299 ($599)
Onkyo TX-SV727Pro Receiver, used $399 ($799)
McIntosh MX-114 tuner/preamp, used $249 ($579)
Polk CS-100 center channel speaker, used $89 ($170)
Profile by JSE speakers, used $399/PR ($1,600)
Rotel RSP-960 Pro-Logic pre/proc, demo$399($600)
Sony MDS-101 mini disc rec, used $249 ($1,000)
Stewart 90SN 90" screen with stand $499 ($1,000)
Yamaha DSP-A2070 amp/proc used $699 ($2,000)
Yamaha RX-1070 reciever, used $599 ($1,350)
Car Stereo
ACA SW-320 bandpass subwoofer,sale $199 ($300)
Advent 6.9i 6x9 car speakers, sale $99/PR
a/d/s/ 300is 5 1/4" spks, sale $220/PR. ($399/PR)
a/d/s/ 200is 4" speakers, demo $199/PR ($299/PR)
a/d/s/ 325is 5 1/4" seps, sale $399/PR ($600/PR)
Bazooka T-82A80 bass tube, sale $150 ($250)
Kenwood KAC-927 amplifier, sale . $249 ($450)
Orion 210CO 30 w.p.c. car amp, sale $109 ($200)
Orion 260CO 60 w.p.c. car amp, sale $149 ($250)

Onkyo TA-R410 Auto-Reverse Cassette Deck
Special Purchase $169
Regular Price $279

Free Delivery
On any purchase over $200 to the Five-College Area. Quantities limited on some items and all items subject to prior sale.

Krells and B&W
Combine the new Krell amp, preamp, and CD player with B&W 802s Achieve Greatness!
If purchased separately $12,500
Package Price $9,999

Krell, Conrad-Johnson, B&W, Wilson Audio, Sonic Frontiers, Rotel, NHT, Definitive Techonology, AudioQuest, B&K, Kimber, Grado, Nakamich, Cardas, & Grado

NORTHAMPTON AUDIO
351 Pleasant Street
Northampton MA
phone 584-9547 fax 585-5139
email: tozzi@javanet.com
moulding@javanet.com

Klipsch, Chang, Orion, Rock Solid, Cambridge Audio, Micromega, Kenwood Car, a/d/s car, Tributaries, Onkyo, Audible Illusions, Ortofon, Plateau & Wharfdale

HTTP://WWW.NORTHAMPTONAUDIO.COM novel

continued from page A3

Phillips, who is suffering from AIDS.

Together the three friends go to Montana to reorder their lives. And of course, there is no shortage of handsome men at the ranch.

Steel, who makes her living creating that alternative universe complete with happy ending works in her latest book. Unfortunately, she falls short of the needed persuasion.

The main weakness in this book stems from Steel's apparent lack of focus. For instance, it takes nearly 60 pages to realize that Mary Stuart's husband blames her for their son's suicide. Another chapter deals with Tanya's marriage. The impression given at the beginning of the chapter makes it clear that Tanya's husband loves the spotlight and the marriage is fairly happy. By the end of the chapter, with little warning, Tanya's husband has left her.

Steel seems to have a real problem creating characters and storyline — and then sticking to them, jumping idea to idea.

For instance, Zoe is a prominent AIDS physician who sticks herself with a contaminated needle. It takes this doctor full year before she decides to test herself. Steel explains this behavior perfunctorily, saying that Zoe had been in denial all along.

Another weakness in the book stems from the redundancy and lack of originality. Steel fails when she tells the reader the same thing over and over — sometimes she repeats herself on the same page.

For a quick and easy read, The Ranch fulfills. Like all Steel novels, The Ranch is heavy on romance and melodrama but light on substance and style. C

FERGIE: HER SECRET LIFE
Allan Starkie
Marlow & Company

The book's jacket trumpets this latest foray into the world's most dysfunctional family as "a tragedy on a grand scale." Perhaps that description is a little over the top, but there is no denying that after reading this book, that Sarah Ferguson, Duchess of York, had good reason to try to ban the book.

Written by Allan Starkie, who positions himself as the fall guy in the love affair between John Bryan and Fergie, the book is a candid look at a passionate, but stupid relationship.

Bryan is most popularly known as the man caught sucking the Duchess' toes. Modestly well–off, Bryan did his best to project his self image as a wealthy American. With his good looks and charisma, Bryan managed his way into Fergie's life before their affair fell apart four years later.

Descriptions of Fergie as a mother are less than flattering. Fergie's obsession with making money gives us long winded battle plans of ideas which all failed. And there is Fergie's passion for Bryan — she would sometimes call him up to 40 times a day.

The book is written honestly and extremely detailed. Though Starkie holds absolutely nothing back he sometimes provides a little too much detail — slogging through so much bull is tiring. Granted Starkie wants to present a complete picture, but behaviors of those involved in the story are such that most details are better left out.

Starkie puts himself into the book as the guy who moderated the relationship between Bryan and Fergie.

There is only one feeling to be had after reading a book such as this. Secret lives ought to be kept secret. D

Seema Gangatikar is a Collegian columnist.

25 CENTRAL
150 Main Street •Northampton, Mass.
Located Downstairs at Thornes • 413-586-8017

TOTAL FITNES
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-Rt. 116, So. Amherst 0080

Come On In Out Of The Plain!
3 floors • stores galore • food & more dictionary / six bucks • cup o' joe / a buck • "For Dummies" guides / nineteen bucks beaded curtain / nine bucks • book bags / from eighteen bucks
Genko (for mental sharpness) / fifteen bucks • magic stone / twelve bucks
Armani hosiery / nine bucks • Lucky Jeans / sixty-eight bucks
shower caddy / eleven bucks • CK boxer shorts / eighteen bucks
Hard Candy lipsticks / sixteen bucks
THORNES MARKETPLACE 150
"under the big green awning"
On the bus route • Open Mon–Tue- Wed 10-6; Thur-Fri-Sat 10-9; Sun 12-5 • 150 Main Street, Northampton

CALL AHEAD 256-0222 FOR QUICK PICK UP OR FREE DELIVERY
PIZZA CALZONES SUBS
New Bruno's 363 MAIN ST., AMHERST
SALADS SPAGHETTI WE DELIVER QUALITY LASAGNA
256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
$2.00 OFF ANY LARGE TWO OR MORE TOPPING PIZZA (Specialty Pizzas Excluded) Offers can not be combined
$1.00 OFF ANY MEDIUM PIZZA Offers can not be combined
$1.50 OFF ANY LARGE PIZZA Offers can not be combined
Only $8.00 +tax TWO SPAGHETTI OR ZITI DINNERS Includes Salad & Hot Bread Offers can not be combined.
Only $5.25 +tax LASAGNA DINNER Includes Salad & hot Bread Offers can not be combined.
Only $13.00 +tax TWO LARGE CHEESE PIZZAS Offers can not be combined
expires 1/31/98

TANNING & NAILS
UMass' Best! ★ 1997 ★ 2 Years in a row!
9 Large Uniquely Themed Tanning Rooms
Wolff 26, 28 & 32 Bulb Beds w/Face Tanners
The Area's Best Nail Technicians
Acrylic Nails * Manicures * Pedicures
Waxing * Facals * Ear Piercing
584-1776
We Accept All Major Credit Cards
Carla's Creations
The Valley's Premier Nail & Tanning Salon!
108 Russell St (Rte 9) / 2nd Floor * Hadley, MA

TURN IT UP!
We buy & sell used CDs. Listen before you buy 'em.

5 pleasant st. • northampton 582.1885
89½ main st keene nh 603.358.6837
web-o-rama: http://javanet.com/~turnitup

The Toasters
with Special Guest TBA
Saturday, September 20
8 PM
Amherst College Campus Center
Frontroom
$4 with Amherst College ID
$10 General Public
TICKETS ON SALE SEPTEMBER 2
Tickets are available at the Campus Center-Room 103. For the Record in Amherst, and at Strawberries' Records in Hadley, or call Protix at (860)422-0000. For more information call 542-5773.

DO YOU OR A FRIEND OR COLLEAGUE HAVE A PROBLEM WITH ALCOHOL OR OTHER DRUGS?
THERE ARE RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO HELP:
Advice Triage Nurse & Urgent Care Clinic, University Health Services 577-5229.
For medical situations and questions requiring same-day attention. 24 Hours.
Employee Assistance Program (EAP), 35 University Health Services 545-0350
Assessment, referrals for treatment, self-help groups and follow-up for employees concerning their own or a family member's or colleague's substance abuse problem. Weekdays 8:30-12:00, 1:00-5:00.
Medical Clinic Appointments, University Health Services 577-5101
For students and UHS Kaiser Permanente members concerning medical situations and substance abuse questions. Weekdays 8:00-5:00.
Mental Health Services, 127 Hills North 545-2337
Counseling, groups, 24 hour emergency coverage for students and UHS Kaiser Permanente members. Appointments strongly encouraged. Weekdays 8:00-5:00.
Urgent Care Clinic at Hills North, weekdays (577-2337)
1:00-2:30 when semester classes are in session
1:00-2:00 during intersession and summer.
24 Hour Emergency Services through the UHS Urgent Care clinic (577-5000).
uhs
In a life-threatening situation, call 911 or your local emergency number for the police or an ambulance to transport you directly to the nearest hospital. (Cooley-Dickinson is closest to Amherst.)
For more information, contact University Health Services, 577-5000.

trax

continued from page A4

effort. The marathon finale "Make My Way" being one such example on their penchant for Dead–ening jams. Although in a live setting this may come across as convincing and revelatory, on record it comes off as pure self–indulgence.

Aside from their fondness for unnecessary guitar gluttony, one is still left to cope with John Popper's incessant harmonica playing. Most songs on Straight On Til Morning run several minutes and go absolutely nowhere with Popper's trademark wheezy playing style of a certain candy bar–sized instrument acting as the sole guiding force. Unlike his idols Bob Dylan and Neil Young, Popper has not yet grasped the meaning of restraint. There's simply no direction and focus here. Most out of place is "Yours," a weak attempt at string–sectioned balladry that will move you to tears for all the wrong reasons. If they could only find a way to trim some of the fat, they might actually have something to offer. C–

HOMEWORK
Daft Punk
Virgin

Daft Punk are a French DJ duo that make electronic music that swings, shades and surprisingly enough, rocks. Maybe that's because Thomas Bangalter and Guy–Manuel de Homem Christo, who are barely in their 20s, used to be a traditional guitar band whose music was termed "daft punk" by a cynical Melody Maker journalist. Although they decided to ditch the band and guitars, they held on to the adjective.

Three years after the release of their chart–topping dance single "Da Funk" on the independent dance label Soma, Daft Punk have returned with their first proper album. Homework (Virgin) is 75 minutes worth of rough and ready breaks and chunky rolling rhythms that update and expand upon the sounds first created in the Chicago's mid '80s house scene and the Detroit's techno explosion of the early '90s. In deference to the pioneers of these scenes, "Teachers" is a fitting shout–out that pays homage and respect to their forebears.

The genius of Homework lies in the fact that Daft Punk have somehow managed to add a degree of sophistication and intelligence that is sorely lacking in so much of today's electronic music. Stylistically similar to the Underworld and Orbital, beats and loops are gradually introduced throughout songs which adds texture and allows each of them to form their own unique structure instead of being left to blow idly in the wind. This layered effect works particularly well on the current single "All Around the World," as well as "High Fidelity" and "Indo Silver Club." Most conspicuously left out is the one track that combines funk, soul, house and acid grooves of Daft Punk into one singular high energy nugget, "Musique." No matter, with their knack for innovation and ability to bridge the gap between stylistically dissimilar musical styles there is more than enough homework to go around. B+

IN IT FOR THE MONEY
Supergrass
Capitol

In considering the current crop of British pop/rock bands crossing the Atlantic, Supergrass are without question the most overlooked. In an age where gimmickry is almost necessary to sell an album, Supergrass have neither the boyish good looks of Blur, or the loutish attitudes of the brothers Gallagher to compete with these Britpop elder statesmen. As a result, they have been virtually ignored in this country, and what a travesty. While Supergrass may be an orange stuck smack in the middle of an apple orchard, they're the tastiest, juiciest orange around.

On the young trio's 1995 debut, I Should Coco, Gaz Coombes and his mates acted like the immature teenagers they were, spewing forth a manic rock attack filled with songs about getting busted at fifteen and staying out past curfew. Their new album, In it For the Money (Capitol) marks an impressive leap forward. It provides a boost in sophistication, diversity and quality without undercutting the band's giddy, infectious energy.

At its core, In it For the Money is a summation of every tried and true rock cliché of the last 20 years, done with a refreshing degree of sincerity and conviction. With no pretensions to interfere, the songs are left to be judged solely on their individual and collective merit. What a novel concept! In it For the Money is 12 ebullient blasts of energy, anchored by drummer Danny Goffey's furious cauldron of sound and Mick Quinn's driving bass lines that perfectly augment Coombes' torrid guitar playing. Gun and exuberant, but hardly childish, Supergrass maintain a marvelous balance between taut control and reckless energy. The least you can do is show them the money and buy this outstanding album. A–

ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY
Empirion
Wanted/XL

Yet another entry into the rapidly over–populating electronical field, Empirion thankfully stick to the basis on Advanced Technology (Wanted/XL), their U.S. debut. Instead of getting experimental with the techno formula by attempting to add an emotional element to a faceless, anonymous genre, the three members of Empirion work within traditional framework of techno to act essentially as beat and rhythm manipulators. While this approach works well — most notably on the ominously pulsating "Quark" — it also exposes their fundamental weakness. Most of these largely instrumental, atmospheric cuts simply regress into the same persistent beat repeated ad nauseam over several minutes which makes for a truly mind–numbing experience. Come to think of it, maybe that's the point. C+

Marty Keane is a Collegian staff member.

Radiohead scores big with latest offerring

OK COMPUTER
Radiohead
Capitol

Purveyors of grandly distressed pop, Radiohead are nothing if not mercurial. Over the course of three albums, this English quintet has moved from post–Nirvana self–hatred to attempting to reconcile the measured structures of prog–rock with the emotional immediacy of grunge. Their new album, OK Computer (Capitol), is a headlong foray into the world of art–rock that eschews verse–chorus–verse song writing for what can only be described as progressive experimentation. The result is an intricate and wholly compelling collection of songs that offer glimpses of a band that is in the midst of a truly remarkable creative phase.

Long gone is the laconic and self–depreciative neo–grunge of the group's 1993 breakthrough single, "Creep." In its place are serpentine arrangements, psychedelic orchestrations and pretty melodies that belie the wretchedness detailed in the album's lyrics. After devoting two albums to the vicissitudes of loathing and self–obsession, Radiohead has found something extrinsic to be mad at — or at least terrified by. Singer Thom Yorke addresses a dizzying array of macabre subjects including car crashes, aliens, politics and urban claustrophobia, all from a variety of perspectives. Yorke's effectiveness at communicating mood comes from his vocal delivery. His soaring tenor exquisitely underscores the music's emotion with an uncanny breadth and melancholic elegance; like a hopeless man wails when all his tears have been cried.

Although lyrically not as introspective, the lyrics are nonetheless contemplative. One gets a clear indication that Yorke still feels unsettled unless he's in a state of constant flux, as that condition permeates throughout OK Computer. Stormy and schizophrenic at times, spacious and rambling at others, the album opens with "Airbag," a lush ethereal number that echoes with sharp, sparse bass punctuations, mind–numbing effects, and nervous beats reminiscent of Portishead. It follows with the skewed, chaotic six–minutes single, "Paranoid Android," which ebbs and flows while examining a disparate palette of sonic textures, from feather–weight fragility to draft jazz to caustic noise. Elsewhere, there's the quiet desperation of "Exit Music (for a Film)," the harrowing violence of "Climbing the Walls" and the achingly beautiful "The Tourist" which closes the album.

A sense of profound dislocation runs throughout OK Computer, from the nervous rambling of "Let Down" to the detached computer voice that recites "Fitter Happier," a soliloquy celebrating such self–improvement techniques as eating healthy, stress reduction, and not drinking too much. But it is most evident on "Karma Police," the album's transcendent climax. A brilliant fantasy on the power of cosmic retribution in the workplace, the verses roll out in the predictably elegant ways, and just as the dirge is beginning its march homeward, Yorke unexpectedly drops a shocking bomb: "For a minute there," he warbles in a trembling voice, "I lost myself." As he repeats this haunting confession over an exquisite piano and the guitar melody, Yorke's fragile psyche is left exposed in a chilling moment of unparalleled poignancy.

A sparkling prism of unexpected tone color. An abstract canvas on which songs are fragmented in to odd, eerie shapes. A mix of the arty and infectious. Earnest but not humorless, adventurous but not self–conscious, OK Computer is all those things and more. Defiantly unconventional in their song structure and arrangements, each of the 12 tracks are nonetheless beguiling, melodic, and memorable. A rare fusion of unhindered experimentation, artistic integrity and coherence. A+

COURTESY CAPITOL RECORDS
English quintet explores a chaotic world in latest album guide

continued from page A1

may be yours if you can figure out the logic behind scattering old couches on your roof and front lawn.

G — Gen Eds. Take 'em now. Look for the ones with as many letters next to them as possible (example: BS, I, D). Get them out of the way early and two–day schedules can be a reality during your senior year.

H — Housing. For those of you living in lounges right now, don't forget to close those blinds before you change. Keep bitching and you might get a room by November.

I — I.D.'s, don't lose these puppies or else you can't eat, get into your dorm, take out library books or get discounted movie tickets at the mall.

J — Jobs. Good luck getting one on campus if you don't have work study.

K — The Kennedys. Be proud, kids. None of them ever went here.

L — Language requirement. Bet you're kicking yourself for not taking that fourth year of Spanish in high school.

M — Mullins Center. Still one of the greatest arenas to catch a college hoop game — even if they did take our trophy away.–

N — Newman Center. Good place to study, great fries, home to an additional BankBoston ATM, and the only place on campus you can buy butts.

O — "Oh..." Sound you'll be making when the total sum for your books appears on the register in the Text Book Annex.

P — Parking. You'll quickly learn that there's not a lot of it. Find those broken meters and remember where they are.

Q — Quiet hours. If you feel the need to crank up your favorite Plattsburgh 96' Phish bootleg, make sure to turn it down by 1 a.m.

R — Roommates. Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose and sometimes it rains. Be open minded, honest, and have some quarters ready when his/her laundry pile starts to get a little ripe.

S — Singles. Don't even think about it, freshmen. You don't have nearly enough housing points to score one of those bad boys yet.

T — TAU's. We don't really know what they are, but it's $400 if you break them. So be careful not to spill any beer on them, or surfing the net could be more expensive than you thought.

U — Uptown. If you're under 21, forget it. Keep in mind that the ABC is not a 100 level Comp. Lit course, and that they sure love plundering the bars for the young and I.D.–less.

V — Vegetarian. If you are repulsed by those greasy burgers frying in the Coffee Shop, check out Earthfoods for an au–naturel alternative.

W — Whitmore. Be afraid, be very afraid, but most importantly, be persistent. This is a big place and if you don't speak up for yourself, nobody else will do it for you.

X — Xylophone. An instrument played in the UMass marching band (aka The Power and Class of New England). One of the better reasons to attend football games at McGuirk Stadium.

Y — Yo–yo. Marcus Camby's new nickname. Hey, Marcus, with alumni like you, who needs the Boston Globe?

Z — "ZooMass" — Not anymore. Seriously folks, this nickname went out with pet rocks and pogo sticks. Despite its nationally–recognized programs, faculty and alumni, UMass is still the most underrated university in New England. Anyone who's been here for a while will tell you this is a great place to live, learn and grow.

Chris Stamm and Luke Meredith are Collegian columnists.

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!
545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
WE DO NOT USE "MSG"
• MANDARIN & SZECHUAN CUISINE
• HOME STYLE COOKING
• WE USE OUR FARM ORGANICALLY GROWN PRODUCE DURING LOCAL GROWING SEASON
• EAT IN OR TAKE OUT
• FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
• OPEN 7 DAYS
253-7835 253-2813
62 Main Street, Amherst

NEW JOB
Looking for a unique and interesting job that offers personal satisfaction? Mass TeleRelay Service is looking for Communication Assistants to provide the vital link between voice/hearing and TTY/Deaf/Hard of Hearing communities.
WE OFFER:
•Paid Training
•Full & Part Time Shifts
•Full Time $7.25 to $8.34/ hour
•Part Time $7.50 to $8.63/hour
•Additional Holiday Premium
•Full Time Benefits
•Paid Annual Leave
•Paid Holiday Leave
•Paid Life Insurance
•Medical, Dental, 401K
•Nice Work Environment
REQUIREMENTS:
•Typing speed of 55 wpm
•Positive attitude
•Dependability
•Good Phone skills
•Clear speaking voice
•Partial or Alternate Weekends
No Sales or Telemarketing
Applicant interview and Testing Call:
Massachusetts Telecommunications Relay Service
(413) 536-0322 FAX (413) 493-1190
EOE

Kinetics ADULT FITNESS
Get in step with fitness at the Valley's Premier Fitness Center!

Best Aerobics in the Area!
Treadmills▾ stair machines
Bikes▾ rower▾ Nordic Track
Circuit weights▾Free weights
Personal Training and More!
WDS SPORTS FAMILY FUN & FITNESS
Rt. 9 Hadley 586-0633

AWARD WINNING LOCAL SERVICE
•Full Service Autobody Insurance Approved
•Full Selection of genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
•Mass. State Inspection Station #3243

Cavalier Z24 Coupe
•Fine selection of new and used cars & trucks.
•Ask about our FREE 18 point maintenance check.
PAIGE'S CHEVROLET Amherst Geo
DICKINSON ST. •BETWEEN RT. 9 & MAIN ST. •253-3444 •PARTS LINE 253-5928

1997-98 THE FINE ARTS CENTER SERIES
Connect with your Center

Let the Fine Arts Center connect you with the world's best performing artists. Subscribe now, SAVE 15% and get the best available seats in the house for Twyla Tharp, the New York City Opera, Danan Yankees, Tap Dogs and world-class artists from around the globe. Call now – it's one of the easiest, most rewarding connections you'll ever make.
TICKETS ONLY $5 FOR FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS
For tickets and schedule call 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS
For the season schedule visit our website at www.umas.edu/fac
The Fine Arts Center
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

Why not live together for awhile before you tie the knot.

The 1997 Jetta GL
Premium 8 Speaker Stereo Cassette, Dual Airbags
2.0 Liter Engine, Air Conditioning
Anti-Theft Alarm System, Roadside Assistance

A long term commitment doesn't suit everyone. But a fun loving, road hugging, German engineered Volkswagen seems to sit well with all kinds of drivers. We're all adults here.

Drivers wanted.

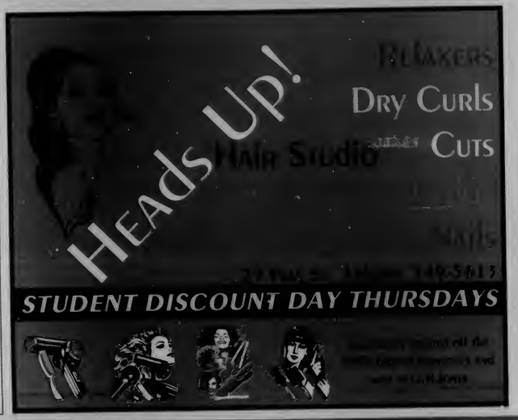
Lease a Jetta GL for $199 mo. for 24 mo. $999 down*

*$999 down payment, plus first payment, refundable security deposit, $450[00] acquisition fee, tax and registration

Fathers & Sons
434 Memorial Avenue
WEST SPRINGFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS 01089
Telephone (413) 785-1631
800-446-1981
www.fathers-sons.com
M-THUR 8-8, Fri. 8-6, Sat. 9-5, Sun. 12-4

4 four opportunities to learn about arts management at the Arts Extension Service

AES is a program of the Division of Continuing Education.



Introductive to Arts Management, 3 credits
Meets Mondays, 4 to 6:30 p.m., 121 Bartlett Hall.
Offered through the Division of Continuing Education

Internships at AES/credit possible
• Distance Learning
• Information & Research
• Desktop Publishing and Publication Marketing

Work Study Positions
• congenial staff • nationally respected organization
• great experience

The Artist in Business Library houses over 600 reference volumes, periodicals, directories and three job listing publications.

Interested? Call AES, 545-2360 or stop by 602 Goodell.

Only 3 Miles from Campus
Commuter Living in Amherst

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS

◆ Large 2 Bedroom Apartments
• New Kitchen Appliances
• New Bathroom
• New Carpets
select units
❖ Free Heat and Hot Water
❖ Professionally Landscaped Ground
❖ On Site Laundry Facility
❖ Free 5 College Bus Stop on Property

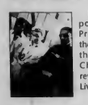
◆ State of the Art Exercise Facility
• Stairmaster
• Lifecycle
• Nautilus
❖ Professional Maintenance Staff on Site
❖ Central Mailbox Facility
❖ Rent Starting at $695.00

256-8534
From Amherst center take Rt. 116 south to East Hadley Rd. The Boulders is located 1/4 of mile down on the left.

◆ Rent starting at 540
◆ 1, 2 & 3 Bedroom Garden Style Units
◆ Two Bedroom Townhouse
◆ Olympic Size Pool
◆ Tennis Volleyball and Basketball
◆ On Site Laundry Facilities
◆ Professionally Landscaped Grounds
◆ Scenic Hiking Trails on 28 Wooded Acres
◆ Convenient to Amherst, UMass and I-91
◆ Free Public Transportation
◆ Professional Maintenance Staff on Site

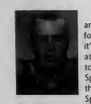
Free Utilities

Only 5 Miles from UMass



665-3958
Office Hours M-F 8:30 - 5:30 Sat. 10:00 - 2:00
248 Amherst Road, Route 116, Sunderland, MA
Directions: From Campus 116 North

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CVI Issue 2 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, September 4, 1997

Living off "The Fat of the Land"

Electronica's poster boys, Prodigy, unleash their sonic fury on their new release. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Arachnophobia

Jamie Holston and the UMass football team lost it's season opener at home Saturday, to the Richmond Spiders 21–6. Get the scoop (see Sports page 14).

WORLD

Sinn Fein's Adams calls for peace talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Predicting a united Ireland "in our lifetime," the leader of the IRA-allied Sinn Fein said yesterday his group is ready to "compromise, compromise, compromise" to achieve lasting peace.

"Our commitment to a negotiated settlement is forever," Gerry Adams said at a news conference before meeting U.S. officials at the White House and on Capitol Hill. "It isn't a whim. It isn't temporary. It is forever."

But Northern Ireland's largest Protestant party — which hasn't decided whether to sit down with Adams at peace talks next week — remains wary of Sinn Fein, a legal political party associated with the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"They don't compromise," said Anne Smith, a spokeswoman of the pro-British Ulster Unionist Party. "They have never backed off their stated goal of a united Ireland. Our party has made numerous compromises."

The Washington-based Smith, who attended Adams' news conference, noted that Sinn Fein has rejected demands for the Irish Republican Army to disarm as a condition for joining peace talks. The British government dropped disarmament as a condition after deciding to try instead to deal with the problem as a separate issue.

NATION

Justice Department ponders VP probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Senate hearings poised to focus on Vice President Al Gore's fund-raising, the Justice Department said yesterday it is reviewing whether to open a preliminary inquiry to determine if the allegations surrounding the vice president warrant a special prosecutor.

The announcement was immediately hailed by Republicans in Congress, who said it appeared Attorney General Janet Reno was poised for a major change of thinking after months of refusing to appoint an independent counsel.

"The Justice Department is reviewing whether allegations that the vice president illegally solicited campaign contributions on federal property should warrant a preliminary investigation under the independent counsel act," the Justice Department said. Department spokesman Bert Brandenburg declined to say whether yesterday's statement meant the department had found recent disclosures about Gore's fund-raising calls from the White House more troubling.

He said, however, the task force appointed by Reno to investigate fund-raising abuses in the 1996 election is routinely re-evaluating whether new facts should trigger the appointment of an independent counsel.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	day	day
HIGH: 65 LOW: 45	HIGH: 70 LOW: 55	HIGH: 70 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Peeping tom seen in dorm; bookbags stolen at Annex

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

A third incident of a shower stall peeping tom was reported Sunday night to University of Massachusetts Police, by a resident of Patterson Residence Hall.

The unidentified female reported to UMPD that the male suspect immediately fled from the bathroom when she confronted him.

Police officials have not speculated if this report is connected to the two peeping tom reports received last May from residents in Cance and MacKimmie Residence Halls. The male suspect in those cases was never apprehended.

All three reports are located in the Southwest South Residential Area.

Resident Director of Patterson and MacKimmie, Lee Dagle was not available for comment.

The only description Police were able to obtain in this most recent report was that the suspect is "a Caucasian male with light brown hair," according to UMass Police Chief John Luippold.

Police describe the male from the last two reports as a "white male in his early twenties, approximately 5-foot-7 and plump. He had a shaved head with light brown or blonde hair."

UMPD urges all students to notify police immediately at 545-2121 if they observe anyone acting suspiciously in the residence halls.

Police officials are also investigating three reports of stolen book bags from the Textbook Annex yesterday as the first day of classes marred the beginning of the Annex's busiest week.

Luippold said students feel a "false sense of security" when they enter the Annex and see a police officer in front of the store.

"When a student sees an officer, they think its OK to drop their bag on a shelf in the lobby and walk in. Students need to use a locker or not bring any of their belongings with them," Luippold said.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK/ COLLEGIAN

Working hard for UMass
A construction worker lays pipe by Garber field yesterday morning.

Nomination papers ready for SGA Senate elections

By Victoria Groves
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) has made nomination papers available for the upcoming Student Senate elections. Senators will be elected to represent students from all residential areas as well as those living off-campus.

Nomination papers can be picked up at the SGA office located at 420 Student Union from 10 a.m. today through 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19.

Nominees are required to sign out the ~~[illegible]~~ forms and read the election policy known as the "Code of Conduct for Elections." Twenty-five signatures are required from each nominee's constituency. Every senator represents 250 students.

"I think it's really important for students on campus to get involved and learn how to change policy for the better of the students," said Peter Kilbourne, Speaker of the Senate.

All elected senators are required to attend a training session on the responsibilities of being a member of the Senate. Currently, the session is set for Saturday, Sept. 27.

"We have a mandatory training for senators; it's a stipulation upon running. It's designed to explain how to write a motion, follow through on it and the basic duties of being a senator," Kilbourne said.

Elections will take place Wednesday, Sept. 24, and voters will be able to vote for one candidate running for a senatorial position in their living area.

There will also be referendum questions regarding surveillance cameras in dorms and student rights at hall investigation at judicial hearings.

"Many students will go through academic life here and go through grievances here and don't realize that they have the power to change policies," Kilbourne said.

Elections Chancellor Jodi Bailey is in charge of facilitating the elections and making sure all policies are followed.

"It's important for students to go out and vote because it's their vote being heard. If they don't vote wisely, they won't be represented wisely," Bailey said.

Paparazzi blamed in Dianna's death

Photographers investigated; alcohol still main cause of crash

By Jeffrey Ulbrich
Associated Press

PARIS (AP) — Picture-hungry Paparazzi pushed away the first police officer to rush to the scene of the Princess Diana car wreck, police were quoted as saying yesterday. But the photographers protested they are being turned into scapegoats. "There is enormous government and public pressure," Jacques Langevin, a photographer being investigated in the case, told the Associated Press.

Another photographer, one of the first on the scene, said he opened the car door hoping to help.

"I saw the princess sitting on the floor, her back to me," Romuald Rat told France-2 television. "I said in English to stay calm, that I was there, that help would arrive." Doctors later said she was unconscious.

But now, Rat's boss said, "a total injustice" is being done to the photographer through the criminal investigation.

Langevin, Rat, four other photographers and a photo-agency motorcyclist are under investigation on allegations of manslaughter and failing to aid an accident victim, a crime under French law, in the deaths of Diana, her boyfriend, Dodi Fayed and their driver, killed when their car crashed at high speed in a tunnel along the Seine River early Sunday.

Driver Henri Paul, who blood tests indicated was drunk, apparently had been trying to elude celebrity photographers following on motorcycles. Paul was an employee of the Ritz Hotel, owned by Fayed's father, Mohamed Al Fayed.

The Paris daily Le Monde reported Diana's family and the British royal family are considering joining the case as civil parties, which would give them representation in court and access to documents. A lawyer for the elder Fayed has said he also would join the case.

In central London yesterday, thousands of mourners thronged the royal palaces for a fourth straight day, depositing flowers and other remembrances on sidewalks, and waiting patiently for hours in line to sign books of condolence at St. James's Palace, where Diana's coffin lay inside a closed chapel, awaiting Saturday's funeral at Westminster Abbey.

Fearing an unmanageable crush of crowds Saturday, Buckingham Palace extended the funeral procession route by more than two miles. It will now start from Kensington Palace, Diana's home. The royal family issued a statement saying it was "deeply touched and enormously grateful" for the nation's response. Some had criticized the Windsors for their stoic near-silence in public since the tragedy.

There were earlier reports the pursuing Paparazzi tangled with police at the accident scene, but yesterday's article in the Figaro newspaper was the first of an official police account.

Citing initial reports by investigators, Le Figaro said photographers — unidentified — pushed back the first officer to arrive at the scene. Citing first reports by investigators. All the first policeman could see was "a blonde head" in the crushed vehicle, it said.

"They pushed back and blocked the officer from coming to the aid of the victims," the newspaper quoted the police report as saying.

Rat's boss, Didier Contant, chief editor of the Gamma photo agency, said his photographer, who has first-aid training, was one of the first at the scene and was quickly at Diana's side. "He took her pulse and said, 'Do not move, please. Help is coming.' As soon as help came, he moved back right away," Contant said.

Rat said in the TV interview he did not call for help because he heard someone else saying they would do so. He said he began shooting photos after help arrived.

"He is in shock because he saw a terrible drama and he thinks a total injustice has been done to him," Contant said. He blamed "diplomatic pressure" to show that France is taking action on the British princess's death.

Langevin, a journalist with more than 20 years of experience covering dangerous stories from Beirut to Beijing, called the charges "exaggerated."

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK/ COLLEGIAN

Fighting for fun?
First year students Alden Tallman and Jon Barratt fight it out yesterday in front of the Student Union.

Harshbarger approves questions

By Glen Johnson
Associated Press

BOSTON — Term limits supporters and tax cut advocates cleared a major hurdle yesterday, as Attorney General Scott Harshbarger approved their proposed ballot questions for the 1998 and 2000 state elections.

Harshbarger, who by virtue of his office must certify that all proposed ballot questions pass legal and constitutional muster, also approved a ballot question proposing the eventual elimination of tolls on the Massachusetts Turnpike and Boston-area tunnels and bridges.

In perhaps the biggest legal issue before him, Harshbarger rejected an argument from term limits opponents that a proposed 2000 constitutional amendment was too similar to a term limits ballot question that was approved by voters in 1994 but overturned by the Supreme Judicial Court in July.

State law says that if the questions are deemed similar, supporters must let two elections pass before proposing the ballot question again. While the question won't be voted upon for two more years, the question must be proposed in 1998 in order for it to be on the 2000 ballot.

"There is a big difference between asking voters if they want to approve a new law on term limits and asking voters if they want to change the state constitution," the attorney general said in a statement.

"It's a much different process. In addition, the SJC just said that the right way to get term limits on the books in Massachusetts is through a constitutional amendment. The voters should have that opportunity."

On a separate but related point, Harshbarger also certified a question for the 1998 election that proposes allowing candidates for Congress from Massachusetts to take a term limits pledge and have that fact noted on the ballot next to

Turn to ballot, page 2

Clinton renews pledge to education

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press

OAK BLUFFS — President Clinton greeted the new school year yesterday by telling teachers it would be a terrible mistake for the Republican Congress to reject national testing to measure student performance.

"If there's one place politics ought to stop in America, it's at the schoolhouse door," Clinton said as his aides raised the prospect of a veto should Congress vote to scuttle the tests. Taking an hour off from his summer vacation, Clinton drove to a teacher orientation meeting at Oak Bluffs Elementary School to renew his pitch for national standards in such basic subjects as reading, math and science and for the voluntary testing he said is needed to gauge the results.

He called on the teachers seated in rows before him and on their counterparts across the country to send a clear message to the House and Senate "that you believe in standards and accountability for all of our children."

He spoke as a vote neared in the House on a bid by Rep. William Goodling (R-Pa.), chairman of the House education committee, to forbid the Department of Education to spend any money to test fourth-graders in reading and eighth-graders in math. Goodling hopes to add the amendment to a spending bill for the Education and Health and Human Services departments.

He said recently, "The president's plan is a waste of taxpayers' money and won't do anything except increase federal involvement in our schools."

Education Secretary Richard Riley is pushing Clinton to promise a veto of the bill, should Goodling prevail.

"The tests should not be misused but neither should we pretend it's not needed," the president told more than 80 Martha's Vineyard teachers gathered in the school's computer-equipped library.

"It would be a terrible mistake for people who are afraid our children can't measure up or who have a misguided notion that somehow the federal government is trying to take over the direction of education in America to persuade their members of Congress not to fund the tests," he said.

"And that's basically the issue we are going to be fighting out over the next few weeks."

THANG VU/ COLLEGIAN

Here's singing to you class of 2001...
An a capella group sang for new students at this week's convocation.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Property Damage
Aug. 29
A minor two-vehicle accident occurred in Southwest Circle.
Sept. 2
A two-vehicle accident occurred on University Drive. No injuries were reported.

Animal Complaint
Sept. 2
An opossum was removed from the doorway of Patterson Residence Hall.

Annoying Behavior
Aug. 31
A group of individuals were reported throwing a keg against Kennedy Residence Hall.
A female resident from Patterson Resident Hall reported a peeping tom in the women's shower area.

Burglary/Breaking and Entering
Aug. 29
A vehicle's window was smashed in parking lot 49 on Windmill Lane.

Family Offenses, Domestics
Aug 29
A restraining order was served to a resident in Brown Residence Hall.

Health/Safety Hazard
Aug. 31
A vehicle was leaking gas on Orchard Hill Drive.
Environmental Health and Safety responded to a report of a blocked fire door at Patterson Residence Hall.
Sept. 3
Environmental Health and Safety was called to check on a grill outside of Crampton Residence Hall.

Larceny
Aug. 30
An individual moving into John Quincy Adams Residence Hall reported personal belongings stolen.
Aug. 31
An individual reported a wallet stolen in parking lot 50 on Emerson Road.
A MacKimmie Resident reported losing her UMass ID card outside of the building.
Sept. 1
Two CD players were reported stolen from the Campus Center.
Sept. 2
An antenna was ripped from a vehicle parked in the Campus Center Garage.

Liquor Law Violations
Sept. 1
Allison Foley, 19, 14 Jefferson Ave., Norwell and Aaron M. Armer, 19, 692 Central Turnpike, Sutton, were arrested for illegal possession and transporting liquor.
Tyler J. Churchill, 19, 9 Riverview Ter., West Haven, Conn., was arrested for illegal possession and transporting liquor.

Noise Complaint
Sept. 1
Evan R. Wiley, 17, 40 Partridge Rd., Worthington, was arrested on Clark Hill Road for possession of Class C and D drugs.

Suspicious Vehicle
Sept. 3
George J. Charnota, 21, 9 Milldam Rd., Acton, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Traffic Stop
Aug. 29
Joshua E. Taylor, 20, 351 Bridge St., Northampton, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license.
Aug 31
James B. Bruncau, 22, 123 Peck Ave., West Haven, Conn., was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license and speeding.
Sept. 1
Patrick A. Curley III, 21, 12 Midland Rd., Lynnfield was arrested on Massachusetts Avenue for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Vandalism
Aug. 29
Two individuals were reported attempting to break into newspaper vending machines on Presidents Drive.
Aug. 30
A vehicle was damaged in parking lot 21 on University Drive.
Sept. 1
A door was ripped off its hinges in Van Meter Residence Hall.
Sept. 2
A vehicle parked on Thatcher Way was spray painted.

Looking to express your voice, to become more involved in the campus Jewish community, to gain news writing experience? If so, the Jewish Affairs Desk is here waiting for you.

The Jewish Affairs Desk is seeking writers to help cover various cultural events, speeches and activities related to the Jewish community. The desk is also looking for writers to develop feature articles, opinion columns and personal perspectives ranging from experiences in Israel to right here in Amherst.

The Jewish Affairs page can be a valuable educational tool for the campus community, and this semester we hope to make it stronger. There will be a meeting for prospective writers on Thursday, Sept. 11 at 6 p.m. If you cannot make it call Bryan Schwartzman at 545-1851.

■ ballot

continued from page 1

next to their names.

If the candidate later exceeded the number of terms pledged, the ballot would note that. The measure is necessary because the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that congressional terms can be limited only with an amendment to the U.S. Constitution, not a change in state law.

Meanwhile, the attorney general approved another ballot question that proposes scaling back the personal income tax rate from 5.95 percent to 5 percent over a three-year period. The legality of that question was never particularly in doubt.

Another question deemed valid would reduce the tax on so-called unearned income — interest and dividends, for example — from its current 12 percent to the same 5 percent rate proposed for personal income.

The turnpike question is sponsored by the Free the Pike Coalition, the same people who proposed a similar question in 1996 but then fell short of the necessary signatures to get it on the ballot.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

WELCOMING BACK STUDENTS

UNIVERSITY STORE
Textbook Annex
AMHERST

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19TH, 1997.

Beginning MONDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1997 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore: do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.
Any incorrect titles purchased after SEPT. 19, 1997 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase.
Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.
Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is FRIDAY SEPT. 19 1997.

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

textbook annex
Fall '97 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Visa, MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback
9/04/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/05/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/06/97	NO BUYBACK
9/07/97	CLOSED
9/08/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/09/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/10/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/11/97	9 am – 5 pm
9/12/97	9 am – 5 pm

annex rush
9/04/97	9 am – 9 pm
9/05/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/06/97	11 am – 5 pm
9/07/97	CLOSED
9/08/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/09/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/10/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/11/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/12/97	9 am – 6 pm

UMass Briefs

Professors publish
Alan G. Robinson, a University of Massachusetts School of Management professor along with Sam Stern of Oregon State University have co-authored a book titled, Corporate Creativity.
Within the book, the authors argue that corporate managers can only increase creativity and innovation in business if they look where it is least expected. The authors set the premise that managers cannot predict who, when, where, or how creative ideas will happen.

In the Aug. 29 issue of Science, polymer science and engineering professor Murugappan Muthukumar has published research on the creation of materials which may hold the key to new technologies.
Muthukumar, along with University alumni Christopher Ober and E.L. Thomas, wrote the article for Science.

Funds
The Massachusetts Arborists Association (MAA) has pledged $300,000 for the establishment of a $1.2 million professorship in commercial arboriculture at UMass.
An initial payment of $125,000 has been made to Campaign UMass, the University's comprehensive campaign to raise $125 million in support of academic and student programs, improving the image of UMass and enlisting advocates.

In a collaborative effort to improve math and science teaching from kindergarten through college, UMass, along with Hampshire, Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, Smith Colleges, Springfield Technical, Holyoke and Greenfield Community Colleges, have received a $5 million, five-year grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF).
The project's main goal is helping teachers and prospective teachers to learn the most effective ways of teaching math and science.
The program will involve more than 5,000 college undergraduates, 2,000 K–12 students, 80 college faculty members and more than 200 K–12 teachers.

—compiled by Jonathan Liberty.

Big Tobacco takes big hit

By Curt Anderson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Reversing course by an unexpectedly large margin, the Senate dealt the tobacco industry a blow yesterday by approving the Clinton administration's $34 million request for a crackdown on cigarette sales to teen-agers.
"Big tobacco fought it because they want to keep on getting these kids hooked," said Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa, the main sponsor of legislation backing the administration's funding request. "This is one step in a big battle, but it's a great step."
In July, the Senate rejected an attempt to fully fund the Food and Drug Administration program that would provide money for all 50 states to ensure stores are checking identification to prevent minors from buying tobacco products. Instead, the Senate had approved just $4.9 million, enough for perhaps 10 states.
During the August congressional recess, tobacco foes lobbied furiously to boost the amount, focusing on a provision of the just-completed balanced budget deal that permits tobacco companies to use $50 billion from a future cigarette tax increase to help pay for the proposed national settlement of health-related smoking lawsuits.
Harkin also changed the source of the $34 million for FDA from an assessment on tobacco companies to a reduction in computer money for the Agriculture Department.
"I think in many cases people have had a closer look and that they feel very comfortable with the vote," said Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.), who switched his vote.
When the issue came to a vote yesterday, senators joined Daschle in rejecting an attempt to kill Harkin's amendment by a surprisingly decisive 70-28 vote. Harkin's previous effort failed 52-48.
The amendment was added to the Agriculture Department spending bill for fiscal 1998. It now goes to a conference committee to be reconciled with the House version. The House has approved $24 million for the FDA youth anti-smoking initiative.
Meanwhile, a Senate committee continued hearings Wednesday on the proposed $368 billion settlement of state health-related smoking lawsuits despite growing sentiment that Congress will put the issue off until next year because of its complexity and controversial nature.
"At this point, it doesn't appear as if we're prepared... to come to any conclusion about the tobacco agreement," Daschle said. "We want to make sure we've covered the bases."

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNER/ COLLEGIAN

Where's my hard hat?
Sports still progress despite construction on and around Garber Field.

THE COLLEGIAN NEWS DESK CURRENTLY HAS TWO OPEN POSITIONS FOR ASSOCIATE EDITORS. NEWS ASSOCIATE IS A PAID POSITION AND INVOLVES IN-DEPTH REPORTING AND FEATURE WRITING WITH SPECIFIC FOCUS IN AN ASSIGNED BEAT. FOR AN APPLICATION OR MORE DETAILS REGARDING THE POSITION, COME DOWN TO 113 CAMPUS CENTER AND ASK FOR JONATHAN LIBERTY, NEWS EDITOR, OR CALL 545-1762. THE COLLEGIAN IS AN EQUAL-OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER.

GET INVOLVED!

Are you critical about the UMass community? Do you want to inform your peers about events happening on campus? If you possess strong writing skills and dedication, come report for the Collegian — we always need new writers. The News Desk is a great place to start. Come down to 113 Campus Center and speak to Jonathan Liberty, News Editor.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080
Rt. 116, So. Amherst

J. Crew
Clothing Sale
Sept. 16 - Sept. 19

Temporary Help needed for large J. Crew Clothing Sale to be held at The Mullins Center at the University of Massachusetts September 16 - 19, 1997

To sign up, stop by table #20 in the Campus Center Concourse next to the Information Booth on Monday 9/8 from 9am - 4pm and Tuesday 9/9 from 9am - 1pm

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
presents
First Week '97
Comedy Show with
Michael Dean Ester

FREE FREE

Michael Dean Ester
Also featuring
Comic: Will Mathews
Thursday September 4
Campus Center Auditorium
8pm

COMEDY AIR SHOWN AT 10PM

Check us out on the INTERNET:
http://www.umass.edu/campact/events/calendar.htm
for more information, or call Joseph Tolson 413-545-3600

University unions benefit all

Some of you might remember seeing groups of 30 to 40 average-looking people in spring 1996, joined together walking in circles and carrying signs at the main door of the Whitmore Building.

focus on: Labor Issues

Brian L. Narkewicz

Those men and women were members of the University of Massachusetts police department who staged informational pickets to publicly voice their displeasure with perceived delays in contract negotiations.

The UMass police, who are represented by the International Brotherhood of Police Officers Union, concluded their negotiations with the Board of Trustees in August 1996. The agreement reached was retroactive to Jan. 1, 1995 and remains in effect until Dec. 31, 1997.

Police officers aren't the only ones represented by unions here at UMass. On the contrary, the majority of the thousands of employees on campus have union affiliation. Unions play an integral role in the quality of the University's working community. They empower their members to do better for themselves and improve their working conditions. They provide procedures for the equitable resolution of grievances, terms of employment and means by which the employer and union consult on mutually perceived problems.

The IBPO was formed over 30 years ago by a small group of Rhode Island police officers. The officers were being harassed by officials in the communities they served and sought the assistance of the National Association of Government Employees and the tremendous resources they had at their disposal. IBPO's appeal to NAGE was received favorably and this marked the beginning of their affiliation.

> "The majority of the thousands of employees on campus have union affiliation. Unions play an integral role in the quality of the University's working community."

The UMass police department has been a member of the IBPO since September 18, 1972 and has been very active in legislative matters that both directly and indirectly affect members of our University community. For instance, in bringing about competitive benefits and wages we have ensured that competent and well-trained police officers are on hand to provide public safety. Our efforts to develop an Educational Incentive Plan will help in the retention of those officers with college degrees who offer a direct link to our academic environment.

The IBPO, through its affiliate NAGE, has also been a driving force for beneficial legislation in behalf of law enforcement officers throughout the country. The current $100,000 death benefit for survivors of law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty is a direct result of the union's powerful influence in Washington.

Every member of our community is impacted by the role of organized labor. It is in recognition of this fact that our nation has chosen to distinguish the labor movement through the observance of a national holiday.

Brian L. Narkewicz is the President of the IBPO Local 432A at UMass.

Faith lives on

I'd like to share with you the story of Semyon Klich, a Russian man I had the good fortune to interview over the summer.

Klich moved to my hometown, Andover, four years ago from St. Petersburg, Russia, where he had lived most of his life.

Nearing 70 years of age, Klich is a small man who has retained both his full head of hair and his health. Radiating energy, Klich speaks quickly and with intensity. His English is accented, but clear, and his words are gripping.

A skilled radar engineer and author, Klich left Russia to escape the rampant anti–Semitism he encountered in his homeland.

"In one meeting [in which] Klich shared with me his account of what it was like to live Jewish in Russia, I how horrible growing up in a country where, because of his religion, he was not considered a true citizen, and where he was unable to publicly share his faith.

Tamar Carroll

"It is terrible to remember," Klich began.

"I left Russia four years ago, at the time after Perestroika [the policy of restructuring, instituted by Mikhail Gorbachev] began, and the situation had changed a great deal.

"There was more religious freedom, and some synagogues were reborn. It is important to know that synagogues were mostly closed before Perestroika, and only in two big cities, Moscow and St. Petersburg, did they have one synagogue. Giant cities, with one synagogue.

"Many people were afraid to attend the synagogue. The Jewish religion was repressed in many ways. People were afraid to show they wanted to attend the synagogues. Only retired people attended," Klich continued.

"On our passports we were identified as either Russian or Jewish. If you were Jewish, it was very difficult to find a good job or enroll in a good university.

"All my life I have felt that I am not a person as Russian persons are because I'm Jewish. I was feeling that I am not an equal to them," Klich confessed.

"In my enterprise, despite that I was able to do more than other Russian people and even high bosses, I wasn't able to be the boss, because I was Jewish."

"Before, anti–Semitism was state legalized. But now, anti– Semitism still exists in the form that offends the Jewish people. It's another kind of anti–Semitism," he concluded.

Klich's words have had a great impact on me; I have been unable to remove them from my memory since I spoke with him in July.

I think of Klich every time I walk through the door of my church to celebrate Mass, and feel grateful that I am free to practice my religion.

I have never feared that going to church would put me at risk of being attacked or that proclaiming my faith could keep me from going to school or getting a job.

My small hometown of 30,000 residents has two synagogues and many churches. I cannot imagine what it would be like if our large cities, like Boston or New York, had only one synagogue, only one place of worship for millions of people.

Klich told me that he is now attending services at the synagogue and celebrating the Jewish holidays openly for the first time in his life.

I also can not imagine what it would be like to live for 60 years without expressing my religion and yet to still maintain my faith. Klich made me question what my religion means to me — what would my faith be like if I never went to Mass, couldn't celebrate Christmas and Easter and couldn't share my faith outside of my family?

What would my faith be like if I never joined in group prayer, if I never went to Sunday School, or had a youth group?

In short, what would my faith be like without any of the trappings or the support of organized religion?

Klich has both reminded me of the significance of freedom of religion and inspired me to reevaluate what my own faith is based on and to explore the line between faith and religion.

Tamar Carroll is a Collegian staff member.

Disagreeing with the Agreement

The Multilateral Agreement on Investments (MAI) — it is "an agreement by governments to protect international investors and their investments and to liberalize investment regimes." If that way of thinking about it bores you, try this one: It is an incredibly complex plot that obscures the very simple goal of complete control of the international economy.

focus on Labor Issues

Daniel Bodah

Does this sound like Cold War–era, doom–mongering about the Communist Threat? Guess again; this is the Capitalist Threat.

On May 31, The Boston-Cambridge Alliance for Democracy hosted the first public discussion of the MAI to occur in the United States.

That this was a first is surprising, considering that the important agreement is "90 percent complete." The MAI, which expands on certain aspects of the unpopular NAFTA, has been negotiated behind closed doors. Until this summer, even many Congresspeople (who will eventually be called on to ratify it into law) had not heard about it.

The United States Council for International Business (USCIB) has been privy to negotiations, though, giving the State Department its take on how the MAI should read.

No one should be surprised to hear that there is no labor representation. Especially when the USCIB's president wrote, "We will oppose any and all measures to create or even imply binding obligations [in the MAI] for governments or business related to... labor."

The Alliance for Democracy conference included eight plenary panels covering a variety of areas which the MAI, if adopted, will impact. In the plenary I went to, we discussed the impact the MAI will have on labor movements, and directions labor can take in navigating the hostile global economy.

Thea Lee, the Assistant Director for International Economics at the AFL–CIO, discussed a Labor Forum held in Brazil by organizations from throughout the Americas last May. The Forum coincided with a meeting of trade ministers next door, at which the ministers were working toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas.

> "Workers need to take a stance on what form a globalized economy will have."

According to Lee, the ministers were furious at even the mention of the possibility of labor having a trace of input into their negotiations. Much like the USCIB.

The major concern for labor in these ongoing movements toward globalizing the economy may at this point be simply getting a say.

However, there are also bigger issues that need to be tackled.

Although a globalized economy may be a natural extension of the direction technological advance is going, workers need to take a stance on what form that economy will have. Building an international labor movement now is important to keep up with the schemes of corporations that realize how easily labor can be abused in some other nations.

Racism and fear of losing jobs to workers in less–costly countries also poses the danger that workers here in the United States could be played against their fellows abroad, surely to the delight of business interests.

Those negotiating the MAI have tipped their hand: they are aiming for enforceable international laws that would trump such pesky annoyances as the minimum wage, worker safety regulations, child labor laws, and anything else that diminishes the investor's bang for his buck. How well they succeed depends to an extent on what we let them get away with.

The full draft text of the MAI is available online at "http://www.citizen.org/gtw".

Daniel Bodah is a Collegian columnist.

Focus on Race

The Collegian Editorial page needs writers for an upcoming series, Focus on Race. If you are interested in contributing: call 545–1491, e–mail "letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu," or come by the Collegian offices at Campus Center 113 and speak with Dan Bodah.

Write for Ed/Op!
The Collegian Editorial page needs new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, satire, lifestyle, or any of a thousand other styles — let us be as broad as the student body is.
All who are interested should attend a New Writer's meeting on Friday, Sept. 5 at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, call 545– 1491.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryen Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prester Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Dance floor guerrillas: techno-punks bring the noise

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

PRODIGY
The Fat of the Land
Maverick/XL

When Prodigy's "Firestarter" lit up the singles charts last fall, it appeared that electronica — the industry buzzword for machine–generated dance music — was at long last poised for a North American breakthrough. Finally, the hype dispensers said, the rave new world of Europe was about to show American teens a way out of their guitar–dominated cul de sac.

Of course, missing from these pronouncements was an acknowledgment that electronic music has been an integral part of the pop music fabric in this country since the late 70's. It all begs asks one question: What is the house founded in Chicago, the techno that charged Detroit, and the hip–hop that blossomed from the rubble of the South Bronx if not electronic music?

Hot on the heels of a multimillion–dollar deal with Madonna's Maverick label comes Prodigy's wildly anticipated The Fat of the Land (Maverick/XL). It is hard to believe that only two years ago, Prodigy's domestic debut, Music for the filted Generation, fell flat and the band lost its American record deal.

Will the reception be different this time around? Undoubtedly. The album debuted at No. 1 on Billboard's album chart, and has been entrenched in the top ten since its July release. Of all the recent releases by the new wave of British electronic acts, The Fat of the Land (which includes the incendiary "Firestarter") is the likeliest candidate for commercial crossover success.

The reason is not only because Prodigy has two charismatic vocalists (Maxim, the scary dread–locked and kilted one and Keith Flint, the white, inverse mohawked version of Maxim), but because of the diversity of its content; hip–hop, techno and hard rock/punk sensibilities are all intertwined in the familiarity of mastermind Liam Howlett's clever breakbeat style.

Howlett clearly adores American hip–hop and he's not afraid to wear his inspirations on his sleeve. By stacking Derrick Carter–style breakbeats end to end like dominos on the opening "Smack My Bitch Up," he evokes the breathless linear momentum of Public Enemy's "Bring the Noise" or Run D.M.C.'s "Sucker MC's" — both of which are purely electronic concoctions that nonetheless rock like hell.

Howlett even recruited the elusive Kool Keith (a.k.a. Dr. Octagon) of the seminal hip–hop outfit Ultramagnetic MC's to throw down a vicious rap on "Diesel Power," a song that stands out as techno's best attempt at hip–hop with tambourine–laced beats that reciprocate the smoothness of Keith's rhymes.

"Breathe," the album's second single, brilliantly infuses a call–and–response chorus with a maelstrom of throbbing beats and well–constructed dance grooves, not to mention the haunting strumming of an acoustic guitar that bridges a sinister chorus with the second verse.

Destined to become a club classic, "Funky Shit" deftly intertwines highly orchestrated rhythms around a heavy electronic noise sample reminiscent of a boiling kettle whistle, adding the occasional "Oh my god that's some funky shit!" rant courtesy of the Beastie Boys. Guaranteed to perform as well in your car as at the clubs or even at frat parties, "Funky Shit" could very well make Prodigy the first techno band to break through on all these levels.

Still, for all of the futuristic undertones in his barrage, Howlett looks backwards to punk for his primary inspiration more often than not. It's an impression cemented by Prodigy's recent club tour, when the band's relentless but simplistic assault evoked not so much the future of rock — as so many claim them to be — but rather the "no future" threatened by Johnny Rotten and the Sex

Turn to PRODIGY, page 8

COURTESY MORTEN LARSON

Prodigy mastermind Liam Howlett (second from left) rekindles the punk fury of the Sex Pistols on The Fat Of The Land.

Bushnell prepares for a number of Broadway shows

By Alex Iglesias
Collegian Staff

The Bushnell Theater's Broadway series will soon close its season as one of Broadway's newest hits, Chicago, takes the stage. The musical will be making a stop at the Hartford theater on Oct. 21–26 as part of its two–year national tour.

Chicago has captivated audiences around the country since its debut in 1996, bringing about a unique sense of theater. With its outrageously believable plot — like something out of a daytime soap opera — Chicago creates a fascinating fantasy world filled with money, murder, swindling lawyers and seduction. It's a non–stop journey through the life story of a murderess, Roxie Hart, who evades punishment for her merciless crime, while still manipulating the ever–so–gullible media as she quickly rises to stardom.

Chicago was considered the best show on Broadway during the 1996 theater season and has continued to be one of the most vibrant and eye–catching productions of the year. It's a power–packed combo of music and dance, filled with some of the stage's sexiest dance choreography and exploding with crowd pleasing hits like "All that Jazz," "Mr. Cellophane" and "Razzle Dazzle," composed by the Tony Award–winning team of John Kander and Fred Ebb (Kiss of the Spider Women, Cabaret). Chicago creates a dynamically stupendous show that leaves you wondering if murder could ever seem so intriguing... so sexy.

Turn to BUSHNELL, page 8

Squire, Seahorses disappoint with boring first release

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

SEAHORSES
Do It Yourself
Geffen

Crazy, wild and heart–pumping rock n' roll. The kind that gets under your skin and makes you choose some goofy, body–jacking manifestation of enjoyment, be it bashing your head or moving your feet. Unexpected hooks that just sound so right, it's as if the song were always there, it just took somebody to become a schizophrenic to find it. Unfortunately, these are all things that the Seahorses don't provide.

With John Squire, formerly of the Stone Roses, playing guitar, I expected a little more jab from the band. Having producer Tony Visconti, collaborator on numerous David Bowie, T–Rex and Thin Lizzie records, I expected a little more creativity. Instead, where there should be punch, there is just defense... a careful plan not to drive you to rock ecstasy. Squire's once brilliant guitar squalls have now been reduced to snoozy, almost self–servicing solos. Do It Yourself seems to have a recycled feel, it's little wonder. Everything here has been done before, and better, on the Stone Roses' 1989 self–titled debut.

Vocalist Chris Helme is a decent enough singer, but lacks the visceral drawl of Ian Brown. You could do much worse, but probably not more boring. C

MATCHBOX 20
Yourself Or Someone Like You
Lava/Atlantic

One hit wonders — we know the songs, but who played them? Whatever happened to Modern English ("I Melt With You") and all of those other bands on those cheesy compilations? Well, here's a band that may have that title soon: their name is Matchbox 20, and their hit is called "Push." After the single's well–structured melodicism, the other tunes on Yourself or Someone Like You seem like flimsy plywood imitations trying to replicate the magic of that one song.. but it doesn't work. On top of that, it's merely second–generation Candlebox. Can you say "Dishwalla Part II?" D

MORRISSEY
Maladjusted
Mercury

Morrissey? Maladjusted? Who would have thought? After an incredible career with the hugely influential Smiths, many pass off his solo career as simply reliving his past glories. That simply is not the case. Maladjusted is his eighth studio effort and on it, Morrissey is right where he's always been and right where we want him to be — in the throes of turmoil. The title track is Morrissey at his finest, both lyrically and musically. The familiar sound of his gorgeous voice effortlessly belting out heartfelt sentiments of personal upheaval soothe the soul while his acerbic lyrics bite back with a sugar–coated voracity. When he croons "Trouble Loves Me," it's nearly impossible not to be convinced of his emotions, awash in his perfunctory melancholic grandeur.

The true gem of Maladjusted, though, is "Satan Rejected My Soul."

Turn to TRAX, page 6

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 Four Months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

TAU Distribution
YOU CAN:
Pick up a TAU
Start an EMAIL Account
Purchase Necessary Software
Thursday September 4th &
Friday September 5th
9am- 5pm
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 165-69
For on Campus Residents Only.
You Must Have a Student ID.
Please note: You will not be issued a TAU if you live in a building connected to the Residential Network

NEWMAN CENTER
FALL OPPORTUNITIES
Be A Part of the Newman Community
HOW?
- As a Lector - training on 9/15 or 9/16 at 7 PM
- As a Eucharistic Minister - training on 9/17 or 9/18 at 7 pm
- As a Musician (singers and instrumentalists) for Liturgies
- Join NSA (The Newman Student Association) or The Graduate Student Group -meetings on Sundays at 8 PM
- Join RCIA (The Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults):
  Do you want to be confirmed?
  Be a sponsor
- Enroll in the Course: The Christian Spiritual Journey
  (3 credit, Gen.Ed.-ID, transferable to UMass
- Join the Bible Study/Prayer Group for students

For more information on these programs contact the Newman Center office at 549-0300.
The Newman Center - 472 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 01002

Cheerleading Try-Outs
on: 9/8, 9/9, 9/10
6pm - 9pm
@ Curry Hicks Cage
Call Kevin Thompson 665-0056
Come and Join the nationally ranked squad

Minutemaniacs
Member Registration 1997-98
UMass' student athletic booster club, the Minutemaniacs, is looking for 500 blue chip recruits for the '97-'98 season!
Minutemaniac Benefits:
- Advance Ticket Pickup
- Minutemaniac T-Shirt
- Game Receptions
- "The UMass Maniac" Newsletter
- Membership Card

Great Value at $25.00 to Join!
LIMITED TO ONLY 500 UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS
You may also join us at the following games and fill out a registration form: Women's Soccer v. Michigan on Friday, Sept. 5, at 4:30 p.m., Totman Field Field Hockey v. California on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 11:00 a.m., Garber Field Volleyball v. Dayton on Friday Sept. 19, at 7:00 p.m., Curry Hicks Cage
If you have any questions, give us a call at 545-9872.
Complete form below, cut, and mail to: Minutemaniacs at:
308 Mullins Center • University of Massachusetts • Box 35910 • Amherst, MA 01003
Application for Minutemaniacs Membership
Student Name: _____
Student #: _____ Year at UMass: _____
Local Address: _____
Local Phone: _____
Home Address: _____ Home Phone: _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Make checks payable to: UMAA!
Or Charge to your credit card: Visa ☐ Mastercard ☐ Discover ☐
Number _____ Expiration Date _____

Networks ready for battle; line-ups set for approaching season

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The fall season is upon us and the networks are scrambling to get our attention. This season, we'll learn whether Doug and Carol finally get together on "ER" or if Mulder really committed suicide on the "X-Files." The networks are also bringing back a couple of television veterans to tempt viewers into watching.

After a dismal year with the Nielsens, ABC has the most ground to make up. The network's broadcast of a U2 concert this summer set an all-time record — the wrong kind. The concert drew the lowest ever ratings recorded for a television show.

ABC used to rule Friday nights with its teen-orientated line-up. Two of the shows from that line-up, "Family Matters" and "Step by Step," have jumped ship to CBS. "Family Matters," which is the most popular television show among African-Americans, spent eight seasons on ABC. "Step by Step" which features Patrick Duffy and Suzanne Sommers, made the switch when the sitcom kept getting bumped for the lackluster "Clueless."

In addition, "Roseanne" ended its eighth run on ABC this past spring and the saccharine laden "Lois & Clark" did not make the cut for the fall season. You can check out the reruns of the action series on TNT starting this fall. Dean Cain fans can also catch the former Superman in Best Men, due in October and Dog Boys, which wrapped in June. Bob Saget, the longtime host of "America's Funniest Home Videos" joins Roseanne in bidding ABC adios. Saget has hosted the show since 1990

COURTESY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Cosby returns for a second season of "Cosby" on CBS.

while Rhea Perlman starred in "Pearl." Both shows fared less than well and were cancelled this fall. You can catch former "Cheers" fixture George Wendt on Tea Leoni's "Naked Truth" and of course Kelsey Grammar as he continues to breathe life into his role as Frasier Crane in "Frasier."

So far, "Frasier," which is entering its fifth season, has fared the best out of all attempts by the "Cheers" veterans. This November, the sitcom will air its 100th episode. Grammar attributed the popularity of his show to the character he plays. He described the neurotic Seattle psychiatrist at a press conference as "a wonderfully self- sacrificing, self-obsessed human being, and that's probably what makes him recognizable to most people."

Hoping to echo Grammar's success, Kirstie Alley is returning to the tube in "Veronica's Closet." Alley described her character to the New York Daily News saying, "She's not that savvy. She started out as a model, get it? She's not that bright in business. She's not that bright. That's pretty much who she is." Alley's show has landed in the Thursday night line-up.

Fred Savage, all grown up, is back and ready to tackle another television series in NBC's "Working." Since the end of "The Wonder Years," Savage has been studying English literature at Stanford.

"Another series wasn't really on the agenda for me because I wanted to finish up school," Savage told critics. "But this stood head and shoulders above any other script I'd seen. It offered me the opportunity to play this grown-up guy."

The new series, which has also landed a great spot on NBC's Wednesday night line-up, would make Dilbert proud. Savage plays Mike Peyser, an idealistic college grad who hopes to succeed by trying really hard.

It's more than friendship keeping the cast of the hit NBC sitcom "Friends" together. It's more like a grunt load of cash to the tune of $85,000 per episode which will have Jennifer Aniston, Courtney Cox, David Schwimmer, Lisa Kudrow, Matt Leblanc and Matthew Perry hanging out at NBC through the year 2000.

The new agreement between NBC and "Friends" producer Warner Brothers stipulates that NBC will fork over $5 million per episode for the upcoming season. Previously, NBC had been paying roughly $1 million per episode. Because of the increased costs, advertisers can expect to pay more than the previous rate of $450,000 per 30 second spot.

Last season, "Third Rock From the Sun" reigned as one of the top sitcoms on the air, winning both Emmys and Golden Globes. This coming season, Roseanne will make a guest appearance as the alien wife of Dick (John Lithgow). According to an NBC spokesman, Roseanne's role may be recurring if audience reaction is favorable.

Joining "Third Rock" and "Working" on NBC's Wednesday night line-up will be television veteran Tony Danza. Danza, who flopped in a series last year, returns with "The Tony Danza Show." On the show, Danza plays a sports columnist and single father of two girls. Maria Canals co- stars as Danza's assistant, who helps him out of various jams.

CBS is emerging as the big winner this season. Its Monday night line-up remains strong with lead-in "Cosby" followed by "Murphy Brown" and "Cybil."

Joining the Monday line-up is "George & Leo," a new sitcom starring Bob Newhart and Judd Hirsch. Newhart plays a widowed bookstore owner living on Martha's Vineyard. Hirsh is Leo, Newhart's satirical foil. The two meet when Hirsch's daughter is about to marry Newhart's son. Don't expect sexy scenes or double entendre from "George & Leo." Newhart anticipates his show will contain cleaner humor than other television offerings.

COURTESY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kirstie Alley will try her luck in a new show debuting on NBC Thursdays.

"That isn't the kind of show I like to do," Newhart told the Associated Press. "I think we can go a little further than we have in the past, but not like some of the shows I've seen. They're more shock than they are funny."

In the long-running "Murphy Brown," the title character (played by Candice Bergen) will develop breast cancer. The story line is based on anchorwoman Linda Ellerbee's fight with breast cancer.

"Anything that speaks of breast cancer above a whisper is ultimately good for women," Ellerbee said about the new twist in Murphy's life.

CBS has perfected the art of grabbing shows from other networks. Last year, it picked up NBC's "JAG." In addition to scooping up "Step by Step" and "Family Matters," the network has added NBC's "Unsolved Mysteries" to its Friday night lineup.

Parents beware: Weird Al Yankovic is taking to the airways.

"I was a warped little boy, and now I'm out to warp the youth of America," Yankovic said. His new show will air Sunday mornings on CBS. Yankovic will live in a cave with Harvey the Hamster as his companion.

Compiled from various wire and media services by Seema Gangatirkar.

■ trax

continued from page 5

Clearly one of the best song titles he has ever come up with, a catchy guitar hook and sarcastic lyrics, it is an instant Morrissey classic. Longtime producer Steve Lillywhite once again captures the Mozzer's true spirit with crisp, clean production. Now 37 years old, the times and music around him have certainly changed, but Morrissey just can't seem to shake what's bugging him. Hard core fans will surely embrace this latest effort, but Maladjusted is also a reason for those who scoff to give him another chance. B

PAVEMENT
Shady Lane EP
Matador

Much like the combo appetizer at Chili's, Pavement's Shady Lane EP offers up five pleasant tastes in convenient bite-sized portions. Each one has a unique flavor, yet they all seem to compliment each other in perfect unison. The title track features Pavement at the top of its game, with musical and lyrical abstractions galore, capped off when singer-guitarist Steven Malkmus unexpectedly announces, "You've been chosen as an extra in the movie adaptation of the sequel to your life." Coming from anyone else, I'd say the guy got into the gene pool when the lifeguard wasn't watching, but by now, we've come to expect this engaging brand of silliness communicated through his singing-in-the- shower vocal delivery.

Later, Pavement borrows the old Ramones tradition of yelling, "1-2-3-4!" in introducing "Wanna Mess You Around," a glorious punk rave-up of the highest order. They haven't rocked this hard since Slanted & Enchanted's "Conduit for Sale." "Slowly Typed" and "No Tan Lines" also see Pavement test boundaries by subtly pushing the band members' creative abilities. Even though "Cherry Area" is a little too slackeresque, it's still a whimsical guilty pleasure.

Just what a good Pavement EP should be: a solid A-side, some abstruse experimental excursions and plenty of Malkmus' goofy vocal meanderings. Always a recipe for success. B+

PAUL WELLER
Heavy Soul
Island

The modfather is back. While the songs remain largely the same, anthemic with lots of big guitar chords, Heavy Soul (Island) is a more rocking and uplifting affair that its predecessor, Stanley Road. Weller, who has been deified by nearly everyone in contemporary British pop, continues to blend '60's-style folk-rock ("I Should Have Been There to Inspire You"), Americana-tinged British folk ("Driving Nowhere") and church-worthy soul ("Golden Sands"). However, more than anything, Heavy Soul shows why Weller is credited with the perfection of the wah-wah style of guitar playing that has provided people like Oasis' Noel Gallagher with a means to make a living. B

Spirit Haus

YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT!

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Absolut Citron 750ml $13.99
Bacardi Light & Dark 750ml $17.99
Jack Daniels 750ml $13.99
Kahlua 750ml $13.99
Snakebite 750ml $13.99

MICROBREWS
Catamount 12 pack Bottles (Amber & Pale Ale) $8.99
Wachusett Brewing Co. (I.P.A., Country Ale, Nut Brown, Porter) $4.99/six
Magic Hat (Blind Faith, #9, Ale, Hocus Pocus) $5.99/six Otter Creek (Copper Ale, Pale Ale, Porter) $4.99/six
1/2 Keg Special Pilgrim Summerfest & Wildberry $85.00

BEER SPECIALS
Busch & Busch Light Case Bottles $9.99
Miller High Life & Genuine Draft 30 pack cans $10.99
Molson Golden & Ice 12 pack bottles $6.99
Cider Jack Hard Cider (Original, Cranberry, Rasberry) $4.99/six
1/2 Keg Special Rolling Rock $35.00

DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED - OPEN 9am to 11pm
RT. 9 / 338 COLLEGE ST (413)253-5384 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT. 9 east

Campus Activities Presents:
Ladies Night Out
COMEDY SHOW
Wanda Sykes-Hall
Cory Kahaney
Marla Schultz
FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 5
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8PM FREE
Check us out on the INTERNET:
http://www.umass.edu/campact/events/calendar.htm
for more information, or call Joseph Tolson 413-545-3600

Get student discounted rates!
Subscribe to:
The Boston Globe

Fall Term Subscription	Full Year Subscription
9/8/97 to 12/12/97	9/8/97 to 5/14/98
7 Days MON-SUN...$37.65	7 Days MON-SUN...$80.70
6 Days MON-SAT...$22.80	6 Days MON-SAT...$48.30
5 Days MON-FRI...$19.50	5 Days MON-FRI...$41.10
Sunday ONLY...$14.85	Sunday ONLY...$32.40

The New York Times

Fall Term Subscription	Full Year Subscription
9/8/97 to 12/12/97	9/8/97 to 5/14/98
7 Days MON-SUN...$66.80	7 Days MON-SUN...$139.80
6 Days MON-SAT...$30.80	6 Days MON-SAT...$64.80
5 Days MON-FRI...$25.60	5 Days MON-FRI...$54.40
Sunday ONLY...$36.00	Sunday ONLY...$75.00

To get The Boston Globe and The New York Times delivered to your dorm or office:
Please mail payment to:
John Riley
College News Service
Campus Center Hotel, UMASS Amherst
Amherst, MA 01035

Looking for a part-time job...*work delivering papers.
Please call John Riley at 413-584-7804

Get AT&T One Rate. FREE.
And don't worry about the time or the distance.

free from AT&T

If you live off campus, choose AT&T Long Distance and sign up for AT&T One Rate. Free. You'll also get a free one-year membership to Student Advantage®—the largest student discount program ever.

- AT&T One Rate: only 15¢ a minute on calls from home—to anybody, anytime, anywhere in the U.S.
- Student Advantage: use your card to get special offers and up to 50% off every day at thousands of your favorite neighborhood places and national sponsors—like Kinko's,® Tower Records® and Amtrak®

Live off campus? Get AT&T One Rate and a Student Advantage membership. FREE.
Call 1-800-878-3872
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach. AT&T

...after credit for AT&T Residential Long Distance customers. © 1997 AT&T

Emmy producers prepare for awards

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Bryant Gumbel did a little Crystal-gazing to prepare for his upcoming role as Emmy host.

Studying a videotape of last March's Oscar ceremony, Gumbel watched emcee Billy Crystal rock the audience with comic patter, song and dance — and decided to do it his way: straight.

"He (Crystal) does this for a living and he does it very well," said the television newsman. "That's not what I'm going to try to do."

"I'm going to try to be inconspicuous and try to make sure the show goes smoothly, people enjoy themselves and the show seems seamless," Gumbel said. "And that it's conducted with a degree of dignity and class and decorum."

Don Mischer, producer of the ceremony, which airs at 8 p.m. on CBS Sunday, Sept. 14, says he's got the right man in Gumbel, who jumped from NBC's "Today" to CBS and is being showcased by his new network.

"A good host is someone who can take you efficiently and gracefully through the evening," said Mischer. "Bryant's got a manner about him; he's easy going, he's intelligent, he's totally comfortable with live television."

He also won't feel compelled to unleash a laugh-getting zinger each time he appears, which can make a show look like it's simply trying too hard, Mischer said.

If Emmy has any problems, they're not on the stage, the producer said — they're in the audience.

"Seats are just a gigantic problem," Mischer said. "There's demand that far, far exceeds the number available" at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, Emmy's longtime home with a capacity of about 2,600.

Take "ER," for example, the leading nominee with 22 bids — which just happens to equal the number of places allotted for the drama's large slate of producers and one guest each.

That figure doesn't even include nominated "ER" stars like Anthony Edwards, Julianna Margulies and their guests. The shortage leaves even network executives scrambling for tickets, let alone awards.

The trophies, of course, are the real goal, especially in a year when Home Box Office nearly nudged the Big Three broadcast networks out for the most bids, ultimately falling just two shy of NBC's 92 nominations.

Leading series nominees include HBO's "The Larry Sanders Show" with 16 nominations, Fox's "The X-Files" with 12, ABC's "NYPD Blue" with 11 and NBC's "Seinfeld" and "Frasier" with nine nods each.

For those watching the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences ceremony at home, the truly pressing issue is whether the three-hour show will be a dud or a doozy.

The lineup of presenters is properly starry, including Candice Bergen; Gillian Anderson and David Duchovny of "The X-Files"; Glenn Close; Laurence Fishburne, Alfre Woodard and funnymen and women including Bob Newhart, Garry Shandling and Ellen DeGeneres.

■ Prodigy

continued from page 5

Pistols two decades ago.

An out-of-the-blue cover of L7's "Fuel My Fire" closes the album and is Prodigy's strongest, most straightforward punk statement. Guest vocals from Republica's Saffron, along with Flint's trademark Rottenesque sneer, propel the tune's defiantly brash hook ("People like you just fuel my fire"), while Howlett adds a pummelling drum loop and synth treatments that blatantly mimic metallic, shredding chords that keep the frentic pace moving like an out-of- control roller coaster.

There are greater transgressions than trying to transfer the spirit of the Pistols to the machine age. But the next time someone spouts on about how Prodigy's music represents the future of rock, suggest a visit to the hip-hop and punk sections in a well-stocked record store. There, one will find countless records by firestarters who were rocking out long before Liam Howlett bought his first computer. B

Orquesta Aragon releases new original album

By Niko Price
Associated Press

Orquesta Aragon was founded in the southern Cuban city of Cienfuegos in 1939 and went on to help create the Cuban sound. With its infectious harmonies and charanga rhythms, it inspired generations of musicians, including the supergroups of today such as Los Van and Irakere.

Now the group has released its first disc of original material in years and much of it sounds, appropriately enough, like the bands it inspired. This is great music — both the modern tracks and the basic old-time grooves that remind us of the Orquesta Aragon that played Havana's casinos in the 1940s and '50s.

The group — obviously a different lineup from when it was created — is now led by the son of the late founder Rafael Ley, but the newcomers have been true to their predecessors' direction. The disc's opening track, "Se la gano," sounds remarkably like Los Van — and like a GOOD Los Van tune at that. The more traditional cuts — "Vida vidita" is especially nice — show that Aragon still knows how to write a solid charanga.

For decades, Toure Kunda has been at the top of Senegalese music, and has found real success in Europe as well.

Heavier on the traditional instruments — especially drums — than most Senegalese pop musicians, they have relied on solid songwriting and pure vocals. But over the past few years their music has become more electronic, while the writing has gone downhill, resulting in a vapid, poppy sound.

With "Mouslai," Toure Kunda seems to be finding its groove.

The opening track, a remix of their song, "Cindy," has a very Western beat, and the group's mystical sound works to make it seem almost New Age. Listen a couple of times and you'll be hooked. The rest of the album is more traditional Toure Kunda, but they have managed to integrate Senegalese instruments like the kora into a more modern groove while still sounding solid. This isn't a masterpiece, but it indicates a comeback for Toure Kunda may be in the works.

■ Bushnell

continued from page 5

The shows are not over yet. The Bushnell Theater rounded up a sensational line-up of shows to follow Chicago's six day performance. Within weeks of Chicago's last performance, The Bushnell will be adding to the ranks of Broadway shows storming the area. Hayley Mills will star in Rodgers and Hammerstein's The King and I, which will be followed by Big.

Other notable shows, such as the reborn version of the Broadway classic, Showboat; Peter Pan, starring Cathy Rigby; and Rent, the hottest, most vibrant show of the '90s will finish the 1997–98 Bushnell season.

Tickets for Chicago range from $17–$55. Subscriptions for the Broadway Series tickets range from $97–$327.

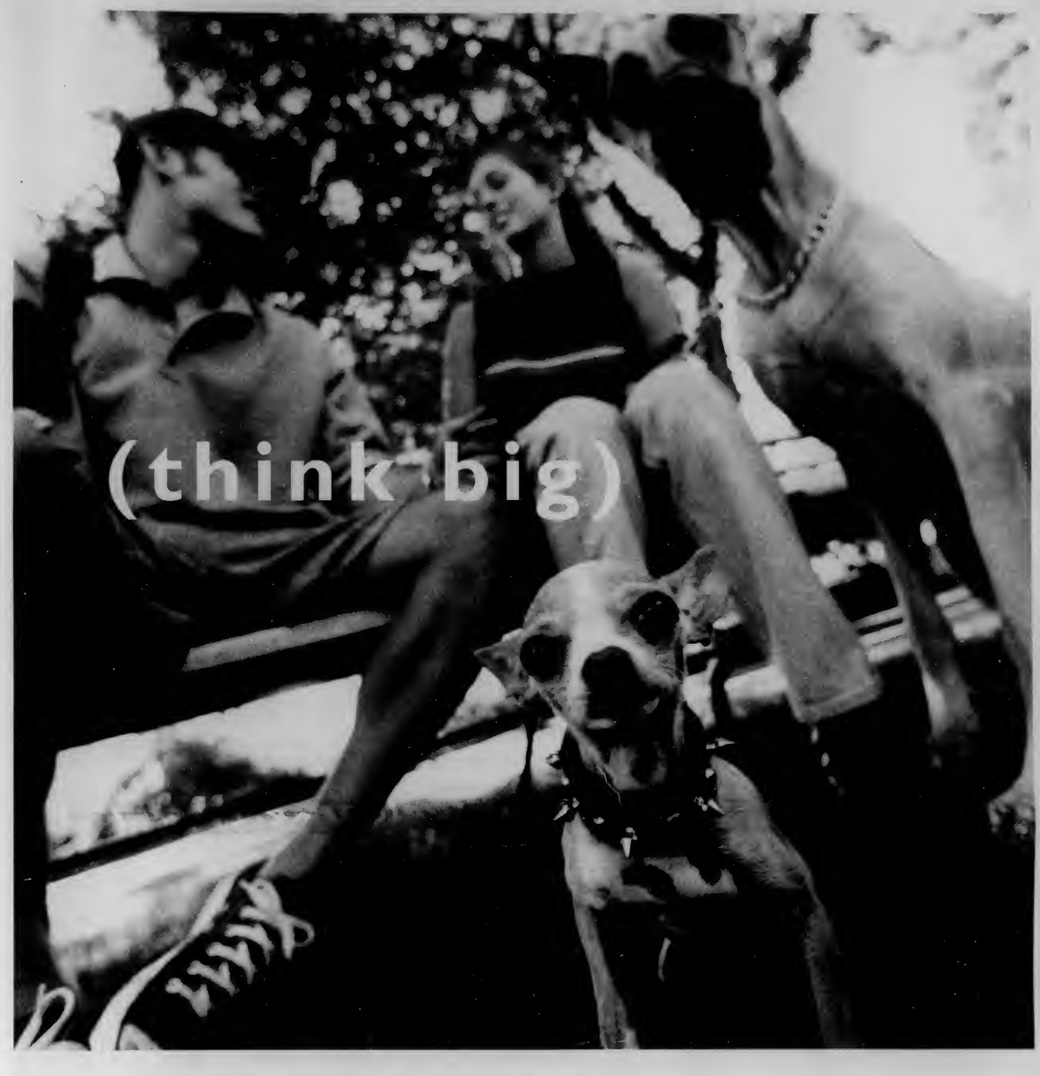
For more info, call The Bushnell Box Office at (860)246–6807; Monday–Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 4 pm. TDD (860)987–6097. Groups 20 or more call (860)251–7011.



write.

The Arts & Living desk is looking for writers interested in books, theater, art, music, television, fashion, film and more. Stop by the Collegian and talk to Seema Gangatirkar or call 545–1361.

welcome back to
Cheap tickets.
Great advice.
Nice people.
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main Street
Amherst (413) 256-1261

GW Semester in Washington
An Undergraduate Program in Political Management
Spring, Summer, and Fall Sessions
Experience Springtime in the Nation's Capital
• Learn From and Network Among "Washington Insiders"
• Live 3 blocks from the White House
• Produce Radio and TV Advertisements in Campaign Simulations
• Bike and Rollerblade by DC's Cherry Blossoms
• Compete as Consulting Groups on Strategic Lobbying Plans
Make Connections to Launch YOUR CAREER
The George Washington University WASHINGTON, DC
The Graduate School of Political Management
GW is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution
For More Information, And To Receive An Application, Contact:
(800) 367-4776, (202) 994-6000 http://www.gwu.edu/~gspm
Now Accepting Applications On A Rolling Admissions Basis.
Apply NOW! Spring Session Deadline October 31, 1997

Back to cool.
MARRY ME JANE
Tick
HEADSWIM
Despite Yourself
12.99 CD 9.99 CASS
OLIVE
Extra Virgin
SMOKING POPES
Destination Failure
DOWN BY LAW
Last of the Sharpshooters
11.99 CD 8.99 CASS
ROYAL CROWN REVUE
Caught In the Act
11.99 CD
9.99 CD 7.99 CASS
ARTIFICAL JOY CLUB
Melt
THE HONEYDOGS
Seen a Ghost
All product shown at everyday low prices.
MUSIC • SOFTWARE • MOVIES • BOOKS
MEDIA PLAY
STORE HOURS: MON-SAT: 10AM-10PM; SUN: 11AM-7PM
HAMPSHIRE MALL: MON-THURS: 10AM-9:30PM; FRI-SAT: 10AM-10PM; 11AM-6PM
Hampshire Mall, Hadley, (413) 582-0410 • Stateline Plaza, Enfield, (860) 253-4777
Newington Commons Plaza, Newington, (860) 594-7272
Crossroads Buckland Hills, Manchester, (860) 648-5870

Unleash big savings. AT&T presents the largest student discount program ever. FREE.

Choose AT&T. And we'll give you a free one-year Student Advantage® membership. Use your card to get special offers and up to 50% off every day at thousands of your favorite neighborhood places and national sponsors like these:

AMTRAK DOLLAR RENT A CAR Mobil AAA Greyhound
PEARLE VISION amc THEATRES MOTOPHOTO The Experience Makes the Difference kinko's TOWER RECORDS VIDEO BOOKS

Choose AT&T.
Get a Student Advantage membership. FREE.
Call 1-800-878-3872
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach. AT&T

Student Advantage offer valid for AT&T Residential Long Distance, AT&T Calling Card and AT&T Universal Card customers. © 1997 AT&T

Neagle closing in on Cy

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA — When Chipper Jones looks around the Atlanta clubhouse, he already sees three Cy Young Award winners.

"It sure would be neat to have four guys in here with a Cy Young," the Braves third baseman said.

Denny Neagle is doing his part. Supposedly the anonymous member of a rotation that includes Greg Maddux (NL Cy Young winner, 1992-95), Tom Glavine ('91) and John Smoltz ('96), Neagle is making a strong case that he's the best pitcher in the NL this year. While Maddux is having a typically brilliant season and Montreal's Pedro Martinez deserves strong consideration with 16 wins and a microscopic 1.63 ERA, it may be impossible for the voters to deny Neagle.

Consider these numbers:

He became the NL's first 19-game winner Tuesday night, pitching a four-hit shutout against the Detroit Tigers. With a record of 19-3, he has the best winning percentage (.864) in the majors. His four shutouts are tied for the major-league lead.

He ranks fifth in the league with a 2.70 ERA and fourth in innings pitched with 209 2-3 and has held opponents to a cumulative batting average of .232, 10th lowest in the NL.

Even Jones, who gets to see Maddux (17-4, 2.39 ERA) on a regular basis, would cast his Cy Young vote for Neagle.

"I kind of sense that no matter what Mad Dog (Maddux) does, he'll always be the front-runner," Jones said. "The fans will want to give it to him again, so Denny's got to go out there and win it. He's got that killer instinct, that tunnel vision, and he's really working his magic right now."

Neagle's 19th victory might have been his most impressive. He allowed only three singles and a double to the Tigers, but erased two of the runners on double plays and wound up facing only two batters above the minimum. He struck out six, walked none and kept Detroit off balance all night with his mystifying assortment of pitches.

"Detroit had no idea what was coming," catcher Javy Lopez said. "He never throws the same pitch twice in a row."

Neagle also went 2-for-3 at the plate, including his third career homer.

"I've never been a strong finisher in the second half," said Neagle, whose previous best record was 16-9 last season. "I wanted to make a point this second half that I could finish out the year on a good note."

"If I know him, he's going to keep pushing in September," shortstop Jeff Blauser said. "He's liable to win 24-25 games."

If that happens, the Cy Young Award will probably stay in the Braves' family, the Atlanta clubhouse, he already sees three Cy Young Award winners.

Emergency Response Operators F/T and P/T

Pioneer Medical Systems, a leader in the medical alarm industry, is currently seeking candidates for the above positions. F/T and P/T shifts available, all shifts. Starting pay $6.40-$8.40. Premium pay for bilingual (Spanish).

Please send resume to or apply in person (M–F 9AM-5PM) at: Pioneer Medical Systems, 37 Washington St., Melrose, MA 02176. Fax (800) 245-7713.

PIONEER MEDICAL SYSTEMS, INC.

Collegian is looking for delivery drivers. Must have own vehicle, and be available mornings until 10.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

C.J. huge hit in Florida; errorless streak 105 games

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

MIAMI — A cluster of fans age 6 to 60 hang over the dugout rail during batting practice, pleading for Charles Johnson's autograph.

They toss him caps, balls, photos, posters — enough paraphernalia to start a souvenir shop. He deftly catches every item, signs it and lobs it back into the stands.

Then Johnson trots off, his record intact: He still hasn't mishandled anything all year.

The Florida Marlins' catcher doesn't have an error or a passed ball, which means he's flirting with a perfect season at his position. Through Tuesday, Johnson had 154 consecutive errorless games, five shy of Rick Cerone's major league record. In 105 games this year, Johnson had handled 845 chances and perhaps 16,000 pitches without a bobble.

"You don't start a season thinking you're going to go errorless or not make a passed ball," Johnson said. "You understand that things like that happen. It's part of the game."

A season without a passed ball is unusual for a catcher, and to go without an error is even more rare. But to do both in the same year?

"Amazing," said Andy Etchebarren, a coach for the Baltimore Orioles and, a major league catcher for 15 seasons. "If he catches 120 to 130 games and doesn't have a passed ball or an error, that's hard to believe."

The Orioles got their first look at Johnson during an interleague series this week. In Florida's extra-inning victory Tuesday, he picked a Baltimore runner off second base, tagged out two runners at the plate and had two hits, including a single to start the game-winning rally in the 10th inning.

"That catcher," Baltimore manager Davey Johnson said, "is all-world."

By any measure, the 26-year-old Florida native and University of Miami product is enjoying the best season in a three-year career that already includes two Gold Gloves. He has been a catalyst as the Marlins close in on the first playoff berth in franchise history.

"If we were to lose C.J., that would be the worst loss on the team," said teammate Darren Daulton, a former catcher. "We couldn't afford it."

Because of defense, Johnson made the All-Star team this year for the first time despite a .226 average. Then he got hot, and through Tuesday he was hitting .340 since the All-Star break, raising his season average to .272 with 18 homers and 57 RBIs.

"Don't get too close to him — you might get burned," teammate Tony Saunders joked.

Johnson said the All-Star berth boosted his confidence, and since then he has felt more comfortable at the plate.

"I've just been relaxed, and that has helped me to see the ball a lot better," he said.

The Marlins always considered any offense from Johnson a bonus because of his play behind the plate. In 326 career games he has just 10 errors and 10 passed balls, and his arm ranks with the best at any position. For the third consecutive year, he has the highest success rate in the National League against base-stealers, throwing out 41 in 91 attempts (45 percent).

A throw Johnson made Tuesday may have been his most memorable of the season. In a weird sequence of events, he picked off a pinch-runner for a pinch-runner, who also happened to be one of his best friends.

After Baltimore's Harold Baines singled, Shawn Boskie ran for him at first. Following a walk, Boskie was replaced at second by Jeffrey Hammonds. Then, when Jeff Reboulet missed a bunt attempt, Johnson picked off Hammonds.

Later, in the clubhouse, Johnson watched a replay of Hammonds straying too far off second base.

"Don't do it, Jeff," Johnson said to the video screen, before adding with a smile, "He was best man at my wedding."

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Nothing but net...
Senior forward Mike Butler and the Massachusetts men's soccer team take on McGill University tonight at Szot Park in Chicopee.

Attention Collegian sports writers and newcomers:

The first Sports meeting is tonight at 7 p.m. in the Collegian newsroom (113 Campus Center). This meeting is mandatory if you want to write in the fall. Any questions, call Luke Meredith at 545–1851.

MICHAEL'S BILLIARDS
Best of 1997
Bigger Is Badder
• 60" Big Screen TV
• 8- 9 ft. Tables
• Live Entertainment Every Fri. & Sat.
• All Sporting Events
• Every Thursday Night $5 Cash 8-Ball Tournament 7:30 pm
Crawdads
Saturday Sept. 6 at Mike's Billiards 9:30pm
$6/Hr Everyday Unlimited Players!
A Belchertown Road
Amherst, MA 01002
256-8284

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080
Rt. 116, So. Amherst

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL & PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION
PERFORMING ARTS Division
MUSIC ACTING DANCE
REGISTRATION SEPTEMBER 2-12
CALL: PAD (413) 545-0519
73 BARTLETT HALL/UMASS

Chuck's Tips For Freshmen on studying:
Chuck (6th year senior)
-Don't feel like you have to cram all of your credits into four years. Pace yourself.
I recommend French as your foreign language. The ladies go crazy when I say, "Je m'appelle Chuck."
-You can use your BankBoston Card to buy stuff all around town. You can even use it to buy books. Personally, I prefer to wait for the movie.
BankBoston
It's Amazing What You Can Do.
Papa Gino's
The BankBoston Card. You can use it to get cash. To make purchases.† And use it to save 20% at Papa Gino's when you show your BankBoston Card, a Papa Gino's coupon, and student ID! Cool, huh? To open a Student Value Package, stop by any branch or call 1-800-2-BOSTON.
Member FDIC www.bankboston.com/students †For qualified applicants only. Offer good through May 31, 1998. Not valid with other discounts or specials. Tax not included. Limited delivery areas. Delivery charge applies. $7.50 delivery minimum. Not valid on alcohol purchases.

Patriots on the move, Bledsoe looking sharp

National Football League
Jonathan M. Place

When I started to write my first National Football League column of the year, I contemplated blasting Pete Carroll for being too soft on the New England Patriots. He just seemed a bit too casual to follow up the season Bill Parcells left us with. He didn't want to name team captains and overall just wanted to be a buddy–buddy, Kevin Kennedy-type guy with his players.

But after what I saw on Sunday, I don't care. I have never seen Drew Bledsoe play with so much authority and fire than he did against San Diego. No matter how good Parcells is, he never got Drew to play like that. He was running, blocking, throwing his hands in the air and firing the ball at will, embarrassing the Charger defense in the process.

The whole Patriots team looked to be enjoying themselves. Damn, I'd hate to be enjoying my job.

After looking over the Patriots during the pre-season, the major question mark was Bledsoe. The receiving core is in tact. The Pats have one of the premier running backs in the game (Curtis Martin) with one of the best lead blockers in Sam Gash, the best receiving tight end in Ben Coates, a quality offensive line and a no-name, soon–to–be all–pro defense.

So all that was left was the general, the man who must control the tempo of every game he is involved in. Well, I don't want to prematurely wet myself, but Drew played the best game of his career on Sunday. He completed 67 percent of his passess to eight different receivers for 340 yards, threw for four touchdowns and even ran for eight yards. He shuffled around in the pocket and got out of it when he needed to.

It was his 14th 300–plus yard game in only his fifth season. At 25 years of age, Bledsoe could be forming into the kind of quarterback everybody has been waiting for him to become.

But the best part about Sunday's debut of the new Patriots regime was how happy the team was to be out there. No sour pusses, no looks to the sideline to see if what you did was going to be accepted or not. The team had a good time, and the coach was right there with them.

To all those analysts who didn't believe in the talent the Patriots had and truly believed it was just Bill Parcells who brought them to the Superbowl (Chris Collinsworth to name one), a thumb on the nose to you.

In other NFL news:

•With Marc Brunnell out for six weeks, Kerry Collins out for six weeks, Dan Marino only 90 percent, Jon Elway with a sore throwing arm and Troy Aikman and Steve Young only one concussion each from retirement, this season will not only be one for new coaching staffs but one for inexperienced quarterbacks. Looks like Bubby Brister is going to make the highlight reels again. Yippee!

•Jeff George is once again trying to claim he was just a victim of poor coaching down in Atlanta but will now be a good boy under the eye-patch of the Raiders.

Wait a minute! A good boy for the Raiders. They're not supposed to be good. They are supposed to cause injuries and lead the league in penalties. That's it. Anyway, George isn't as good as people think he is. Sure, he can throw the ball a mile, but once things stop going his way he'll turn back into the cry–baby we all know him for.

•One team that could turn out to be a one hit wonder is the Carolina Panthers. During the first few exhibition games, they have showed me nothing that proves to me that they will make it to the playoffs again. But last year they started off slow, so we'll wait and see.

•With Wayne Fonts out and Bobby Ross in as the new head coach of the Detroit lions, Barry Sanders will now be utilized correctly. For the past eight seasons the soon–to–be deemed greatest running back in NFL history has been the lone man in the backfield. Now, after all this time, he has been given a fullback (Brad Baxter) to help pave the way for some extra yards.

•To no surprise, the Packers have been picked to win the Superbowl, most likely because the NFC has no one else to challenge them. The Cowboys are still dangerous, (on and off the field), but I believe their days of Superbowl glory are over. The 49ers have a new coach, and with the loss of Jerry Rice for the season are as questionable as Carolina. Speaking of the Panthers... they are without Collins at the helm and Steve Buerlein is not the answer.

•It's just an opinion, but I think Bill Parcells has been dead for a while and the Jets are just playing tapes of old press conferences he made while coaching the Patriots. It's just a theory.

There looks to be quite a few teams fighting for playoff spots this year. The Packers and the broncos are shoe–ins for division titles. After the display the Pats gave on Sunday, we may see them again in January. After that, who the hell knows right now? For all we know, the Buccaneers could win the Superbowl. Actually, considering how they defeated the 49ers on Sunday, that might not be so far–fetched.

After every two–bit, so–called expert has said his piece, it still looks like there is going to be some great football this season. I'll be coming at you every week this year to try and tell you something you don't already know.

Jonathan M. Place is a Collegian columnist.

USC, UCLA both underdogs at home

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

College football in Los Angeles may have reached a new low this week: Both Southern California and UCLA are double-digit underdogs. At home.

Tough to comprehend, perhaps, but the reasoning seems justified considering the opposition. The 23rd-ranked Trojans open the season against No. 5 Florida State and the Bruins play No. 3 Tennessee at the Rose Bowl.

"USC is definitely a program that any college coach would like to play," Seminoles coach Bobby Bowden said.

For Florida State, Saturday might be a good time for the first meeting between the teams. The Seminoles are favored by 12 1/2 points, even with a bunch of suspended players.

USC coach John Robinson figures his team needs a little luck to pull an upset.

"I don't think our weapons are very sharp," Robinson, who will start sophomore John Fox at quarterback, said. "We're not one of those teams where you say, 'Whoa.' Our weapons could be pretty sharp by midseason."

While the Seminoles go with Thad Busby — he threw for 1,866 yards and 16 TDs in '96 — Fox has thrown two passes for the Trojans — one incomplete, the other intercepted.

The Vols, coming off a 52-17 rout of Texas Tech that saw Peyton Manning tie a school record with five TD passes, are favored by 14 1/2 points over the Bruins.

UCLA dropped a 37-34 decision at Washington State last week as the Cougars' Ryan Leaf threw for 381 yards and three TDs and the defense stopped freshman Jermaine Lewis on fourth-and-goal from the one with 2:48 left.

How can the Bruins stop Manning?

"You've just got to hope that you improve," UCLA coach Bob Toledo said. "This isn't the NFL, you don't make trades or put guys on waivers. We've got to go with the guys that we've got." The Vols, meanwhile, had problems with the Bruins last season before winning 35-20 at Knoxville, Tenn., in Toledo's coaching debut.

UCLA crossed up the Vols' offense with a variety of attacking defenses. Tennessee coach Phillip Fulmer remembers it well.

"None of them could run to Nonesell. "Last year it was just a fire drill out there at times, trying to figure out who to block," Fulmer said. "It'll help us having played once, and it'll help that we've seen them on film once this year."

Twenty of the Top 25 teams are in action this weekend, including three matchups between ranked teams — No. 6 Florida State at No. 23 USC, No. 7 Washington at No. 19 Brigham Young and No. 24 Colorado State at No. 8 Colorado.

BYU lost one game last season — 29-17 to Washington — and is looking to spring an upset at home.

"This game will not make or break our season, because we have a chance to be a good ballclub," BYU coach LaVell Edwards said. "We'll be ready to play and I think we'll give a good account of ourselves."

Six Top 25 games are first-time matchups: Florida State-USC, Auburn-Virginia, Indiana-North Carolina, Central Michigan-Florida, Texas-El Paso-LSU and Rutgers-Texas.

My picks:

Pittsburgh (plus 32) at No. 1 Penn State

Mike McQueary passes first test as Nittany Lions QB ... PENN STATE 44-14.

Central Michigan (plus 40 1/2) at No. 2 Florida

Gators score points aplenty now that coach Steve Spurrier is angry at his offense... FLORIDA 56-7.

No. 3 Tennessee (minus 14 1/2) at UCLA

Now that Peyton Manning is warmed up... TENNESSEE 42-31. No. 4 Washington (minus 7) at No. 19 Brigham Young

BYU has score to settle, but Huskies QB Brock Huard has other plans... WASHINGTON 41-21.

No. 5 Florida State (minus 12 1/2) at No. 23 Southern California Seminoles 37-11-1 vs. teams ranked in AP poll... FLORIDA STATE 35-28.

Indiana (plus 29 1/2) at No. 7 North Carolina

Tar Heels defense still the best; offense pretty good, too... NORTH CAROLINA 42-7.

No. 24 Colorado State (plus 15 1/2) at No. 8 Colorado

Buffs are 31-1-1 vs. Rams in Boulder... COLORADO 42-35. Texas-El Paso (plus 37) at No. 10 LSU

Kevin Faulk gets his Heisman campaign off to flying start... LSU 42-14.

Georgia Tech (plus 20) at No. 11 Notre Dame

Finally, Bob Davie makes Notre Dame coaching debut... NOTRE DAME 35-20.

■ charge

continued from page 14

his young players, but he should be able to read between the lines when management thinks that 97–year–old Shawon Dunston can improve their team and boost them into playoff contention.

Uh, nice try buccos, but sorry try again.

There is some reason for optimism at the convergence (where the three rivers come together...converge...Three Rivers Stadium...ahh forget it!). Tony Womack and José Guillen are two bright stars around whom a good team can be built, but there is work to do yet if you think Dunston is your answer now.

• Unlike most people, I have issues with the American League Rookie of the Year race — the one that actually ended when Nomar went on his 30–game hit streak. Imagine the power numbers Jose Cruz, Jr. would have if he had spent the entire season in the major leagues. If he had the chance to approach the 40–homer plateau, Garp might have had a run for his money.

Or, if the Angels played in the first half like they've been playing lately, Jason Dickson might be closing in on 20 wins by now. How about Dickson's teammate Darin Erstad who is learning a new position (first base) and batting third in one of the league's most potent offensive attacks.

Don't get me wrong, Nomar should probably get a few MVP votes, never mind Rookie of the Year. He has quickly established himself as one of the top 10 all–around ballplayers in the junior circuit, an indisputable fact.

No?

Go ahead, name ten better...I didn't think so!

• Does anyone remember the Wake Forest game at Mullins a couple years ago? Yeah, remember the over–rated cheer we graced Tim Duncan with? Well, we were a little bit off base back then, but I have two words for all of you Yankees fans that may have been in attendance: Hideki Irabu.

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. is a Collegian Columnist.

The UMass Media Relations staff is holding a meeting for all interested newcomers Monday, Sept. 8 at 5 p.m. in Boyden Building, Room 249. The Media Relations department is the public relations wing of the athletic department. If you have any questions, please call the Media Relations office at 545–2439.

Collegian is looking for delivery drivers. Must have own vehicle, and be available mornings until 10.

take Kaplan and get into the right school.
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
• Highly trained, expert teachers who know the tests inside and out.
• Personalized, computerized study plans, tailored to your individual needs.
• Proven methods, guaranteed to raise your score.
CRUSH THE EXAM!
the leader in test prep and admissions counseling
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
www.kaplan.com

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139
4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

Welcome to the Newman Center
472 North Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002 (413) 549-0300
The Newman Center at the University of Massachusetts houses the Catholic Chapel on campus. This centrally located building serves the members of the University community throughout the year and offers to all:
•a 500 seat chapel for prayer
•a library for study and reading
•two lounges for study and relaxation
•a large cafeteria for food
•a billiards room for recreation
•a BankBoston ATM machine for money
•Mad Dasher Note Taking Services
•Java Hut Coffe Bar
• Building Hours:
Sun–Thur: 7:00am-5:00pm
Fri: 7:00am-5:00pm
Sat: 7:00am-5:00pm
• Sacrament of Reconciliation
Saturday 2:30-3:30 or by appointment
• Cafeteria Hours:
Mon–Thurs: 7:00am-7:30pm
Fri: 7:00am-3:00pm
Sat: 8:00am-3:00pm
Sun: 8:00am-3:00pm
• Mass Schedule:
Sat: 9:00am,4:00pm
Sun: 8:00am, 10:30am, 7:00pm
Mon-Fri: 5:15pm
SCHEDULE EFFECTIVE BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 3, 1997

$109.00!!
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
PRORATED

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!
Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.
DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including Bartending,
Retirement & Investment Planning,
Past Life Regression,
Country Line Dancing,
Gardening,
Computers,
East Asian Medicine,
Creating Comics!

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring "Busch & Busch Light" 30-pk $10.49
Cider Jack All Flavors! $4.99 6-pk
12-pk Bottle Special
Michael Shea's "Amber"
Michael Shea's "Black & Tan"
J.W. Dundee's "Honey Brown"
High Falls' "I.P.A."
Super Buys! $6.99
"Fantastic Pricing!"
Sam Adams Octoberfest! $16.99
"MICRO MADNESS"
Red Hook Catamount ALL FLAVORS! Pete's Harpoon
Sam Adams Lager $16.99
Mix & Match "TWO" 6-pks... $9.95
Wow!
Check Out Russell's Indoor Specials!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

89 Ford Tempo auto, 103K, runs great. Many options. Call Joe 253-4871 after 5pm. $2000 or B/O.

HONDA CIVIC '90 3 dr, hatch, 4 speed, manual, mileage: 87,100. Excellent condition. Call after 5:30 pm at 256-3433.

EMPLOYMENT

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221

Jobs For The Environment Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/Day. Call Terri 256-6434

Cooks Wanted Experience a plus but not necessary. Apply immediately in person. Cutty's Food and Spirits. 55 University Drive. 549-5700

UMass Athletic Development- Event Staff wanted for Athletic Fund Events throughout the 1997-98 athletic year. Must be 21+. For further information respond to 308 Mullins, or call 595-9672.

EMPLOYMENT

Tutor in Residence Assistant House Manager and Tutorial Supervisor wanted in Amherst. A Better Chance Program. Free room and board for services. For application procedure, call Mr./Mrs. Lewis. 253-3440

Mother's Helper Wanted 10-15 hrs. per week. Please call 549-7788

Care Provider Needed Monday thru Friday 8:30-5:30. Two children. Amherst home. Good pay. Nice family. Own car. Love for children. Non-smoking. Call evenings. Leave voice mail message for Dave. Press 1. 256-6006

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

Full-Time Day Delivery or Kitchen Help Wanted 30-40 hrs/week. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Babysitter Needed Now for two kids, 9-11. Thurs.-Fri., 3:00-6:30. Occasionally other days. Must have car and be a non-smoker. Call Suzanne at 253-3975

EMPLOYMENT

House Cleaner Responsible, References. Part-Time, Permanent. Bus. 549-0413

Wanted Immediately: Student Handyman, Landscaper, Driver. $7.00 per hour. Must have a car. (413)549-1578

Drivers and Kitchen Help Must be able to work 30 hours per week. Flexible hours. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Students Wanted!!!
Part-Time Sales
Marketing Job
Visit www.eduinfo.com

Part-Time Administrative Assistent
Clerical position in small Amherst office of Spanish study abroad program. Located on bus route. Requirements: data entry, computer skills, and excellent grammar/spelling skills. Knowledge of Spanish a plus. Approximately 20 hours/week, afternoons preferred. Competitive salary. Send letter and resume to: CC-CS, 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

New Twin Serta Mattress Includes NEW bed frame and box spring. Call Brian at 549-5046. $50.

Queen Futon Mattress Deluxe foam core, thick cotton, double layer, 1.8 density. The Best. Excellent condition. $150/BO. 256-8229

Dorm Refrigerator $30. Fender Bass Amp $140. Fender Jazz Bass w/hcase $160. Leather Jacket- never worn $40. All of these items are in good condition. For details call Chris at 584-8680

MAC IIsi 15" color monitor, modem, laser printer. $600 or best offer. 256-3472.

FOUND

Cash Identify amount. Possible locations. 253-3682

INSTRUCTION

Performing Arts Division offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance. PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass. (413)545-0519 for info.

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. Lessons may be taken for course credit. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

MISCELLANEOUS

FREE T-SHIRT + $1000
Credit Card fundraisers for fraternities, sororities, and groups. Any campus organization can raise up to $1000 by earning a whopping $5.00/VISA application. Call 1-800-932-0528 ext 65. Qualified callers receive FREE T-Shirt.

#1 CAMPUS FUNDRAISER
Raise all the money your group needs by sponsoring a VISA Fundraiser on your campus. No investment and very little time needed. There's no obligation, so why not call for information today.
Call 1-800-323-8454 x 95.

Start Your Own Fraternity! Zeta Beta Tau is looking for male students to start a new chapter. If you are interested in academic success, a chance to network, and an opportunity to make friends in a non-pledging brotherhood, e-mail: zbt@zbtnational.org or call Joe Alfidi at (317)334-1898

Extra $$$ Opportunity for confident self-starter. Contact with international students at 1-888-670-2906. Leave message.

ROOM FOR RENT

Grads and Visiting Faculty: Large, sunny, quiet room in private home. N/S. 5 minutes to UMass, Amherst Center. Buses. Call before 9:30 pm. 549-5431.

ROOMMATE WANTED

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at (603)889-0686

SERVICES

Transcription, Editing, Typing for students, professors, and businesses. Domenichelli Transcription Services. (413)783-8607 domenbus@javanet.com

COMPUTER SERVICES
Mac Magic
Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant.
Alvin C. Whaley (413)584-7904
Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals. Your office, dorm, or home.

SERVICES

Rental Problems Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

TRAVEL

Spring Break '98 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student Travel Services is now hiring Campus Reps/Group Organizers. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico and Florida. Call 1-800-648-4849

ATTENTION SKIERS & SNOWBORDERS
Entry level positions into the ski industry with fantastic weekend skiing benefits. Earn up to $1000/month parttime. Enthusiastic individuals please call...
Ski Card International
1-800-333-2ski

Collegian Classifieds
REACH THE UMASS CAMPUS AND BEYOND WITH A CLASSIFIED

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5

Auditions — All members of the University and Five College community who wish to play in the University Orchestra (strings, winds, brass, percussion), directed by Mark Russel Smith, may sign up today for winds/brass only (except trumpet), from 1–4 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center, room 167. Please bring two contrasting selections of your choice, ie. orchestral excerpts, a movement from a sonata or concerto. You may be asked to sight read material from the upcoming season.

Auditions — All members of the University and Five College community who wish to play in the University Orchestra (strings, winds, brass, percussion), directed by Mark Russel Smith, may sign up today for trumpets only from 9:00 a.m.–10:30 a.m., winds/brass only from 10:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m. and 1:30–5 p.m. in the Bezanson Auditorium, Fine Arts Center, room 248. Please bring two contrasting selections of your choice, ie. orchestral excerpts, a movement from a sonata or concerto. You may be asked to sight read material from the upcoming season.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

Auditions — All members of the University and Five College community who wish to play in the University Orchestra (strings, winds, brass, percussion), directed by Mark Russel Smith, may sign up today for strings only from 9 a.m.–noon and 1–5 p.m. in Bezanson Auditorium, Fine Arts Center, room 248. Please bring two contrasting selections of your choice, ie. orchestral excerpts, a movement from a sonata or concerto.

Community — "Love Feast," sponsored by the Christian Foundation at UMass, a day of music, spirit and community, will be held at 10 a.m. at Wesley Church, 365 N. Pleasant St. at Fearing.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8

Open house — Everywoman's Center, located in Wilder Hall, is hosting an Open House from 9 a.m.–4 p.m. Staff will be available to provide information about paid student positions, internships and volunteer opportunities for students and community women. Refreshments will be provided. All members of the campus and community are welcome.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9

Discussion — "The Politics of Birth Control," a discussion about why many women can't obtain the family planning resources they need, and what you can do about it, will be held at 8 p.m. in Thompson Auditorium, room 102. Join fellow students and Peter H. Kostmayer, executive director of "Zero Population Growth."

NOTICES

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. The drives will be held today from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, as well as Sept 9–10 from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. and Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 4–5 and 8–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545-0342.

Volunteer — The Programs Against Violence Against Women of the Everywoman's Center are now accepting applications from women who want to become volunteer counselors or educators. To join our fall 70–hour training for new volunteers, to learn more about issues of violence against women, and to make a difference in areas of sexual assault and relationship violence, please call 545–0883. The application deadline is Sept. 8, 1997. Bilingual women and women of color are strongly encouraged to apply.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

Your Ad could be here. 545-3500

And here. 545-3500

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 4, 1997

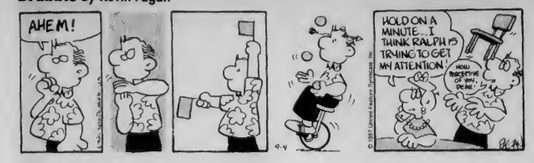
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Mystery! "Poirot" (R)		Wait for God	Keeping Up	Murder-Horrid	This Old Hse
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Wheel TV	Billy Graham (In Stereo)		Diagnosis Murder (In Stereo)		Too Soon for Sex?		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Promised Land (In Stereo)		Diagnosis Murder (In Stereo)		Too Soon for Sex?		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	High Incident "Shootout" (R)		Turning Point (R)		Mystery of Happiness		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Fresh Prince	Fresh Prince	Star Trek: Next Gener.		"The Fourth Protocol" (1987, Suspense) Michael Caine.				News		Jenny Jones (In Stereo)
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)	Men-Badly	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun	ER "Random Acts" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	6	Fresh Prince	Martin	Judge Judy	Major League Baseball	Baltimore Orioles at New York Yankees. (Live)					LAPD	Vibe
WVIT	10	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Friends (R)	Men-Badly	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun	ER "Random Acts" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	When Stunts Go Bad (R)		Scariest Police Shootouts!		News		Coach	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)	Men-Badly	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun	ER "Random Acts" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		This Old Hse.	Doctor-Call	Mystery! "Poirot" (R)		Brideshead Revisited		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Ent. Tonight	High Incident "Shootout" (R)		Turning Point (R)		Mystery of Happiness		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Beverly Hills, 90210 "Divas"		Seinfeld	Mad Abo. You	"The Hudsucker Proxy" (1994, Comedy) Tim Robbins.				News	Real TV	Mad Abo. You	M*A*S*H
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	"Cobra" (1986, Drama) Sylvester Stallone, Brigitte Nielsen.				Major League Baseball	Atlanta Braves at San Diego Padres.
A&E	34	Guilty! "The Hot Dog Murder"		Law & Order	Point of View	Biography: Milton Berle		See Tales		Unexplained "Extraterrestrials"		Law & Order	"Family Values"
CNN	29	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	35	Dream On	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	"Clifford" (1991, Comedy) Martin Short, Charles Grodin.				Lounge Liz.	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	63	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Red Star (R)		Wild Discovery: Dolphins		Mystery Univ.	Movie Magic	Wings "Thunderchief" (R)		Wild Discovery:	Dolphins
ESPN	31	Up Close	Sportscenter		Wkend Kickoff	College Football: Auburn at Virginia. (Live)						Sportscenter
LIFE	62	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait "Joan Lunden"		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"No Way Out" (1987, Drama) Kevin Costner, Gene Hackman.					Homicide: Life
MTV	33	Nominees...	Video Music Awards Pregame (In Stereo Live)			MTV Video Music Awards (In Stereo Live)						Awards Post	MTV Awards
NICK	59	Clarissa Expl.	Tiny Toon	Doug		Rugrats	Alex Mack	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Newhart
SCIFI	64	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Sightings (R) (In Stereo)		Seaquest DSV (In Stereo)		Forever Knight (In Stereo)		Friday the 13th: The Series		Sightings (R) (In Stereo)
TLC	28	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Treasures	America	Save Our Streets		Firefighters (R)		Treasures	America
TNT	42	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		"Midnight Run" (1988, Comedy-Drama) Robert De Niro, Charles Grodin.					Rough Cut	"Midnight Run" (1988)
USA	60	Wings	Walker, Texas Ranger		U.S. Open Tennis. Mixed Doubles Final and Men's and Women's Quarterfinals (In Stereo Live)							Silk Stalkings	"Sock Drawer"
HBO	43	(5:30) "House Arrest" (1996, Comedy) PG		"The Journey of August King" (1995)		"Subway Stories" (1997) Rosie Perez.				Comedy Jam		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)
MAX	65	"Lucas" (1986, Drama) Corey Haim. (In Stereo) PG-13		"Airplane!" (1980, Comedy) Robert Hays. PG		"Airplane II: The Sequel" (1982) Robert Hays.							"Substitute"
SHOW	66	"Dessa in December" (1995, Drama) Jean Simmons.				"Original Gangstas" (1996) Fred Williamson.		"House Party 3" (1994, Comedy) Christopher Reid. R					"Federal Hill"

Bruno By C. Baldwin ©



Robotman By Jim Meddick

THE PRECEDING COMIC WAS BROUGHT TO YOU BY THE ACME FISHHOOK RESEARCH COUNCIL.

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Non Sequitor By Wiley

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Horoscopes

FRIDAY, SEPT. 5

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Interruptions abound today, but you should be able to get your work done ahead of schedule if you make an early start and stay focused.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You will receive signs that point to a destination that has fascinated you for some time. Still, your ultimate arrival may still be quite far off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov.21) — A loved one can keep your spirits up when circumstances alone would have you sinking into a depression that threatens to be long term.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec.21) — You will have an opportunity today to do something about a domestic mix–up that has been threatening to blow out of proportion.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22–Jan.19) — Focus on those things that provide focus and motivation for you. Evening affairs may prove more difficult to arrange than expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb.18) — As soon as you begin criticizing another's bad habits, you can be sure that he or she will pinpoint one or two of you own. Use care!

PISCES (Feb.19–March 20) — You mustn't underestimate the power of a positive attitude today. The more you say yes, the more others will want to include you.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Kindness and understanding are paramount today. Take care that you don't let an outsider intrude on an idyllic situation after dark.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) You will be playing your hand correctly today if you let someone else feel as though he or she is the controlling influence.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Your interest in creative endeavors of all kinds will surely attract a number of unusual but highly colorful individuals into your orbit.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Take care that you are not so blunt with a rival that you promote a greater level of competition at a time when you are not up to it.

LEO (July 23–Aug.22) — Excuses are not enough today; you're going to have to come up with some real reasons why you are doing what you are doing every step of the way.

Quote of the Day

"It's this big, and it comes out every day?!?"

–Freshman referring to the first issue of the Collegian

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Well, that pretty much wipes out my tips for the evening."

Today's D.C. Menu

Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Beef
Potatoes
Lettuce
Scrod
DINNER
Pork
Smurfs
Onions
Scrod

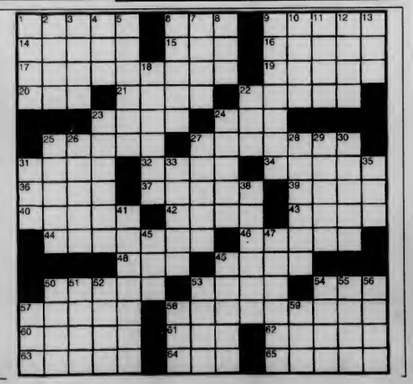
Worcester
LUNCH
Pizza
Mashed Potatoes
Burgers
Scrod
DINNER
Ham
Spam
Lamb
Scrod

Hampshire
LUNCH
Bread
Tomatoes
Lettuce
Meat (Scrod)
DINNER
Expired Milk
Watered-down O.J.
Non-carbonated Soda
Assorted tasteless juices

Berkshire
LUNCH
Meat
Potatoes
Corn
Gravy
DINNER
Salamander Salad
Cockaroach Couscous
Tasmanian Tofu
Suffering Succotash

Today's Staff

Production Supervisor	Josh Sylvester
Photo Technitian	Chris Cesnek
Night Editor	Mark McGrath
Copy Editor	Chris Stamm
Production Staff	Sam Smullin, Matt Guilmette



ACROSS
1 Relative
6 Not cooked
9 Ballroom number
14 "Little Orphant Annie" poet
15 Actor Wallach
16 Same
17 Web master?
19 Thrust forward
20 Serpent
21 Luau souvenirs
22 Seminar
23 Thaw
24 Shade
25 Part of Hispaniola
27 Mink expert
31 Adventurous
32 Serene
34 Watchband
36 Arab prince
37 Light parody
39 Weeps
40 Coarse blue cloth
42 Cat's murmur
43 Prepare for publication
44 Like the White House, in 1817
46 Eyed lasciviously
48 Arid
49 Norwegian king
50 Miner's tool
53 Competes in a slalom
54 Pasture sound
57 "— in Paris"
58 Oil
60 Tourists' escort
61 Caveman
Alley —
62 Spooky
63 Carrying a weapon
64 Kimono sash
65 High-schoolers

DOWN
1 — Major
2 Pinches
3 Use a garden tool
4 Pioneered
5 Tiny opening
6 Send in payment
7 "Oh dear!"
8 Get the blue ribbon
9 Bank workers
10 Greenish-blue
11 Sisters
12 Jokes
13 Cheer for a toreador
18 Objects from the past
22 Stray dog
23 Leaf's central vein
24 Mood
25 Babe Ruth specialty
26 Skirt style
27 Show contempt for
28 "History repeats —."
29 Wear away
30 Fanatical
31 River bottom
33 Put to use
35 Calif. hrs.
38 Play
41 Confused
45 Indignation
47 Seal
49 Giraffe's kin
50 Goad
51 Prudish
52 Assistant
53 Messy one
54 Extra
55 Ken or Lena
56 Some poems
57 Turkish official
58 Oct. 31 word
59 "Gosh!"

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

A	F	A	R		B	A	C	O	N		F	E	T	A
M	I	R	E		A	L	O	N	E		I	D	O	L
B	R	E	A	K	D	A	N	C	E		N	E	A	P
O	S	A	G	E		A	D	D	E	N	D	S
		A	N	T		F	L	Y	E	R
X	M	E	N		R	A	I	L		S	T	A	R	S
E	A	R		C	A	V	E		S	T	E	R	E	O
B	R	I	G	A	D	E		E	L	A	S	T	I	C
E	S	C	A	P	E		V	E	E	S		I	N	K
C	H	A	M	P		R	A	R	E		B	E	S	S
		B	E	R	E	T		T	E	E
R	E	M	O	D	E	L		M	I	D	I	A
A	X	E	L		W	A	T	E	R	C	R	E	S	S
M	I	N	E		S	T	A	K	E		U	T	A	H
S	T	U	D		Y	E	M	E	N		T	A	K	E

9-4-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

SPORTS

Richmond blows by Massachusetts in opener

By Jonathan M. Place
Collegian Staff

For the last four years, the season opener has not played favorably for the Massachusetts football team. The Minutemen (0–1) continued its cold streak on Saturday, dropping its first game of the season to Richmond (1–0), 21– 6 in the inaugural Atlantic 10 Conference game at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

After converting a touchdown on its first drive of the season, UMass was unable to successfully move the ball down the field against a tough Spiders defense.

"We have to run the ball to win football games," Massachusetts coach Mike Hodges said.

Richmond	21
Massachusetts	6

The Minutemen ran for only 44 yards on the day, 38 of which came during the first quarter. For a team that led the conference in rushing in 1996, the totals from Saturday's game pose a problem for a squad known for its ground game.

In its first series, Smith completed all six passes, including a five yard connection to Kerry Taylor to score UMass' first touchdown of the season. The Minutemen's first drive of the year took 10 plays, covering 57 yards over five minutes.

Unfortunately for the Minutemen, it would be the only impressive series of the game.

At the end of the first half UMass was holding on to a 6–0 lead. The defense shut down Richmond's offense and forced them to punt six times. On the other hand, the Spiders had done the same thing to the Minutemen, shutting them out to 6 all–purpose yards in the second quarter. Actually, after the initial drive for UMass, they never got past Richmond's 38 yard line.

In the second half, the Minutemen could not get anything going. By the end of the game, Andy Maclay had punted 10 times, with an average of 40.6 yards, a long of 55.

What looked to be a solid performance from a young and inexperienced team turned into a rough first outing for everybody.

"We played well," said Smith, who ended the day 18 of 39 for 165 yards. "I didn't. I didn't execute when I needed to."

Perhaps Smith took the loss hard, but the sophomore had an impressive performance under the circumstances. Under constant pressure the whole game, Smith was able throw 39 times, completing 18, both career highs.

The second half was dominated by Richmond. Jasper Pendergrass, who only rushed for 30 yards in the first half finished up the game with 106 yards and two touchdowns on 23 rushes. Not only did Pendergrass penetrate the Minutemen defensive line, but Tyrone Turner also ran for 59 yards, averaging 7.4 yards per carry.

Richmond's first touchdown came off of a UMass fumble within the first three minutes of the third quarter. Smith was caught for a loss of seven yards when Paris Lenon forced the ball loose. Two plays later, the Spiders found the endzone. After a 28 yard pass from Matt Shannon to Muneer Moore, Pendergrass tied the game with a two yard score. With the extra point Richmond took the lead, 7–6.

Early in the fourth quarter, Richmond recovered another fumble on UMass' 20 yard line. Pendergrass took the ball three plays in a row and ran it in for his second score of the game. The Spiders now led the game 14–6.

Two drives later, Richmond obtained the ball on its own 22 yard–line after a 35 yard punt from Maclay. The first play was a connection between Shannon and Duane Jones for 21 yards. Two plays later, Richmond put the game away with a 49 yard run from Turner which took the Spiders down to the UMass five yard line and eventually set up a five yard pass to Lewandoski to put Richmond up 21–6.

"We played better today than we did last year, when we beat them," said Hodges, referring to last season's 23–17 UMass win in Richmond.

"I wasn't that surprised at how Richmond played," Hodges said. "They have one of the best defenses in the conference. They played well."

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Smith (No. 12) went 18 of 39 for 165 yards on Saturday, but it wasn't enough for the Minutemen, who lost to Richmond 21–6 in the season opener.

Junior TE Kerry Taylor bright spot in UMass loss

By Corey Peter Goodman
Collegian Staff

While Saturday's opening–day loss to last year's Yankee Conference cellar–dwelling Richmond Spiders proved to be both disheartening and deflating for the Massachusetts football team's 1997 hopes, the eye–opening play of junior tight end Kerry Taylor shed some light on an otherwise dreary afternoon.

Taylor, of Mansfield, matched career totals in receiving and yardage in Saturday's first half alone, before surpassing them after the break. For the game, Taylor snagged six passes for 90 yards, including an early five–yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jeff Smith that gave coach Mike Hodges and the Minutemen their only lead of the game.

Commonly referred to by his teammates as "Ben Coates" — the New England Patriots' Pro Bowl tight end — Taylor displayed a reliable set of hands, with better than average speed and a willingness to dig in and challenge Richmond's linebackers with his large 6–foot–2, 248 pound frame. Many of his catches Saturday were acrobatic, in crowds and under intense pressure from the middle of the Spider defense.

Though his performance was special, adding clout to UMass' already top–notch receiving corps, Taylor claims his best has yet to come.

"I think I've got a lot to offer this team. Right now, I'm just trying to make a name for myself," Taylor said. "I want to show everyone that I am capable of doing what I did today every week."

Taylor was a noticeable spark plug off the field Saturday for the Minutemen as well. Bouncing up and down, with his helmet raised to the sky, Taylor saluted the individual successes of the Minutemen defensive unit even when the game appeared out of reach.

"Really, though, I'm a quiet guy," Taylor said. "But you have to have emotion to play this game. If you don't have it, you don't belong out there. I was just trying to get the team up out there. I didn't think the game was over yet."

With overwhelming size, strength, ability, and most importantly... a level head, one might wonder where the junior has been hiding the past two years.

Arriving in Amherst in the fall of 1995, Taylor's resume was impressive. With 30 receptions for 600 yards during his senior year at Mansfield High School alone, Taylor played in the Shriners All–Star Game and was an all–Attleborough Sun Chronicle and all–Hockomock League selection.

But the high school star soon learned that the road to success at UMass would be much longer.

Spending two years platooning with former tight ends Bryan Healy and Erik Henry was frustrating for Taylor, who was used to the spotlight.

"It was tough, because I really wanted to play more," he said. "But I understood I was going to have to wait my turn."

Now, as UMass' starting tight end and Smith's No. 1 target, Taylor looks back and sees how he's improved in the program.

"Bryan was a great blocker. Erik was a great receiver," he said. "They were great players and I'm a much better football player because of them. Playing under them was a learning experience."

With an abundance of skills, and two years experience under his belt, Taylor says he is ready to assume more of a leadership role.

"I'd like for the younger guys to see me as a leader," Taylor said. "I've learned a lot here, and I think I can teach them a lot too. Whatever it takes to win, I'll do it."

And Taylor thinks there will be a lot of winning in UMass' future, despite Saturday's outcome.

"Everyone works hard here, and a lot of guys can step up if they need to," he said. "Our offense and defense if working good, and if we execute like we should we're going to win a lot of games. This week just happened to be my day. Next week, it will be someone else's."

Taylor and the Minutemen hope to even up their schedule on Sept. 13 when they head to Orono, Maine to battle the Black Bears of the University of Maine.

Looking ahead to 1999, Sadler, Rose lead charge

Major Leauge Baseball

Fred Hurlburink Jr.

Enough already about Roger Clemens.

He's gone. If you were a fan before — a real one — you still are, if only just a little bit.

He's gonna win the Cy Young award — his fourth — with the Toronto Blue Jays, okay, get over it.

He's having the best season of his career with a Canadian expansion team. He keeps talking about how unhappy he was in Boston and now he's sticking a big fat rosin bag where the sun don't shine in Dan Duquette's little world.

There's no issue here. Duquette didn't want the Rocket back, and he didn't want to come back.

Clemens bolted for a big wad of cash... and the chance to play on a competitive ball club — yeah, whatever! Nobody in their right mind could have actually thought the Blue Jays could compete for a division title. But, the important part is that Clemens wanted out, and the rotisserie Duke had no use for him in the long run.

Anyway, Duquette's master plan is still on track despite that pesky playoff appearance in 1995. Clemens' departure lowered expectations for the Red Sox this summer, and they have met those almost–.500 standards, while entertaining fans with awesome offensive production.

The pitching trio of Jeff Suppan, Brian Rose and Carl Pavano is edging closer to becoming a reality. The impending trade of John Valentin will bring some sort of talent, like a top–flight right fielder — Valentin and a lower level pitching prospect like Juan Pena could bring Sammy Sosa over, 'cause the Cubbies just can't afford that big contract they just gave their premier slugger.

Prospects Michael Coleman and Donnie Sadler represent the speed — Coleman has good power too — that the Sox have lacked for so long. Jason Varitek and Trot Nixon are also on the verge of fulfilling their unlimited potential as future major league stars.

Nomar Garciaparra has already taken the mantle from Mo Vaughn as the best ballplayer in Boston, and the pair could be as formidable a 2–3 combo in the lineup as Seattle's duo of young icons.

Picture this lineup on the field in 1999...Sadler (2b), Garciaparra (SS), Vaughn (1b), Sosa (RF), Reggie Jefferson (DH), Coleman (CF), Tim Naehring (3b), Nixon (LF), Varitek (C).

Where's Wilfredo Cordero? Who knows, who cares? Check those guys in the stylin' orange vests walking along the side of the Pike.

And how about this pitching staff...Suppan, Rose, Pavano, Bret Saberhagen and John Wasdin (give him time) in the rotation; and Tom Gordon closing out games with Derek Lowe, Jim Corsi and the gang setting him up.

Potential is such a dangerous word, but it's lookin' like a pretty swell team there ladies.

Roger who?

• Has anyone seen the Round Mound of Rehab, Kevin Mitchell? And you guys that work at Denny's don't count.

• How about those Pittsburgh Pirates? Boy, there's nothing like the weakest division in baseball to make you think you're a good team.

Manager Gene LaMont has done an outstanding job of squeezing every last ounce of "talent" out of

Turn to CHARGE, page 11

Women's soccer starts season on high note

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

AGAWAM — If the preseason is any indicator of how successful a team will be in the regular season, then the New Orleans Saints would be a Super Bowl contender. But, a firm grip on reality counterbalances that thought process, and when the real season begins, it's literally a team's new start.

Such was the case for the No. 15 Massachusetts women's soccer team last Saturday night, and after a frightful preseason, a 4–0 clubbing of Fairfield University in its season opener at Agawam High School was delightful. After a 2–1 win over Fairfield in last season's opener, coach Jim Rudy noticed the difference between his more–technical, yet slower, squad of 1996 and his quicker, yet less experienced, squad of 1997.

Massachusetts	4
Fairfield	0

"Last year, Fairfield came out with a sort of double–zone, oppressive defense and there was not a lot of space for us to play," Rudy said. "They came out and engaged us tonight on all parts of the field. We played a very long game early in order to make the field bigger, so that we could get into a short game with their defense."

Four players made their impact felt on the offensive side of the ball in this rout, including last year's Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Year Emma Kurowski (2 goals, 1 assist), sophomore midfielder Robin Smith (1 goal), junior forward Sophie Lecot (1 goal) and freshman forward Kara Green (1 assist).

For Smith, what a difference a year can make from a lot closer–than–it–looked 2–1 win in 1996 over Fairfield and a lot worse–than–it–looked 4–0 win this season. After a hard preseason, the Minutewomen were able to bounce back, and post an outstanding 29–5 shot differential over the Stags.

"At practice last week, we worked a lot on the tactical part of the game, because we had more players back," Smith said, who has moved back to familiar surroundings in the midfield this season after a year on defense. "We had more people in practice, we could play more in formation, and find our shape as a team better."

UMass' scoring began at the 10:49, with Smith converting on a cross by Green that caroomed first off of Kurowski's attempted header, and then deflected off of sophomore midfielder Tarah Tokarchik. Smith snuck her shot inside the left post for the 1–0 lead, and Kurowski put the Minutewomen up 2–0 at the 32:57 mark with a left–footed blast that beat keeper Anne Lyons low to her right.

UMass went into the half with the 3–0 lead on a penalty shot by Kurowski at the 35:37 mark, set up by the foul committed on Tokarchik in the penalty area. After the half, Lecot immediately put a stamp on her debut as a Minutewoman, finding a seam between the post and Lyons on a corner kick by Green to make the final score of 4–0.

Rudy was impressed with his offensive newcomers, but with a defense that allowed only five shots on the duo of senior keeper Danielle Dion and sophomore Angie Napoli, the coach was also impressed with his backline. Rudy pointed to another of his newcomers, senior transfer defender Amy Burrill, who stepped into her first game at UMass in steady fashion on the left flank.

However, in the last one–third of the field, Rudy could not help feel that Green was the straw that stirred the drink.

"That's how she plays, and she is a dynamic, hard charging frontrunner, who has a nose for the goal," Rudy said. "Although she didn't get a goal, she was instrumental in carving up their defense."

The goal–less debut for Green was both pleasing and uncomforting for the freshman forward.

"I was pleased with my play, but I wasn't happy with my finishing," said Green, who was a four–year member of the Eastern New York Olympic Development Program while playing at Spackenhill High School in Poughkeepsie. "Hopefully, this week before the Michigan game on Friday, I can work on that a little bit more."

JORMA KANSANEN/COLLEGIAN

Emma Kurowski's two goals led the UMass women's soccer team past Fairfield 4–0 on Saturday.

Service ★ Savings ★ Selection... UNBEATABLE!

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS

BACK TO SCHOOL SALE

UNBEATABLE!

adidas Reebok
Windpants
YOUR CHOICE
$19.99

adidas Reebok
Selected T-Shirts
YOUR CHOICE
$9.99

NFL Logo T-Shirt
$8.99

Superbreak Backpack
$19.99

GTS NUBUCK
Mens & Ladies
$34.99
CASUAL

RIMBREAKER
Mens
DIVERGE
Mens & Ladies
YOUR CHOICE
$59.99
BASKETBALL
CROSS TRAINER

TRAIL RESPONSE
Mens & Ladies
$69.99
RUNNING

Special thanks to The Jewish Community Center for the on location photo shoot.

SAVE ON APPAREL

STARTER

Package Set
Hat, T-Shirt & Sweatshirt
$39.99

Intensity Pullover Jacket
$79.99

Lee SPORT

LOGO ATHLETIC

Winning Force Sweatshirt
$19.99

Team Spirit or Winning Force T-Shirt
$12.99

Grid Iron Fleece Sweatshirt
$34.99

adidas

Balance Jacket
$69.99

Turtleneck Sweatshirt
$29.99

T-Shirt
$9.99
Hebron II Shorts
$19.99

RUSSELL ATHLETIC

T's & Shorts
2/$9.99

Crewneck Pullover Sweatshirt or Sweatpant
2/$24.99

Service ★ Savings ★ Selection... UNBEATABLE!

KLEIN'S KIDS CORNER

T-Shirt $8.99 Shorts $14.99 T-Shirt $8.99 Windpants $16.99

adidas

T-Shirt $8.99 Hebron II Shorts $15.99 Balance Jacket $59.99

Lee SPORT

Game Winner T-Shirt $9.99 Youth Sizes 8-20

Winning Force T-Shirt $8.99 Youth Sizes 4-7

WHITE SIERRA
Polar Fleece Pullover $24.99

Columbia Sportswear Company
Polar Fleece Vest $34.99 Bugaboo Jacket $99.99

UMBRO
ENTIRE STOCK 20% OFF

adidas
$17.99 Soccer — Diego Liga Jr.

CONVERSE

AIRWALK

FILA

Selected
Baggy Mesh Shorts $21.99

Selected T-Shirts $9.99

Selected
Ladies Shorts & T-Shirt $14.99 Ea.

Swoosh Crewneck Sweatshirt or Sweatpants $24.99 Ea.

Adult Windpants $19.99

Spandex Shorts $19.99 Spandex Tights $21.99

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS

BUZZER BEATER

IF YOU SEE THE SAME ITEM IN STOCK FOR LESS

bring in their advertisement and

WE'LL MEET THAT PRICE.

PLUS . . . we'll give you 10% OFF your next purchase!

KLEIN'S TAKES YOU BACK TO SCHOOL

Wigwam Thorlo Reebok

50% OFF SOCKS

Save 50% OFF any ONE pair or pack of reg. priced socks with any footwear purchase.

EXPIRES 9/2/97

ASK ABOUT FREE SHOES

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS

BAKERS DOZEN SHOE CARD Entitles Bearer To A Free 13th Pair Of Shoes On The Average Price Of The Twelve Purchased Pairs.

$84.99 Air Pure Uptempo

$79.99 Winged Flight

$59.99 Cruz Uptempo

SELECTED SWOOSH HATS $11.99

DUFFLES

medium $17.99 large $21.99

$59.99 Diverge

$79.99 Turf Raider Mid

Mens & Ladies

$79.99 Air Edge Max

Mens & Ladies

$84.99 Air Max Triax

Mens & Ladies

$59.99 Windrunner

Mens & Ladies

$49.99 Apprentice

Mens & Ladies

$79.99 Air Much Uptempo

$59.99 Air Grill

$119.99 Air Tailwind

KLEIN*S Takes You Back To School!

FOOTBALL

adidas $37.99
Ch Slaught

$49.99
Sneak Shark

Wilson NFL Jr. Team Football
$9.99 NFL

NFL Replica Jerseys
Adult $34.99 Youth $19.99 Jr. 4-7 $14.99

Outburst Pullover Jacket
Adult $114.99 Youth $84.99

Crewneck Pullover Sweatshirt & Sweatpant
2/$24.99

Check Out Our Great Selection Of NFL Hats!

RIDGEVIEW
Sport Socks
Tube • Crew • Quarter
6pk.....$5.99
3pk.....$4.99

SOCCER

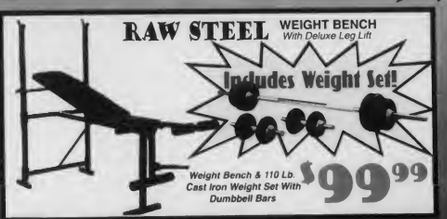
adidas $24.99
Torra

$34.99
Tiempo 500
Youth $19.99

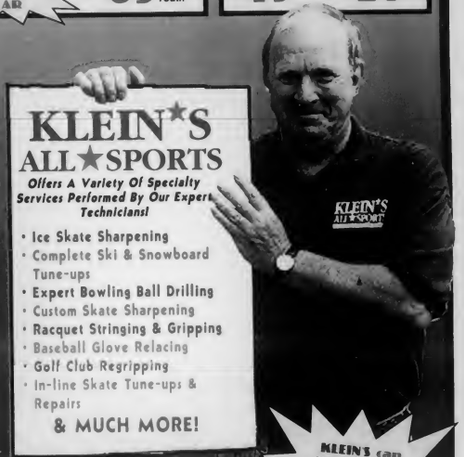
adidas $89.99
Copa

adidas
Backpack.....$17.99
Duffle.....$24.99

BRINE
Attack Soccer Ball.....$11.99
Sizes 3-4-5
BRINE
SGPS Shin Guards.....$6.99
Adult/Youth
Twin City
Soccer Socks Adult.....$4.99
Soccer Socks Youth.....$3.99



ENTIRE STOCK OF UMBRO Activewear
20% OFF



EXERCISE & FITNESS

Pyramid 220 Racquetball Racquet
• Lightweight 100% Graphite Frame
• Larger String Bed For More Power
$140 Value!
$79.99
FREE bag with purchase!

Spiritblade Abt
$139.99
20% OFF IN-LINE PROTECTIVE GEAR
Microblade
$69.99 Youth
• 2 Buckle Closures
• Micro Adjust Abt Brake - custom setting
• Abec 3 Bearings
Mens & Ladies
• Extended Fit system
• 2 Size liners for room to grow

Superbreak $19.99
Day Hauler $24.99

RAW STEEL WEIGHT BENCH
With Deluxe Leg Lift
Includes Weight Set!
Weight Bench & 110 Lb. Cast Iron Weight Set With Dumbbell Bars
$99.99

KLEIN*S ALL★SPORTS
Offers A Variety Of Specialty Services Performed By Our Expert Technicians!
• Ice Skate Sharpening
• Complete Ski & Snowboard Tune-ups
• Expert Bowling Ball Drilling
• Custom Skate Sharpening
• Racquet Stringing & Gripping
• Baseball Glove Relacing
• Golf Club Regripping
• In-line Skate Tune-ups & Repairs
& MUCH MORE!

Perfect for Home Fitness!
EXERCISE MAT
Exercise Mats
$11.99

STAMINA AS SEEN ON TV
• Adjustable dual level elastic cords
• Torso Pad
• Heavy Duty steel frame construction
• Folds for easy storage
• Wheels allow for easy movement
Instride Walker
$99.99 Reg. $149.99

FREE Keychain with purchase of any Grays stick!
Check Out The Areas Largest Selection Of FIELD HOCKEY STICKS & Accessories From CRANBERRY & GRAYS

TIMEX
Ironman Watch
$29.99

KLEIN'S can supply your entire team with uniforms, t-shirts, jackets, trophies and awards for whatever your sport!
1-800-221-4341
Complete Custom Embroidered Team Sweat Suits
Starting At $72.99

KLEIN*S Takes You Back To School!

KLEIN*S Outer Edge

Bank AIRWALK $54.99

ETNIES Lo Cut $59.99

Complete Skateboards $129.99

Columbia

Selected Polar Fleece
Now $54.99

All Skateboard T-Shirts $14.99
IN STOCK NOW!
Blind Jeans & Cargo Pants

Hottest Styles & Selection!
HATS • SHIRTS • PANTS • JACKETS & MORE!

CONVERSE All Star 91 $64.99

FILA Stomp $59.99

asics GT2020 $69.99

SAUCONY Monsoon

Mens & Ladies

Movin $69.99

FILA I-Formation $59.99

new balance MX600 $54.99

widths available

adidas Ozweego $64.99

adidas Adi Sage TU $24.99

AIRWALK Cube $43.99

adidas Nova $49.99

FILA Whisper $39.99

Ladies

Find More Great Savings Throughout Our Athletic Footwear Department!

Pictures for illustration only. Sale Prices effective through Sept. 2. We reserve the right to limit quantities. Not responsible for typographical errors. Selection may vary. All items & services not available in all stores. Limited Quantities.

KLEIN*S ALL*SPORTS

Sangertown Sq. Mall • NEW HARTFORD, NY
Mohawk Acres • ROME, NY

Latham Circle Mall • LATHAM, NY
Village Plaza • CLIFTON PARK, NY
Wilton Mall • SARATOGA, NY

Crossgates Mall • ALBANY, NY
Aviation Mall • GLENS FALLS, NY
Berkshire Mall • LANESBORO,MA

Salmon Run Mall • WATERTOWN, NY
Hampshire Mall • HADLEY, MA
St. Lawrence Centre • MASSENA, NY

Pyramid Mall • ITHACA, NY
Consumer Sq. • PLATTSBURGH, NY

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 3 · New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 · Friday, September 5, 1997

Future predictions

The Bible Code

Can the Bible help you in more ways than spiritually? Look to The Bible Code for tantalizing hints to the future. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Totman can you hear me?

Junior defender Amanda Thompson will be a key cog in the No.15 Minutewomen's battle with No. 22 Michigan this afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

WORLD

U.S. troops withdraw from Bosnian bridge

BRCKO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.S. troops withdrew from a key bridge in this Bosnian Serb-controlled town yesterday, trying to calm tensions before local elections across Bosnia.

In Belgrade, NATO's supreme commander, U.S. Gen. Wesley Clark, asked Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic to intervene with Bosnian Serb hard-liners to break a "pattern of violence" against the NATO-led peacekeeping force.

Clark warned, though, that his troops would not be intimidated. "If our soldiers are... placed in a position where it's necessary for them to defend themselves, for which they certainly have the means and the authority, they will do so — and there must be no mistake about this," Clark said yesterday after meeting with Milosevic in the Yugoslav capital.

Milosevic's office issued a statement saying that "problems ... should be solved through political means, agreements and mutual understanding, which excludes threats or the use of force." The statement apparently was directed at hard-line Bosnian Serbs, among whom the Yugoslav leader has great influence. Clark said the U.S. forces left the bridge spanning the Sava River in Brcko because it "is no longer the main supply route" for the peace force. U.S. soldiers will remain "all over Brcko," he

NATION

Court won't block Prop. 209

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Supporters of a California law that would abolish special treatment for minorities and women in hiring and school admissions are hailing the Supreme Court's decision not to block the law while it is appealed.

"Today's decision allows the people of California to continue the task of eliminating discrimination that they began in November," Michael Carvin, a lawyer for sponsors of the initiative approved by voters in November, said yesterday.

The court, without comment, rejected emergency requests yesterday filed by a coalition of civil rights groups and San Francisco city officials that sought to stop Proposition 209 from going into effect.

A formal challenge to the measure still is pending before the nation's highest court, and yesterday's action does not mean that the formal challenge will be rejected.

To obtain a stay, opponents had to demonstrate they had a good chance of eventually proving their case and that enforcement of the measure would cause hardship.

The American Civil Liberties Union, representing minority and female students, employees and contractors, said it still hoped the high court would decide to hear the case.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 75 LOW: 45	HIGH: 80 LOW: 45	HIGH: 70 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics .....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

New contract makes Coca Cola exclusive beverage on campus

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has entered into a new beverage contract with soft drink giant Coca Cola.

For the next five years, students and faculty will be purchasing Coca Cola, not Pepsi, products all over campus, while the University will receive over $270,000 a year from Coca Cola.

Paul Page, vice chancellor for Administration and Finance, said that the University decided to combine all of its beverage contracts, including vending machines and athletic department sponsorships, into one contract in order to gain flexibility with the soft drink companies.

"We bid out to try to get the best price in return for the beverages on campus," Page said. "What we did was to try to package the various contracts into a single contract to give us some leverage."

Page said that the University put out a request for bids this summer. Both Pepsi and Coca Cola submitted proposals, which were reviewed by a campus committee.

"We looked at what the commission was [the amount of money the University receives on each container sold] as well as the price," Page said. "We looked at what they were offering in terms of sponsorship and what they would do to help us prepare the machines for the UCards [student I.D. cards]."

Page said that after the committee reviewed both proposals, they decided to accept Coca Cola's offer, with the condition of partial exclusivity.

"We decided that Coke gave us the best return, all things considered," Page said. "This is a big account for them, one of the biggest in New England."

Coke products will be sold over campus, and served in the Dining Commons, Coffee Shop and Hatch, and other University facilities. No carbonated Pepsi products will be sold on campus, except in the Faculty Club and at student operated businesses, which are not included in the contract.

Non–carbonated Pepsi products, such as Snapple Ice Tea and juice drinks, will still be available in the Munchie Stores, Page said.

The transition to all Coke products has already begun, with 132 new Coke vending machines installed on campus. The new machines offer 20 ounce bottles for $1, not the 16–ounce cans sold for $.85 last year, and will eventually accept the new UCards.

In return for having its products sold on campus, Coca Cola will provide $165,000 a year in sponsorship dollars to the campus, $85,000 a year for the exclusivity agreement and a one time $22,400 grant for UCard installation.

Approximately $86,000 of the sponsorship dollars will go to the athletic department, $71,200 will go to the Mullins Center, $3,000 will go to Haigis Hoopla, and $6,000 will go to the Fine Arts Center.

This new contract will also increase the commission the University receives and will give consumers a better price per ounce, Page said.

"I think, all in all, we did pretty good," Page said. "The cost is that we are basically a Coke campus for this period of time."

Dominic Turano, Secretary of Finance for the Student Government Association, served on the committee which evaluated the contracts and said he, too, was pleased with the result.

"I am very happy with it," Turano said.

The majority of students interviewed also seemed to approve of the decision.

Nicole Burnett, a freshmen College of Arts and Science major, said she especially liked the 20-ounce bottles, in comparison to cans.

"I like this better because it has the cap," Burnett said. "It's safe and clean."

You look marvelous

LAUREN ROSEY / COLLEGIAN

Lydia Marolda, a junior English and pre–communications major, takes a photo of Andrew Wasgatt, a sophomore School of Management student, in Franklin Dining Hall.

CHRIS CESNIK / COLLEGIAN

Junior Jess Fenney in front of a vending machine of Coca Cola — the now–exclusive beverage on campus.

CRC offers students advice on dormitory search policy

By Julie Siegal
Collegian Staff

The Cannabis Reform Coalition (CRC) is advising on– campus residents to be cautious when smoking cigarettes or marijuana, drinking alcohol or lighting candles in their residence hall rooms — all of which are infractions against University of Massachusetts Code of Student Conduct.

The CRC held a meeting at 7 p.m., Wednesday night at Earth Foods in the Student Union to inform students of their legal rights and how to protect themselves in confrontational situations with the police and resident assistants (RAs).

They informed students that the Fourth Amendment mandates before a person's home or in this case, dormitory, can be searched, the police must secure a search warrant which is based upon probable cause.

Through a situational skit and question–answer period, members of the CRC told students they are under no legal obligation to open their door unless a warrant has been obtained by police.

According to John Lanzerotta, CRC treasurer, some University resident assistants have allegedly been instructed by the UMass Police Department to cover dormitory room peepholes with their fingers and announce they are someone else when trying to gain access into a room where the scent of marijuana is present.

The RAs were allegedly taught this tactic by the police at a volunteer drug identification and informational session, which was sponsored by UMass police near the end of summer, Lanzerotta said.

"Although it is legal for RAs to misidentify themselves, it is illegal for police officers," said Lanzerotta after speaking with attorney Charles Dimare from Student Legal Services.

"If police officers attempt to misidentify themselves and students allow the officers entry into their room, anything found or seen by police should be ruled inadmissible in court," said CRC Founder Brian Julin.

The CRC does not agree with the police department's alleged policy.

"The police are encouraging RAs to do their dirty work for them," said Joe Davis, CRC vice–president.

Julin said some RAs are uncomfortable with the police department's alleged plan.

"Some of the RAs at the session didn't believe in RA involvement with the marijuana policy," Julin said. "If it's stinking up the hallway, that's a gray area, but it's not their business to poke around in people's private lives to see if they're smoking marijuana."

He advised students to lock their doors at all times and if they do unknowingly allow police officers into their rooms while or after smoking marijuana, the consequences will probably be negative.

"If it comes down to your word or a police officer's word, sorry to say, it's going to come down to a police officer's word in a court of law," Julin said.

The CRC also encouraged students to use their peephole before letting anyone in while smoking and to complain to an RA if a door does not have a peephole.

"The peephole is there to protect people," Davis said. "There are some freaks running around the dormitories."

In addition to marijuana, the CRC urged students to hide all dormitory illegal belongings like toaster ovens, hot pots, candles and incense so they are not in plain view when RAs enter students rooms during holiday breaks or any other occasion.

Members of the UMass police department were not available for comment.

D.A. doubts students

Claims no proof of discrimination

By William Kates
Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Asian-American students who say they were beaten up after being thrown out of a Denny's restaurant may have "orchestrated" their claim, a prosecutor says.

Onondaga County District Attorney William Fitzpatrick said yesterday that his two-week investigation, producing a 29-page report, found no evidence supporting the Syracuse University students' accusations of racial discrimination.

Fitzpatrick came just short of calling the students liars.

"The students portray themselves as victims of discrimination by Denny's, as victims being bullied and ignored by the deputies, as victims of... an angry white mob," the report says. "An objective look at the events belies these claims."

The students' lawyer, Elizabeth OuYang, of the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said she was "extremely disappointed" with the report.

Karen Randall, a spokeswoman from Denny's Spartanburg, S.C. headquarters, said the company would have no comment until officials had read the report.

This is the second time in three years that nationally publicized allegations of racial discrimination have been lodged at Denny's.

In 1994, Denny's, which has 891 company-owned and 716 franchised restaurants nationwide, settled a $46 million class-action lawsuit brought by black Secret Service agents and California students who claimed discrimination in separate incidents.

Two weeks ago, the group of Syracuse students filed a federal lawsuit, contending they were denied service at a Denny's restaurant In the

Turn to DENNY'S, page 2

Weld lobbies friendly Senate democrats in D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld renewed his long-shot Capitol Hill campaign Wednesday to become ambassador to Mexico, taking his case to friendly Democrats on a committee hostile to his bid.

Weld met separately with Sens. Russ Feingold, (D-Wis.), and Paul Wellstone, (D-Minn)., who called Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, (R-N.C.), "unjust" for refusing to grant Weld a hearing.

"I have some indignation about this," Wellstone said in an interview after meeting with Weld. "I don't think it's fair to Governor Weld and I don't think it's fair to the way the Senate operates."

The staunchly conservative Helms has vowed not to grant a hearing to President Clinton's nominee. Helms has said that he believes Weld, a moderate Republican and former prosecutor, is soft on drugs for supporting the use of marijuana for medical purposes. During the congressional recess, committee Republicans such as Sens. Paul Coverdell of Georgia, Rod Grams of Minnesota and Chuck Hagel of Nebraska voiced support for Helms and urged Clinton to withdraw Weld's name.

"By nominating Weld to be ambassador to Mexico, Clinton has made a calculated political misjudgment that jeopardizes his relationship with Congress," Grams wrote in an opinion piece that appeared Aug. 19 in the Star-Tribune of Minneapolis. "He must find a way to gracefully negotiate an exit strategy or present an alternative solution."

Helms has said he would likely support Weld's nomination to another country, but Weld has refused to consider that option. Sen. Dick Lugar of Indiana, who so far is the solitary Republican on the committee pressing for a Weld hearing, conceded that he didn't seem to be making much progress in persuading Helms to change his mind.

Asked if he thought he had lost support during the August recess, Lugar told reporters, "I'm not sure we had any to lose." Lugar said he had written a new letter to Helms urging a hearing. Would it make any difference? "I have no idea," he said. Meanwhile, the GOP leadership wasn't supporting Weld. Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., answered with a forceful "no" when asked by reporters if anything had happened to change the outlook for Weld.

The White House, however, continues to lobby on behalf of Weld, who resigned last month as governor so he could fight for the job. The Clinton administration believes Weld would be confirmed in the full Senate.

"We believe that he has bipartisan support and that a majority of senators will support his nomination if given the opportunity," White House spokesman Barry Toiv said.

Toiv said Weld would continue to make "courtesy calls" this week, including to Republicans on the committee whose members could petition to force a hearing — although Helms could then shift the topic from Weld.

Three photographers surrender, formal investigation to follow

By Jeffrey Ulbrich
Associated Press

PARIS — Three photographers sought in the investigation of the car crash that killed Princess Diana turned themselves in yesterday. Another photographer who was at the scene insisted the paparazzi did the right thing — summoning help for the victims. But photographer Laszlo Veres acknowledged not all were intent on helping.

"There were one or two who opened the door of the car, quickly took some frames, and disappeared," he said.

The three photographers who surrendered — their identities were not disclosed — had been sought by investigators since Sunday, when Diana, her millionaire boyfriend, Dodi Fayed, and driver Henri Paul died in a high-speed car crash in a tunnel alongside the Seine River in central Paris. A bodyguard was gravely injured.

Witnesses had reported earlier that some photographers took pictures of the wreck and then left the scene before police and rescue personnel arrived.

Six other photographers and a press motorcyclist were detained after the accident and were freed Tuesday after being put under formal investigation for possible charges of manslaughter and failure to come to the aid of a person in danger, a crime in France.

The driver of Diana's car, who tests show had more than three times the legal blood-alcohol limit, raced into the tunnel at high speed, pursued by photographers who had followed them from the Ritz Hotel.

The Fayed family contends the photographers' pursuit caused the accident. But photographer Jacques Langevin, one of those first detained, said colleagues told him the Mercedes sedan "zigzagged dangerously and its driver didn't seem to be in control of it" as it roared through the Place de la Concorde toward the highway along the Seine, the newspaper Liberation reported.

What the investigators want to determine, according to sources close to the investigation, is how closely — and possibly how dangerously — the photographers were pursuing Diana's fleeing Mercedes.

The sources said police are particularly interested in how one photographer's car came to be parked in front of the wrecked Mercedes. From the outset, investigators have asked questions about a car in front of the Mercedes that might have played a role in the accident.

A police source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, also reported that the 3-year-old Mercedes was once stolen and dismantled for parts, and was later repaired by a Mercedes mechanic. He did not say, however, whether this meant the car could have been faulty.

A magistrate will make the final decision on whether to charge the seven paparazzi and send them to trial. Police are still searching for other photographers believed to have fled the scene. The three who surrendered to police yesterday afternoon, accompanied by their lawyer, were still being questioned last night, police sources said. They can be held in custody up to 48 hours without being placed under formal investigation, and were expected to spend the night at police headquarters.

Several detained earlier say public and diplomatic pressure is making them scapegoats. Veres, a Hungarian-born freelancer, told his story to the Budapest daily newspaper Nepszava.

On his way home, he got a call on his mobile phone and went to the accident scene, he said. "There, the police almost immediately detained me, together with several of my colleagues. I had a chance to take pictures, however."

He said it was photographers who called the police and ambulance service in the first place "so this only proves that the charges against us that we have neglected assistance is not true." Investigators are trying to determine from telephone records whether the first photographers at the scene did, in fact, call for help or instead rushed in and snapped pictures.

■ Denny's

continued from page 1

city on account of "race, ethnicity or national origin." The group consisted of six Asian-Americans, three blacks and one white.

A week earlier, a federal civil rights monitor recommended Denny's fire one of the Syracuse restaurant's employees and suspend another.

"We fully support the findings of the federal monitor," said Ms. OuYang., "We feel the DA has a major conflict of interest since the county is implicated in our lawsuit. This decision is written in a way to protect the county."

The students will continue to press their lawsuit while seeking a criminal investigation by the justice department, she said. According to this most recent lawsuit, the group waited 30 minutes for tables while white patrons were routinely seated. They claim they were ejected by deputies moonlighting as security guards after complaining.

In the parking lot, the Asian and black students had a shoving match with the uniformed, armed guards, and then were jeered, racially insulted and physically attacked by 10 or more white youths who came out of the restaurant.

Fitzpatrick's inquiry found a different scenario.

"All the [independent] witnesses concur that when these students entered Denny's and complained, they were obnoxious, intoxicated, using foul language — totally out of line — and were properly asked to leave," Fitzpatrick said.

The students arrived at the restaurant at approximately 2:40 a.m. — a time when bars are closing and when Denny's was "mobbed," said Fitzpatrick. The group of seven had to wait while smaller groups were sat, but only after waitresses offered to split up the Syracuse students.

Fitzpatrick said the students waited no more than 15 to 20 minutes before one of them confronted the hostess, loudly using obscenities.

"These are documented facts that cannot be refuted," Fitzpatrick said.

Security guards asked that student, Derrick Lizardo, to leave. The other students in the group followed. Meanwhile, a group of black students who were waiting in the restaurant joined the complaining.

Two white patrons who came out to watch told Lizardo to leave, to which one of the Asian students responded, "[expletive], white trash," the report said. When one of the guards urged the students to go home, another of the Asian-American students responded, "What, to China?" the report said.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

The waiting game
Dan Sumorok, a sophomore engineering major, gets his Terminal Adapter Unit from Jim Thacker, a junior engineering major, in the Campus Center yesterday.

WELCOMING BACK STUDENTS

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

University Store • Textbook Annex

SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy

If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19TH, 1997.

Beginning MONDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1997 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore: do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.

Any incorrect titles purchased after SEPT. 19, 1997 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.

Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is FRIDAY SEPT. 19 1997.

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

textbook annex Fall '97 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Visa, MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback	annex rush
9/05/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/05/97 9 am – 6 pm
9/06/97 NO BUYBACK	9/06/97 11am – 5pm
9/07/97 CLOSED	9/07/97 CLOSED
9/08/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/08/97 9 am – 6 pm
9/09/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/09/97 9 am – 6 pm
9/10/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/10/97 9 am – 6 pm
9/11/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/11/97 9 am – 6 pm
9/12/97 9 am – 5 pm	9/12/97 9 am – 6 pm

Blast kills seven in Jerusalem, peace threatened

By Hilary Appelman
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Bombs exploded — once again — in the heart of Jerusalem yesterday, spraying rusty nails into a crowd of shoppers and late-summer tourists on the city's main pedestrian walkway.

The blasts, claimed by the Islamic militant group Hamas, killed seven people — including three suicide bombers — and struck a new blow to peacemaking just as hopes for improvement were rising. At least 192 people were wounded.

Israel stepped up pressure on Yasser Arafat to crack down on Islamic militants and sealed its borders with the West Bank and Gaza Strip. A previous closure had been eased only two days earlier, ahead of Secretary of State Madeleine Albright's planned visit next week.

That closure was imposed after twin suicide bombings in a Jerusalem market killed 17 people on July 30.

In Washington, President Clinton denounced yesterday's bombings and said Albright would go ahead with her trip. Clinton urged Arafat's Palestinian Authority to "do all it can to create an environment that leaves no doubt that terror will not be tolerated."

The three nail-studded bombs exploded shortly after 3 p.m., as hundreds of shoppers, including many tourists, crowded the Ben Yehuda pedestrian mall, which is lined with cafes, gift shops and American fast-food restaurants such as Burger King and Sbarro. Israel's Channel Two television said the bombers stood outside three stores on Ben Yehuda Street, close enough to make eye contact, and blew themselves up within seconds of each other. Ambulances rushed to the chaotic scene, and rescue workers treated some of the victims on the sidewalk, where cafe chairs and umbrellas lay scattered amid piles of broken glass. Emergency workers rushed a toddler into the back of an ambulance. Paramedics splashed water in the face of a weeping man.

A charred smell hung over the mall while ultra-Orthodox burial squad volunteers searched for pieces of flesh in the debris — a familiar scene to Israelis.

Abie Mendelson, 18, a Jewish seminary student from Los Angeles, was having a drink with friends when the bombs went off.

"We had just clinked our glasses and heard the explosion," he said afterward from Jerusalem's Ein Kerem Hospital, where he was being treated for burns to his face and head.

"I heard my friend screaming. I looked down to make sure I could walk."

The two victims identified by late in the day were both Israelis.

Hamas, which has carried out 13 bombings in four years of Israeli-Palestinian peacemaking, claimed responsibility for the attack and threatened more bombings unless Hamas prisoners held by Israel were released by Sept. 14.

Arafat condemned the attack, and a senior Palestinian official pledged full cooperation with Israel on security matters. But Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the deeply troubled peace process could not go on unless Arafat crushed Hamas once and for all.

"No peace process can exist when the Palestinian Authority enables the leaders of the terrorists to walk around free with their arms, demonstrations and flags in cities that have become refuges for terrorists," Netanyahu said.

Later yesterday, Albright telephoned Netanyahu, who told her the Palestinian Authority was not doing enough to fight terrorism, the prime minister's office said.

Ahmed Abdel Rahman, secretary of Arafat's Cabinet, said the bombers apparently wanted to stop Albright from coming. Hamas opposes the peace agreements between Israel and the Palestinians. "We are ready to coordinate with the Israeli side and to cooperate with them to face this terrorism and this criminal act," Abdel Rahman said.

Arafat pressured to crack down after recent bombing

By Nicolas B. Tatrol
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Yasser Arafat has long rebuffed Israel's increasingly persistent demands that he jail Islamic militants and cut off their supplies of arms in order to halt a suicide bombing campaign.

After yesterday's attack, however, Arafat may find it far more difficult to resist the pressure to take action. Palestinian sources said Arafat's police had already taken some steps after yesterday's bombings, arresting 10 Hamas activists and shutting down a Hamas newspaper.

There were serious questions, however, whether Arafat is willing or able to carry out the far-reaching sweep that is demanded by Israel.

Such a crackdown would not win Arafat support among Palestinians, who have yet to see the promised fruits of peace. Hamas, which opposes Israeli-Palestinian peacemaking and claimed responsibility for yesterday's bombings, has deep roots in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Its supporters account for up to 30 percent of the Palestinian population.

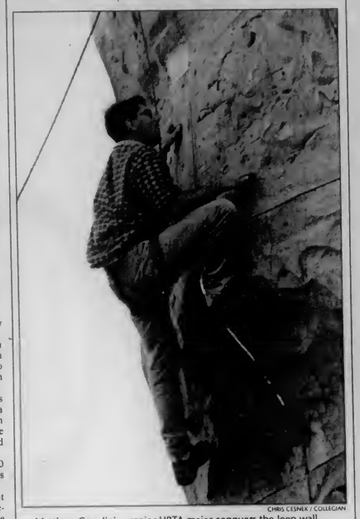
Arafat has vowed his security forces would move against those involved in yesterday's attack and similar bombings on July 30 that killed 17 people.

But indications are that those pulling the strings may be based outside the country, and the few helping out locally are working under deep cover — well beyond the reach of Arafat's security forces.

At the same time, if the bombs keep going off, Israeli extremists may retaliate against Palestinians at random — as happened on Jan. 1 when an Israeli soldier opened fire on a Palestinian market in Hebron.

That in turn could set off an unstoppable cycle of tit-for-tat violence.

Politically, Arafat may be constrained in his ability to act against Hamas since many Palestinians believe his peace policy had been undermined by Israel's actions.



Those actions included Israel's building of a Jewish housing project on disputed land in Jerusalem, its refusal to make good on promises to hand over more West Bank land and its ban on Palestinians working in Israel.

The leaflet claiming responsibility for yesterday's bombings referred to Sheik Abdel-Karim Obeid, a Muslim cleric kidnapped by Israel from south Lebanon in 1989, and to the recent shelling of the Lebanese port city of Sidon by an Israeli-backed militia in Lebanon.

A similar responsibility claim for the July 30 attack in the name of Hamas also made references to Obeid.

This prompted Arafat to suggest yesterday that the masterminds of the attacks are working independently from abroad, and are at odds with the Hamas political leadership in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Campus Tour considered commercial by some

CHRIS CESMEK / COLLEGIAN

Matthew Ceradini, a senior HRTA major conquers the Jeep wall.

By Joseph Fountain
Collegian Staff

Any students who want to get free condoms, deodorant and soft drinks, head to the Collegiate Health and Fitness Tour located in the middle of the University of Massachusetts campus.

According to Tour Director Ken Gistdt, this is the fourth year the tour has visited this campus. The tour, which is sponsored by Intercollegiate Communications, is invited by the fraternity council.

Carlos Bedoya, a worker in the Arrid Extra Dry booth, said that the tour is about giving out responsible information to students and having some safe fun.

"We're here to give students information about drug and alcohol abuse, answer their questions and introduce the students to our sponsors," Bedoya said.

At the information desk there is information on sexual harassment and assault, and how to achieve the most in exercise. The information is free and people are encouraged to take some information and ask questions.

Although the weather on campus for the tour has been cool, a number of students took part in the activities being offered.

Freshman Jen Reed, undeclared major, said after finishing the rock climbing wall, "I always wanted to do it, it gives you such a boost.

"It's a little commercial, but every where you go it's commercial," Reed said. "I think it's important everyone knows how to take care of themselves."

After coming off of the Bungee Run, Mike Mahoney, a freshman journalism major, and Chris Halloran, a freshman communication major said, "This is great."

About commercialism Halloran echoed the same feelings as Reed and said, "Without sponsors this wouldn't happen."

"To put it simply," Mahoney said, "this is cool!"

A handful of people were critical of having companies sponsor an event like this and set up balloons in the middle of campus.

"It's just something someone is trying to sell you," said Joe Davis, a junior economics major. "It's consumerism in the middle of campus."

"I just ignore it every year," said Allison Jones, a senior French and journalism major.

Regarding claims of commercialism, Gistdt said, "We're not selling anything."

"Our sponsors want to get their name out there to the student, and everyone brushes their teeth and shampoos their hair," Gistdt said.

Gistdt had a message to all students for the last day.

"Come out, kick back and relax for a couple hours. Play some games and take home some free samples," he said.

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS IS HIRING!
If you have experience in Quark, Photoshop, Illustrator, and/or pagemaker, come down to the Collegian, and fill out an application.
Any Questions, See Josh.

The TI-83
The singular solu on for a mul -func on [world].
One calculator to handle algebra through calculus. Another for finance. And a computer program to perform statistical computations. Whoa! Wouldn't it be extraordinary if one calculator could handle so many diverse needs, and still be easy to use? Well, now one does just that. Presenting the TI-83 Graphing Calculator.
The revolutionary TI-83 handles a host of functions for a variety of college subjects. And if you're familiar with the popular TI-82, picking up the TI-83 will be a snap. The TI-83. In a multi-function world, there simply is no equal.
Check it out at your campus bookstore or favorite retailer where TI calculators are sold.
START DOING EXTRAORDINARY THINGS
TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
www.ti.com/ti-83
See the TI-83 at the University Store

Check out the Collegian on the web!
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL & PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION
PERFORMING ARTS Division
MUSIC ACTING DANCE
REGISTRATION SEPTEMBER 2-12
CALL: PAD (413) 545-0519
73 BARTLETT HALL/UMASS

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Learning from an autoworker

Focus on: Labor Issues

Dicky Wallace

In the first two days of the school year, people working in the Grad Employees Organization (GEO) office have received hundreds of questions. Some have been very practical questions: Do I have health insurance benefits? Do you know of any available jobs? Where can I get childcare past 5 p.m.? What are the visa requirements for my partner? How can I make a grievance with my department that has screwed me out of my job promised last spring?

Other questions have been ideological or even rhetorical: Why unionize grad students? Why no dental in a grad employee health plan? What have unions ever done for me?

Probably the one question in the latter category that I've heard more than any other in the past few days at the GEO office is, "Why UAW? Why are UMass grad students members of United Auto Workers?"

It might seem an annoying question to have to address again and again, but I actually like to deal with it because it was the first question I asked when I came to UMass as a graduate student. Here I was, thinking I'd done something kind of exclusive, you know, getting into grad school and all. Looking back, I think I had some pretty elitist attitudes despite most of the egalitarian ideals I professed to believe in. "Unionized auto workers? Aren't they the scumbags that mucked up Detroit? What the hell do I have to do with a bunch of rustbelt working stiffs in the UAW?"

Over time, I managed to put away my reservations and stopped trying to hold up my working position as superior to my perceived stereotypes of UAW members. As I started going back to some pretty basic economics, I saw, intellectual elitism aside, that UMass grad workers had many things in common with the so-called "typical" UAW member.

Simply put, we both work and we don't have ultimate control of the means by which we work. Executive boards and CEOs, owners and stockholders — they're the ones in control at General Motors or Ford or whatever big ol' corporation; they're the ones with the controlling wealth that can provide the place to work and the materials with which to work.

Here at UMass, the trustees, the Board of Higher Education, and Whitmorites control our means to work. And what do we bring to this scheme? We bring our labor power. GEO members teach large classes and do the research that professors often don't want to bother with anymore. Traditional autoworkers bring their labor to their jobs, putting together cars and doing the things that few CEO's could do, or would ever do even if they could.

As an individual, the autoworker has little power in this process. He or she has only labor to put into this scheme of things and the big ol' company can pretty much do what it wants with that person. It dictates the individual's wages and working conditions and can even limit bathroom breaks to one a day if it so chooses. If that person doesn't like it or pisses on the assembly line floor, the big ol' company can say, "to hell with you then," and hire some other individual who can better hold in her or his dissatisfactions.

It's similar at the University. As an individual TA or RA, I have only my working ability to sell. I don't control the structural aspects of my classroom, like how students are brought in, and I usually have to scrounge chalk 2 minutes before I begin each class. The means by which I work are in the control of the big ol' University. And I, as an individual have very, very little say in how my work is organized and how I am compensated for my service to the University.

I am not an individual in my workplace, however, because I am part of my union, GEO, which is, in turn, part of UAW. And the "rustbelt working stiff" autoworker is not an individual because he or she is part of a Local Shop, which is, in turn, part of UAW. Collectively, we have a lot more say in how we do our work and how we are paid for it. This is because we have the ability to act as a group and we even have the ability to hold back our part in the big ol' scheme of things: we can withhold labor or manipulate the ways in which we provide this labor to the corporation. Or the University.

This withholding can result in strikes or, in some cases, slowdowns. In the case of graduate students here at UMass, it could take the form of "teach-ins," whereby graduate student employees would carry out their teaching in different places than they usually would.

Such collective action can be used as leverage. In the case of the UPS workers striking this summer, they leveraged for the creation of more full-time jobs and protection of their pension plans. GM's recent strikes lately have been over out-sourcing and job protection. And here at UMass, GEO once used a strike to gain health fee waivers, rights to grievances and arbitration and higher wages — among other things. And today, GEO is trying to use its ability to work collectively to take a stand on affirmative action, to improve TA workspaces, to create affordable childcare on campus, as well as to improve wages and protect our jobs and rights as grad student employees. I may fancy myself an intellectual elite and, let's face it, I don't know what the hell the "PVC" in PVC joint stands for, nor where one would go in a car, but I'm a working stiff just like the "typical" UAW member.

In the GEO office, some of us are saying that UAW means "Uniting All Workers." It works, but feels a bit corny to me. Still, the sentiment is there. I'm a grad student worker here and I'm able to affect the means by which I do my work by uniting with other grad student workers as well as plenty of other working stiffs.

Dickie Wallace is a member of the Graduate Employee Organization.

Focus on Race

The Collegian Editorial page needs writers for an upcoming series, Focus on Race. If you are interested in contributing call 545–1491, email "letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu" or come by the Collegian offices at Campus Center 113 and speak with Dan Bodah.

Write for Ed/Op!

The Collegian Editorial page needs new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, satire, lifestyle, or any of a thousand other styles — let us be as broad as the student body is. All who are interested should attend a new Writer's meeting on Friday, September 5 at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, call 545–1491.

Casual chic hurts working women

Focus on: Women

Sara Eckel

"If the world's leading chauvinist pig were to come up with a system for keeping women out of power, he couldn't have done better than the casual dress code."

So says John T. Molloy, author of the classic business text Dress for Success in a phone interview from his home in New Jersey. Molloy, who has schooled generations of business people in the importance of looking like organization men and women, has been studying the rapidly growing trend in casual offices, and the results, he says, are very bad news for women.

In one test, business people were shown pictures of men and women and were asked to guess how successful and competent they were. When shown pictures of a man and a woman in traditional suits, the respondents gave the man a slight edge over the woman. But when the same man and woman were shown without jackets, the man was overwhelmingly viewed as being more successful.

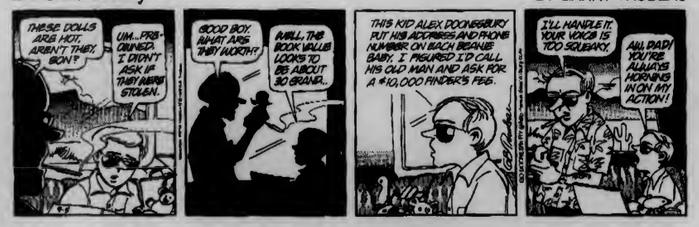
"Eighty to 90 percent assumed the man had a jacket somewhere," Molloy writes in his new book the "New Women's Dress for Success" (Warner). "They also believed that he graduated from college, was good at his job and was an executive or a professional. When we showed the woman without a jacket, close to 80 percent assumed she did not take off her jacket. They assumed she was not an executive or a professional, but a clerk, typist or secretary."

Molloy also distributed calendars to businesswomen and asked them to record what they wore on each day and how they were treated by bosses, co–workers and subordinates. He says that while most women were initially skeptical that casual clothing could have such a huge impact on their authority, 60 percent of the women who returned the calendars were completely convinced that it did. "They don't like what they find out, but they agree with me," he says.

Women are not the only business people who suffer under the casual dress code. Molloy says that anyone who deviates from the standard perception of an executive — that is, anyone who isn't tall, white and male — is put at a disadvantage. "If I were 5–foot–4 and had a squeaky voice, it would kill me," says Molloy. "The suit has always been a great camouflage for short men, heavy men, women and minorities."

But women, he says, are also hurt by the fact that their styles of dress are so varied. "Whatever men do, they develop a uniform. If the people in power were to start wearing pink tutus, you'd see hairy legs and pink tutus all over the place. Right now, if you go into an office building on any Friday, you'll see 8 million men, and half will be wearing khaki slacks and a dark blue shirt. The women in the same offices will be wearing a variety of things. This gives men the advantage."

Contrary to what many women believe, new and different styles do not make a good impression with the head office, according to Molloy. "I don't make women happy," he says. "The fashion industry makes them happy; it gives them what they enjoy. But I'm telling them that it doesn't work. It's unfortunate, but that's how it is."



Which is not to say that women do not have the right to have style — it just needs to be the right style, which Molloy calls "conservative chic." And, here again, we see the problem with the casual dress code: Women have always benefitted from wearing extremely elegant and well–made clothing. "A woman in a drab suit doesn't have the power of a man in a drab suit. And a man wearing a $2,000 Italian suit doesn't have any great power with men. If you think of a high–fashion male, you don't think of power. If you think of a high–fashion female, you do. Think of a Chanel suit, a conservative one: That has always been power for women."

But with one in three Americans now going to work in casual dress, that power may be quickly eroding.

Sara Eckel is a syndicated columnist.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Letters to the Editor

A call to action for HB 3434

To the Editor:

In just a little more than two years, we'll be in the 21st century and the 20th century will be a thing of the past. Nevertheless, we continue to engage in forms of so–called sport and entertainment that are reminiscent of the Dark Ages. Dog racing is just one example. Each year, at least 30,000 young Greyhounds are murdered because they're not making money for their owners. Some once did, but no longer are; others never did. For these reasons, they are put to death. What is so amazing, however, is that in spite of the harsh treatment and abuse they've experienced, former racers are gentle, affectionate and easy to love.

HB 3434, which has been with the Joint Committee on Government Relations since early 1997, would ban live dog racing in Massachusetts, while permitting simulcasts from other states. The reasoning behind this is that since revenue from this simulcasting has increased in the last several years, Massachusetts ought to continue to receive those monies. On the other hand, revenue from live dog racing has plummeted drastically.

If the House of Representatives in Boston is ever to vote on HB 3434, the bill must first receive a favorable report from the Joint Committee on Government Regulations. Without such a favorable report, it will be sent to a study committee where it will die, as did the previous bill. It's therefore quite urgent that a brief letter or post card be sent to the following two legislators asking them to urge the Joint Committee to give the bill a favorable report. Two or three sentences are adequate. Send them to Speaker of the House Thomas Finneran and Senate President Thomas Birmingham. The address for both is State House, Boston, MA 02133.

Incidentally, Rep. Finneran reportedly is opposed to casino gambling. Remind him that dog racing is another form of gambling, a deadly form. Please write these two letters.

Mary Kelly
New Ashford

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst, MA 01003; or by email to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu Letters may be edited for length, clarity and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Faisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

New book reveals key to humanity's future encrypted in the Bible

By Alex Iglesias
Collegian Staff

THE BIBLE CODE
Michael Drosnin
Simon & Schuster

Since the dawn of civilization, humankind has been on a relentless quest to unlock the key to our future. There have been countless individuals who have claimed to have the ability of foretelling the future (Nostradamus is but one example), yet only now, in the later 20th century, has the true key to our existence been found.

Michael Drosnin, author of the New York Times best–seller Citizen Hughes, has now created the most mind–boggling and provocative work of the year, The Bible Code. This new piece by Drosnin offers some highly needed enlightenment to today's society.

After years as an investigative reporter, Drosnin met Dr. Eliyahu Rips, who was involved in a project to unlock a mathematical code buried within the Old Testament. This code, which is based on the Hebrew version of the Bible, is said to allow vision into the future. The code, however, is so complex that only today's computers would be able to unlock it.

Albert Einstein once said, "The distinction between past, present, and future is only an illusion, however persistent." The Bible Code elaborates on Einstein's ingenious theory of comparing time to an ever–revolving door in which past, present and future are all the same. The events to come can take newfound directions depending on new knowledge of our future, acquired in the present. The Bible Code is a mirror.

Michael Drosnin began his investigation with a certain amount of cynicism, and ended without a doubt in his agnostic mind that this code is believable. Drosnin's breezy style lures the unsuspecting reader in for the ruthless murder of any glimpse of a promising future. The Bible Code fortifies our fascinations with the mythical mainstream of future predictions, as it transports you chapter by chapter into the world of physic prediction. Drosnin does lack fluidity in a few choice spots where he strays off into religiously scientific reverie, however the scientific jargon would be like finding a needle in a haystack, so the suggested $25 price tag is well worth its temporary confusion.

The Bible Code digs deep into the souls of mankind, It questions the existence of our future minute by minute, and explains ways in which our beliefs and fortune–telling knowledge could reshape the face of the world as we know it. The Bible Code is our future in the grasp of our minds — a book that can mold its own destiny. A–

Penn, Travolta star in Cassavetes' last screenplay

By Adam Levine
Collegian Staff

SHE'S SO LOVELY
Directed by Nick Cassavetes with Sean Penn, Robin Wright Penn, John Travolta
Playing at Mt. Farms Theater

Many credit the late John Cassavetes as being the messiah of independent filmmaking. He successfully crawled his way out of the trenches of mundane Hollywood formula films where he worked as a secondary actor. Finally establishing enough connections and financial security, Cassavetes evolved to writer/director extraordinaire and created thoughtful and provocative independently produced films.

Before Cassavetes' untimely death, he completed a screenplay for a film called She's So Lovely, which was then passed on to his son, Nick. Years later, Sean Penn approached Nick and the two then decided to collaborate on a production. Nick showed him his father's final script and, with the help of John Travolta as co–producer with Penn, She's So Lovely became an intriguing tribute to a father from a son.

She's So Lovely, Cassavetes' second feature, could have been a clever, hip little film, yet it loses itself completely. In fact, Cassavetes attempts so strongly to make his film's structure unique, that the story becomes completely unpredictable in how absurdly predictable it really is. What is thus created is an unnerving sense of dissatisfaction in a film which tries to mold itself within the framework of disturbing romantic comedy. The only one truly disturbing thing about She's So Lovely is, however, that it really doesn't make any sense, but then again, that was most likely what Cassavetes was attempting.

The first half hour of She's So Lovely feels like a lifetime, as Cassavetes slowly allows his camera to crawl about the hallways of Robin Wright–Penn's dirty New York apartment building. Here he establishes some sort of character development at such a creepy pace, it leaves the viewer completely out in the dark as to what direction the film is heading. With her squeaky accent and strung–out junkie appearance, Wright–Penn searches for her missing husband and finds conflict all along the way, including an abusive next–door neighbor who physically assaults her.

The next morning she awakes bruised and hungover and stumbles her way down to the local bar, where hubby (in real life too) Sean Penn is waiting with an entourage of females surrounding him. She lies about her bruises, then the two go out dancing. Filled with slow motion stills and gritty sets, this segment is the weakest part of the film, taking far too long to actually say anything. Yet, the mismatched narrative does move towards a peculiar direction, which elevates into a haunting, powerful climax ending the first half of the film. Penn does exactly what he does best, in a chilling fury of rage as a result of the knowledge of his wife's beating — he provides an explosive yet, somehow endearing performance. After shooting an officer, Penn rushes away from the pursuing police, ranting away like Rain Man with intellect, and ultimately finds himself in a correctional institute for 10 years.

By this time, Robin has remarried and has three kids, one from Sean and two from new husband John Travolta (in the most bizarre role of his recent comeback). Obviously, Penn wants to reclaim his wife, however, the actions he goes through to do this are slightly above absurd. Cassavetes somehow alters his character's emotional responses, disallowing the audience to really take any of them seriously.

There are some touching points in She's So Lovely and the film's anti–climactic finale may be interesting to some. However, there must be some kind of character identification, even in a genre revisionist film like this, to allow the audience to have any empathy for the characters and their causes. Also, the sense of time within the narrative is so off–key that it leaves a disruptive flow to the film's context. Despite all this uneasiness, She's So Lovely can be enjoyed for nothing other than how strange it really is. At least Cassavetes' heart was in the right place when he decided to film his father's script. C–

© COURTESY LIONS GATE FILMS, INC.

John Travolta takes a back seat to Sean Penn and Robin Wright Penn in She's So Lovely.

Summer concert round–up includes Manda Rin, Prodigy

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

SUMMER CONCERT ROUND–UP

Ahhh... the sights and sounds of summer. What can beat waving a cigarette lighter as Jimmy Buffett & The Coral Reefer Band take you back to Margaritaville? Or watching Dave Matthews lead 25,000 people in a sing–a–long of "Ants Marching?" To most, a summertime concert means relaxing on the lawn at the local amphitheater and resting sore muscles from that dreadful summer job.

However appealing it is to sit under the stars on a warm, humid night, most of this past summer's most memorable — both good and bad — concerts took place elsewhere. Inside the cramped surroundings of grungy clubs and converted gangster–era movie houses, those same sweaty and steamy conditions were replicated, albeit on a much smaller scale. And don't let these venues' minuscule capacities be misleading. The acts playing in these intimate environs were every bit as talented as those playing in the big sheds.

SMASHING PUMPKINS
Double Door
June 23

CHICAGO — While the name on the marquee read "Audio Vanguard Association," the crowd of gawkers and hipsters laboring to get into the 400–capacity Double Door on June 23 knew better. Inside, the Smashing Pumpkins were treating the grossly oversold mass of assembled well–wishers to a two–hour tour de force rock show.

Arranged as a last minute send–off for the multi–platinum superstars before they headed off to play the European festival circuit, the show was a significant departure from their usual live offerings. Gone were the grandiose trappings of last winter's Mullins Center performance. No samples, no keyboards, no inverted ice cream cone lights, and no trivial audience banter — in fact, nary one word was spoken by the usually glib band to the crowd as they instead chose to concentrate solely on rocking out. On this steamy night, the Pumpkins were a lot like that thing in the George Foreman infomercial — a lean, mean, grilling machine.

The visceral 80–minute set opened with "Where Boys Fear to Tread," followed by "Eye" (from the Lost Highway soundtrack), "Tonight, Tonight" and "Transformer," an obscure tune from The Aeroplane Flies High boxed set. With the exception of the first–ever live airing of Batman & Robin's "The End is the Beginning is the End," the rest of the songs were taken from Melon Collie & The Infinite Sadness, with revved–up versions of "Zero," "Through the Eyes of Ruby," "By Starlight," "Bullet With Butterfly Wings," "1979," "Muzzle" and "XYU" rounding out the performance. It was as if some divine power took hold of

Turn to CONCERTS, page 6

Interested in the Arts?
Come write for the Arts & Living Page!
Contact Seema Gangatirkar at 545–1361

VALLEY BICYCLES SINCE 1981
FUN FITNESS TRANSPORTATION
Award Winning!
Sales • Service • Rentals
Accessories • Shipping • Storage
ALWAYS A FREE Helmet with any new bike purchase
Uptown 319 Main Street • Amherst 256-0880
Trailside 8 Railroad Street • Hadley 584-4466

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!
• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including
Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!
Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.
DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

TAU Distribution
YOU CAN:
Pick up a TAU
Start an EMAIL Account
Purchase Necessary Software
Thursday September 4th &
Friday September 5th
9am- 5pm
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 165-69
For on Campus Residents Only.
You Must Have a Student ID.
Please note: You will not be issued a TAU if you live in a building connected to the Residential Network

MUSIC MALL
5 SHOPS UNDER 1 ROOF
A Division of Falcetti Music
Sept 19 Pearl St Northampton
Battle of the Funk
Deadline For Tapes Sept. 8, 8:00PM
Four Finalists will be chosen
☛ 1st Grand Prize is a Certificate to Music Mall
☛ 2 nd prize is a 5- hour block of Recording Time at Blue Wolf Productions
☛ and much more
Call Dan For Details
Guitar Shop: Over 300 electric, acoustic & bass guitars & amps. From Gibson, Ibanez, Martin, Takamine, Peavey, Ovation, Yamaha, and ESP
Sound Shop: Features 4-track recorders, DAT machines, PA heads, speakers, rack effects, microphones, & much more
Percussion Shop: Huge selection of drum sets, cymbals, percussion, & snares — plus a gr-8 selection of Afro-Latin percussion
Keyboard Shop: A large variety of synthesizers, samplers, digitals, portables, drum machines, modules, MIDI controllers, & software
(413) 543-1002
1755 Boston Road Springfield

■ concerts

continued from page 5

Billy Corgan and company and said, "Just rock baby." And rock they did.

PRODIGY
Metro
May 30

CHICAGO — England's techno–punk outfit Prodigy lived up to the prodigious hype surrounding them as they electrified and dazzled a mostly mainstream crowd at the Metro on May 30. Thanks to heavy media attention and two chart–topping singles, they have been anointed as the record industry's barometer of electronic music's potential in America.

The lightning–fast pace of the show was clear from the outset. Perhaps inspired by the caustic first strains of the evening's opener, "Smack My Bitch Up," Bozo–haired frontman, Keith Flint, climbed on a wall of speakers and dove into a seething mosh pit as a means of introducing himself.

As the set progressed, from the full–on techno of "Voodoo People" to the incendiary "Fuel My Fire," the group's members — Flint, MC Maxim Reality, rubber–legged dancer Leeroy Thornhill, and Sid Vicious clone Gizz Butt — each took turns at center stage, looking and acting like a band of hooligans that had just escaped from the Ringling Bros. Circus.

If they were the stars of the show, then group founder/writer/producer Liam Howlett was the ringmaster, carefully conducting the chaos in front of him with masterful precision. Although obscured by a massive wall of well–anchored equipment, this was clearly his show. Driven by his high volume throbbing breakbeats and inventive samples, his side show freaks were left to provide the visual portion of the program. Flint, Thornhill, Butt, and MC Maxim worked up the crowd relentlessly with taunts, tangible interaction, and mock violent competition for the spotlight.

On their MTV hit "Firestarter," Flint declared himself a "twisted animator" and a "punky instigator" as he smashed his microphone into the stage. After witnessing this display firsthand, one would be hard–pressed to disagree with him.

MARTY KEANE/COLLEGIAN

Manda Rin and her band of Scottish popsters "tell it to the kids" at Metro in Chicago on July 25.

THIRD EYE BLIND / GENE Metro
May 27

CHICAGO — With a brand new debut album out and only a handful of gigs under their belt, I suppose Third Eye Blind should be cut a little slack... O.K., who am I kidding? Let's be honest. To be totally objective and frank, they are utterly horrid. They personify everything that is wrong with music today. Will anyone, save for their families, remember Third Eye Blind even existed at end of the year? Let's hope not.

I'll admit, "Semi–Charmed Life" is a pretty good summer song, but on both their self–titled debut and in a live setting, Third Eye Blind have nothing, and I do mean nothing, to offer past that one juicy pop nugget.

Why people pay money to hear a band play one song is beyond me, but to each his own. And what about their live show you ask? Oh brother... where do I begin?

Completely void of stage presence, Third Eye Blind onstage is about as exciting as watching ice cream melt. You could count the number of times a member of the group actually bothered to look up from their instruments, obviously terrified of what might happen if they did.

Playing after Third Eye Blind, with their stylish mod outfits and pretty melodies to boot, Gene were destined to come off as pop stars. While they put on a surprisingly boisterous 75–minute set filled with enough melodramatic posing by lead crooner Martin Rossiter, Gene are still little more than a good Smiths cover band, which still beats being Third Eye Blind on any day.

COURTESY JIM MCGUIRE

Third Eye Blind lead a semi–charmed life ... at least for now.

FOO FIGHTERS
Riviera Theatre
July, 4

Only two short years ago, ex–Nirvana drummer Dave Grohl's new group was being hailed as the new alternaheroes for the '90s on the backs of their excellent self–titled debut. Unfortunately, things have changed.

After listening to their follow–up, this year's The Colour and the Shape, it is apparent that the D.I.Y. mentality and punk spirit that permeated their debut has fallen by the wayside, as producer Gil Norton succeeded in sucking all the earnestness and giddy fun out of this subpar effort.

Still, the Foo's are always a treat in concert, and their Independence Day show was no different as it celebrated all rock cliches that are distinctly American — glitz, glamour and the incomparable Pat Smear.

Clad in a vampish black leather getup, Smear was the center of attention as he singlehandedly exuded enough exuberance for the entire band, merrily prancing and preening about, sans footwear.

BIS
Metro
July 25

CHICAGO — Unpretentious and unrelenting, Bis brought a refreshing blend of solid musicianship and adolescent enthusiasm to their July 25 gig at Chicago's famed Metro for a performance that, by all accounts, exceeded all expectations.

Using canned drum beats instead of a drummer, Bis played a mix of songs off their first two U.S. releases, Teen–C Power and The New Transistor Heroes. Especially entertaining were "Kandy Pop" and "Starbright Boy." Vocalist Manda Rin, clearly revelling in the late night party– like atmosphere, accentuated their teen anthems with her infectious pogoing.

Wedding bells for Woody & Soon-Yi? Harris hits Rent

Imagine marrying your mother's former boyfriend. That could be the situation brewing for Woody Allen and his girlfriend, Soon–Yi Previn. Allen, who dumped longtime love Mia Farrow in favor of Farrow's daughter, Soon–Yi Previn, was heard querying "You want to get it in platinum or not?" The couple was inspecting a five–carat ruby and diamond piece at New York's Tiffany Jewelers.

Neil Patrick Harris is ditching his clean–cut look for grunge. The actor, who has now aged to a respectable 24, bleached his hair blond in anticipation of a role in the new West Coast production of Rent. Don't look for any comparisons with his Doogie Howser character.

"Physically, I've changed a lot," Harris told People magazine.

The gay magazine Odyssey has discovered a juicy tidbit about the British Royal Family that will have the tabloids twittering. The Queen Mother had a hip replacement surgery three years ago and is now ready for round number two. In the meantime, her male surgeon has now become a she. So far, mum's the word from Buckingham Palace.

Demi Moore is having quite the summer. After her last three movies bombed at the box office (The Scarlet Letter, The Juror, Striptease) Moore is finally winning some priase for her role as Lt. Jordan O'Neil in here latest, G.I. Jane. Newsweek praises the film and its star, calling Moore "compelling." While her acting may not necessarily merit an Oscar, the highest paid actress in Hollywood ($12 million for Striptease) was voted the "sexiest woman in the world" in a survey conducted by Shape magazine. Four thousand women picked Moore ahead of second–place Cindy Crawford, followed by Michelle Pfeiffer and then Pamela Anderson Lee. Madonna however did not fair so well — she placed last in the survey.

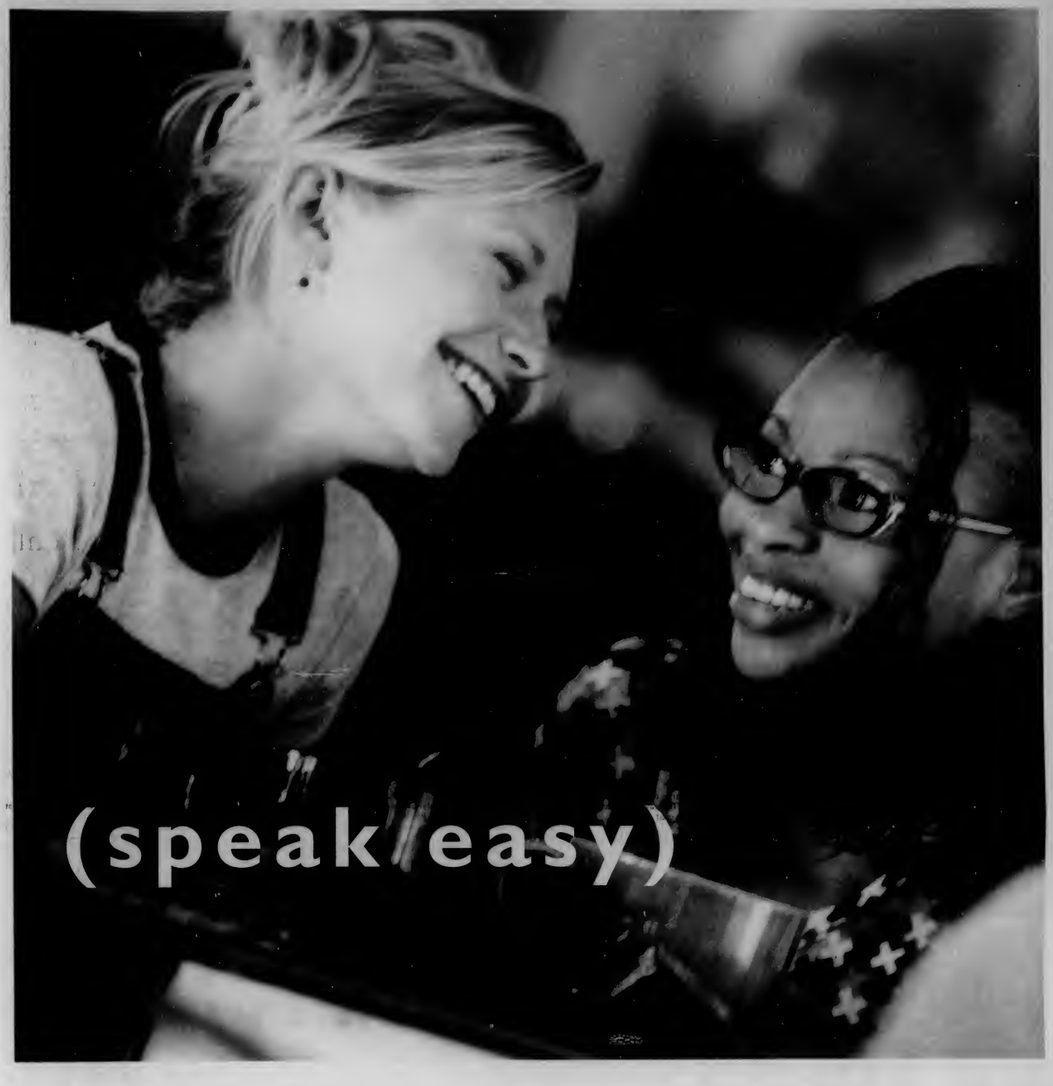
Christian Slater admitted to using heroin and cocaine the night he allegedly slugged his girlfriend and then bit the man who came to help her. Cops were called to the scene to investigate. According to wire reports, Slater's blood–alcohol registerred at .24 percent — well over California's legal limit of .08 percent. Slater is free on $50,000 bond. This is not the first time Slater had pumped up the volume with the law. He spend 10 days in jail in 1989 for drunk driving and was also arrested in 1994 at New York's Kennedy Airport for carrying a loaded gun in his luggage a la Barry Switzer.

Woody Harrelson went to extreme heights to save the Headwaters Forest, a redwood grove in Northern California. The star of People vs. Larry Flynt scaled the Golden Gate Bridge with eight other people last November to protest the destruction of the forest. The protest caused a traffic jam, which Harrelson has apologized for. Harrelson will pay a $1,000 fine and has to perform 20–25 hours of community service, teaching California school children about the environment.

Melanie Griffith says she is not at all worried about hubby Antonio Banderas being unfaithful to her. At least, that's what she said to Ladies' Home Journal. Griffith, who was previously married to Don Johnson admitted to having cosmetic surgery after the birth of her daughter seven years ago, but says she doesn't plan any surgery in the future in order to keep her husband from straying.

"When Antonio and I are apart, I don't worry that he's being unfaithful; I worry that he's all right," Griffith said.

At least Griffith has figured out that love's got to be more than skin deep.



Compiled from various wire can media sources by Seema Gangatirkar.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Eliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080
Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Welcome Back Students!
VALIDATA: "Serving the Pioneer Valley Since 1987"
Computer Sales, Service & Upgrades, Network Installation, Rentals, Scanning, Graphic Design, Color Output
VALIDATA: $5.00 OFF One of our $30 resume packages. Includes a 1 page resume on disk, 20 copies on resume paper, 20 blank sheets & 20 envelopes.
VALIDATA: $5.00 OFF One of our In House Computer Work Station or Design Station Rentals, IBM or MAC. Print outs not included.
Novell HEWLETT PACKARD TOSHIBA EPSON
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL RT.9 HADLEY, MA
TEL (413) 586-7405 • FAX (413) 586 6718
email validata@validata.com • web http://www.validata.com

Get AT&T One Rate. FREE.
And don't worry about the time or the distance.

free from AT&T

If you live off campus, choose AT&T Long Distance and sign up for AT&T One Rate. Free. You'll also get a free one-year membership to Student Advantage®—the largest student discount program ever.

- AT&T One Rate: only 15¢ a minute on calls from home—to anybody, anytime, anywhere in the U.S.
- Student Advantage: use your card to get special offers and up to 50% off every day at thousands of your favorite neighborhood places and national sponsors—like Kinko's,® Tower Records® and Amtrak.®

Live off campus? Get AT&T One Rate and a Student Advantage membership. FREE.
Call 1-800-878-3872
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach. AT&T

Student Advantage offer valid for AT&T Residential Long Distance customers. © 1997 AT&T

■ women's soccer

continued from page 12

"Right now, we've never played on that field with 11 a side, so this is all new. It is kind of like playing an away game."

Minutewoman Notes: UMass has won their last five games at The Field Formerly Known As NPE, and today's match will be the first game there since the Minutewomen's 5-0 win over Penn State on Oct. 25, 1981... The only two losses for UMass in its 27–2–1 history at Totman Field were against the University of Vermont and the University of Connecticut. The Minutewomen beat Vermont 2–1 in an exhibition match held in Shaftsbury, Vt. two weeks ago, with Iverson scoring both goals. UMass will face UConn in that storied rematch at Totman this Sept. 23 at 3:30 p.m.... sophomores Kate Webb (ankle) and Cindy Garceau (knee) are doubtful to play today against Michigan. Rudy stated that he wants to slowly bring them back into the lineup, due to fitness reasons... UMass is 4–3 all–time against Big Ten teams, with their last win coming against Michigan State (3– 0) on Sept. 11, 1993. Their last loss was against Wisconsin, losing 1–0 on Sept. 15, 1991.

Colts coach sees same tough Pats

Patriots looking to go 2–0 for first time since Reagan

By Hank Lowenkron
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The last time the New England Patriots opened a football season with two victories was 1986, and Ronald Reagan was president.

The Patriots (1-0) can match that start by defeating Indianapolis (0-1) when the AFC East rivals meet Sunday in the RCA Dome.

"They're the defending conference champions, and have nearly the same team back," Indianapolis coach Lindy Infante said of the Patriots, who swept the Colts last season and have won five of the last seven meetings between the teams.

Bill Parcells was coaching New England then, but the Patriots didn't seem to miss him as they treated new coach Pete Carroll to a 41-7 victory over San Diego last week in the season opener. "The players are still there, these are outstanding players," Infante said. "The coaching staff is a good coaching staff, it's just not the one that was there last year. They're running a lot of the same things, some little different plays on defense," Infante said.

The Patriots have won 19 of 26 meetings between the teams since the Colts moved from Baltimore in 1984.

The challenges for Indianapolis include limiting the effectiveness of quarterback Drew Bledsoe and the running of Curtis Martin.

"We've got to stop the running game, and that will make it tougher for Bledsoe," Indianapolis linebacker Stephen Grant said. "The running game opens the passing game, and that's been their strength. You shut down the running game, that's half the battle."

The Colts used that formula in last week's 16-10 loss to Miami, holding Dan Marino to just 105 yards passing and yielding just 97 yards rushing.

"The thing we have to do is get them in third-and-long, because we're a good zone-blitzing team," Grant said. "You get them in third-and-long, we've got a lot of blitzes that I think will let us get to Bledsoe."

The last time the Colts and Patriots played, Martin rushed for 141 yards on 35 carries.

"He's a good back, but we've faced good backs before and been able to stop them. As long as we're able to do that, everything will be fine," Grant said.

Marino, the holder of nearly every NFL career-passing record, completed only 10 of 26 passes on Sunday. The only touchdown on a pass by Marino was scored by Indianapolis on an interception by linebacker Elijah Alexander.

It may be bedtime for Prime Time on diamond

By Joe Kay
Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Deion Sanders is going back to the thing he does best — cover receivers — on a full-time basis this weekend, unsure whether his latest fling with baseball will be his last.

The Cincinnati Reds have given Sanders permission to end his season after tonight's game against Pittsburgh so he can be with the Dallas Cowboys full-time.

Sanders intended to play baseball during the week and football on weekends through the end of the month, but a bulging disc in his lower back made it impossible to do both effectively. The travel also was taking a toll.

"It gets tough emotionally more than physically, to tell you the truth," Sanders said yesterday.

Sanders, the outfielder, was in the starting lineup last night against Pittsburgh, four days after Sanders, the defensive back, played against the Steelers at Three Rivers Stadium. Sanders returned a punt, got knocked on his head and aggravated his sore back during a 37-7 victory in the Cowboys' opener.

Sanders turned 30 on Aug. 9 and has been limited since mid-August by the bulging disc, which required two cortisone injections. He sat out baseball last season but returned to the Reds this spring under an unusual contract arrangement.

The Reds permitted him to leave once they were eliminated from contention. The club also could give Sanders permission to play football full-time if it was not in the middle of the race.

General manager Jim Bowden spoke to Sanders on Wednesday and gave Sanders the option. He chose football.

"We just let him know from the club's standpoint we would not stand in his way from going to play football full-time, given his situation and given our situation," Bowden said.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Youth is served...

The young UMass volleyball team will be competing in the Loyola Marymount Tournament this weekend.

On your mark... get set...
GO
write for Sports

University Productions & Concerts Presents
Live FUNK! at UMass
Saturday Night with FATBAG
and special guest Rippopotamus
Student Union Ballroom
•$5 UMass Students •Doors @ 7:30
•$12 General Public •Show @ 8:00
18+ event, positive ID required Sound by Audio Radiance
Saturday, September 6

take Kaplan and get into the right school.
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
• Highly trained, expert teachers who know the tests inside and out.
• Personalized, computerized study plans, tailored to your individual needs.
• Proven methods, guaranteed to raise your score.
CRUSH THE EXAM!
the leader in test prep and admissions counseling
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
www.kaplan.com

$109.00!!
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
PRORATED

Bell's Pizza House
Pizza • Pasta • Grinders
Salads • Desserts
Eat In - Take Out
10:45AM - Midnight
7 Days a Week
FREE Delivery
(Limited Area)
4PM - 2AM Sun - Wed
4PM - 3AM Thur - Sat
Cash, Visa & Mastercard Accepted
Ask about our volume discounts
549-1311 65 University Drive, Amherst

J. Crew
Clothing Sale
Sept. 16 - Sept. 19
Temporary Help needed for large J. Crew Clothing Sale to be held at The Mullins Center at the University of Massachusetts September 16 - 19, 1997
To sign up, stop by table #20 in the Campus Center Concourse next to the Information Booth on Monday 9/8 from 9am - 4pm and Tuesday 9/9 from 9am - 1pm

Polo dives into Navy Invitational

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

No wading into the kiddie pool for Massachusetts coach Russ Yarworth this season. Nope, he and his water polo troops will be diving right into the competition this weekend at the Navy Invitational in Annapolis.

Self–imposed expectations are high for the four–time defending Eastern Champions, and a good showing in the first weekend of the regular season would lay a solid base for Yarworth's lofty goal of winning a fifth consecutive Eastern title and a first round match at the NCAA tournament.

Navy Invitational
Men's Water Polo
Saturday and Sunday

But, simply a good showing won't be enough for Yarworth's charges.

"I want to go down there and play well," Yarworth said. "But certainly every time we get into the pool, we want to win. The guys are ready to play somebody besides themselves."

The busy weekend schedule for UMass starts at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday against George Washington (ranked No. 23 in the coaches' preseason poll). They then take on No. 15 Navy at 3:30 and No. 24 Bucknell at 6:45. The No. 11 Minutemen wrap–up the four–match slate against an emerging Slippery Rock squad that is ranked No. 19 to begin the season.

The physical Midshipmen have been a thorn in the sides of Minutemen for years and will provide a crucial test for UMass in the early part of the season.

Navy had been the regional competition for the Minutemen in the recent past until the ascension of Queens to the upper water polo echelon in the last couple of years.

As per usual the Midshipmen are a hard–nosed, defense– oriented team that wears down opposing offenses with constant and frantic hands–on defense.

The defense could be the Achilles' heel for the Minutemen this season. Sophomore Richard Huntley takes over between the pipes for Yarworth and will shoulder much of the burden for a fairly inexperienced defense.

The exceptional two–way play of Aldo Roman should take a share of the pressure off the young keeper, but with the exception of Marc Staudenbauer, no returning player has seen an abundance of time in the back field for the Minutemen.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore driver Rich Slingluff will be looked upon to step up the 'D' against some tough opponents in the Navy Invitational.

Step in the Box!

The Softball team will be holding open tryouts, tentatively scheduled for next Sunday on Totman field. Stay tuned for more details.

■ field hockey

continued from page 12

for an even 1–1 record.

By game time Saturday, Cal will also be able to include last night's contest at Rhode Island in its record.

After the team's first two games, sophomore midfielder Sara Baron sat atop the points column with five (two goals, one assist), followed closely by sophomore forward Megan Sainsbury with four (one goal, two assists).

Senior goalie Karen Hagan, who is in her fourth year in the Golden Bear goal, has earned a .928 save percentage and a 1.04 goals against average through two games.

Minutewomen Notes: Massachusetts is ranked 10th in the nation in the Sports Illustrated Woman Sport preseason poll. Defending national champion North Carolina is ranked first... After the UMass/Phoenix Invitational, UMass will host Boston College at Garber Field on Wednesday, Sept. 10 at 3:30 p.m. The team will then travel to James Madison University for a game against Davis and Elkins on Friday, Sept. 12 at 1 p.m.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Erica Johnston and her field hockey teammates try out the new turf this weekend at Garber Field in the UMass/Phoenix Invitational.

Get into the action... write for Sports

The UMass Media Relations staff is holding a meeting for all interested newcomers Monday, Sept. 8 at 5 p.m. in Boyden Building, Room 249. The Media Relations department is in the public relations wing of the athletic department. If you questions, please call the Media Relations office at 545–2439

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

Get Higher.
ZAMA downtown Amherst

Affordable
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses
Happy B'day Cards
Earrings
India Print Bedspreads
T-Shirts
Chinese Shoes
Posters
Candles
Incense
Rings
Bracelets
Chains
Sweaters
Dresses
Socks
Leather Sale
Area Rugs
Baskets
Paper Lampshades
Mugs
Sale
20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The GreatGifts Mercantile
Visa / MC
Th.Fri 9PM
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St.
Amherst-Carriage Shops

Come On In Out Of The Plain!
3 floors • stores galore • food & more
dictionary / six bucks • cup o' joe / a buck • "For Dummies" guides / nineteen bucks
beaded curtain / nine bucks • book bags / from eighteen bucks
Genko (for mental sharpness) / fifteen bucks • magic stone / twelve bucks
Armani hosiery / nine bucks • Lucky jeans / sixty-eight bucks
shower caddy / eleven bucks • CK boxer shorts / eighteen bucks
Hard Candy lipsticks / sixteen bucks
THORNES 150
MARKET PLACE
"under the big green awning"
On the bus route • Open Mon--Tue- Wed 10-6; Thur-Fri-Sat 10-9; Sun 12-5 • 150 Main Street, Northampton

Cheerleading Try-Outs
on: 9/8, 9/9, 9/10
6pm - 9pm
@ Curry Hicks Cage
Call Kevin Thompson 665-0056
Come and Join the nationally ranked squad

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Call The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

89 Ford Tempo auto, 103K, runs great. Many options. Call Joe 253-4871 after 5pm. $2000 or B/O.

HONDA CIVIC '90 3 dr, hatch, 4 speed, manual, mileage: 87,100. Excellent condition. Call after 5:30 pm. at 256-3433.

EMPLOYMENT

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221

EMPLOYMENT

JOBS FOR THE ENVIRONMENT

Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/Day. Call Terri 256-6434

Cooks Wanted

Experience a plus but not necessary. Apply immediately in person. Cutty's Food and Spirits. 55 University Drive. 549-5700

UMass Athletic Development- Event Staff wanted for Athletic Fund Events throughout the 1997-98 athletic year. Must be 21+. For further information respond to 308 Mullins, or call 595-9672.

Tutor In Residence

Assistant House Manager and Tutorial Supervisor wanted in Amherst. A Better Chance Program. Free room and board for services. For application procedure, call Mr./Mrs. Lewis. 253-3440

EMPLOYMENT

Mother's Helper Wanted 10-15 hrs. per week. Please call 549-7788

Care Provider Needed Monday thru Friday 8:30-5:30. Two children. Amherst home. Good pay. Nice family. Own car. Love for children. Non-smoking. Call evenings. Leave voice mail message for Dave. Press 1. 256-6006

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

Full-Time Day Delivery or Kitchen Help Wanted 30-40 hrs/week. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Babysitter Needed Now for two kids, 9-11. Thurs.-Fri., 3:00-6:30. Occasionally other days. Must have car and be a non-smoker. Call Suzanne at 253-3975

EMPLOYMENT

Wanted Immediately: Student Handyman, Landscaper, Driver. $7.00 per hour. Must have a car. (413)549-1578

Drivers and Kitchen Help Must be able to work 30 hours per week. Flexible hours. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Student's Wanted!!!
Part-Time Sales
Marketing Job
Visit www.eduinfo.com.

Part-Time Administrative Assistant

Clerical position in small Amherst office of Spanish study abroad program. Located on bus route. Requirements: data entry, computer skills, and excellent grammar/spelling skills. Knowledge of Spanish a plus. Approximately 20 hours/week; afternoons preferred. Competitive salary.

EMPLOYMENT

Send letter and resume to: CC-CS, 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

New Twin Serta Mattress Includes NEW bed frame and box spring. Call Brian at 549-5046. $50.

MAC IIsi 15" color monitor, modem, laser printer. $600 or best offer. 256-3472.

FOUND

Cash Identify amount. Possible locations. 253-3682

INSTRUCTION

Performing Arts Division
offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance. PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass. (413)545-0519 for info.

INSTRUCTION

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. Lessons may be taken for course credit. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

MISCELLANEOUS

Start Your Own Fraternity! Zeta Beta Tau is looking for male students to start a new chapter. If you are interested in academic success, a chance to network, and an opportunity to make friends in a non-pledging brotherhood, e-mail: zbt@zbt-national.org or call Joe Alfidi at (317)334-1898

Extra $$$ Opportunity for confident self-starter. Contact with international students at 1-888-670-2906. Leave message.

ROOM FOR RENT

Grads and Visiting Faculty: Large, sunny, quiet room in private home. N/S. 5 minutes to UMass, Amherst Center. Buses. Call before 9:30 pm. 549-5431.

ROOMMATE WANTED

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at (603)889-0686

SERVICES

COMPUTER SERVICES
Mac Magic
Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant.
Alvin C. Whaley
(413)584-7904
Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals.
Your office, dorm, or home.

TRAVEL

Spring Break '98 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student Travel Services is now hiring Campus Reps/Group Organizers. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico and Florida. Call 1-800-648-4849

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day
All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPT. 5

Auditions — All members of the University and Five College community who wish to play in the University Orchestra (strings, winds, brass, percussion), directed by Mark Russel Smith, may sign up today for trumpets only from 9:00 a.m.–10:30 a.m., winds/brass only from 10:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m. and 1:30–5 p.m. in the Bezanson Auditorium, Fine Arts Center, room 248. Please bring two contrasting selections of your choice, ie. orchestral excerpts, a movement from a sonata or concerto. You may be asked to sight read material from the upcoming season.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 7

Auditions — All members of the University and Five College community who wish to play in the University Orchestra (strings, winds, brass, percussion), directed by Mark Russel Smith, may sign up today for strings only from 9 a.m.–noon and 1–5 p.m. in Bezanson Auditorium, Fine Arts Center, room 248. Please bring two contrasting selections of your choice, ie. orchestral excerpts, a movement from a sonata or concerto.

Community — "Love Feast," sponsored by the Christian Foundation at UMass, a day of music, spirit and community, will be held at 10 a.m. at Wesley Church, 365 N. Pleasant St. at

MONDAY, SEPT. 8

Fearing.

Open house — Everywoman's Center, located in Wilder Hall, is hosting an Open House from 9 a.m.–4 p.m. Staff will be available to provide information about paid student positions, internships and volunteer opportunities for students and community women. Refreshments will be provided. All members of the campus and community are welcome.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 9

Discussion — "The Politics of Birth Control," a discussion about why many women can't obtain the family planning resources they need, and what you can do about it, will be held at 8 p.m. in Thompson Auditorium, room 102. Join fellow students and Peter H. Kostmayer, executive director of "Zero Population Growth."

NOTICES

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. The drives will be held Sept 9–10 from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. and Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 4–5 and 8–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate are available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations are open until 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545-0342.

Volunteer — The Programs Against Violence Against Women of the Everywoman's Center are now accepting applications from women who want to become volunteer counselors or educators. To join our fall 70–hour training for new volunteers, to learn more about issues of violence against women, and to make a difference in areas of sexual assault and relationship violence, please call 545–0883. The application deadline is Sept. 8, 1997. Bilingual women and women of color are strongly encouraged to apply.

PA's are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PA, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

Daily Listings sponsored by:

YOUR AD HERE. 545-3500

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Channel
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 UMATV
17 HSCN Programming
19 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN/Headline News
25 BET
26 BET on Jazz
27 UCTV
28 The Learning Channel
29 TV Land
30 Comedy Central
32 Much Music

AND HERE. 545-3500

FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 5, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	Healthy Aging: Redefining Am.		McLaughlin	Perspectives	World at War (Part 3 of 4)
WFSB	3	News (R)	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV (R)	Ordinary/Extraordinary (R)		UAG "Recovery" (In Stereo) (R)		Nash Bridges "Out of Chicago"		News (R)	Late Show (R)
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra (R)	Entertainment	Ordinary/Extraordinary (R)		UAG "Recovery" (In Stereo) (R)		Nash Bridges "Out of Chicago"		News	Late Show (R)
WCVB	5	News (R)	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle (R)	Sabrina-Witch	Saturday Prev.	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	20/20 (R)		News (R)	Nightline (R)
WLVI	56	Fresh Prince	Fresh Prince	Star Trek: Next Gener.		Soul Train Lady of Soul Awards (In Stereo Live)		News				Jenny Jones (R) (In Stereo) (R)
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street (R)	News		Tonight Show
WTXX	58	Fresh Prince	Martin (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	★★½ "True Betrayal" (1990, Suspense) Mare Winningham.				News	LAPD	Vibe
WVIT	30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy (R)	Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street (R)	News		Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons (R)	Roseanne (R)	Home Imp.	Seinfeld (R)	Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		Row "Doyle's Solution" (R)	News	Coach (R)	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street (R)	News		Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We're In	Follow Money	Merrow Report (R)		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News (R)	ABC News	Seinfeld (R)	Ent. Tonight	Sabrina-Witch	Saturday Prev.	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	20/20 (R)		News (R)	Nightline (R)
WSBK	38	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)	Seinfeld (R)	Mad Abo. You		★★½ "Great Balls of Fire!" (1989, Drama) Dennis Quaid.				News	Real TV (R)	Med Abo. You	M*A*S*H (R)
WTBS	15	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	★★½ "Look Who's Talking Too" (1990, Comedy) John Travolta.				Home Videos	Major League Baseball: Braves at Padres
A&E	69	Quincy		Law & Order "Star Struck" (R)		Biography: Carol Burnett		America's Castles "The Astors"		Grand Tour		Law & Order "Misconception" (R)
CNN	33	WorldView (R)		Moneyline (R)	Crossfire (R)	Prime News (R)	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live (R)		World Today (R)		Sports Illus.	Moneyline (R)
COM	42	★★½ "Getting In" (1994, Comedy) Kristy Swanson.				★★½ "Back to School" (1986, Comedy) Rodney Dangerfield.				★★½ "Soul Man" (1986, Comedy) C. Thomas Howell.
DISC	63	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Strange Planes "Catapults" (R)		Wild Discovery: Queen-Killers		News		World-Wonder Pangea! (R)		Wild Discovery: Queen-Killers
ESPN	43	Up Close	Sportscenter		Auto Racing	NASCAR Grand National — Autolite Platinum 250				Auto Racing: NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series		Sportscenter
LIFE	45	Supermarket	Diet	"Darkness Before Dawn" (1993, Drama) Meredith Baxter.				★★ "Moment of Truth: Why My Daughter?" (1995) Linda Gray.				Homicide: Life on the Street (R)
MTV	53	Studio Launch	Week In Rock	House of Style	Singled Out	Top 10 Breakdown (In Stereo)		And the Winner Is... (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.	Apt. 2F (R)	Oddville, MTV	Loveline (R)
NICK	46	Clarissa Expl.	Tiny Toon	Doug (R)	Rugrats (R)	Kablam! (R)	Leonine	Jeannie	Leonine	Jeannie	Leonine	Jeannie	Newhart (R)
SCIFI	59	Odyssey (R)	Swamp Thing	Night Stalker "Chopper" (R)		★★½ "The Funhouse" (1981, Horror) Elizabeth Berridge.				Friday the 13th: The Series (R)		Night Stalker "Chopper" (R)
TLC	28	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Quest (R)	Paleoworld (R)	Rescue Squad: Fire and Water		War on Cancer – Stalking		Quest (R)	Paleoworld (R)
TNT	44	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		★★★ "Alien 3" (1992, Science Fiction) Sigourney Weaver, Charles S. Dutton.				★★ "Saturn 3" (1980) Kirk Douglas.
USA	60	Renegade "Blood Hunt" (R)		Highlander: The Series (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger (R)		★★ "Chief's Pony 2" (1995, Horror) Alex Vincent (In Stereo)				WWF Wrestling
HBO	48	(5:15) "Indian Cupboard"		Inside the NFL (In Stereo) (R)		★★★ "Patriot Games" (1992, Suspense) Harrison Ford. R (R)				"Double Tap" (1997, Suspense) Stephen Rea. R		Dennis Miller
MAX	49	★★½ "Tamara II: Aftershocks" (1996) Fred Ward. PG-13 (R)				★★★ "She's the One" (1996, Comedy) Jennifer Aniston. R (R)				★½ "Unlawful Entry" (1992, Suspense) Kurt Russell. R (R)
SHOW	50	★★ "Untaming Heroes" (1995, Drama) Andie MacDowell. PG (R)				★½ "No Fear" (1996, Suspense) Robert De Niro. (In Stereo) R (R)				Stargate SG-1 "Children of the Gods" (R) (In Stereo)

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — There is no point in trying to be perfect today, but you can do a great deal to hide your negative traits — and any errors— from view.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You are quite strong at this time, with your emotions well-controlled and balanced with your intellect. It is a good day for decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — Pace yourself today; don't try to give it your all at every moment, or you will find that your resources are neither strong nor plentiful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — It is important to prove your stability and faithfulness early in the day. Others may doubt you unless you demonstrate such traits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Take care that you don't come on too strong today, particularly when dealing directly with a younger member of the opposite sex.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You may be quite fussy today regarding questions of taste and preference. Take care, however, to remain open, receptive and humble.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may be trying to be too subtle in your approach at this time. Be more direct, and those who need to will get the message.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You are trying to be generous, but that fact is that you may be doing too much too soon. Be careful you're not putting someone off.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — This is a good day to treat yourself, to give in to a minor indulgence, to do something that would be bad for you to otherwise. Enjoy yourself!

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Any derogatory words you have to offer today are likely to backfire on you, so take care that your criticism is offered in a spirit of assistance.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You may find yourself in public more often than expected today, so be prepared to use those manners that you've been saving for a rainy day.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You have an important anniversary of sorts coming up, and you must be prepared for all contingencies. A secret may be difficult to keep.

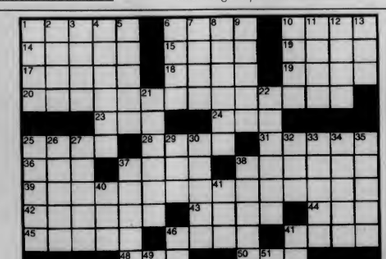
Quote of the Day

"Is my dress too short?"

"
–"Posh Spice" Victoria from the new Spice World movie trailer

Close to Home By John McPherson

Relying on his vast CD collection, manager Walt Friboski liked to provide an appropriate soundtrack when he gave performance reviews.



ACROSS
1 Fall flower
6 Get ready for a trip
10 Conspiracy
14 Poetry
15 "— Called Horse"
16 Ramble around
17 Superior
18 Burgundy, e.g.
19 Wild goat
20 Describing some mysteries
23 Kitchen meas.
24 Wedding promise
25 Take a chance
28 Urge
31 Third rock from the sun
36 River: Sp.
37 Pod veggies
38 Costume
39 Certain lawyer, slangily
42 More apt to inherit the earth?
43 Poker stake
44 Terminate
45 Put 2 and 3 together
46 Therefore
47 Connecting words
48 Sloe — fizz
50 Scrap of cloth
52 Seat for Woody Allen
60 Broad
61 Church calendar
62 Mediterranean island
63 Designer St. Laurent
64 Call for
65 Curves
66 "— Side, West Side"
67 Oceans
68 Trample

DOWN
1 "With" in Paris
2 Auction off
3 Musical group
4 Large house
5 Smells strongly
6 Chess piece
7 Surrounded by
8 Outspoken
9 Work dough
10 Goody-goody
11 Ear part
12 Done
13 Singer Ritter
21 Become visible
22 "Faust" creator
25 Stage offering
26 Intended
27 Wearing judicial attire
29 Did a marathon
30 Felix's roomie
32 One day — time
33 Ascended
34 Drift
35 Droves
37 Vow
38 Cruise and Hanks
40 Guitar's cousin
41 High school subj.
46 Main course
47 Shocked
49 Holy images
51 High points
52 Opera singer
53 March 15, in ancient Rome
54 Relax
55 Concert halls
56 Dowels
57 Plus
58 Article
59 File
60 English river

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

UNCLE RAM TANGO
RILEY ELI EQUAL
SPIDERMAN LUNGE
ASP LETS CLASS
MELT HUE
HAITI PURIFIER
BOLD CALM STRAP
EMIR SPOOF SOBS
DENIM PURR EDIT
RESOUND OGLED
DRY OLAF
SPADE SKIS MOO
APRIL BLACKGOLD
GUIDE OOP EERIE
ARMED DELIENS

9-5-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Cheesey Chicken Casserole
Hot Beef Sandwich
Fish in Batter

DINNER
Fried Chicken
Stuffed Shells in Sauce
Grilled Steak Sandwich

Worcester
LUNCH
Hamburger or Harvest Burger
Krabbycake Sandwich
Raditore & Tomato or Alfredo Sauce
Vegan Falafel Sandwich

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Shrimp Scampi Pasta
Vegetable Gumbo Casserole
Pastabilities and Half Time Deli

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger
Grilled Cheese
Captain's Catch
Hampshire Lunch Surprize

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Stuffed Shells in Sauce
Fettuccini Alfredo
Hampshire Dinner Surprize

Berkshire
LUNCH
Krabbycake Sandwich (no, really!)
Grilled Cheese
Ratatouille
Special Grilled Cheese

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Pineapple Ham Steak
Vegie Gumbo Casserole
Stuffed Shells in Sauce (pastabilities)

Night Editor: Laura Stock
Photo Technician: Lauren Kosky
Copy Editor: Larraine Kennedy
Production Supervisor: Josh Sylvester
Production Staff: Leon Latino, Matt Guilmette, Joylyn Lombard

SPORTS

Pennant race info and a few random thoughts for you

What to write, what to write...

Well, there's the apparent lack of a pennant race in baseball these days. With the Yankees and Marlins making short work of the rest of the also-rans in the race for the wild-card, and with every division leader seemingly in complete control by Labor Day weekend, the playoffs seem set. (Don't give me San Francisco or Anaheim arguments. I think you know better.)

I think I heard someone last week whining about the new format because of this. To them, I say...

Shut the hell up, buddy. (Oh yeah, don't step to me.)

Fact is, Florida, Cleveland and Houston, all teams that deserve to play for a chance at the World Series, would be scheduling golf time for October under the old format. Despite 1997's clunker of a September, the new format provided drama à la drama (my French, like the rest of me, is a little rusty) in 1995 and 1996 and will do so about 80 percent of the years it exists.

So there.

Smoking and drinking on a Tuesday night...

This may sound callous, but I really don't care about this summer's arrests of Allen Iverson and Marcus Camby. So they got caught smoking pot.

Around the Horn

Luke Meredith

So what? (The gun was a bit much though, Allen).

Look. They're still, technically, college-age kids. I haven't done a head count, but I think that most 21 and 22-year-old kids (and they are still kids, I remind you) still pull the occasional bong hit. And those yuppies who fill the stands are mostly of baby-boomer age, and we all now how much they used to smoke. (I saw the Woodstock footage. No way was that a pot-free event.)

So from my angle, I see no way anybody who has smoked before can come down on Iverson or Camby. They are kids who went out, smoked a little, and got snagged. It's not the end of the world. Besides, they are paid to play basketball, not weave baskets in their free time.

Let's just let this go, and be more concerned with the fact that NBA tickets cost more than tuition at most major state universities.

Except UMass, of course.

Random thoughts...

I think I like the Denver Broncos' new uniforms. (I realize I am the only one, but that's okay). Yes, they do look like the AFL if it came along in 2037, but at least they have style.

I also like Tampa Bay's new digs, but they have to lose the orange stripe on the pants and the black shoes. I do give them credit for making "pewter" work in their color scheme. Usually you only see pewter in those paint books at True Value, with "mauve" and "longberry."

Syracuse, you let me down.

Mark Messier will go down in history as one of the greatest hockey players ever, prompting the Vancouver Canucks to sign him to a three-year, $20 million contract over the summer. But the Canucks have one problem.

He's 36.

Which means that by the end of the contract, the Canucks will be paying $7 million to a 39-year old center. Now, I'm all for growing old gracefully (Hell, my dad, who is 49, can still beat me in hoop), but I am afraid the Canucks have spent too much for one guy when they could have used the money to infuse some young talent into a team that has struggled since the 1994 Stanley Cup finals.

But whatever. Let's face it, I don't know a thing about hockey anyway.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

Women's soccer faces Michigan on Totman

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Welcome back, welcome back, welcome back...

All cheesy comments about Gabe Kaplan and a late 1970's sitcom aside, today's home opener for the No. 15 Massachusetts women's soccer team will be a "welcome back" in more ways than one.

Speaking of the later '70s, and not Gabe Kaplan, after a stellar home record at Richard F. Garber Field where the Minutewomen rang up an impressive 117-14-8 mark, UMass (1-0) will now play their home games at Totman Field. A change, but a familiar one, since the team played at The Field Formerly Known As NPE (Northern Physical Education) in the later '70s and early '80s, posting a 27-2-1 record.

UMass vs. Michigan
Women's Soccer
Friday, 4:30 p.m.

Another return will be the coach of the Minutewomen's adversary this afternoon at 4:30 p.m., with Debbie Belkin coming home to UMass for the first time as the coach of the No. 22 Michigan squad. Belkin was a three-time All- American (1985-87) and was a member of three consecutive final four teams for the Minutewomen.

As a matter of fact, this will be the first ever meeting of the two teams, with the Wolverines (2-0) going into their fourth year as a reinstated program. UMass coach Jim Rudy is looking forward to both the return to the prime playing surface of Totman Field, and the return of one of UMass' all-time greats.

"Dennis O'Neil and his crew really created a wonderful playing surface, and we like the idea that our fans will be even closer to the action," Rudy said. "So, if we have to play at an interim field, and if we have to give up the place where we won 95% of our home games, then it's good to go to a place where the surface is wonderful.

"It's also extra incentive that Debbie Belkin is coming home and she's one of our most successful players ever. And, I would project that if the committee is sharp and they do it right, she should be the next women's athlete that makes it into the UMass Hall of Fame."

For Belkin, it has been a long time since she has been back in the Pioneer Valley, and it truly will be a homecoming of many sorts.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Senior defender Erica Iverson leads the No. 15 Minutewomen against alumnus Debbie Belkin's Michigan squad.

"I'm really excited, because I haven't been back [to Massachusetts] in a while," Belkin said. "We have a lot of Mass. players on our team, so they'll be coming back to play for the first time in front of their families.

"When I was at UMass, I was a soccer junkie, and I made friends on the team that are still close friends today. I have a lot of good memories, and we had a lot of success."

Even though Rudy does not have a history of competition against Michigan, he does have a history of competition with and against Belkin.

Rudy assumed the UMass coaching position a year after Belkin graduated in 1988, and a year after his Central Florida team faced Belkin and the Minutewomen in the 1987 NCAA Tournament semifinal at Warren P. McGuirk Alumni Stadium. A 2-1 loss in that game to the eventual Tournament runner-up is pretty much history to Rudy, and he looks forward to making history on a field that has not hosted a regular season soccer game in 16 years.

"We felt that Michigan was good last year, but they didn't quite get up to where they thought they should be," Rudy said. "Now, they're loaded with personnel. I mean, they're a great side. They may be one of the best teams we play this year, and we wanted them on the schedule."

Rudy's personal experience with Belkin started when he was an assistant coach with the U.S. National team, when the team competed against Norway, Sweden, China, and Canada in the U.S.A. Cup held in Blaine, Minn. in the early 1990's. The attacking left side defender is still in the top 10 in a variety of UMass scoring categories, including points scored (70), goals (25) and assists (20).

Being a member of the first team to win the Women's World Cup, Belkin's resume has helped develop the born- again Michigan program into almost instant Top 25 status. The Wolverines have dominated so far in the season, and have outscored their two opponents, Missouri and Kentucky, by a 7-1 margin, led by their top scorer, sophomore forward Amber Berendowsky (2 goals, 1 assist, 5 points). Also, Berendowsky joined her teammates freshman defender Erin Gilhart, who Rudy had recruited to play at UMass, and sophomore Shannon Poole on the Kentucky Invitational All-Tournament team.

Belkin has literally been able to pool together a tight group of players in only her fourth season as coach (30-25- 6), and that fact will have her team prepared for a battle against an adversary and a friend.

"In our second and third years, we made a lot of big strides in our program," Belkin said, whose team went 10-7- 3 last season. "Our freshman need experience, but we're now in our fourth year, and we keep getting better.

"I really respect Rudy as a coach, and I know he has a lot of good players on his team, and a lot of new players on his team. I expect his team to be prepared, and we will come there to face a real good team."

With a combination of young and old to mold together, Rudy knows that his team will also have to be prepared for an up and coming team. A solid upper class foursome on defense that includes senior keeper Danielle Dion, Erica Iverson, Amy Burrill and junior Amanda Thompson should be more than enough to counteract a solid, young offensive corps from Michigan.

The offense for the Minutewoman should be on pace as well, with leading scorer Emma Kurowski (3 points) joining last season's America East Player of the Year Sophie Lecot and freshman forward Kara Green on the frontline. With their hard work ethic, Green and Lecot were able to make scoring space for Kurowski in their 4-0 win over Fairfield in last Saturday night's season opener.

But, in the end, a win against the Maize and Blue would be more than a "welcome back" to Totman Field for the Minutewomen this afternoon.

"We've had a good week of training, and we got a chance to rest up a little bit," Rudy said. "We've had some pretty spirited training sessions, but what this game will give us is a test to see who we are. They have a pretty heavy duty team that has been together for two to three years now, whereas we are pretty brand new.

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 8

Men's soccer set for fight with Saints on a Sunday

By Jackie Leroux
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team is ready to get their regular season underway again when they travel to Albany, to take on Siena College on Sunday.

After a disappointing 3-14-0 record last year, the Saints, a member of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, are undefeated this season. They have also defeated the Minutemen each of the five times the two have met in the past.

Siena has six returning starters from last year and appear to have toughened up over the summer.

"They've had a good run so far," coach Sam Koch said. "They are a much stronger team than before."

UMass @ Siena
Men's Soccer
Sunday, 3 p.m.

The Minutemen were slammed in their first game of the season, an exhibition match in the Friendly's Cup held in Chicopee. UMass lost 4-0 against No. 2 Indiana University. Freshman Matt Fundenberger and sophomore Derna Kovalenko scored two goals apiece for the Hoosiers.

Fundenberger scored first at the 11:19 mark with a try from just ten feet. Kovalenko scored again at 32:30, followed by Fundenberger's second at 50:30. Kovalenko finished things off with the final goal at 57:13.

The Minutemen had trouble getting things going in the offensive end, getting off only four shots on goal and two corners. The Hoosiers put up 28 shots and nine corner kicks.

Junior goalie Jeff Jablonski, out of Ludlow, Mass., played well despite the loss, netting nine saves for the Minutemen.

Things turned around for Massachusetts when they faced Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in their season opener, held at Szot Park in Chicopee. The Minutemen beat the Mustangs, 4-2.

Senior forward Mike Butler and freshman forward Seth Lilburn each scored a goal and put in two assists.

With just the second shot of the game, Butler got a 12- yarder across at the 5:29 mark. Sophomore Gavin Hewitt and freshman Matt Christy of Paxton assisted on the play.

Jake Brodsky, a junior midfielder upped the score to 2-0 at the 31:10. He was assisted by a Butler head-flick assist. Lilburn finished the first-half scoring with a goal at 37:30.

Cal Poly attempted a comeback in the second half with two goals to bring the score to 3-2. Tony Chuwana-Bandhu got a goal at 52:43, followed by a two-yarder from Martin Hayes at the 73:53 mark.

Sophomore Gavin Hewitt scored his first goal of the season with a feed from Butler to end the game at 4-2.

The offense definitely picked up for UMass, with their four goals and 16 shots on goal. Cal Poly had just nine shots on goal.

Koch, now in his seventh season as head coach and a two- time Coach of the Year belie-ves that this year's squad has a lot of potential and should be able to compete for the A-10 crown. The team is led by senior All-America candidates Mike Butler and Joenal Castma.

A first team All-Atlantic honoree last year, Bulter is the top offensive threat for the Minutemen. He led the team in points last year with 18, and in assists with six. He tied for the team lead in goals with six as well. Butler has a knack for scoring big goals, bringing in a team high four game winning goals last year.

Castma was slowed by an ankle injury last season, but still managed to finish third in scoring for the team with 10 points and five goals. Castma also has the potential to score when the game is on the line, with six career game-winning goals to his name.

Koch is looking for an improvement from the defensive end of the team, but is allowing his team time to grow.

"We just play one game at a time," he said.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Joenal Castma and the Minutemen look to up their early season record against Siena on Sunday.

Field Hockey breaks in AstroTurf at Garber

Cal is foe in first Invitational

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts field hockey team will christen its new home this weekend, when the Minutewomen host the inaugural UMass/Phoenix Invitational.

UMass will begin its first season at Richard F. Garber Field with an 11 a.m. contest against California. New Hampshire will tangle with Michigan State at 1 p.m.

UM / Phoenix Invit.
Field Hockey
Saturday and Sunday

The winners of the two games will meet for the Invitational's championship at 1 p.m. on Sunday, while the consolation game will be held at 11 a.m.

The game marks the first official home game the Minutewomen will play on the newly laid AstroTurf. In previous seasons, some of the nation's top teams have spurned the opportunity to play on the natural grass of Totman Field, forcing UMass to play "home" games on the turf at Westfield State College.

The switch to turf at Garber Field is a major advancement for the program.

"It is incredible," first-year head coach Patty Shea said of the new surface. "It really says a lot about the commitment this athletic department and this school have to the field hockey program."

The impact the new surface will have on the program is a tremendous one. The national and international games have long been played on turf, while many of the top collegiate programs in the country have also benefitted from the AstroTurf surface.

"That the UMass field hockey program has been as competitive as it has been for so long, says a lot about what kind of program this is," Shea said.

Tomorrow's game doubly marks the beginning of a new era, not only because of the turf, but also because it is Shea's first game on the sidelines of her alma mater.

The Minutewomen do have one scrimmage under their belts -- last Friday against the University of Toronto.

As a result, game experience is one area where the Golden Bears have the edge. Coach Shellie Onstead's squad has already faced off against Michigan (a 3-0 Cal win) and Invitational participant Michigan State (a 2-1 loss)

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 9

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 4 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, September 8, 1997

The voice of rebellion

The Wu-Tang Clan, along with Rage Against The Machine and Atari Teenage Riot, spoke their mind at the New World Theater. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 5)

Minutewomen 1-1 on Garber Turf

Erica Johnston and the Massachusetts field hockey team beat Cal 8-1 on Saturday before losing yesterday at the newly renovated Garber Field (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

McGuiness, escapees meet before talks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An Irish Republican leader visited three escapees from a Belfast prison awaiting extradition to England before attending a rally on Saturday to build support for peace talks scheduled for next week.

Martin McGuiness — chief negotiator for Sinn Fein, the political wing of the Irish Republican Army — visited the men, all self-proclaimed Irish nationalists who were among a group that escaped from Belfast's notorious Maze prison in 1983.

A federal judge in August agreed to extradite the three — Kevin Barry Artt, Pol Brennan and Terrance Kirby — to Britain, rejecting their arguments that they would be persecuted because they were Catholic and supported a united Ireland. Artt and Brennan were convicted of murder, and Kirby of possessing explosives.

"I find them in very good form," McGuiness said. "I find all three of them very supportive of (the peace talks)."

About 700 turned out for the fund raiser after McGuiness's visit to the federal detention center in Pleasanton, including state Sen. Tom Hayden, (D-Los Angeles), and Mayor Willie Brown.

NATION

BART at standstill as workers call strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Employees of the area's commuter train system walked off the job yesterday in a pay dispute, a strike that could strand thousands when the work week begins.

The Bay Area Rapid Transit's 56 trains were idled as about 65,000 weekend riders were forced to find other transportation. There were no immediate problems yesterday. But commuter headaches were expected this morning if the 275,000 daily riders are forced onto roadways.

Healy said operating the system without the striking workers was not an option.

The system's 2,600 train operators, station agents, mechanics and other workers walked out at 12:01 a.m. yesterday. Negotiations resumed later in the day between BART management and unions representing the workers but broke off about three hours later. No new talks were scheduled.

Members of BART's two largest unions voted last week to reject an offer that would have raised their salaries 3 percent a year for three years.

Union members reportedly are seeking annual raises of 6.5 percent, 5.5 percent and 5 percent over the three years of a new contract.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tuesday	Wednday
HIGH: 76 LOW: 59	HIGH: 75 LOW: 65	HIGH: 72 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Picket code restricts protests at UMass

By Tamar Carroll &Victoria Groves
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts President William M. Bulger has issued a new picket code governing demonstrations and protests on University property.

The new picket code is applicable to undergraduate and graduate students on all five UMass campuses, and was developed by Bulger's office with extensive input from Chancellor David K. Scott.

The picket code limits demonstrations to "appropriate public forums", which do not include faculty and administrative offices and classrooms, and specifies that all demonstrations must be held during the building's "normal operating hours."

"Both Bulger and Scott are firm in saying that we will not have disruption of normal activities," Scanlan said. "Neither will tolerate any disruption this year."

Any student in violation of the code will be subject to expulsion from the University or an other, unspecified, sanction. The Dean of Students Office, in conjunction with the Public Safety Department, is responsible for enforcing the code.

The picket code, as well as an accompanying letter from Scott, was mailed to all UMass students in the past week.

In his letter, addressed to the University Community, Scott emphasized his disapproval of demonstrations that upset the normal activities of the University.

"I believe it is vitally important at this time to draw a clear line between dissent and disruption... I do not support, nor will I tolerate, disruption of the activities and offices of the University, of people's lives, work and rights, over disagreements about such issues," Scott wrote.

UMass News Director Katherine Scanlan said that the new, system-wide picket code was drawn up in response to the nationally publicized takeover of the Goodell Administration building last March by a group of students.

Students rallying for issues such as increased financial aid, increased diversity on campus and child care, conducted a six-day takeover of Goodell, putting the administrative activities of the building on hold for a week.

"Partly because of Goodell issues last year, we wanted to make sure everyone knew what our policies are," Scanlan said. "The letters were sent out to let people know we will implement these policies as appropriate."

Scanlan said that both Bulger and Scott wanted to tell the student body that they will not "tolerate" another takeover like the Goodell Takeover this year.

"Both Bulger and Scott are firm in saying that we will not have disruption of normal activities," Scanlan said. "Neither will tolerate any disruption this year.

"If there are questions about a firmer stance that's being held this fall... what was done at one time, say in March, may not be appropriate for this fall," Scanlan said, referring to the Goodell Takeover.

Student reaction to the code unfavorable

Many student leaders expressed disappointment with the new picket code, citing a lack of student input and restriction of student activities as points of contention with the code.

Mahmood Ketabchi, president of the Graduate Employment Organization (GEO) said he felt that student organizations did not have enough input on the code.

"As far as input, GEO for sure wasn't consulted," Ketabchi said.

Tom Taaffe, chief negotiator for GEO and a participant in the Goodell Takeover, expressed the same sentiment and said that Bulger, through these actions, was curbing students' freedom to disagree with the administration.

"Students were not involved in the process as bylaws require," Tom Taaffe said. "Bulger does not tolerate dissent."

Adam Feldman, a former Goodell outside organizer and member of the Undergraduate Employment Organization/Radical Student Union (UEO/RSU) expressed surprise at the contents of the letters.

"I can't believe that they would do that... it seems, at this point, very challenging that they put it in black and white that they think they have the power to restrict freedom of assembly and freedom of speech," Feldman said. "It's unacceptable."

Student Trustee Brian Tirrell responded to the mailing by calling it unacceptable to the students on this campus, but needed by some of the members of the administration.

"The Chancellor [is] responding to the pundits in Boston who gave him a lot of gruff after the takeover in Goodell... It's still not acceptable, as it wasn't before, but there was an outcry for that kind of a code," Tirrell said.

The GEO has already responded to the policy with flyers posted around campus, and is also planning an organized response.

"We will take this to the leadership coalition on campus and ask them to take a stand against these guidelines and policies. They were basically dug out of the trash can to intimidate workers and students. As far as GEO is concerned, it will not defer us from doing what we need to to be heard," Ketabchi said.

Bulger and Scott were unavailable to comment.

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

Students protest outside Goodell during the Goodell Takeover last March as security guards stand watch at the door.

CORY CLARK PRESS/ COLLEGIAN

Ouch!!!

Junior exercise science major Craig Leonardo decided to get his tongue pierced in Northampton this past Friday.

RAD self defense program offered

Free class teaches UMass women how to protect themselves

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

For the first time since its start last fall, the Rape Aggression Defense System (RAD) is being offered free to all University of Massachusetts women, students or staff, by the UMass Police Department.

RAD, a 12-hour self defense class, is a hands-on course that offers tips and strategies for defense training.

Originally, the class fee was $25. However, UMPD has agreed to pay the $25 which is used for copying and printing the manuals for the class.

"I understand that for college students $25 can be a lot of money and I don't want money being the issue of why women can't take the class," said RAD instructor and UMass Police officer Laura Gordon.

Gordon explained that anyone can perform the defense moves that are taught in the class.

"In the class we discuss risk reduction, avoidance awareness and being aware of your surroundings, and we practice physical defense moves," Gordon said. "The moves are very, very basic, they are not martial arts material."

Gordon and Officer Lisa Kidwell are certified RAD instructors who began teaching the class last fall after participating as students in the class.

"I believe in the class whole heartedly. The techniques really do work. I gained confidence in myself and felt good about myself," Gordon said.

The 12-hour course is divided into four three-hour sessions. The first three nights consist of an overview, discussions and learning and practicing defense moves.

"We talk about setting a defensive mind and about 'what if' situations, then show the appropriate moves in those situations... In addition we cover a lot of common sense things; check your car when you get in it, always keep your dorm room locked. UMass is basically a city within a city and students need to understand that," Gordon said.

The fourth and final class is simulation night. The women review the moves and then face the "aggressor", a police officer who is dressed in protective gear.

The simulation is strictly voluntary and students can still complete the class if they choose not to volunteer. However, Gordon said no one has ever refused to participate in the simulation.

Although Gordon and Kidwell play the role of the "aggressor", many of the participants prefer for Sergeant Robert Thrasher to be the aggressor because, in reality, chances are if the women are ever attacked it is going to be by a man and not a women, explained Gordon.

"They see that the moves really do work, especially during simulation night. Students end up leaving the course with a positive attitude and a lot more confidence than they had when it first started," Gordon said.

RAD is a nation wide program offered through out the country at various colleges, universities and security departments.

Once a woman is a graduate of the course, she is a lifetime member of the program.

"If a student decides she want to sharpen her skills, anywhere in the country, she will be let in free to the course," Gordon said.

UMPD is hopeful that someday they will be able to offer RAD as a one-credit physical education course. However, Gordon said she does not foresee that happening anytime soon. According to UMass policy, a one credit course requires 30 hours of class time.

"Once we get the basic 12-hour program off the ground it may be possible to combine the basic and advanced programs and come up with 30 hours... but right now we want to concentrate on the basic program," Gordon said.

Registration for the RAD course is Oct. 1 and 2. The class is limited to 16 people and is on a first come, first serve basis. The class begins on Oct. 16. For more information, call Officers Gordon or Kidwell at 545-2121.

Mother Teresa dead at 87; thousands mourn the loss

CALCUTTA, India(AP) — The frail women in rain-soaked saris were turned away, as were the laborers with somber faces who came Saturday to pay their respects to Mother Teresa, the tiny woman who took up the burden of the world's poor and downtrodden.

The nuns of her order decided the convent chapel where her body lay was too small to accommodate crowds.

They posted hand-lettered signs saying mourners could pay respects at a larger chapel to which Mother Teresa's body was to be moved yesterday. Her body will lie in state at St. Thomas' Church until her state funeral Saturday.

The site of the funeral was not announced. Mother Teresa will be buried at the convent in central Calcutta that was her home and the headquarters of her Missionaries of Charity order, according to Sister Barnet at the mission.

Asha Mondal was among those denied a glimpse of Mother Teresa. The 25-year-old homemaker from a village outside Calcutta traveled two hours by bus to pay homage to the woman who "has given me life."

Mondal grew up in one of Mother Teresa's orphanages in Calcutta and said she had learned first-hand of the nun's generous heart. "Mother loves us all," said Mondal, who said she would come back to view the body on Sunday.

Mother Teresa, who retained her simplicity and humility despite an avalanche of international fame, died Friday night of a heart attack, surrounded by grieving sisters of her order. She was 87. As word of her death spread, mourners, some weeping, streamed to the Missionaries of Charity convent, which towers over squalid tenements.

Even after they learned they would not get in, some mourners lingered, standing patiently in the warm, monsoon rain. One woman, seeing a reporter allowed in, begged to be

Turn to MOTHER TERESA, page 2

CORY CLARK PRESS/ COLLEGIAN

Yummie In My Healthy Tummy

Mike Keane and Brendan O'Neil work through the weekend to get the People's Market ready for today's opening.

Diana buried Saturday at Althorp

By Audrey Woods
Associated Press

LONDON — Tears and flowers and inconsolable crowds followed Diana to her final resting place in England's green hills Saturday, in an extraordinary day of pageantry and proud tribute from a land the sad and smiling princess spoke longingly of fleeing.

Before her last journey north, to a private burial in the tranquility of her ancestral home, Diana's loyal brother lashed out at the media that hurt her, and at a royal family in which she starred in "the most bizarre life imaginable."

And before she was lowered into that solitary grave, the British people in their millions poured out their hearts in a final farewell — in the cool morning outside her Kensington Palace home, in the sparkling midday sun at Westminster Abbey, on London's boulevards and grand plazas.

They cried at the courage of Prince William, 15, and Prince Harry, 12, as they walked behind their mother's funeral cortege. They sang along with hymns of old and Elton John's new version of "Candle in the Wind," dedicated to "England's rose." But mostly they stood and watched and reflected on the tragedy that snatched this imperfect heroine, the Princess of Wales, from their lives, in the senseless wreck of a car in Paris just six days earlier.

"It is such a shame that we could not have done this for her in life," said one man outside Kensington Palace, "so she could have known how we felt."

In the age-old tradition of a 1,000-year-old monarchy, the day was well scripted. But it was the one text that didn't appear in the pre-published program — the eulogy by the Earl Spencer — that electrified the mourners within and without the ancient abbey. As he stood near Diana's coffin in hallowed Westminster Abbey, he ripped into the newspapers and photographers who had made her "the most hunted person of the modern age."

"There is no doubt that she was looking for a new direction in her life at this time," Spencer said. "She talked endlessly of getting away from England, mainly because of the treatment she received at the hands of the newspapers.

"I don't think she ever understood why her genuinely good intentions were sneered at by the media... My own, and only, explanation is that genuine goodness is threatening to those at the opposite end of the moral spectrum."

Listening to loudspeakers or watching on giant TV screens in London's parks, the crowds of commoners applauded, some holding their clapping hands high in emphatic agreement. Inside the royal church, the congregation joined in.

Diana herself had confessed to exasperation with her homeland in an interview just two weeks ago, in the Paris newspaper Le Monde. "Any sane person would have left long ago," she said of Britain. "But I cannot. I have my sons."

Diana may have tired of England, but the kingdom and the world had not tired of Diana, the devotion evident in the mounds of flowers outside palaces, the long waits to write a word of sympathy, the sobs of many along the way.

Hundreds of thousands of people pressed around the abbey, joining in the funeral service of a shining 36-year-old woman most had never met but all had taken as their personal royal.

That popularity was an enormous burden, and Spencer vowed that Diana's sons — including the future king William — would grow up as she had wished.

While Queen Elizabeth II, Diana's former husband Prince Charles and all the senior members of the royal family listened, he said Diana's "blood family" would strive to protect the young princes "so that their souls are not simply immersed by duty and tradition, but can sing openly as you planned."

At the close of the services, at 12:06 p.m., the nation fell silent for a minute.

For the last mile of the procession from Kensington Palace to the abbey, Charles and his father, Prince Philip, had joined Spencer and the two young princes in walking behind the horse-drawn gun carriage that bore Diana's coffin.

Five hundred charity workers, some of them handicapped and struggling with crutches, joined the cortege, representing the millions of "ordinary people" with whom Diana had forged such a bond.

The tenor bell at Westminster Abbey began tolling once every minute as six Irish draught horses from The King's Troop, Royal Horse Artillery, set off from Kensington Palace at 9:08 a.m. (4:08 a.m. EDT). The coffin was covered with flowers and draped in the monarch's flag, the Royal Standard. One bouquet bore a card reading simply, "Mummy."

At least a million people had pressed into the center of London to pay their respects, and hundreds of thousands more lined roads along the way to the burial site at the family estate in Northamptonshire.

■ Mother Teresa

continued from page 1

taken along. A group of high school students held signs declaring her "immortal." At times, as many as 500 were held back by police barricades. Men in overalls or the sarong-like wraps worn by rickshaw pullers craned their necks for a glimpse through the order's high windows.

Inside, more than 200 nuns gathered for a Mass in the plain, dimly lit chapel, few showing emotion as they kneeled in prayer and song, their voices rising in choruses of hallelujah.

Mother Teresa's body was laid out, bare feet toward the altar, in the simple habit worn by members of her order — a blue-trimmed white cotton sari and a long-sleeved blouse. A fan placed at her head gently rustled a bouquet of yellow roses. Wreaths and bouquets of white roses filled the room.

"Today, Mother Teresa is enjoying the presence of Jesus, whom she loves and to whom she dedicated her work. We should all be rejoicing today, for we have a great intercessor in heaven," said Father Sebastian, who celebrated the Mass.

The service ended with one nun making the sign of the cross on Mother Teresa's forehead.

Later Saturday, about 20 children from a nearby Missionaries of Charity orphanage were led into the chapel. But for the most part, only politicians, diplomats and nuns were able to see her. At St. Thomas' Church, workers lashed together tables to form a slightly sloping, 4-foot-high platform on which Mother Teresa's body will lie Sunday after being driven the 2 1/2 miles from the convent.

Bemvinda Pereira, an official helping to prepare the church, said she had received calls from people who wanted to camp on church grounds for the week. She expected thousands to view the body.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Inder Kumar Gujral ordered a state funeral for Mother Teresa, an honor normally conferred only on serving presidents and prime ministers. Flags flew at half-staff across the nation.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 3
A vehicle parked in parking lot 33 was damaged by a hit and run accident.
Sept. 4
A minor two-car accident occurred on Massachusetts Avenue.
A minor two-vehicle accident occurred in parking lot 22 on University Drive.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 3
An individual was ejected from Boyden Gym after a dispute on a basketball court.
Sept. 4
A dispute between individuals in McNamara Residence Hall was resolved.

Burglary/Breaking and Entering
Sept. 5
A vehicle in parking lot 64 on University Drive was broken into.

Larceny
Sept. 3
A telephone was stolen from Machmer Hall over the past weekend.
Eight backpacks were reported stolen from the Textbook Annex.
Sunglasses were reported stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 22 on University Drive.
Sept. 4
A telephone was stolen from Goodell Library.
Two backpacks were reported stolen from the Textbook Annex.
A wallet was reported stolen from a resident of James Resident Hall.
A cell phone was stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 22 on University Drive.

Liquor Law Violations
Sept. 3
Brian P. Riley, 20, 13 Bylund Ave., Auburn was arrested in Cashin Circle for illegal possession and transporting liquor.

Vandalism
Sept. 5
A card reader was damaged at Mackimmie Residence Hall.
A vehicle in parking lot 22 on University Drive was damaged.
A vehicle in parking lot 11 on University Drive was damaged.

CORY CLARK PRESS/ COLLEGIAN

Rack'em Up
School of Management major, Jonathan Tibbetts, and pre- communications major, Chris Halloran, enjoy their Saturday afternoon by playing a few games of pool in the Game Room in the Student Union.

University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within [illegible] calendar days of the first day of classes. Textbooks must be in the condition they were in when purchased, returned within 48 hours with a receipt, providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the months of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule. Do not mail books. Report any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt. Refunds for textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt accompanies the book.

3. Always have your syllabus for each title. This is required for any returned textbooks.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins approximately the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19TH, 1997.

Beginning MONDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1997 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore: do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.
Any incorrect titles purchased after SEPT. 19, 1997 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.
Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is FRIDAY SEPT. 19 1997.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

We accept cash, personal check, Visa, MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

Fall '97 Schedule

buyback		annex rush
9/08/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/08/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/09/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/09/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/10/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/10/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/11/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/11/97	9 am – 6 pm
9/12/97	9 am – 5 pm	9/12/97	9 am – 6 pm

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

Drivers Wanted for Morning Paper Delivery

Have no classes before 10 am??

DELIVER FOR THE COLLEGIAN*
* must supply your own car

If interested, call 545-3500
or stop by the Collegian at 113 Campus Center
Basement

must be available between 7:00am to 10:00am monday - friday

UMass' Kosher meal plan still available to students

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

There is still plenty of room for students to join the Kosher meal plan, which has moved from Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest Residential Area to the Hillel House.

Although the Kosher meal plan's new location in the basement of the Hillel House offers an aesthetic wall mural painted just last year, the move from Southwest may have initially cost University Food Services some business. Currently there are 11 students on the meal plan, as opposed to 21 last year.

"A lot of people came to Southwest [because Southwest is so densely populated] but the food is much better here," said Rachel Krausher, a senior Middle-Eastern Studies major and a Kosher meal plan subscriber.

"Forty to 50 students would be ideal," said cook Nick Deraleau, who was hired by University Dining Services last fall when the two previous cooks retired.

According to Deraleau, four years ago there were over 100 students on the meal plan. Although he said he is not sure why the number has declined so much, he is confident that the new location will be a success.

Deraleau said that he has the freshest of meats and produce, and that his food is competitive with any restaurant in Amherst. In addition, 95 percent of what he serves is from scratch, and the only assistance he receives is from two student workers who work more as dishwashers than as cooks.

"It is as close to home cooking as you'll find at any university," Deraleau said. "It is home cooking."

Before coming to UMass, he co–owned a French Bistro delicatessen in Greenfield, a restaurant he still owns stock in. At age 37, Deraleau decided to go back to school and attend the New Hampshire Culinary Arts School, where he graduated with honors and received an A in Kosher food preparation.

"Although I'm not Jewish, I hold Kosher laws in very high respect. Students who wish to keep Kosher shouldn't have to worry if the cook was doing their job or not," he said.

The students who are currently on the meal plan seem to like the atmosphere and quality of the food.

"It is nice to know the guy who cooks for you," said Mali Lipchik, a sophomore BDIC American Studies major and a resident in the Hillel House.

The Kosher meal plan is open from 5 to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and dinner is served at 7:15 p.m. on Friday following services. Brunch is served Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Students can sign up for the meal plan at the Meal Plan Office located in the Franklin Dinning Commons. The plan costs an additional $80 to whichever meal plan the student is already signed up for, and the student can still eat at the other Dinning Commons with the Kosher meal plan.

The plan is also available for students who live off campus or are not on any meal plan, and this costs $928 per semester for seven meals a week. If a student waits until add/drop period has ended to join either a regular meal plan or the Kosher plan, the rates become proactive, but the options are more limited.

For more information call the Meal Plan Office at 545–1362.

CORY CLARK PRESS/ COLLEGIAN

Relaxation for the Mind
Physics and astronomy major, Zeek, leisurely reads his Aristotle on the balcony of Butterfield dormitory.

Weld continues to lobby for a hearing on Mexican ambassadorship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld said Sunday that the refusal of Sen. Jesse Helms to hold hearings on his nomination to be ambassador to Mexico was "just not the American way."

Weld, in an interview on ABC's "This Week," contended that he was making headway in his battle with Helms, the conservative head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has denied Weld a hearing, insisting that Weld, a moderate Republican, is not qualified because of his past support for the medical use of marijuana and needle-exchange programs to prevent the spread of AIDS.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, democratic, "should the process of deciding who is going to be ambassador to that country be one so unrepresentative of participatory democracy?"

Weld insisted he had a strong narcotics record when he worked in the Justice Department in the Reagan administration and had never supported the legalization of ments he has made about Helms.

Weld, while saying his disagreements with Helms had never been personal, said there was almost no precedent for a person nominated by the president to an ambassadorship to be denied a hearing. "It's just not the American way," Weld said.

That drew a quick response from Helms' spokesman Marc Thiessen, Weld speaking before he thinks," he said.

Thiessen said Weld, in his television interview, was "completely unapologetic" about his past comments on Helms, whom he had accused of "ideological extortion." "Jesse Helms is not going to be insulted by William Weld to holding a hearing on this."

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0060

YOU DEMAND POWER, SPEED, AND MOBILITY.

Color StyleWriter® 4500
Now $319 BEFORE REBATE

Save another $50 cash back*

Power Macintosh® 6500/250
32/5GB/12XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Zip Drive/Ethernet/Video In/NTSC Out/Kbd
Now $2,199 (or $41/month) BEFORE REBATE

$300 cash back*

got it yet?

WANT SOME CASH TO GO WITH THAT?

PowerBook® 1400c/133
16/1GB/6XCD/L2/11.3" TFT display
Now $2,999 (or $56/month) BEFORE REBATE

$200 cash back*

Now is the right time to get an Apple Power Macintosh or PowerBook. Because in addition to getting the computer that lets you do more than you can imagine, you can save big time. For a limited time, students are eligible for special cash rebates.

This is a limited time rebate coupon offer. See your Apple campus reseller today for complete details.

The University Store
Campus Center
Hours: M-F 9-5, Sat. 11-4
(413) 545-2619
http://www.aux.umass.edu/computers

Power Macintosh® 4400/200
16/2GB/8XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Ethernet/Kbd
Now $1,818 (or $35/month) BEFORE REBATE

$100 cash back*

Offer expires October 10, 1997. No payment of interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during the 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest, which will be included in the repayment schedule. For example, the month of May 5, 1997, had an interest rate of 12.40% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.81%. A monthly payment of $60.54 for the Power Macintosh 6500/250 system is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $2,340.43, which includes a sample purchase price of $2,199 and a 6% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Prime Rate as reported on the 5th business day of the month in The Wall Street Journal plus a spread of 3.9%. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer system prices, total loan amounts, state and local sales taxes and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. ©1997 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Mac, Macintosh, PowerBook, Power Macintosh and StyleWriter are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. OneScanner and QuickTake are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Apple mail in rebate offer valid from July 12, 1997 through October 10, 1997, while supplies last and subject to availability. Void where prohibited by law. See participating reseller for further rules and details. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

— The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian —

The war in Palestine

Thursday's bombing in Jerusalem is yet another clear demonstration of a simple fact that has eluded many observers of events in Palestine: Oslo Accords notwithstanding, there is no peace treaty in Palestine. Instead, there is only occupation, expanding colonialism and war.

This war began almost exactly 100 years ago, when a large group of Jewish Europeans met at a conference in Basel, Switzerland where they decided to colonize Palestine and substitute themselves for the inhabitants of that land, the Palestinians.

In the following century, through this war, the Zionist movement and its creation, the State of Israel, have occupied Palestine, and dispossessed and disenfranchised its people.

The Oslo process was purported to establish peace in Palestine by, in part, granting something of value to the colonized Palestinians.

Instead, their material and political conditions have suffered even greater devastation, to say nothing of their aspirations for human and national rights.

As Edward Said has observed in the latest issue of The Nation, through the "peace process, Palestinians entered an appalling spiral of loss and humiliation... which has impoverished our people, whose income has been slashed by half, who cannot move around freely, confined to the dreadful little Bantustans [about 3 percent of the West Bank] that we insist on calling liberated zones, who are obliged to watch more settlements being built, more land taken, more houses destroyed, more sadistic punishments being meted out."

Beyond that, any desperate hopes that the Oslo process would suddenly evolve beyond Rabin's scheme for more efficient occupation and pacification of the Palestinians, into a vehicle for the accomplishment of a just and lasting peace and the realization of Palestinian human rights, have been systematically dismantled by the Netanyahu regime.

Since his election, the Israeli Prime Minister has made it his main aim to ensure that the process is stopped dead in its tracks and that none harbor any illusions about Israel's intentions to retain de facto possession of all of Palestine.

The Israeli Prime Minister has made it his aim to ensure that the process is stopped dead in its tracks and that none harbor any illusions about Israel's intentions to retain de facto possession of all of Palestine.

Indeed, this was his campaign platform.

As Said has pointed out, "One cannot just expect people without statehood, without rights, without hope, to act like well-dressed diplomats sitting in seminar rooms talking about abstract scenarios and confidence building measures.

"What we need now — and certainly the United States can take this step — is a restatement of the basic premise that there is peace only when land is given back, and that the goal is independence and sovereignty for two peoples."

Writing in Israel's leading daily, the centrist newspaper Ha'aretz, one day before the latest bombing, Gideon Samet observed that U.S. Secretary of State Albright will not be able to be able to effectively counter the Israeli policy of indefinitely postponing any future agreements with the Palestinians or the fulfillment of any of the outstanding commitments Israel continues to ignore because, "the United States will not make any particular effort to pressure him [Netanyahu]."

Samet recognizes that Netanyahu's "political consciousness goes beyond merely postponing... He has drawn a line over any moves involving the Palestinians."

Even Israel's leading daily recognizes, therefore, that Palestinians have been put, yet again, in an impossible situation. Only a few hours before the bombing, Samet wrote that "Now only one thing can break the paralysis: violence in the territories."

This fact was apparent even from the Israeli point of view.

It is crystal clear, then, that as long as Zionist colonialism continues the war against Palestinians, and their human and national rights, which began at the first Zionist Congress in Basel one hundred years ago, Palestine is and will remain a war zone.

Hussein Ibish is a UMass graduate student.

Point Counterpoint

Hussein Ibish

Enough is enough

Four years ago I watched with the rest of the world as President Clinton stood at the White House Lawn for the famous hand shake and signing of the first formal Israeli– PLO peace agreement. The world looked on with eager anticipation and hoped that there would finally be peace in one of the world's most volatile and important regions, the Middle East.

Since the initial signing, the Israelis and the Palestinians have come a long way. The Palestinians have gained a measure of self-autonomy, and their lives have improved in many ways. What were considered occupied territories, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, are still technically part of Israel, but are now under the jurisdiction of the Palestinian Authority and not the Israeli government. Both the economy and the educational system have improved for the Palestinians as a result of the peace process.

However, the road taken towards peace has not been a smooth one; according to U.S.A. Today, there have been 15 suicide bombings in Israel since the agreements. Each of the bombs aimed at killing civilians who have given up their lives in hopes of peace.

As an American Jew who has spent over a year in Israel, it is difficult for me to keep a positive outlook on the peace process.

Unfortunately, the prospects for peace are quickly dwindling away as time ticks by — like the timer on one of the suicide bombs set off by Hamas. What makes this peace process so painful and difficult is that the parties involved who are trying to achieve peace are taking brave and bold steps.

Both the Israeli government and the Palestinian Authority have often gone against what their own people want, doing what they need to in order to move the region towards peace.

Though they are doing some difficult things, neither leader — Israeli Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat — has done all he could and should be doing.

Arafat continues to embrace leaders of Hamas, the Islamic militant group that has continued suicide bomb attacks. Arafat has also proceeded to break all types of agreements that go along with the Oslo Accords, such as limiting the size of his police force.

However, Arafat is not the only one who looks guilty here. Netanyahu is also guilty of some poor decisions along the way. The most important one has been waiting so long to do what he did on Friday.

Netanyahu finally declared that Israel may consider their peace accords with the Palestinian Autonomy to be void. Just like any contract, if one side breaks it, then it is effectively null and void. That is what appears to be the case in the Middle East right now. Apparently Netanyahu has declared that Israel is not bound by the peace accords with the Palestinians.

This past suicide bomb struck a different chord with many Israelis and worldwide Jews than the previous 14. Having spent a year in Israel and been there during three suicide bombings within a short span of time, I never felt unsafe. The bombs had been in areas that I had been to, but never in a place that I had spent extensive amounts of time.

This bomb was different because it took place on Ben Yehudah Street, where I spent many nights hanging out at cafes or shops. Since so many foreigners visit this street, the latest bombing puts more of a strain on the Israeli people, economically and spiritually.

Enough is enough! It is time for peace. The road to peace has been difficult, but the reason it has continued thus far is because the thought of a real solid peace is great enough to endure the tragedies and lifestyles that come with such a proposition.

It is unfortunate that the peace process could end prematurely, without ever being completed. This especially upsets me because the option of peace is no longer a plausible one due to extremist minorities such as Hamas. They are left to reign terror unless Arafat and the Palestinian Authority slow them down.

Arafat continues to embrace Hamas leaders (in public) instead of shunning away from them. Arafat continues to condemn each of their suicide bombers, but why does he not condemn the entire organization which has done nothing at all to help the peace process?

Arafat knows how to play the media. He is one of the elite when it comes to propaganda. However, it is all catching up to him and his people. It is time for the Palestinians to live up to their side of the Oslo Accords. The United States and the rest of the world are now watching for Arafat's next move.

Arafat has one last chance to be a partner in the peace process. Arafat was the recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize — it is time for him to act like it.

Dan Deutsch is a UMass student and the American–Israeli Public Affairs Committee Campus Co–Liaison.

Di was a model of feminine strength

When Prince Charles of Wales introduced young Diana Spencer to the world 16 years ago, who could have imagined the powerful force that this shy and awkward girl would become?

As we watch the flowers pile up in front of Kensington Palace and British consulates around the world, it is truly amazing to think that one person could inspire so much adoration in her lifetime and so much grief in her death.

FOCUS ON WOMEN

SARA ECKEL

Many people I know were taken aback by the outpouring of emotion Diana's death has caused. "I had no idea the cult of Diana was so strong," said one friend. Another said he was surprised to realize that he too was touched by the princess's untimely demise. "I never really thought about her before, but when I heard the news I definitely felt a loss," he said.

How did this woman get such a strong hold on the public imagination? By now many theories have been proffered — it was her beauty, her grace, her common touch. Of course, all of these things were important elements in the creation of "Saint Diana," but the main reason I think we feel such loss is that she held such a completely unique place in our culture. She was so much more than just a pretty woman who wore fashionable clothes and did good works. She was, I believe, a model of feminine strength.

When the nervous kindergarten teacher married Prince Charles in 1981, she was the very essence of traditional femininity. Eyes lowered, she was quiet and obedient — exactly the kind of woman we can presume the royal family wanted. But Diana soon realized that this role did not suit her, that she could not tolerate a life spent meekly obeying orders and silently enduring her husband's infidelities. So she did something that the House of Windsor was wholly unprepared for: she told the world the princess was unhappy.

Diana has been called a hypocrite for using the press as much as she criticized it. But the princess's manipulation of the media was actually a healthy and realistic response to her circumstances. The relentless intrusion of cameras was an unflinching fact of her life. Therefore, she had a choice. She could allow this problem to make her angry and bitter, or she could turn it into an opportunity.

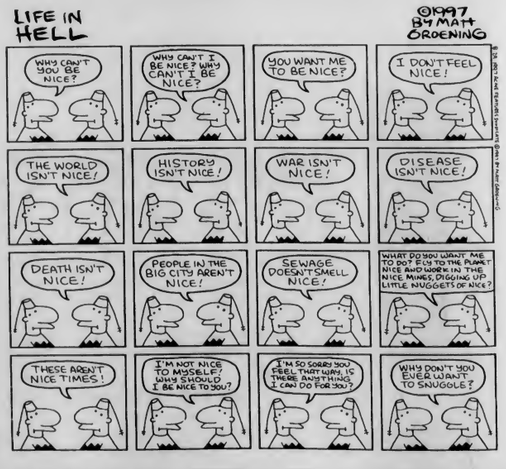
As Vanity Fair executive editor Elise O'Shaughnessy said recently, Diana successfully provided us with the next chapter to the fairy tale: "It's all very well, you go out and marry the prince, but what happens when the prince turns out to be a louse? [Diana's] is a very 20th century story of someone who took the reins and made a very difficult situation work for her in the end."

As Diana emerged from the wreckage of her marriage, we watched the shy girl metamorphose into a diva. Thus she became a model of a different — and I think far superior — breed of femininity. Again, it wasn't just the beauty and the charm — though that was a big part of it. It was the intensity with which she threw herself into her good works. It was the way that she took such humble qualities as kindness and compassion and made them larger than life. When she cuddled a sick child or hugged an AIDS patient, we knew we were witnessing something much more than public relations. We knew that she meant it, because we knew how much she needed it. She was not just giving, she was receiving. And in the end, this vulnerability is what made her so powerful.

"Someone's got to go out there and love people," Diana said in her famous 1995 television interview. It sounded corny when she said it, and it actually sounds corny now. And yet, who else was saying it? That was the amazing thing about Diana — nothing she did or said was terribly original and yet she filled a void in the public consciousness. A void, I fear, that will remain empty for many years to come.

Sara Eckel is a nationally syndicated columnist. Send comments to the author in care of this newspaper or send her e-mail at saraeum@aol.com.

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst, MA 01003; or by email to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu Letters may be edited for length, clarity and style.



Focus on Race

Next week, the Massachusetts Daily Collegian Editorial page will publish a week–long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

Editorial can be submitted by email (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545–1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement.

The Editorial/Opinion desk is now hiring!

There is one Editorial Associate position open. The job involves helping with all tasks from typing to designing layout, and gives you the opportunity to write for the newspaper as well as to get tons of practical experience. This position pays 5 hours/week at the regular student rate. Stop by the Collegian office and fill out an application. Applications will be accepted until Wednesday, Sept. 10. For more information, contact Daniel Bodah at 545–1491 or at letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W. P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Inclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Angry young men raise their voices

MARTY KEANE/ COLLEGIAN

RZA brought the Wu–Tang Clan's message to Tinley Park in August.

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

Rage Against the Machine/Wu–Tang Clan/Atari Teenage Riot
The New World Music Theater
Aug. 29

TINLEY PARK, Ill. — As rabid concert goers were patted down with handheld metal detectors, the question on everyone's mind was clearly the following: Could this daring triple bill consisting of rock's foremost political autuers, rap's preeminent collective and techno's most primal expression of anger reach out and play to such a diverse crowd?

After bearing witness to four hours of unrelenting sonic and vocalized mayhem, the answer was a resounding yes. From the guitar samples and rageful shouting of Atari Teenage Riot to the riotous ranting of Rage Against the Machine, commercially–recognized music has never sounded so incendiary — or estimable in a live setting.

Germany's Atari Teenage Riot began the evening by thrashing through an earache–inducing 30–minute set of apocalyptic dance music. With a lyrical content as confrontational as their sonic palette, Alec Empire, Hanin Elias and Carl Crack created their unflinching mixture of destroy–the–system punk and hyper–kinetic techno that ripped through the audience with a veracity that made even the crustiest Rage/Wu–Tang fans raise an eyebrow, if only to look up and see where all the racket was coming from.

New York's Wu–Tang Clan turned in the evening's most memorable set. On a stage festooned with an authentic approximation of the urban ghetto from which they arose, RZA, Raekwon, Method Man et al. displayed their rapping prowess — both as a collective and as solo artists.

Especially impressive were the rapid–fire, machine–gun verses delivered by Raekwon. Over chamber–like beats, he led knee–jerking, fist–pumping renditions of "It's Yourz" and "Duck Season" while the rest of his fellow MC's got the crowd fired up through the usual hip–hop sloganeering — "Go Wu–Tang, go Wu–Tang" — and by throwing Wu Wear merchandise to the assembled masses near the stage in a brilliant job of self promotion.

As the house lights dimmed and a black curtain was unfurled to bear light on a banner showing a dizzying array of overtly political questions, not to mention two massive bodyguards flanking the stage, an amazing transformation occurred in the sold–out crowd of 30,000 plus. Gone was the celebratory nature of Wu–Tang's set which quickly dissipated and was replaced by a senseless display of adolescent and testosterone–charged violence and anarchic behavior.

As the first few chords of the insurgent "People of the Sun" rang out of guitarist Tom Morello's six–string, the moshing throng gathered in front of the stage proceeded to accomplish the unthinkable. The first four rows of seats were ripped out of their concrete reinforcements and flung about aimlessly, knocking a security guard unconscious and sending photographers fleeing.

It was an unfortunate end to a night of music that otherwise proved the binding power of three very different styles of music.

Victim pens book about stalker

I Know You Love Me chronicles stalker's sexual obsession

By Tom Hays
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stalker is behind bars, but the victim still looks over her shoulder, in her rearview mirror and out her front window in tiny fits of despair.

It's been that way for eight years — and counting — for Doreen Orion. And although Orion is only one of an estimated 1 million women stalked in the United States each year, her case has some twists: Orion is a Colorado psychiatrist. Her stalker is a former patient. And a woman. Orion, 37, gives the woman the deceptively sweet pseudonym of Fran Nightingale in her new book, I Know You Really Love Me.

The book chronicles the author's plight as target of a severe and incurable form of stalking known as erotomania — Nightingale's delusional belief that Orion is in love with her. The patient's illness, as Orion describes it, is less a sexual obsession than a schoolgirl crush gone haywire.

"Even if you ask erotomaniacs if they have sexual fantasies about their objects, they'll be horrified," she said.

At a recent lunch in midtown Manhattan, Orion spoke passionately about the book's broader themes: how the legal system was slow to take stalking seriously, and how high–profile cases involving celebrities like Madonna have created the false impression that only the famous are at risk.

She cited a new federal study that found 8 percent of all American women and 2 percent of men have been stalked sometime in their lives.

But the psychiatrist grew pensive when asked if she feared that going public with her own case would only aggravate the 45–year–old Nightingale, who is two months into a one–year jail term for violating a court order to leave Orion alone.

The doctor still carries the restraining order in her pocketbook. Typical of stalkers and the system, Nightingale had violated the order dozens of times before her arrest and conviction. Orion assumes the hunt will resume once Nightingale gets out.

"It's a concern," Orion said. "She's really delusional about me. The problem is that any attention you give [a stalker] is viewed as a success. Negative attention is better than nothing."

Orion's ordeal stemmed from a random and seemingly innocuous encounter in September 1989.

At the time, Nightingale, a "drab" insurance agent, had been hospitalized after throwing a violent, suicidal tantrum. Orion — who grew up on Long Island before earning her medical degree from George Washington University — was on call at the Tucson, Ariz., hospital where she and her future husband, also a psychiatrist, worked.

After learning that Nightingale already was being treated for schizophrenia, Orion decided to observe her for 16 days while adjusting her medication. To Orion, the job seemed routine.

But the doctor sensed trouble when she received a note written in her patient's childlike scrawl. The note suggested they pursue a relationship, and included a home phone number.

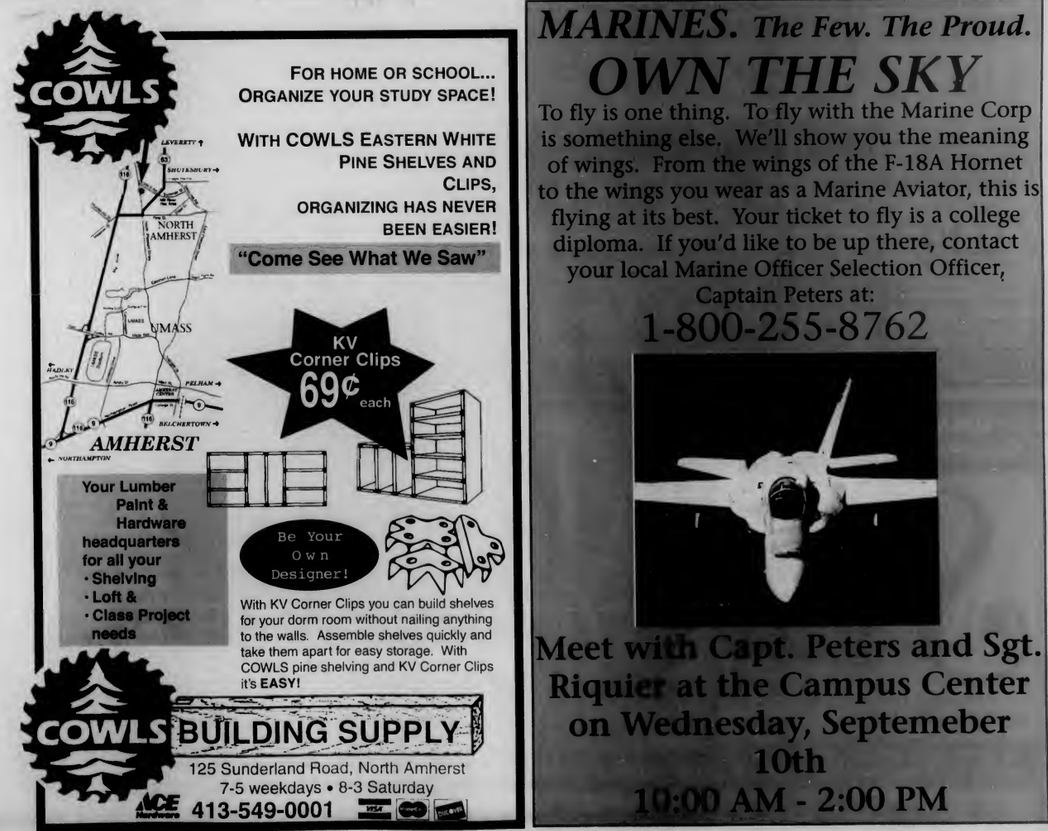
It was the first of a barrage of bizarre phone messages, notes and poems. Many were hand–delivered to Orion's office or even left on the windshield of her car.

To Orion's horror, even when she and her husband moved to Colorado, where he took a new job, Nightingale moved there, too, and continued the demented courtship.

Similar examples of erotomania's extremes abound, Orion writes.

There was the Colorado man arrested after tunneling from his apartment to one down the hall where his female victim lived. Also, the department store manager who fled the country because he was being stalked by a customer who became obsessed with him after he smiled at her.

"As good as we think we are at our jobs, we only do them eight hours a day," Orion said. "Stalkers do theirs 24 hours a day, and it's a lot more than a job to them."



Nightingale's pursuit, shadowy yet dogged, was typical, Orion said. So was the fact that she never threatened violence — one reason, the doctor believes, that stalking "still isn't treated like a real crime."

The attitude has been, "Big deal. Someone is following you around," she said. "It is a big deal. It's horrible to know that someone's always there, always watching."

While out promoting her book, the psychiatrist has urged much harsher criminal penalties for stalkers, plus more research on how to treat them. At home, she's maintained a modest practice in a small Colorado town she prefers not to name, with a handful of patients — all carefully screened.

"I used to enjoy treating a whole spectrum of patients," she said. "But I figure one stalker per person, per lifetime is kind of a quota. I've met mine."

check us out on the web at: www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

MARINES. The Few. The Proud.
OWN THE SKY

To fly is one thing. To fly with the Marine Corp is something else. We'll show you the meaning of wings. From the wings of the F-18A Hornet to the wings you wear as a Marine Aviator, this is flying at its best. Your ticket to fly is a college diploma. If you'd like to be up there, contact your local Marine Officer Selection Officer, Captain Peters at:

1-800-255-8762

Meet with Capt. Peters and Sgt. Riquier at the Campus Center on Wednesday, Septemeber 10th
10:00 AM - 2:00 PM

Women suit up à la the gentlemen

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

Women are coming to appreciate why men found "casual Friday" hard to carry out: they've had it so easy all these years with the suit as the corporate uniform.

So for yet another season, women are adopting — and adapting — suits in menswear fabric and styling.

"Women have so much going on in their lives. They want to look good but don't have the time to get up at 5 a.m. and worry about coordinating a whole outfit," Gary A. Kane, president of J.G. Hook in New York, says. "You grab a suit, it's ready to go. Not a whole lot of thought goes into it."

Look for pantsuits in pinstripes, tweeds and flannels in black, chocolate, charcoal, navy or olive. But just because they're borrowed from the boys doesn't mean they don't have a soft side.

Jackets are closer to the body and slightly wider in the shoulder. Trousers, preferably cuffed, swing wide or are cut slim.

Those who prefer to show a little leg will find suits with skirts that are short or have deep slits — sometimes both — and tailored coat dresses to slip into.

Kane says a well-tailored suit gives a woman confidence.

"She's still going to be swimming with the sharks," he says, "but she knows she's going to have impact."

Menswear designer Alan Flusser agrees. In his book Style and the Man (1996, HarperStyle), he wrote:

"No other garment in the history of fashion better connotes an image of formal continuity and authority than the man's tailored suit jacket... As the century draws to a close, the suit jacket continues to set the universal standard for civility in masculine attire."

Rather than a shirt and tie, though, women should accent a suit with a lace camisole, sheer blouse or soft T-neck. For a bit of funk, opt for a sexy tube top or dress-length tunic, a la John Bartlett and Cynthia Steffe. Oh, and heels as high as you can manage with grace.

Ralph Lauren is a master at styling menswear for women.

"Fashion is changing," he says. "My wife wears tails to certain events, and gowns to other events. There's a lot of flexibility in fashion."

At the fall fashion preview of his collection clothing, Lauren staged a gender-bender finale. Sudanese model Alek Wek, with her hair close-cropped, walked the runway in a black tuxedo, bow tie — and high-heeled strap sandals.

For day, he has softened his brown, navy and charcoal menswear for women with white satin-backed crepe shirts and chocolate suede high-heel ankle boots. By night he opts for pinstripes in wool and nylon evening pants with a crystal beaded halter top. A black pinstriped wrap coat gets the soft touch of satin lapels.

From Ralph Lauren's bridge line, come pinstripes in pearl gray and cream wool, nylon and spandex. The shapely jacket is $495.

Matching flat-front slim pants with cuffs are $250. J.G. Hook's key to menswear for women is female flattery, a far cry from the hard-edged look of the 1980s.

"For our customer," Kane says, "that translates into fabrics that are very definitely menswear-inspired, such as pinstripes, houndstooth and glen plaid and wonderful tweeds. But the lines are not so severe. We'll layer a menswear blazer over a floral blouse in a silky fabric, or with a skirt that's cut to have a little more movement."

J.G. Hook's belted blazer in glen plaid polyester and rayon is about $160. Matching flat-front full trousers with cuffs are about $92.

A double-breasted coat dress with black velvet collar and goldtone buttons is about $49 through Chadwick's of Boston catalog.

"It's a perennial bestseller for us," Kane says. "It brings menswear down a peg to soften it."

For women of means who want the advantages of custom tailoring that men of means have long enjoyed, there's Holland & Holland. A New York City outpost of the London store, with Nina Rumbough as fashion director, opened in May 1996.

Prices range from $1,800 to $3,200 for jackets, depending on fabric, and $620 to $1,650 for pants.

The whole point of menswear for women, Rumbough says, is that they like men's tailoring.

"There's no reason," she said, "why Savile Row looks should only be for men."

■ game

continued from page 12

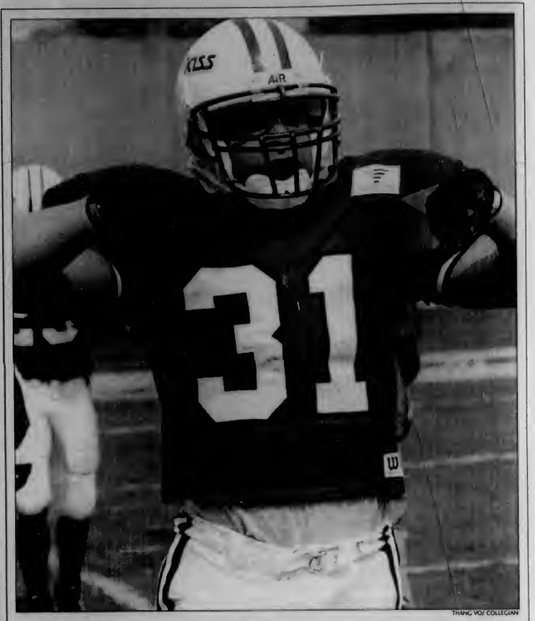
tournament.

"There is not much we can do over here, but it shows respect for what we stand for, for what our monarchy stands for back home," Tucker said of the gesture. "We thought we would show respect, with the rest of Britain at a standstill."

Rose agreed that the ribbons were an appropriate showing of respect.

"It was either going to be the ribbons or black armbands," Rose said. "But we wanted to show our respect."

"It's been difficult, but we wanted to do something to show respect for her," Browne said.



As their gesture showed quiet admiration for Princess Diana, the Minutewomen showed respect for their teammates with a one minute moment of silence before Saturday's game.

"We appreciated the team giving us that moment," Tucker said. "They understand where we are coming from. It's a two way thing."

UMass coach Patty Shea said the team has come together to support the three British members.

"As Americans, we can not truly understand the British monarchy system," she said. "We've talked about it and we can't ever really understand how they feel inside. But we can understand on the surface and we can be there for them."

Casey Kane is a Collegian columnist.

THANG VU/ COLLEGIAN

Air Jordan...
After losing its opener 21-6 to Richmond last weekend, the Massachusetts football team looks for redemption next Saturday at Maine.

ARTS & LIVING WANTS YOU!

Arts & Living is always looking for writers. come down to the Collegain, room 113 in the Campus Center basement, and speak to Seema, the Arts & Living Editor or call 5-3500

TRY A CLASSIFIED

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...
SHAB
Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care
Come join the *S*tudent *H*ealth *A*dvisory *B*oard
Informational meetings:
Wed. Sept 10 & 24, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304
For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 577-5181

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!
Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.
DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!

★★★★★
Morningstar rating for the CREF Stock Account, CREF Equity Index Account, and CREF Growth Account

AAA
S&P and Moody's rating for TIAA

1995 DALBAR Retirees Customer Satisfaction Survey †

"Your service bowled me over."
William Cotton, TIAA-CREF Participant

Top ratings from Morningstar, Moody's, S&P, DALBAR, and Bill.

TIAA-CREF Proven Solutions To Last a Lifetime.

We take a lot of pride in gaining high marks from the major rating services. But the fact is, we're equally proud of the ratings we get in the mail every day from our participants. Because at TIAA-CREF, ensuring the financial futures of the education and research community is something that goes beyond stars and numbers. So from traditional and variable annuities to life insurance and personal savings plans, you'll find we provide the right choices—and the dedication—to help you achieve a lifetime of financial goals. The rating services back us up. So does Bill.

To receive a free Personal Investing Kit, including charges and expenses, plus our variable annuity prospectuses, call us at 1 800 226-0147. Please read them carefully before you invest or send money.

www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF
Ensuring the future for those who shape it.SM

*Source: Morningstar, Inc., June 1997. Morningstar is an independent service that rates mutual funds and variable annuities. The top 10% of funds in an investment category receives five stars and the next 22.5% receive four stars. Morningstar proprietary ratings reflect historical risk-adjusted performance, and are updated monthly. They are calculated from the accounts three-, five- and ten-year average annual returns in excess of 90-day Treasury bill returns with appropriate fee adjustments, and a risk factor that reflects performance below 90-day T-bill returns. The overall star ratings reflected in above are Morningstar's published ratings which are weighted averages of the three-, five- and ten-year ratings for periods ending June 30, 1997. The separate (unpublished) ratings for each of the periods are:

Period	CREF Stock Account	CREF Bond Market Account	CREF Social Choice Account	CREF Global Equities Account	CREF Equity Index Account	CREF Growth Account
	Star Rating/Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	Star Rating/Number of Fixed Income Accounts Rated	Star Rating/Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	Star Rating/Number of International Equity Accounts Rated	Star Rating/Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	Star Rating/Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated
3 Year	4/1,924	4/364	4/1,420	5/274	5/1,423	5/1,423
5 Year	4/1,924	4/364	4/1,924	5/108	N/A	N/A
10 Year	4/441	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A

These top ratings are based on TIAA's exceptional financial strength, claims paying ability and overall operating performance. †Source: DALBAR, Inc. 1995 CREF policyholders are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, please read the CREF Prospectus offered above. Read it carefully before you invest or send money.

Get AT&T One Rate. FREE.
And don't worry about the time or the distance.

free from AT&T

If you live off campus, choose AT&T Long Distance and sign up for AT&T One Rate. Free. You'll also get a free one-year membership to Student Advantage®—the largest student discount program ever.

- AT&T One Rate: only 15¢ a minute on calls from home—to anybody, anytime, anywhere in the U.S.
- Student Advantage: use your card to get special offers and up to 50% off every day at thousands of your favorite neighborhood places and national sponsors—like Kinko's,® Tower Records® and Amtrak®

Live off campus? Get AT&T One Rate and a Student Advantage membership. FREE.
Call 1-800-878-3872
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach. AT&T

Student Advantage offer valid for AT&T Residential Long Distance customers. © 1997 AT&T

Martina Hingis wins U.S. Open; ousts Venus in final

By Steve Wilstein
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Martina Hingis ended a near-perfect run through the Grand Slams by winning the U.S. Open, her third major title of the year, in a virtually flawless performance Sunday against Venus Williams.

In the first round of a rivalry for the future of the women's game, Hingis' 6-0, 6-4 victory showed she has the all-court game right now that's more than enough to cope with Williams' power. Hingis did whatever she wanted against Williams, who showed only flashes of the brilliance that carried her to the final in her U.S. Open debut. While Williams slugged impatiently, Hingis waited for her opportunities and put balls away.

It was the youngest matchup of finalists in Grand Slam history, the 16-year-old Hingis against the 17-year-old Williams, and on this day Hingis had the more mature game.

Hingis has shown that maturity and confidence all year. Only one loss, in the final of the French Open shortly after knee surgery following a fall from a horse, prevented her from a rare sweep of the Grand Slams.

She won the Australian Open and Wimbledon, and her triumph at the U.S. Open lifted her into the company of some of the greatest players in history who have won three majors in a year.

"I think maybe I was nervous," Williams said. "But playing against Martina is a different match. You can't hit yourself out of [trouble] because she takes the pace off the ball a lot." Yet Williams proved enough in reaching the final, and in making the second set close, that she has the raw talent to become a champion herself someday.

"There was a lot of talk all around," she said of the complaints that she hadn't played enough competitive tennis before this tournament. "I'm glad to quiet it a little."

Williams, the first black women's finalist at the U.S. Open since Althea Gibson won her second title in 1958, began the tournament with a victory on opening day at Arthur Ashe Stadium. It was a special appearance accorded her as a promising black player from the city courts of Compton, Calif. But she earned her way to the final by brandishing a game built on speed, power and extraordinary poise.

Hingis, who won $650,000, admired the silver trophy she won. "The big names are on it," she said. "One of them is mine."

Hingis, who has won more than $4.6 million in her brief career, is on her way to posting one of the finest years in history. She's lost only two of 65 matches — the French final against Iva Majoli and a match against Lindsay Davenport last month in Los Angeles. Only the woman for whom she was named, Martina Navratilova, lost fewer matches in a year during the Open era. Navratilova was 86-1 in 1983, then 78-2 in 1984. Steffi Graf went 75-2 in 1987 and 86-2 in 1989.

For Williams, the $350,000 runner-up prize was more than three times her previous career earnings of $105,646.

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

I'd like to buy the world a Koch...

UMass men's soccer coach Sam Koch's squad took on Siena yesterday on the road. For the complete wrap-up, see tomorrow's Sports.

Patriots rip Colts 31–6; Bledsoe throws four TDs for second week in a row

By Hank Lowerkron
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Four touchdown passes in a game is getting to be a habit for New England's Drew Bledsoe.

Bledsoe did it for the second consecutive week as New England defeated the Indianapolis Colts 31-6 Sunday.

The defending AFC champions have opened the season with two straight victories for the first time since 1986, while Bledsoe has thrown for 607 yards.

With Terry Glenn inactive due to a sprained left ankle, Bledsoe threw scoring passes to four different receivers, and Curtis Martin rushed for 121 yards on 25 carries.

Bledsoe raised his career passing yardage to 15,249 — the third-highest total in franchise history. He completed 15 of 25 passes for 267 yards.

Shawn Jefferson caught a 34-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and later had the longest reception in his seven-year career, a 64-yarder, to set up New England's second score. Martin came out of the backfield to race 21 yards for the score after catching the ball near the line of scrimmage.

Vincent Brisby was left uncovered in the end zone in the third quarter, and Bledsoe found him for a 6-yard score, capping a nine-play drive that covered 79 yards.

The fourth score came after Jim Harbaugh fumbled the ball as he was scrambling. Tedy Bruschi recovered the ball at the Indianapolis 21, and on the next play, Bledsoe found Troy Brown open for the score.

The only Indianapolis points came on field goals of 45 and 38 yards in the first half as the Colts' offense failed to score a touchdown for the second consecutive game.

Bledsoe moved 87 yards in 10 plays for the first score. On a third-and-3 play, Jefferson got behind Dedric Mathis to take Bledsoe's lofty pass near the goal line and continued into the end zone.

Meanwhile, New England continued its mastery of running back Marshall Faulk. Coming into the game with 47.2 yards per outing for five games against the Patriots, the two-time Pro Bowler was held to 23 yards on 15 carries.

The Patriots also capitalized on the inexperience of an Indianapolis offensive line that starts two rookies. They constantly pressured Jim Harbaugh, who was sacked five times for 27 yards while completing a career-high 30 passes for 241 yards.

Indianapolis narrowly missed scoring its first touchdown of the season on offense as the first half ended. Following New England's second touchdown, the Colts took over on their 31 with 3:01 remaining in the period.

A holding penalty against guard Doug Widell moved the ball back to the 28. Five consecutive completions by Harbaugh and a New England penalty for having 12 men on the field, which nullified a sack, brought the ball to the Patriots' 30 with 19 seconds on the clock.

Indianapolis was out of timeouts, but the Colts continued the threat. Harbaugh went around right end for six yards before running out of bounds. Bruschi was penalized for a late hit, giving the Colts a first down on the 10 with 12 seconds remaining.

Ken Griffey Jr. smacks 50th home run; but slugger is focused on division race

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ken Griffey Jr. received a handshake and congratulations from manager Lou Piniella in the clubhouse after hitting his career-high 50th home run Sunday.

Still, the Seattle star was in no mood to celebrate.

Griffey joined some of baseball's greats with the home run, but the Mariners still lost to the Minnesota Twins 9-6, their seventh setback in 12 games.

Seattle's lead in the AL West over Anaheim was chopped to four games after the Angels beat Detroit 5-4 in 15 innings.

"I'd rather have the win," said a subdued Griffey. "All I want to do is play in the playoffs and win a World Series." Griffey is 11 homers short of matching Roger Maris' record of 61 in 1961. The Mariners have 19 games left this season.

Griffey, however, is more concerned about outlasting the Angels for the division crown.

"The season's not over with," he said. "We've got some things to do, win some games. That's what I'm worried about, not personal bests. I just want to win ballgames."

Griffey, who had 49 home runs last year, became the 15th different player to hit 50 homers.

Leading the majors in homers, Griffey connected for a two-run drive in the fourth inning against Bob Tewksbury. Griffey smiled broadly as he was greeted by his teammates in the dugout.

Griffey homered four times in the four-game series. He has seven home runs in his last six games and nine in 13 games.

"I'm playing deep enough that if he hits one over my head, it's probably a home run," said Twins right fielder Brent Brede, who watched Griffey's shot sail far over the right field fence and hit the Metrodome's retracted football seats, 405 feet away from home plate.

Griffey went 1-for-5. He was twice called out on strikes and twice flied out, hitting a routine fly to left-center with a runner on base for the final out.

"Quite a feat," said Piniella of Griffey's milestone. "He joins a very elite group, but he's an elite player."

"It's great to play against one of the great players in the game," said Tewksbury, who has now given up two homers to Griffey in his career. "I think I'll think more about the strikeout [in the first inning] than the home run."

This is the third straight season that the 50-home run barrier has been reached. Mark McGwire hit 52 for Oakland and Brady Anderson had 50 for Baltimore last year and Albert Belle hit 50 for Cleveland in 1995.

Tewksbury (6-11) helped the Twins stop a five-game losing streak. He gave up five runs and eight hits in 6 1-3 innings, walking one and striking out six.

Seattle starter Felipe Lira (5-9) was chased in the third inning, and lost for the second time in as many decisions since being acquired from Detroit.

Anyone interested in broadcasting sports for the student radio station, WMUA 91.1 F.M., there will be a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. right outside the station in the Campus Center basement. Everyone is invited to attend. If you are unable to make it give Mike Corey or Jon Place a call at 545–2876.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

$109.00!!
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
PRORATED

take Kaplan and get into the right school.
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
• Highly trained, expert teachers who know the tests inside and out.
• Personalized, computerized study plans, tailored to your individual needs.
• Proven methods, guaranteed to raise your score.
CRUSH THE EXAM!
the leader in test prep and admissions counseling
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
www.kaplan.com

Want to write for sports?
Call Luke at 545-1851

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

Cheerleading Try-Outs
on: 9/8, 9/9, 9/10
6pm - 9pm
@ Curry Hicks Cage
Call Kevin Thompson 665-0056
Come and Join the nationally ranked squad

Join UMass Men's Crew!
A winning tradition since 1871
No prior rowing experience necessary
Please come to Informational meeting:
Tuesday, September 9, 1997 at 7pm
Campus Center Room 174
Questions??? Call Crew Offices at 545-0487

Unleash big savings. AT&T presents the largest student discount program ever. FREE.

Choose AT&T. And we'll give you a free one-year Student Advantage® membership. Use your card to get special offers and up to 50% off every day at thousands of your favorite neighborhood places and national sponsors like these:

AMTRAK DOLLAR Mobil AAA Greyhound
PEARLE VISION amc THEATRES MOTOPHOTO The Experience Makes the Difference kinko's TOWER

Choose AT&T.
Get a Student Advantage membership. FREE.
Call 1-800-878-3872
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach. AT&T

Student Advantage offer valid for AT&T Residential Long Distance, AT&T Calling Card and AT&T Universal Card customers. © 1997 AT&T

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

85 Chrysler LeBaron mint condition, A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo, power windows and locks. 95,000 miles. $700 or B/O. Call Bruce 256-1215

Nissan Maxima 85 StationWagon All Powers, music system optional. Best offer. Call 546-2002. Ask for Z.

HONDA CIVIC '90 3 dr, hatch, 4 speed, manual, mileage: 87,100. Excellent condition. Call after 5:30 pm. at 256-3433.

EMPLOYMENT

Kai Chi Restaurant Drivers and Waitstaff Wanted. Part-Time. Apply within. Route 9, 335 Russell St., Hadley. 586-2774

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221

Jobs For The Environment

Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/Day. Call Terri 256-6434

Cooks Wanted Experience a plus but not necessary. Apply immediately in person. Cutty's Food and Spirits. 55 University Drive. 549-5700

UMass Athletic Development- Event Staff wanted for Athletic Fund Events throughout the 1997-98 athletic year. Must be 21+. For further information respond to 308 Mullins, or call 545-9672.

Mother's Helper Wanted 10-15 hrs. per week. Please call 549-7788

Care Provider Needed Monday thru Friday 8:30-5:30. Two children. Amherst home. Good pay. Nice family. Own car. Love for children. Non-smoking. Call evenings. Leave voice mail message for Dave. Press 1. 256-6006

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

Full-Time Day Delivery or Kitchen Help Wanted 30-40 hrs/week. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Drivers and Kitchen Help Must be able to work 30 hours per week. Flexible hours. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Students Wanted!!! Part-Time Sales Marketing Job Visit www.eduinfo.com.

Part-Time Administrative Assistant Clerical position in small Amherst office of Spanish study abroad program. Located on bus route. Requirements: data entry, computer skills, and excellent grammar/spelling skills. Knowledge of Spanish a plus. Approximately 20 hours/week; afternoons preferred. Competitve salary. Send letter and resume to: CC-CS, 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314

FOR RENT

4 Bedroom House Northampton, near stores but country location. No pets. $950+. Skibiski Realtors. 584-3428

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

New Twin Serta Mattress Includes NEW bed frame and box spring. Call Brian at 549-5046. $50.

MAC IIsi 15" color monitor, modem, laser printer. $600 or best offer. 256-3472.

INSTRUCTION

Performing Arts Division offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance. PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass. (413)545-0519 for info.

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. Lessons may be taken for course credit. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

MISCELLANEOUS

Start Your Own Fraternity! Zeta Beta Tau is looking for male students to start a new chapter. If you are interested in academic success, a chance to network, and an opportunity to make friends in a non-pledging brotherhood, e-mail: zbt@zbtnational.org or call Joe Alfidi at (317)334-1898

Extra $$$ Opportunity for confident self-starter. Contact with international students at 1-888-670-2906. Leave message.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at (603)889-0686

SERVICES

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

SERVICES

COMPUTER SERVICES Mac Magic Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant. Alvin C. Whaley (413)584-7904 Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals. Your office, dorm, or home.

CARRIERS AND DRIVERS NEEDED

for morning delivery of Newspapers on campus and in Amherst.

Call John Riley at 584-7804 College News Service

Classifieds Special

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Classifieds — they work...trust us

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS!
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students 20¢ per word/day

All others 40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

MONDAY, SEPT. 8

Meeting — The UMass Outing Club will present a multi- media slide show and hold a general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Open house — Everywoman's Center, located in Wilder Hall, is hosting an Open House from 9 a.m.–4 p.m. Staff will be available to provide information about paid student positions, internships and volunteer opportunities for students and community women. Refreshments will be provided. All members of the campus and community are welcome.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 9

Discussion — "The Politics of Birth Control," a discussion about why many women can't obtain the family planning resources they need, and what you can do about it, will be held at 8 p.m. in Thompson Auditorium, room 102. Join fellow students and Peter H. Kostmayer, executive director of "Zero Population Growth."

Meeting — The Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance is holding its first info–social of the year at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 803. Come join us and find out what is happening on campus this semester, and then socialize with other interested students.

Meeting — Amnesty International, a human rights organization, will hold its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 101.

Meeting — Psi Chi, the National Honors Society in psychology will hold its first meeting at 5:30 p.m. in 204 Tobin. Members and non–members are welcome to come and see what we are about and share free pizza. If you are interested but cannot make this time, please call Melanie Bauman at 546–5881.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will hold its first meeting of the semester at 7 p.m. in Campus Center, room 165. Everyone is welcome. Bring your own work or someone else's or just come and listen. Call Tim at 546–0819 or Kaye at 548–8042.

NOTICES

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. Donations can be made Sept. 9–10 from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. and Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 4–5 and 8–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

Volunteer — The Programs Against Violence Against Women of the Everywoman's Center are now accepting applications from women who want to become volunteer counselors or educators. To join our fall 70–hour training for new volunteers, to learn more about issues of violence against women, and to make a difference in areas of sexual assault and relationship violence, please call 545–0883. The application deadline is Sept. 8, 1997. Bilingual women and women of color are strongly encouraged to apply.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Channel
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 UMATV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN/Headline News
25 BET
28 BET on Jazz
27 UCTV
28 The Learning Channel
29 TV Land
30 Comedy Central
32 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Cranberry

Live Music
Every Tuesday & Wednesday

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 8, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Planet Neighborhood (In Stereo)		Murphy Brown	Chicago Hope (R) (In Stereo)	News		Living on the Edge
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	Cosby (R)	Raymond	Cybill (R)	Murphy Brown	Chicago Hope (R) (In Stereo)	News		Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Cosby (R)	Raymond	Cybill (R)	Murphy Brown	Chicago Hope (R) (In Stereo)	News		Late Show
WGVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	'Survived a Disaster 2 (R)		NFL Football: Kansas City Chiefs at Oakland Raiders. (In Stereo Live)
WLVI	6		Full House	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	7th Heaven (R)		Buffy the Vampire Slayer		News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Sudden-Susan	"Perfect Body" (1997, Drama) Amy Jo Johnson, Brett Cullen.			News		Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	Good News	Sparks	News	Vibe	Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WVIT	9	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Sudden-Susan	Sudden-Susan	"Perfect Body" (1997, Drama) Amy Jo Johnson, Brett Cullen.			News		Tonight Show
WTIC	10	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Melrose Place		Ally McBeal "Pilot"		News	Coach		Babylon 5
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Sudden-Susan	"Perfect Body" (1997, Drama) Amy Jo Johnson, Brett Cullen.			News		Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Seinfeld	Ent. Tonight	I Survived a Disaster 2 (R)		NFL Football: Kansas City Chiefs at Oakland Raiders. (In Stereo Live)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld		In the House	Malcolm-Edda	Good News	Sparks	News	Real TV	TBA	M*A*S*H
WSBK	38	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Seinfeld	Med Abo, You	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	Good News	Sparks	News	Real TV	TBA	M*A*S*H
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	Biography: Duch Schultz		Poirot			Miss Marple "Sleeping Murder"	Law & Order
AAE	61	Quincy "Sulfed Be Thy Name"		Law & Order "Trust"		Biography: Duch Schultz		Poirot			Miss Marple "Sleeping Murder"	Law & Order
CNN	53	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today	Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	26	Brett Butler	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Politically Incorrect		Politically Incorrect		Brett Butler	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	48	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Sea Wings (R)		Wild Discovery: Sea of Grass		Destination Mars (R)			World's Greatest Stunts Part II	Wild Discovery: Sea of Grass
ESPN	50	Up Close	Sportscenter		NFL Prime Monday			Gymnastics: U.S. Championships.				Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	49	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"Murder or Memory?" (A Moment of Truth Movie" (1994, Drama)			Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	51	MTV Live	Viewers	Indie Outing	TBA	Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Road Rules	Daria	Oddville, MTV	Loveline
NICK	52	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Hey Arnold!	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days
SCIFI	55	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Amaz. Stories	Miss. Genesis	Sasquest DSV "Visions"		"TerrorVision" (1986, Horror)		Gene Grashom, Mary Woronov.		Amaz. Stories	Miss. Genesis
TLC	56	Furniture	Renovation	Homelitna (R)	Homelitna (R)	Extreme Machines (R)		Unexplained, Witches		Cyber Warriors (R)		Extreme Machines (R)
TNT	54	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		WCW Nitro (In Stereo Live)				WCW Nitro (R) (In Stereo)
USA	59	Renegade "The Hound"		Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger				World Wrestling Federation Monday Night Raw (In Stereo)		Silk Stalkings "Witness" (R)
HBO	60	(5:00) "Roxanne" (1987)		Body Doubles: Twin Exper.		"A Time to Kill" (1996, Drama) Sandra Bullock. (In Stereo)				Mr. Show		"Sidney Stones" (1997)
MAX	61	(4:45)		"Airplane! (In The Sky)" (1980) Robert Hays.		"Atlantic City" (1980, Drama) Burt Lancaster.				"Passenger 57" (1992) Wesley Snipes.		"Danger Zone"
SHOW	63	"Soul Survivors" (1996, Comedy-Drama) Ian McShane. (In Stereo)				Stargate SG-1 (R) (In Stereo)		"Alodge Dredd" (1995) Sylvester Stallone.		"Blood In...Blood Out: Bound by Honor" (1993)

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You can count on someone objecting today, but if you're prepared, you'll be able to circumvent problems and maintain high spirits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You can trust your friends to keep your counsel and never wrong you. Closeness and mutual respect are the watchwords of the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You will be challenged by circumstances today, and in the end you may prove that a positive attitude is your greatest strength.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You may be moody today, but no one is likely to be affected for long. Soon, you'll realize that there's no point in sulking!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may discover that two connected portions of an important message do not make sense. Something may have been lost in the translation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — It is up to you to keep things going at speed today. Some may wish to slow down, but you know the importance of maintaining a steady pace.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may have to follow someone else's seemingly arbitrary rules today, but you'll learn to adjust and roll with the punches.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You can avoid any kind of fight today simply by letting others know that you're going to do your best to stay out of their way.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Now is no time to intrude on the private affairs of a coworker. You may be concerned, but wait to offer help until you are asked.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Your organizational skills have never been your strongest assets, but today you may have to rely on them as never before. Do not be hasty!

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You have been wanting to make certain changes for some time, and today you should be able to turn over a new leaf with very little effort.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Sensitivity and generosity can make you a hero of sorts to many people who are looking to you for what they most need right now.

Quote of the Day

"The best mind-altering drug is the truth."

–Lily Tomlin

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Turkey Tetrazzini
Grilled Steak Sandwich

DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Spaghetti/Italian Sweet Sausage
Italian Tofu Balls & Sauce
Quarter Pound Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
American Chop Suey
Spaghetti/Tomato Sauce
Macaroni, Lentil & Tomatoes

DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Black-Eyed Peas
Pastabilities
Ravioli Alfredo

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

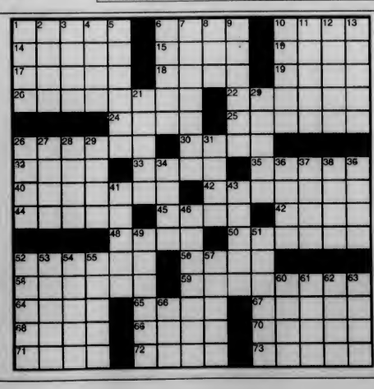
DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Spaghetti/Italian Sweet Sausage
Tomato Sauce

Berkshire
LUNCH
Turkey Tetrazzini
Hamburger on a Roll
Lentil Chili

DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Shrimp & Sausage Jambalaya
Penne with Tomatoes & Spinach
Pastabilities

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Casey Kane
Photo Technician	Thang Vo
Copy Editor	Tamar Carroll
Production Supervisor	JoJo Stone
Production Staff	Jaylyn Lombard, Jacalyn Burrows



ACROSS
1 "Vamoose!"
6 Served perfectly
10 Vipers
14 Subarctic forest
15 Medicine quantity
16 Bridge
17 Command
18 Demons
19 Arizona Indian
20 Cat, to a mouse
22 Polar region
24 — Major
25 Cause resentment
28 Hair ointment
30 Fight for two
32 NYSE alternative
33 Mimics
35 Jumped
40 Spot on a leopard
42 Shower item
44 Eucalyptus eater
45 Taj Mahal site
47 — of Capri
48 Warm-water shark
50 Arctic dwellings
52 Red quartz
56 H.H. Munro's pen name
58 Take a stand against
59 Happy sounds
64 Eye part
65 "Salaam Bombay!" director Mira —
67 Hollow stone
68 Pleasant
69 "New Yorker" cartoonist
70 Soviet founder
71 Toboggan
72 Poster, e.g.
73 Choice group

DOWN
1 Cease'
2 Mystery writer John Dickson —
3 Take the bus
4 Got older
5 Plunder
6 Tijuana goodbye
7 Good friend
8 Psychic power: abbr.
9 Want
10 Pale-faced
11 "Star Trek" name
12 Of the Vatican
13 Marsh bird
21 "Trick or —!"
23 Showy lily
26 Picnic spot
27 Melville novel
28 High plateau
29 Scott Hamilton maneuver
31 Old map inits.
34 Summit
36 Runner Zatopek
37 Lhasa —
38 Prince Charles' game
39 Foot parts
41 Makes less wild
43 Japanese poem
46 Gander's baby
49 Stadiums
51 Snicker
52 Connects
53 Spring month
54 Type of rack
55 Worked as a model
57 Tori's dad
60 Shoe part
61 Writer Morrison
62 Blue-pencil
63 Clair or Lalique
66 Onassis' nickname

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

I	N	L	A	W	T	B	S	P		A	L	A	D
R	I	T	A	T	A		O	E	I	L		D	U	N
I	N	N	E	R		R	A	B	A		I	L
S	A	D		M	I	C	K	E	Y	M	O	U	S	E
		M	A	T	C	H		P	O	I	S	E	S
A	P	A	C	H	E		S	K	E	I	N
F	E	R	N		S	A	T	I	N	S		A	Y	E
B	A	K	E	S		L	I	D		T	O	W	E	L
C	K	S		W	I	E	L	D	S		M	A	L	L
		D	A	N	C	E		T	I	N	K	L	E
S	E	S	A	M	E		M	A	R	I	E
A	R	C	H	I	P	E	L	A	G	O		N	A	B
U	R	A	I	L		H	I	R	A	M		O	I	S	E
D	E	L	T		L	I	M	A		F	A	N	T	I	E
	I	D	E	A		Y	E	A	S		D	E	G	A	S

9-8-97 © 1997, United Feature Syndicate

SPORTS WEEKEND

UM opens year at newly renovated Garber

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The first weekend of action on the new AstroTurf surface at Richard F. Garber Field brought mixed results for the Massachusetts field hockey team.

UM	8
Cal	1

The Minutewomen fell to Michigan State in the championship game of the UMass/Phoenix Invitational 3–2 Sunday, after shellacking California 8–1 in the preliminary round Saturday.

MSU	3
UM	2

UMass (1–1) started Sunday's championship strong, tallying the game's first goal on a hard shot from Erica Johnston with 14:09 remaining in the first half.

Freshman wing Kristen Schmidt crossed the ball from the far right sideline, drawing two defenders to the corner. Johnston, waiting in the circle, controlled the ball and fired a shot past MSU goalie Beth George.

The Spartans responded to tie the game on their second penalty corner of the afternoon. With 8:36 left before halftime, Rayna Hiscox drove home a shot that ripped past diving UMass goalie Zowie Tucker.

Hiscox doubled her day's goal total just over a minute later, when she took the ball in from Tucker's left side before pushing the score in near the far post.

"Michigan State played quite well," Tucker said. "And we might have put too much pressure on ourselves to play the way we did [Saturday]."

The Minutewomen had a chance to tie the game three minutes into the second half. But George stopped the initial hit on their penalty corner and the second attempt hit the crossbar.

Instead, it was Michigan State that converted first in the second period. At the 43:50 mark, Annie Berberich found the back of the UMass net during a scramble behind Tucker.

Vicky Browne cut MSU's edge to one goal with a tally off a UMass corner with just over 12 minutes left in regulation. A crisply executed pass sequence between Johnston and midfielder Kate Putnam gave Johnston the shot, but George was able to get in front of the ball. Catching the rebound, Browne knocked the ball through on George's right.

With a second goal to their credit, the Minutewomen found some of their missing intensity, but time was not on their side. On a penalty corner with two minutes on the clock, Johnston rifled a shot that went just wide of the Spartan cage, and UMass could not get close again.

"I asked them what the difference was in the last 15 minutes," Shea said. "And they said there was a sense of urgency. I told them they should feel that right at the beginning, but now they know the kind of emotion and urgency they need to have right from the start."

Despite the switch in the result over the weekend, the Minutewomen relished the first game experiences on the new AstroTurf at Garber Field.

"This is second to none," said Shea about the Minutewomen's new playing surface. "It changes the game."

Shea's players agreed with her assessment of the surface.

Johnston called the field "the best facility in the country," while Browne dubbed Garber "the best surface I've ever played on."

UMass had a much easier time during the preliminary round of the tournament on Saturday against California. Bolstered by four goals from Johnston, the Minutewomen cruised.

Courtney MacLean scored her first of the season and Christine Millbauer notched her first career goal with 16:39 remaining in the first half, on a scramble in front of the Cal cage. Johnston scored again before intermission to give the Minutewomen a commanding 5–0 lead.

With a solid lead firmly in hand, Shea was able to play every player except for her two back–up goaltenders.

Johnston, Millbauer and Browne all scored in the second half to up the UMass total.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Kate Putnam and the Massachusetts field hockey team couldn't nudge past Michigan State yesterday, losing 3–2 at Richard F. Garber Field.

Game put in perspective for U.K. Minutewomen

Massachusetts Field Hockey
Casey Kane

There was quite a bit of fanfare surrounding the first game on the new AstroTurf surface at Richard F. Garber Field when the Massachusetts and California field hockey teams began their game Saturday.

But one thing was not lost amidst the energy surrounding the anxiously anticipated the new season — that three of the members of the Minutewoman team were mourning the loss of their country's princess.

Goalie Zowie Tucker, midfielder Vicky Browne and assistant coach Hilary Rose put the beginning season butterflies on hold Saturday morning in order to watch Princess Diana's funeral.

Tucker, a native of Neath, South Wales, said her attention has been divided between her home and her school.

"Obviously we watched [the funeral] and it's been on our minds, but I don't think we can use that as an excuse," she said.

And the British contingent of Minutewomen did not let it become an excuse. On the day of Diana's burial, UMass easily defeated California, 8–1.

Browne, who hails from North Shields, England, said Britain "is at a standstill."

The emotion the three felt for Diana was evident as they talked about their country's loss.

"Diana was one of the greatest people in the world," Tucker said. "Obviously, princess of my country."

"She was one of the great ambassadors of our country," said Rose, a native of Bury St. Edmunds, England. "She'll never be replaced and that's the biggest loss. But you have to feel for her children more than anything else."

While the three British teammates have provided a support ladder for each other, each say the caring and understanding from their American counterparts has been important.

"They have been really good," Rose said. "When it happened, we had a day off but we trained the next day and they were very supportive. They were upset, because she meant a lot to Americans as well."

Meanwhile, the action on the field has been a break for the three.

"Hockey is an outlet for us," Tucker said. "We can leave things at the gate for a while until we finish the game."

The game provided some relief to Browne and Tucker, who could lose their emotion on the field. But things are different for Rose, who is relegated to the sidelines as an assistant coach.

"It's a little bit more difficult for me because I can't kick the little white ball anymore," Rose said. "But the game provides a getaway."

Out of respect for Diana, the three decided together to wear black ribbons for the weekend long

Turn to GAME, page 6

The renovation of Garber pushes soccer to Totman

Massachusetts Woman's Soccer
Jorma Kansanen

If you would like an analogy on the switch from the old stomping grounds of Richard F. Garber Field to Totman Field for the home games of the No. 15 Massachusetts women's soccer team, then here's one: The New York Knicks moving from Madison Square Garden to Continental Airlines Arena, home of the New Jersey Nets. And, Jimmy Hoffa would have some company under the Meadowlands parking lot for the dolt who made that decision.

As I sat in the bleachers before the UMass' 2–1 win over Michigan last Friday afternoon, looking at three–quarters of the finely manicured pitch (because that's all you can see from the stands), I just shook my head in consternation.

Why does a team that has the finest tradition of any sport on campus (six Final Four appearances, and 14 NCAA Tournament appearances to begin with), have to play on a glorified high school field?

Well, the obvious reason is the remanufacturing of Garber Field, with the field surface being switched from astrodirt to AstroTurf.

That move has been a long time coming, and a big salute goes to the field hockey and lacrosse programs, because they have received what they deserve — "the best facility in the country," as field hockey coach Patty Shea said.

But, where is the soccer–softball complex that has been rumored about since I arrived at UMass in 1993? Yes, I should have graduated by now, but that's not the point here.

For Minutewomen alums like Michigan coach Debbie Belkin, Garber was the place where the team's history was born, but the past is the past.

"I love (Garber)," Belkin said. "(Garber) has history for me, but UMass had a great crowd today, so I don't think it will be any different crowd–wise."

Unfamiliarity is the main problem right now for coach Jim Rudy, but a good showing from his team and the home crowd made any problems worthwhile.

"We were very nervous today, and we have not played here, so this is not yet a home field to us, although the mystique of playing at home still seems to be with us, and there was a very nice crowd today," Rudy said.

Plaudits do go to Dennis O'Neil and his crew for developing a beautiful pitch at Totman Field, that looked more like a fairway at Augusta National than anything else.

Also, if you ask for reasons from the Athletic Department, they will state Totman is only being used on an "interim" basis. In the interim, though, Totman is barely suitable for the quality of play — and the quality of attendance — for a Div. I soccer program.

So, Totman will have to be dealt with, and a 2–1 win over Michigan in the home opener for UMass helps immensely. For some of the players, they're taking the good with the bad, and junior midfielder Robin Smith likens the game to the game at Augusta National.

"The field is great," Smith said. "This field compared to (Garber) is like a carpet. We don't have to go out there after every game or practice and replace divots."

The dimensions of the field are not up to NCAA standards, so the game itself has to be altered. Even the rock of the UMass defense, junior Amanda Thompson, was rolling through the middle, with the flanks being tied up with traffic.

"I like the surface a lot better, but it is a little narrow," Thompson said, sarcastically. "But, the atmosphere is still great, and the fans came out despite the location. I was real glad to see that."

And that is the key factor — the home crowd. The Fanatic 40, and a dose of local youth soccer, saved the day, with attendance reaching 1,037.

But, will the home crowd save the game itself? No analogy will humor that fact.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

The UMass Media Relations staff is hosting a meeting for all interested newcomers Monday, Sept. 8 at 5 p.m. in Boyden Building, room 249. The Media Relations department is the public relations wing of the athletic department. If you have any questions, please call the Media Relations office at 545–2439.

Massachusetts beats Michigan in nailbiter, 2–1

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Hail to the victors valiant, hail to the conquering heroes...

After a unenigmatic first half by the No. 15 Massachusetts women's soccer team last Friday afternoon, the No. 22 Michigan squad should have been ready to warm up its legendary anthem.

Massachusetts	2
Michigan	1

Outplaying the tentative and obviously nervous UMass side in every phase of the match, the Wolverines world was colored in the Maize and Blue of Michigan with a 1–0 halftime lead.

In the end, though, Michigan's collective ego was black and blue, with the Minutewomen (2–0) coming out with a strong second half for the 2–1 win at Totman Field. A see–saw second frame that saw momentum switch with every airball won in midfield, and every missed pass on either flank, UMass took the game away from the Wolverines with 3:18 left in the match.

Junior midfielder Robin Smith and freshman forward Kara Green burnt an overcommiting Michigan defense, with Smith collecting a loose ball and floating a pass upfield to Green. The ball hit the freshman from Poughkeepsie, N.Y. in her stride, and Green, splitting the Wolverine defense, nailed a right–footed shot which kissed the post right of junior goalkeeper Jessica Jones for the game winner.

For UMass coach Jim Rudy, Green and sophomore Emma Kurowski combined with his defense of seniors Amy Burrill and Erica Iverson and junior Amanda Thompson to make the winning difference in the second half.

"[Green] battled like a wildcat out there," Rudy said. "With her and Emma picking up their pace in the second half, that really helped us do what we did in the midfield.

"We loaded the midfield, and forced them to go over the top to make their game long. Then, we hoped like heck that our three [defenders] back there could run everything down, and they did."

After a lackluster first half when the Minutewomen could not gel in any shape or fashion, Smith and Green combined to snatch victory out of the jaws of the dreaded draw.

"She was breaking through the backline, and all I saw was the chip over the defender's head," Smith said, about her game–winning assist. "It happened to be the first ball I hit right all game, so it worked... like that was all we needed to win the game."

Green bounced back from a goal–less effort in their season opening 4–0 win over Fairfield to notch her first goal for the Minutewomen, and the biggest goal of her career to date.

"I remember the Fairfield game when I had a breakaway, and I put it up in the air into the goalie's hands," Green said. "I remembered what coach Rudy said 'to look to the corner and low' and that's what I did."

At the 14:42 mark of the match, Michigan was able to credit their fast start by depositing a fluky sort of goal past senior keeper Danielle Dion.

Sophomore Amber Berendowsky sent a cross to fellow classmate Emily Schmitt, and her shot from the top of the penalty box took a weird bounce in front of Dion, eventually sailing over her head for the 1–0 lead.

The goal might have been a sign of things to come, but after a failed penalty kick by junior Jessica Limauro at the 41:49 mark, and a diving save to start the second half, Dion was in the zone, and so were her teammates.

"I don't know what I did on that shot [at the beginning of the second half]," Dion said. "The first goal took a funny bounce, and the next thing I knew it went off my head and went in. It was tough to swallow.

"We weren't 'us' in the first half, and we weren't the team that played against Fairfield. In the second half, we played like we should've, and the team definitely stepped it up."

At the 46:18 mark, the new and improved Minutewomen took advantage of some breaks of their own. Green made a run up the right flank, with freshman defender Erin Gilbart committing the foul in the penalty box. Kurowski scored her third goal of the season on the resulting penalty shot to tie the game at 1–1, with Green getting one of her own for the comeback win.

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

Junior forward Sophie Lecot and the Massachusetts women's soccer team beat Michigan 2–1 on Friday in their first game at Totman Field since 1981.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 5 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Tuesday, September 9, 1997

That's got to hurt

Senior forward Mike Butler was held scoreless in the UMass men's soccer teams' 1–1 draw with Siena College last Saturday (see Sports, p. 10).

"Our Dream" comes true

Haitian group Boukon Ginen releases new album. Check out our review inside (see Arts & Living, page 6).

WORLD

Volcanic dome collapse threatens Montserrat

OLVESTON, Montserrat (AP) — Scientists warned residents to stay in the northern tip of Montserrat yesterday, saying an "explosive event" from the island's smoldering volcano seemed all but imminent.

Rapid buildup of lava and pressure inside the volcano may cause the dome to collapse "at any time," the Montserrat Volcano Observatory said.

A collapse could send avalanches of super-heated ash and rock — or pyroclastic flows — as far as the central coastal town of Salem, it said. Previous eruptions have rained volcanic pebbles and ash on the town, which lies on the northern edge of the evacuated zone. The observatory said volcanic activity had increased to a "dangerous level" and urged all residents to head north "immediately."

A series of small pyroclastic flows raced down the volcano's western flank early yesterday to within a half mile of Salem, according to scientist Stephen Sparks.

NATION

Two officers charged in N.Y.C. torture case

NEW YORK (AP) — Two police officers accused of sexually brutalizing a Haitian immigrant with a wooden stick were hit with new charges yesterday that the attack was motivated by bias.

Justin Volpe, 25, and Charles Schwarz, 31, pleaded innocent to the previous charges along with a newly added one of aggravated harassment based on "race, color, religion or national origin." Volpe, Schwarz and two other officers charged with beating and tormenting Abner Louima are white; Louima is black.

Louima, 30, was allegedly attacked Aug. 9 in a station-house bathroom after he was arrested outside a Brooklyn nightclub on a disorderly conduct charge. He said officers repeatedly called him "nigger" as they rammed a wooden stick — believed to be the handle of a toilet plunger — into his rectum.

Volpe, Schwarz and Officers Thomas Bruder, 31, and Thomas Wiese, 33, are also accused of punching, kicking and beating Louima with a radio.

Louima remains hospitalized with bowel injuries and is suing the city for $55 million.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wed.	Thurs.
HIGH: 70 LOW: 50	HIGH: 70 LOW: 50	HIGH: 75 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

I've got the textbook blues

Senior Robin Bartlett contemplates the purchase of a new textbook at the Textbook Annex yesterday afternoon.

Administration boosts efforts to raise retention of freshman, ALANA

By Victoria Groves
Collegian Staff

With the fall semester just beginning, the provost's office is hard at work with continuing efforts in recruitment and retention of University of Massachusetts students.

Joseph C. Marshall is entering his first semester at UMass as assistant vice chancellor for enrollment services, and is working in conjunction with other members of the provost's staff.

"We have identified that an area we need to look at over the next year is student retention. One of my responsibilities is to make connections with all people I can across campus," Marshall said. "Students obviously have to have a lot of input on how we attack retention."

According to Norman Aitken, deputy provost and dean of undergraduate education, retention efforts have been underway for a number of years and involve both administrative units.

"Student affairs has the responsibility of recruiting students, and academic affairs becomes involved once the students are here because we are responsible for their education," Aitken said. "We work together all the time across boundaries."

Marshall has submitted a preliminary proposal to create a "survival handbook" which would serve as a resource guide for all students on campus. It would contain information on University functions, names and phone numbers of administrative offices, and a listing of all resources available on campus.

University President William Bulger's office has made money available to UMass campuses on a competitive basis, and a request has been made for funding to make the survival handbook available quickly.

"I'm going to get the book out there one way or another. It will be developed by students for students," Marshall said.

According to Marshall, in a best case scenario, the handbook would be distributed to all students this semester, but if the funding isn't there, the primary goal is to get it distributed to all freshmen.

"They are the group that tends to suffer from more dropouts, because they are new students," Marshall said.

Another area that has been receiving attention is ALANA (Asian, Latin American, African American, Native American) student retention.

Turn to ALANA page 2

Student–run People's Market opens for fall semester

By Julie Siegal
Collegian Staff

People's Market, a student run business, opened yesterday despite being understaffed and despite students' lack of knowledge of the opening day. However, the day proved quite profitable, according to managers.

Flyers about the store's opening were posted around campus, but most students had no prior knowledge the market was open, said manager Justine Bramble, anthropology and wildlife and fisheries biology major.

"We started off slow." Bramble said. "But it's been really busy today, considering a lot of people didn't know [the store was open]."

Manager Amber Vecchione, a junior nutrition major, was proud of yesterday's sales results.

"It went really well today," Vecchione said. "We still have a lot of work to do, but for sales, we did really well."

A lot of changes need to be done at the market, however, Vecchione said.

Prices have yet to be posted, she said, and other administrative work needs to be performed.

People's Market is also accepting applications for employment from full–time undergraduate students. The market currently employs approximately 11 students, and is looking to fill about 15 more positions.

People's Market is a great place for business majors to work and gain management experience, according to Bramble.

"The market has changed my life completely," Bramble said. "Even though I'm an anthropology major, I found out from the market that I want to work in the business end of it."

People's Market is making some changes this year, but changes that will benefit the store, according to its managers.

In approximately three weeks, the market will accept credit cards, and on Wednesday the new health and beauty aids section will be unveiled.

New bath and hair brushes, soaps, lotions and some cosmetics will be available, in addition to the alternative, natural snacks the market is known for.

The managers of People's Market also spent time this summer researching other local natural markets to better their selection of wares such as more convenient, lunchable items.

The dream for the managers at People's Market is to be open for business seven days a week in addition to summer session.

That dream is feasible, Bramble said, if the market moves its location to the former UMass Credit Union space in the Student Union.

"The potential to move is there, but we don't yet have a number on how much electricity will cost," Bramble said.

No matter where the location or what the hours, students are still pleased with People's Market.

"It's the best quality food and the cheapest," said Jamie Tosches, a junior natural resource studies major.

"I also like the fact that it's run by students."

Senior psychology and sociology double–major Anneliese Kissling enjoys all aspects the market has to offer.

"It's so good and cheap and tasty," Kissling said. "It's also close and plays good music."

Capitol hill debate ensues over welfare job protection

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The mantra of welfare reform is work. But do welfare recipients in job-training slots deserve the same benefits and rights as other workers?

It's a debate that will stretch into the fall as the Clinton administration argues that work is work, while states and Republicans warn that such blanket protections could be tremendously costly.

As the rhetoric heats up, some worry the matter will become too politicized to find an acceptable compromise.

There's no question that a welfare recipient who gets hired for a regular private sector job is entitled to all labor protections. At issue is work either created by the government for those who cannot find work on their own, or special so-called "workfare" slots offered by community service groups and private employers for people still collecting welfare.

Congressional Republicans promise they will continue their fight to exempt this "workfare" from a host of labor laws, a battle they lost over the summer.

The Clinton administration touched off the debate in the spring by ruling that these workers are covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act, entitling them to the minimum wage and job-safety protections.

That suggested the full complement of labor laws would apply as well, including everything from anti-discrimination laws to family and medical leave. It also would include tax laws, requiring employers to pay into the Social Security system.

Republicans want to pass legislation overturning the Labor Department's ruling, hoping governors will persuade President Clinton to sign it. Until then, the Labor ruling stands.

Governors and their Capitol Hill allies argue that the ruling will ultimately hurt welfare recipients.

They say states will be unable to afford enough workfare slots, and recipients will not have the chance to learn job skills, leaving them unprepared when their welfare runs out.

"The Clinton administration, working with the unions and the bureaucrats, is trying to undermine and destroy welfare reform," House Speaker Newt Gingrich said last month.

He promised to make the dispute "a major part" of the fall legislative agenda.

The Clinton administration and its allies respond that treating people on welfare like other workers is a matter of simple fairness.

"We aren't asking for any special rights," said Diane Garcia of Racine, Wis., a former welfare recipient who helped lead a rally yesterday on Capitol Hill. "Moving into a work situation has to be a way out of humiliation — not an expanded version of it." The debate began with whether people on welfare should be paid the minimum wage, but there is little dispute on that point now. After resisting, House leaders accepted the administration's ruling that states must pay those in workfare at least $5.15 per hour, though they may include the value of cash welfare and food stamps when calculating their "wages."

Now, congressional Republicans are trying to frame the debate around other, less popular implications of calling workfare work. They suggest workfare workers might have to be paid the much higher prevailing wage for some jobs. And they argue that private employers won't hire welfare recipients with few skills or experience if they have to follow a lot of labor laws.

States also worry they'll have to pay Social Security and unemployment compensation taxes and reconfigure their systems to issue a paycheck rather than a benefit check.

The administration is willing to consider exempting workfare from tax laws, said Bruce Reed, Clinton's top domestic policy aide. These are "legitimate concerns," Reed said, but they are "not what conservative Republicans are beating the drums about right now."

Indeed, the debate shows a philosophical divide.

Recent Hobart Lane stabbing incident discussed during Select Board meeting

By Beth McCarthy
Collegian Staff

Several issues, including this past weekend's Hobart Lane stabbing incidents, a proposal for a commuter bike path and other minor points, were raised in last night's Amherst Select Board Meeting.

The tired issue of needing to control University of Massachusetts students' weekend recreations was again raised due to the recent stabbings that occurred on Hobart Lane.

Holding up a copy of the Daily Hampshire Gazette, Hill Boss, Amherst Select Board member, asked what was going to be done in the immediate future to ensure "the security of life, limb and property" of Amherst residents and "those students who are law abiding."

Boss proposed that between last night's meeting and the next one, in approximately two weeks, "we all do some serious thinking about some stop–gap measures that could be taken" to ensure that another incident like Hobart Lane does not occur again.

"What I'm afraid of, frankly, is that you're going to have some fatality before the [Police] Grant Committee can come up with some kind of recommendation," Boss said. "I don't want dead bodies on the lawn of Hobart Lane until the Grant can come up with a solution."

On a more positive beat, the Amherst/UMass Connector Project proposed to adjust the Norwottuck Rail Trail so that it would connect to University Drive and "encourage commuting to the University with non–motorized methods," according Arthur Swift, Chair of the Norwottuck Rail Trail Advisory Committee.

In addition, a proposal to adjust University Drive itself was raised.

According to the project engineer, this adjustment is two– fold in that the section between Route 9 and Amity Street could be widened about 4–feet to include a bike lane and the section between Amity Street and

Turn to BOARD, page 2

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

The Amherst Select Board listens to a presentation on the propose bike lane on University Drive on Monday evening at the Bangs Community Center.

■ ALANA

continued from page 1

Marshall has proposed a tracking database so ALANA progress within the University can be monitored.

Ben Rodriguez, Director of the Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP) also spoke of many programs to prepare minority students for college. But he was also careful to point out that BCP is available for all students who need support service.

"We're doing a lot of things to try to keep our students here. But this is everybody's program. We're here for everyone who has needs," Rodriguez said.

The Talent Advancement Program (TAP) and the Patterson First Year Program are also aimed at recruiting and retaining freshmen. Both are situated in Southwest Residential Area and mesh both dorm and academic life.

"The idea is that students need to become part of an accepted peer group in order to do well academically," Aitken said. "Right now we are evaluating the Patterson Program.

"Last year was the first year so we'll look and see how many students are back [for their sophomore year] at the end of add/drop."

The Patterson Program is a two-year pilot program, and therefore it has no base funding. Depending on its success, more money will be allotted to keep it running. This semester, another program aimed at freshmen will be running in Gorman Residence Hall.

Overcrowded ferry drowns off Hatian coast, 400 dead

By Michael Norton
Associated Press

MONTROUIS, Haiti — An overcrowded ferry capsized and sank off Haiti's central coast yesterday, killing as many as 400 people who were trapped inside the vessel, survivors said. One report said an equal number of people swam safely to shore.

Thousands of Haitians wailed in grief on the pebbled beach of this fishing village as U.N. divers and a half-dozen fishing boats searched 200 yards offshore for victims. U.S. Coast Guard and U.N. helicopters hovered above the spot where the ferry, The Pride of Gonave, disappeared in 75 feet of water.

"The boat was overloaded. When it maneuvered to disembark, everybody ran to one side and the boat tipped over," said survivor Benjamin Joseph, a 38-year-old civil engineer.

The ferry had no life jackets and some doors were bolted shut, prevented many passengers from escaping, Joseph and other survivors said.

The ferry sank early this morning in the Saint Marc Channel off Montrouis, 50 miles northwest of Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital. It had left Anse-a-Galets on Gonave Island, about 12 miles to the southwest.

Haitian coast guard crews pulled 24 survivors and four bodies from the water, said U.S. Coast Guard Lt. Steve Banks in Port-au-Prince. "We've gone from a rescue operation to a recovery operation," he said.

There were conflicting reports about the numbers of victims and survivors.

Haitian police and coast guard officials said about 700 people were on the ferry. An estimated 400 people made it to shore, leading Haitian authorities to believe as many as 300 people had perished, Banks said.

But Joseph and other survivors said they believed about 400 people went down with the ferry and that 60 people, at most, made it to shore.

The 60-foot vessel was certified to carry only 80 passengers, Banks said. Its captain told police he had 250 passengers, Banks said. The captain, whose name was not released, was in custody while police investigated.

As it reached Montrouis, the ferry turned so passengers could transfer to rowboats to go ashore. Passengers rushed to one side of the ship, causing it to capsize. Joseph said he scrambled from the ferry's hold when the air conditioning stopped functioning and the ship started tilting.

"We felt it was unsteady," said survivor Guyva Merilus, 28, a radio reporter who escaped from the second deck.

Each day, hundreds of Haitians crowd onto similar ferries, many of which are motor-assisted sailboats.

■ board

continued from page 1

Massachusetts Avenue simply be "striped" for bikers.

Swift noted that this proposal is "still in the conceptual alignment phase."

"What we're looking for at this point is a green light from the town and the University to continue with the project," Swift said.

The Select Board's major concern was what their monetary commitment would be at this time.

Before even addressing this question, Swift stressed that this project was still in its infant stage and at this point all they were seeking was either a go-ahead to continue this project or a definitive no.

However, Swift estimated that the project would cost roughly $600,000 which would mean a sum of about $30,000 coming from the town.

Another concern was that the University be obligated to match what the town contributes.

According to Swift, that was already planned and will also be addressed when the board meets with University officials.

Minor issues that arose included the change in name of the restaurant El Acuna to Walker's Grill and also approve of a Live Entertainment License for the establishment.

Also, a motion was approved to postpone making a decision on renewing the liquor license of Mykono's Greek restaurant, which is positively no longer in business.

Correction

Yesterday's story entitled "Picket code restricts protest at UMass" contained incorrect information regarding the Graduate Employment Organization's (GEO) stance on the new picketing code. GEO has not already responded to the code with flyers, though a written response will be issued in the future. Additionally, GEO is not planning an "organized response," though they say a response from students in general is likely. The Collegian regrets the error.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Ahhh...

A relaxed John Chase enjoys a free moment before his Biology 100 class yesterday afternoon.

Collegian Drivers Needed... Inquire within.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

$109.00!!
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
PRORATED

Get student discounted rates!
Subscribe to:

The Boston Globe

Fall Term Subscription 9/8/97 to 12/12/97	7 Days MON-SUN...$37.65 6 Days MON-SAT...$22.80 5 Days MON-FRI...$19.50 Sunday ONLY... $14.85	Full Year Subscription 9/8/97 to 5/14/97	7 Days MON-SUN...$80.70 6 Days MON-SAT...$48.30 5 Days MON-FRI...$41.10 Sunday ONLY... $32.40

The New York Times

Fall Term Subscription 9/8/97 to 12/12/97	7 Days MON-SUN...$66.80 6 Days MON-SAT...$30.80 5 Days MON-FRI...$25.60 Sunday ONLY... $36.00	Full Year Subscription 9/8/97 to 5/14/97	7 Days MON-SUN...$139.80 6 Days MON-SAT...$64.80 5 Days MON-FRI...$54.40 Sunday ONLY... $75.00

To get The Boston Globe and The New York Times delivered to your dorm or office:

Please mail payment to:
John Riley
College News Service
Campus Center Hotel, UMASS Amherst
Amherst, MA 01035

Looking for a part-time job... work delivering papers.
Please call John Riley at 413-584-7804

"Want a Greater Sense of Community on Campus?

Join Other Students, Faculty and Staff at a Conference on

"Building Communities at UMass: Breaking Barriers, Making Connections"

Friday, September 19, 1997
8:30 a.m.- 3:30p.m.
Campus Center 163

Preregistration is REQUIRED for the morning session and lunch

Afternoon sessions are open to the campus

For registration and more information, contact Chris Piquette, Office of Human Relations, at piquette@admin.umass.edu or 545-0851.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Members Wanted...

Sean Lawrence, left, and Donnie Roberts, right, hang flyers for the recently formed Pride and Heritage of Color Club outside of Whitmore.

Education tops Clinton's agenda

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

GAMBRILLS, Md. — President Clinton opened his fall agenda yesterday with a school house pitch for national tests to measure education standards. But a key Republican congressman called the president's proposal "a waste of taxpayers' money."

"As every American farmer knows, you can keep weighing a hog but it won't get any fatter," said Rep. Bill Goodling, (R-Pa.), chairman of the House Education and Workforce Committee. "Let's help our children, not test them again."

The president, on his first day back to work after a 21-day vacation, flew by helicopter to speak at Four Seasons Elementary School in this community 20 miles south of Baltimore. A room full of shy third-, fourth- and fifth-grade students listened respectfully to his call for national, standardized reading tests for fourth-graders and math exams for eighth-graders.

"This should be something that has nothing to do with party politics," the president said. "I think every American — Republicans, Democrats, independents — should favor high standards." He said that national testing "will tell us whether our children are learning what they need to do."

National testing is just one of the education battles between Clinton and Congress. Over administration objections, Republicans also are pushing a "school choice" proposal giving tax breaks to parents who send their children to private schools. The program was dropped from the recent budget agreement at Clinton's insistence, but Republicans vow to bring it up again.

Clinton and Republicans both think that education is the kind of family-friendly issue where they can boost their standing with voters. But their approaches are at odds.

Goodling is pushing an amendment that would bar the administration from spending money on new testing. He said the federal government already spends $540 million on various education tests.

"I strongly support higher academic standards but I strongly oppose new federal tests," Goodling said. The White House said it was seeking a compromise but would not go along with Goodling's amendment.

"It's not going to become law one way or another," presidential spokesman Mike McCurry said. "But at the moment, we're working quietly to try to fashion something that the president can sign. But he won't sign the unsignable."

Moving quickly to assert himself in policy debates, the president will give a speech today outlining his priorities for the fall. Tomorrow he will unveil legislation empowering the president to negotiate new trade agreements with foreign governments.

The president also faces a decision on how to proceed with the proposed tobacco deal between cigarette makers and the states. An administration review of the settlement already is two months past its original due date. McCurry said Clinton would not act on the matter this week but probably would announce his stand early next week.

The spokesman also said that Clinton would step into the fight for the embattled nomination of former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld to be ambassador to Mexico. Sen. Jesse Helms, (R-N.C.), the conservative chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has refused to hold hearings on the nomination, saying the politically moderate Weld has disqualified himself for the post by his past support for the medical use of marijuana and for needle-exchange programs as a means of preventing AIDS.

Albright intervenes in Arab-Israeli conflict

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Facing her toughest challenge as secretary of state, Madeleine Albright heads to the Middle East today to try to reverse the dangerous skid in Arab-Israeli relations. The week-long trip could be the Clinton administration's last chance in a long while to ease the "crisis of confidence" that has stalemated negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians amid a devastating swirl of terrorist attacks.

The odds are long. But a senior State Department official noted yesterday the alternatives to not trying: "More violence, more victims, lost hope and the extremists win."

Albright intends to take a tough line with Yasser Arafat, the Palestinian leader, but also with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Her message to Arafat: Step up arrests of suspected terrorists, dismantle their groups, fulfill promises to enhance Israel's security.

Arafat has tried to maintain unity with radical elements, even the Hamas guerrillas who say they were behind several bloody attacks on Israel.

Still, Albright will press him to take tough actions, risky as they may be to Arafat himself. In the U.S. view the terrorism is aimed at the Palestinian Authority as well as at Israel.

Her message to Netanyahu: Concerns for Israel's safety are no excuse to sidetrack indefinitely the commitments dovish Labor governments made to the Palestinian Authority in the 1993 and 1995 Oslo accords for phased withdrawals on the West Bank.

Asked if this meant Albright was pushing the old formula of land for peace — that Israel swap territory for peace accords — the State Department official replied tersely: "Yes."

Netanyahu has virtually ruled out giving up anything else until the violence ends.

The diplomatic trick Albright will attempt is to convince Arafat and Netanyahu to trust each other.

Neither appears even remotely so inclined.

And yet, as Albright said in an Aug. 6 speech, "Neither party can return to an earlier time... With our help Israelis and Palestinians can move steadily towards a better future, or they can remain bogged down in mutual suspicion and recrimination." Just before Albright met with President Clinton yesterday before her departure, White House spokesman Mike McCurry insisted her trip was "not about pressuring the parties."

"That is not to say that sometimes discussions are not candid, are not robust," McCurry said, "but at the same time it is not wise for someone attempting to facilitate a dialogue to play the role of a heavy hand."

It is Albright's first trip to the region since assuming control of the State Department nearly eight months ago, and she will touch all the familiar bases: Israel, the West Bank, Syria, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and possibly Lebanon.

After four years as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Albright is familiar with the region's issues. But as her spokesman, James P. Rubin, recently said, she's "a realist, not a magician."

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Ahead at 6...

Channel 22 News interviews Kimberly Raffa for a story on sexually transmitted disease yesterday afternoon.

ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ

Come See for Yourself...

•Sisterhood•Scholarship•Leadership•
•Friendship•Philanthropy•Career Networking•
•Lifetime Membership•Lasting Memories•

Sorority Open Rush

Sept. 10 - 18th

All University Women are Welcome

For Individual Dates & Times
Pick Up a Flyer at:
Greek Affairs, 227 Whitmore
or Contact Liz at 549-8025

ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

In defense of protest

In November 1986, it was Munson Hall, not Goodell. Back then, a group of college students led by full-time activist Abbie Hoffman and Amy Carter, the former president's daughter, occupied University offices in Munson to protest the CIA recruiting students on campus. Eventually, the demonstrators were dragged out of the building by police and arrested.

Five months later, they went on trial in Northampton. The defendants argued the necessity defense, which states one may commit a lesser crime to prevent a greater crime from occurring, in that case the unlawful recruiting by the CIA.

"A politically mute student body is no threat to the authoritarian rule of the University. These guidelines are an attempt by the University to cut out the students' political tongue."

James Shaw

In the end, all 15 defendants, including Hoffman and Carter, were acquitted by a middle-aged, middle-class Hampshire County jury which was convinced that the protesters did the right thing by breaking the law in pursuit of justice.

Perhaps if the 200 students who occupied Goodell Building last spring to protest the University's institutionally racist policies had been arrested, they, too, could have argued they were attempting to right greater wrongs. The legal argument might have been trickier, but plausible.

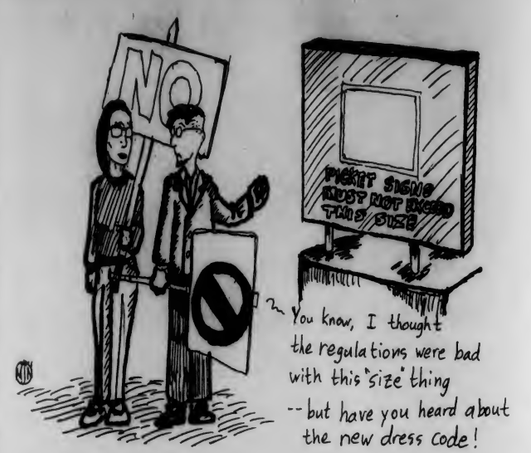
In August, Amherst campus Chancellor David K. Scott mailed to thousands of people the "Guidelines for Responses to Demonstrations on University Property," apparently a response to the protest at Goodell. In the document, the University lays out the "rules" for protest demonstrations. Assembly and speech are allowed, but only within narrow limits. However, University President William M. Bulger and the chancellors of the five UMass campuses, who wrote the guidelines, have placed a blind adherence to rules above the practice of democracy.

The guidelines say demonstrations must be held in "appropriate public forums" and "take place during the building's normal operating hours." The guidelines forbid "material disruption of or interference with instructional activities, other university business and campus events." In other words, the University is complaining that student demonstrations are disruptive to the University. Of course, because what are more disruptive to the University are its institutionally racist policies.

The University specifies what the students can and cannot do, but is vague about how it will respond if those rules are broken. The University threatens students with expulsion or lesser sanctions "as may be deemed appropriate by the University," but it is unclear what the University considers appropriate punishment.

These guidelines are threatening and unnecessary. Why shouldn't protests occur at the place of oppression, and continue until the wrongs are righted? Democracy need not be scheduled. Let there be no doubt that the students protesting at Goodell were practicing democracy in its purest form. Democracy, more than rules of government, is a philosophy in which there is equality and a fair distribution of power. At time, people must take drastic action to preserve the values of democracy when everyday courses of action have failed.

In the case of the Goodell Takeover, students had negotiated at length with the University to no avail. The University left the students with little choice. The students occupied Goodell and won important and considerable concessions from the administration. The students realized organized action most effectively brings about change. Now so does the University — and now they are trying to cripple the rights of students to protect their own illegitimate power base, and to keep the students from claiming their fair share of power.



A politically mute student body is no threat to the authoritarian rule of the University. These guidelines are an attempt by the University to cut out the students' political tongue.

The University has framed its guidelines within the juvenile notion that this is a "matter of law and University policy." The folk notion is that rules are made to be broken, but the principle is more complex. Rules are not naturally conceived and implemented, but are human creations, and thus subject to change.

While society needs laws, they must be scrutinized constantly to preserve democracy. If upon inspection, laws are shown to be democratically invalid, then they are morally impotent and may be ethically violated with civil disobedience.

Now the focus is on "campus procedures," little more than a euphemism for "next time we're calling the cops." Indeed, we attempt to reflect democracy in law and rely upon the police and the threat of punishment to uphold those laws. If the law really existed to uphold democracy, the police would have stormed Goodell and Whitmore long ago and removed from power those who administer the University's institutionally racist policies.

James Shaw is a UMass graduate student.

Focus on Race

Next week, the Collegian Editorial page will publish a week-long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.
Editorial can be submitted by e-mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545-1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement.

Missing Mahar

It seems like a lifetime ago, but it has been only 12 short months since I attended my first class here at UMass. I remember that morning well. I had Psych 100 at 9:05 a.m., and I didn't crawl out of bed until 8:59. I threw on the first pair of jeans I came across, took some Excedrin to relieve the first of many hangovers, and left John Adams Residence Hall without even checking to see where I was going. When I reached Mass. Ave., I grabbed the first wise-looking student I could find and begged him to tell me where the building abbreviated MAH could be located. He smiled, pointed up the street and told me to have fun in Mahar.

I thanked him and ran to class. Arriving 10 minutes late, I was set on hiding in the back so that the professor would not remember me. I spotted a few empty seats in the last row and made my way there as quickly and quietly as possible. I thought I was safe. I had made it to class, things could only get better now. But I didn't know Mahar.

As I tried to slip past the people at the end of the row, the squeaking began. The lifting of seats that hadn't been oiled in over 20 years made enough noise to have the professor ask the back of the room to please settle down. The class halted and everyone turned around until I had found a seat.

My first day (remember, I was still naive enough to think anyone cared), and I was sure that 500 people were laughing at me. I took out my notebook and began to scribble that first day stuff from the board. That was when I felt the spring.

At first I thought it was just an uncomfortable chair, and that if I slid around a little I would find a more relaxing position. But after a few minutes, I realized this spring had it out for me. No amount of adjusting would do it. I couldn't sit there. So after evaluating my situation for a few minutes longer, I decided to slide over to the next empty seat.

I rose slowly, my chair barely letting out a whimper. I stepped over the people's legs so that they wouldn't have to get up and make noise themselves. I reached my destination, dropped my book bag and quickly flopped down in the seat I had spotted. Then I found out why no one else had sat there. The hinge at the back of the chair had come off, and when I sat down, it continued swinging forward, leaving me sitting on the floor.

For the first time since leaving home four days prior, I was absolutely sure of something. This time, there were 500 people laughing at me. Even the professor had to pause and giggle (and this man never giggled) before going on with his lecture. I grabbed my stuff, went back to the chair with the busted spring, and thought about how many girls had just witnessed my little stunt.

Now you may think this seemingly pointless tale left me permanently scarred. But in fact, it left me with a great fondness for Mahar Auditorium. For those of you who suffered through classes there, you must admit that you grew somewhat attached to the place after awhile. Whether it was the chairs covered in sand paper, the Stone Willy's Pizza sized desks or the garbled microphones, Mahar had something for everyone.

And for me, it had something else. It not only reminded me of how embarrassing my first day of classes was, but it also brought back that incredible feeling you got that first week of freshman year. Being out on your own, away from mom and dad, and more scared than you'll ever want to admit. From meeting new people, to washing your own clothes, it was a time when everyone faces new joys and pressures. A magical sensation that you will never experience again, and of which Mahar became a frequent reminder for me.

There was something special about that old building that so many people don't realize. In order to love to hate Mahar the way this campus did, we had to have loved it a little in the first place.

So when I attended the first classes of the year this past Wednesday, I have to admit I was saddened when one of my stops took me to the newly renovated Mahar Auditorium. Two million dollars had turned this once powerful reminder that comfort and education didn't necessarily go hand in hand, into a cozy classroom where the education process will no longer be impeded by the furniture.

However, something just didn't seem right to me. I think anyone who was ever sentenced to a semester in the old auditorium missed out. And I, for one (perhaps not the only one), am left always missing Mahar.

Jay Bachman is a UMass student.

"It not only reminded me of how embarrassing my first day of classes was, but it also brought back that incredible feeling you got that first week of freshman year. Being out on your own, away from Mom and Dad, and more scared than you'll ever want to admit. tongue."

Jay Bachman

The Editorial/Opinion desk is now hiring!

There is one Editorial Associate position open. The job involves helping with all tasks from typing to designing layout, and gives you the opportunity to write for the newspaper as well as tons of practical experience.

This position pays five hours/week at the regular student rate. Stop by the Collegian office and fill out an application. Applications will be accepted until Wednesday, Sept. 10.

For more information, contact Daniel Bodah at 545-1491 or letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu.

Letters to the editor

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the Editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by e-mail to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor-in-Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangasirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prentes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Boukan Ginen's latest a must

Tickell a worthy and expressive musician in her own right

Boukan Ginen dig deep into Haiti's musical tradition on new album.

by Daniel Bodah

Fire from Africa — in Haitian Creole, the words are Boukan Ginen, and do they ever scorch. Politics and rhythm are inextricably interwoven on the band's latest Stateside release, Rev An Nou, from the consistently-solid world music label Xenophile.

Founded by former members of well-known Haitian groovers Boukman Eksperyans, Boukan Ginen has roots that go deep into the tumultuous island's musical traditions, the mizik rasin.

Melding white-hot electric guitar solos with rhythms that carry the overwhelming and deeply spiritual pulse of transplanted African religion and culture, this massive 10- person ensemble carries the traditional into the modern age with its feet still hopping and hips still swinging.

Haiti has perhaps suffered more from the United States' foreign policies than any other nation in the Western Hemisphere. The relatively tiny island has been occupied repeatedly by U.S. military forces as the Monroe Doctrine unfolds to its grim consequences. Colonial struggles for control of Haiti began when Columbus reached here at the end of the 15th century and haven't ended yet.

When listening to Rev An Nou, it might be easy to ignore or forget all this if you don't understand Haitian Creole — but that would be a mistake. How else can you fully experience the depths of entrancing rhythms on this disc? Or appreciate the power of the joyful melodies? Rev An Nou — "our dream" — is an excellent album. A.

Kathryn Tickell's strong album of British folk and first U.S. release, The Gathering, introduces her Northumbrian piping and fiddling to a deservedly-wider audience.

Every year in Cork, Ireland folk performers from around the British Isles come together for a huge festival. Organizers have surprises for them in store — the performers are paired into duets, often with other musicians who they've never met.

It is after this festival that The Gathering is named. The spontaneous, impromptu feel the title suggests comes through in the music, but could have been restrained a little less by the production of the disc. Nonetheless, Tickell steps forth as a worthy and expressive musician. Definitely strong enough to stand on her own, so please ignore any references you hear to Sting having "discovered" her. B.

Daniel Bodah is a Collegian columnist.

Sept. schedule for galleries

Amherst College — Currently on display at Amherst College's Mead Art Museum is "Mingei: The Fold Art of Twentieth-Century Japan" and "Eighteenth-Century British Portraits and Furniture." "The Cult of Lord Jeff" opens on Sept. 25. Opening reception is 4-6 p.m. on Sept. 25. Museum hours are Monday-Friday 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m.; Saturday-Sunday 1-5 p.m. 542-2335

Augusta Savage Gallery — Located in the New Africa House in the Central Residential Area at the University of Massachusetts. "CHICAGO: Memories and Fantasies, The Malcolm X Series" by African-American painter Robert Henry Graham opens Sept. 24 and runs through Oct. 21. The opening reception is Sept. 24, 5-7 p.m. Gallery hours are Monday & Tuesday 1-7 p.m. Wednesday-Friday 1-5 p.m. 545-5177

Hampden Gallery — Located in the Southwest Residential Area. "New Works in Stone" opens Sept. 16 with reception 5-7 p.m. Exhibition features works by Donald R. Blanton. Gallery hours are Monday-Friday 3-7 p.m.; Sunday 2-5 p.m. 545-4196

Hampshire College — "Wake Up Little Susie" and "Warnings" will be on display in the Main Gallery, located in the Harold F. Johnson Library. The exhibition will run through Sept. 27. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.; Saturday-Sunday 12-4:30 p.m.

Herter Gallery — Located at the University of Massachusetts near Haigis Mall. Currently on display is "Foundations: The Class of 2000." The exhibition features works in two and three dimensional media by first and second year students in the Art Dept. Closing reception and awards ceremony is Sept. 25. Gallery Hours are Monday- Friday 11 a.m.-4 p.m. 545-0976.

Mount Holyoke College — The Mount Holyoke Art Museum will feature "How to Remember? Designing the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum" through Dec. 14. The exhibit will show photographs, site plans, sketchbooks, architectural drawings and models. Also on display are "Italian Paintings and Modern Sculpture form the Collections" and "Looking Inward: Contemporary Haitian Painting." Gallery hours are Tuesday-Friday 11 a.m.-5 p.m.; Saturday-Sunday 1-5 p.m. 538-2245

Smith College — Currently on display are "Prints by Abraham Bosse." Exhibition will run in the Print Room at the Museum of Art until Oct. 1. Gallery hours are Tuesday, Friday & Saturday 9:30 a.m.- 4 p.m.; Wednesday & Sunday noon- 4 p.m.; Thursday noon- 8 p.m. 585-2770.

Student Union — Located in the Student Union Building at the University of Massachusetts. The Student Union Visual and Performing Arts Space will feature "Over the Edge" by Lydia Nettler through Oct. 3. Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Friday 10 a.m.- 3 p.m. 545-0792

Wheeler Gallery — Located in the Central Residential Area at the University of Massachusetts. "Apprentices" opens Sept. 16 at 5-7 p.m. Gallery hours are Monday- Thursday 4-8 p.m.; Sunday 2-5 p.m. 545-0680

University Gallery — Located in the Fine Arts Center at the University of Massachusetts. Currently on display is "Seven + Six" and "Lois Beurman Torf Print Collection." Hours are: Tues-Fri 11-4:30 p.m.; Sat & Sun 2-5 p.m.

"Warnings" will be on display at the Main Gallery at Hampshire College until Sept. 27.

Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House

COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD

WATCH FOR MORE INFORMATION IN UPCOMING COLLEGIANS

Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House

Drivers Wanted for Morning Paper Delivery

Have no classes before 10 am??

DELIVER FOR THE COLLEGIAN*
* must supply your own car

If interested, call 545-3500 or stop by the Collegian at 113 Campus Center Basement

must be available between 7:00am to 10:00am monday - friday

Rafter's head in clouds after Open

By Bob Greene
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Patrick Rafter has a smile that won't go away. "I never thought I would win a Slam," he said yesterday. "I always dreamed of it, but I never thought I would actually win one."

But the 24-year-old Australian did just that, capturing the U.S. Open on Sunday by defeating Britain's big-serving Greg Rusedski 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5 with a clinical demonstration of serve-and-volley tennis.

Then, in the company of several Australian champions, including Tony Roche, John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall, Rafter celebrated until the wee hours. Among them, the Aussie contingent has 19 Grand Slam tournament titles.

Other former Aussie players at the party included Wally Masur, Brad Drewett, Darren Cahill and Paul McNamee.

"It ended with a great cake fight about 2 o'clock in the morning," Rafter said.

Until this year, Rafter had been in the pack of early-round losers, traversing the world in search of a victory and computer ranking points. He finished the past two years ranked No. 68 and No. 62 while battling injuries. His only other title came at Manchester, England, in 1994.

He had reached five finals this year before the U.S. Open. But with Sunday's victory, he shot up to No. 3 in the world behind Pete Sampras and his semifinal victim, Michael Chang. Rafter is the first Australian in the top 10 since Pat Cash reached No. 10 in 1988. He's also the first men's singles winner from Australia since Newcombe in 1973.

"I started making changes at the beginning of the year," Rafter said. "Less off-court work, a change in the gym program, more on-court work. It was a lot of hard work. I felt so good within myself. I felt so much stronger this year."

He cites an interview after he reached the final at St. Polten, Austria, as the key to his changed outlook.

"They asked me if I felt I could win the French Open and I said no," Rafter said. "All of a sudden, I'm in the semifinals. I said to myself, the next time they ask me that question, I won't say no. I have a 1 in 128 chance, which is more positive than no." Roche has been coaching Rafter, with Newcombe helping out occasionally.

"These guys have so much to offer," Rafter said. "Before Sunday's match, I asked Rochey how should I be feeling, playing a Grand Slam final. And he said, 'I'm not the right person to ask. I only won one of them. I've lost a dozen of them. Ask Newk'."

Newcombe's words? "Knuckle down and just be yourself." That he did, controlling the net and thus the points with acrobatic volleys and phenomenal anticipation.

"I felt pretty good the first two sets," Rafter said. "As soon as I got a break in the fourth set, I felt I was real close." Rafter will spend some time at his house in Bermuda before leading the Australian team against the United States in Davis Cup play in Washington next week.

Newcombe, the Australian Davis Cup coach, already has given Rafter some advice.

"Newk said, 'Just because you're No. 3 in the world and you've won the U.S. Open, you don't have to win every tournament. Don't put that kind of pressure on yourself'," Rafter said.

Rafter admits the Australians will have a tough time beating the Americans, who counter with the world's top two players, Sampras and Chang. Then he chided the American players for not always playing Davis Cup.

"We have a proud tradition," he said of Australian players. "Whenever I get a call to represent my country, I'm there. It's a shame the other guys don't feel the same way. There's nothing better than winning for your country."

After a brief pause, Rafter added: "To win the U.S. Open is pretty bloody good, though."

Realignment? MLB fans in a quandry

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball fans support realignment by a 2-to-1 margin, even though many have reservations about losing a century of tradition that distinguished the American and National leagues, a nationwide Associated Press poll shows.

Fifty-four percent of those polled favored the plan that would switch as many as 15 major league teams between the AL and NL, with 27 percent opposed to reshuffling the leagues geographically.

Yet, 48 percent said ending the traditional distinction between NL and AL teams makes them like the plan less.

And just 12 percent said blurring the AL/NL distinction is one of the reasons they favor the plan, which owners will consider when they meet in Atlanta from Sept. 16-18.

Owners say geographic realignment would eliminate most games in which teams play out of their time zones, which creates late-night broadcasts on the East Coast and early-evening telecasts on the West Coast. But most fans said they don't care when they see games on television.

Just 20 percent said the TV factor makes them more supportive of realignment, 22 percent said it makes them less supportive and 57 percent said it makes no difference.

The poll of 686 adults who said they were baseball fans or somewhat of a fan was taken by telephone from Aug. 22-31 by ICR of Media, Pa.

Results have a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3.7 percentage points.

Many fans said they supported realignment because it would help create regional rivalries.

Under the radical plan being pushed by acting commissioner Bud Selig and realignment committee chairman John Harrington, the New York Mets and Yankees would play in the same division and face each other many times.

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox also would play in the same division, as would the Los Angeles Dodgers and Anaheim Angels.

Other pairings would include San Francisco Giants-Oakland Athletics, Montreal Expos-Toronto Blue Jays, Kansas City Royals-St. Louis Cardinals, Florida Marlins-Tampa Bay Devil Rays and Texas Rangers-Houston Astros.

Forty percent of the fans said they like the plan more because of its geographic pairings. Seventeen percent said the pairings made them less supportive and 42 percent said it made no difference.

Up to seven National League teams are threatening to block the plan. That opposition has forced Selig and Harrington to consider less drastic proposals, in which fewer than 10 teams would shift.

Interleague play, which last week completed its first season, was a big hit with fans.

Each team played 15 or 16 regular-season games this year against opponents from the other league.

Thirty-five percent of fans said there should be more interleague games each year and 9 percent said there should be fewer. Forty-seven percent said the total should remain the same.

1940s music, dancing is swinging back

By Joann Loviglio
Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Ditch the tie-dye and nose rings and grab your zoot suit, Generation X. The 1940's are back.

Twentysomethings are hitting the dance floor at an ever-increasing number of swing clubs popping up around the country.

It's a trend that's been around for years in New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles, but even more modern-day hep cats have been jumping on the bandwagon after getting a taste of swing culture in recent music and films. Swing-oriented band Squirrel Nut Zippers have been on the Billboard charts for several months and the film "Swingers" was a box office hit.

College students are learning to Lindy hop, jitterbug, West Coast swing, East Coast swing and Carolina shag. On the Internet, swing sites abound and include everything from the hottest dance steps to a lexicon of "swinglistics" to articles on Cab Calloway and Count Basie.

"The swing crowd in the Northeast has never been known to be a young crowd, so it's a change to start getting people in their 20s," said Boston-based swing teacher Aurelie Tye.

Jason Marton, 23, and his girlfriend Amy Quigley, 21, are part of that change. They started swing dancing about one year ago and "loved it from the very beginning," Marton said.

"We watched a lot of the old movies, where the people on the screen make it look easy but they have all those crazy moves," he said. "It's challenging to get the moves down but it's so much fun."

They've tried several different swing styles but have developed a preference for the raucous Lindy hop.

"It's fun to see people flying over each other's shoulders," Marton said.

The fast-tempo, high-energy Lindy hop took hold in 1920's Harlem and other forms — from the simpler moves of East Coast swing to the sultry and smooth West Coast swing — evolved throughout the country.

Swing remained popular until the early 1950's when rock and roll began to catch on.

Bill Tenanes, of Westhampton, Mass. a teacher and historian of swing, said swing's acrobatics and energy is one of the reasons younger people are getting involved.

"You have extreme sports like snowboarding; this is extreme dancing. It seems kind of dangerous, and that's what they're attracted to," he said. "People are finding they want something with a little more culture, a little more zip, a little more heat."

While teaching the Lindy to University of Massachusetts students preparing for a formal dance, Tenanes found they wanted to learn "aerials" — flashy, up-in-the-air, down-on-the-floor moves many people connect with swing dancing. At the dance, "they went nuts," he said.

"The band was playing the fox trot — a serene dance — but bodies were flying around, gowns were twisting up, people were sliding under people's legs. And not to the beat of the music.

"I thought, 'Look what we've wrought! We're never going to get hired again'," he said with a laugh.

Unlike the anything-goes dancing of today, you can't fake swing. While some improvisation is allowed, there are basic steps that must be learned.

Think you can't jump and jive without looking squaresville? Don't fret, daddio.

That's where people like Sarah Sloane come in. She teaches swing to couples and singles in Providence, where she said the scene is small but growing.

"The clubs in this area are starting to wake up," she said Would-be swingers who enroll in her classes range in age from 12 to 90, but there has been an increase in 20- and 30-year-olds.

"There's more and more younger people coming in," Sloane said. "The first class of this summer we had 23 people; it used to be we'd get around eight or 10.

"It's not air-conditioned, but they're still coming." The Call — a Providence twentysomething hot spot better known for its live rock and alternative music — is transformed every Thursday into a 1940's dance hall, with hundreds of young people showing up to swing.

"It's been getting a little crowded now but that's OK," swing teacher Ed Slattery said with a laugh.

Slattery, of Seekonk, Mass., thinks swing dancing has caught on because young people are looking for ways to connect.

"With couple dancing, once people get over the fear and embarrassment they find it's a lot of fun," he said. "It's a good way to relate to the other sex in a casual way with defined rules of conduct."

Because many of the dances are alcohol- and smoke-free, they also attract people who aren't into the bar scene, Tenanes said. "Swing enables you to take part in the music," Slattery said. "It's exuberant."

The clothes also are a big attraction for swingers, which Pawtucket resident and swing dancer Nancy Bouchard has turned into a fledgling business. She sews custom-made zoot suits in wild colors and plaids.

"They're pretty outrageous," said Bouchard, whose company, Reet Pleats, has been receiving orders from Chicago to Canada and hopes to expand to mail order soon.

Marton says he and Quigley like to get dressed to the nines when they go out to cut a rug because it makes swinging more fun. "Everyone was so dapper in the old days, with the zoot suits and the flashy clothing," he said. "It's nice to see people doing it again, whether they're senior citizens or people in their 20s."

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...

SHAB

Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care

Come join the Student Health Advisory Board

Informational meetings:
Wed. Sept 10 & 24, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304

For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 577-5181

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139 4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0080

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

Don't just read it,
BE IT!
Come on down to the Campus Center basement to see how you can contribute to New England's largest college daily.
We're always looking for new and interested writers to help carry on the tradition of excellence, the tradition known as The Collegian.

Ben's
We: Sell new and used vehicles. Repair foriegn and domestic vehicles.
11 Bridge St • Sunderland, MA
Tel (413) 665- 3344 Fax (413) 665-3966

Peter ORPHANOS
Guitar Instruction
with a Patient and Supportive Teacher
Sign up Early, Spaces fill Quickly
1-2 College Credits Available
Call Today 1-888-908-8898 Toll Free

Munchie Madness 3-6PM MONDAY-FRIDAY
Potato Skins Supreme 7.50 3.75
Nachos 5.95 2.98
Gorgonzola Buffalo Potatoes 7.25 3.63
1/2 PRICE!
Judies
DOWNTOWN AMHERST
51 N. Pleasant Street
253-3491
http://virtual-valley.com/judies

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
ART ON AMHERST TOWN COMMON SUPPLIES
• EXCELLENT QUALITY INVENTION
• REPUTABLE ART & TECHNICAL SUPPLIES
• TOP QUALITY FINE ART POSTERS
• POSTERS MOUNTED & FRAMED
• SPECIAL ORDERS ENCOURAGED
413•253•5592
65 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON

LOOKING FOR A GREAT CLASS?
TRY THIS ONE! AFRICAN FILM
COURSE: French 353-O Schedule numbers: Lect. 169578 Disc. 169585
INSTRUCTOR: Professor Patrick Mensah
*NO PREREQUISITES
*OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS (All majors, All years)
*GENED: ATD (ARTS/DIVERSITY)
Come check out this dynamic course! Films are in French and native African languages, with subtitles in English. Course taught in English.
For more information call 5-6548 or 5-2882.
Time: Tuesday/Thursday 4pm (see Schedule Book for details)
Location: Orchard Hill, Emily Dickinson House, Room 104
SIGN UP NOW!!!

The Boltwood Project-
Your life will NEVER be the same!
>> FALL 1997 <<
Recruitment Nights:
6:00PM (note: Prompt Starting Time)
September 8-Campus Center Auditorium
September 9-Student Union Ballroom
September 10-Campus Center Auditorium
Possibility of Earning Credits

take Kaplan and get into the right school.
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
• Highly trained, expert teachers who know the tests inside and out.
• Personalized, computerized study plans, tailored to your individual needs.
• Proven methods, guaranteed to raise your score.
CRUSH THE EXAM!
the leader in test prep and admissions counseling
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
www.kaplan.com

■ men's soccer

continued from page 10

was a coming out party of sorts for freshmen Seth Lilburn, who was able to break free twice for one-on-one goals against the Redmen's keeper. Lilburn's goals helped to solidify the victory for the Minutemen, and gave him three goals and two assists for the season... Butler continues his assault on the UMass record books. He is currently fifth all-time in career points (69), ninth in goals (25), and is tied for fifth in assists (19)... The youth of the Minutemen is playing very well for Koch. The freshmen group of Lilburn, Gavin Hewitt, Matt Christy and Mike Purcell have amassed a total of 8 of the team's 18 points (5 goals, 8 assists) this season.

■ baseball

continued from page 10

production — both home and away — coupled with a strong arm and great range in right field make him my MVP, and my hero.

N.L. Most Overrated Player: I can't stand this guy. Vinny Castilla wins the N.L. Hideki by a landslide. He hits all his home runs in Coors Field and that's about all he does anyway. I don't even want to talk about him anymore. My second least-favorite player, Jeff Blauser runs a close second.

N.L. Most Under-rated Player: He's been an All-Star, everyone knows who he is, yet he doesn't get the due he deserves. Yes, he's that good. Just like me. Mark Grace is the quintessential, quiet, unassuming superstar. Nobody appreciates that he is a superstar. Oh, everyone knows he's good. The man is closing in on being Hall of Fame quality, and he's hardly mentioned outside of the Windy City. I love that man.

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Open open to past and present

U.S. Open
Bryan Schwartzman

Ivan Lendl once said "it is the greatest facility of it's kind in the world."

Martina Hingis and Patrick Rafter were not the only winners at this years' U.S. Open. The Arthur Ashe Jr. Tennis stadium and the renovated National Tennis Center breezed through it's first U.S. Open with high praise. The newly constructed stadium, along with better seating in the outer courts, a larger food court area, and fountains once again flowing at the nearby Unisphere have all combined to create a tennis acropolis that will hopefully house the championships for many years to come.

The opening night dedication for the stadium featured a speech by Arthur Ashe's widow Jeanie Ashe in which she encouraged the United States Tennis Association to continue her husband's mission to bring tennis to America's youth and inner cities. The dedication was fueled by some controversy because New York's Mayor, Rudolf Giuliani refused to attend in protest of a deal that was struck between his predecessor David Dinkins, and the USTA.

The deal places a limit on the number of planes that can fly over the Tennis Center during match play each day, and requires the city to pay a heavy fine for each plane that exceeds the limit. While this may be a pretty ridiculous deal, it was a deal that was made before the mayor took office, and it ensures that the U.S. Open will remain in New York.

Guiliani, by not attending the dedication, slighted not only his predecessor, but the game of tennis and the memory of Arthur Ashe. Besides the re-routed planes fly over northern Queens (if any of you called me and wondered what that noise was) and not over Gracie Mansion, where the mayor sleeps soundly.

The other great event which took place on opening night was the Parade of Champions, a gathering of all the living mens' and womens' U.S. Singles champions and U.S. Open champions. What a thrill it was to see so many great champions in one place, in tribute to the sport of tennis. The generations were represented, from Don Budge and Rod Laver to Chris Evert and Gabriela Sabatini — it was a gathering of tennis champions, it was a gathering of stars.

Notably absent from the ceremonies were former world No. 1 and 1988 U.S. Open Champion Mats Wilander, and 1994 champion Andre Agassi. Wilander was probably off meditating or playing with his rock band, but Andre Agassi could not escape controversy, just at the time when he is trying to reboost his image and his ranking. While in contrast Germany's Boris Becker and Steffi Graf both flew in for the event even though they were not competing in this years' Open. Agassi did apologize for his absence saying that "it was my loss," and he did perform solidly before losing to eventual champion Patrick Rafter.

Martina Hingis has obviously cemented her place as world No. 1; while Patrick Rafter played the tennis of his life, revitalizing a tradition of serve and volley Australian tennis that goes back to players such as Tony Roche and John Newcomb.

Yet there were other stories, most notably Venus Williams, who finally lived up to all the hype surrounding her by reaching the finals, and one has to think that her power and athleticism will be trouble for Hingis in the future. As for Monica Seles, unfortunatly she did not make the finals for a third straight year. (The intensity with which Seles played before her stabbing would have been too much for Hingis, but we'll never know.)

Greg Rusedski showed tremendous heart coming back from two sets to one to beat Jonas Bjorkman in the semis, and forcing a fourth set against Rafter. Of course it dosn't hurt when he can hit a 143 mph ace, and a 146 mph fault. Hopefully, Rusedski was able to provide a small lift for his adopted country of Great Britain on this sad occasion for that nation.

And we could not end a wrap up of this year's Open without discussing the match of the tournament, Peter Korda's 5th set tie-break win over 4-time champion Pete Sampras. Korda, who reached the finals of the French Open in 1992, has had a career plagued with injuries and has never had the reputation of being mentally tough.

Yet, on this day he hit more winners and was determined than the worlds best player, and that is what makes tennis so exciting. So, the only bad news is that we have to wait a whole year for next years' Open, the best tennis tournament in the world.

Bryan Schwartzman is a Collegian columnist.

How about them Cards?

By Denne H. Freeman
Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — The Dallas Cowboys broke down like an old race horse against the Arizona Cardinals and they're not sure why.

"It's not just the offensive line, it was everybody," quarterback Troy Aikman said during yesterday's post mortem. "I know there were some things I didn't read."

The Cardinals blitzed the Cowboys dizzy as they rallied from a 15-point deficit to win 25-22 in overtime Sunday night. Aikman was sacked three times, losing 24 yards.

"When you lose like that it's frustrating," Aikman said. "Arizona did a nice job of mixing things up. ...We'll have to look at the films to determine exactly what happened."

The heat seemed to bother the Cowboys — who held training camp under a blazing Austin sun — much more than it did Arizona. Running back Emmitt Smith, who bruised some ribs but still rushed for 132 yards, said the Cowboys weren't drinking enough water.

"It's not about how we trained in Austin. It was about fluids in the body," Smith said. "The offensive line got tired and it was the first time I've ever seen Michael Irvin start cramping up."

Three Cowboys had intravenous transfusions during the game, including defensive lineman Chad Hennings, who scored a touchdown on a fumble return but later got dizzy. Defensive back Charlie Williams and tight end Eric Bjornson also had IVs during the game. Wide receiver Anthony Miller played only two downs before a hamstring tightened, the same problem he had at practice on Thursday. The Dallas offense missed his ability to stretch the defense like he did in the 37-7 season-opening win over Pittsburgh.

"It hurt us to have Anthony out," Aikman said. "Our offense is still going to be much better than it was last year. We have a much better group."

Smith was still irritated that he couldn't get his ribs X-rayed in the fourth quarter so he could get back into the game.

"We waited down there 10 or 15 minutes for somebody to come with a key," Smith said. "We waited, waited, waited and waited for somebody to unlock the door. Finally, we just told them to forget it. In our stadium we always have somebody around to unlock the doors."

Smith rushed to the sidelines during the overtime but was never used. His understudy, Sherman Williams, lost a fumble that Arizona converted into the winning field goal. X-rays taken of Smith's ribs after the game were negative.

"My ribs are bruised and we'll have to see how it goes the next few days," Smith said. "It's been a long time since we've gotten offensive chunks of yardage like that. We're going to have a much better offense than last year. Last year is last year. All the mistakes we made can be corrected."

Smith was irritated that he got called for an unsportsmanlike penalty for taking his helmet off after a Dallas touchdown was called back for a holding penalty.

"I thought you had to be the individual who scored a touchdown for that rule to count," Smith said. "It's crazy. That rule can be interpreted in so many ways. It's a ridiculous rule."

Dallas coach Barry Switzer said the Cowboys got what they deserved.

"We beat ourselves," Switzer said. "They tried to give the game to us and we wouldn't take it. Now, we have to do like Green Bay is doing this week and file the game away."

Young's head needs a rest; QB's concussion a question

By Dennis Georgatos
Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Concerned concussion-prone Steve Young could be one hit away from being driven into retirement, the San Francisco 49ers took a cautious approach to his playing status yesterday, saying there's a chance he may get another week off.

"That certainly will be something that we will talk about to the doctors," coach Steve Mariucci said. "Will another week minimize [risks] even more?

"I'm going to ask that question, so I can't give you an answer until I hear from the doctors."

Mariucci did say there was a possibility the 35-year-old Young, who has had three concussions over his last 12 games, would resume playing next Sunday against New Orleans.

He said more would be known about his possible return tomorrow.

Young's agent, Leigh Steinberg, said Friday that another concussion would trigger a serious look at retirement for Young, a two-time NFL MVP and a five-time passing champion who led the 49ers to their fifth Super Bowl title in 1994.

Young, who sustained his latest concussion when he was kneed in the head by Hardy Nickerson during San Francisco's season-opening 13-6 loss at Tampa Bay, sat out Sunday's 15-12 win at St. Louis on the recommendation of his neurologist, Dr. Joseph Lacy.

He visited Lacy yesterday and went over the results of a brain scan taken last Thursday. The scan found no abnormalities but Young was scheduled to see a neurosurgeon for a second opinion.

"The neurologist has met with Steve a couple different times and feels that he's OK to go," Mariucci said. "He wants another test, another opinion to verify what he finds.

"We want to be right. We want to do the right thing so I guess we're taking extra precautions."

There are concerns that repeated concussions can cause permanent brain damage.

On his show on KNBR radio, Young said he would listen to the doctors and abide by Mariucci's decision as far as his return to the field. He also made clear he wanted to play again.

"The three concussions, and I've talked to a lot of people and they're fluke shots," Young said. "It's not like something that happens every day.

"But pretty soon, a fluke turns into something normal if it keeps happening. So, I think you just play and hope that this kind of thing doesn't keep coming up."

Mariucci did not rule out starting rookie Jim Druckenmiller for a second straight week and having Young as his backup. Reserve quarterback Jeff Brohm has a broken bone in his passing hand and remains questionable this week.

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

I got my eye on you
Senior defender Amy Burrill and the No. 14 Minutewomen will start their A-10 schedule at 3:30 today against URI at Totman Field.

Fisk still a free agent

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON (AP) — The first time Carlton Fisk became a free agent, a half-dozen teams showered him with offers before the Chicago White Sox gave him millions of dollars and a home for the rest of his career.

Four years after he retired, the stakes are even higher. A probable first-ballot Hall of Famer, Fisk will have to choose whether his cap in Cooperstown sports a Boston "B" or one of the many logos worn by the White Sox during his time there. And that is making him feel like a free agent all over again.

"A little bit." Fisk conceded yesterday before he was inducted into the Red Sox Hall of Fame. On Sunday, the White Sox will retire Fisk's No. 72, the teams announced their honors two weeks apart during the summer.

"Both teams are recognizing a lifetime of dedication to the game," he said. "[But] I didn't just wait around the last four years for this. I really didn't need to have people give me a lifetime achievement award."

Fisk said it was too soon to decide what hat he will wear into the Hall's halls, considering he isn't eligible for induction at Cooperstown until 1999.

But he said everything from his career will be taken into account: The fact that he played more games in Chicago and set the record for games caught there; the fact that he came up through the Red Sox system; and the fact that his greatest moment — one of the greatest moments in baseball, really — took place in a Boston uniform.

"Make no mistake about it, I have thought about it," he said, "but the decision hasn't been made in my mind."

The 1972 AL rookie of the year, Fisk played with the Red Sox until 1980, when then-GM Haywood Sullivan missed a deadline to mail Fisk a contract and he was declared a free agent. An embittered Fisk signed with Chicago and played there until the White Sox released him in '93, again with hard feelings on both sides.

He hit 376 career home runs — a record 351 as a catcher — and caught more games (2,226) than anyone else, ever. He was only the third catcher to hit at least 300 home runs, score 1,000 runs and drive in 1,000 runs, the others were Yogi Berra and Johnny Bench, both Hall of Famers.

But Fisk will always be remembered for his arm-waving, World Series-saving home run in the 12th inning of Boston's Game 6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Although the Red Sox lost Game 7 and the title, Fisk became a hero throughout New England and the video remains one of the sport's lasting images.

"Everybody here still considers him a Red Sox player," said former general manager and Red Sox Hall of Fame organizer Lou Gorman, noting that Fisk will also receive a special "Great Moment" honor for his World Series homer.

Get Higher.

ZUU
downtown Amherst

EXPANDED STATE OF THE ART MULTILEVEL FITNESS CENTER
ATTENTION CLIMBERS! THE TREAD WALL IS HERE
•Cardio Theater
•New Recumbent Bikes
•Over 10 Treadmills
•Gravitron
•Precor EFX
COMING SOON: New Entrance & More Parking
THE CLUB
Tennis and Fitness Center
659 Amherst Rd Sunderland 549-3638

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Regency Hairstylists
189 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526
JDK

Join UMass Men's Crew!
A winning tradition since 1871
No prior rowing experience necessary
Please come to informational meeting:
Tuesday, September 9, 1997 at 7pm
Campus Center Room 174

Questions??? Call Crew Offices at 545-0487

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Cheap Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union, Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

AUTO FOR SALE

1987 Mazda 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

85 Chrysler LeBaron mint condition, A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo, power windows and locks. 95,000 miles. $700 or B/O. Call Bruce 256-1215

Nissan Maxima 85 StationWagon All Powers, music system optional. Best offer. Call 546-2002. Ask for Z.

HONDA CIVIC '90 3 dr, hatch, 4 speed, manual, mileage: 87,100. Excellent condition. Call after 5:30 pm. at 256-3433.

EMPLOYMENT

Drivers Wanted Car needed. Apply in person at Pinocchio's Pizza. 30 Boltwood Walk.

EMPLOYMENT

Kai Chi Restaurant Drivers and Waitstaff Wanted. Part-Time. Apply within. Route 9, 335 Russell St., Hadley. 586-2774

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221

Jobs For The Environment
Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule, $50-$75/Day. Call Terri 256-6434

Cooks Wanted
Experience a plus but not necessary. Apply immediately in person. Cutty's Food and Spirits 55 University Drive. 549-5700

UMass Athletic Development- Event Staff wanted for Athletic Fund Events throughout the 1997-98 athletic year. Must be 21+. For further information respond to 308 Mullins, or call 545-9672.

Mother's Helper Wanted 10-15 hrs. per week. Please call 549-7788

EMPLOYMENT

Care Providar Needed Monday thru Friday 8:30-5:30. Two children. Amherst home. Good pay. Nice family. Own car. Love for children. Non-smoking. Call evenings. Leave voice mail message for Dave. Press 1. 256-6006

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

Full-Time Day Delivery or Kitchen Help Wanted 30-40 hrs/week. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Drivers and Kitchen Help Must be able to work 30 hours per week. Flexible hours. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Part-Time Administrative Assistant
Clerical position in small Amherst office of Spanish study abroad program. Located on bus route. Requirements: data entry, computer skills, and excellent grammar/spelling skills. Knowledge of Spanish a plus. Approximately 20 hours/week; afternoons preferred. Competitive salary. Send letter and resume to: CC-CS, 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314

FOR RENT

4 Bedroom House Northampton, near stores but country location. No pets. $950+. Skibiski Realtors. 584-3428

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

2 Tap Keg System 4-Sale Call James 549-7598

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings, Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

MAC IIsi 15" color monitor, modem, laser printer. $600 or best offer. 256-3472.

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Amherst Tues. and Thurs. Call (413)732-8817

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. Lessons may be taken for course credit. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

LOST

Keys Lost at Haigis Mall on Sat. 6th Copper clip with black cord attached to key ring. 5-7 keys incl. dorm key reward offered, call the Collegian at 5-3500 if found.

MISCELLANEOUS

FREE T-SHIRT + $1000
Credit Card fundraisers for fraternities, sororities & groups. Any campus organization can raise up to $1000 by earning a whopping $5.00/VISA application. Call 1-800-932-0528 ext. 65. Qualified callers receive FREE T-SHIRT.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT!
Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at (603)889-0686

SERVICES

COMPUTER SERVICES
Mac Magic
Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant.
Alvin C. Whaley (413)584-7904
Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals.
Your office, dorm, or home.

SERVICES

CARRIERS AND DRIVERS NEEDED

for morning delivery of Newspapers on campus and in Amherst.

Call John Riley at 584-7804
College News Service

11 Bridge Street Sunderland, MA

Ben's

new & used vehicles repairs foreign & domestic

Tel. (413) 665-3344
Fax (413) 665-3966

Bob Connelly
Shop Meneger

TRAVEL

Spring Break '98 Sell trips, earn cash, and go free!!! Student Travel Services is now hiring Campus Reps/Group Organizers. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico, and Florida. Call 1-800-648-4849

CLASSIFIEDS

available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Classifieds Special

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthdays or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a phallefice or libelous nature are unacceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the time, signature, and UMass I.D. number at the student placing the as filled in in the authentication order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

TUESDAY, SEPT. 9

Discussion — "The Politics of Birth Control," a discussion about why many women can't obtain the family planning resources they need, and what you can do about it, will be held at 8 p.m. in Thompson Auditorium, room 102. Join fellow students and Peter H. Kostmayer, executive director of "Zero Population Growth."

Meeting — The UMass Ballroom Dance Club will hold its first general meeting at 5:15 p.m. in Totman 101. All are welcomed.

Meeting — The Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance is holding its first info-social of the year at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 803. Come join us and find out what is happening on campus this semester, and then socialize with other interested students.

Meeting — Amnesty International, a human rights organization, will hold its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 101.

Meeting — Psi Chi, the National Honors Society in psychology will hold its first meeting at 5:30 p.m. in 204 Tobin. Members and non-members are welcome to come and see what we are about and share free pizza. If you are interested but cannot make this time, please call Melanie Bauman at 546-5881.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend an open house from 6–7 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549–6070.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will hold its first meeting of the semester at 7 p.m. in Campus Center, room 165. Everyone is welcome. Bring your own work or someone else's or just come and listen. Call Tim at 546– 0819 or Kaye at 548–8042.

Meeting — The UMass Theatre Guild's first general meeting will be held in the Campus Center, room 903

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend a patio party from 5–7 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549– 6070.

Greek life — Sigma Delta Tau will hold open fall rush from 6–8 p.m. at 409 North Pleasant St.

Yoga — An Introduction to Yoga & Meditation (lecture and practical experience) by Dada Anantananda will be held in the Campus Center, room 904–08 at 7 p.m. Free admission. Sponsored by the Ananda Morga Yoga & Meditation Society.

NOTICES

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. Donations can be made Sept 9–10 from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. and Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 9–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545-0342.

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. Donations can be made Sept 9–10 from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m. and Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 9–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by: WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

Mill River Band!
Live Tonight

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Channel
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 UMATV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN/Headline News
25 BET
28 BET on Jazz
27 UCTV
28 The Learning Channel
29 TV Land
30 Comedy Central
32 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Cranberry

TUESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 9, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	(12) Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Einstein Revisited" (R) (In Stereo)				Mars: The Red Planet		Conn. Sports	Dreams Go By
WFSB	3	(3) News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	JAG "Code Blue" (In Stereo)		★★ "Perry Mason: The Case of the Ruthless Recorder" (1991)				News	Late Show
WBZ	4	(4) News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	JAG "Code Blue" (In Stereo)		"Child From the Heart" (1994, Drama) Patty Duke. (In Stereo)		News		Late Show	Late Show
WCVB	5	(5) News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Home Imp.	Grace Under	Home Imp.	Spin City	NYPD Blue "Closing Time"		News	Nightline
WLVI	6	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	★★ "Medicine Man" (1992, Drama) Sean Connery.				News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Caroline	Caroline	Caroline	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married... With	Cheers	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Major League Baseball: New York Yankees at Boston Red Sox. (Live)				News	ILAPD	Vibe
WWTI	9	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Herd Copy	Sudden-Susan	Caroline	Caroline	Caroline	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	★★ "Bad Girls" (1994, Western) Madeleine Stowe. (In Stereo)		News		Coach		Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Caroline	Caroline	Caroline	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Einstein Revisited" (R) (In Stereo)				Wallace Stegner		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Ent. Tonight	Home Imp.	Grace Under	Home Imp.	Spin City	NYPD Blue "Closing Time"		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Seinfeld		Mad Abo. You	Moesha	Good News	Hitz (In Stereo)	Head-Heels		News	Real TV
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	★★ "The Final Countdown" (1980, Science Fiction) Kirk Douglas				Major League Baseball: Atlanta Braves at Los Angeles Dodgers
A&E	69	Quincy "Yellowview"		Law & Order		Biography: Nancy Reagan		"Dazzle and Aesop: A Killing Kindness" (1997) Warren Clarke.				Law & Order
CNN	29	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	26	Comic Relief	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Salute to Andy Kaufman		Kaufman, Hollywood		Viva Variety	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	63	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Red Star (R)		Wild Discovery: Family		New Detectives "Death Grip"		World's Greatest Stunts		Wild Discovery: Family
ESPN	45	Up Close	Sportscenter	Memories		NFL: a Greatest Game (R)				Women's Pro Beach Volleyball: Baseball		Sportscenter
LIFE	39	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (R) (In Stereo)		★★½ "Afterglow" (1997) Nick Nolte.		★★½ "Aftermath: A Test of Love" (1991) Richard Chamberlain.		Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	35	MTV Live	Viewers	Meltrock (In Stereo)		Beevis-Butt.	Beevis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Jenny M.	Apt. 2F	Oddville, MTV	Loveline
NICK	68	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Secret of Alex	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days
SCIFI	66	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Buzz	Seaquest DSV "Psychic"		★★½ "Videodrome" (1983, Horror) James Woods, Deborah Harry.				Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Buzz (R)
TLC	67	24 Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hosertime (R)	Medical Detect	Trauma-ER	Hauntings Across America		Cyber Warriors "Into War" (R)		Medical Detect	Trauma-ER
TNT	65	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		★★½ "Out of Africa" (1985, Drama) Meryl Streep, Robert Redford.							"Out of Africa"
USA	62	Renegade (In Stereo)		Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger		Boxing (In Stereo Live)				Silk Stalkings	Internat Affairs
HBO	46	(6:15) "Angry Zug Out Manhatt		★★½ "Diary of Darcie" (1996, Drama) Tom Conlee. PG-13		"First Time Felon" (1997, Drama) Omar Epps. (In Stereo)						Oz (R) (In Stereo)
MAX	47	★★½ "Multiplicity" (1996, Comedy) Michael Keaton. PG-13				★★★ "The Last Boy Scout" (1991, Drama) Bruce Willis. R				★★½ "Blue Thunder" (1983, Adventure) Roy Scheider. R
SHOW	48	★★★ "L.A. Story" (1991, Comedy) Steve Martin. PG-13				★★ "Dracula: Dead and Loving It" (1995) PG-13		30-Min. Movie		★★ "Playback" (1995, Suspense) George Hamilton. (In Stereo)

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Loser Crew Comics By Alan DeMonde

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You are well–qualified to meet any challenges today, but it is up to you to decide just which of many you wish to accept this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — The financial picture may confuse some, but you will have a handle on even the most subtle and complex developments. Share your knowledge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You can bring a great deal of excitement into the lives of others today. All you have to do is be yourself and accentuate certain traits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Take care you do not become so single–minded in your endeavors today that you appear stubborn or inflexible. Remain cooperative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — No one is likely to ruffle your feathers today. You are supremely confident, and very much at ease. You know where things stand right now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Do not hesitate to turn to a new friend to see you through an unexpected difficulty today. A solution is found easily, with help.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Despite the overwhelming positive nature of the week as a whole, you may have to do something unpleasant to do before the day is out.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You may have to use gentle persuasion today to see that others conform to your expectations. No one needs to know that you are in charge!

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You can help to heal someone's wounded pride today. Be there when you are needed, and you'll have a friend for life.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — This is a good day for concentrating on domestic adjustments, particularly where siblings are concerned. It is time to get back in touch!

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You have a flair for the romantic today, and a loved one can benefit from your attentions at this time. Take a creative approach!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You have much more to give at this time than anyone expects. Take the time to process information carefully, and to share it freely as needed.

Quote of the Day

"To comb your noddle with a three-legg'd stool, And paint your face, and use you like a fool."

–William Shakespeare
"The Taming of the Shrew"

Close to Home By John McPherson

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

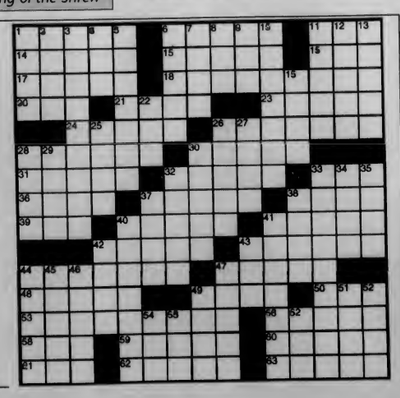
Franklin
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Hungarian Noodle Bake
Native American Taco
Vegetarian Native AmericanTaco
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Meatloaf Italiano
Ratatouille
Fish on a Roll

Worcester
LUNCH
Native American Tacos
Clam Roll
Ziti with Cheese
Vegetarian Native AmericanTaco
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Jamaican Beef Patty
Bean & Rice Proveneale
Meatballs/Grinder Roll

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Tacos
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Meatloaf

Berkshire
LUNCH
Tacos
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Chef's Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Vegetable Taco
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Jamaican Beef Patty
Bean & Rice Proveneale
Meatballs/Grinder Roll

Night Editor: Chris Stamm
Photo Technician: Brian McDermott
Copy Editor: Laura Stack
Production Supervisor: Mark McGrath
Production Staff: Mike Kinsey, Thang Vo



ACROSS
1 Brazilian dance
6 Stop
11 Tree fluid
14 Dairy-case items
15 Negative particle
16 "— live and breathe!"
17 Thong
18 Miniature dwelling
20 Rower's need
21 Shades
23 Serpent
24 Not appropriate
26 Oater extras
28 Desert travelers
30 Undercover cops
31 Watchful
32 Eagle's home
33 Offer
36 South African monetary unit
37 Demon
38 Unclothed
39 Code signal
40 Drones
41 Criminal
42 Destinies
43 Fancy
44 Put on, as makeup
47 Film spools
48 Less common
49 Autobahn car
50 — out: barely get by
53 Track and field event
56 More festive
58 Authorizes
59 '30s actor Jack —
60 Dogfish scavenger
61 Actress — Dawn Chong
62 Stockholm native
63 Quizzes

DOWN
1 Fair to middling
2 Can. province
3 Fun
4 Feathery wrap
5 Road surface
6 Military student
7 Baseball's Slaughter
8 Have the flu
9 Sun, in Spain
10 Augment
11 Riyadh resident
12 Valuable quality
13 Docks
19 Probabilities
22 — and downs
25 Oddball
26 Farm buildings
27 Like the Gobi
28 Greeting — 29 Jai —
30 Wants
32 Publicized
33 Dart-players' goals
34 Matinee man?
35 Disavow
37 Celebration
38 Singer Diamond
40 Coiffures
41 Cargo
42 Fido's tormentor
43 Nourished
44 Shady place
45 Winter jacket
46 Ordinary speech
47 Coin of India
49 Surrounded by
51 Superman's alias
52 Important times
54 Face part
55 Luau instrument
57 Positive response

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

S	C	R	A	M		A	C	E	D		A	S	P	S
T	A	T	I	A		R	O	S	I	E		S	P	A	N
O	R	I	E	N	T		I	M	P	S		H	O	P	I
P	R	E	D	A	T	O	R		T	I	C	E	C	A	P
				U	R	S	A		B	A	R	R	E	L
P	O	M	A	D	E		D	U	E	L
A	M	E	X		A	P	E	S		E	A	P	T
S	U	S	H	I		T	I	E		S	H	A	M	P	O	O
K	O	A	L	A		A	G	R	A		I	S	L	E
			M	A	R	K		T	O	O	L	S
J	I	A	S	P	E	R		S	A	K	I
O	P	P	O	S	E		M	A	U	G	H	T	E	R
I	R	I	S		N	A	T		G	E	O	D	E
N	I	C	E		A	R	N	O		L	I	E	N	T	N
S	I	L	E	D		S	I	G	N		E	L	I	T	E

9-9-97 © 1997, United Feature Syndicate

SPORTS

Minutemen sink Midshipmen in Annapolis

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

It's been almost a decade since the Massachusetts water polo team went down to Annapolis, Md. for a tournament and won every game. Never have they beaten regional rival Navy in this traditional early–season tournament hosted by the powerful Midshipmen.

All that changed this past weekend when the No. 11 Minutemen (4–0) went down to the Navy Invitational, sweeping all four matches they played this weekend.

Before their 16–8 drubbing of Navy, UMass squeaked by No. 23 George Washington, 12–11, in their first match. Saturday night, they beat No. 24 Bucknell, 7–6 and on Sunday they slid by No. 19 Slippery Rock, 9–4.

"I can't remember the last time we went down [to Annapolis] and won all our games," UMass coach Russ Yarworth said. It was 1988 when last the Minutemen won in Annapolis, and at that time, they didn't play Navy.

They beat Boston College, Villanova and M.I.T. in that weekend, and UMass has an all–time composite record of 41–3 against those three opponents.

On this weekend, though, the Minutemen were faced with four ranked opponents, and not first but foremost were the No. 15 Navy Midshipmen.

Massachusetts 16, Navy 8

It didn't take long for UMass to dispose of Navy for the first time ever in a regular season match–up as they jumped out to a 6–1 lead after one quarter of play. Paced by Brian Stahl's six–goal performance, the Minutemen doubled up the Midshipmen with a pair of eight–point halves.

"Navy is a little down this year," observed Yarworth, who spent most of the weekend experimenting with his substitution pattern, while figuring out a permanent rotation.

Eight Minutemen scored in the victory, including diminutive sophomore Timmy Troupis who tallied three goals.

"I feel very confident with our depth," Yarworth said. "I need [to get across to some of] the guys that they're going to play less minutes, but they'll be harder minutes."

Massachusetts 12, George Washington 11

The No. 23 Colonials gave UMass a scare early in its first contest of the season, with the Minutemen playing a very lackluster first seven minutes. GW took a 5–2 lead after the first quarter, taking advantage of the inexperience and tentativeness of starting goalie, sophomore Richard Huntley.

"Richard was nervous and weak [early on], but I think he came on strong towards the end of the weekend," Yarworth said.

Huntley ended up with just three saves in the game.

But, his all–world offensive corps rebounded from a slow start to outscore the Colonials 5–1 in the second quarter and pull out the first win of the season. Stahl again was the offensive catalyst, abusing the GW defense for eight goals in the game.

Massachusetts 7, Bucknell 6

A long day for the Minutemen on Saturday didn't end easily as the No. 24 Bucknell squad took a 5–4 lead into the final period. Clutch goals by Stahl, co–captain Marc Staudenbauer and sophomore Rich Slingluff wrapped up the win for UMass in the final quarter, while Bucknell could muster just one last–ditch score.

"We had a tough time with the style of refereeing," Yarworth said. "They let physical play take the place of skill."

Huntley came up with his second strong performance of the weekend, stopping six Bucknell attempts in the contest. Staudenbauer led the offensive attack with three goals.

Massachusetts 9, Slippery Rock 4

On Sunday, the Minutemen took care of business early, taking a 6–2 lead into intermission against No. 19 Slippery Rock. Huntley made his best showing in the finale, notching nine saves on 13 shots. Gabriel Marrero also saved his best for last, scoring three goals in the win. Stahl added two more goals and had a remarkable 18 tallies on the weekend.

COURTNEY SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Scott Stevens (5), Marc Staudenbaur (13), Rich Slinghoff (15), Bill Hunter (18) and the No. 11 UMass men's water polo went 4–0 in the Navy Invitational this past weekend.

Women back to A-10 play, host URI at home today

By Kathleen Ralls
Collegian Staff

Take heed Rams.

Though the Massachusetts women's soccer team lost six seniors, they are by no means backing down to early competition in the Atlantic 10. The Minutewomen will aim to maintain their perfect 9–0 record against the University of Rhode Island Rams tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at Totman Field.

With an early 4–0 stomping of the Stags of Fairfield and a stand up and take notice 2–1 defeat over then–ranked No. 22 Michigan this past Friday, UMass coach Jim Rudy and his squad are looking to improve their record to 3–0 and more importantly, maintain their elite standing in the A–10.

"This is a very important game for us," Rudy said, regarding how the A–10 champion will receive an automatic bid to the N C A A Tournament this season. "We remember last year and our 3–2 loss to Dayton in the A–10 final, so we are really going to focus on our A–10 competition this year.

"Our ticket to the NCAA's may not be through a wild card, but through the A–10."

Though UMass resins with a 9–0 lifetime record vs. URI, the Rams are looking for revenge under second year coach Shelley Smith. URI stands at 0–2 with a 2–1 loss against New Hampshire, however, they proved they are a team in contention of winning in a 2–1 overtime loss to Providence.

Regardless that URI has proved to be a cellar dweller in recent years, this match is another important step in integrating Rudy's young, speedy, offensive–minded squad.

Sophomore Emma Kurowski, last year's A–10 Rookie of the Year, is spearheading the Minutewomen's attack (3 goals, 1 assist, 7 points) alongside junior Robin Smith, last year's America East Player of the Year, Sophie Lecot and early freshman standout Kara Green. The much experienced defense of senior tri–captains Erica Iverson and Danielle Dion are stabilizing the backfield, along with fellow senior Amy Burrill and junior Amanda Thompson.

In year's past, Rudy has relied heavily on his defense to be the mainstay. However, this year's team proves to be leading with their forwards, with an exciting dump–and–go style that has the defense providing the lead for the forwards to out–hustle their opponents. This will also be the second collegiate meeting of the Sisters Kurowski. Last year, older sister Jenna of Dartmouth University got the better of Emma in a 2–0 defeat over UMass at Richard F. Garber Field. Now, Jenna is in her first year as assistant coach of the Rams.

UMass Women's Soccer
Massachusetts vs. Rhode Island
Totman, 3:30 P.M.

But after last Friday's 2–1 win over Michigan, the last thing on the Minutewomen's minds is defeat in any shape or fashion.

"Ordinarily, you would think we would let down after such a big win," Rudy said. "We are pleased with the win over Michigan, but we are not pleased with the quality of the win. We're looking forward to a more pretty game, but against a very scrappy, defensive game."

No. 15 Minutewomen open against Hartford

By Justin Rudd
Collegian Correspondent

After a season of achieving its first–ever regional ranking, the Massachusetts women's tennis team is looking to build on last year's success. The groundwork for that begins today at 1 p.m. when the Minutewomen open up its 1997 fall season at the University of Hartford.

Last season, UMass defeated Hartford 6–1, and all but one of the players who participated in that win will return for today's rematch. Coming off of a 14–5 record, this year's women's squad is taking on a "completely revamped" schedule. This schedule brings with it new, challenging teams, of which eight of them are nationally ranked. With no place to hide, while carrying its newly acquired ITA (Intercollegiate Tennis Association) Eastern Region ranking of No. 15, UMass feels they are ready to step up to the challenges lying ahead.

"This [new schedule] can seem intimidating, but... it's not so much the wins and losses that are important, but the overall goals of our program," Dixon said.

One of those goals is to try and breakthrough and beat one, if not many, of the nationally ranked teams on the schedule.

UMass Women's Tennis
Massachusetts vs. Hartford at Hartford

Sophomore Ola Gerasimova, who went 13–7 in the number–one singles position last year, will retain her position for the 1997 season. Moving up to the No. 2 slot is junior Jackie Braunstein, who led UMass last season with a record of 19–8. Senior Lana Gorodetskaya is entering this season with a team leading .842 winning percentage and overall record of 16–3. Another notable is senior Caroline Steele, who held the fourth overall position in winning percentage with a .667 and an overall record 16–8.

This years' squad is supposed to be extremely strong in doubles, and equally balanced in singles. The feeling of the 11–member squad is that the next piece to their puzzle equals a national ranking.

"We deserve to be on the court with all the teams on our schedule and I am not scared of any loses. The only way to get tougher is to get beaten up a little bit," Dixon said.

The teams' extreme desire to play some of these tougher schools is exemplified by the location of their opponents. Some of the "big" schools on the schedule such as Syracuse, Rutgers, Rhode Island, Seton Hall, Princeton, and LaSalle take quite a long hall to get to. Facing the challenges of these new teams, UMass is looking for an inspiring win.

"To play on this next level we need much more confidence, more belief in ourselves, and more team work. The difference is our confidence, what I mean by that is not playing above our ability but playing to our ability in those important matches," Dixon said.

Clemens deserves a Cy; Hideki hyped to the end

And now presenting the long–awaited, the much overdue, the soon–to–be legendary first annual Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. Month–Before–The–Season's–Over Post–Season Awards.

Yes. I am that good.

• Let's get rollin' in the junior circuit.

A.L. Rookie of the Year: Hmmm. This was a tough one, but I'll have to go with California's... native son Nomar Garciaparra of the Boston Red Sox (gotcha ya' Sox freaks). He's baseball's Renaissance Man. A slick–fielding, hard–hitting, base–running, down–to–earth talented kid. And, the chicks dig him. Jose Cruz, Jr. and Jason Dickson will run a distant second.

A.L. Manager of the Year: Well, there isn't much of a choice here either. Baltimore just continues to defy logic by holding onto the top spot in the A.L., and Davey Johnson, though he probably shouldn't, will receive a lot of credit for their dumbfounding success. Terry Collins has rejuvenated the Angels and will give johnson a run.

FRED HURLBRINK, JR. Baseball

Milwaukee's Phil Garner will finish a respectable third.

A.L. Cy Young: How many hurlers have taken home this hardware four times in their careers? Two?

Nope. Three. Roger Clemens is about to join Greg Maddux (who bolted Chi–town for some cash after his first) and Steve Carlton as four–time winners of the coveted award. The Boston alumnus has dominated everyone. I mean, his E.R.A. would have him on academic probation, trust me. Raise your hand if you haven't been struck out by the Canadian Rocket yet this season...

I heard some tall, funny–lookin' guy in Seattle is having a pretty good season too.

A.L. Most Valuable Player: Talk about goin' out on a limb, but I'm gonna say that Ken Griffey, Jr. might win this year. Fifty dingers'll do it every time, and his not–even Rolaids–could give–us–relief Mariners have a shot at the Series — if they can hold off the Angels.

Should the Mariners take a dive, Tino Martinez could take the MVP, but he'll be the likely runner–up with Frank Thomas and the Canadian Rocket getting a ton of third– place votes.

A.L. Most Over–rated Player: Boy, if Hideki (I Love New York) Irabu, was up for a full season, this would be his. As a matter of fact his bust will probably be the trophy. Ya' know what, we'll just call it the Hideki Irabu Award from now on. But, a truly deserving sole needs to receive the first–ever Hideki, so we'll give it to his teammate the lovable, but merely average Derek Jeter. No power, a little speed, and he dives so much 'cause he has no range.

A.L. Most Underrated Player: People just don't appreciate this guy for what he does game after game for the past couple seasons. He just keeps hitting and fielding and playing hard. He's got the love. Now, show him some.

He's Rusty Greer. Ya' gotta love a guy named Rusty who plays in Texas.

• Let's jump over to the National League now.

N.L. Rookie of the Year: Despite their surge that has them poised for the playoffs, the Dodgers run of Rookies Of The Years' is over. Wilton Guerrero had a shot, but he lost some cork and then his position. Wilton's brother in Montreal, Vladimir, would have had a shot if he had played a full season, but no. So, since Tony Womack doesn't have rookie status, Scott Rolen will win this award by default. Something to be happy about in Philly.

N.L. Manager of the Year: This will be the tightest race of any of the post–season votes. So many good performances by so many good baseball men. But, with my reputation at stake, I'm gonna go with my gut and say that Gene LaMont of Pittsburgh will in fact win this one because Bobby Valentine, Larry Dierker and Bill Russell all had a decent talent level to begin with. LaMont still doesn't.

N.L. Cy Young: The Pirates most definitely will not be represented here. Another North–of–the–Border hurler will rip this trophy out of the firm grasp of the Braves' Denny Neagle or Cy Maddux. Pedro Martinez — whose E.R.A. would get him suspended from school, trust me — has had a phenomenal season in finally realizing his superstar potential. He has mesmerized with a heater that dances like a knuckler and an assortment of power pitches that nobody seems to be able to solve. The Atlanta aces will finish two– three as usual.

N.L. Most Valuable Player: This isn't an easy decision either. We're gonna have to go with flat out numbers, because no pennant contender has a Ken Caminiti that has pulled his team to the forefront. Larry Walker, however, has established that when he's healthy, he's the best player in the senior circuit. Astronomical offensive

Turn to BASEBALL, page 7

UM men's soccer takes one on the chin; ties Siena

By Matthew J. Perrault
Collegian Staff

It's the type of thing that can drive a coach mad — his team goes into a game that should be a sure win, and they play down to their opponent's ability.

That is what the Massachusetts men's soccer team fell victim to last Saturday afternoon when it overlooked Siena College in Loudonville, N.Y.. Much to the dismay of Minutemen coach Sam Koch, his team tied the Saints, 1–1.

UMass 1
Siena 1

UMass (1–0–1), coming off a 4–2 win over Cal–Poly at San Luis Obispo last week in its regular season opener, should have easily taken care of Siena (0–0–1), who had never beaten UMass. However, the Saints were a much different squad than the team the Minutemen has faced in the past, with UMass holding a 5–0 all–time record.

Siena, in an attempt to revamp its program, has mostly sophomores and freshmen on its squad this year, and came out hard to surprise the Minutemen.

For Koch, the surprise was a harsh one.

"We were a better team," Koch said. "We knew it but we didn't believe it."

UMass got on the board first in the 41st minute when freshmen midfielder Mike Purcell netted his first goal of the year off of junior midfielder Paul Cochran's deflection. The Minutemen took the lead into the half but 15 minutes into the second, Siena was able to tie the score at 1–1 with a header that beat sophomore goalkeeper Todd Fowler. The teams played out the remaining time of regulation and then went on to two overtimes, but neither could net the game winner.

"[Siena] was more physical, better in the air and had better touches," Koch said. "We didn't play to the feet, we had no combos, and we were just not focused. We did not come ready to play."

The Saints were able to contain UMass' scoring power, senior forward Mike Butler, not allowing him to get the offense going for the Minutemen.

"We didn't do the extras, didn't close, didn't react," Koch said. "All the little things that they did and we didn't all added up in the end. We were just not ready to play. that was the bottom line."

UMass was out–shot by Siena 16–15 and had only six corner kicks to Siena's seven in 120 minutes of action. Fowler played the entire game in net and made six saves for the Minutemen.

The Minutemen play their first game at their new home, Totman Field, this Saturday against the University of Maine at 1 p.m. UMass holds a 20–10–1 all–time record against the Black Bears, including a 1–0 victory in Orono last season.

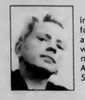
Minuteman Notes: UMass played its final exhibition game against McGill University at Szot Park in Chicopee. The Minutemen handled the Redmen easily, winning 5–1.... The McGill game

TWANG VO/COLLEGIAN

Junior defender Jon Hanna and the UMass men's soccer team stumbled against Siena College, drawing with the Saints, 1–1.

Turn to MENS SOCCER, page 7

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CVII Issue 6 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, September 10, 1997

Minutewomen blast Rams

Led by sophomore Emma Kurowskithe Minutewomen soccer team squashed Rhode Island 7–0 . For the scoop (see Sports, page 10).

Out of the "Sun"

John Lydon, the infamous frontman for the Sex Pistols and PIL, returns with a surprising new attitude (see Arts & Living, page 5).

WORLD

Haitians mourn as divers retrieve bodies

MONTROUIS, Haiti (AP) — Divers saw more than 100 bodies trapped on two decks of a sunken ferry Tuesday, and disputed earlier accounts that as many as 400 people may have died, saying the number is closer to 250.

On shore, diesel fumes and the sickening stench of death pervaded the pebbled beach where thousands of people gathered, many crying out as several bodies were recovered and wrapped in transparent plastic bags.

"Everybody is in mourning. Everybody has somebody close who went down," said Simon Lapointe, mayor of the Gonave island town of Anse Agalets, the departure point for the ill–fated Haitian ferry.

President Rene Preval, who visited the site Tuesday, blamed Haiti's poverty for the calamity, saying that if this eastern fishing village had had a dock the disaster might have been averted. The ferry, anchored 200 yards from shore, toppled Monday as passengers raced en masse to one side in a rush to get off.

But Canadian divers from the U.N. peacekeeping mission in Haiti said Tuesday there was no evidence of massive overcrowding on the Pride of Gonave, contradicting initial police and coast guard reports that put the passenger count at up to 800.

NATION

VMI suspends woman for hitting classmate

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Just weeks after enrolling its first coed class, the Virginia Military Institute has suspended a female cadet for a year for striking a male upperclassman.

The incident occurred after classes had begun, VMI said Tuesday. The military college would not release details of the offense or identify the young woman or the man she was convicted of hitting.

However, The Roanoke Times, in a story published Wednesday, identified her as Angelica Garza, from Fort Belvoir in northern Virginia. The newspaper quoted her father, Pete Garza, as saying that VMI handled the situation appropriately, but he would not elaborate.

She was suspended after her case was heard by the school's executive committee Monday and the penalty was approved by VMI Superintendent Josiah Bunting.

"I hate to lose any of our cadets ... but our system does not tolerate any cadet striking another," Bunting said in a statement. Asked if the woman was reacting to sexual harassment, VMI spokesman Mike Strickler said the circumstances were "nothing out of the ordinary."

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 55	HIGH: 65 LOW: 50	HIGH: 65 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

UMass has best fund–raising year ever

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

Fiscal year 1997 was a banner year for fund raising at the University of Massachusetts, with several large donations spurring Campaign UMass off to an auspicious start.

"We had our best fund–raising year ever this year," said John Fuedo, Executive Director of the Alumni Association. "Less than one full year into [Campaign UMass] and we are well on our way."

Campaign UMass is the five–year program begun in October 1996 to raise $125 million for the Amherst campus, enlist advocates for the University statewide, and enhance the University's reputation, both in the Commonwealth and across the nation.

So far, approximately $43 million in funds have been raised through Campaign UMass, according to University News Director Katherine Scanlan.

During fiscal year 1997, $15.2 million in cash, $9.5 million in pledges and $4.5 million in deferred expectancies [monies left in wills, etc.] was donated to the University, Scanlan said.

Royster Hedgepath, vice chancellor for University advancement, said he was pleased with the results of the first year of fund–raising.

"We are right where we need to be. We are moving forward," Hedgepath said. "The campaign is another indication that UMass is on the move."

In the largest donation ever made to the University, alumnus Eugene Isenberg and his wife, Ronnie Isenberg, gave $6 million to Campaign UMass in support of the School of Management (SOM).

The Isenberg donation will go to the creation of new facilities and an endowed professorship at SOM, which will be renamed the Eugene and Ronnie Isenberg School of Management in their honor.

Other large donations to Campaign UMass include $1 million from the Alumni Association, to be put towards the creation of a new Alumni Center across the street from the Mullins Center, and $1 million from alumnus Jack Flavin, which will be used to establish an endowed chair in entrepreneurship in SOM.

In addition, alumni Richard J. and Barbara Barnett Mahoney have given the University a $2 million trust.

Scanlan said that the large donations are a reflection of the increased prestige of the University within the Commonwealth.

"We are slowly changing the perception in the public and with alumni that they do not have to give to the University because public money is always available," Scanlan said. "Part of the campaign is not just to raise money but to raise an awareness of the University in the public's mind. We are showing the public that we are a school worth supporting."

If the $125 million goal is reached, $40 million is planned to go towards faculty support, $40 million to college–based initiatives and research, $10 million to financial aid and merit scholarships, $30 million to facilities, including both new construction and renovations, and $5 million to the library.

Successful year for Alumni Association

Fiscal year 1997 was also a prosperous year for the UMass Alumni Association, which increased both its membership and its income dramatically.

This past year, the Alumni Association expanded its membership by 60 percent, raising the number of dues– paying members to 8,000.

In addition, through successful marketing ventures, the Alumni Association increased its income by $1,960,099, bringing its net total to $2,045,750.

This growth in membership and income is placing the UMass Alumni Association on par with the largest alumni associations in the country.

"We are probably one of the fastest growing alumni associations in the country," Feudo said. "We are moving into a league with Michigan, California, Texas and North Carolina."

The Association's new funds were used in part for student scholarships and to bring distinguished alumni to campus to serve as visiting faculty in residence. A portion of the funds was also given directly to University groups such as the Bilingual Collegiate Program, the Cheerleading Squad, the history department, the Crew Club, the Dance Team, Boricuas Unidos, the New WORLD Theatre and the Student Alumni Relations Society (SCERA).

"Last year we gave out more money in grants than ever before to student and faculty groups and alumni groups," Feudo said. "We provided the funding that allowed SCERA to conduct a survey of legislative candidates to find out about their support of public higher education. We were able to put more than $25,000 back into programming and this year we are budgeting for more."

Feudo said the new marketing techniques, such as an UMass alumni Visa Card and a short–term health insurance program, which have made possible the dramatic increase in the Association's income, will continue to be used to generate funds.

"We are placing a greater emphasis than ever before on marketing ventures," Feudo said. "Our goal is to generate enough income to support University programs and to build an endowment to support student, faculty and alumni initiatives for many years to come."

For the birds

TWANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

Maureen Larareo of Hatfield, Ma., works at Backyard Birds, a birdwatcher's store in Northampton.

Israel issues new security demands to Palestinians

By Karin Laub
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Yesterday, during Secretary of State Madeleine Albright's attempt to rescue Mideast peace, Israel raised the stakes with new security demands It says Palestinians must fulfill before they will be given any more West Bank land. Palestinians, in turn, accused Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu of trying to blackmail them. "Our only hope is that the United States will realize that this is... an evil attempt to torpedo the peace process," said Marwan Kanafani, a spokesman for Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

The new demands were contained in a four–page list Israeli officials said would be given to Albright. In addition to crushing Islamic militant groups, Israel said the Palestinians must reduce the size of their police force, dismiss their police chief and agree to Israeli and U.S. monitoring to ensure compliance. Netanyahu complained Monday that Arafat's recent efforts to fight Islamic militants — including the arrests of 35 activists on Monday — were symbolic at best and aimed at appeasing Albright.

"We demand consistency in the treatment of the terrorist infrastructure as an essential condition for the continuation of the peace process," Netanyahu told the Israeli parliament's Defense and Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Unless Arafat stops violating his commitment, and starts fulfilling it — to fight the infrastructure of the terrorist organizations, to jail their leaders, to confiscate their weapons, to stop incitement towards terrorism, to stop embracing the leaders of the Hamas terrorist organization — unless he does all that we won't have much progress with the peace process," he said.

Netanyahu blamed Arafat for not preventing suicide bombings by Islamic militants in Jerusalem on July 30 and last Thursday. The bombings killed 20 Israelis and five assailants.

In its list of demands, Israel said Arafat must reduce his police force from the 35,000 officers he recruited to the 24,000 permitted by the peace agreement, and fire officers who have been involved in attacks on Israelis.

Israel also claims the police chief, Brig. Ghazi Jabali, has incited his men to attacks against Israel and said he must be dismissed.

Israel also wants to establish a monitoring system, with U.S. participation, that would allow for inspections and spot checks to ensure Palestinian compliance.

The Palestinians, however, did not plan to let Israel dominate Albright's agenda with talk about security. They said yesterday they would raise Israel's recent decision to freeze the scheduled handover of West Bank land, the expansion of Jewish settlements and Israel's security closures of Palestinian areas.

"I expect from Albright to deal

Turn to SECURITY, page 2

UM police investigate series of weekend vehicle break–ins

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police are investigating a rash of vehicle break–ins that occurred over the weekend, specifically in parking lots around Southwest Residential Area.

On the nights of Sept. 5 and 6, UMass police officers responded to eight cases of breaking and entering and burglary of vehicles in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive, parking lot 32 on Massachusetts Avenue and parking lot 22 on University Drive.

Damage was reported in each incident as well as stereos and speakers being reported stolen on four of the cases.

On Sunday afternoon, three non–UMass students, Alexander Tejada, 21, 413 Pleasant St., Holyoke, Robert L. Sisson, 20, 688 High St., Holyoke, and Peter L. Cavette, 19, 18 Beemis St., Chicopee were arrested for nighttime breaking and entering, destruction of property for more than $250, and larceny under $250.

The three men were observed breaking into vehicles in a parking lot on University Drive by UMass police officers.

However, UMass Police Chief John Luippold said he could not confirm if the three men were involved with the break–ins on Friday and Saturday nights.

"The individuals were seen breaking into specific vehicles by police officers. When arrested they had nothing in their possession to indicate the cases were related," Luippold said.

As a result of this past weekend's break–ins, Luippold said police will step up patrolling in the parking lots, as well as specific areas where patterns have developed.

University police said students should check their cars frequently and be aware of surroundings.

Luippold added he is concerned that suspicious activity goes unreported from parking lots because it is overlooked as normal, especially in terms of car alarms.

"If anyone sees anyone suspicious or hears anything, especially [car] alarms, they should notify police immediately," he said.

Students should call UMPD at 545–2121 to report any suspicious activity.

Clinton pushes Congress for standardized testing & social security reform

By Sonya Ross
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Declaring the nation "in uncharted territory to some extent," President Clinton yesterday put forth an ambitious fall agenda that he admitted would be tough to sell on a Congress already leery of his ideas.

Speaking before students at American University, the president said he remains committed to a cluster of issues that build upon the new balanced federal budget, such as trade agreements that would buoy U.S. economic growth, funding of education programs and reforming Social Security.

Those issues, Clinton said, cannot come to fruition without support in Congress, and he expressed hope that lawmakers would take up the 13 appropriations bills they must pass this year in a spirit of political cooperation and not use the current economic prosperity as a reason to sidetrack spending plans.

"In the face of good news, the easiest thing to do is to rest, to take a vacation, to believe our work is done," Clinton said. "But complacency is not an option. Vacations have to remain short in a time still full of challenge and change.

"We are in uncharted territory to some extent, but we know the times demand action from us," Clinton said.

Clinton — fresh from a three–week vacation of his own — said he would soon decide how to proceed with a settlement between the states and cigarette makers, "to protect our children from the dangers of tobacco."

He also said he wanted to get young Americans involved in making "a gripping national issue" of building support for an international plan to curb global warming.

"This will be a very controversial debate," Clinton said. But, if the United States fails to join a plan to reduce the "greenhouse gases" emitted into the air, he warned, "then your children will pay the price for our neglect."

He appealed to the Senate to set a hearing for William Weld, his nominee for ambassador to Mexico. And he appealed to the American people to extend a heartfelt welcome to Chinese President Jiang Zemin, who will visit in November.

"I hope the American people will welcome him," Clinton said. "China will choose its own destiny. But if we engage China instead of isolate ourselves from her, we can help influence the path she takes."

Clinton also said he would seek congressional approval for "fast–track" authority to negotiate new trade agreements with foreign governments, a matter that has divided Democrats.

The president said he would hold an event at the White House on Wednesday to publicize his desire for renewed fast–track authority. The president focused Monday on one of his fall priorities: building support for national, standardized reading and math tests for fourth and eighth–graders, respectively.

But the idea of testing standards does not fly in Congress, where Republicans favor a "school choice" proposal to extend tax breaks to parents who send their children to private schools. The program was dropped from the recent budget agreement at Clinton's insistence, but Republicans have said they will bring it up again.

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

Time for a new coat

Dennis Rodrique of Northampton spent yesterday afternoon scraping paint off the side of a condominium.

Fowler grilled about Tamraz

CIA memos detail DNC chief contacts on behalf of fugitive

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Confronted with memos indicating he twice contacted the CIA on behalf of a fugitive businessman, former Democratic chairman Donald L. Fowler insisted yesterday he had no memory of making such calls for the man, a major party donor. Later, Democrats produced a statement from the CIA official — identified only as "Bob" — saying he had been operating under cover and Fowler may not have known he was with the spy agency. Fowler appeared before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, knowing he would be grilled by Republicans about Democratic fund-raising abuses during last year's presidential campaign.

The Republicans questioned him closely about his intervention with officials on behalf of a number of Democratic donors — including Indian tribes opposing a casino favored by rival tribes — but saved their major attack for the help given businessman Roger Tamraz. He is a fugitive from a decade-old embezzlement charge in Lebanon who nonetheless was a frequent White House visitor in 1995 and 1996.

Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn., the committee chairman, showed Fowler two 1995 CIA memos describing calls from Fowler on behalf of Tamraz, who wanted help in stifling opposition to a pipeline project in the Middle East. Fowler had testified he couldn't recall contacting the CIA and told Thompson just before the documents were introduced: "If somebody has some proof I would be happy to refresh my memory."

After he was shown the first CIA document, Fowler said "I understand the implications... but it does not refresh my memory."

"If I said to you I recall making those calls, I would be perjuring myself because I simply don't," Fowler later told Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss.

Later, the Democrats produced the Senate deposition of the CIA official — who said he didn't know whether Fowler knew he was talking to a spy agency employee.

At Tamraz's suggestion, the official said, he called Fowler, who returned his messages. "I was under... cover," said the official, identified only as Bob. "I can't say for certain he knew who he was talking to because CIA was never mentioned."

Fowler also said he did not recall receiving a memo from one of his own aides — written months before the CIA documents — warning that Tamraz's background was "full of significant financial and ethical troubles."

Tamraz has denied the embezzlement charge. While Democratic committee members did not defend their party's contacts with Tamraz, they were able to show the GOP also was interested in Tamraz as late as last February.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott and Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky. both invited Tamraz, in form letters sent to potential donors, to join an elite group for Republican contributors called the Inner Circle. McConnell is chairman of the Senate Republican campaign organization.

McConnell's 1997 letter promised Tamraz access to Lott, House Speaker Newt Gingrich and other party luminaries.

Mike Russell, a spokesman for McConnell's committee, said yesterday that Tamraz "wanted to show he was a party contributor to both parties. He worked to get his name on the donor lists of some Republican committees. He tried to give us $1,000 and we refused to accept."

Fowler indicated with some irritation that in Democratic fund-raising matters power rested with White House aide Harold Ickes — not with the party chairman. During numerous disputes with Ickes, Fowler said, "I think it was fair to say I lost most of those arguments."

But Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., read from Ickes' deposition to committee investigators, in which the former official claimed a hands-off stance.

"So you made absolutely no effort to circumvent [Fowler]?" Ickes was asked.

"Absolutely not," Ickes replied.

Throughout his testimony, Fowler tried to fend off Republican criticism of his numerous interventions with federal officials on behalf of Democratic donors.

"Members of Congress do this; staff members of Congress do it; it is their responsibility to do so," Fowler said.

■ security

continued from page 1

with the reasons of the crisis, which are settlements and Judaization of Jerusalem and refusing to implement agreements," said Hanan Ashrawi, a Palestinian Cabinet minister. "Security is not a goal in itself."

Albright's three-day trip, which begins today, will be her first to the Middle East as secretary of state, and both Israelis and Palestinians anxiously watched for clues on what to expect. Albright recently discovered her Jewish roots, and Israeli officials said they weren't sure whether this would make her more sympathetic to Israel's positions or prompt her to overcompensate by taking a tougher stance than a non-Jewish secretary might. In addition to meetings with Netanyahu and Arafat, Albright will visit Israelis and Americans wounded in last week's bombing, speak to members of an Israeli think tank and tour a Palestinian school in the West Bank town of Ramallah.

It was not clear whether Israel would ease its tight closure of the West Bank and Gaza Strip before her arrival. The travel ban, in effect since July 30 and tightened after the last attack, bars more than 2 million Palestinians from entering Israel.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0060

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!
• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including
Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!
Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.
DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

welcome back to
Cheap tickets.
Great advice.
Nice people.
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main Street
Amherst
(413) 256-1261

ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ
Come See for Yourself...
•Sisterhood•Scholarship•Leadership•
•Friendship•Philanthropy•Career Networking•
•Lifetime Membership•Lasting Memories•
Sorority Open Rush
Sept. 10 - 18th
All University Women are Welcome
For Individual Dates & Times
Pick Up a Flyer at:
Greek Affairs, 227 Whitmore
or Contact Liz at 549-8025
ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ

National/International

Sinn Fein renounces violence

By Shawn Pogatchnik
Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Sinn Fein, the IRA ally that once embraced both the gun and the ballot box as agents of change, formally renounced violence yesterday and took its place in talks on Northern Ireland's future.

Five party leaders of Northern Ireland's pro-British Protestant majority stayed away, underlining their skepticism of Sinn Fein's sincerity and of a process they think will weaken Northern Ireland's union with Britain.

The chairman of the talks, former U.S. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, welcomed Sinn Fein's arrival and urged the Protestants not to boycott the negotiations.

"This is the first time in the modern history of Northern Ireland that there has been in place at the same time both negotiations and a cease-fire," Mitchell said, referring to the Irish Republican Army's decision to stop its campaign against British rule 52 days ago.

"I believe that's a significant step forward, although I acknowledge that the difficult steps remain to be taken," he said. It is the first time since Northern Ireland was created in 1920 that the governments of Britain and the Irish Republic have jointly invited IRA supporters to join other parties to discuss the state's future. Sinn Fein was barred from talks in June 1996 because of IRA violence.

Sinn Fein's president, Gerry Adams, led his delegation into Stormont castle at midday and pledged acceptance of a six-point renunciation of violence known as the "Mitchell Principles." Accepting those principles — among them to seek disarmament of the IRA and pro-British paramilitary groups during negotiations — was a prerequisite for all parties in the talks.

On paper, it is a fundamental shift. When Sinn Fein was about to begin contesting elections 15 years ago, spokesman Danny Morrison appealed to the IRA faithful saying: "Who here really believes we can win the war through the ballot box? But will anyone here object if, with a ballot paper in this hand, and an Armalite (assault rifle) in this hand, we take power in Ireland?"

In elections this year, the party won about 16 percent of votes in Northern Ireland and 3 percent in the Irish Republic.

Sinn Fein did reject a central premise of the negotiations, which is not one of the six points — that majority public support within Northern Ireland must be demonstrated for any new government structures.

Present for Adams' pledge were Mitchell, representatives of the British and Irish governments and four other parties: the moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party, Sinn Fein's larger rival for Catholic votes; the cross-community Alliance Party; a tiny women's rights party; and an even tinier socialist party.

Northern Ireland's biggest party, the Ulster Unionists, will decide Saturday whether to take part when the negotiators are supposed to get to work Monday. Two stemer pro-British parties have already withdrawn, and the other two — both affiliated with outlawed paramilitary groups — say they will attend only if the Ulster Unionists do.

Sinn Fein leaders reaffirmed that the IRA will not discard any weapons before their party agrees to a peace settlement. Protestant demands for the IRA to start disarming deadlocked progress during a 17-month IRA cease-fire that ended in February 1996.

New York offers distance learning

By Shannon McCaffrey
Associated Press

ALBANY — Starting next week, college-bound New Yorkers will have access to interactive cable television shows statewide to prep them for entrance exams, officials said yesterday. The New York Network will offer television instructional help to some 2 million homes for students preparing for the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT's) and other standardized exams. The College Board, which develops the national exams, is providing the on-air instructors for the shows set to begin airing on Wednesday of next week.

The move comes as more students turn to technology, like TV and the Internet, to augment traditional classroom instruction.

"Distance learning is exploding in this country," said Kenneth Hartman, director of secondary education for the College Board. "This is the way the future is headed in education... where the classroom comes to the student."

The New York Network is a division of the State University of New York, which is also expanding its successful Internet degree programs this fall to serve 1,000 students, university officials said.

"We're trying to use our technology wherever possible to get the most out of our resources," said SUNY spokesman Kenneth Goldfarb. "The technology that's now out there makes distance learning far more effective than it was years ago."

SAT prep courses have been offered for years on videos. But the interactive format of the television show, which allows students from throughout the state to call in with questions, is one-of-a-kind nationally, Hartman said. He added that the slicker, MTV-like style in which New York's shows are being produced should be more appealing to today's high school students than a straight teacher in front of a blackboard lecture.

A similar program failed in Pennsylvania because it was considered too dull, Hartman said.

New York Network Executive Director Bill Snyder said the idea to offer the TV college prep show sprang from the network's offering of Regents Review courses through the Teachers Center of New York State in the spring.

The debut of the Regents review show happened to coincide with a public push by state Education Commissioner Richard Mills to toughen up Regents standards. Regents exams are given to high school students in New York state to test their progress and are required for those seeking Regents high school diplomas, the state's highest standard.

"The timing bought us some attention and the response was really positive," Snyder said.

Teachers providing students help in specific Regents subject areas would field about 30 questions for each two-hour show. Those Regents review courses will be offered again in January and May in an intensive week-long series of shows leading up to the exams. Snyder said the new college exam-prep classes also fill a need for cable programmers who are required by federal licensing requirements to devote channels to public access, government and educational programming. While some stations have vibrant local programs underway, some stations are left with dead air, Snyder said.

"We saw this vacuum of available channel space and we said this is the kind of stuff we know how to do," Snyder said.

The college prep shows will be offered from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday nights, making them easy to find for students and teachers. In addition to covering prep work for the SATs, there will also be tips for passing the PSAT exam and even advice on using the Internet to help choose the right college. College-level Advanced Placement courses also be provided for high school students. Such shows could be particularly useful in small schools where too few students are interested to make offering the AP courses practical.

Lawyer says photo shows driver blinded by camera

By Jocelyn Noveck
Associated Press

PARIS — Photos taken minutes before Princess Diana's Mercedes crashed show her driver "dazzled" by a camera flash, a lawyer said yesterday. Judicial sources said a new blood test confirmed the driver was legally drunk.

Traces of anti-depressants also were found in the driver's blood, Europe 1 radio said. The report could not be confirmed, although investigators said they had "not ruled out" looking for substances other than alcohol.

What responsibility driver Henri Paul may have had in the Aug. 31 crash that killed him, Diana and her beau Dodi Fayed is a key question in the investigation.

Paul was a security officer at the Ritz Hotel, owned by Fayed's father, Mohamed Al Fayed. The Fayed family has defended the driver, blaming the crash on paparazzi chasing the car.

Bernard Dartevelle, a lawyer for the Fayed family in Paris, said two frames from a photographer's roll of film seized at the crash site show Paul startled by a camera flash, Diana's bodyguard pulling down the sun visor and Diana looking out the back at a motorcycle headlight.

The film is being held by police and was not made public. Dartevelle said he has had access to it, but could not release prints or the name of the photographer.

In an interview in his Paris office, he described photos he said were "clearly" taken from in front of the Mercedes. That would buttress some witness accounts that a car or motorcycle was directly in front of Diana's car before it crashed, blocking its path.

However, it was not clear precisely where on the 1.8-mile drive the shot of the startled driver were taken. Earlier photos on the roll showed the princess and Fayed getting into the Mercedes, and a later picture showed the crash scene, he said.

"The photo taken immediately before the first photo of the accident shows the Mercedes taken from very close," Dartevelle said.

"One sees very distinctly the driver dazzled by a flash," he said. "One sees very distinctly the bodyguard, at his side, who with a brisk gesture lowers the visor to protect himself from the flash, and one sees very distinctly Princess Diana, turning to look behind the vehicle, and one sees very distinctly the yellow headlight of a motorcycle."

Several witnesses have reported seeing a motorcycle with a yellow headlight following the Mercedes, he said.

The only survivor of the crash, bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones, is in a Paris hospital recovering from surgery and so far has been unable to speak with investigators.

The French daily Le Figaro quoted French investigators Tuesday as saying the accident most probably was caused "by alcohol and excessive speed."

A third blood test confirmed two earlier tests showing the level of alcohol in Paul's bloodstream was well above France's legal limit.

A highly placed judicial source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the test showed the alcohol level at 1.75 grams per liter of blood. A police source described it only as just under 1.8 grams. Two earlier tests showed a level of 1.75 and 1.82, respectively.

An anti-alcoholism group says a level of 1.75 is the equivalent of drinking nine shots of whiskey quickly.

Michael Cole, a London spokesman for Al Fayed, said: "We have not seen the report and we will be seeking professional advice." If the report that Paul had anti-depressants in his bloodstream is confirmed, investigators could argue that the drugs intensified the effects of the alcohol.

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

To infinity and beyond!

Traffic begins to build up yesterday afternoon on Route 9 near Northampton.

The art is formally known as Prints.
FRAMED (AND FRAMEABLE) REPRODUCTIONS. BEWARE OF IMPOSTERS.
Class up the joint, from 5.95
Faces
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

TOTAL FITNESS
Without Waiting In Line
$139
4 months
STUDENT SPECIAL
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116
So. Amherst • 256-0080

hey, hey, hey, it's the Phat-est newspaper in town!
Daily Collegian

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...
SHAB
Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care
Come join the Student Health Advisory Board
Informational meetings:
Wed. Sept 10 & 24, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304
For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 577-5181

Tonight
LIVE MUSIC
Featuring
LABB
-original music and great rock from the 60's- 90's
9:30 -1:00
Weekly Drink Specials
Rum & Coke $2.00
Sombreros $2.00
20oz. Big One Miller Lite $1.99
1/2 Price Appetizers 3pm-5pm 7pm-10:30pm
Smoking Section 10pm-1:00am
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant Street • Amherst

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

The American dream

What is the American life we all live and (hopefully) enjoy?

In particular, what does it mean to be an average, middle- class American?

Most of them are nice people, but like the middle classes throughout the ages, they are beasts of burden and they feel the stress. (This is not to imply that poorer groups don't have it worse!)

If you think "beast of burden" is too colorful a term, wait until you live the life for 10 years or so.

Let us say you leave college a free agent. You have some debt, but also some family support and a diploma. You get a decent job and life is open to you. Slowly you acquire things — possessions for your apartment, a car, credit and eventually a spouse. You still have freedom and choices. If your job (or your spouse) is horrible, you can get a new one. You can quit your job and let your spouse, savings or credit carry you for a while. It is relatively easy for you to move or even go back to college.

You eventually acquire more things — children, newer cars, a larger apartment, a house.

At this point, you have very few choices.

You have become established in your career and people depend on you. You can't afford to start over. Your family and your life require all you can give, and then some.

You need — all of the time — we need a vacation, honey — the old car is past its best — fill needs soccer shoes, and how about a better T.V. and Nintendo, and when did we last paint the house? — and when can we afford a new dining room set? How are we ever going to pay off the Visa card?

Then you need time. You spend your life working, or trying to keep up with the "stuff," or taking care of the kids. You love your spouse, but mostly what you do when you're together is work, taking care of life. Time when you don't feel pressured or tired is hard to come by.

It's hard to stay in love when you don't have fun together, and it's hard to enjoy your kids when you're constantly struggling with them — getting them dressed, getting them fed, getting them to do their homework. People generally end up feeling guilty and unrewarded.

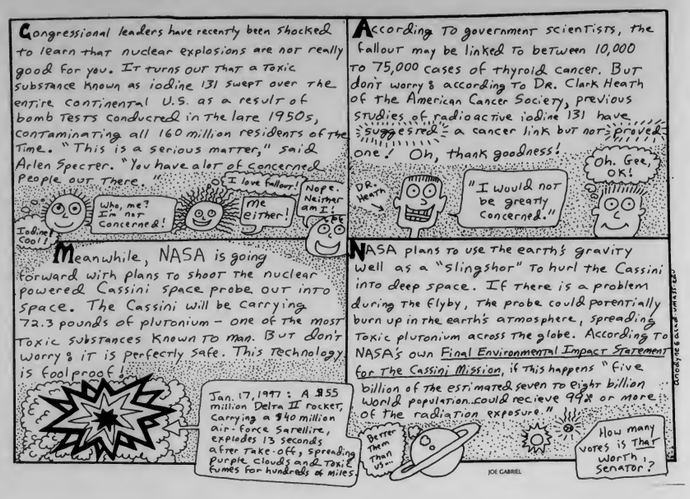
It's a mistake to say this won't happen to you, because this is the American life.

It's also a mistake to despise this life. Most people feel they gain more than they pay, but they wish the price didn't have to be quite so high.

Why do I say this life is particularly American, and not "modern" or "industrial?"

Because only in America have we declared war on full time jobs for average people; jobs that pay what people can really live on, not just survive on. Many, many people work two and three part time jobs, with no health insurance, trying to make things work for their families.

"We have declared war on full time jobs that pay what people can really live on, not just survive on. Many, many people work two and three part time jobs, trying to make things work for their families."



Megan Edwards

And, did you know, that Americans work more hours per year than any other top 10 country? Six full weeks more than the Germans, who say that it's wrong to reduce their standards to the lowest one going (in the name of the global work force). The crazy bastards want to raise the rest of the world's to theirs.

In the recent Teamster's strike, people argued over the "true purpose" of the strike, and whether or not it was "successful." But what seems more important is why the strike received so much public support. The individuals who went on strike, and the people who supported them, were making a statement about American life.

Frankly, I hope to see more strikes in the future, because I don't like seeing people living like rats in corporate America's maze. Free time just to live and freedom from worry are precious commodities that our culture consistently fails to value — they may lead to happiness and strong families, but they really aren't profitable.

Megan Edwards is a UMass student.

Looking for love

Welcome to the University of Massachusetts.

With all the welcomes, you're going to get plenty of advice. Some will be helpful: get involved and go to classes. Others will offer precious gems like, remember to bring a sleeping bag when dealing with Whitmore.

But the one thing you ought to keep in mind: the average freshman will date seven different people before leaving this University.

That's right. That's an average of at least one date every semester. You may have a dry spell or two. You will have the requisite horror date that you can regale future generations with, but don't despair. UMass seems to be a meat-market, with people frothing at the mouth. Some people are just practically screaming for sex. Others are just whispering their desire.

For a moment, put aside the usual lecture about pregnancy. Forget that one in four people is infected with some sort of STD. Just think about having a good time.

First you need to figure out what you're looking for. If it's sex you want, stock up on condoms and hit the bars. Love, you'll discover, is a little harder to find and infinitely harder to hold on to.

"Even if you went dateless in high school, there is an excellent chance you will find the significant other of your dreams here."

Seema Gangatirkar

Many of you came here in anticipation of the great romance. Are you the one sitting in Bio 100, eyes opened wide, trying to check out that cute thing sitting next to you — or maybe your brain is buzzing at the possibilities of that gorgeous guy living down the hall from you.

Even if you went dateless in high school, there is an excellent chance you will find the significant other of your dreams here. You will discover that UMass houses almost every variety of human possible within its inconsistent architecture.

There are tall people, short people, loud people, quiet people. For the Maoists, there is an entire organization on campus for you to meet other Maoists. Outdoorsy types can find their soulmate at any of the MASSPirg meetings or on the ski slopes with the Ski Club. And if you're really looking for someone out of this world, there's always the Science Fiction Club. Fans of family values and abstinence might consider joining the Republican Club.

So, the first tip in the search for your forever sweetheart is to cruise the Campus Center Concourse and check out the different organizations wooing you.

Don't be shy about your search. Step right up, look desperate and be bold. And the thing is, people here at UMass are on a hunt. They are also looking for the person they want to spend the rest of forever with. Scary huh? So you are in good company.

But beware of the taken people. If someone you meet seems almost too good to be true, chances are, he or she is taken. Commitment doesn't really seem to be a problem here at UMass. There are tons of engaged people running around this campus. But riddle me this, what of people who are engaged to be engaged? Is that a commitment to make a commitment?

Obviously, these engaged people are off the market. But because half the UMass population appears to be engaged should not discourage you. Consider that there are 25,000 people on this campus and you haven't even met a tenth of them yet. The possibilities are endless.

Just remember to be careful and have a good time. And if in the course of your searches, you come up with a dud, don't despair. Remember, the average freshman will date seven people before they graduate.

Seema Gangatirkar is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Calls for security at textbook annex

To the editor:

Given the security at the textbook annex's bag check area, it is no surprise that 10 backpacks were stolen from there in the past week. There is no visible security in the bag check area. Meanwhile, a campus police officer carefully watches the exit to make sure that no one steals any of the hugely overpriced textbooks. Something is wrong here. Obviously, it is important to have an officer present to prevent shoplifting. However, the annex should also provide security for the belongings of the students who patronize it.

The very least that they should do is have an annex employee stationed at the door to watch the bags.

Emily Callahan Grayson

Focus on Race

Next week, the Collegian Editorial page will publish a week–long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

Editorial can be submitted by email (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545–1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement.

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by email to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

Judgement day

Chris Stamm

Our legal system is a lot like the light inside a refrigerator.

Most people don't understand why that light comes on when we open the door, but when it's three in the morning and you get the urge to polish off that pint of Ben & Jerry's, aren't we all glad it works?

Unfortunately, after serving my first stint as a potential juror, I realized that many people don't understand that sentencing a person for a committed crime has much deeper ramifications than dusting off a bowl of "Chunky Monkey."

When that little piece of paper from the Commonwealth found its way to my mailbox summoning me to duty, I realized most citizens do not think about the U.S. legal system until they have to.

Frightening point.

After the bailiff makes sure you are not concealing any sort of weapon or contraband and the necessary paperwork has been submitted, the court shows you a video on the state court system. It was a good video: informative, short and to the point. As the lights went down, the two dozen faces in the humid basement stared at the screen with feigned attention — nodding in agreement, as if to say, "Yeah, I caught the episode of "Law & Order" when that happened."

When the home-video quality production came to an end and the bailiff left the room, I knew we were in trouble. The woman to my left turned toward me and insisted, "That's messed up. This state doesn't know what it's talking about. The Supreme Judicial Court isn't in Boston, it's in Washington, D.C."

I tried to tell her that the Supreme Judicial Court is the state's highest level court, but she insisted that the only "Supreme" court was in D.C. and she saw it two years ago when her family went to the Smithsonian.

Thing that makes you go Hmmmm.

After speaking with that woman, I was afraid, but I had hope. That is, until we were left alone for over an hour before being brought up to the court room. In that relatively brief period of time, I hid behind my copy of the Boston Globe. I was pretending to read Dan Shaugnessy while tuning my ears into different conversations around the room. According to the instructional video we all watched, we were taking part in one of our nation's most democratic practices — a jury, representing a diverse cross section of society, would collaborate to ensure justice (as prescribed in the Constitution) remained intact.

I don't think "cross section of society" means two college students amidst an assortment of white housewives and retired men without a single person of color.

Sorry if you're being tried today but...

Once we were ushered into the court and seated, the judge made his opening remarks. If anyone had extenuating circumstances prohibiting them from being selected for the case, they were to approach the bench and explain.

This was the first time any of my peers took interest in what was taking place.

When the moment of truth came and the judge announced the members of the pool that were empaneled, the courtroom took on the air of "The Price is Right From Hell." As each member was called to the stand, each face turned dim and pale.

How can justice be meted out by an apathetic group of people who want nothing more than to get the hell out of there as quickly as possible?

Chris Stamm is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor-in-Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quint Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quint Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1907, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

70's psycho emerges from his old rotten self

JOHN LYDON
Psycho's Path
Virgin

TIM O'BRIEN
When No One's Around
Sugar Hill Records

Trax On Trax Off

John Lydon — the eternally flippant and unrepentant Sex Pistol — has returned following last year's not–so–successful reunion tour with an eclectic solo offering, brimming with witty, often heart rendering tunes.

Instead of grabbing more filthy lucre by releasing an uncomplicated, bad–attitude punk record in deference to his days spent throwing up in airports, Psycho's Path (Virgin) is more likely to appeal to fans of his other highly influential band, Public Image Limited. Co–produced and performed entirely by Lydon, the album expresses his deeply personal viewpoints with a scalpel–like candor — and humor — reminiscent of his earlier work, yet steers clear of the Pistols' nihilistic fury and PIL's deliberately dehumanized coldness.

Musically both thoughtful and inventive, Psycho's Path reaffirms Lydon's knack for staying well ahead of musical trends, constantly pushing forward, rather than being content to blend in with the rest of the pack. "Sun" provides the perfect paradigm of this style. Instead of formulaic guitar– based sonic bombast subscribed to by seemingly everyone these days, Lydon uses toilet paper rolls and cardboard boxes to shape a futuristic pop–ambient melody around mournfully restrained vocals.

Overall then, a complex and intriguing record that reveals more of itself with multiple listens. A surprising treat. A– (Marty Keane)

Recently released just before his Aug. 24 show at the Iron Horse, Tim O'Brien's new album is a soothing, comfortable listening experience. While it will certainly never be considered revolutionary music, even in the elusive singer– songwriter sense, it is a meritorious and compelling effort.

Like most singer–songwriter albums these days, this one embraces folk and country influences. O'Brien also expresses Celtic tinges on "One Drop Of Rain," which was written with Hal Ketchum and features bright vocal harmonies between O'Brien, Ketchum, and fiddler Andrea Zonn. One of the disc's highlights, "Love Is Pleasin'," also utilizes a Celtic taste with an uplifting fiddle style indicative of the genre, played by O'Brien himself.

The artist also has a genuine love for gospel as is shown in the singing style of "Out On The Rollin' Sea," a traditional piece with a calypso feel to boot. He lets his country two–steppin' self come to light on "How Come I Ain't Dead." Later on, O'Brien evokes the feeling of this time of year with the slow, steel–guitar–tinged "First Days Of Fall."

When No One's Around is the type of album that you'll often find from Sugar Hill, a label that specializes in easy– going singer–songwriter discs. B (Joshua Boyd)

Talk Show
Talk Show
(Atlantic Records)

COURTESY MIKIO MIKA

John Lydon, one of punk's true pioneers, returns with a more restrained album.

For those who were wondering what would become of alt– rock's ultimate guilty pleasure — Stone Temple Pilots — without the ill–troubled Weiland, the answer has arrived in the form of Talk Show.

Comprised of the three "other" Pilots — Eric Kretz, Robert and Dean DeLeo — along with newcomer Dave Coutts, Talk Show's self–titled debut is altogether confounding, yet it still manages to answer one question unequivocally.

What it proves, and to no end, is just how bland and unoriginal the Stone Temple Pilots are without Weiland. Admittedly not a gifted lyricist and singer himself, Weiland's abstract mumbo–jumbo sound brilliant when compared to Coutts' banal contributions to Talk Show. Possessed with a second–rate hair metal voice, he sounds

Turn to TRAX, page 6

COURTESY SUGAR HILL RECORDS

Singer–songwriter Tim O'Brien's latest experiments with innovative Celtic musical styles.

Is film a legitimate art?

Adam Levine

Just over a hundred years ago, when the Lumiere Brothers first introduced the world to the wonders of filmmaking, an extraordinary new art form was thus created. Movies have undergone countless changes throughout this century. With new genres constantly emerging, studios have risen and fallen, and stars have both been made and lost. Amidst all this chaos concerning film's position in pop culture, where does film lie as a respected form of high art, and does it have any right to be regarded as such in the first place?

Film can be examined or analyzed on numerous levels, yet what separates it from other art forms is its distinction from popular media. There is a tremendous element of respect associated with artistic forms such as theater, dance, music, etc. However, film is not usually placed on this platform and, far too often, is regarded as a low art form. This is perhaps true, as a result of the simple notion of location and where one can witness an artistic event. Respectable "high" art forms including theater, opera, or classical orchestrated music are usually held in attractive auditoriums. The audience is well dressed for the event and understands the social codes of theater going, such as when to clap or the appropriate time to exit the theater.

Film, on the other hand, is viewed in movie theaters, in most cases. Movie theaters are big buildings with brand name logos, and are most likely found near or in shopping malls. One doesn't need to get well–dressed for a movie, or spend $75 for a ticket. Going to a movie doesn't require a tremendous amount of effort. These reasons, to name just a few, symbolize the hierarchy of cultural art forms. Film was once regarded as the seventh of these art forms. Today, I feel film has surpassed these imposed limitations and has risen above its unfortunate placement as a low brow form of entertainment.

In many ways, film is merely the combination of all the other artistic formats. There are elements of each that make filmmaking possible as well as innovative and intriguing. In fact, there are so many intricate details involved within filmmaking, that can be looked at as specific creative endeavors, including lighting, production design, costumes, etc. Many of these aspects can be found in theater and photography but within the element of film they can be recreated as unique entities which each work together to create a whole.

There are traces of choreography and painting within a film context. The director must stage his actors in the most aesthetic manners, creating beauty in their movements and actions. A frame must also be properly formatted so that it fits smoothly within the camera's lens. Colors must be strengthened or dulled depending on the director's intentions and lightening, both natural and unnatural, must be carefully displayed to bring about the highest quality possible. Music is also an integral aspect to filmmaking. Even before sound films were created, movie houses were accompanied by live pianists or in some cases full orchestras. No genre of music needs to be left out from a film, depending of course on how well it fits in to the films context. Although orchestrated music is the well–known accompaniment to a movie, country and rock have recently been popping up in order to help sell soundtracks.

There are more obvious reflections of other art form's similarities to film, acting and photography being the most notable. Yet, film is its own cultural entity and deserves the respect therefor given to these other arts. The current rise in independent films and art house theaters have served as a pleasant reminder of the classic movie houses of long ago. Film is a complicated portion of popular culture and should be enjoyed on its many different levels. What is important however, is how film in general is regarded, not as a low art, but as an important system of creativity and technological know how.

Film is finally receiving proper academic attention as an area of research, discipline and study. Universities are beginning to understand how certain cinema periods throughout history reflect progressive movement, or demonstrate the societal customs and norms of that time period. Directors must have an unprecedented knowledge of their fields in order to create extraordinary film art. Of course there will be good films and bad films, but yet are there not good and bad found in all art criticism, some plays or paintings are always going to better than others. Film is art as well as a collaboration of art and one day the world will acknowledge this.

Adam Levine is a Collegian columnist.

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call U Mass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
ART ON AMHERST TOWN COMMON SUPPLIES
• EXCELLENT QUALITY INVENTORY
• AFFORDABLE ART & TECHNICAL SUPPLIES
• TOP QUALITY FINE ART POSTERS
• POSTERS MOUNTED & FRAMED
• SPECIAL ORDERS ENCOURAGED
413*253*5592
44 So. Pleasant St. Amherst MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON

The Boltwood Project-
Your life will NEVER be the same!
>> FALL 1997 <<
Recruitment Nights:
6:00PM (note: Prompt Starting Time)
September 8-Campus Center Auditorium
September 9-Student Union Ballroom
September 10-Campus Center Auditorium
Possibility of Earning Credits

Throw pillows at Faces.
THROW LAMPS HOWEVER, AND YOU WILL BE ASKED TO LEAVE.
An arsenal of throw pillows, from 11.95
Pillows shown, from top: 34.95, 16.95, 19.95
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.
Faces HOME STORE

See the light.
BUY THE LIGHT AND SEE THE REST OF THE ROOM, TOO.
See the brilliant selection of lighting, from 7.95
Lamp shown-29.95
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.
Faces HOME STORE

EARRINGS • INCENSE • DRESSES • SKIRTS • RUGS • JOURNALS • GRATEFUL DEAD T-SHIRTS • CANDLES • MUGS • BEAN BAGS • GIFTS • SUNGLASSES • SWEATERS • CARDS • TOYS • RICE BOWLS
THE MERCANTILE HAS TAPESTRIES! AND COOL POSTERS!
The Mercantile
NORTHAMPTON 18 Center St. 584-1205
AMHERST Carnegie Shops 549-1396
Mon-Sat 10-6 Thur & Fri to 9 Sun 12-5

EXPANDED STATE OF THE ART MULTILEVEL FITNESS CENTER
ATTENTION CLINDERS! THE TREAD WALL IS HERE
•Cardio Theater
•New Recumbent Bikes
•Over 10 Treadmills
•Gravitron
•Precor EFX
COMING SOON: New Entrance & More Parking
THE CLUB
Tennis and Fitness Center
659 Amherst Rd Sunderland 549-3638

■ trax

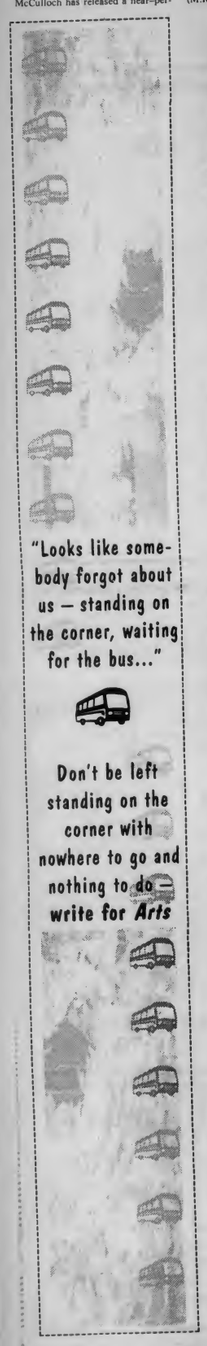
continued from page 5

laugh-out-loud awful throughout most of this abysmal collection of songs. Think of them as a new and more alternative Bon Jovi for the '90s, minus Jon, of course. D- (M.K.)

ECHO & THE BUNNYMEN
Evergreen
London

Echo & The Bunnymen return from a decade-long absence in triumph, ditching the ill-conceived Electrafixtion version of the Bunnymen for the real deal. Evergreen (London) is another stunning reminder that Ian McCulloch has released a near-perfect catalog of pop music since first donning his Navy pea coat in the late '70s.



Here, McCulloch reunites with original Bunnymen Will Sergeant (guitar) and Les Pattinson (bass) for a reunion album full of bravado ("Don't Let It Get You Down"), humility ("Nothing Lasts Forever"), and hope ("I'll Fly Tonight"). Matched with Sergeant's Eastern-influenced guitar washes and Pattinson's rock-solid bass foundation, Evergreen is a roller-coaster of emotional confessions, most fully articulated on the standout "Just A Touch Away."

Welcome back, indeed. B+ (M.K.)

COURTESY JOHN EGER

With STP on hold while Weiland deals with his problems, Talk Show attempts to create new trash.

"Looks like somebody forgot about us — standing on the corner, waiting for the bus..."

Don't be left standing on the corner with nowhere to go and nothing to do write for Arts

Back To School House ROCK!

aiwa
3 DISC CHANGER
20 WATTS/CHANNEL SHELF SYSTEM
• Full logic cassette deck • 2-way bass reflex speakers
• 3-disc CD changer • Remote control
• Aiwa NSXA22
$199.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SONY
50-1 MEGA STORAGE CD CHANGER
• Jog dial for rapid selection of discs
• Multi-disc 32 step programming
• Will work off any Sony receiver remote control
• Sony CDPCX50
50 to 1 CD Changer
$199.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SONY
WHY MAKE A COPY WHEN YOU CAN MAKE A CLONE?
HOME MINIDISC PLAYER/RECORDER
• Records up to 74 minutes of digital audio on one 2-inch disc
• Remote commander® remote control
• Digital inputs & outputs • 25 track programming
• Jog shuttle dial • Text display & entry
• CD synchro • Sony MDSJE510
$299.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

PICK-UP FREE STUFF just for stopping by!

klipsch
FLOORSTANDING SPEAKERS
• Horn-loaded tweeter
• 8" woofer in a vented enclosure
• Cabinet in sleek black finish
• Perfect for home theater
• 100-watt power handling
• Klipsch KSW.5V
BUY SAVE $100.00
$149.98 ea
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

maxell FREE 5 Minute Cassette Tape

Panasonic
4-HEAD VCR WITH VCR PLUS+
• Hi-Tech 4-head for better picture
• VCR Plus+ simplifies recording
• Digital auto picture
• Panasonic PV7401
$169.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

chili's GRILL & BAR $5 GIFT CERTIFICATE

SONY
900 MHz CORDLESS TELEPHONE
• 900 MHz extends range and improves sound
• 10-number speed dialing
• Up to 7 hr. talk time and 7-day standby
• Out of range alert
• Sony SPP930
$99.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

Panasonic
13" TV/VCR COMBO
• VCR features a high tech 4 video head system and auto clock set
• Swivel base • FM Radio
• Front A/V jacks
• Available with black or white cabinet
• Panasonic PVM1347/1357W
TV/VCR Combo!
$349.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SAMSUNG
25" DBX® STEREO TV
• Comb filter with contrast circuit enhancement
• Dark-tint picture tube
• Front and Rear A/V inputs
• Stereo output with dbx noise reduction
• Universal remote control
• Samsung TXG2548
$299.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

KENWOOD
HIGH POWER AM/FM CD PLAYER
• 30 watts x 4 channels • Single preamp output
• Disabled system indicator
• Detachable faceplate for security
• Kenwood KDCS3007
$249.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

Panasonic
PERSONAL CELLULAR PHONE
• Lightweight, slim size
• 2-line Alpha-numeric LCD display
• 60 minutes of talk time, 10 hours of stand-by
• Two one-touch dial locations
• 99 memory locations
• Panasonic EBH63S
FREE! WITH ACTIVATION
FREE Car adapter and leather carryin case with purchase
Certain restrictions apply. Price of phone is higher without activation. Subject to credit approval. See store for details.

Holyoke, MA
27 Holyoke Street in Holyoke Crossing
(413) 532-0400
Tweeter etc.
Stay Tuned...
All speakers sold in pairs only. Some pictures may be representational. We reserve the right to correct and/or clarify errors due to typography, photography or printing. Some items are of limited quantity.

Jordan promotes line of sportswear & shoes

By Skip Wollenberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Michael Jordan plans to keep a fresh imprint on basketball after his playing days are over by overseeing a line of sneakers and apparel bearing his name for his longtime sponsor Nike Inc.

The Chicago Bulls superstar has already added millions of dollars to Nike's bottom line, as well as his own bank account, with sales over the past 13 years of his signature Air Jordan shoes and clothing.

But with the end of Jordan's career possibly only a few years away, the nation's biggest athletic shoe marketer has come up with a way for Jordan to keep his hand in the game and his image on the shoes worn on court.

Jordan will run a broadened Jordan brand of basketball shoes and clothing that will not only include the Air Jordan line but other models that will be designed especially for other pro players picked by Jordan.

"I have been involved in the design of everything I have worn from Nike since we began our relationship in 1984," Jordan said Tuesday. "The launch of the Jordan brand is simply an extension of that process."

The first Jordan brand collection debuts in November, and Jordan said introductions will be timed for a Saturday so children won't miss school to get them. He said shoes in the Jordan line will be priced as low as $90 to make them more affordable.

The most expensive shoe sold by the new Nike division will be the $150 Air Jordan, which has a 3-D hologram on the heel and quilting on the sides.

Jordan told a news conference at New York's Niketown store, where some of his new fashions were modeled, that he expects to be heavily involved in designing the shoes and apparel. He said that will be an outlet for his creative ambitions and competitiveness.

In addition to Jordan, other players wearing the Jordan brand this season will include Eddie Jones of the Los Angeles Lakers, Vin Baker and Ray Allen of the Milwaukee Bucks, Michael Finley of the Dallas Mavericks, and Derek Anderson of the Cleveland Cavaliers. The Jordan brand will also be worn by teams at three colleges — Cincinnati, St. John's and North Carolina A&T.

The shoes and apparel ranging from sweatshirts and shorts to hats will feature the Jumpman logo — a silhouette of Jordan stretched to the maximum as he drives to dunk a basketball through the hoop.

The financial terms of the deal with Jordan were not disclosed but people familiar with it said it includes royalty payments based on sales.

Jordan is already tops among athletes in endorsement fees. The Sports Marketing Letter estimated his endorsement deals — ranging from Wheaties cereal, Ballpark Franks and Gatorade to Hanes underwear, Rayovac batteries and Bijan fragrances — should generate $40 million this year.

That includes an estimated $17 million to $18 million from Nike for the Air Jordan line alone, the newsletter's publisher Brian Murphy said.

Golfer Tiger Woods is second with about $25 million in endorsement earnings lined up for this year, according to the newsletter.

Jordan's endorsement total is in addition to the $33 million he will make playing basketball for the Bulls this year. That makes him the highest-paid athlete in team sports as well.

Asked on NBC's "Today" show on Tuesday morning whether this season would be his last, Jordan said "I don't think so."

Jordan, who has led the Bulls to five NBA championships in the 1990s, said the most important thing right now is a sixth title. "I think we are going to win again and go for seven," he said.

Nike is a heavyweight in the shoe business as well. It accounted for about 58 percent of the $1.3 billion market for basketball shoes last year, according to Diane Daggatt, analyst for the securities firm Dain Bosworth in Seattle.

She said Nike hopes the broadened Jordan line would help it capture 90 percent of the basketball market by the year 2000. "It's good positioning for Nike to feature Jordan separately," she said.

The Air Jordan line alone generates about $250 million in shoe and apparel sales a year, Nike officials say.

■ hockey

continued from page 10

Yet he reported to camp in excellent physical and mental shape.

He appeared as enthusiastic as rookies like Thornton, who was born the year the Bruins drafted Bourque in the first round.

"I don't know how you're supposed to feel when you're 36," Bourque said, "but I feel great, and, as long as I'm still enjoying it and doing the job, there's no reason I should feel any other way. It's just fun being around young guys."

Veterans joined rookies, who reported last Thursday, for the club's first full-squad workout under new coach Pat Burns, who is just nine years older than Bourque.

Bourque was 18 when he was drafted on Aug. 9, 1979. Boston's last three first-round choices are amazed at what he is still doing more than 18 years later.

"I think the guy's never going to slow down," said defenseman Kyle McLaren, the Bruins' top pick in 1995. "I think he can play maybe five more years."

"I'm sure he hasn't really changed from when he was an 18-year-old to what he is now," said defenseman Johnathan Aitken, the team's No. 1 choice in 1996. "I consider myself fortunate to play beside an athlete like him."

Then there's 18-year-old Thornton, the first pick in the entire 1997 draft and the high-scoring forward the Bruins hope to rebuild around. He met Bourque for the first time Monday night.

"He came up and introduced himself and I was really excited. He seems like a really good guy," Thornton said.

Bourque recalls the year he was the Bruins first-round pick. He joined veterans Wayne Cashman, Brad Park, Jean Ratelle and Gerry Cheevers in his first camp.

■ football

continued from page 10

But yet, they still beat BC.

I don't really know what to say about the Eagles. I felt kind of bad picking on them like I did last year. And yet, they just continue to make themselves whipping boys. When you play a team that averages less than 5,000 fans, despite being a member of the Big East, and you're breaking in a new coach after a year of scandal and a program slipping away, the least you can do is win.

I mean, the Eagles must have seen the schedule in the summer and thought, "Okay, we open against Temple. At least we'll start off the right foot."

The way things are looking over at the Heights, it's beginning to look like they might never get off on the right foot again.

Tomorrow night's game...
Alabama at Vanderbilt

If you stay in and watch this game, I'm worried about you. I'm not kidding. Vanderbilt will never be good. Ever. Just go out, and try and forget they ever scheduled this for national T.V. If we stick together, we can get through this.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

■ soccer

continued from page 10

midfielders, but I think we're doing a pretty good job," Bartlett said.

"The more we play, the more we're connecting better as the season is going along," Lecot said, who played for the University of Maine last season. "We're beginning to mold together. When I was in Maine, we had to be strong defensively, so we had a lot of players back.

"Most of the time, I was left alone upfront, and now I have more support. I love it here, and I've always looked up to UMass as a great school. I'm so happy I'm here."

After Bartlett's goal at the 13:27 mark, Lecot got on the board with sheer hustle, beating Fitzmaurice and sophomore defender Lauren Lustig to a ball at the top of the penalty box, with her chip just rolling over the goalline for the 2-0 lead. Rutherford blasted a shot high in the corner right of Fitzmaurice at the 15:15 mark for the 3-0 score, with assists going to Bartlett and Lecot.

Iverson and Rutherford capitalized on a scramble in the penalty area, with Rutherford sending a short cross in from the left side of the box, and Iverson beautifully heading in the fourth goal of the game for UMass.

The magic of the corner kick continued for the Minutewomen, and Smith one-touched Kurowski's corner on the far post for the rapidly escalating 5-0 lead.

After a hard collision between Fitzmaurice and Bartlett, which knocked her out of the game, Green took advantage of the ensuing anarchy that followed with a seeing eye goal from a tough angle to the right of the goal for the 6-0 score. Lecot finished off the scoring, and after a second half where Rudy was able to give some fitness time to sophomores Cindy Garceau and Kate Webb, who have been out due to injuries, UMass rolled easily to the 7-0 win.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Stairmasters + LifeCycles + Recumbents + Treadmills
Free Weights + Gravitron + Keiser + Nautilus + Cybex
Precor Elliptical + Rowers + NordicTrack + Kayak
STUDENT SPECIAL $139
BROCHURE http://www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 Rt. 116, So. Amherst

Don't just make your bed. Make your room.
BEDSPREADS AT FACES.

A king size selection, from 9.95
Faces HOME STORE
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

Drivers Wanted for Morning Paper Delivery

Have no classes before 10 am??
DELIVER FOR THE COLLEGIAN*
* must supply your own car
If interested, call 545-3500
or stop by the Collegian at 113 Campus Center Basement
must be available between 7:00am to 10:00am monday - friday

Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
COMING SEPTEMBER 23RD
WATCH FOR MORE INFORMATION IN UPCOMING COLLEGIANS
Collegian Open House • Collegian Open House

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

If you don't think that being in a sorority is for you, you probably have not checked out our house. Come to Open House Rush Sept. 9, 10, 11 at 8pm. Iota Gamma Upsilon, 406 N. Pleasant St. For info or a ride call Kendra at 549-1970.

Cheap Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union, Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

AUTO FOR SALE

1987 Mazda 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patti)

85 Chrysler LeBaron mint condition, A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo, power windows and locks. 95,000 miles. $700 or B/O. Call Bruce 256-1215

Nissan Maxima 85 StationWagon All Powers, music system optional. Best offer. Call 546-2002. Ask for Z.

EMPLOYMENT

CANTONE'S PIZZA NOW HIRING DRIVERS PART-TIME AND FULL-TIME You must have a reliable vehicle. Apply after 3 pm. 481 West St. (Route 116) South Amherst, across from the Amherst Ale House. 256-6100

Drivers Wanted Car needed. Apply in person at Pinocchio's Pizza. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Kai Chi Restaurant Drivers and Waitstaff Wanted. Part-Time. Apply within. Route 9, 335 Russell St., Hadley. 586-2774

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221

Jobs For The Environment
Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/Day. Call Terri 256-6434

Cooks Wanted
Experience a plus but not necessary. Apply immediately in person. Cutty's Food and Spirits. 55 University Drive. 549-5700

EMPLOYMENT

UMass Athletic Development- Event Staff wanted for Athletic Fund Events throughout the 1997-98 athletic year. Must be 21+. For further information respond to 308 Mullins, or call 545-9672.

Mother's Helper Wanted 10-15 hrs. per week. Please call 549-7788

Care Provider Needed Monday thru Friday 8:30-5:30. Two children. Amherst home. Good pay. Nice family. Own car. Love for children. Non-smoking. Call evenings. Leave voice mail message for Dave. Press 1. 256-6006

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

Full-Time Day Delivery or Kitchen Help Wanted 30-40 hrs/week. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Drivers and Kitchen Help Must be able to work 30 hours per week. Flexible hours. Apply at D.P. Dough, Downtown Amherst. 256-1616

Part-Time Administrative Assistant
Clerical position in small Amherst office of Spanish study abroad program. Located on bus route.

EMPLOYMENT

Requirements: data entry, computer skills, and excellent grammar/spelling skills. Knowledge of Spanish a plus. Approximately 20 hours/week; afternoons preferred. Competitive salary. Send letter and resume to: CC-CS, 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Furniture For Sale Will take best offer. Call Scott or Pete. 549-3747

2 Tap Keg System 4-Sale Call James 549-7598

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

INSTRUCTION

Performing Arts Division
offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance. PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall. UMASS (413)545-0519 for info.

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Amherst Tues. and Thurs. Call (413)732-8817

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

LOST

Keys lost at Haigis Mall on Saturday, 6th. Copper clip with black cord attached to key ring. 5-7 keys including dorm key. Reward offered. Call The Collegian at 5-3500 if found.

MISCELLANEOUS

#1 Campus Fundraiser
Raise all the money your group needs by sponsoring a VISA Fundraiser on your campus.
No investment & very little time needed. There's no obligation, so why not call for information today.
Call 1-800-323-8454 x 95.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT!
Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at (603)889-0686

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

COMPUTER SERVICES
Mac Magic
Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant.
Alvin C. Whaley (413)584-7904
Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals.
Your office, dorm, or home.

CLASSFIEDS

available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

SERVICES

CARRIERS AND DRIVERS NEEDED

for morning delivery of Newspapers on campus and in Amherst.

Call John Riley at 584-7804 College News Service

11 Bridge Street Sunderland, MA

Ben's

new & used vehicles repairs foreign & domestic

Tel. (413) 665-3344
Fax (413) 665-3966

Bob Connelly
Shop Manager

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exception are for birthday or congratulation personals, in which the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and phone number of the person placing the ad filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION WANTED TO RENT, WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend an open house from 6–7 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549– 6070.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will hold its first meeting of the semester at 7 p.m. in Campus Center, room 165. Everyone is welcome. Bring your own work or someone else's or just come and listen. Call Tim at 546– 0819 or Kaye at 548–8042.

Meeting — The UMass Theatre Guild's first general meeting will be held in the Campus Center, room 903.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 11

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend a patio party from 5–7 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549– 6070.

Greek life — Sigma Delta Tau will hold open fall rush from 6–8 p.m. at 409 North Pleasant St.

Yoga — An Introduction to Yoga & Meditation (lecture and practical experience) by Dada Anantananda will be held in the Campus Center, room 904–08 at 7 p.m. Free admission. Sponsored by the Ananda Morga Yoga & Meditation Society.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 12

Meeting — A Welcoming Reception for South Asian students will be held at 5 p.m. in the Durfee Conservatory, behind the public health building. Everyone is welcome. Free ethnic food.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild and University Productions & Concert will be holding auditions for the fall musical production of The Who's Tommy Friday, Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Auditions will also be held Saturday, Sept. 13 at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Call backs are Sunday, Sept. 14 at 11 a.m. Audition pieces will be provided. For questions call 545–0415 or 545–2892.

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. Donations can be made Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill, and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 10–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

Tonight & Every Wednesday
The New Horizon Band $3 cover

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Channel
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 UMATV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN/Headline News
25 BET
26 BET on Jazz
27 UCTV
28 The Learning Channel
28 TV Land
30 Comedy Central
32 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Cranberry

WEDNESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 10, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Savage Skies (In Stereo)				Savage Skies (In Stereo)
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	Nanny (R)	★★½ "Presumed Innocent" (1990, Drama) Harrison Ford. (In Stereo)			News		Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Nanny (R)	★★½ "Presumed Innocent" (1990, Drama) Harrison Ford. (In Stereo)			News		Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Draw Carey	Spin City	Draw Carey	Ellen (R)	Primetime Live		News	Nightline
WLVI	6	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	Sister, Sister	Smart Guy	Wayans Bros.	Steve Harvey	News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	"She Cried No" (1996, Drama) Candace Cameron Bure				Law & Order "Deadbeat" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX		Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	Sentinel "Warriors"				News	LAPD	Vibe
WVIT		News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	"She Cried No" (1996, Drama) Candace Cameron Bure				Law & Order "Deadbeat" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	11	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Beverly Hills, 90210 "Aloha Beverly Hills"				News		Coach	Deep Space 9
WVIL	12	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	"She Cried No" (1996, Drama) Candace Cameron Bure				Law & Order "Deadbeat" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	13	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Voyage of the Matthew (In Stereo)						Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	16	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Ent. Tonight	Draw Carey	Spin City	Draw Carey	Ellen (R)	Primetime Live		News	Nightline
WSBK	18	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Seinfeld	Mad Abo. You	Sentinel "Warriors"		Star Trek: Voyager "The Gift"		News	Real TV	TBA	M*A*S*H
WTBS	22	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	★★½ "The Running Man" (1987, Science Fiction) Arnold Schwarzenegger				★★ "Braddock: Missing in Action III" (1988)
A&E	33	Quincy "Let Me Light the Way"		Law & Order "Discord"		Biography: Bugsy Siegel		American Justice		20th Century (R)		Law & Order
CNN	40	21	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live	World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	42	24	Foreworthy	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	★★½ "Young Einstein" (1988, Comedy) Yahoo Serious.			South Park (R)	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	43		Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Strange Planes (R)		Wild Discovery: Deep Water		Discover Magazine "Origins"		Ultimate Stuntmen	Wild Discovery: Deep Water
ESPN	45		Up Close	Sportscenter		Major League Baseball: Teams to Be Announced. (Live)						Major League Baseball: Teams TBA
LIFE	47		Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"Terror in the Shadows" (1995, Suspense) Mercy Walker			Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	51		MTV Live	Viewers	Best of MTV (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot	Real World	Austin Stories	Oddville, MTV	Loveline
NICK	55		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug		Rugrats		Hey Arnold!	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days
SCIFI	61		Twilight Zone	Darkside	Crash of 2000	Inside Space	Sequest DSV (In Stereo)		★★ "Star Chamber" (1992, Comedy) Paul Hipp, Martha Quinn.			Crash of 2000	Inside Space
TLC	69	24	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Sea Tek (R)		Pop Science	Human Experience (R)		Technology (R)	Sea Tek (R)
TNT	65		Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		★★★ "The Wiz Wagon" (1967, Western) John Wayne.			★★ "The Way West" (1967, Western) Kirk Douglas
USA	62		Renegade "No Good Deed"		Highlander: The Series (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger		"Cover" (1997, Drama) Elizabeth McGovern. (In Stereo)			Silk Stalkings Working Girl
HBO	71		(5:30) ★★½ "Cinderella" (1997)		Inventors' Special (In Stereo)		★½ "The Arrival" (1996, Science Fiction) Charlie Sheen. PG-13			★★ "The Silencers" (1996) Jack Scalia. R		"Laura" (1995)
MAX	73		★★★½ "Awakenings" (1990, Drama) Robin Williams. PG-13				★★★ "Frankie and Johnny" (1991, Comedy, Drama) Al Pacino. R			★★★ "Executive Decision" (1996, Suspense) Kurt Russell. R
SHOW	76		★★ "Canadian Bacon" (1995, Comedy) Alan Alda. PG				★½ "The Fan" (1996, Suspense) Robert De Niro. (In Stereo) R			Dead Man's Gun (In Stereo)		Fast Track	"Snow White"

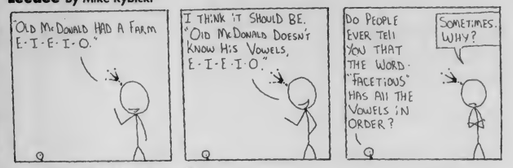
Bruno By C. Baldwin

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Thatch By Jeff Shesol



Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Loser Crew By Alan DeMonde

8 Years in Braces By Eric Peterson

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You are heading for something you were best to avoid, but in order to do so you must anticipate events and forestall developments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — It is important to listen to what others have to say today. What you can learn through the grapevine will serve you well in days to come.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You will very likely hook up with someone today who proves compatible, and eager to join you in your efforts. This team can go places!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Do not make the mistake of moving on to something else before you are finished entirely with the first thing you undertake today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — The more thorough you can be in preparation today, the more impressive you can be in execution. Others are watching!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Someone who is usually quite critical of you and your affairs may prove unusually supportive today. This may be a permanent change!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Your day is likely to be filled with engaging and invigorating conversation of all kinds. What you give you'll get back in abundance!

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You mustn't let someone else's caution hold you back today. If you feel confident and ready, there is no reason to balk at a new adventure.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — There are those who claim that you are afraid of making any kind of commitment at this time. This is a good day to prove them wrong.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You can begin building an important and profitable partnership with a Libra or Scorpio native today, but you must be ready to take it slow.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You want things to be for keeps at this time. They can be, provided you are not too possessive or inflexible in your approach toward others.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You are ready to have things your way, but you may have to make one last sacrifice today before all your ducks are neatly in a row.

Quote of the Day

"bastard son of a bastard son of a wild eyed child of the sun"

–Smashing Pumpkins from "to forgive"

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Ma'am, would you mind wearing this for about 10 minutes? We're going to play a little prank on the gentleman sleeping in the seat in front of you!"

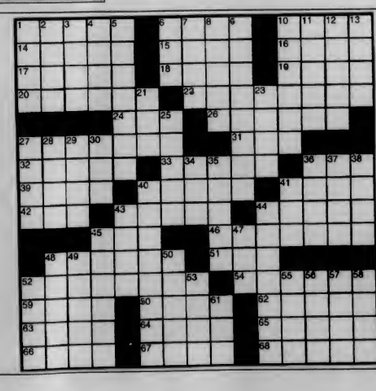
Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Hot Pastrami on Rye
Ravioli w/ Tomato Sauce
Vegan Ravioli
DINNER
Roast Pork
Chili Cheese Puff
1/4 lb. Burger/Swiss Burger
Franklin Dinnertime Gravytrain Surprize

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Fettuccini/Tomato Sauce
Lentil Chili
Daily Collegian
DINNER
Roast Pork
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Savory Stuffed Peppers
Pasta: Tortellini

Hampshire
LUNCH
Cowburger
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Macaroni and Cheese
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
DINNER
Pineapple Ham Steak
Turkey Divan
Pineapple Ham Steak with Butter
Pineapple Ham Steak with Croutons

Berkshire
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Seafood Salad in Sundried Tomato Wrap
Grilled Portabella Mushrooms
Grilled Portabella w/ Cheese
DINNER
Roast Pork
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Hot & Spicy Vegie Pasta
Pastabilities



ACROSS
1 Cowboy movie
6 Adventurous
10 "The Georgia Peach"
14 Jot down
15 Unemployed
16 — Ben Adhem
17 Parasite
18 Trounce
19 Actor Connery
20 Window frames
22 Gemstone
24 Military addr.
26 Citizen's —
27 Occasions for pinatas
31 Fishing —
32 River of India
33 To the third power
36 Tennis shot
39 Take a — at: try
40 Partnered
41 Tramp
42 Newscaster Brokaw
43 Enchantress
44 Small quarrel
45 The good — days
46 Gulped down
48 Iron-on pictures
51 Radio buff
52 Spaghetti extra
54 Like polluted air
59 Actress Martinelli
60 "High —"
62 Author Dillard
63 Reporter's question
64 Extinct bird
65 Tropical fruit
66 Team
67 Rushed
68 Chemical compound

DOWN
1 Night birds
2 District
3 Hairdressery purchases
4 Engrave
5 Warms over
6 Overalls top
7 Concert halls
8 South American animal
9 Prevented
10 Redeemed (a check)
11 Does as told
12 Brag
13 Baseball play
21 Resort
23 Walked
25 Actor's goal
27 Clenched hand
28 Division word
29 Mild cheese
30 Deli buy
34 Rocky Mountain tribe
35 Park seat
36 Extended
37 Stage award
38 Saver's purchase
40 Central England
41 Embrace
43 Thick slice
44 Type of sale
45 Fuel rating
47 Owns
48 Indian city
49 Relieved
50 Sailing vessel
52 Gulls' cries
53 Ore deposit
55 Burden
56 Pesky insect
57 Contribute
58 2,001, e.g.
61 Head movement

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

S	A	M	B	A	C	E	A	S	E	S	A	P
O	L	E	O	I	S	A	N	O	N	A	S	T
S	T	R	A	P		D	O	L	L	H	O	U	S	E
O	A	R	H	U	E	S		A	D	D	E	R
	I	N	A	P	T		B	A	N	D	I	T	S
G	A	M	E	L	S		N	A	R	C	S
A	L	E	R	T		A	E	R	I	E		B	I	D
B	A	N	D		F	I	E	L	D		N	U	D	E
D	I	T		H	E	R	D	S		F	E	L	O	N
	F	A	T	E	S		F	R	I	L	L	Y
A	P	P	L	I	E	D		R	E	E	L	S
R	A	R	E	R		A	U	D	I		S	K	E
O	R	D		A	D	J	U	M	P		G	R	A	Y	E	R
O	K	S		O	A	K	I	T	E		H	Y	E	N	A
R	A	E		S	W	E	D	E		T	I	E	S	I	T	S

9-10-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

Night Editor: Seema Gangatirkar
Photo Technician: Thang Vo
Copy Editor: Lorraine Kennedy
Production Supervisor: Jaylyn Lombard
Production Staff: Leon Latino, Josh Sylvester

SPORTS

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Wednesday, September 10, 1997

UF, UW show they're for real

Didn't I tell you Washington was good?

Their 42–20 spanking of BYU, in Provo, told the college football world that the Huskies are for real.

Didn't I tell you Florida was still good?

By beating Central Michigan 82–6 (apparently Eastern and Western Michigan couldn't make it), Florida proved that running up the score on rinky–dinky programs is still one of Steve Spurrier's favorite ways to spend a Saturday.

College Football

Luke Meredith

(I can see Stunning Steve shaking the other coaches hand after the game, like a Marine, and going "Yeah, nice game. For a bunch of chicks.")

What about Syracuse, huh? Didn't I tell you they'd get off to a fast start?

Uhh, oh yeah. Well, they're not too good, I guess. Donovan McNabb has cool hair, though. That has to count for something.

Well, there's my sleeper, Wisconsin. They won this week, right?

Yep, they squeaked by that powerhouse, Boise St. (not to be confused with late–1960's juggernaut Boise Tech, or the always sneaky Boise Teacher's College). Their monumental 28–24 win tells me they'll be Top Ten in no time.

There's a reason sleepers got their name. They're not supposed to be good, but you hope they sneak out a few wins and make you look like you know what you're talking about. Sometimes it works out.

And sometimes, sleepers keep sleeping. In my case, it seems as though Syracuse and Wisconsin will be napping right through bowl season. Oh well.

Hey, didn't you guys used to be good?

Notre Dame looked to have it made on Saturday. There was the jacked–up home crowd, bolstered by the addition of 20,000 seats in the grandest old field in the land. There was the fired up new head coach, in his first game of what many hope is a legacy. There was the fired–up senior quarterback trying to prove his critics wrong.

Throw in Georgia Tech, a suitable sacrificial lamb, and all signs pointing to an Irish thrashing that would end with the band playing the alma mater over and over and streams of J. Crew–clad rich white kids screaming "Let's get hammered, boss!" and raging well into the South Bend night.

Well, they did win, but it was hardly the victory Bob Davie had hoped for in his inaugural game as coach of the Fighting Irish. Sneaking past Georgia Tech 17–13 late in the fourth quarter, at home, is not the way to move up the polls, especially in the "Run up the score so we can impress those AP voters" 90's. Ron Powlus was, well, Ron Powlus, which is never good, and there just wasn't much of that old Notre Dame around. It looks like another disappointing year is ahead of them. Put it this way: if Rudy was on the team now, he'd play. Not all the time, but he'd play.

The "Friends of the Program" Inside Tip of the Week...

My housemate Dave weighs in with this week's pick. Dave tells me that North Carolina, a 13 point favorite at home against Stanford, is the lock of the week, and I agree with him. Mack Brown will have the troops running extra laps after they only managed 23 points against a weak Indiana team last week, so look for a breakout game from a team that could make a run for an Alliance bid.

Booty Schwag of the Week Award...

You know, I thought I could bury it. I though it could retire with the grace and dignity associated with the schwag, and avoid any Willie Mays, 1973 Mets–esque ugliness. I wanted to leave the schwag on top.

Leave it to Boston College to drag it back to the bottom.

Let's try to put in perspective exactly what happened Saturday in Veterans Stadium.

BC lost to Temple, 28–21.

Temple.

28–21.

Before Saturday, Temple was 5–40 under Ron Dickerson. The Big East told Temple that if they didn't meet certain performance standards, they'd be kicked out of the conference. That's how bad they are.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 7

Minutewomen jump out early, crush URI Rams 7–0

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

In the grand scheme of life, sometimes you will see something occur right before your eyes, and it is just too good to be real. Whether it is a good or bad thing, that certain "something" happens, and it totally knocks you off your feet.

On a sun–splashed Totman Field yesterday afternoon, the No. 14 Massachusetts women's soccer team had seven of those certain somethings, obliterating the University of Rhode Island by a 7–0 score. After a 3–2 loss to Dayton in the Atlantic 10 championship game last season, the Minutewomen (3–0) have reassumed head honcho status in the conference, with yesterday's match against the Rams (1– 2) beginning their conference schedule.

Seven of those certain something were a good thing for UMass, with the team not showing any letup after a close 2– 1 win over Michigan last Friday. Junior forward Sophie Lecot (2 goals, 1 assist), from Gatineau, Que., supplied her own je ne sais quoi, notching a goal and a assist, scoring the final goal of the match at the 43:45 mark on the far post off of a corner kick by sophomore Emma Kurowski.

Also, freshman Brooke Bartlett (1 goal, 2 assists) scored her first goal for UMass, and the first of the game with a right–footed shot from 12 yards out, beating freshman goalkeeper Julia Fitzmaurice low to her left. However, it was almost the entire Minutewoman squad that got into the scoring action, with Kurowski (3 assists), senior Liz Rutherford (1 goal, 1 assist), senior Erica Iverson (1 goal), junior Robin Smith, and freshman Kara Green (1 goal) all getting into the scoring column.

Seven of those certain something were a bad thing for the Rams, with UMass outshooting URI by a 28–0 margin — in the first half alone. The Rams came into the match with two good losses, allowing only four goals in defeats to New Hampshire and Providence.

For UMass coach Jim Rudy, years of a Dutch–style, possession 'til you drop style of play has evolved into a knock–out punch style of offense with the speediness and goal scoring touch of his midfielders and forwards.

In this game, Rudy took a page from the Michigan book, and it worked out for his team, and more obviously, the scoreline.

"The way I look at it is that we got a chance to do those things we saw Michigan do to us," Rudy said about this game, which tied the mark of the most goals scored in a match in his tenure at UMass. "We saw it on videotape, they emulated it in practice, and we trained at it yesterday, which was target work, getting balls played up and getting a lot of people involved.

"They were known before this as a pretty defensive side, but we moved the ball too quickly for them to do it, and that was the point. We played more towards the speed that we would like to play this year. We're getting there."

Both Bartlett and Lecot are newcomers to the Minutewoman squad, but the forwards on this team are already beginning to gel. In a sense, the frontline is beginning to resemble English football's 1996 Newcastle United squad, who possessed three high–scoring international forwards (England's Alan Shearer and Les Ferdinand, and Columbia's Faustino Asprilla), than the UMass teams' of the recent past who only provided one true scoring threat.

"I'm excited about the goal, but I only wished I could have got more," Bartlett said about her first collegiate goal. "I think that a lot of the forwards get along real well, and we are already beginning to know each other's style.

"We have a lot of talent upfront, and we just have to connect more with the

Turn to SOCCER, page 7

JORMA KANSANEN/COLLEGIAN

Sophomore forward, and UMass' leading scorer, Emma Kurowski notched three assists in yesterday's 7–0 win over Rhode Island at Totman Field.

New ball boy for the Minutewomen?

In my four years at this university, I have taken the necessary steps to accordingly train myself in the popular medium that I'm now presented upon before your very enfranchised eyes — the newspaper business.

From covering various sports with various degrees of success for various newspapers in various countries (well, actually, only two countries... so work with me here, people), while also quite often taking the photographic route to balance my resume, I have begun to think that this is the right career decision for myself.

Jorma Kansanen

Yet, after yesterday's 7–0 shellacking of the University of Rhode Island Rams at the hands of the No. 14 Massachusetts women's soccer team, where I once again had the chance to snap some photographs (do ya like photography, eh? Photographs, eh? Nudge, nudge, say no more), I have begun to question this career decision.

Simply said, I want to be a ball boy, and you can be my ball...woman? Hah, nudge, nudge... say no more.

While staking my photo area out behind the Rams' goal (I had to do some serious wrestling — yeah right — with the Fanatic 40 and even worse, soccer parents), I unknowingly became a ball boy. After a first half that saw UMass outshoot URI by a inconceivable 28–0 margin, with seven of those shots becoming goals of the quite photographic variety, I was almost more busy throwing the soccer balls back out on to the pitch than doing my duty.

From goal kicks to free kicks to corner kicks, I became one with the "ball boy," or should I say "ball person," mindset, with a sort of bonding occurring between me, the referee and one of the "ball persons" who roamed the far sideline. By the end of the half, and I did actually count this statistic in my oh so statistical brain, I saved more shots on goal than the Rams' starting keeper, Julia Fitzmaurice (eight shots for me, and six shots for her).

Really, I'm not kidding.

UMass came out onto The Field Formerly Known As NoPE (before being dedicated as Totman Field, it was known as Northern Physical Education), firing on all cylinders yesterday afternoon, and with a new offensive scheme that involved every Minutewoman player this side of the Wachusett Reservoir.

After making Michigan black and blue with a close 2–1 win last Friday afternoon at a packed Totman Field, UMass took a page from the Maize and Blue, and used their experienced defense and speedy frontline in conjunction with one another. With this being the third game of the season, the offensive production for the Minutewomen is evenly spread out through the entire lineup.

Last year's A–10 Rookie of the Year, sophomore Emma Kurowski has taken the spot she held at the end of last season, and is the team's leading scorer once again (3 goals, 4 assists, 10 points). Kurowski is already on a pace to eclipse her 1996 scoring mark (29 points), and she has plenty of scoring help in Sophie Lecot (7 points), Robin Smith (5 points) and Kara Green to rely upon this season.

And with their A–10 schedule continuing this weekend against Duquesne and St. Bonaventure, I just might be a ball boy once again... and you can be my ball "person," if you want to show up.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

JORMA KANSANEN/COLLEGIAN

Senior defender Amy Burrill and the UMass defense spent more time serving soccer balls then defending them in their 7–0 win over URI yesterday afternoon.

Minutewomen battle BC

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

In the last 15 years the Massachusetts field hockey team has racked up some impressive numbers against Boston College — most notable of which is the win total.

Pam Hixon, who left UMass to become the full–time U.S. National team coach, has 13 victories against the Eagles. Megan Donnelly, who served as the Minutewoman coach while Hixon concentrated on the 1996 Summer Olympics, has two.

UMass Field Hockey
Massachusetts vs. Boston College
Garber Field 3:30 p.m.

Today at 3:30 p.m., new UMass coach Patty Shea will try to add her name to that list, as the BC Eagles visit town for a showdown at Richard F. Garber Field.

Boston College is putting the pressure on, coming to Amherst riding a two–game win streak that has seen the Eagles score five goals in each contest.

In the BC Field Hockey Tournament, Southwest Missouri State fell, 5–1, while BC beat La Salle, 5–0.

The Eagles scoring power has come in the form of Andrea Durko and Julianne Marrone. The tandem has combined for seven of the team's 10 goals on the year.

Marrone, a sophomore forward, pocketed a pair against Southwest Missouri and one goal in the second game; Durko, a senior forward, tallied one in the first game and three against La Salle.

Massachusetts, though, had little trouble in the offensive production category in its season opener, a 8–1 clinic of a win over California that saw four different UMass scorers.

Junior Erica Johnston opened her year with a four–goal effort against the Golden Bears, while sophomore Christine Millbauer tallied the first two of her career.

Senior forward and co–captain Courtney MacLean scored once, and junior Vicky Browne collected her first tally as a Minutewoman.

Sunday's game against Michigan State proved a tougher challenge for UMass, as the Minutewomen were only able to muster two goals to the Spartans' three. Johnston and Browne each scored for UMass.

A deciding factor in the MSU game was the fact that it was UMass' second game in as many days. Those physical limitations, as well as the desire to repeat the previous day's performance, translated into mixed results for the team.

It was in the last 15 minutes of the game, though, that the players and Shea alike noticed a change.

"I asked them what the difference was in the last 15 minutes," Shea said Sunday. "They said they felt a sense of urgency. I told them they should feel that right at the beginning. Now they know the kind of emotion and urgency they need to have right at the start."

And that emotion, intensity, drive and urgency will be a necessity if the Minutewomen are to give Shea her first win over the Eagles.

Bourque returns to the Bruins

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Mass. — On the eve of his 19th training camp with the Boston Bruins, Ray Bourque introduced himself to highly touted rookie Joe Thornton.

"He said, 'I'm Ray,' " Thornton recalled with a laugh. "I'm like, 'Oh, you don't need to say that to me. I think I know that already.' "

Who doesn't?

Coming off another strong season with no plans for retirement, the five–time Norris Trophy winner remains one of the NHL's best defensemen. But he took part in his first training camp practice Tuesday morning still trying to satisfy one of his harshest critics — himself.

"I've got to prove myself every year that I still belong," he said. "I'm really a perfectionist. I'm hard to please and I just answer to myself."

He is a sure Hall of Famer and the highest scorer in Bruins history. But he'll turn 37 in December and, since the Bruins missed the playoffs last season for the first time in 30 years, probably will never win a Stanley Cup.

Turn to HOCKEY, page 7

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 7 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Thursday, September 11, 1997

Wake up and smell the coffee aStudents are flocking to coffee houses. Is the attraction more than coffee? Check inside to see what we found out (see Arts & Living, page 5).

UMass clips Hawks

Behind a strong performance from Ola Gerisamova, the Massachusetts women's tennis team beat Hartford 7–0 in the season opener. Get the scoop (see Sports, page 14).

WORLD

Cuba announces arrest in hotel explosions

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba announced yesterday that it had arrested a Salvadoran man for a series of hotel blasts in Havana that killed an Italian businessman, and accused a Miami–based exile group of being behind the bombings.

The Cuban Interior Ministry identified the suspect as Raul Ernesto Cruz Leon and announced his arrest on a government television station, according to a dispatch from the official Cuban news agency Prensa Latina, monitored in Mexico City.

The ministry also accused the Cuban American National Foundation — bitter opponents of Cuban leader Fidel Castro — of organizing the blasts and paying Cruz Leon to carry them out.

The explosions, apparently targeting Cuba's tourism sector, have shaken up government officials as the communist nation struggles to overcome a severe economic crisis.

NATION

Credit Reporting Act to provide quicker fix

NEW YORK (AP) — The often frustrating task of correcting an inaccurate credit report will soon be a bit easier, thanks to changes in the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

The changes, effective Oct. 1, won't transform the process into a walk in the park. But they will give consumers more ammunition in forcing the credit reporting companies, and the creditors who report to them, to get their information right.

"Mistakes in credit reports were the leading consumer problem in the early 1990's," said Ed Mierzwinski of the United States Public Interest Research Group. "Thirty–three percent of all credit reports, in our view, contained then — could still contain now — serious errors."

Credit reporting companies already had made many of these changes, in some cases after states or the Federal Trade Commission accused them of violating the law.

Of the troika of big reporting companies, Experian and Equifax Credit Information Services are operating under consent decrees with the Federal Trade Commission. The third, Trans Union Corp., is still negotiating.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 65	HIGH: 70	HIGH: 65
LOW: 50	LOW: 55	LOW: 50

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 12
Comics page13
Crossword page13
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 12
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 14

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Amherst police seek information to boost investigation of recent Hobart Ln., Main St. stabbings

By Leigh Faulkner
Collegian Staff

Following two stabbing incidents that occurred at off–campus parties over the weekend, the Amherst Police department is asking students to help with the investigations.

Early Sunday morning, Amherst police responded to a fight on Hobart Lane.

Upon arrival, the police learned two University of Massachusetts students had been injured.

Sophomore Luis Cerda was stabbed in the neck with a broken beer bottle and sophomore Stephen Murphy was kicked and punched above the neck multiple times.

According to police detective Jennifer Gundersen, both men were taken to Baystate Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Cerda underwent three hours of surgery and Murphy was given numerous stitches, said Gundersen.

No one was arrested in this case and investigations are continuing.

Within an hour of the fight at Hobart Lane, a second fight occurred at 625 Main St.

Police arrested David Potenti, 20, of Worcester, who pleaded innocent Monday to attempted murder charges, as well as to two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, one count of assault and battery and once count of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Potenti allegedly stabbed UMass student Arlen Gerritson with a knife in the abdomen.

In addition, he allegedly assaulted two other men at the party, according to court documents.

Gerritson was released form Baystate Medical Center on Monday, said hospital spokesman Keith O'Connor.

According to police officials, Potenti was held without bail at the Hampshire House of County Corrections until yesterday, when he was released on bail after attending his dangerousness hearing.

At the hearing, Potenti's lawyer and the district attorney argued whether he should remain at the House of Corrections until his next court appearance on Oct. 15.

Potenti is not a UMass student.

Both incidents are being investigated separately.

If anyone has information to contribute to either investigation, students should call Detective Gundersen at 256–4015. All information will be held confidential.

Although both incidents occurred off–campus, Associate Dean of Students Jo–Anne Vanin said she wants students to know the importance of coming forward with any information they may have.

"I am pretty concerned with last weekend's incidents. It's pretty outrageous. Obviously we are always concerned anytime a student's safety is at risk on or off campus," she said.

Vanin also added that Student Affairs is supporting and assisting the victims as much as they can.

"Right now were are working on getting in touch with the students so we can provide assistance to help them get started with the semester and support them fully with anything else they may need," she said.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

A song from far away

Chrysal Parrot, a senior French and Italian major, tunes her Cora, a harp from Gambia, Africa by the Campus Pond yesterday.

Former UMass professor dead at 63

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

AMHERST – A. Bruce MacDonald, 63, of 140a Brittany Manor Drive, died Saturday at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, apparently of a heart attack. MacDonald was a retired professor of microbiology at the University of Massachusetts.

MacDonald, a native of Anaconda, Mont., began his teaching career at the Harvard University of School of Public Health. He came to UMass in 1978, where he was a professor and head of the Microbiology department until 1984.

On Aug. 12, MacDonald was issued a patent for an oral vaccine comprising anti–idiotypic antibody to Chlamydia glycolipid exonitgen and process.

He leaves his wife of 37 years, Carole (Cunningham) MacDonald; a son, Joseph B. MacDonald of Chicago, Ill., two daughters, Mary Ellen MacDonald of State College, Pa., and Maria Elvea Birnbaum of Phoenix, Ariz.; a brother, Barney MacDonald of California; two sisters, June Howard of Washington state and Darlene Anderson of California; and a grandson.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Newman Center, 23 North Pleasant St., Amherst 01002.

Amnesty International leads fight against torture in prisons

By Samantha Poulten
Collegian Correspondent

Amnesty International held its first meeting of the year Tuesday night. The meeting concerned the prevention of inhumane acts toward individuals in other countries.

According to Jennifer–Lynn Jennings, co–chairwoman of Amnesty International, over two–thirds of the countries in the world use torture as punishment for crimes.

Jennings said that torture in prisons is very common, while the prisoners wait many months, sometimes years, for a trial. These countries, according to Jennings, are imprisoning many people on the basis of false charges, and sometimes without knowledge of the charges.

Many prisoners are simply "prisoners of conscience," meaning they were imprisoned solely on the basis of their beliefs, color, sex, ethnic origin, language, or religion.

Amnesty International's job is to send letters to the heads of state in countries involved in violations of human rights and demand fair treatment of all prisoners, including a fair trial and an end to inhumane treatments.

Jennings said that being a part of Amnesty International is important because "[by] writing a letter you can save a life."

"Isn't it easy?" asked one of the new members.

Amnesty International was created by a British lawyer named Peter

Turn to AMNESTY, page 3

UM grad to give talk on Mars

By Julie Siegal
Collegian Staff

Matthew P. Golombek, a University of Massachusetts graduate and chief scientist on NASA's Mars Pathfinder mission, will present a lecture on the mission tomorrow at 4 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

The presentation, which is hosted by the Office of the Dean of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, is free and open to the public and will include a question–and–answer period.

Golombek holds overall responsibility for facilitating all scientific experiments conducted on the mission, which represents NASA's first return to the Red Planet since the Viking landings during the 1970s.

The mission is mainly a demonstration of new technologies, including the free–ranging surface rover Sojourner, for eventual use in future missions to Mars.

Golombek and other scientists are trying to learn more about the early environment of Mars by studying ancient rocks. They are also trying to determine whether water once existed on early Mars, potentially allowing life to develop.

Golombek studied the geology of Mars, Earth and the moon while earning his masters and doctoral degrees in geology from the University in 1978 and 1981, respectively.

George McGill, retired professor of geosciences and Golombek's former professor, said his background in terrestrial and interplanetary geology made him a good choice to head up the Pathfinder mission.

"We try to give students a good foundation in both types of geology," McGill said. "It's critical to have a foundation in terrestrial geology."

Nathan Bridges, another former student of McGill, is also at work on the mission. In his doctoral research, Bridges compared unusual volcanic land formations on Earth with similar structures on Venus. His earlier research focused on Mars.

Golombek said he is enthusiastic about the mission and hopes his investigation of the Red Planet will continue into the future.

"It doesn't get any better than being among the first geologists to investigate the surface geology on Mars with a rover," Golombek said.

Although Sojourner was designed to last a minimum of one week, scientists are optimistic that it will last as long as a year.

"I hope I'll be driving a rover on Mars for a long, long time," Golombek said.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Attention!

ROTC students line up for formation behind Garber Field yesterday afternoon.

Albright urges Arafat to deal with terrorists

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — After consoling Israeli and American victims of suicide bombs, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright urged Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat yesterday to crack down on terrorists before expecting any tradeoffs with Israel.

But Albright also told Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu that peacemaking required "give and take" on both sides. A senior State Department official said Albright advised him to open the borders to Palestinian workers and resume repayments to the Palestinian Authority.

That would help Arafat sustain an offensive against terrorism over the long run, said the official, briefing reporters on Albright's three–hour meeting with Netanyahu on condition of anonymity.

Albright, making her first trip to the Mideast as secretary of state, is due to meet Arafat today in the West Bank town of Ramallah.

In a clear split with Netanyahu, who is demanding Arafat arrest "the sharks and not the sardines" behind suicide bombing attacks, Albright said Israel should pull back on occupied lands, as promised in the 1993 Oslo peace accords.

Peacemaking "cannot proceed without reciprocity," Albright said in reminding Netanyahu at a news conference that there must be "give and take" on both sides of the Israeli–Palestinian divide. Netanyahu did not seem impressed with the argument, or with the arrest by Arafat's Palestinian Authority of scores of terrorism suspects. After Israel released about $13 million of a $80 million debt of withheld taxes, "the response I got was an embrace and a kiss for leaders of Hamas," Netanyahu said.

"If you say one good deed deserves another, we deserved something else," the prime minister said, referring to Arafat's embrace of a leader of the militant guerrilla group after it claimed responsibility for a bombing of a Jerusalem market July 30 that killed 15 civilians and two bombers. On Sept. 4, suicide bombings took the lives of five civilians and three bombers. Albright visited Israeli victims at the Hadassah University hospital at Mount Scopus. "When you actually see the people and see the individual injuries it brings it home," she said of the bloody attack.

One was Daniel Miller, 19, of

Turn to ISRAEL, page 2

■ Israel

continued from page 1

Miami, who was injured on his first day in Israel as a student. His mother, Grizzi, urged Albright to bear the attacks in mind "when you hug Arafat." Albright interrupted her. "I am not going to hug Arafat," she said, solemnly.

At the start of a drive to salvage the battered peace effort, Albright bolstered Israel's anxieties about terrorism that has claimed 176 civilians and 67 soldiers since the Oslo accord was concluded in September 1993.

"Security is at the center of my agenda," Albright said outside the prime minister's office.

"There is no moral equivalent between killing people and building houses," she said, referring to Palestinian complaints that Israel was expanding its grip on Jerusalem, expanding Jewish settlements and leveling the homes of Palestinians in retaliation for terrorist raids.

While there is no way to prevents all acts of terror, Israel has "a right to expect a comprehensive effort in delegitimizing those who practice it," Albright said. "The Palestinian Authority must take unilateral steps and actions to root out the terrorist infrastructure."

The Palestinians accuse Netanyahu of using security as a excuse to evade commitments for phased pullbacks on the West Bank and other peacemaking gestures.

But Netanyahu said: "Before we are asked to give additional territory we have a right to demand ... a vigorous effort to fight terrorists and dismantle their structure."

However, Israeli President Ezer Weizman was reported by a U.S. official to have told Albright that the Clinton administration should be ready to pressure Netanyahu to implement a pullback. "It's time to produce some maps," Weizman said, according to the official.

Weizman also was said to have suggested the United States host a peacemaking conference along the lines of the Camp David talks in 1978 that produced a peace treaty between Israel and Egypt a ycar later.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Property Damage

Sept. 9

A minor two vehicle accident occurred on Mullins Way.

Annoying Behavior

Sept. 5

UMPD assisted Berkshire Dining Commons Manager with an individual.

Sept. 9

Zachary F. Bergen, 18, of 368 1st St., Brooklyn, NY, and Ryan N. Lynch, 19, of 8 Wayside Ave., Byfield, were arrested in Cashin Residence Hall for possession of a class D drug and possession to distribute a class D drug.

Sept. 10

Fireworks were set from Southwest Mall.

Burglary/Breaking and Entering

Sept. 5

A stereo was stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive. Estimated value $200.

A vehicle in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive was broken into and a stereo was stolen. Estimated loss and damages $1440.

Sept. 6

Four vehicles in parking lot 32 on Massachusetts Avenue were broken into.

A vehicle in parking lot 22 on University Drive was broken into, stereo and speakers were stolen.

A vehicle broken into in parking lot 22 had its speakers and radar stolen. Estimated value $140.

Sept. 7

Alexander Tejada, 21, of 413 Pleasant St., Holyoke, Robert L. Sisson, 20, 688 of High St., Holyoke and Peter L. Cavette, 19, of 19 Beemis St., Chicopee were arrested on University Drive for nighttime breaking and entering, destruction of property greater than $250 and larceny under $250.

A vehicle in parking lot 33 on University Drive was broken into, a radar detector and cell phone were stolen.

Sept. 8

A vehicle in parking lot 22 on University Drive was broken into, the stereo was stolen.

Disurbance

Sept. 5

There was a disturbance between two individuals at a bus stop on Presidents Drive.

Drug Law Offenses

Sept. 5

A backpack that was reported stolen was recovered and contained an illegal substance.

Larceny

Sept. 5

An individual reported his bike stolen from Whitmore Administration Building. Estimated value $260.

A wallet that was reported stolen was located in the W.E.B. Dubois Library.

Sept. 6

A license plate was stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive.

An individual from Kennedy Residence Hall reported his ID card stolen.

Sept. 8

A license plate was stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 64.

Two mountain bikes were stolen from Hamlin Residence Hall.

Sept. 9

A mountain bike was stolen from the basement storage area of Thatcher Residence Hall. Estimated value $640.

An individual from Prince Residence Hall reported an ATM card stolen from the mail.

A reported stolen credit card was used for purchase at the Campus Center University Store.

Liquor Law Violations

Sept. 5

Donald E. Blackwell III, 20, 56 Cedar St., Taunton, was arrested on Massachusetts Avenue for illegal possession and transport of liquor and possession of a Class D drug.

Sept. 6

James M. Currin, 19, 31 Pine Grove St., Fairhaven was arrested on University Drive for possession and transportation of liquor.

Traffic Stop

Sept. 7

Lidia K. Williams, 18, 37 Weatherglass Ln., East Falmouth was arrested for operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor, transporting liquor and possession of a class D drug.

Vandalism

Sept. 5

Children throwing rocks at a North Village Apartment were given a warning.

Sept. 6

A vehicle in parking lot 22 on Massachusetts Avenue was damaged.

A vending machine was vandalized in Bartlett Hall.

Blood test shows Diana's driver took drugs

By Deborah Seward
Associated Press

PARIS — Princess Diana's driver ingested a dangerous cocktail of alcohol and prescription drugs, prosecutors said yesterday, a combination doctors say can cause drowsiness, trouble concentrating and impaired vision.

A third blood test to determine the alcohol level of driver Henri Paul detected fluoxetine — the antidepressant best known as Prozac — and tiapride, used to prevent aggression and treat alcoholism.

Side effects of Prozac can include shaking, anxiety and impaired vision. Both medications can cause drowsiness when combined with alcohol. "Prudence in the use of these medications is normally recommended to drivers," the prosecutors' statement said. A report by the first policeman at the scene of the crash that killed Princess Diana, her boyfriend Dodi Fayed and their driver Aug. 31 provided new details yesterday about first aid efforts and the behavior of photographers who had been chasing her.

The policeman, who was on patrol nearby, says right after calling for help he was alerted by a witness that Diana was in the car. Rescuers tried to keep Diana "conscious as much as possible, by talking to her and tapping her on the cheek" and asked "me to keep her head straight," the officer wrote in his report, which was seen by the Associated Press.

The photographers were "virulent, pushing, while continuing to take photos, deliberately preventing help from being given to the victim," the report said.

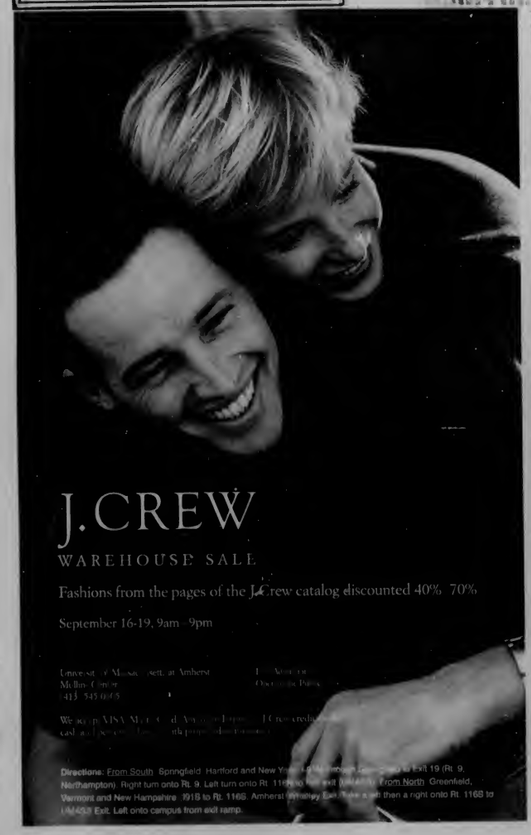
The photographers' behavior and the driver's condition are two focal points of the investigation.

Prozac wouldn't necessarily worsen the effects of alcohol, but tiapride would, said Dr. Michel Cratlet, a psychiatrist specializing in the treatment of alcoholism.

"At this level of alcohol intake, the risks came from the use of alcohol," Cratlet said. "But the fact he took medicine with alcohol could have impaired his vision, reduced his concentration and diminished his vigilance."

The prosecutor's statement said the fluoxetine was found at a "therapeutic" level — the dosage a doctor might prescribe — but did not specify the quantity. The tiapride was at a level considered less than therapeutic — closer to over-the-counter strength.

See the light.



BUY THE LIGHT AND SEE THE REST OF THE ROOM, TOO.

See the brilliant selection of lighting, from 7.95

Lamp shown-29.95

Faces HOUSEWARES

Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

J.CREW

WAREHOUSE SALE

Fashions from the pages of the J.Crew catalog discounted 40% 70%

September 16-19, 9am–9pm

Directions: From South: Springfield, Hartford and New York to Exit 19 (Rt. 9, Northampton). Right turn onto Rt. 9. Left turn onto Rt. 116. Go exit (MANDEL) From North: Greenfield, Vermont and New Hampshire: 91S to Rt. 116S. Amherst/Whately Exit. Bear left then a right onto Rt. 116S to I-91/S Exit. Left onto campus from exit ramp.

Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst

* SENIORS & GRADUATE STUDENTS *

Campus Recruiting is Underway

Opportunities for all majors are available! BUT you must be registered with the Disk Resume Professional (Dr. Pro) to participate!

Access to employers like:

Gillette The Baan Institure Eckerd Family Youth Alternatives
Fegley & Driscoll Sears Procter & Gamble Parametric Technology
Andersen Consulting CIGNA National Starch & Chemical
Federal Express and many, many more!

INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE!!!

Get started by attending a Disk Registration Workshop

Monday	Tuesday	Thursday	Friday
3:45 PM	9:00 AM	1:00 PM	10:15 AM

All workshops are in the Campus Center Room 905

Any questions? Please phone Career Network Central @ 545-2224

Van Schalkwyk South Africa's next president

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The National Party, which started apartheid and ruled South Africa for decades, chose its youngest-ever leader today in an attempt to bolster its sagging popularity.

Martinus van Schalkwyk, the party's executive director, was selected to replace former President F.W. de Klerk, who announced two weeks ago he was stepping down as the party's head and quitting politics.

Van Schalkwyk, 37, becomes the eighth National Party leader. The party has seen its influence steadily erode since President Nelson Mandela's African National Congress won the first all-race elections in April 1994.

Divisions within the party and revelations of abuses by government agents during apartheid appear to doom any hope the party has of gaining broad support in a nation that is 75 percent black.

Without change, there has been speculation it could become a fringe party based mainly in Western Cape, the only one of South Africa's nine provinces it won in 1994.

"Drifting into isolation, fed by disillusionment and despair, is not where I will lead the NP," van Schalkwyk told a crowd of flag-waving supporters after his election by the party's 105-member electoral college.

A former Afrikaner youth leader, van Schalkwyk has been a strident critic of the ANC, issuing constant statements criticizing Mandela's governing party.

Both the ANC and a new party headed by Roelf Meyer, a former top National Party official, used the identical words to describe van Schalkwyk's selection, saying it would mean "just more of the same."

De Klerk, 61, said last month that he was stepping down to give the party a chance to regroup before the next national election in 1999.

When he became president in 1989, de Klerk was widely viewed as a moderate expected to protect apartheid. Instead, he declared soon after taking office that "white domination will have to disappear, otherwise there will never be peace in South Africa."

De Klerk immediately began dismantling apartheid laws. Within a year, he legalized 60 anti-apartheid groups, including the ANC, and freed Mandela from 27 years in prison, setting the stage for the April 1994 elections.

Hillel House hosts lecture series

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

Tonight Lauren Levin, the head of the Anti-Defamation League's Civil Rights Counsel, begins her lecture series/course with a brief overview of the history and the nature of anti-Semitism.

The one-credit course, Judaic Studies 192C, entitled "Anti- Semitism Today: From The Subtle to the Extreme," still has some space available. The lecture will take place in the Hillel House tonight from 7–9 p.m., and is open to the public.

The lecture will trace developments relating to the history of anti-Semitism and how streeotypes about Jews have varied and fluctuated over the centuries.

"Issues of oppression affect everybody in a society, it's important to see how groups can be targeted to be victims," said Hillel Executive Director Saul Perlmutter.

Levin, a graduate of the University of Georgia Law School, has been lecturing and writing for over six years, furthering issues supported by the ADL. Working out of Boston, her job includes working with seven regional offices which counsel 12 states regarding civil rights issues.

Levin has served as Associate Southern Counsel in the Southeast Regional Office and headed ADL's effort on responding to the arson of Southern Black Churches.

The course will meet every two weeks, and the next one will take place on the 25th. Some future lecture topics include: "Extremist Groups and Other Organized Expressions of Anti-Semitism," "Holocaust Denial and its Manifestations on Campus" and "Anti-Semitism on the Internet."

Haze in Hadley

A grey haze could be seen over Hadley from the Lederle Graduate Research Center yesterday afternoon.

LAUREN KOSKY \ COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian online

"New England's largest college daily."

WWW.UMASS.EDU/RSO/COLEGIAN

■ Amnesty

continued from page 1

Benenson in 1961 after six people were imprisoned because they had views different from those of the government. Benenson received thousands of letters of support for the prisoners which he then forwarded to the government.

According to Jennifer McKinnon, co-chairwoman of the group, everyone deserves basic human rights and should receive them in all circumstances.

Over the past few years, Amnesty has broadened its work into responding to human rights violations toward people who are not prisoners, such as hostages and victims of arbitrary killings.

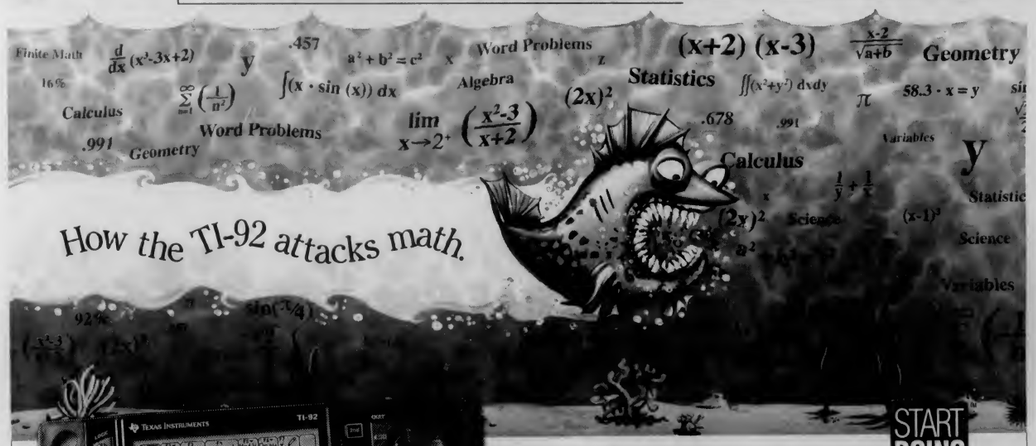
All students are welcome at the Amnesty International meetings, held every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. For more information on Amnesty International, students can visit the office in room 306 in the Student Union. The group can also be contacted by phone at 545-1925.

Tonight is the night... to become involved in the Jewish Affairs page. The Jewish Affairs Page offers the opportunity to gain news writing and reporting experience, as well as develop a writing style and have a voice.

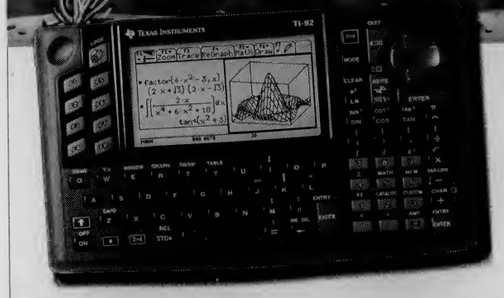
There will be a meeting for new and interested writers tonight at 6 p.m. in the Collegian newsroom, located in the Campus Center basement. If you have questions or can not make the meeting, please call the Collegian at 545-1851 and ask for Bryan Schwartzman.

Throw pillows at Faces.

THROW LAMPS HOWEVER, AND YOU WILL BE ASKED TO LEAVE.



An arsenal of throw pillows, from 11.95



Pillows shown, from top: 34.95, 16.95, 19.95

Faces HOUSEWARES

Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

How the TI-92 attacks math.

When it comes to math, it's sink or swim. Fortunately, we've found a way to help you keep your head above water: the TI-92. It'll tear through statistics, crunch calculus and rip algebra to shreds unlike any other calculator. Of course, the TI-92 isn't just a piranha of power. With it's easy-to-read equations and handy pull-down menus, it's as friendly as Flipper. To see for yourself why the TI-92 calculator is the biggest fish in any pond, try it out on the internet.

START DOING EXTRAORDINARY THINGS

http://www.ti.com/calc

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

Send e-mail to it-cares@ti.com or call 1-800-TI-CARES. ©1997 TI.

See the TI-92 at the UNIVERSITY STORE

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Zen and the Art of Shadiness

This is a message to all the lovers in the house. My house.

We are shady.

So, so shady.

Of this, I'm an expert. But I can't tell you why. I'll only tell you what I know.

What I'm seeing these days around my house, in the palatial Mill Valley estates, has not been the warm and fuzzy teddy bear and hearts crap associated with love, (or its various other incarnations). It's been shady. We've been shady.

Women have been reducing the members of my little Mill Valley abode to sixth-graders hopped up on Skittles, running around the playground at recess with [illegible] into our hoods. It's all we've learned about women in our short time on this Earth. All we can do to keep up is be shady.

But I know we're not alone. At least I hope we're not.

See, here's the thing. We're all reasonably bright, sweet, good-looking guys. (You see that mug shot to your right? No way you're kicking me out of bed for eating crackers).

So I'll ask you this.

Why do these things have to be so shady?

Should I talk about it in greater depth? I'd like to, but, as that anal guy who was in Animal House said about Bluto and the boys during the court scene, "The facts are so vile and disgusting that decorum prevents mentioning them here."

Or something like that. I'm bad with movie lines.

But whatever. Look, I'm sorry, but I can list only brief highlights.

•There's housemate A, who claims that he's been "driven to drink" by his latest female disaster.

•There's housemate B, who has caused "structural damage" to the house. Every time you see one of his works, you can say, "Hey, remember that night?"...

•Housemate C has only been in the house for a week, but he knows what he's done.

Chicks, chicks, chicks. They're driving us nuts. But then, we're driving them nuts. Quite a little cycle.

But at least I can console myself by knowing that it happens everywhere. Consider the case of my good friend Ian.

Luke Meredith

Ian has enough credentials to fill any girl's resume. He played baseball and basketball at St. Mary's College in Maryland, worked his summers at a camp, where he was one of the best counselors, and managed a 3.6 G.P.A. He is now at Maryland Law School. Plus, he knew me. Quite a guy.

But there was this girl Jen.

Jen was, well, dumb as rocks. This is not an opinion. I once saw Jen get so drunk that she fell flat on her face in the middle of a bar, her head making such a thud that the bartender yelled "Last Call!" once she saw Jen sprawled on her floor. This was at 11:30.

But yet Ian had a thing for Jen. They hooked up once or twice, but their main passion seemed to be fighting with each other over nothing. Missed phone calls, misplaced words at the wrong time, spiteful innuendos placed through third parties. You know, all the fuzzy crap of love.

The argument, which in reality was just one long rehashing of the same B.S., had no beginning and it had no end. It just lingered, sweeping over the bar's corner booth (to which they would invariably retreat) like vultures over a dead turkey.

Here was a kid who thoroughly believed he'd one day be the president of the United States of America (long story), driven to utter annoyance by a girl who once said she respected my opinion after I told her she was the shadiest girl I've ever met in my life.

Go figure.

But then there's me.

I'm just as shady as any of them. I don't have a girl in Amherst right now, but I have (or had, I guess) one in Boston. Met her this summer at camp. Great girl. Sweet, cute and quite possibly the least shady girl I have met thus far. Now she's at Tufts, and I'm here. That was fine in August, because I learned last summer that accepting the end of summer flings is an easy way to stay sane in the fall.

But of course, I'm shady. A part of me is still hanging on to the whole thing, though I know better. I call her last night, ramble some random mumbo–jumbo (which resembled a philosophy practicum in it's mumbo–jumboness). She says, "Yeah, Luke that's great, and I'd love to see you, but I don't think it's such a good idea."

The gist of her reply was that it would just be a pain in the ass.

Of course, she's right. Deep down, I wanted closure, but instinctively I had to be shady. I couldn't just be honest.

Now I feel really bad. It could have ended great, but now it can't.

Good job, pimp daddy.

By the way, Ian called me last night. Law school's a blast, Jen is nothing more than a three–minute story at a future reunion, and he's got a date with a Washington Redskins cheerleader Saturday night.

Maybe there's hope for all of us.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

photo bendee: Luke Meredith (Lauren has photo)

Turning Point: 1997

Martin F. Jones

Thirteen days ago, the end of the summer season finally arrived. Millions of vacationers packed their bags on Friday afternoon, Labor Day weekend, for the last days of what has been a very peaceful and prosperous summer season. The weather was phenomenal, mosquitoes rare and the economy rolled along with an exuberance not seen in decades. Yes, life was wonderful, everything was perfect and all signs pointed to this trend extending itself indefinitely.

That weekend, I went to see Air Force One. It was a great flick, and my second time viewing it. I came home to my dorm to check out what was on television and the campus movie channel was showing Panther, a film about the rise and fall of the Black Panther Party and the 1960s Black Power movement.

When the film was over, I channel–surfed to CNN and saw a developing story on Princess Diana. Nothing new here. She was all over the tabloids recently for her relationship with Dodi Fayed, the son of the billionaire owner of London's Harrod's department store, Mohamed Al Fayed. I was then stunned to see that Diana had been in a car accident. This was very odd. As we all know, the rich and famous don't get into car accidents. They can afford the best chauffeurs and safest cars that money can buy. Nevertheless, I saw with my own eyes the black Mercedes in which she was traveling crushed like an aluminum can. Dodi was dead, the commentator stated, and Diana was first critically, and later, gravely injured. Within a few hours, her death was officially confirmed by the doctors who tried valiantly to save her life in a Paris hospital. On Aug. 31, 1997, Princess Diana was pronounced dead at the age of 36.

While most of the blame for Diana's death was pointed at the photographers who were following the car in a high speed chase, there was also the factor of the driver being intoxicated at more than three times the legal limit. Everyone agrees that this tragedy did not have to happen. Many have cited negligence in the choice of the driver, and some have even whispered conspiracy. Perhaps it was nothing more than a tragic twist of fate.

The death of Princess Diana shocked the world because it shattered the illusion under which we have allowed ourselves to fall. While millions in the public were being titillated with her latest romantic escapade, paying for and supporting the tabloid photographers now charged in connection with her death, we forgot that Diana is a human being, who is just as frail and vulnerable as the rest of us mere mortals. The illusion of the majesty of British Monarchy was also shattered as the world waited more than four days before Queen Elizabeth II would make a public statement regarding the tragedy which took the life of the mother of her grandsons, William and Harry.

The funeral of Princess Diana was a beautiful and fitting tribute to a beautiful and wonderful person who touched the world with her genuine compassion and charity for its less- fortunate people. It also marked the end of a storybook fairy tale that mirrored similar stories which were told to us as young children. Unfortunately for the royal family, Diana's death and the circumstances surrounding her divorce from Prince Charles a year ago have cast a permanent cloud over the legitimacy of the British Monarchy. Although she was stripped of the title "Her Royal Highness," Princess Diana has been heralded as "the peoples princess," clearly more loved and revered than the "legitimate" members of the royal family. What does the future hold for the British Monarchy? Only time will tell. One thing is for sure, it is inevitable that the day will eventually come when the world's last great European monarchy is permanently abolished for all time.

***

Now that Diana has been laid to rest, the world's attention is turning to the memory of the recently deceased Mother Teresa, another renowned humanitarian for the poor, infirmed, and downtrodden. For more than 50 years, the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize winner has stood as the living embodiment of goodness and compassion, a living saint of the entire world for her more than 50 years of work with the Calcutta–based Missionaries of Charity, and her a network of homes for the sick, dying, and poor in some 115 countries. In a deeply moving eulogy, Pope John Paul II said of her, "Mother Teresa marked the history of our century. She served all human beings by promoting their dignity and respect, and made those who had been defeated by life feel the tenderness of God." India's Prime Minister Inder Kumar Gujral said, "A beacon of light and hope for millions of poor has gone out of our lives," adding that God came in the form of the poor to test people's hearts.

On Saturday, Sept. 13, 1997, a state funeral will be held in Calcutta, India to honor the life and legacy of Mother Teresa. Usually reserved for heads of state, the ceremony will serve as a final testament to the respect and reverence of the Indian nation for the Albanian nun from Macedonia who was such a bright light of love and hope for so many around the world. With the passing of Mother Teresa, along with that of Princess Diana, the world has become somewhat colder, perhaps a shade darker, as the void they leave behind remains so barren and empty. In time the people of Earth will adapt, as they have before with the passing of other great and saintly world figures such as Mohandas K. Gandhi and Martin Luther King. In their absence, we would best honor their contributions to society by learning from and living by the noble examples they set for us to follow.

***

For millions around the world, 1997 will be a memorable year, as the lives and legacies of Princess Diana and Mother Teresa were such a great inspiration to so many. Their passing will leave a particularly significant void for the people of Great Britain and India. Unfortunately, the grieving for Diana and Mother Teresa has directed substantial attention and concern from the more serious issue of the steady erosion of relations in the Middle East. Here in the United States, for example, life carries on. Despite the ongoing investigation into illegal campaign financing of last year's presidential election, it turns out that the most interesting political drama of late is William Weld's bid for the U.S. ambassadorship to Mexico, distinguished by its steadfast opposition from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman Jesse Helms. Perhaps life has been to good for us here, for we are clearly unprepared for any number of unexpected crises which may evolve out of the vast myriad of political and economic realities which have been obfuscated by a tragically misdirected media. Of course, such attitudes are totally justified. America is, after all, the greatest nation in all of world history. We are perfect, we proudly maintain, and ultimately exempt from the natural laws of entropy which govern the universe and point to an inevitable evolution from order to chaos and back again. How long will our ballroom dance with destiny last? No one can really know, but I will be watching and waiting vigilantly for that next breaking news story to emerge.

Martin F. Jones is a Collegian columnist.

bendee: Martin F. Jones

Letters to the Editor

Likes women's soccer coverage

To the Editor:

Congratulations on your terrific coverage of Women's Soccer. Jorma Kansanen is doing an excellent job. I enjoy both his stories covering the games and his columns. Even his photography is good. Keep up the good work!

Randy Sailer Hadley

In memoriam
A. Bruce MacDonald

To the Editor:

"I don't care if it's in the book. You don't trust anybody!"

"But Dr. MacDonald, you wrote the book!"

"That's even more reason to question it."

This conversation captured the essence of man — humility and an undying refusal to budge to authority and convention.

I met Dr. MacDonald seven months after the sudden death of my father. Nobody can replace a father, but the yearning for a father–figure is an everlasting affair. I was in a deep state of depression when I met him. Unknown to him, his offbeat approach to life and his quirky sense of humor became a part of my healing.

He was forthright. He was the type of guy who would not use a big word when a small one would do the trick. He did not appreciate the manner in which New Englanders enunciated "sure" in two syllables. The Spell–Check aggravated him because it insisted McDonald as opposed to MacDonald. He was brilliant — perhaps the greatest force of raw intelligence I have ever encountered. He never minded my barrage of questions after class, and instead was happy to share his wealth of knowledge with me.

He was committed to the battle against bacterial pathogens which wreak havoc in the Third World and in the inner cities of America. His attempts to develop a Chlamydia vaccine landed him two patents. Dr. MacDonald single– handedly inspired me to pursue a career in which I could contribute to the war against mammalian pathogens.

He had his vices. There was logic behind God's refusal to anoint him as the Deliverer of the Ten Commandments. He undoubtedly greeted the Angel of Death with some remark that made even the Grim Reaper break out into laughter.

Dr. MacDonald, it takes one's death for people to realize how special that person was. Dr. MacDonald, your early exit is tragic and devastating. But Dr. MacDonald, do not feel sorry for yourself. Dr. MacDonald, we knew all along how special you were.

Rest in peace, my dear Professor.

Zaffar K. Haque
zhaque@student.umass.edu

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.
Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by e–mail to:
Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu
Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

Focus on Race

Next week, the Collegian Editorial page will publish a week–long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

Editorials can be submitted by e–mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545–1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement.

Write for Ed/Op!

The Collegian Editorial page needs new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, satire, lifestyle, or any of a thousand other styles — let us be as broad as the student body is.

All who are interested should attend a New Writer's meeting on Friday, Sept. 5 at 7 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, call 545– 1491.

Doonesbury BY GARY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Presten Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Coffee

The Coffee House Craze

By Seema Gangotirkar & Alex Iglesias
Collegian Staff

In the late 1500s, Pope Clement VIII first sampled coffee. The pontiff found the brew delicious, blessed it and baptized it. The Pope's blessing of coffee sparked the opening of the first coffee houses in Europe. Now, 400 later, coffee houses are thriving in the United States.

"I love the atmosphere [of a coffee shop]," said Kevin Maltby, a senior political science major.

One of the more popular coffee houses in the area is Rao's in Amherst.

"I like the ambiance. I like the trendy college students with their wire glasses," said Gina Bognanno, a junior psychology major.

Inside Rao's, the rich aroma of coffee fills the air. A giant coffee roaster stands in the corner and there are plenty of tables inside and outside.

And people don't just come to coffee houses to drink coffee. Some come to socialize. Others are studying dilligently — or at least trying to. The homey atmosphere at Rao's provides what owner Scott Rao calls a "social, friendly way to study."

Studying in a coffee house is nothing new. The trend began back in 16th century London, when coffee houses became reading centers as well as a place to sit and chat. In London, coffee houses served as a place for gentlemen to relax and socialize. In that sense, not much has changed between then and now.

Of course the friendly atmosphere in Rao's could backfire for that student trying to cram in some studying before an exam.

"I can't do work. I like to play checkers all the time," Bognanno said.

Most people go to coffee houses for the social aspect, Rao said.

"It's nice to get away from campus," Rao said. And while students are getting away from the rigors of campus, they are also drinking a lot of coffee.

Luke Roberts, a junior exchange student from Wales, said that he drinks a lot of coffee.

"Oh yeah, a lot. I'm trying to cut down," Roberts said.

The United States is the world's largest consumer of coffee — with sales of over $6.5 billion. And coffee has started to appeal to the younger crowd — with the largest consumer group being young adults between the ages of 25 and 35 years old.

The scene is a little different in England, where coffee houses originated.

"The only people to go to coffee shops [in England] are little old ladies who stop shopping to have cake and coffee," Roberts said.

And visiting a coffee house once a day just isn't enough for some people. Rao says that there are plenty of regular customers at his shop.

"[The] vast majority show up at least once a day," Rao said.

Also inside...

Jazz/Blues Weekly 6
Indigo Girls 8
Trilok Gurtu 8
Dorm room Gourmet 9

A few facts about coffee

Facts about coffee

• With the exception of Hawaii, no coffee is grown in the United States.

• Americans drink lots of coffee, but Germany is the world's second largest consumer of coffee. Each year, Germans consume 16 pounds per person.

• Brazil is the world's largest producer of coffee. With 3.970 million trees, only Columbia comes close to Brazil's output. Columbia produces two–thirds the amount of coffee Brazil does.

• The Japanese honor the beverage with an official Coffee Day on Oct. 1.

• Coffee houses in Europe were breeding grounds for liberal ideas. In 1675, Charles II issued the "Proclamation for the Suppression of Coffee Houses" in an attempt to stop the liberal ideas floating around.

• Fifty–three countries grow coffee beans. All coffee– producing countries lie along the equator, between the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn.

• How much coffee can an acre of coffee trees produce? Before hulling or milling an acre can produce up to 10,000 pounds. After hulling and milling, about 2,000 pounds of beans are left.

• Every year, no less than 5 to 6 million tons of green beans are produced world wide. The majority of the beans are hand–picked.

• There are approximately 3,000 coffee houses in the United States. Italy has 27,000 coffee houses.

• The first coffee house appeared in London in 1652.

— compiled by Seema Gangatirkar.

The Starbucking of America

By Marly Kaone
Collegian Staff

Janeane Garofolo recently quipped, "A Starbucks just opened in my living room." Indeed, in just a few short years, the chain has become an almost omnipotent power in the gourmet coffee market. Take a walk on any major urban street these days, and chances are you'll encounter the company's ever–present circular green logo with its alluring mermaid staring temptingly out at you.

As it is once again considered chic to sit in coffee houses slowly sipping a mocha cappuccino, Starbucks have been popping up everywhere — one even opened last year in stodgy old downtown Amherst. As a result, a unique "coffee culture" has been hatched. The unquestioned king of these new bean palaces, Starbucks, has spawned its own elitist dialect, as anyone who has mispoken an "iced, half– caff(eine), triple grande, vanilla skim latté" order can attest to.

Speaking the words "small, medium or large" on Starbucks property is akin to transgression of a divine law — everyone knows it's "short, tall and grande."

Those who have committed this cardinal sin know exactly where I'm coming from. I liken this phenomenon to the legendary "Soup Nazi" episode of "Seinfeld" from a few years back when Elaine spoke her bisque order incorrectly and the crusty server behind the counter uttered those famous words, "No soup for you, one year!"

While I haven't yet heard of anyone getting banned from Starbucks for not speaking an order precisely, the perfunctory sneer you're sure to receive is humiliating nonetheless.

How has Starbucks seemingly come out of nowhere to become a McDonald's–like behemoth in their industry? In a word — marketing.

Similar to their counterpart in the fast food industry, this venerable Seattle–based chain has succeeded brilliantly in creating an instantly recognizable corporate image. From that unmistakable forest green logo to their patented cup wraps, the public's perception of Starbucks is one of superficial sophistication, good coffee and pretentiousness — in other words, the ultimate symbolt of '90s yuppiedom.

Despite the public's embrace, questions linger about Starbucks long–range viability. Are they more than just a "fad?"

The answer, at least for now, seems to be a resounding "yes." Judging from Starbucks' excellent fiscal health (in the last year their stock has jumped from $26 per share to its present value of almost $43 per share) and their new line of pre–ground coffee that has recently begun hitting grocery store shelves, they seem to be in a position to be a major presence for several years to come. Still, questions abound.

According to Kathleen Nolan, a stockbroker with Merrill– Lynch, Starbucks is still a cautious investment. "Although their stock is going through the roof right now, the bottom could easily drop out of it tomorrow. Many of our clients have been leery to jump in, and I think rightfully so," Nolan said.

The reasoning, she adds, comes from the fact that while "the current state of our economy allows people to justify spending $3.50 on a grande frappuccino, Starbucks' revenues are still derived from their customers' disposable incomes."

Although its hard to argue with a [illegible] die–hard, only the future will tell if it is [illegible] just our generation's version of the [illegible] soda fountain.

Marsalis produces beautiful album

Welcome back, y'all! I've returned to bring you another three fun-filled months of my column, dedicated to exposing the UMass community to what's on disc from two of America's oldest music forms, jazz and blues.

Earlier this summer, Evidence Music, Inc. released master drummer Andrew Cyrille's new Ode To The Living Tree. This CD features a stellar cast of Cyrille on drums, the great David Murray on tenor sax and bass clarinet; Oliver Lake (of the World Saxophone Quartet) on alto sax; Fred Hopkins on bass and Adegoke Steve Colson on electric piano. This quintet works through six tunes, flowing with a frightening essence of quiet unity.

The disc's production is very much oriented to a small room sound, but is not lo-fi in the least. "Comfortable" would be a good word to describe the overall tones of Ode To The Living Tree.

The title track catches the feel of the disc's theme — Africa. Indeed, the disc was recorded in Dakar, Senegal. With its rhythm-heavy themes and its non-Western scales, "Ode..." and Murray's "Dakar Darkness" both succeed as imaginative compositions inspired by Cyrille and Murray's heritage. Cyrille and African drummer Mor Thiam have two drum duets, opening and closing the disc with "Coast To Coast" and "Water, Water, Water," with the laiter being more structured and fluid than the former. A fine work by a classic drummer.

Delfeayo Marsalis (yes, related to Branford and Wynton — their younger brother) also journeyed to foreign soil for his latest on Evidence, Musashi, recorded in Tokyo, Japan. In addition to trombonist Marsalis and saxophonist Mark Gross, three Japanese musicians, Yuichi Inoue (piano), Shigeo Aramaki (bass) and the explosive Masahiko Osaka (drums) form one of the tightest bands to be heard in a long time on some beautifully conceptualized and interestingly composed music. Nat Hentoff lends fine notes to the disc.

Osaka's drums push the sounds almost beyond the senses, especially on "Miyamoto Musashi," named for Japan's most famous warrior, as well as on "If You Only Knew," "Tale Of Genji," and "Queen Himiko" also take on epic buildups and inspiring currents in the rhythm.

There's not much to say about Anthony Wonsey's Another Perspective (Evidence). The pianist feels comfortable with not being interesting or original in the very least. A sample of quotes from the liner notes: "I'm not an innovator, I'm just a piano player" and the scarier statement "I'd rather listen to other cats [than himself] and find out what I like about what they do." Wonsey mentions his deep love for Bud Powell, and as a result, one finds four Powell songs done much less spectacularly than the originals. His own compositions mix in with the lazy be-bop style he spreads all over the album. I must hand him one complement: He had good sidemen in Carl Allen on drums and Christian McBride on bass. At least they kept this disc in a coma as opposed to being completely a flat line.

Now, back to imagination. Legacy, those classic re-issue folks working for Sony, have released ten albums originally released in the late '60s and early '70s on producer Creed Taylor's CTI ("Creed Taylor, inc.") label. Long-lost sides from Paul Desmond (Skylark), Freddie Hubbard (Straight Life), and others like Jim Hall, Patti Austin and Deodato are again seeing the light of day.

Hubert Laws' In The Beginning is one such CTI/Legacy re-issue, this one from 1974. Laws, a renowned flautist, in the jazz world, showed off his rampant eclecticism in styles, flute virtuosity and arranging skill on In The Beginning, as shown in the mid-sized ensemble feel of the title track, the straight classical piece by Eric Satie, "Gymnopedie #1" (great guitar by Gene Bertoncini), the soul of the traditional "Come Ye Disconsolate" and Laws' half-funk, half-Latin "Mean Lene," with the perfect Steve Gadd drum solo — Gadd shines all over the disc. Look into this re-issue program.

There are probably some blues fans out there relatively familiar with the name Magic Sam, whose relaxed music mixed with soulful singing made him a big name on Chicago's famous '50s-'60s scene. Evidence (they had a busy summer!) has put out a tribute by the likes of guitarist Magic Slim, saxophonist Eddie Shaw & The Wolf Gang and J.W. Williams & The Chi-Town Hustlers.

Among the performances that stand out from A Tribute To Magic Sam include J.W. Williams (with special guests guitarist Shun Kikuta & harmonica player Billy Branch) playing on the upbeat Magic Sam piece "Love Me With A Feeling." Also check out Magic Slim & The Teardrops' "That's All I Need," an R&B-flavored blues tune and Eddie Shaw & The Wolf Gang's driving "You Don't Love Me," with fine horn arrangements to boot.

COURTESY RCA KELLER

Delfeayo Marsalis gives tribute to the literary and cultural traditions of Japan on his latest, Musashi (Evidence).

collegian arts - the butter on your bed.

Fun, fun, fun, fun, fun, fun.

with Collegian Graphics

Friday nites LIVE!

- Live Music.
- Live Entertainment.
- Live Raffles.
- Live Giveaways.
- Live Shoe and Clothing "Sale Specials".
- Live Fun Friday Nites 5-8pm.

ZANNA downtown Amherst

IRON HORSE MUSIC HALL 20 Center St Northampton

ALL AGES ALL THE TIME

thursday, september 11, 7 pm Huffamoose AND THE MAGGIES TWO BANDS FOR TWO BUCKS

thursay, september 11, 10 pm Belizbeha plus the Kevin Mueller Trio $6 adv

friday, september 12, 7 pm GLENN TILBROOK SQUEEZE VETERAN SOLO SHOW, $16 adv.

friday, september 12, 10:30 pm Moonboot Lover funky jams $5 adv

saturday, september 13, 7 pm Mose Allison jazz piano great, $14 adv.

saturday, september 13, 10 pm Humbert CELEBRATE THE RELEASE OF THE GREAT WHITE LUNCHROOM the push stars open, $5 adv.

sunday, september 14, 7 pm Alvin Youngblood Hart Country blues a la Lead Belly, $10 adv.

monday, september 15, 8:30 pm Michael Rose plus Bob Station Former Black Uhuru leader! $15 adv.

wednesday, september 17, 10 pm Dar Williams Fourth show just added! $15.50 adv.

SEPTEMBER 19: LETTUCE PLUS THE SLIP

TICKETS: For the Record, at the Northampton Box Office or call 586-8686.

24-HOUR CONCERT INFO: 413-584-0610

University of Massachusetts Amherst presents

CROSSWORLDS

A CONVERSATION

PERSUASIVE VOICES OF CONSTRUCTIVE CHANGE

CORETTA SCOTT KING PAT SCHROEDER

EVENT SPEAKERS:

Coretta Scott King, Widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Patricia Schroeder, Former Congresswoman of Colorado

Thursday, September 25, 1997

7:30 pm, Mullins Center

University of Massachusetts Amherst

Ticket Prices: General Public - $20, $15, $10; Students - $5.

Tickets on sale at the Mullins Center Box Office (413) 545-0505 and Ticketmaster (413)733-2500 beginning August 25, 1997 at 10:00 am

RESERVED SEATING: Available at box office until sold out. TTY (413) 545-3102

Dream. Plan. Lead.

sponsored in part by BankBoston Friendly's

INTERVIEWING IN THE BOSTON AREA ON NOVEMBER 13, 14, 20 AND 21
RESUMES WILL BE ACCEPTED THROUGH OCTOBER 15TH

On the Merrill Lynch Fast Track
For decades Merrill Lynch has been the leading U.S. brokerage firm. One in five affluent American investors name Merrill Lynch as their brokerage firm. Total assets under management now exceed $940 billion globally.

We at Merrill Lynch have built our leadership position through a client-driven marketing strategy. We stay abreast of changes in world demographics and investor needs, then respond with new products and services well before the rest of the marketplace.

Now Merrill Lynch invites a small group of outstanding 1998 college graduates to share in that success by pursuing a unique career opportunity in its Private Client organization.

The Private Client Development Program offers challenging positions in one of the Merrill Lynch Private Client business units (units key to maintaining our competitive edge — where your contribution to our success is significant).

Under the guidance of a senior manager, you work in product development, marketing or finance areas. You meet with senior management to discuss strategy and participate in task force projects to aid various business units in meeting their strategic objectives. Formal classes address career development issues and enhance your leadership skills. Candidates for the program have outstanding records of academic, extracurricular and work experience achievement. They are interested in the challenge of the fast-paced financial services industry and want to be recognized for their accomplishments.

The Merrill Lynch Private Client group is offering an unequaled opportunity to excel. If you have the talent, creativity, energy and commitment to be a winner, this is an opportunity that can make a difference in your career.

The difference is Merrill Lynch.
To apply, forward your resume to:
Private Client Development Program
Merrill Lynch
PO Box 9027, Dept UMA
Princeton, NJ 08543-9027
We are an Equal Opportunity Employer

After we put everything in it, we took something off.

ThinkPad® 380

~~$2199~~ from $1799*

($400 Price Reduction)

We packed it with an integrated diskette and hard drive, plus CD-ROM on select models. Then we added a big, bright 12.1" full-color screen and a blistering 150MHz[1] Pentium® processor. You can even get it with MMX™ technology.[2] Frankly, there wasn't much else we could add to make it more attractive. So instead, we subtracted.

From 8/15/97 to 10/15/97, we're subtracting even more. Buy any ThinkPad and an IBM 56K PC Card X2 Data/Fax Modem Kit and you'll get an additional $50 cash back from IBM, plus a free PORT® Carrying Case.[3]

"1997 Winlist" Windows Magazine "Recommended" CRN

A better place to think. The best time to buy.

Think

intel inside pentium

Call 1 800 426-7255, ext. 4755, or visit www.us.pc.ibm.com/thinkpad

IBM. Solutions for a small planet™

*Estimated IBM authorized reseller price for model 10U. Actual reseller prices may vary. Model 10U includes 150MHz Pentium processor, 12.1" screen, 1.08GB HDD. Other features available for an additional charge. Other models up to $3,399. IBM reserves the right to alter product information without prior notice. †MHz denotes internal clock speed of the microprocessor only. Other factors may also affect application performance. ‡On select models. §Proof of purchase needed for both IBM ThinkPad and IBM 56K PC Card X2 Data/Fax Modem Kit. Must include cash register receipt, bill of sale or invoice marked "paid" dated 8/15/97 - 10/15/97. X2 Modems are designed to be capable of receiving data at up to 56Kbps from an X2 compatible service provider, and transmitting data at up to 33.6Kbps. Public Networks currently limit download speed to about 53Kbps. Offer expires 10/15/97 and requests must be received by 10/31/97. Rebates may not be assigned or transferred. There are no returns or exchanges allowed. Limit one per IBM ThinkPad serial number. Official mail-in certificate must accompany request, or call 1 888 481-3729 for submission requirements on multiple purchases by businesses. Not available to IBM resellers. IBM reserves the right to withdraw or modify this promotion without prior notice. Void where taxed, prohibited or restricted by law. Please allow 4 - 6 weeks for delivery. Offer valid only in USA. ¶M - F 8 am - 8 pm EST, excluding holidays. We will direct you to an authorized IBM Business Partner™. IBM, ThinkPad and Solutions for a small planet are registered trademarks or trademarks of International Business Machines Corporation. The Intel inside logo and Pentium are registered trademarks and MMX is a trademark of Intel Corporation. Other companies, products and service names may be trademarks or service marks of others. PCs referenced in this ad ship with an operating system. © 1997 IBM Corp. All rights reserved.

THE FINE ARTS CENTER SERIES

Connect with your Center

Let the Fine Arts Center connect you with the world's best performing artists. Subscribe now, SAVE 15% and get the best available seats in the house for Twyla Tharp, the New York City Opera, Damn Yankees, Tap Dogs and world-class artists from around the globe. Call now – it's one of the easiest, most rewarding connections you'll ever make.

TICKETS ONLY $5 FOR FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS

For tickets and schedule call 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS
For the season schedule visit our website at www.umas.edu/fac

The Fine Arts Center University of Massachusetts Amherst

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

Indigo Girls set to play Mullins tomorrow

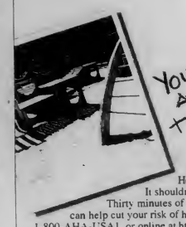
By Justin Beland
Collegian Staff

Folk rock has made a dramatic resurgence in recent years, with artists like Jewel and Paula Cole going from once–in–a– whiles on VH–1 to staples in MTV's rotation. On Friday night, one of the major driving forces in that resurgence makes its way into the Mullins Center — The Indigo Girls.

Friends since elementary school, Amy Ray and Emily Saliers formed the Indigo Girls in 1983 (the name means nothing — Amy chose the word "indigo" because it sounded cool). After a few years of work, including an album on a label they started themselves, they released Indigo Girls on Epic Records in 1988. The album was instantly acclaimed by critics and fans alike. Being backed by Michael Stipe and Irish rockers Hothouse Flowers helped sales, but the radio success of the album's first single "Closer to Fine," one of the band's most popular songs to date, was what really put the album over the top. The follow–up, *Indians*Nomads*Saints*, featuring the ultra–catchy "Hammer and a Nail," was less well–received by critics, but solidified the band's fan base, even in the era of the big hair bands. 1992's Rites of Passages instantly went gold, as did 1994's Swamp Ophelia, which debuted at number nine on the Billboard pop chart. All their albums since have gone gold or platinum, including their newest release, Shaming of the Sun.

The band is now crossing the country in their second "Honor the Earth" tour, focusing on raising public awareness of — and opposition to — plans for nuclear waste storage on Native–American lands. The 1995 Honor the Earth tour (which included a much–heralded stop at the Mullins Center) raised over $500,000 for distribution among 41 grassroots environmental organizations and was the largest single fund– raising effort in the history of Native American activism. And they managed to play some very good music while doing it.

This is the Indigo Girls' second stop at the Mullins Center, a seemingly large venue for a band with such folksy roots. However, as evidenced by their 1995 show at Mullins and their recent live double–CD, 1200 Curfews, this is a group that ignites a stage no matter what its size. The live shows, much like their albums, range from brilliantly crafted melodies to all–out jams, sometimes within the same song. They laugh and talk with the audience, encouraging sing– alongs and trying to show their fans the best time possible.



They tour in support of their latest album, Shaming of the Sun,

Turn to INDIGO, page 9

COURTESY MICHAEL HALSBAND

The Indigo Girls will make their second appearance at the Mullins Center tomorrow evening.

American Heart Association. Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

Heart health can start on the playground. It shouldn't end there. Stay active through life. Thirty minutes of physical activity 3–4 days a week can help cut your risk of heart disease. For information, call 1-800-AHA-USA1, or online at http://www.amhrt.org

This space provided as a public service. ©1996, American Heart Association

Dance & Music Program opens season with Gurtu

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The Asian Dance and Music Program opens its fall season this Saturday at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium with a performance by Trilok Gurtu and the Glimpse Ensemble. Gurtu is a percussionist whose subtle melodies link Indian harmonies and rhythms with elements of jazz and rock.

Gurtu has won acclaim for his music. He is a CMP recording artist and a three–time winner of the Down Beat Critic's Poll as best percussionist.

Gurtu draws upon his heritage as a member of a highly musical family. Originally from Bombay, India, Gurtu's grandfather was a sitar player and his mother, Shoba Gurtu, is a classical singing star and one of the main influences on Gurtu's music.

Gurtu began his musical career at the age of six and has since compiled an impressive resume. In the mid 1970s, he played with Charlie Mariano

Turn to DANCE, page 9

PANDA EAST
CHINESE RESTAURANT & SUSHI BAR
Best! 1997
"We bring Chinatown to you"
BEST CHINESE RESTAURANT IN THE VALLEY SINCE 1987

LUNCH SPECIALS
STARTING AT $3.95
7 DAYS A WEEK

FULL MENU
FOR SUSHI, SASHIMI AND TERIYAKI IS AVAILABLE

TELEPHONE: (413) 256-8923 / 256-8924 FAX: 253-1173
103 North Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002
Delivery Express: 549-0077

UMASS DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Something for Everybody

Academics and More !!!

Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umas.edu/contined/ for updated info.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

- Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
- More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including

Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!

The art is formally known as Prints.

FRAMED (AND FRAMEABLE) REPRODUCTIONS. BEWARE OF IMPOSTERS.

Class up the joint, from 5.95

Faces Downstairs

Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

YOU'RE LOOKIN' AT THE RIGHT PLACE FOR PLENTY OF GREAT DEALS
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive

ROLLING ROCK & LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PACK BOTTLES $12.49 + DEP
Miller GENUINE DRAFT & GENUINE DRAFT LIGHT 30 PACK
HIGH LIFE CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $10.49 + DEP
Budweiser 30 PACK CASE OF 24-16 OZ. CANS $13.99 + DEP
RED HOOK, PETES WICKED, CATAMOUNT 6 PACK BOTTLES ALL FLAVORS $4.99 + DEP
HAMM'S BEER CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CAN $7.29 + DEP
SPATEN 6 PACK BOTTLES OCTOBERFEST $5.69 + DEP
½ KEGS BUD, BUT LT., LITE, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICH., MICH. LT., AMBER BOCK $39.99 + DEP
WOW ROLLING ROCK ½ KEG $32.99 + DEP

WINE OF THE MONTH
Domaine St. George CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON $4.99 750 ML
CONCHA Y TORO ALL FLAVORS 1.5L $5.99
GALLO LIVINGSTON CELLARS ALL FLAVORS 3.0L $6.49
VENDANGE WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5L $4.99
MERIDIAN CHARDONNAY 750ML $7.99
BACARDI Breezer ALL FLAVORS 4 PK. SALE $3.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -1.50 FINAL COST $1.99 + DEP

GORDONS VODKA 1.75L $12.49
BACARDI LIMON 750ML $8.99
SEAGRAM'S 7 BLENDED WHISKEY 1.75L SALE $12.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -3.00 FINAL COST $9.99
JOSE CUERVO GOLD TEQUILA 750ML $11.49
CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH 1.75l $13.49
ABSOLUT VODKA 750ML $12.49

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY 253-9344 NORTHAMPTON 586-3007 HOLYOKE 534-4555
We Accept Cans and Bottles for Redemption
SALE PRICES THURS. 9/11/97 THRU WEDS. 9/17/97
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Eating in with the Dorm Gourmet

Mix Coca–Cola & steak to serve up a tasty, creative meal

Louis Davis

Sick of the dining commons, cold pizza, McDonalds and the same old burritos? Want to indulge your taste buds, impress your friends, or get to that special someone's heart? Well, you don't need a culinary degree and you don't need a huge kitchen or loads of fancy ingredients. You can make easy, inexpensive, creative and delicious food in your dormitory (or campus apartment), and I can show you how.

All the recipes that I'll be presenting in this weekly column use simple ingredients that you can buy in the local convenience store or supermarket. The only appliances you'll need are a stove top (or hot plate), a toaster oven, a microwave and a small refrigerator.

This first recipe, Coca–Cola Steak, is one of my favorites. Remember, whenever and whatever you are cooking, think safety (and flavor) first. Always have a fire extinguisher close by and be sure to provide proper ventilation.

Coca–Cola Steak

For this recipe, choose thick, inexpensive cuts of beef such as sirloin flap (sometimes called "tips"), top butt, or flank steak. Due to the acidic nature of the marinade, even the toughest piece of meat turns buttery soft and succulent and is infused with a slightly sweet, but very savory flavor, and if cooked according to direction, will have a crispy, caramelized crust and a velvety interior. For best results, on this recipe (as well as many to follow), use a 10–inch cast iron pan which you can buy in any hardware store for about $20.

Ingredients

1 1/2 lb. beef steak cut in 1.5–inch cubes
1 12 oz. can Coca–Cola (or other cola product)
1 cup soy sauce
1 cup cheap red wine (if not allowed or available, grape juice is fine)
1 small onion minced
4 cloves garlic minced
1 heaping tablespoon of freshly grown black pepper (or 2 tablespoons of preground)
Vegetable oil (not olive oil or whole butter, because these oils will burn too fast)
Salt and pepper to taste

• In a Ziplock bag or Tupperware container, combine the first seven ingredients. Seal the container and shake well to evenly distribute. Place in the refrigerator to marinate for at least a couple of hours and up to a couple of days. Occasionally re–shake the container (the longer the marination, the more tender the meat, so cut the chunks smaller for a shorter marination and cooking time).

• After marinating, drain the meat thoroughly, discarding all the marinade and dry the meat well with absorbent paper towels.

• Preheat your pan over a burner on high heat and add enough oil to just lightly coat the bottom of the pan. The oil should start smoking as soon as you add it to the hot pan (if it's not, let the pan keep heating up until the smoke starts to form).

• Just before you add the meat to the pan, sprinkle it on all sides with salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste. Add the meat one piece at a time, making sure not to crowd the pan. Cook each side until browned and crispy before turning to the next side. The whole cooking process should take about six to seven minutes for medium rare steak.

• Remove meat from pan and let rest for four to five minutes.

Serving suggestion: this steak tastes great with some Chinese Hoisin or Plum Sauce. Makes two large or four small servings.

Coconut rice cakes and spinach with peanut sauce make for great side dishes — look for the recipes to appear in up– coming editions.

Louis Davis is a UMass student. You can e–mail him with any culinary questions or comments at LouieXO@aol.com.

■ Indigo

continued from page 8

an extremely well–crafted record that, like most of their albums, runs the gamut from catchy, upbeat numbers like "Shame on You" to darker visions like "Leeds" and "Scooter Boys." The album's colossal back–up band features guitarist Steve Earle, fiddle player Lisa Germano (formerly with John Mellencamp's band), bassist Sara Lee and drummer Andy Stochansky (from fellow folk–rocker Ani Difranco's band).

The Indigo Girls live is a raucous, electric event, and the band won't be back in the area for some time. This is a chance to see one of today's best bands working in a hometown setting.

The Indigo Girls play the Mullins Center Friday, Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $35, $23 and $19 and can be purchased at the Mullins Center Box Office.

■ dance

continued from page 8

and John Tchicai in Bombay's annual Jazz Yatra festival. Later on, Gurtu accompanied Indian pop singer Asha Bhosle to New York.

Since the late '70s, Gurtu has continued to develop and create a unique style. He has played with a variety of jazz and fusion artists, including Don Cherry and John McLaughlin. His collaboration with McLaughlin included performances in both the Mahavishnu Orchestra and the John McLaughlin Trio.

Gurtu has also played with Airto Moreira and Larry Coryell. Starting in 1984, he toured with the group Oregon until 1988.

Gurtu's talents do not solely rest in jazz. He has also played with classical performers like Katie and Marielle Labeque and Yo Yo Ma.

In the '90s, Gurtu has started to carve out his own identity and began to tour with his own trios. His 1993 album, Crazy Saints, featured both Pat Metheny and Joe Zawinul.

Gurtu's experimentation with music becomes an original experience, in which the melodies of the cast fuse with those of the west.

The Glimpse Ensemble features an international cast. Thedossi Spassov hails from Bulgaria and is a world master on the kaval, an eight–hole wooden flute. Geetha Bennet, from India, is a vocal artist and an expert on the Carnatic Veena. Kai Eckhardt is the German–born American bass player. Jaya Deva, an Italian guitarist, rounds out the quartet.

Tickets for the Sept. 13 performance are $15 and $10, with $5 tickets available for students and children under 17. Call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545–2511 or (800) 999–UMAS for tickets and more information. Bowker Auditorium is located in Stockbridge Hall at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

American Heart Association. Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

If you are what you eat, why not cut back on fat?

American Heart Association. Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

Tired of throwing your weight around? Exercise

Come in and see us!
REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS
184 N. Pleasant St.
253–9526
JBV

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
ART ON AMHERST TOWN COMMON SUPPLIES
• EXCELLENT QUALITY INVENTORY
• AFFORDABLE ART & TECHNICAL SUPPLIES
• TOP QUALITY FINE ART POSTERS
• POSTERS MOUNTED & FRAMED
• SPECIAL ORDERS GLADLY HONORED
413•253•5592
45 So. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON

Don't just make your bed. Make your room.
BEDSPREADS AT FACES.

A king size selection, from 9.95
Faces Downstairs
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

Spirit Haus
YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT!

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Absolut Citron $13.99/750 ml
Bacardi Light & Dark $7.99/750 ml
Jack Daniels $13.99/750 ml
Kahlua $13.99/750 ml
99 Bananas $9.99/750 ml

MICROBREWS
Wachusett Brewing Co. E.P.A., Country Ale, Nut Brown, Porter, Octoberfest $4.99/pint
Oregon Ales E.P.A., ABE Brown Ale, Raspberry Wheat, Honey Ale $4.99/pint
Brooklyn Brewery (Brown Ale, I.P.A., Lager) $4.99/pint
J. W. Dundee (Honey Brown 12-pk bottles) $6.99/pint
1/2 Keg Special Pilgrim Summer Ale & Wildberry Ale $85.99

BEER SPECIALS
Bud Dry 30 pack $10.99
Coors & Coors Light 30 pack $15.99
Icehouse & Red Dog 30 pack $11.99
Rolling Rock 18 pack $8.99
Molson Golden & Ice 12 pack bottles $6.99

Micro Kegs In Stock
DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED - OPEN 9am to 11pm
RT. 9 EAST / 338 COLLEGE ST (413)253-5384 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT. 9 east
Full Redemption Center

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ
Come See for Yourself...
•Sisterhood•Scholarship•Leadership•
•Friendship•Philanthropy•Career Networking•
•Lifetime Membership•Lasting Memories•
Sorority Open Rush
Sept. 10 - 18th
All University Women are Welcome
For Individual Dates & Times
Pick Up a Flyer at:
Greek Affairs, 227 Whitmore
or Contact Liz at 549-8025
ΑΕΦ.ΑΧΩ.ΔΖ.ΣΣΣ.ΣΔΤ.ΙΓΥ.ΚΚΓ.ΧΩ.ΣΚ

So Much Better Than Soap, You'll Be Hooked.

Introducing Gillette Series Body Wash for Men

There's a brand new feeling of clean out there. Gillette's new Body Wash. Hang it up. Squeeze some out. No matter how many times you shower, your skin won't get all dried out. So why reach for a bar when you can get hooked on something so refreshing. New Gillette Series Body Wash.

The Best a Man Can Get © 1997 The Gillette Company (USA) Inc.

1997–1998 Massachusetts Men's Basketball

Men's hoop announces 97–98 schedule

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Staff

T-minus 72 days and counting.

The Massachusetts men's basketball team released it's 1997–1998 schedule yesterday. As in previous years, UMass has loaded up a host of tough early season, non-conference opponents, along with the usual list of Atlantic–10 rivals. Included in this year's bill are perennial powers Kansas, Cincinnati and Fresno St., and the resumption of rivalries with Boston College and Connecticut.

"UMass is always going to play a tough schedule," Massachusetts head coach Bruiser Flint said. "That's our philosophy. Any time, any place, any team. Not only did it help us get into the tournament last year, but I think it was one of the reasons we went on a winning streak down the stretch."

One of the highlights of this year's schedule includes the Minutemen's inaugural trip to one of college basketball's most legendary old arenas, Phog Allen Fieldhouse, for a date with the University of Kansas Jayhawks on Wednesday, Dec. 10 at 9:30 p.m. on ESPN. UMass will also make their first trip to the new "Apollo of Temple" on March 1 when they end the regular season against rival Temple.

Massachusetts will also compete in the Las Vegas Shootout on Dec. 20 in Thomas and Mack Arena against Colorado. Former UMass assistant Bill Bayno will lead his UNLV squad against Syracuse in the Shootout's other featured matchup. UMass will play Cincinnati in the Rock 'n' Roll Shootout in Cleveland's Gund Arena on Dec. 27, and battle another Conference USA opponent, UNC– Charlotte, in the A–10/C–USA Challenge at the Providence Civic Center.

The Minutemen's home slate isn't as strong as it has been in recent years. College of Charleston, who reached the Sweet Sixteen in 1997, highlights a non–conference bill that also includes Marshall, Temple, Rhode Island, St. Bonaventure, St. Joseph's and La Salle will make their annual treks to the Mullins Center, and the Minutemen will get another crack at home against George Washington on Jan. 10. The Colonials handed UMass its first two defeats in the Mullins Center back in 1995 and 1996.

UMass will also get a chance to take on more perennial college basketball powers when they compete in the Great Alaska Shootout from Nov. 26–29. They open up at midnight on the 26th against Southwestern Louisiana, in a tournament that includes UCLA, North Carolina, Seton Hall, UAB and Purdue.

The Minutemen will be featured on national television 12 times. ESPN will carry five games, including the finals of the Alaska Shootout. ESPN2 will carry three games and ABC will pick up the home games against Xavier and Temple.

Schedule

Date	Game	Time
Nov. 7	Converse All–Stars (exhibition)	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 15	Marathon Basketball (exhibiton)	7:00 p.m.
Nov. 22	@ Fresno St.	12:00 a.m.
Nov. 26	vs. SW Louisiana (Anchorage, AK)	12:00 a.m.
Nov. 28	Semi–finals— Alaska Shootot	tba
Nov. 29	Finals— Alaska Shootout	tba
Dec. 2	College of Charleston	7:00 p.m.
Dec. 6	Marshall	1:00 p.m.
Dec. 10	@ Kansas	9:30 p.m.
Dec. 14	Boston College (FleetCenter)	tba
Dec. 20	Colorado (Las Vegas)	9:30 p.m.
Dec. 23	Connecticut (Hartford)	7:30 p.m.
Dec. 27	Cincinnati (Cleveland)	9:30 p.m.
Jan. 3	@ St. Joseph's	2:00 p.m.
Jan. 6	@ Fordham	tba
Jan. 10	George Washington	2:00 p.m.
Jan. 15	UNC Charlotte	7:00 p.m.
Jan. 17	Fordham	2:00 p.m.
Jan. 19	St. Bonaventure	8:00 p.m.
Jan. 22	@Davidson	7:30 p.m.
Jan. 24	@ Virginia Tech	2:00 p.m.
Jan. 29	@ Rhode Island	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 1	Dayton	2:00 p.m.
Feb. 3	Temple	9:30 p.m.
Feb. 8	at Xavier	3:30 p.m.
Feb. 10	at Duquesne	3:30 p.m.
Feb. 14	La Salle	2:00 p.m.
Feb. 18	Rhode Island	tba
Feb. 21	St. Joseph's	12:00 p.m.
Feb. 25	@ St. Bonaventure	7:35 p.m.
Mar. 1	@ Temple	3:45 p.m.

Home games are in bold and will be played in the William D. Mullins Center.

Michael's Billiards
10A Belchertown Road Amherst, MA 01002 256-8284
BIGGER IS BETTER!
• $6/hr Everyday Unlimited Players!
• Every Thursday $5 Cash 8Ball Tournament@5pm
• This Friday @9:30pm TRICK KNEE

EXPANDED STATE OF THE ART MULTILEVEL FITNESS CENTER
Cardio Theater
• New Recumbent Bikes
• Over 10 Treadmills
• Gravitron
• Precor EFX
COMING SOON: New Entrance & More Parking
ATTENTION CLIMBERS! THE TREAD WALL IS HERE
THE CLUB
Tennis and Fitness Center
659 Ap

OFFICE WORKERS
Located on the PVTA bus route, National Evaluation Systems, Inc., is looking for part-time assistance with a variety of office tasks. Preferred candidates will work quickly and accurately and be able to work at least 3 consecutive hours between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on days that we have work. On-call hours will be available beginning mid-September and continuing throughout the academic year. Pay is $7.00/hr. Send your résumé or call to have an application mailed to you:
Personnel
NATIONAL EVALUATION SYSTEMS, INC.
30 Gatehouse Road Amherst, MA 01002
E.O.E. NES

Let's Play Video
Just a short walk from campus. All movie rentals for September just $0.99
Rent: Devil's Own, Murder at 1600, Dante's Peak, McHale's Navy, Fierce Creatures, Prisoner of the Mountain and many more.
Soon to arrive: English Patient, The Saint, Road Racer's, Volcano
Specializing in video game rentals, trades, sales.
Rent a Play Station, Nintendo 64, Saturn with 3 games for just $6.00 per night.
Buy Prices: Nintendo 64 - $80, Play Station- $75, Saturn- $60 (Prices subject to change)
We're between the Post and the Laundromat in the Lulu Shops • 549-4555
Mon-Fri 11-7:30 Sat 12-7:30 closed

AMHERST BALLET CENTRE
celebrating 26 years of professional ballet training.
Therese Brady Donohue, Director
29 Strong Street, Amherst, MA 01002
OFFERING 10-WK. ADULT COURSES: (Starting October 1st)
Beginner Ballet Wed. 5:30 - 6:30
Intermediate Ballet Tues. &/or Thurs. 6:30 - 8:00
CALL 549-1555

FEEDING FRENZY!
1/2 Price Appetizers
Bar Restaurant & Lounge
Wed-Sat 3-5pm & 7-11pm
Sun-Tues 3-5pm & 7-9pm
★ Super Nachos & Guacamole (Reg. $6.95)
★ Homemade Onion Rings (Reg. $4.25)
★ Potato Skins (Reg. $5.95)
★ Buffalo Wings (Reg. $5.25)
★ Artichoke & Cheese Dip (Reg. $5.95)
and lots more!!!
fun.food.spirits
THE PUB
amherst
15 East Pleasant Street

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring "Genuine Draft & Light" 30-pk $10.42
12-pk Bottle Special
Super Buys! Becks Regular, Becks Dark, Molsons Golden, Molsons Ice $7.99
"Fantastic Pricing!" $6.99
"MICRO MADNESS" Red Hook Catamount ALL FLAVORS! Pete's Harpoon
Mix & Match "TWO" 6-pks... $9.95
Vodka 80 $8.97 1.75 Liter
Franzia Wines $6.97 5 Liter Box
Sutter Home White Zinfandel $6.97 1.5 Liter
Check Out Russell's Indoor Specials!
Wow!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

PLANNING TO OBSERVE
ROSH HASHANAH AND YOM KIPPUR?
Students planning to be absent from class due to religious observance must notify their instructors at least one week in advance. In the event of a dispute between a student and faculty member, either party should contact the Department Head or the Ombuds Office at 545-0867.*
* Taken from the Major Days of Religious Observance 1997/98 Calendar

CLUB KAI
WELCOMES BACK STUDENTS
FREE FOOD THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT 9:30 - 10:30
JOIN US FOR OUR HOT BODY CONTEST, $50 CASH PRIZE.* FEATURING: DJ COOL REG SPINNING TODAY'S TOP 40
DJ E. DOOGIE & DJ YU SPINNING THE LATEST R&B, HIP HOP, & REAGGAE
MR. SMITH'S SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY
THURSDAY•FRIDAY•SATURDAY
DRINK SPECIALS
RUM & COKE $1.50
ICE HOUSE & RED DOG 16OZ $1.50
BUD & BUD LITE 16OZ BTLS $2.50
BUD PITCHERS $5.00
KAMIKAZEE SHOOTERS $1.50
335 Russell St, Rt 9 Hadley 586.2774
5 minutes from campus
*registration between 9:30 & 10:30 weekly winners qualify for grand prize

Freider to resign as ASU coach

By Mel Reisner
Associated Press

PHOENIX — Bill Frieder is said to be ready to quit as Arizona State basketball coach following his worst season and reports of a gambling investigation.

Frieder, who has spent eight years as coach of the Sun Devils, was to hold an informal news conference this afternoon at his home in suburban Paradise Valley.

Athletic director Kevin White was meeting with university officials, and the school is planning a formal news conference. Phoenix radio station KMVP and CNNSI, neither identifying a source, were among those reporting the imminent resignation. Frieder's team, beset by injuries and players' runins with the law, finished 10-20 last season, including 2-16 in the Pac-10. A federal grand jury reportedly is investigating accusations that a player took thousands of dollars from a gambler who bet heavily against the Sun Devils in 1994 and that two other players might have shaved points.

Last week, two players were accused of stealing a compact disc player from a dormitory room.

Bruce Gebhardt, special agent in charge of the Phoenix FBI office, has said the school and athletic officials, including Frieder, are not targets of the investigation.

Frieder has been at Arizona State since the 1989-90 season and has a 132-108 record. His best season was 1994-95, when the Sun Devils were 24-9 and reached the round of 16 in the NCAA tournament.

The Arizona Republic reported last month that federal authorities were investigating whether point guard Stevin "Hedake" Smith took thousands of dollars from a gambler who bet heavily against the Sun Devils in 1994. The grand jury also is looking into the possibility that two other players took money from the gambler, the Republic said.

The Tribune, a newspaper serving suburban Phoenix, quoted former Arizona State center Jay Knollmiller as saying he saw suspicious activity during the 1994 season and had talked with FBI agents. The investigation began after Las Vegas bookmakers noted unusually heavy betting on Arizona State's March 5, 1994, game against Washington. Several casinos took the unusual step of barring wagering on the contest because of the large bets on Washington in a game Arizona State was heavily favored to win. After missing its first 14 shots, Arizona State won 73-55, surpassing even the original 11-point spread posted for the game. Smith was 4-of-8 and scored 13 points in the game, five off his season average.

Arizona State officials point to the fact that the Sun Devils won that game as evidence that there was no wrongdoing.

"Some group of guys bet a lot of money on Washington, and we covered," Frieder said two days after the Washington game. "Do you think I'd be alive today if we had agreed to throw a game and then ran away with it?"

Investigators reportedly are looking into several other Arizona State games late in the 1994 season, including a March 3 game against Washington State that the favored Sun Devils lost by nine points. Smith had 19 points in that game.

Frieder coached Michigan from 1981 to 1989, leading the school to five consecutive NCAA tournament appearances from 1985 through 1989 and compiling a record of 191-87.

***

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Mark McGwire joined Babe Ruth as the only players in major league history with consecutive 50-homer seasons by hitting a mammoth shot off Shawn Estes in St. Louis' game against the Giants on Wednesday.

McGwire led off the third inning with a homer to left field estimated at 446 feet. It gave the Cardinals a 3-2 lead over San Francisco.

It was McGwire's 16th homer in 34 games since joining the Cardinals in a July 31 trade from the Oakland Athletics.

McGwire, who hit a major league-leading 52 homers for Oakland last season, became the first player with back-to-back 50-homer seasons since Ruth did it in 1927 and 1928. Ruth also accomplished the feat in 1920 and 1921.

McGwire became the sixth player to reach 50 homers twice, joining Ruth — who did it four times — and Jimmie Foxx, Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays and Ralph Kiner.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Heads Up!
The UMass men's soccer team returns to the friendly confines of Totman Field this Saturday when they take on the Maine Black Bears. Game time is scheduled for 1 p.m.

WRITE SPORTS!

Don't just read it... BE IT!
The Collegian is always looking for interested (and interesting) new writers. If you've ever considered writing (Don't try to deny it, we know you have), don't hesitate. Find yourself a niche now. Be a part of New England's largest college daily.

Ben's
We: Sell new and used vehicles. Repair foriegn and domestic vehicles.
11 Bridge St • Sunderland, MA
Tel (413) 665- 3344 Fax (413) 665-3966

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.- Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.
$hop Scott's & $ave Lot$! Thank you for your patronage
Busch & Busch Light 30 packs $10.49 + dep.
Miller Lite 30 packs $14.99 + dep.
Molson Golden & Ice 12 packs $ 7.39 + dep.
Magic Hat 6 packs $ 5.99 + dep.
-stop in Sat. night 5-7 for free Magic Hat stuff-
-Quantity discounts always available-
Absolut Citron 750mL $13.99
Bacardi Rum 750mL $7.99
Captain Morgan 1.75L $17.49
Jagermeister 750mL $12.99
99° Bananas 750mL $5.99
COME IN AND REGISTER TO WIN A FREE COLOR T.V.
NO PURCHASE NECESSARY, MUST BE 21
Always Tons of Unadvertised Specials!!!
Go Women
MasterCard VISA DISCOVER
Tele-Check for your personal check
We want to be your favorite Liquor store
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Kellers University Drive Alumni Stadium
SCOTTS Victory Market

Lady Heart is the Heart Society's Very Merry Mascot
Free Prevention Hotline October 6-10 1996

On the Safety Circuit
Preventing Electrical Fires
Electrical fires can cause tragedies. These simple tips will help protect your home and family.
• Routinely check your electrical appliances and wiring.
• Look for outlets that don't work, light switches that are hot to the touch and lights that flicker.
• Immediately repair appliances and lamps that sputter or spark.
• Never overload outlets or extension cords.
• Replace all frayed or cracked cords.
• Have a professional check self-wiring projects.
Remember, on the safety circuit, there's no place like home.

WHAT TO DRINK SPECIALS
RUM & COKE 16OZ $2.00
SOMBREROS 16OZ $2.00
MILLER LITE DRAFT THE BIG ONE 20OZ $1.99
MOLSON NIGHT FRI SEPT 12 10-MIDNIGHT LOTS OF PRIZES
THURS-FRI-SAT DANCING BEAT THE COVER NO COVER BEFORE 10PM
fun.food.spirits THE PUB amherst
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET

MONUMENTAL SAVINGS
OUR BIGGEST SALE OF THE YEAR
SAVE UP TO $200 ON COLLEGE RINGS
ARTCARVED COLLEGE JEWELRY
©ACCB 1997

■ Pats

continued from page 14

Unfortunately, Fox will probably air Arizona at Washington. That would be just our luck. My prediction: Minnesota 20, Tampa Bay 17.

•No matter how accurate Jeff George is, the Oakland Raiders will lose half of their games this year due to stupid penalties.

Oh, and by the way, if anybody can give me one good reason explaining to me how the "Prevent Defense" is any good, I'll buy you a slice of pizza at Antonio's. Your choice.

If you saw the game on Monday night, there was no way that Kansas City was going to win. The score was 28–22 in Oakland's favor and there was less than a minute left on the clock when the Chiefs got the ball. Then, like a light switch, the Raiders defense changed. They only rushed three men after Elvis Grbac and left the rest back in an open zone. This allowed K.C.'s receivers to run their routes with little to no interference. Making a long story short, the Chiefs made it all the way down the field with :10 seconds left on the clock and the next play put the ball in the endzone to win the game.

But what can you expect? It's not as if Joe Bugel did much to improve Arizona. How can you expect him to improve the Raiders?

•Kevin Butler hasn't seen the light since his glory days back in Chicago. And that was back when Belushi and Akroyd saw the light with James Brown. But somehow, somewhere, somebody was praying for him.

On Sunday, when it came down to the wire and all the Cardinals needed was a field goal to defeat the menacing Cowboys, Butler stepped on to the field. It was overtime and he could become the hero or the goat. The kick went up or sort of straight and low, when all of a sudden it hit the upright and bounced through.

On any given day, it would be a lucky kick, but against Dallas, somebody wanted that to go through.

•Carolina could only muster 9 points out of Atlanta's defense and still won the game, 9–6. That's it. That's all I have to say about that.

•Perhaps the most impressive team, thus far, has been Jacksonville. Even without Marc Brunell, the Steve Matthews' led Jaguars are 2–0. It just shows you how talented they really are. Matthews, who was just recently taken off waivers, completed 23 passes for 252 yards and beat the Giants 40–13. That's after New York embarrassed the Eagles in week No. 1.

After two weeks of football have been completed, I know less than I did after the first. In week one, I picked 12 out of the 15 games correctly. Last week, I went 6–9.

The only thing I know for sure is that if Drew Bledsoe keeps on playing the way he has been for the last two weeks, the talk about him never turning into a MVP will dissolve faster than Bubby Brister's career.

Jonathan M. Place is a Collegian columnist.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WOMEN'S ICE HOCKEY TEAM is looking for new players. No experience necessary. For info call Beth at 546-2565.

If you don't think that being in a sorority is for you, you probably have not checked out our house. Come to Open House Rush Sept. 9, 10, 11 at 8pm. Iota Gamma Upsilon, 406 N. Pleasant St. For info or a ride call Kendra at 549-1970.

Cheap Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union, Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

AUTO FOR SALE

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Call The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Must Sell 87 Subaru Wagon good condition, great in winter, high mileage. $1000 or B/O. 582-9872

1987 Mazda 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

AUTO FOR SALE

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patti)

85 Chrysler LeBaron mint condition, A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo, power windows and locks. 95,000 miles. $700 or B/O. Call Bruce 256-1215

EMPLOYMENT

Medical/Legal Assistant
Part-Time for Springfield/Northampton personal injury law firm.
Job requires knowledge of medical records and anatomy. Nursing background and legal studies necessary. Must be able to perform online and traditional research in medicine and law. Some work can be done on campus. Flexible hours. Could lead to full-time permanent job.
Fax resume and cover sheet to:
Attorney Alan Goodman
(413)736-4861

Undergraduate Business Consultant
Great business and leadership opportunity on-campus. W/S and H/W/S positions available. CSS 406 Student Union. 5-2167

EMPLOYMENT

Rao's Coffee is hiring Food service experience, late night availability and a minimum of 15 hours per week required. Apply in person. No calls please.

CANTONE'S PIZZA NOW HIRING DRIVERS PART-TIME AND FULL-TIME You must have a reliable vehicle. Apply after 3 pm. 481 West St. (Route 116) South Amherst, across from the Amherst Ale House. 256-6100

Drivers Wanted Car needed. Apply in person at Pinocchio's Pizza. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Kai Chi Restaurant Drivers and Waitstaff Wanted. Part-Time. Apply within. Route 9, 335 Russell St., Hadley. 586-2774

Grocery Shopper to deliver to Longmeadow family. Looking for individual to do grocery shopping at Bread and Circus and deliver 1-2 times weekly. Must have own car and be dependable. Some knowledge of Kosher food helpful. Flat rate preferred. Call Alan (413)736-4635 ext. 221.

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Used Bicycles Buy/Sell/Trade/Consign. All styles, makes, and models. Hampshire Bicycle Exchange 256-4537 Sun 9-4. In Hall at Mt. Farms Mall on Route 9, Hadley.

Queen Futon Mattress Deluxe foam core, thick cotton, double layer 1.8 density. The Best. Excellent condition. $150 or B/O. 256-8229

Furniture For Sale Will take best offer. Call Scott or Pete. 549-3747

2 Tap Keg System 4-Sale Call James 549-7598

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

INSTRUCTION

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

MISCELLANEOUS

Lose weight! Boost energy using Thermochrome. Send SASE for information or $3.50 for sample packet to: Jennifer James, 59 B St., Hull, MA 02045

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for one or two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at 549-3992

SERVICES

Transcription, Editing, Typing for students, professors & businesses. Domenichelli Transcription Services (413)783-8607. domenbus@javanet.com

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

SERVICES

11 Bridge Street
Sunderland, MA
Ben's
new & used vehicles repairs foreign & domestic
Tel. (413) 665-3344
Fax (413) 665-3966
Bob Connelly
Shop Manager

COMPUTER SERVICES
Mac Magic
Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant.
Alvin C. Whaley
(413)584-7904
Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals.
Your office, dorm, or home.

TRAVEL

Vacation Package 4 nights accommodation, Cancun, Mexico for 2 nights. New Orleans 2 nights. Bahamas Cruise. $300 for all. Book by December 20th. 253-1751

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS available on the concoure or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Classifieds Special

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exception are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Proximity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day
All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

THURSDAY, SEPT. 11

Class — A free one-credit class entitled "Anti-Semitism Today: From the Subtle to the Extreme" will be held from 7–9 p.m. at the Hillel House, Confrenece Room. Classes are open to the public. Visitors are welcome.

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend a patio party from 5–7 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549– 6070.

Greek life — Sigma Delta Tau will hold open fall rush from 6–8 p.m. at 409 North Pleasant St.

Yoga — An Introduction to Yoga & Meditation (lecture and practical experience) by Dada Anantananda will be held in the Campus Center, room 904–08 at 7 p.m. Free admission. Sponsored by the Ananda Morga Yoga & Meditation Society.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 12

Meeting — A Welcoming Reception for South Asian students will be held at 5 p.m. in the Durfee Conservatory, behind the public health building. Everyone is welcome. Free ethnic food.

Service — Shabbat Service will be held at 6 p.m. at the Hillel House. All welcome. Sponsored by UMass Hillel.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 13

Greek life — Sigma Delta Tau will hold open fall rush from 2–4 p.m. at 409 North Pleasant St.

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend a fitness walk at 1 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549–6070.

Comedy — There will be a free improv comedy show at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 163.

Dance — UMass Ballroom Dance Club invites everyone to their Welcome Back Dance / Hooked on Ballroom II from 7p.m.–1a.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. Beginner dance instructions from 7–9 p.m. Dance exhibitions by students and pros. Casual or semiformal attire. Free admission.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild and University Productions & Concert will be holding auditions for the fall musical production of The Who's Tommy Friday, Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Auditions will also be held Saturday, Sept. 13 at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Call backs are Sunday, Sept. 14 at 11 a.m. Audition pieces will be provided. For questions call 545–0415 or 545–2892.

Blood drive — Come and help the American Red Cross meet the challenge of providing a safe and available blood supply for all those who need it by donating blood at the UMass Fall Kick–Off Blood Drives. Donations can be made Sept. 11 from 9:30 a.m.–3:30 p.m. on the first floor of the Campus Center. Donors can make an appointment by calling (800) 462–2229. Walk–ins are welcome.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545-0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 11–12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nomination papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545-0342.

PIPs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PIP, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
TONIGHT: RED HOOK GIVEAWAYS & PRIZES!! 10-12

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
26 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
28 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Cranberry

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 11, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	16	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Mystery! "Poirot" (R)		Wait for God	Keeping Up	Murder-Horrid	This Old Hse.
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Reel TV	Promised Land "Mirror Image"		Mike Wallace Remembers		48 Hours		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Promised Land "Mirror Image"		Mike Wallace Remembers		48 Hours		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Gymnastics. World Championships.				20/20 (Season Premiere)		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	★★½ "Quiz" (1991, Science Fiction) Sean Connery.				News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)	Frasier (R)	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun.	ER "Make a Wish" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	14	Maxwell... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Major League Baseball. New York Yankees at Baltimore Orioles. (Live)					LAPD		Vibe
WWJI	38	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Friends (R)	Frasier (R)	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun	ER "Make a Wish" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Living Single	Between Bros.	413 Hope St. "Pilot"		News		Coach	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)	Frasier (R)	Seinfeld (R)	3rd Rock-Sun	ER "Make a Wish" (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		This Old Hse.	Dra.-Cell	Mystery! "Poirot" (R)		Brideshead Revisited		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Ent. Tonight	Gymnastics. World Championships.				20/20 (Season Premiere)		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Seinfeld	Mad Abo. You	★½ "Midnight Run" (1995, Drama) Michael Duddikoff, Mark Hamill.				News		Rea TV	M*A*S*H
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	★½ "Sunspot" (1982, Adventure) Jean-Claude Van Damme.				★★ "Double Impact" (1991, Adventure) Jean-Claude Van Damme.
A&E	51	Quincy "No Deadly Secret"		Law & Order "White Rabbit"		Biography: Ayatollah Khomeini		Sea Tales		Unexplained		Law & Order
CNN	53	27 World View		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	35	26 Tim Allen	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	★★ "Como Jing Gay Bones" (1987, Comedy) George Hamilton.				Tim Allen	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	49	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Sea Wings "Call Over Korea"		Wild Discovery: Dragons		Mystery Univ.	Movie Magic	Wings "Wings Over Vietnam"		Wild Discovery: Dragons
ESPN	33	Up Close	Sportscenter		Wkend Kickoff	College Football: Alabama at Vanderbilt. (Live)						Sportscenter
LIFE	52	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait: Doris Duke		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Sister and Sister		Countdown to the 10 Spot		Yo! (In Stereo)
MTV	69	MTV Live	Viewers	Best of MTV (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Oddville, MTV	Loveline
NICK	55	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Secret of Alex	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days
SCIFI	45	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Sightings (R) (In Stereo)		Sequest DSV (In Stereo)		★★ "Terror Squad" (1987, Science Fiction) Kevin Dillon.				Sightings (R) (In Stereo)
TLC	59	28 Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Treasures	America	Life After Death		Non-Lethal Weapons (R)		Treasures	America
TNT	50	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		★★★ "The Largest Thief" (1974, Comedy) Burt Reynolds, Eddie Albert.					Rough Cut	★★½ "White Lightning" (1973)
USA	62	Renegade (In Stereo)		Highlander: The Series (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger		★★½ "Perfect Alibi" (1994, Suspense) Terl Gehr. (In Stereo)				Stn. Stallings	"Powder Burn"
HBO	29	(5:30) ★★ "Nine Months" (1995)		★★ "Clueless" (1995, Comedy) Alicia Silverstone. "50/50" R				"Double Tap" (1997, Suspense) Stephen Rea. "R"		Mr. Show		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)
MAX	60	(4:45)	★★ "Three Bs" (1992) David and Peter Paul.			★★★½ "Absence of Malice" (1981, Drama) Paul Newman. "PG"				★½ "Aurora: Operation Intercept" (1995) "R"			"Night Eyes"
SHOW	65	★★ "Elvis Meets Nixon" (1997, Comedy) Rick Peters. (In Stereo)				★★★½ "Dead Presidents" (1995, Drama) Larenz Tate. "R"				"Color of Justice" (1997, Drama) Bruce Davison.		"Nixon" (1995)

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Quality time is not all it's cracked up to be today. Focus on doing things that are enjoyable, whether or not others approve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You may find yourself involved in a competition of sorts with someone who has a great deal in common with you. Try working together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — New surroundings can inspire you to work harder, faster and with greater results. Rewards beckon, but you have other motives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You may be confusing what you want to do with what you need to do today. Prioritize, and you'll be better prepared to proceed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — There is no need to judge anyone prematurely today. Keep your opinions to yourself until you have all the evidence. Remember the quality of mercy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You can count on others to be conscientious and willing to put in that extra effort when the time comes. It is easy to play leader today.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You will derive a great deal of inspiration today from the most mundane of circumstances. You may be surprised to find out where your power lies.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Pay attention to all messages, warnings and announcements you receive directly or indirectly today. All info is valuable to you.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Keep up the good work, and focus on what is most profitable to the greatest number of people. Avoid doing things solely for yourself today.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You will be able to catch on to something that others may find extremely confusing today. Your next move? Show others the ropes.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You are going to have to treat yourself a little more responsibly today. Eat right, get enough rest, and focus on emotional nourishment.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Someone you know may be taking an immature approach to a difficult problem today. It is time once again to come to the rescue!

Quote of the Day

"Being in love is a lot like being tired, you can't think straight and all you want to do is get back in bed."

–Anonymous

Close to Home By John McPherson

"OK, free HBO! Come to papa!"

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Pizza Casserole
Vegan Falafel Sandwich
Falafel Sauce
DINNER
Jamaican Beef Patty
Shells w/ Tofu Mushroom Sauce
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Worcester
LUNCH
Hot Turkey sandwich
Elbow Macaroni/TomatoSauce
Vegetable Lo Mein
DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Pastabilities
Black Bean Quesadilla
VeganBlack Bean Quesadilla

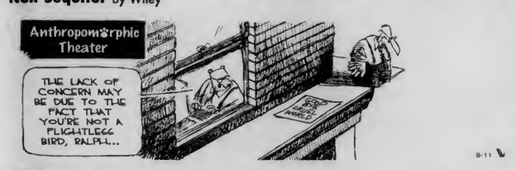
Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Barbecued Beef on a Bun
DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Jamaican Beef Patty

Berkshire
LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Hamburger on a Roll
Harvest Burger
DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Jamaican Beef Patty
Shells w/ Tomato Basil Broth
Pastabilities

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Mark McGrath
Photo Technition	Lauren Kosky
Copy Editor	Melissa
Production Supervisor	Sam Smullin
Production Staff	Angie Annesse, Matt Guilmette

Bruno By C. Baldwin



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

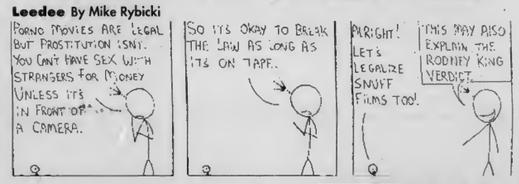
Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

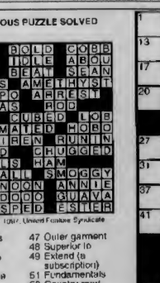
Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

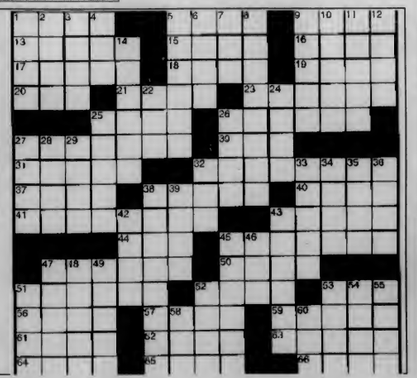


University² By Frank Cho



Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Leedee By Mike Rybicki



PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

9-11-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Leafy vegetable
5 Matty of baseball
9 Arab boat
13 Violinist Stern
15 Won ton, e.g.
16 Soap
17 Object
18 Feline sound
19 Iceberg
20 Smidgen
21 Overlook
23 Displease
25 Blemish
26 Stylist's aid
27 Inconspicuous
30 Clinched
31 Narrow lanes
32 Polish sausage
37 "I have ought to be —"
38 Medieval trade union
40 Press
41 Connective tissue
43 Fire starter
44 Qty.
45 Community
47 Singer Enrico
50 Pub orders
51 Although 52 Take a shine to
53 Flying saucer abbr.
56 Favor
57 North African port
59 Gentle
61 Grotto
62 Not any
63 Mail unit
64 Distort
65 Wide-spouted pitcher
66 Part of A.D.

DOWN
1 Pirate captain
2 On the briny
3 Farm baby
4 Wales, in Paris
5 Have ambitions
6 Oral
7 — Town"
8 Pulled out
9 Removes (a hair)
10 Golf-course unit
11 layer
12 Tidy the garden
14 Sign of spring
22 Impair
24 Oil or coal
25 Pronunciation symbol
26 Send
27 Example of 38-Down
28 Java's neighbor
29 Dad's mate
32 Set of tools
33 Beaks
34 Dive's solo
35 Melody
36 Poker stake
38 Valuable mineral
39 "Do — others"
42 Hawaiian island
45 More conceited
46 Knit
47 Outer garment
48 Superior to
49 Extend (a subscription)
51 Fundamentals
52 Country road
53 "Once — a time"
54 Houseplant
55 Sandwich cookie
58 Tier
60 — premium: scarce

SPORTS

Thursday, September 11, 1997 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Rednecks or the Reds? A simple pick

Fast cars or fast women?

The thunder of NASCAR's Winston Cup rolls into Loudon, N.H. on Sunday at 12:30 p.m. for the New Hampshire 300 at New Hampshire International Speedway (NHIS). Meanwhile, the thunder that is St. Bonaventure women's soccer (2–6 in the Atlantic 10 last year) rolls onto Totman Field on Sunday at 1 p.m.

Winston Cup races can pass a rainy day on TV, but I've heard that you have to see one of these things in person to truly appreciate the raw power of the sport. I was planning on sneaking up to the race, but never made it that far.

I enjoy writing here, but my bread is buttered in Boyden, and thus I'll be sitting in the tin can that passes as a press box at Totman on Sunday. So, to help myself feel somewhat better about this arrangement, I've listed several reasons below why UMass women's soccer (the Reds) is better than NASCAR (the Rednecks).

- Soccer is the most popular sport in the world. NASCAR is the most popular sport in Talladega, Alabama.
- After a goal at a UMass game, you might get hit in the lap with a free t–shirt or soccer ball thrown into the stands. On the other hand, after a nasty crash at a race, you might get hit in the head with a flying brakepad.

Leigh Torbin

- "Minutewomen" is a unique nickname, especially considering that there were technically only "Minutemen" in the Revolutionary War; No where else on Earth will you find people known as "Minutewomen" except for UMass. Meanwhile, Jeff Gordon — Winston Cup superstar — stole the nickname "Rainbow Warriors" from Greenpeace.
- Speaking of tree huggers, Winston Cup cars, on some tracks, only get between two and 2.5 miles per gallon depending on several variables. Even an Olds Toronado does better than that on gas. This all contributes to the Greenhouse Effect, acid rain and other nasty things that I don't want to deal with. The Minutewomen are completely biodegradable, and several of them actively recycle.
- It's much less wordy to talk about Robin Smith in her Reebok Infinity Pros than saying "National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing driver Ernie Irvan drives the No. 28 Texaco–Halvoline Ford Thunderbird." That, and I can comprehend owning a pair of Reeboks. A Thunderbird...
- Showing a respect for the other side, UMass head coach Jim Rudy has been known, on occasion, to root for Mark Martin in the No. 6 Valvoline Ford. The Winston Cup folks don't reciprocate though, none of the good old boys have ever been spotted at a UMass game. Snobby bastards.
- There's nothing to even remotely match Dick Trickle in the name department, but following Mark Martin and Ricky Rudd, Rudy does love alliteration in recruiting. Just explain Danielle Dion, Tarah Tokarchik, "Tommy" Thompson, Brooke Bartlett, or his fresh, fiendish find, Massachusetts midfielder Molly Meghan McGrew from Mechanicsburg, Pa.
- Busch is the official beer of NASCAR.
- The new Federal tobacco settlements will eventually force the Winston Cup to change its name (You didn't think that was for Winston–Salem, N.C., Winston Zedemore from Ghostbusters, or Winston Smith did you?). Unaffected by the tobacco lobby UMass will compete in the Atlantic 10 from now until the Big East wakes up and smells the coffee, or Hanson's induction into the Rock 'n Roll Hall of Fame.
- The Minutewomen look far better in dresses and high heels than does Rusty Wallace.
- During games, the Minutewomen make left and right turns.
- NASCAR's home office is in Daytona Beach. UMass women's soccer is headquartered in Boyden. Nope, can't argue with that one, but even the Reds lose one every now and then to the Rednecks. How else can you explain a 3–0 loss to Texas A&M last year?

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

Minutewomen beat Eagles for 16th straight time, 3–0

By Greg Thurell & Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

New coach, new field, same result.

The Massachusetts women's field hockey team extended its winning streak to 16 games over the Boston College Eagles with a 3–0 victory in the Minutewomen's third game at Garber Field.

UMass now holds a record of 2–1, while the Eagles' first loss of the year drops their record to 2–1.

Junior Vicky Browne opened the scoring by weaving through a couple of Eagles defenders, and putting the ball into the net at the 9:42 mark of the first half. The unassisted goal is Browne's 3rd of the year.

About 18 minutes in, UMass' leading scorer Erica Johnston suffered a cut under her left eye and had to be replaced by injured senior captain Courtney MacLean.

UM	3
BU	0

Two minutes later, at 20:08 in the first half, MacLean scored, assisted by freshman Christine Millbauer. Millbauer directed the ball as it rebounded off Eagle goalie Stacy Cichaski's pads. As the ball went to Cichaski's right side, MacLean was ready, and she carried the ball straight into the BC cage.

"The ball just deflected to me off the goalie," MacLean said. "And I was in the right place at the right time."

MacLean is part of a new–look UMass front line, one that is boosted by the experience of the senior co–captain and Johnston, a junior, and the youthful enthusiasm of Millbauer, a sophomore, and freshman Kristen Schmidt.

"Christine is a fireplug," coach Patty Shea said. "She is a real spark on this team. She will do just about anything that is asked of her. She can create havoc for the other team's defense because she is fast and she plays a different style than Kristen, Erica and Courtney. And that's something you want on the front line."

The 2–0 score at the half is indicative of the way the Minutewomen outplayed the Eagles both on defense and on offense.

A key area of Shea's concern before the game were the 50/50 balls.

"That was one of our goals," Shea said. "A lot of that is a confidence that you're going to get to it and that if you don't get to it, then your teammate is there to back you up. We just had that mindset to go for the 50/50 balls today, and that really helped us."

Sophomore goalie Zowie Tucker made a few spectacular saves in the half, including one off of a BC penalty corner, which helped UMass preserve its lead 14 minutes into the half. With about 8:30 left before intermission, she went out of the net to stop one shot and then came back with another two saves back to back, one of them diving back toward the cage.

"Zowie plays a European style, and that style is so different," Shea said. "European goalies are so far ahead in terms of reading the plays and reading the field, it's just a matter of bringing her into the present. She did a real good job of that, especially with her not being 100 percent right now."

Tucker, who finished with six saves, has a slight strain in her upper right leg.

The Minutewomen also benefitted from a 7–2 advantage in penalty corners in the first half. Corners were one area where the Minutewomen did have problems stopping the ball before the shot.

"I think that we just weren't focused on doing one thing at a time," Shea said. "Just like if we over run the ball, you have to receive the ball first before you can do your next move."

The second half saw the Minutewomen set the tempo and score the only goal of the period. With 13:59 remaining in the game, Millbauer carried the ball up the left side of the field, drawing a defender to commit to her.

A sharp pass to the middle of the field found Johnston, who then maneuvered in front of an advancing Cichaski before nailing a shot hard against the back of the BC goal.

The Minutewomen return to action tomorrow afternoon at 1 p.m. when they take on Davis and Elkins at James Madison University.

Minutewomen Notes: Former UMass coach Pam Hixon, who has 13 wins against the Eagles to her credit and who coached Shea at UMass, was on hand for the contest.

"Patty's doing a really great job," Hixon said. "She's in a nice situation with an eager team and a great new field."

LAUREN KOSSY / COLLEGIAN

Led by Junior Vickie Browne, the Minutewomen blanked BC 3–0 yesterday at Garber Field.

Massachusetts sweeps Hawks, 7–0

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Correspondent

The 1997 season opener for the University of Massachusetts women's tennis team was basically a carbon copy of the '96 opener. On both occasions, the Minutewomen opened up their campaign with easy victories over the University of Hartford.

On Tuesday afternoon in Hartford, UMass bageled the Hawks 7–0 to start its season off on the right foot. All six singles matches were won in straight sets. In addition, all three doubles teams were winners, allowing the Minutewomen to gain the final point of the afternoon in doubles competition.

"They exceeded my expectations," Massachusetts coach Judy Dixon said. "It was a little early to start the season because we've only had five days of practice. I was pleased with the intensity, the mental toughness and the information we gained about what we need to do [this season]."

UM	7
Hartford	0

Senior Marie–Christine Caron defeated Sarah Kadi 6–2, 6–0 in her first collegiate match at the number one position. Jackie Braunstein followed that win with a 6–1, 6–1 victory over Jenn Kolins.

Next to pick up a win was freshman Robyn Lebovitz, who breezed past Cara Pigliocampi 6–0, 6–0. "I was especially pleased with Caron and Lebovitz," Dixon said.

"Caron came out and played excellent, and I was impressed with how strong she was mentally... and it's not often that a freshman wins 6–0, 6–0."

The clean sweep in singles play continued when Caroline Steele rolled past Jodi Langdell 6–2, 6–2. Junior Lana Gorodetskaya was also a 6–1, 6–1 victor over Diane Kapner, while April Mandini put the Hawks out of their misery with a 6–0, 6–3 win over Jessica Bantje.

"Caroline Steele played well, and she came out with confidence," said Dixon of her senior tri–captain.

Doubles play produced more of the same results for the Minutewomen. Ola Gerasimova and Caron easily disposed of Kadi/Kolins 8–3. The duo of Lebovitz/Steele took care of Kolins/Langdell 8–2, and Braunstein/Gorodetskaya rounded out the day's play with a 8–2 win over Kapner/Bantje.

"Hartford is much improved from last year," said Dixon, who coached UMass to a 6–1 win over the Hawks last year. "I'm happy we came out so ready to play."

COURTNEY BARTH / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts's women's tennis team opened the 1997 fall season by whipping Hartford 7–0 yesterday.

Pats, Jets won't live up; Bucs and Vikes to tango

The NFL

Jonathan M. Place

Alright sports fans, let's set the stage.

Location: Foxboro Stadium, Foxboro, Mass.

Event: The New York Jets (1–1) vs. the New England Patriots (2–0).

The Big Deal: The most highly anticipated football game of the year.

Just in case you missed the last nine months, here is a little summary explaining why there is so much hype surrounding this contest.

Rich Kotite, the worst coach in NFL history, was fired from the head coaching position for the Jets. Big surprise. Bill Parcells, after losing the Superbowl with the Patriots, leaves New England for New York. Another tear jerker. Pete Carroll, who was fired from the Jets to be replaced by Kotite, becomes the new head coach of New England. Another little tidbit, when Carroll was the head coach of the Jets, he coached them to a 6–10 record. He was fired because the owner's daughter liked Kotite better. Kotite could only get one win, against Arizona, last year.

What a great front office the Jets must have.

So after all the talk, the I–have–something–to–prove press conferences, and the he–was–a–great–guy–to–work–for interviews, it is now time to play ball.

But don't get your boxers all in a bunch. It ain't gonna be that great of a game. Sure, all the hype tells you that having the Tuna come back to Foxboro is the biggest thing since Roger Clemens coming back to Fenway, but do you really think that New York will give New England a game?

Come on, the Jets destroyed Seattle and lost to Buffalo. They lost to Buffalo. How good can they be? First of all, the Seahawks aren't good enough to make the Patriots practice squad. Second, Buffalo, if they are lucky, will finish third, maybe fourth, in the AFC East.

The Patriots toyed with San Diego, like they should have, and embarrassed Indianapolis. Maybe the first half of Sunday's game wasn't that pretty, but the Pats still walked away with a 25–point victory.

The defense has only been enough to give up 13 total points. How much do you think Carroll can get the embarrassment of the Big Apple to score? Not only have the Patriots scored the most points in the NFL this season (72), the defense has allowed the fewest (13).

As far as I'm concerned, the Patriots should walk away with this game. Even the bookies have favored the Pats by 9 points. My prediction: New England 45, New York 10.

Air Bledsoe tosses the Tuna back to the Meadowlands.

By the way, there is no bias in this column.

In other NFL news:

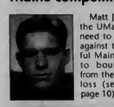
- The most interesting game coming up this Sunday, next to the Jets in Foxboro, could be Tampa Bay travelling up north to face Minnesota.

The Buccaneers surprised everybody in the first week of the season by beating up San Francisco and then going in to Detroit to take game number two. The Vikings started the last two weeks on the road. First in Buffalo and then in Chicago, and took both of those games.

Now Minnesota opens up in Minneapolis against an interdivisional opponent, and an undefeated one at that. Look for this to be the game of the weekend.

Turn to PATS, page 11

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CVII Issue 8 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Friday, September 12, 1997

How Sweet it is

Krist Novoselic manages to avoid any serious comparisons with his old group Nirvana on his new album. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Black Bears are Maine competition

Matt Jordan and the UMass offense need to shift gears against the powerful Maine defense to bounce back from the Richmond loss (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Scotland creates own Parliament

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Scots gave a thumping endorsement to creating their own Scottish Parliament after 290 years of union with England, according to early returns from yesterday's referendum. But there was less voter enthusiasm on the separate question of whether the government should be able to raise taxes.

The creation of a Scottish Parliament, which would be opened by 2000, would be the most significant change within the United Kingdom since Ireland won its independence in 1922.

In North Lanarkshire, one of the five largest districts, the proposed Scottish Parliament got a 77.8 percent "yes" vote, while tax authority was backed by 67.7 percent.

Clackmannan, a small district which was the first to report, was 4-1 in favor of the parliament, with 68.7 percent for tax-raising powers.

Turnout was about 66 percent, the British Broadcasting Corp. said.

Scotland "is in for a very exciting journey," said Alex Salmond, leader of the Scottish National Party, which campaigned for a "yes" vote as a big stride toward its goal of independence.

NATION

Clinton to nominate surgeon general

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay, President Clinton is ready to nominate Dr. David Satcher, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, as surgeon general.

Clinton plans to announce the nomination today.

An administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Satcher would be nominated today as both surgeon general and assistant secretary of health.

The positions were combined during the Carter administration, when Julius Richmond held both posts. President Reagan divided the jobs to resolve a controversy about appointing C. Everett Koop as assistant health secretary. Koop was named surgeon general. Public health groups had urged the Clinton administration to name one person to hold both jobs. The nomination requires Senate approval.

The surgeon general post has been filled only temporarily since the departure of Joycelyn Elders in December 1994. The man nominated to succeed her, Dr. Henry Foster, failed to win Senate approval amid a furor over his having performed abortions. The nation's acting surgeon general, Dr. Audrey Manley, left office on July 1.

Satcher emerged as a possible nominee in April. But his nomination was delayed by paperwork, the congressional recess and the president's three-week vacation, according to administration officials.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 52	HIGH: 75 LOW: 65	HIGH: 65 LOW: 55

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Scott discusses Money ranking at UM Faculty Senate meeting

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

Chancellor David K. Scott noted the University of Massachusetts' recent high rankings in several national publications at yesterday's Faculty Senate meeting.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNER / COLLEGIAN

Chancellor David K. Scott speaks at the first Faculty Senate meeting yesterday.

"We were ranked in Money Magazine as 46th in the nation in terms of the best value for the money," Scott said. "But we are not a cheap institution... so that indicates that there is very good value, in spite of the cost."

In its annual College Guide, Money Magazine, which has never before included UMass in its list of "the elite values in college education today," ranked the University 46th, just three places below Harvard University.

Money also ranked UMass fourth in the country in best values in public schools for in-state students, behind the New College of the University of South Florida, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the University of Florida.

Scott also recognized the improved ranking of the University in U.S. News and World Reports, which moved the University from its third to its second tier of Universities in its most recent College Guide.

"There is no harm in touting the rankings in these publications," Scott said. "They are looked at very closely by prospective students and parents, and that is very important."

In addition, Scott addressed the ranking of the University in Mother Jones magazine as the third most activist campus in the nation, lagging behind just Mt. Holyoke and the University of Wisconsin at Madison in terms of student engagement.

"I am not against activism but... we are against the disruption of the University as a result of activism," Scott said, repeating the message he sent to students in his letter accompanying the Picket Code, which was mailed to students in the past weeks.

In other business, the Faculty Senate elected professors to fill several vacancies.

The senate elected professor Ernest May, chair of the art department, to serve as its Presiding Officer, professor Brian O'Connor of the biology department to serve as the senate's delegate to the Board of Trustees and professor Joseph Larson, director of the Environmental institute, as chair of its Rule Committee. Professor John Bracey, of the department of Afro–American Studies, was reelected secretary of the senate.

Fountains are forever

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNER / COLLEGIAN

Attention all fountain lovers: the fountain found in the Student Union is up and running and looking for company.

New certificate program in Native American studies looks to break stereotypes

By Beth McCarthy
Collegian Staff

After five years of planning, the new certificate program in Native American Indian studies will open itself to interested students tonight at Machmer Hall.

"Personally, I feel there's more awareness of Indigenous Peoples due to the movies that have come out like Dances With Wolves," program director Ron Welburn said. "But there are still too many stereotypes."

According to Welburn, many stereotypes, such as there are no Indians east of the Mississippi River and all Indians wear beads and feathers and collect undue benefits, still exist today.

"We want to dispel those misconceptions," Welburn said of the new program's goals.

Students interested in attending the informational session at 7:15 p.m. in room W–25 can expect to meet with Welburn; Robert Paynter, professor in anthropology; Joyce Vincent, director of Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center, and Jean Forward, part–time professor in anthropology.

With no major offered in Native American Indian studies, this certificate program can provide a way for students to consolidate their studies in this subject.

"I'm excited about the fact that it exists," said Welburn, who has been working to get this new program going from it's conception in the early 1990's.

Welburn said that Anthropology 590: "Contemporary Issues in Native America, A Focus on the Northeast" is going to be required and only offered in the spring and it would be a good idea to attend tonight's meeting.

According to Welburn, there are five additional courses, with at least one course in each of three subject matters. Courses can also be chosen from any of the five colleges.

Coinciding with the academic requirements, students will also be given the opportunity to interact with Native Americans and experience their culture.

"We hope they complete the program with a firmer appreciation and grounding in the culture, history and contemporary issues effecting Indigenous Peoples of the Western Hemisphere," Welburn said.

Senate approves testing plan; bill facing opposition in House

By Robert Greene
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave overwhelming approval yesterday to President Clinton's plan for national reading and math tests after an agreement was reached for an independent board run the voluntary program.

But a House vote was put off until Tuesday because of slow movement on a massive spending bill. The testing plan faced strong opposition there from an alliance of liberals and conservatives. And even though the Senate gave Clinton a victory on testing, it voted 51-49 to strip the Education Department of control over much of its spending power by converting as much as $15 billion of aid it administers for kindergarten through high school education into direct grants to school districts.

"That is, in effect, a back-door attempt to abolish the Department of Education," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said. "We'll have ample opportunity to reverse that decision as the legislation goes forward."

The testing proposal "took a major step forward today, and we believe it will prevail in the end," McCurry said.

Clinton savored his 88-12 victory in the Senate, where only conservative Republicans opposed him.

Conservatives say the tests threaten local control of what children should learn. Liberals who oppose the tests say they will be used to further brand low-achieving students from impoverished school districts as inferior.

The tests, to be given first in March 1999, would measure fourth-graders for their reading ability and eighth-graders for their ability to do math, including some algebra and geometry. The 90-minute tests would be based

Turn to SENATE, page2

Clinton stands behind Weld

Pres. says no to Lott on call to withdraw Weld's Mexico bid

By Laura Myers
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott called on President Clinton yesterday to withdraw the nomination of William Weld as ambassador to Mexico, dealing another blow to the former governor's long-shot bid.

The White House refused.

On the eve of a committee showdown on Weld's nomination, Lott urged Clinton to send a substitute name to the Senate for quick action.

"The most appropriate thing with regard to the Weld nomination is for the president to step into this issue and do the right thing for the country and our relations with Mexico," Lott said in an interview with network radio correspondents.

"I call on the president officially this afternoon to step into the issue, withdraw the Weld nomination and send a nomination that can be approved and confirmed quickly by the Congress," said Lott, (R-Miss.)

The White House refused the demand to withdraw the name of Weld, a moderate Republican whom Clinton selected in the name of bipartisanship but who has divided his party with conservatives led by Sen. Jesse Helms. (R-N.C.), opposing him as soft on drugs. If Clinton were to pull the nomination, it would spare the Republicans an agonizing intraparty battle.

"The president has done his job, which is putting forward an excellent nominee to be ambassador to Mexico," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said. "The president absolutely will not send another nominee. This nominee deserves a fair hearing." McCurry added that the American people were owed an explanation "on why the Senate is not doing its job."

Helms, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Chairman, has refused for weeks to grant Weld a nomination hearing. Under bipartisan pressure, Helms scheduled a "special meeting" for today on the issue but, using the power of his chairmanship, refused to put Weld on the agenda.

Asked if Helms was willing to compromise and allow Weld some sort of hearing, his spokesman Marc Thiessen said, "No way. Jose."

As he made rounds on Capitol Hill yesterday, Weld said he had no plans to withdraw, but he couldn't say what he would do when his options run out.

"We're going to try to get our hearing," he told reporters. "We'll see you there tomorrow, one way or another."

Weld said he would be on hand for the special meeting — most likely in the hall, not in the room — when Helms's committee meets. "I can't control what other people are going to do, but I think there's no harm in standing up for one's rights," Weld said.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNER / COLLEGIAN

A different point of view
Freshman Scott Rolz takes a picture at the Campus Center Hotel yesterday.

■ Senate

continued from page 1

on fixed standards of what children should know and be able to do in those two core subjects. Other achievement tests commonly measure students against a shifting norm, or average.

"The measure they have embraced will help parents ensure their children have mastered the basics of reading and math," Clinton said after the Senate vote. "This is another example of what can happen when people of good will of both parties... look to the future and not to the past."

The Senate votes were on amendments to an $80 billion spending bill for the Education, Labor and Health and Human Services departments, which the Senate later approved.

A pending House amendment by Rep. William Goodling, (R-Pa.), to block spending on the test will be considered Tuesday when the House resumes work on its version of the spending bill. Differences between the House and Senate bills will have to be worked out, meaning the final outcome of the proposal still must be decided.

The vote to convert much of the Education Department's spending to block grants was sponsored by Sen. Slade Gorton, (R-Wash). He said the amendment would cut the heavy paperwork costs of school aid while sending money to school districts, based on the wealth and population of a district. No one would get less under the amendment. Help for disabled students would be exempted.

Big E kicks off 76th fair with food, entertainers

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

WEST SPRINGFIELD — Today begins "The World's Only Big E," which has been a New England tradition for the past 76 years.

"The Big E is the best entertainment value in New England," said Big E Communications Manager Catherine Pappas. "It's a top quality event featuring the finest in food, crafts, animals and other products in the North East."

Day One

The first day of this 17-day event will feature master chef Martin Yan, who will make two special appearances at the new Harvest New England Food Demonstration at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

"My favorite event this year is going to be the Harvest New England Food Demonstration," Pappas said. "Local and celebrity guest chefs will demonstrate local recipes using all New England Products."

Also on day one, the Marvalettes, of Motown fame, will play at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. The Big E Grande Parade, featuring marching bands, Hallamore Clydesdales, and much more, will march at 5 p.m. today and every day of the fair.

In the outdoor arena, the New England Slam Chowder Demolition Derby, which will be broadcast nationally on TNN, will begin at 8 p.m.

A fireworks display will end the day at 9:30 pm

More Fun

On the main stage, free entertainment will be sponsored by the Mohegan Sun. Besides the Marvalettes, "Weird Al" Yankovic, Little Richard, John Berry, Lorrie Morgan, Patty Loveless, The Doobie Brothers and many others will also be performing throughout the fair.

Much food will be offered at the fair, ranging from local recipes to exotic dishes.

In the new Young Building, the International Plaza will offer cuisine from Africa, Italy, Thailand, Ireland, Poland and more, while the Heroes and Legends Restaurant will make its debut.

Other entertainment will include the Big E Circus, agricultural competitions and events, Winn's Thrill Show, featuring balancing acts, the Avenue of States, the ABL's New England Blizzard, the Budweiser Beer School, the Magic Midway and much more.

Information

Gate admission prices are $10 for adults, $6 for children 12-6, and free for children ages 5 and under. Two day passes are available for $16 and may be used for any two days of the fair. Senior Citizens' (60 and over) admission on Sept. 16 and 23 will be $8. On Monday through Thursday, admission after 5 p.m. is $8.

PVTA buses serve the Big E daily from the Sheraton and Marriott hotels; the I-91 North and South parking garages and the Holiday Inn in Downtown Springfield. Buses will also pick up fair-goers at many West Springfield hotels. For further information call (413) 781-PVTA.

The Big E gates will be open daily from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. For more general Big E information call (413) 737- 2443 or find them at www.thebige.com.

U.S. sends aircraft to silence Serb radio

By John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a sign of escalating tension, the Pentagon dispatched three electronic warfare aircraft to Bosnia yesterday to try to silence anti-NATO broadcasts by rebel Serbs.

The move comes after Bosnian Serbs reneged on an agreement to curb the anti-NATO rhetoric that has fueled confrontations between U.S. soldiers and rock-throwing Serb mobs. It was not clear whether the planes would be in action by this weekend's long-delayed municipal elections in Bosnia.

The propeller-driven planes, modified versions of a basic Air Force transport plane, can jam local radio and television transmissions, as well as insert broadcasts of their own.

NATO commanders in Bosnia requested the aircraft "in response to the perceived pattern of vehement rhetoric and incitement to violence" that has been broadcast on Bosnian Serb radio and TV, said Col. Richard Bridges, a Pentagon spokesman.

Meanwhile, the White House rejected criticism of U.S. policy in Bosnia by Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, (R-Texas). Writing in the New York Times yesterday, she said the United States "is perilously close to being drawn into armed conflict in Bosnia" and had become "partisans in a local struggle" between indicted Serb war criminal Radovan Karadzic and his former ally Biljana Plavsic, the Bosnian Serb president.

Presidential spokesman Mike McCurry said the senator's assessment was at odds with what military commanders were telling President Clinton. He said efforts to restore civilian life with multicultural aspects "is difficult work, to be sure, but the president disagrees with the proposition that we should just cut and run."

The electronic warfare planes, known as "Commando Solo," were being dispatched a week after U.S. members of the NATO Stabilization Force, or SFOR, yielded control of a television tower under pressure from a threatening crowd of rebel Serbs.

Facing criticism for that decision, NATO said the troops had secured a written promise from Serb leaders that anti-NATO broadcasts would end and that international programming on the progress of the peacekeeping effort would be aired.

That promise quickly evaporated. In the week since the television tower standoff, Bosnian Serb radio and television have repeatedly refused international authorities access to its airwaves. Serb Radio Television, the main broadcaster for the Bosnian Serb part of the country, is based in Pale, headquarters of Karadzic, who remains opposed to the peaceful reintegration of Bosnia as outlined in the Dayton peace plan.

Last weekend, Bosnian Serb television broadcast a tape requested by the international Office of the High Representative, the civilian implementer of the peace accord, but redubbed the audio portion of the tape with anti-NATO rhetoric. After that, the Serb broadcaster refused several official NATO and international requests to air balanced informational broadcasts about the upcoming elections and the activities of SFOR.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK/ COLLEGIAN

The advantages of being tall

The library; the tallest building on campus has the best view of all. Smaller buildings may be jealous.

See the light.

BUY THE LIGHT AND SEE THE REST OF THE ROOM, TOO.

See the brilliant selection of lighting, from 7.95

Lamp shown-29.95

Faces HOME FURNISHINGS

Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

Drivers Wanted for Morning Paper Delivery

Have no classes before 10 am??

DELIVER FOR THE COLLEGIAN*

* must supply your own car

If interested, call 545-3500 or stop by the Collegian at 113 Campus Center Basement

must be available between 7:00am to 10:00am monday - friday

Come On In Out Of The Plain!

3 floors • stores galore • food & more

dictionary / six bucks • cup o' joe / a buck • "For Dummies" guides / nineteen bucks
beaded curtain / nine bucks • book bags / from eighteen bucks
Genko (for mental sharpness) / fifteen bucks • magic stone / twelve bucks
Armani hosiery / nine bucks • Lucky jeans / sixty-eight bucks
shower caddy / eleven bucks • CK boxer shorts / eighteen bucks
Hard Candy lipsticks / sixteen bucks

THORNES MARKETPLACE 150

"under the big green awning"

On the bus route • Open Mon–Tue- Wed 10-6; Thur-Fri-Sat 10-9; Sun 12-5 • 150 Main Street, Northampton

Report blasting Army says sexual harassment prevalent

By Susanne M. Schafer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Army issued a searing indictment of itself yesterday, asserting that "sexual harassment exists throughout the Army, crossing gender, rank and racial lines.

Sexual discrimination was found to be even more prevalent and the service's rank and file "uniformly do not have trust and confidence in their leaders" on the issues, the study said.

"The Army accused commanders of ignoring the problems and allowing inappropriate behavior to be "commonplace," contending leaders were more focused on combat deployments and cutbacks than taking care of the needs of their most vulnerable soldiers. The service's largest-ever study of sexual harassment was ordered in the aftermath of the scandal last November at the U.S. Army Ordnance Center in Aberdeen, Md., where drill sergeants preyed upon young female recruits.

Appearing grim-faced at a Pentagon news conference, Army Secretary Togo West attempted to draw a distinction between sexual harassment, which he said "continues to be a problem" throughout the service, and the sexual abuses — rapes and assaults — at Aberdeen.

"What happened at Aberdeen was an aberration," West said. "Sexual abuse of trainees and soldiers is not endemic in the Army."

Both West and Gen. Dennis Reimer, the Army chief of staff, pledged the service will move forward to eradicate sexual misconduct and punish abuse.

"We will continue to come down hard on it, wherever we find it, and we will stamp it out," Reimer said.

"Paying closer attention to giving each member of the military the respect and treatment they are due does not mean "we've suddenly gone all warm and fuzzy," West said, citing a century-old Army dictum that "if you treat the troops with respect, they will reward you in return."

"Currently, 14 percent of the Army's 480,000 soldiers are women and they are needed in the event of war," Reimer said.

The two-volume study was accompanied by an Army inspector general's report on the Army's training program, and a separate "action plan" aimed at fixing many of the problems turned up by a senior review panel. The action plan recommends, among other things, requiring a week of training for recruits on ethics and moral values and a revamping of the selection and training for drill sergeants.

White House spokesman Mike Curry said President Clinton believes the actions being taken by the Army will help prevent sexual misconduct. He said the president "views with concern all allegations of sexual abuse and sexual misconduct."

The study by a panel of retired, active-duty and senior Army officials said that "incidents of gender bias, sexism and sex discrimination occur often throughout the Army." Indeed, sexual misconduct is so commonplace, the study said, that "soldiers seem to accept such behaviors as a normal part of Army life."

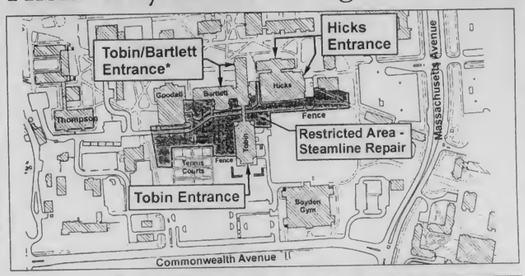
It said that sexual discrimination "is more common through the Army than is sexual harassment," and that the Army's attempts to educate its trainees and leaders on the issues have failed." Many of the Army's commanders do not attend training sessions that are meant to deal with such issues, and the panel found the training to be ineffective and deemed to be run only by women and minority members.

The report also found that the victims of sexual assault are given little assistance. Also, men believe that Army standards are inequitable and that women are made to perform to less demanding standards.

"It clearly is not a pretty picture," commented Rep. Jane Harman, (D-Calif.), a member of the House National Security Committee. "I commend the Army for taking a hard, comprehensive look at how soldiers behave towards each other."

Maj. Gen. Richard Siegfried, the primary author of the study, told reporters that he believed the report revealed a pattern more of inappropriate conduct than major sexual abuse.

"We don't have soldiers cowering in fear of being sexually molested. It isn't there," the two-star general said. But the service needed to detail what problems it did find in order to solve them, he said.



CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK/ COLLEGIAN

It's closer than you think!

Just a reminder — the last day of Add/Drop registration for classes is Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Hicks Way closed during road work

During the installation of a new steamline, the Hicks Way, which runs from Goodell Building to the Curry Hicks Cage, is closed to pedestrian and vehicular traffic until Nov. 21.

For the safety of all University of Massachusetts pedestrians, the restricted area is fenced off and signs have been posted, which read "Authorized Personnel Only," and "Hard Hat Area."

"It's definitely a hazard for students to walk through the area," Capitol Projects manager John Robinson said.

Due to the construction, there is limited access to Bartlett Hall and Tobin Hall. Access to Tobin from the east is limited to the bridge from Bartlett.

"You have to walk around," said Robinson, who has had to escort several students from the restricted area. "There just no access through that area."

— Jonathan Liberty

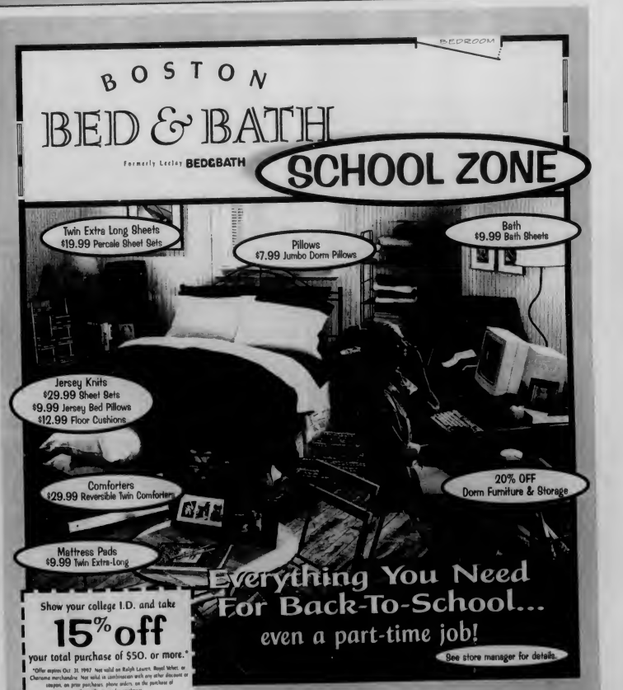
Interested in the Arts?
Come write for the Arts & Living Page!
Contact Seema Gangatirkar at 545–1361

hey, hey, hey, it's the Phat-est newspaper in town! Daily Collegian

The Mercantile
NORTHAMPTON 18 Center St. 584-1205
AMHERST Carnegie Shops 549-1306
Mon-Sat 10-6 Thur & Fri to 9 Sun 12-5

Don't just make your bed. Make your room.

BEDSPREADS AT FACES.



A king size selection, from 9.95

Faces HOME FURNISHINGS

Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.

BOSTON BED & BATH
Formerly Lechey BEDCBATH

SCHOOL ZONE

Everything You Need For Back-To-School... even a part-time job!

Show your college I.D. and take 15% off your total purchase of $50. or more.*

*Offer expires Oct. 31, 1997. Not valid on Ralph Lauren, Royal Velvet, or Chaps merchandise. Not valid in combination with any other discount or coupon, on prior purchases, phone orders, on the purchase of gift certificates or for employees.

See store manager for details.

THERE'S A CONVENIENT LOCATION NEAR YOUR CAMPUS:
Holyoke, Holyoke Mall, (413) 552-0855
Next door to Filene's, in the mall.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

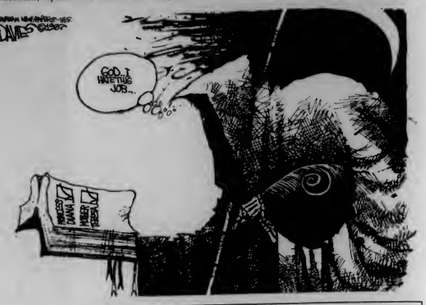
Unclear code unfair to students

By this time, most of you have seen or heard about the "Guidelines on Picketing" which the Chancellor's Office sent to all students, faculty and staff at the University of Massachusetts.

Chancellor David K. Scott included a letter in the packet in which he claims it is important to "draw a clear line between dissent and disruption." While the Chancellor purports to support dissent in appropriate forums, the attached guidelines are unclear about what those forums might be.

Their vagueness is the most disturbing aspect of the guidelines. Demonstrations are limited to "appropriate public forums," although these forums are never defined. In fact, the list of sites deemed inappropriate contains the potential catch-all "among other locations."

The status of the guidelines themselves is not clear. Are these guidelines legally binding on students? Is there an appeals process? What mechanism will be used in judging alleged violations?



Penalties for violations of the guidelines are not listed. However, the attached "Picketing Code" allows "expulsion from the University or such lesser sanction(s) as may be deemed appropriate by the University."

By basing what a violation is, and how that violation is punished, on the malleable concept of "appropriateness," it seems clear that these guidelines lend themselves to selective enforcement.

With no predictable pattern of enforcement to anticipate, a climate of fear and self-censorship is created. This climate is inconsistent with the educational mission of the University.

The Board of Trustees, President Bulger and Scott would do well to focus on using their positions to be educators first and foremost. Mass-mailing vague and threatening regulations, while limiting their contact with the majority of the community to expressions of a "tough on crime" attitude, does nothing but damage our learning and working environment.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinions of the Collegian Editorial Board.

On war's edge

The guns of war are now silent in Bosnia–Herzegovina.

But as it rests in the palms of a multinational military occupation, the sounds and elements of battle, the very things of war, have not disappeared. Leftover mines and unexploded munitions are occasionally triggered on recovering country farms, the rumblings of armored personnel carriers provide a garish background to market- place chatter, and the unmistakable pop-pop-pop of small arms fire has yet to fade out of the realm of the routine.

Adam Young

The men of war, like Bosnian–Serb top bully Radovan Karazdic, still retain firm grasps on local loyalties, while a token number stand trial in The Hague for what we have the gall to call war crimes. And as massed echelons of NATO troops in Bosnia march in calculated time to the rotor–blades of American helicopter gunships just overhead, the tired and scarred citizens of Bihac, Banja Luka, Mostar and other dens of woe can be given no assurance that this stabilizing force heralds any ultimate peace.

Peace, ultimate or otherwise, is a far–flung concept to most people of the Southern Balkans. Though this region plays a critical role in the ever–unfolding drama of Eastern European security, it rarely has been secure. And when the Southern Flank begins to fly, so go the dominoes, East Europe, West Europe, and we all come tumbling down.

It is a sordid tale, but a familiar one. Still, many Americans doubt the importance of the men and material committed to Bosnia–Herzegovina, and fail to see the geopolitical importance of stability in the Southern Balkan Peninsula. The United States and Europe now have a unique and fleeting chance to nurse this ailing region back to health, and in doing so prevent the resurgence of the death and deprivation that have for so long characterized it.

War, like influenza, tuberculosis and bubonic plague, is an easily communicable disease. And for centuries, Yugoslavia has been one of its prime vectors. Without express effort, but by reasons of entanglement, the Balkan States have been less of a circumscribed, self–dependent territory and more of a vital link in both the chain of lands that bend around the Eastern Mediterranean and those of Central and Eastern Europe — and, therefore, as no more than a single factor in their long and interrelated evolution.

Especially, whenever in ages past a movement was underway directed to the end of bringing all the East Mediterranean and East European countries under a single rule, has the Balkan peninsula been wont to leap to the front and assert what looks like a predestined primacy. The empire of Alexander the Great, the Roman Empire, the Byzantine Empire, the Austro–Hungarian Empire, the Third Reich and the Soviet Bloc have all dedicated to the purpose of effecting the unification of the Near East and East Europe, alike utilized Yugoslavia and the Balkan States. If history may be said to warrant any confident deduction from the successive political phases of this region, it is because it constitutes a natural center of gravity of the whole east Mediterranean Basin.

If civil war were to resurface in Bosnia in the near future, it would, as it has time and time again, quickly become not only a concern of Bosnians, but of all Europe. As the situation stands now, the tiny nation is under occupation and divided into three military districts: British, French and American. The three religious and ethnic groups that make up Bosnia–Herzegovina — the Catholic Croats, the Orthodox Serbs and the Muslim Bosnians — are separated from each other by these foreign forces. If the American were to withdraw en masse in June of 1998, in accordance with the current timetable decreed by President Clinton, the nation would doubtlessly fall back into civil conflict.

But this time it would be different, worse. When the war began at the outset of this decade, there were no clear ethnic lines drawn in the nation. Now, though, the Muslim, Croat and Serb sections of the country are clearly cordoned off. If conflict were to return now, it would be an irresistible opportunity for Croatia proper and/or the Yugoslav Republic (Serbia) to enter the fray on behalf of their embattled brethren.

But the expansion of war would not end there. If Serbia entered the slaughter, more than likely with the most powerful military of any former Yugoslav republic and under the leadership of the tyrannical Slobodan Milosevic, Croatia would have no choice — moral, legal or otherwise — to also join the fight. Then we would face not a civil war, but an international one.

The prospect of a Serb–Croatian war erupting over a Bosnia suddenly devoid of western military commitment also raises the specter of nations like Russia, Hungary and Germany, and some Islamic states (Iran, especially, has a penchant for this, through open or covert means) becoming involved for reasons of their own national security as well as strong traditional alliances with the various people of this region.

Twice already in this century, in the Balkan War of 1912– 1913 and in World War I, Russia has militarily intervened on the part of their fellow Orthodox Serbs in conflict with their neighbors only to expand to the war further into Europe. Or, if Serbia and Croatia were to engage each other in the Sicesian Plain, a fertile region along the Danube where northern Croatia, Bosnia and Serbia all intersect, the borders of Hungary (a newly admitted member of NATO) would become directly threatened, and would sanction the involvement of NATO forces under the terms of the Alliance.

Prior Serb commitments notwithstanding, any medium–to– full scale military campaign by NATO in this part of Europe could easily be viewed by Russia as a threat to their own national security. There are other examples of how this war could expand, but let it be sufficient to say that it would be a mess that no side would anticipate nor be prepared for.

It is an endlessly intricate issue, and one that, admittedly, seems very far from our own concept of national security. But it is more important than it has ever been. First, because of the swiftness with which modern military technology could expand a Balkan conflict in the already relatively unstable state of Eastern Europe in the post–Cold War era. And second, because we already have the men and the means in position to carve out some form of stability from Bosnia's fragile cease–fire.

Not only is it an American responsibility as a super–power to actively and aggressively promote peace in developing nations, but it is a responsibility to our own citizens to make sure that a large–scale war in Europe does not come to its fruition. Like it or not, the United States is now and for decades has been, inexorably tied into the economy and security of Europe. Any large war in Europe is a threat to American society. It is the affair of America and of any other nation with critical, vested interests in Europe.

If the vain of isolationism that currently permeates American politics causes a premature withdrawal from this small conflict, we will be doomed, repeating history rather than learning from it, to deal with this problem only after it has become a much larger war. Stopping small wars before they explode into bigger ones saves more time, money and lives than waiting to deal with them until after they have become large–scale, international conflicts.

It is critical that American and other western European forces remain in Bosnia, this ancient Balkan powder–keg, until a stable, functioning government is restored, and not withdraw our forces on an arbitrary date determined by the whim of American isolationist politics.

Adam Young is a UMass student.

Protecting our forests

Many, perhaps most of you reading this, have used national forest land for recreation — hiking, camping, skiing or hunting. You might not have realized it, but that same forest is not protected from activities such as timber harvest and mining. From its inception, the National Forest system has had timber extraction as an unstated goal.

Jason Davis

Here's how Gifford Pinchot, the founder of the National Forest Service, put it early in this century: "The object of our forest policy is not to preserve the forests because they are beautiful, or because they are refuges for wild creatures. [The object is] the making of prosperous homes. Every other concern comes as secondary."

While it is true that in recent decades the Forest Service has embraced the principle of "multiple use" on forest lands, Pinchot's timber–centered mantra continues to taint the morals of those in charge of our national forests.

Here's something to think about: In addition to making little or no ecological sense, logging in Green Mountain and White Mountain National Forests costs taxpayers about $1.6 million a year, according to a recent federal study. However, this figure pales in comparison to the total amount of money national forest timber sales have lost in recent years, an estimated $1 billion from 1992–94.

While these figures are bad enough from an economic standpoint, it is clear those making the rules have little understanding of fundamental ecological principles. Prominent and powerful members of Congress recently hauled out the Timber Salvage Act, a piece of legislation which more or less gives loggers the freedom to enter our national forests and remove any "dead or dying" trees at will. Of course, it's anybody's guess as to what constitutes a "dying" tree, and furthermore anyone with a middle school science education understands that you don't just remove vital "dead" nutrients from an ecosystem and expect everything to be fine.

Despite all the evidence that shows logging in our national forests, in almost all circumstances, is a waste of taxpayer money and is of dubious ecological benefit, there are those who defend the practice for various reasons. Rick Alimi, assistant ranger in the White Mountains' Saco district, justifies commercial logging by saying, "We are creating wildlife habitat."

While it is true that some wildlife species benefit from carefully controlled cutting, the majority of rare and endangered species that we need to be concerned about, such as the spotted owl and the red–cockaded woodpecker, require large tracts of mature, well–established forest. In addition to destroying nesting sites and other habitat requirements, logging subjects forest interior species to competition from organisms adapted to fragmented ecosystems and introduces foreign diseases and parasites.

Logging, especially clearcutting, also contributes heavily to flooding and groundwater contamination once the land has been cleared or damaged. For an example, you need to look no further than the disastrous mudslides that crippled clearcut watersheds of the Pacific Northwest in the summer of 1996.

Some defend logging in national forests for the vast sums of money it supposedly brings into local communities. This is primarily a self–serving fabrication of the timber industry. Although towns receive 25 percent of the revenue from timber sales conducted within their borders, much of this money is lost through payment of Forest Service–subsidized logging roads which cost taxpayers an estimated $90 billion a year, according to U.S. Representative Joseph P. Kennedy II.

Towns which host healthy national forest land can generally gain far more money each year as that earned from a timber sale. Unlike logging revenue, which the community receives only for a few reasons, the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and user fees continue year after year. This is another example which contradicts the myth that concern for the environment translates into financial irresponsibility and job loss.

Some people may feel that we must log our national forests because we need the paper and timber they provide. This argument, of course, ignores the vast acreage of private forest land which is owned by timber companies. Yes, we need wood products, but let industry obtain them from forests for which they are responsible. If timber companies know that they can always turn to the national forests if they mismanage their own land, they will do so, and at our cost.

What can we do convince the Forest Service to limit logging in our national forests? In addition to writing to elected officials and expressing your views, use the forests in a manner that promotes forest conservation. In a word, do virtually anything — hiking, bird-watching, licensed and legal fishing and hunting, canoeing, camping, you name it. Hopefully, once the government sees how popular and profitable the national forests are if left intact, they will take the steps to keep them that way.

Jason Davis is a UMass student.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Write for us.

We're looking for new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, arts, lifestyles, or sports of a thousand different styles — let us be as broad as the student body is.

Attend a New Writer's meeting on Friday, September 5 at 7 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor
Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1950. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Sweet 75 avoids Nirvana stereotypes with latest

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

SWEET 75
Sweet 75
Atlantic Records

It's one thing to feel a weight of expectations on your shoulders, but when you played bass for a certain band most consider to be the defining group of the last 20 years, living up to your past in a new venture can quickly turn into a futile proposition.

Take Sweet 75 founder Krist Novoselic's former Nirvana bandmate, Dave Grohl, who has had to deal with two untimely departures from his new band, Foo Fighters, since their latest album was released back in May.

Suffice it to say, after one listen to Sweet 75's self–titled debut (DGC Records) the inevitable and superfluous Nirvana comparisons can be discarded. A calculated attempt to break free of the traditional 'rock album' mold, Sweet 75 features a horn section, as well as Spanish lyrics on several songs. The only Nirvana–era trait that has remained in Novoselic's songwriting vocabulary is their revolutionary soft verse/loud chorus dynamic. Smartly, Novoselic doesn't pull that trick out of his hat too often, but when he does, it works magically — as on "Red Dress." Sweet 75 doesn't lack Nirvana's trademark visceral punch, but rather it's simply too diverse to be pigeonholed into any discernable categorization. A native of Venezuela, singer Yva Las Vegas' distinctive salsa–tinged vocalisms see to that.

Taking their name from a Theodore Roethke poem, Sweet 75 showcase a singular musical and lyrical hybrid: equal parts raging rock ("Bite My Hand") — a hallmark of Novoselic's work with the seminal Seattle grunge outfit — Latin folk, and the sometimes overwhelming big–voiced blues Las Vegas was unleashing on Seattle street corners until she sang for Novoselic at his surprise birthday party three years ago.

"La Vida" sounds like the theme song from some cheesy '60s show — "The Avengers" perhaps. With brassy horns and Las Vegas' sultry Spanish lyrics rising above Novoselic's surprisingly restrained bass line and Herb Alpert's jazzy trumpet, it's a fun, feel–good hoot.

Frankly, there aren't enough of these entertaining eclecticism to keep the album totally engrossing over its sprawling length of 14 songs — "Dogs" and "Japan Trees" stand out as pure filler — yet Novoselic still manages to break free of his Nirvana stereotype without coming off pretentious or silly.

Krist Novoselic (left) and Yva Las Vegas team up on Sweet 75.

Hoodlum falls short of reaching lofty genre ambitions

Laurence Fisburne delivers strong performance in weak film; talented cast can't save plot

By Bryan McAllister
Collegian Correspondent

HOODLUM
Directed by Bill Duke
with Laurence Fishburne, Tim Roth, Andy Garcia
Playing at AMC Theaters, Hampshire Mall

It's hard to fault Hoodlum for its ambitions. Featuring a big–name cast, colorful supporting performances and vibrant production design, the film aims to be a complicated masterpiece. This is the type of movie that mixes bloody shoot–outs with compassion and romance, ruthlessness with moral revelation. It's also the type of movie we've seen before. The Godfather series mixed these elements in a much more complex deep way. The problem with Hoodlum is not in the story or the performances, but in that it does not measure up with the best of the best.

Simply put, Hoodlum just isn't as complicated as it wants to be. Director Bill Duke spends the first half of the film carefully setting each character and the social systems in which they live. However, in the second half, loose ends are tied up too quickly, and characters are randomly disposed of when necessary. In addition, Duke (Deep Cover, Sister Act II) is no Francis Ford Coppola. Though he has a flair for visual imagery, his scenes lack the pace and rhythm required for the genre, and the editing is completely uneven.

Still, there is something to be said for some engaging performances. Laurence Fishburne plays "Bumpy" Johnson, the king of the "numbers" lottery game in 1930's Harlem. With his fixed, icy stare and powerful jaw, Fishburne conveys power, cynicism and passion. He can be both devilish and charming. In other words, he's perfect for the role.

After being released from prison in 1934, Johnson returns to Harlem and becomes assistant to the "numbers" Queen, Stephanie St. Clair. The Queen prefers peace over violence, but Johnson knows that this policy will not work while mobster Dutch Schultz (Tim Roth) is in power. Schultz is determined to overtake the Queen's territory, and violence is his primary weapon.

In the film's most explosive scene, Schultz's men corner the Queen and Johnson on their way to the opera. Luckily, both escape, but Schultz reacts by conspiring to send the Queen to jail, putting Johnson in power. Much to the objection of Mafia superboss Lucky Luciano (Andy Garcia) and prosecutor Thomas Dewey (William Atherton), Schultz and Johnson engage in a bloody battle over territory.

Meanwhile, in a courtship that evokes Guys and Dolls, the slick Johnson falls in love with a beautiful charity worker (Vanessa Williams), who shows Johnson his softer side. However, Johnson's violent ambition soon overcomes his human compassion.

He sacrifices his personal relationships in his desire to beat Schultz. With the help of his cousin, Illinois, Johnson goes uptown to get revenge on Schultz, but the result only causes more animosity and double–crossing. This last act is the movie's weakest. Duke and screenwriter Chris Brancato cut Luciano, who before was only a minor character, to tie up loose ends and give the film a convenient ending.

What Hoodlum does have is a lot of style. In one scene that looks like it came out of Pulp Fiction, two of Schultz's hitmen discuss their favorite restaurants before trying to murder Johnson. The musical score is also a plus, especially the scenes in Schultz's bar and the opera–scored shoot–out at the beginning of the film.

Roth, Garcia and Williams all register strong performances. Roth in particular steals the show in his scenes as the devilish, vile Schultz. Spitting out vulgarities as quickly as death orders, Roth uses his usual quirky, over–the–top acting style to an evil effect her. In contrast, Garcia smartly underplays his Luciano role. His part is small, but Garcia makes the most of it, looking elegant and powerful. Also in the talented cast are Cicely Tyson, Clarence Williams III, Loretta Divine and Queen Latifah.

However, Hoodlum ultimately proves that even the most lavish of productions aren't always convincing. Many scenes are forced and overly dramatic, and important characters seem to disappear for long periods of time. Williams' charity worker, in particular, is gone for most of the movie's second act. But the real problem lies in the believability of Fishburne's Johnson, because he changes from somewhat humanistic to completely ruthless too quickly. There's no reason for this direct change except to advance the plot, which should have been of less concern. In a film like this, the most important element is the characters. And while the actors try their best, the characters aren't as fleshed out as they could have been.

If these complaints seem minor, in a sense they are. While Hoodlum fails to reach its ambitious goals, it has many entertaining moments. Not only are there many laughs and a half–dozen well–staged shoot–outs, but the production design and photography make you feel as though you really are in 1930's Harlem. However, after two and a half–hours and plethora of characters to keep track of, one wishes Hoodlum had much more to offer. C

The Arts & Living desk will hold a meeting for new and returning writers on Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in writing about film, television, books, arts, music and more, should attend the meeting. Any questions? Call Seema Gangatirkar, Arts & Living Editor, at 545–1491.

Fun at the movies

This column will attempt to dig deep into the true heart of motion pictures. This weekly expose will be your chance to impress your friends and family with your broad knowledge of contemporary and classic film.

Within each column, there will be a variety of trivia questions and movie quotes, as well as any other little games I can think of in order to make your reading time more challenging. This is supposed to be a fun and entertaining competition, to be enjoyed by all, so don't get overly pretentious and create any animosity with your friends on who knows the most about movies. I would encourage everyone to contact me at the Collegian with your answers, in the case that we eventually start giving out prizes. In the meantime, all providers of correct answers will win the dubious award of "the satisfaction of winning." After all, that should be enough.

Well here it is. Play fair, and please, have fun:

• Here's the first question and I'm going to make it pretty easy to get you all warmed up:

G.I. Jane director Ridley Scott was not the first member of his family to make an action movie about a select NAVY combat group. What was the name of the super popular 80's film I'm referring, to and what was the name of Scott's family member who directed it?

• If you liked that one then here's another that may be a little more difficult, but I'm sure you can each handle it:

In his free time from beating up his girlfriend and smuggling guns through airport terminals, Christian Slater enjoys watching his favorite TV show "Star Trek." In which of the eight Star Trek feature films did Slater have a guest appearance in? For a bonus shot, tell me how and why Slater got such Vulcanish eyebrows?

Contact the Collegian at 545–1361 or come on down to the Campus Center basement if you think you may have the correct answers. I will post these answers in next week's Collegian with the names of all of you that had them right. So until then, good luck with these and thanks for participating.

— Written and compiled by Collegian staff member Adam Levine

Arts and Living

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part–Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

OFFICE WORKERS
Located on the PVTA bus route, National Evaluation Systems, Inc., is looking for part–time assistance with a variety of office tasks. Preferred candidates will work quickly and accurately and be able to work at least 3 consecutive hours between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on days that we have work. On-call hours will be available beginning mid-September and continuing throughout the academic year. Pay at $7.00/hr. Send your resume or call to have an application mailed to you:
Personnel
NATIONAL EVALUATION SYSTEMS, INC.
30 Catehouse Road Amherst, MA 01002
E.O.E. NES

CLUB KAI
WELCOMES BACK STUDENTS
FREE FOOD THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT 9:30 - 10:30
THURSDAY•FRIDAY•SATURDAY
JOIN US FOR OUR HOT BODY CONTEST, $50 CASH PRIZE.* FEATURING: DJ COOL REG SPINNING TODAY'S TOP 40
DJ E. DOOGIE & DJ YU SPINNING THE LATEST R&B, HIP HOP, & REAGGAE
MR. SMITH'S SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY
DRINK SPECIALS
RUM & COKE $1.50
ICE HOUSE & RED DOG 1602 $1.50
BUD & BUD LITE 1602 BTLS $2.50
BUD PITCHERS $5.00
KAMIKAZEE SHOOTERS $1.50
335 Russell St, Rt 9 Hadley 586.2774
5 minutes from campus
*registration between 9:30 & 10:30 weekly winners qualify for grand prize

Friday nites LIVE!
• Live Music.
• Live Entertainment.
• Live Raffles.
• Live Giveaways.
• Live Shoe and Clothing "Sale Specials".
• Live Fun Friday Nites 5-8pm.
ZANNA downtown Amherst

Pearl Street Nightclub
Live Music & Dance Club
EVERY THURSDAY • 9-2am
18+ 413 PEARL STREET
HIGH ENERGY Underage Parties 21+
PROPER DRESS & ID REQUIRED
21+ EVERY FRIDAY • 9-2am
SELECTROCUTION
THE GAME OF HI-TECH FLIRTATION
TOP 40 DANCE HITS
FREE BEFORE 10PM
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs. Sept. 11 @ 7:00 pm 18+ OBITUARY Kiss It Goodbye/Stillsuit
Fri. Sept. 12 @ 9:00 pm 21+ RIDERS ON THE STORM Doors tribute
Sat. Sept. 13 @ 8:30pm MAX CREEK 18+
Tues. Sept. 16 @ 8:00pm BURNING SPEAR BLACK REBELS 18+
Fri. Sept. 19 @ 8:00pm 18+ BATTLE OF THE FUNK Sponsored by Falcetti Music Mart
Sat. Sept. 20 @ 7:00pm 21+ SPRING HEELED JACK w/ The Aphrodesiacs
Thurs. Sept. 25 @ 8:30PM 18+ FOOL'S PROGRESS JIGGLE THE HANDLE
Fri. Sept. 26 @ 8:00pm 18+ LOBSTERZ FROM MARZ GRATEFUL DEAD TRIBUTE
Sat. Sept. 27 @ 9:00pm 21+ "CHRIS TRACY OLDIES PARTY
Sat. Sept. 27 @ 7:00pm 18+ ANOTHER SOCIETY
Wed. Oct. 1 @ 8:00pm 18+ THE SAMPLES
Fri. Oct. 3 @ 8:00pm 18+ FAT BAG
Sat. Oct. 4 @ 7:30pm 21+ HELMET W/ THE MELVINS
Mon. Oct. 6 @ 8:00pm 18+ THIRD EYE BLIND DAMBUILDERS
UPCOMING
FRI. OCT. 10 SISTER HAZEL 18+
SAT. OCT. 11 TAJ MAHAL 21+
TUES. OCT. 14 GOO GOO DOLLS 18+
SAT. OCT. 18 THE MACHINE 18+
WED. OCT. 22 MACHINE HEAD all ages
TUES / SHOOTZ GROOVE
FRI. NOV. 7 BOOMPUS OF BLUES 21+
MON. NOV. 10 SUPERGRASS all ages
WED. NOV. 12 TESTAMENT all ages
Advance tickets available at the Northampton Box office, 125 Main • 800 THE TICK • Northern Board Stores, For The Record in Amherst, Alcat Music in Greenfield, Tic Unlimited at U. Mass, Plantagenet Records in Westfield, Music Outlet in Enfield, & B Side Records in Northampton 586-9536
10 PEARL STREET, NORTHAMPTON
http://www.virtual-valley.com/pearl-street
413-584-7771**

■ men's soccer

continued from page 10

be able to go against Maine. His condition is day–to–day... Who will start in net on Saturday was not yet determined as of press time, a move Koch says has no reasoning behind it... UMass again will be trying to get their offensive one–two punch of seniors Mike Butler and Joenal Castma who have not yet been able to get going this season. Much is expected from the two All American candidates, but Butler is the only one of the two with any points (1 goal, 2 assists).

Camby agent avoids trial

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The lawyer accused of trying to blackmail former Massachusetts All American Marcus Camby into signing him as an agent has reached an agreement that avoids a trial.

Wesley Spears had pleaded innocent to charges of attempted first-degree larceny by extortion and promoting prostitution. He was accused of providing Camby with gifts and arranging sexual liaisons with prostitutes for Camby and his friends.

Camby left school after his junior year to enter the NBA draft.

He now plays for the Toronto Raptors.

Spears was due in West Hartford Superior Court yesterday. The prosecutor's office said yesterday an agreement has been reached that will avoid a trial.

Camby's agent, James Bryant of Pro Serv Inc., said yesterday he was told by prosecutors that Spears will have to perform some type of community service as part of the agreement. He did not know the specific terms.

"Marcus has the right to object to this. I don't think he will object," Bryant said in a telephone interview.

Let's Play Video
Just a short walk from campus. All movie rentals for September just $0.99
Rent: Devil's Own, Murder at 1600, Dante's Peak, McHale's Navy, Fierce Creatures, Prisoner of the Mountain and many more.
Soon to arrive: English Patient, The Saint, Road Racer's, Volcano
Specializing in video game rentals, trades, sales.
Rent a Play Station, Nintendo 64, Saturn with 3 games for just $4.99 per night.
Buy Prices: Nintendo 64 - $80; Play Station- $75; Saturn- $60 (Prices subject to change)

UM water polo to face Queens

Harvard also on the bill for UM

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

A rivalry has formed.

In the past two seasons the Massachusetts water polo team has swam through the regular season with relative ease; only to be rudely ousted in their own divisional tournament.

In both of these seasons, Queens College has done the honors of knocking the Minutemen from the top northern seed, forcing UMass to make a steeper climb through the ensuing Eastern Championship tournament brackets.

And in both instances, the Minutemen have defeated Queens to win their third and fourth Eastern titles.

So, some bitterness should be expected in the pool at Amherst College when the Minutemen take on Queens at 6:30 p.m. Saturday to round out their first Collegiate Water Polo Association League Tournament of the season.

UMass will also face on Saturday CWPA league foes Iona College and Lehman College.

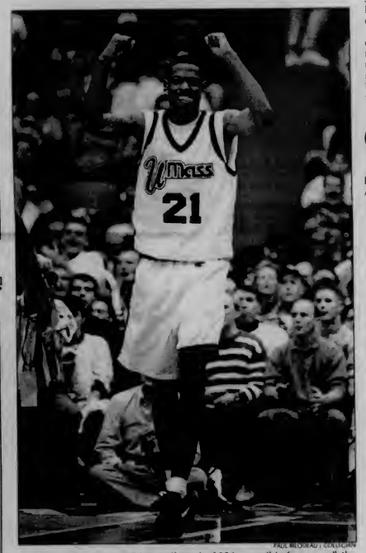
Make no mistake, the focus will be on the last match of the day with Queens.

The Minutemen had won all 15 contests between the teams before they ran into each other on Oct. 29, 1995 in the Eastern Water Polo Association North Division playoffs.

Queens pulled out the physical battle, 10–8. In that game, UMass coach Russ Yarworth was so frustrated by the officiating — and the imminent loss — that he threw a deck chair into the pool, and was subsequently ejected.

After beating Navy for the third straight time in the post– season, the Minutemen met Queens in the Eastern final for a chance to advance to the NCAA water polo final four.

Behind the effort of UMass legend Luis Limardo, the Minutemen sent Queens packing, 12–7.



And the rivalry has continued to grow from then on.

But, UMass can't afford to look past their two other weekend opponents, nor can they look past the Harvard Crimson who they will face tonight.

Since 1991, the Minutemen have won 15 straight games against the Crimson, but before that Harvard actually held a 9–4 series advantage over UMass.

A solid showing in the four games over the weekend could vault the Minutemen into the Top 10 in the coaches poll. They were ranked No. 11 in the preseason poll.

From Poolside... If Brian Stahl was to stay on his phenomenal goal scoring pace of 4.5 goals p/game, he would end the season (assuming 36 games) with 182 goals. This total would obliterate the old mark of 127 set by Luis Limardo in 1994. Stahl would need only five assists to go with his 182 goals to set the single–season points scored record held by Javier Gonzalez (187) — a record also set in 1994 when Gonzalez and Limardo combined for 247 goals and 359 points.

Marcus Camby in a UMass uniform in 1994 — well before all the controversy arose.

Weekly Drink Specials
Rum & Coke 16oz $2.00
Sombreros 16oz $2.00
Miller Lite Draft
The Big One 20oz $1.00
Fri Sept.12
Molson Night
10-Midnight
Lots of Prizes
1/2 Price Nachos & Appetizers
3-5 7-9
Bar & Lounge
9-10:30
Bar, Lounge & Restaurant
Friday & Saturday
Dancing
Beat The Cover
No Cover
Before 10:00 PM
Sunfood • Spirits
THE PUB
amherst
15 East Pleasant Street

The art is formally known as Prints.
FRAMED (AND FRAMEABLE) REPRODUCTIONS. BEWARE OF IMPOSTERS.
Class up the joint, from 5.95
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.
Faces Downstairs

Men's X–C kicks off in Boston

Northeastern and Iona Universities are the first opponents for the 1997 Massachusetts mens' cross country team, which kicks off its season tomorrow at Franklin Park in Boston at 10 a.m.

The Minutemen are coached by Ken O'Brien, in his 31st season with UMass. They finished third in the Atlantic 10 last season, behind Virginia Tech and St. Joseph's. In a preseason poll, A–10 coaches ranked UMass third behind those same two schools.

UMass is led by senior Ryan Carrera, who placed 14th overall last season in the A–10 Championships. Carrera, Brian Chabot and Mike Marchand are the only seniors on this year's squad. The team is a mixed bag this season, with three juniors, four sophomores and five freshmen to go along with the three seniors.

O'Brien doubles as the track and field coach, and in his 31 seasons he has led the Minutemen to 15 Yankee Conference titles, two IC4A championships, and has produced six All–Americans.

He was named A–10 Coach of the Year in 1995 after the Minutemen finished third in the conference. O'Brien was also a runner during his undergraduate days at UMass.

The Minutemen compete in seven meets this year (eight if they qualify for the NCAA Championships), including the A–10 Championships also at Franklin Park on Nov. 1.

Men's Cross Country
Massachusetts @ Northeastern w/Iona
Today

— Scott Hamill

Baseball in no hurry to reinstate Pete Rose to Hall of Fame ballot

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Even if Pete Rose applies for reinstatement, baseball officials said yesterday they are in no hurry to consider lifting his lifetime ban.

Rose's lawyer, Gary Spicer, met with Robert DuPuy, the lawyer for acting commissioner Bud Selig, and discussed the process baseball's career hits leader would need to follow if he wishes to lift the permanent suspension Rose agreed to in August 1989. That penalty is preventing Rose from appearing on the Hall of Fame ballot.

"It was more exploratory than preliminary," DuPuy said. "He said, essentially, 'What's the deal?'"

DuPuy said he told Spicer that if Rose had anything he wanted baseball's ruling executive council to consider, he should have Spicer give it to DuPuy, who would forward it to the council members.

A. Bartlett Giamatti sought the ban on Rose after an investigation revealed involvement with sports betting. Giamatti, the baseball commissioner at time, concluded Rose bet on baseball, although no official finding was made in the agreement between Rose and the sport.

"We discussed the current status of Pete's business and personal relationships and his desire to get back into the game," Spicer said. "We reviewed the present state of the leadership of the game. We also discussed the current procedure and what information baseball would like to review. I think Pete would very much like to be employed within the game. And everyone acknowledges he has a great deal to offer."

Baseball officials, speaking on the condition they not be identified, said they have no urgency to deal with Rose, who was manager of the Cincinnati Reds at the time he agreed to the ban. None of the 14 other people given lifetime bans ever were reinstated.

The baseball officials have said in the past it would be hard to consider an application from Rose unless he admits he bet on baseball.

While Rose contends he never bet on his sport, his fingerprints were found on betting slips for baseball games and handwriting experts — one hired by baseball and the other from the FBI — determined it was his writing on those slips. Baseball's investigator, John Dowd, concluded Rose bet $2,000 per game on his Reds and other baseball teams during the summer of 1987.

The following April, Rose pleaded guilty to two counts of filing false incomes taxes by failing to report $354,968 in income from autograph appearances, memorabilia sales and gambling. He repaid the IRS at least $366,000 in back taxes, interest and penalties, and served five months at a federal prison in Marion, Ill. Rose then spent three months in a halfway house and performed 1,000 hours of community service.

Also in 1990, the board of directors of the Hall of Fame voted to exclude banned players from the writers' ballots, blocking Rose from almost certain election.

Not having a commissioner makes reinstatement more difficult for Rose. The Major League Agreement gives the commissioner power to reinstate players. In the absence of a commissioner, the power goes to the executive council, which currently has nine voting members. There are no rules governing whether the council could approve reinstatement by a mere majority, or whether the margin would have to be greater.

Carroll happy with his quiet role

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

FOXBORO, Mass. — His name is Pete Carroll. He'll be the other coach on the sidelines Sunday night.

Bill Parcells' return with the New York Jets has dominated a week of hype and that's fine with Carroll. He simply wants his New England Patriots to improve on the NFL's best start.

Unlike Parcells, who stepped down Jan. 31 after four years as Patriots coach and a rift with owner Robert Kraft, Carroll is far from a power-hungry leader who, in a loud voice, constantly reminds his players who's boss.

"We share this team," Carroll said. "I don't claim ownership of anything that has to do with the Patriots. I'm the coach that coaches these guys and they're the players that play. We have to mix together the best we have to offer."

Yet these have become Pete's Pats and players listen closely when he speaks.

His message this week: keep your emotions in check. Some who chafed under Parcells' abrasive personality are burning to show their former leader they can win for nice-guy Carroll, too.

"We're not looking for guys to try and overcome some individual battle that they had," Carroll said. "We want them to play their game the way they play it."

The Patriots, a team of business-like, intense players who rarely make off-field headlines, are confident they can do that for their new coach. They're already 2-0 and lead the NFL in points scored and fewest allowed.

"I really like the way coach Carroll, his personality and demeanor, comes across," running back Curtis Martin said. "It's so much fun going out there and performing and making him look good."

At practices, Carroll mingles with players more than Parcells did. Off the field, he's tried to bring them closer together. He even took them bowling on the last night of training camp.

"Outsiders may say, 'Why in the world would you ever be doing that?' Well, that doesn't matter to me a bit," Carroll said. "We do different things together for bonding opportunities or just having fun."

It wasn't as much fun last year, when players sometimes performed out of fear of how Parcells would react if they failed. "When Bill was here, it was more of the 'put my foot down, we're going to do it my way,' and he's a lot more intense" than Carroll, said linebacker Chris Slade, annoyed when Parcells made him a part-time player late last season. "Bill got it done his way.

"Now Pete, on the other hand, is a lot more laid-back, West Coast type guy. But we're getting it done his way, too."

The Patriots are performing brilliantly under Carroll, although they've played mediocre teams in beating San Diego 41-7 and Indianapolis 31-6. Still, Drew Bledsoe does have eight touchdown passes, one sack and no interceptions.

"Pete's a good motivator and a positive guy who has really stepped up and demonstrated to us that we have to prepare every week to try and win a championship," Bledsoe said.

Last season, the Patriots lost their first two games. But Parcells took them to the Super Bowl and they're a more mature team now with higher goals than simply winning a division title or showing up their ex-coach on national television.

"Would I like to stick it to the head coach of the New York Jets?" tackle Bruce Armstrong said. "Of course I would, whether it's Bill Parcells or when it was Pete Carroll or anybody else. The Patriots and the Jets don't really like each other."

Like Parcells, Carroll knows what it's like to lose his job amid controversy. He was shocked after the 1994 season, his first as a head coach, when he was fired by Jets owner Leon Hess after going 6-10.

And like most of his players, Carroll claims he's not interested in making Sunday night payback time.

"You would expect me to say that," Carroll said, "but it's too far back to really be of concern. I'm not looking in the rearview mirror and, if I did, I'd be wasting my time... I have something to prove every time we play."

So far, he's proven it to Kraft, who is impressed with the players' response to Carroll.

UMass Division Of Continuing Education
Something for Everybody
Academics and More !!!
Call for a free course catalog–
(413) 545-0107 or contined@admin.umass.edu
Check out www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated info.
• Over 100 credit undergrad courses — in the evening!
• More than 100 non credit workshops — affordable, fun, practical, including
Bartending, Retirement & Investment Planning, Past Life Regression, Country Line Dancing, Gardening, Computers, East Asian Medicine, Creating Comics!
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst

■ football

continued from page 10

end of those attempts, grabbing five balls for 48 yards and a touchdown.

However, Hodges feels the strengths of the Black Bears are the least of his worries.

"I'm most concerned about us," he said. "We just need to execute better. If we can do that, we'll be okay."

Hodge's main concern is the Minuteman running attack. The tag team of junior tailback Matt Jordan and sophomore fullback Jamie Holston — considered one of the most talented running combination in the A–10 — were limited to just 44 yards in the opener.

Still, Hodges is pleased with his team's effort.

"Well, 44 yards (rushing) isn't good enough, and defensively we need to step up and make some big plays," Hodges said. "But I'm happy with this team's progress. We get better and better each day. We're a much better team than we were even two days ago."

History is on the side of the Minutemen. UMass heads into the contest with a 27–12 overall record against the Black Bears.

Jamie Holston and the UMass running attack need to step up against the Black Bears tomorrow.

Field Hockey travels to Virginia for a pair

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

Sunday looms large on the Massachusetts field hockey schedule.

At James Madison.

High noon.

The Dukes are quite possibly the toughest team — or at least the most recognizable name — on the Minutewomen's early schedule. They were the 1994 NCAA champion after compiling a 20–3–1 record. JMU suffered an atypical year last season, going 12–8 with a No. 16 ranking in the final national poll.

Still, the Dukes mean business when it comes to field hockey.

But before the Minutewomen can focus on James Madison, they must first concentrate on today's game against Davis & Elkins.

Who?

Exactly. The Lady Senators are virtually unknown competition for UMass considering this is the first ever meeting between the schools.

UMass Field Hockey
Massachusetts @ Davis & Elkins/JMU
Today and Sunday

"What do I know about Davis & Elkins? Not much," UMass coach Patty Shea said. "All I know is that we can't take them lightly."

That could be hard to accomplish seeing as how last year the West Virginia Intercollegiate Conference member racked up a 3–15–0 record. Of course, eight starters are returning as opposed to three starters lost.

"It is very important for us to concentrate on one game at a time," Shea said. "We can't look at James Madison until we finish playing Davis & Elkins. Otherwise, we could get ourselves into trouble."

When the Minutewomen do face JMU (4–1) on Sunday, they will have to contend with an offense that has outscored its opponents, 29–8. Case in point: In their last game, the Dukes pasted Virginia Commonwealth, 11–0.

Tara Nappi has provided the most offensive firepower for James Madison this year, leading the team with seven goals. Dianne Cegielski has contributed four goals and four assists, while Colleen Hurley has added four goals and three assists to help pace the Dukes' attack.

JMU goalie Tara Perilla has a .714 save percentage and a 2.00 goals against average.

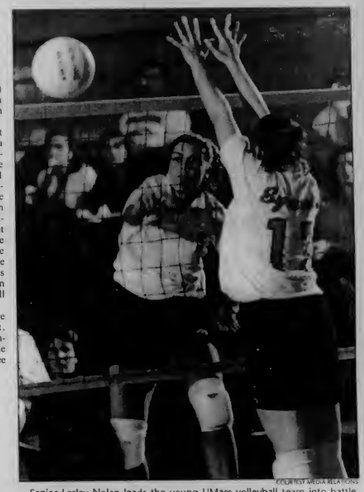
UMass off to Penn St. to face top–ranked Lions

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

To become a nationally ranked team in any collegiate sport, you have to play other nationally ranked teams.

Whether it has a positive or negative effect on your team, strength of schedule is a major building block towards first, national respectability, and secondly, a national ranking.

That is what the Massachusetts volleyball team will do again this weekend, as they travel to University Park, Pa. to compete in the Penn State Invitational.



The Minutewomen (2–4) have already had their share of ranked teams so far this season, losing to No. 9 UC–Santa Barbara (3–15, 3–15, 7–15) and No. 15 Loyola Marymount (10–15, 1–15, 10–15) last weekend in the Loyola Marymount/Furuma Hotel Classic in Los Angeles, Calif.

UMass will competc against UNC–Asheville and West Virginia today, but the big game this weekend will be the match with No. 1 Penn State tomorrow. This will be the first match in Minutewoman volleyball history that they will face the No. 1 team in the country, and the toughness of this test is as obvious as the number in front of the Nittany Lion volleyball team.

UMass Volleyball
Penn State Invitational
Today and Saturday

Last year in the Penn State Invitational, UMass swept St. Bonaventure and Connecticut by consecutive 3–0 scores, but lost to the sixth–ranked Nittany Lions in three games, 8–15, 9–15, 4–15.

"Any time you can have your name associated with Babe Ruth, it's a pretty awesome thing to think about."
-Mark McGwire after hitting his 50th homerun.
Line of the Day

FOUR STAR MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior Lesley Nolan leads the young UMass volleyball team into battle with the No. 1 Penn State squad this weekend.

Throw pillows at Faces.
THROW LAMPS HOWEVER, AND YOU WILL BE ASKED TO LEAVE.
An arsenal of throw pillows, from 11.95
Pillows shown, from top: 34.95, 16.95, 19.95
Main Street, Northampton. Open 7 days.
Faces Downstairs

WE NEED SOMEONE WITH THE AMBITION OF AN INVESTMENT BANKER THE PATIENCE OF A DRIVING INSTRUCTOR & THE OPTIMISM OF A WEATHERMAN.
If you have these attributes, Peace Corps has a place for you. The person we're looking for might have a major in business, health science, environmental studies, sociology, forestry, horticulture, primary or secondary education, philosophy, life science, mathematics, social work, French, or TEFL.
We need someone who would like to spend two years in another country, live and work in another culture and learn another language. To find out more, join us on campus.
INFORMATION MEETING
9/17/97
CAMPUS CENTER
7 PM
PEACE CORPS
(800) 424-8580, press 1, ask for ext. 678

? a) Depression is a bunch of symptoms exhibited by weak people.
b) Depression is an unbearable suppression of brain activity that can strike anyone.
Straightening out all the misconceptions, the correct answer is 'b'. It's a concept we should all understand and remember, and here's why. Depression strikes millions of young adults, but only 1 out of 5 ever seeks treatment for it. Too many just drag themselves along or eventually seek relief through suicide. Why not treatment? Partly lack of awareness. Partly the unwarranted negative stigma. This is what needs fixing. This is where we need you to change your attitudes. It's an illness, not a weakness. And it's readily treatable.
Spreading the word and making this common knowledge is everybody's assignment.
UNTREATED DEPRESSION
#1 Cause of Suicide
Public Service message from SAVE (Suicide Awareness\Voices of Education) http://www.save.org

WELCOME BACK BLOCK PARTY & FURNITURE SALE
Tomorrow, Saturday September 13th
Amherst Town Common
• JACK GOLDEN, CLOWN 10:00-11:00
• RAY MASON AND THE LONESOME BROTHERS BAND 2:30-4:00
• BUY CHEAP FURNITURE, CLOTHING HOUSEWARES 9:00-2:00

macromedia
Tools to power your ideas.
e your limits
then push them
Take advantage of these valuable rebates available at your campus bookstore through 10-31-97.
$40 Director 6 Multimedia Studio
Explore the most powerful tools for multimedia and the Web.
$30 Director 6 with Electronic Documentation
Explore the most powerful tool for multimedia and the Web.
$25 FreeHand Graphic Studio 7
Explore the most powerful design tools for print and internet graphics.
$15 FreeHand 7
Explore the most powerful design tool for print and internet graphics.
$10 Flash 2
Explore the easiest way to create fast Web multimedia.
*See specially marked boxes at your campus bookstore for details. Director 6 with Electronic Documentation available to students and faculty only 2906.8.97.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WOMEN'S ICE HOCKEY TEAM is looking for new players. No experience necessary. For info call Beth at 546-2585.

Cheap Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union, Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

AUTO FOR SALE

Must Sell 87 Subaru Wagon good condition, great in winter, high mileage, $1000 or B/O. 582-9872

1987 Mazda 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patti)

85 Chrysler LeBaron mint condition, A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo, power windows and locks. 95,000 miles. $700 or B/O. Call Bruce 256-1215

EMPLOYMENT

Recreation Positions at Amherst Leisure Services. Youth basketball supervisors/officials, facility supervisors, tennis instructors, volleyball officials, adult basketball supervisor/scorekeepers. Apply to: Human Resources, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA by 9/24. AA/EOE

EMPLOYMENT

Job for the Environmant Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/day. Call Terri 256-6434

Be a member of the Commuter Action Team Looking for 6-8 friendly students who like living off campus. Job duties are fun- Meet with off campus students and townspeople, coordinate and attend Commuter events and programs, help distribute information. Please contact David or Barbara at 545-2309, or drop by Commuter Services between 10:00am-1:00pm M-F. $6/hr and/or academic credit.

Madical/Legal Assistant Part-Time for Springfield/Northampton personal injury law firm. Job requires knowledge of medical records and anatomy. Nursing background and legal studies necessary. Must be able to perform online and traditional research in medicine and law. Some work can be done on campus. Flexible hours. Could lead to full-time permanent job. Fax resume and cover sheet to: Attorney Alan Goodman (413)736-4861

Undergraduate Business Consultant Great business and leadership opportunity on-campus. W/S and H/W/S positions available. CSB 406 Student Union. 5-2167

EMPLOYMENT

Rao's Coffee is hiring Food service experience, late night availability and a minimum of 15 hours per week required. Apply in person. No calls please.

CANTONE'S PIZZA NOW HIRING DRIVERS PART-TIME AND FULL-TIME You must have a reliable vehicle. Apply after 3 pm. 481 West St. (Route 116) South Amherst, across from the Amherst Ale House. 256-6100

Drivers Wanted Car needed. Apply in person at Pinocchio's Pizza. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Kai Chi Restaurant Drivers and Waitstaff Wanted. Part-Time. Apply within. Route 9, 335 Russell St., Hadley. 586-2774

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Morning, evening, and overnight. $7.85 per hour. Call 546-0666

FOR RENT

4 Badroom House Northampton, near stores but country location. No pets. $950+. Skibiski Realtors.

Fridge Rantals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

ART DECO Bedroom Set- Waterfall- 1930's Period $800 or best offer. Call (413)536-0772. Leave message if no answer.

FOR SALE

Used Bicyclas Buy/Sell/Trade/Consign. All styles, makes, and models. Hampshire Bicycle Exchange 256-4537 Sun 9-4. In Hall at Mt. Farms Mall on Route 9, Hadley.

Furniture For Sala Will take best offer. Call Scott or Pete. 549-3747

Watch batterias, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Found in Cashin Suite 607, a black backpack with "Bossy Le Boss" name on front (Jansport) Please call 6-7238 to claim.

Attantion New Students- Personal items left at The New Students Program this summer may be picked up at The New Students Office, 304 Admissions Center.

INSTRUCTION

PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance. PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMASS (413)545-0519 for info.

GUITAR LESSONS Beginner-Advanced. 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll Free)

MISCELLANEOUS

Giant Tag Sala This Saturday, 9/13, 8:30am to 1:00pm. Corner of Pine Grove and Old Farm Road off Route 9.

Lose weight! Boost anargy using Thermochrome. Send SASE for information or $3.50 for sample packet to: Jennifer James, 59 B St., Hull, MA 02045

PERSONALS

J Dry I know I messed up real bad! Please forgive me. Call me.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Single Room $230/month utilities included in 8 room house. 549-8696

Looking for one femala to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for one or two peopla to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at 549-3992

SERVICES

Maximize Your PC On-site training, installation, upgrades, troubleshooting. PC Consult 253-1946

SERVICES

11 Bridge Street Sunderland, MA

Ben's 45+ new & used vehicles repairs foreign & domestic

Tel. (413) 665-3344
Fax (413) 665-3966

Bob Connelly
Shop Manager

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find Out! Contact The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

COMPUTER SERVICES Mac Magic Independent Macintosh Trouble Shooter + Consultant. Alvin C. Whaley (413)584-7904

Hardware/Software, Installation, Servicing + Upgrades for Mac OS-based computers + peripherals. Your office, dorm, or home.

TRAVEL

Spring Break '98 Sell trips, earn cash and go free!!! Student Travel Services is now hiring Campus Reps/Group Organizers. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico, and Florida. Call 1-800-648-4849

Vacation Package 4 nights accommodation. Cancun, Mexico for 2 nights. New Orleans 2 nights. Bahamas Cruise. $300 for all. Book by December 20th. 253-1751

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS

available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Classifieds Special

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recoded on the insertion order. Use of false identication or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards on accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day
All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPT. 12

Meeting — A Welcoming Reception for South Asian students will be held at 5 p.m. in the Durfee Conservatory, behind the public health building. Everyone is welcome. Free ethnic food.

Service — Shabbat Service will be held at 6 p.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome. Sponsored by UMass Hillel.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 13

Greek life — Sigma Delta Tau will hold open fall rush from 2-4 p.m. at 409 North Pleasant St.

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend a fitness walk at 1 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549-6070.

Comedy — There will be a free improv comedy show at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 163.

Dance — UMass Ballroom Dance Club invites everyone to their Welcome Back Dance / Hooked on Ballroom 11 from 7 p.m.-1 a.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. Beginner dance instructions from 7–9 p.m. Dance exhibitions by students and pros. Casual or semiformal attire. Free admission.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 14

Meeting — Spectrum Magazine will be holding a general meeting from 6:30–7 p.m. in the Student Union, room 406E. All are welcome to attend. New members are welcome, as well as anyone interested in information pertaining to submissions of visual art, poetry and prose. Stop by or call at 545–2240.

Service — United Christian Foundation invites students to worship at the Goodwin African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, 41 Woodside Avenue (near the corner of Walnut Street, in the center of Amherst) at 11a.m. All are welcome.

MONDAY, SEPT. 15

Meeting — The UMass Women's Ice Hockey Team will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 165. No playing experience is necessary. All interested women are welcome. For more information call Beth at 546–2585.

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend Alpha Chi Vogue and House Tours from 6:30–7:30 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549–6070.

Meeting — A Native American Studies Certificate Program Informational Session will be held 7:15–9:30 p.m. in Machmer W–25. All interested students are encouraged to attend.

Meeting — UVC TV 19 is having its first general meeting at 7 p.m. All students interested in any facet of video are encouraged to come, or call 545–1336. The studio is located in the Student Union to the right side of the Hatch.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild and University Productions & Concert will be holding auditions for the fall musical production of The Who's Tommy Friday, Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Auditions will also be held Saturday, Sept. 13 at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. Call backs are Sunday, Sept. 14 at 11 a.m. Audition pieces will be provided. For questions, call 545–0415 or 545–2892.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Library tours — The Du Bois Library will be hosting orientation tours Sept. 12. The tours will leave from the Entrance lobby at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Come, visit and get to know the library.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

Support group — Are you concerned about a friend's drinking or other drug use? Is getting drunk getting old? If you have concerns about a friend's or your own substance use there are lots of resources on-campus. Confidential assessments and counseling and student support groups are all options you can choose. For further information about campus resources, contact the REAP Program, Moore Lobby, 545–0137.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by: WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

ALWAYS: $1 Bud Lite Drafts!!

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
26 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
29 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Cranberry

FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 12, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	1964 World's Fair		McLaughlin	Religion	World at War (Part 4 of 4)
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	Candid Camera		JAG "The Guardian" (In Stereo)		Nash Bridges "Knockout"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Candid Camera		JAG "The Guardian" (In Stereo)		Nash Bridges "Knockout"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	Sabrina-Witch	Hashbeast	20/20		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	★★★★ "The Man Who Would Be King" (1975) Sean Connery		News				Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	★★½ "Beethoven's 2nd" (1993, Comedy) Charles Grodin		Dateline (In Stereo)		LAPD		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	4	Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Major League Baseball: New York Yankees at Baltimore Orioles. (Live)							Vibe
WVIT	30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	★★½ "Beethoven's 2nd" (1993, Comedy) Charles Grodin		Dateline (In Stereo)				News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons	Roseanne	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	UFOs: Best Evidence-on Tape	Millennium "The Paper Dove"	News				Seinfeld	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	★★½ "Beethoven's 2nd" (1993, Comedy) Charles Grodin		Dateline (In Stereo)		News		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We're In	Follow Money	Merrow Report		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Ent. Tonight	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	20/20		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Baverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Seinfeld	Mad Abo. You	★★ "Night of the Hooter" (1983, Adventure) Danny Glover		News		Real TV		M*A*S*H
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Major League Baseball: Colorado Rockies at Atlanta Braves. (Live)							"Ally Stalkers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold"
A&E	53	Quincy		Law & Order "In Memory of ..."		Biography: Henry Fonda		America's Castles		Grand Tour		Law & Order "Securitas"
CNN	49	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	36	Absolutely Fabulous "The Last Show" (R)				★★½ "Nice Versal" (1998, Comedy) Judge Reinhold, Fred Savage		★★ "Fellow Traveler" (1989, Drama) Hanna Schygulla		Movie: Zombie Zone (R)		Henny Youngman
DISC	69	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Red Star (R)		Wild Discovery: Seals		News		World-Wonder	Fangal "Predators" (R)	Wild Discovery: Seals
ESPN	51	Up Close	Sportscenter		Boxing	Boxing: Saul Duran vs. Steve Johnston. (Live)					Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	67	Supermarket	Debt	★★½ "Affair to Promise" (1997, Drama) Mark Harmon		★★ "Mommy Dearest" (1981, Drama) Christopher Plummer						Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	52	Week in Rock	Viewers	Top 10 Breakdown (In Stereo)	Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.		Countdown to the 10 Spot		Beavis-Butt.	Apt. 2F	Oddvills, MTV	Loveline
NICK	68	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Kablam!		Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days	Happy Days
SCIFI	66	Odyssey	Crash of 2000	Night Stalker		★★ "Nightmares" (1983, Horror) Cinema Raines, Emilio Estevez		Friday the 13th: The Series				Night Stalker
TLC	65	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Quest (R)	Peleoworld (R)	★★★ "The George McKenna Story" (1986, Drama)				Quest (R)	Peleoworld (R)
TNT	55	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		★★ "Mannequin" (1987, Comedy) Andrew McCarthy, Kim Cattrall		★★ "Summer Lovers" (1982, Drama) Linda Kozlowski
USA	56	Renegade (R) (In Stereo)		Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger		★★★ "Wall Street" (1987, Drama) Michael Douglas, Charlie Sheen		Silk Stalkings		Silk Stalkings
HBO	59	8:00 ★★½ "The Arrival" (1996)		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)		★½ "Money Train" (1995) Jason Patric, Wesley Snipes, Ri...		The Invasion (1997) Sean Young, Nick C...				Chris Rock
MAX	60	★★ "Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls" (1995) Jim Carrey, PG-13				★★½ "Maximum Risk" (1996) Jean-Claude Van Damme, R		★★ "Braiser Angel" (1996, Adventure) John Travolta, PG
SHOW	61	8:30 ★★★ "Fair and Away" (1992, Drama) Tom Cruise, PG-13				★★★ "Manikin" (1996, Fantasy) Mara Wilson, PG		Stargate SG-1 "The Nox"				Hunger (R)	"Beaklava" R

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Situations will inspire you to great deeds today — or, at the very least, to accomplish one primary goal. Either is beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You are likely to respond to the promise of financial gain today more than other individuals, but it becomes an all–consuming passion!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You can climb to the top with little effort, and today's beginning can yield big results when the time comes. Do not be too hasty, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You may feel as though you're receiving the same messages over and over again at this time. Today, try returning one in a clever way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Close work with a partner will surely become all–consuming during daylight hours. Be sure to relax and focus on family during p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Give more of yourself today and you'll surely win better results — and, very likely, get more in return when the time comes.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Your attitude toward others may be in need of some adjustment today. A domestic disagreement must be resolved as soon as it can!

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You don't need to spend a lot of money to maximize opportunity and reward today. Focus on those things that foster imagination.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Focus on the fundamentals today. Try to avoid anyone who approaches simple issues in a complicated manner; you don't need the confusion!

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You will get where you want to go today, provided you concentrate on sign–posts that lead you along the most direct route. Avoid sidetrips.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You are not interested in anything that is one–sided today; you are willing to give, but you expect to receive something in return.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You may feel as though you've been left out in the cold today, but perhaps you have not done all you can to keep up. Pick up your pace!

Quote of the Day

"Wooo–hoo"

–Blur "song 2"

ACROSS
1 Minute amount
5 Competed
9 Ready for picking
13 Speck in the ocean
15 Singer James
16 Toledo's lake
17 Beatle Ringo —
18 Hindu princess
19 Shopping center
20 "Pink Panther" role
22 Wallet stuffers
23 "— Were Sisters"
24 Nevertheless
26 Rain gear
30 — owl
34 Pseudonym
35 Explorer Heyerdahl
36 Bud's partner
37 Fruit peel
38 Nag
40 "Perry Mason" star
41 12/24, e.g.
42 Channel marker
43 Sea duck
44 Flan or cake
46 Steinbeck's "— Row"
48 Fruit drink
49 It's a long story!
50 Ballpark officials
53 Quitting time for the early shift?
59 Ark builder
60 Nastase of the courts
61 Nevada lake
62 Tad
63 Lease
64 Divulge (secrets)
65 Low card
66 Omelet ingredients
67 Lather

DOWN
1 Data holder
2 Cinema canine
3 Lath
4 Chef's need
5 Borders (on)
6 European country
7 Sicilian volcano
8 Wisconsin farm animal
9 Far off
10 Persia, today
11 Heap
12 Lampreys
14 Realties
21 Greek letter
25 Goof
28 Peeled
27 Martini garnish
28 Baseball teams
29 Ungentlemanly one
30 The lady
31 Evade adroitly
32 Kitchen utensil
33 Rush
35 Make an effort
38 Certain
39 Peppery
40 Corn cribs
42 A — of roses
43 Passes into law
45 Square-dance term
46 Printer's marks
47 In the past
49 Bringing charges
50 Module
51 Where heather grows
52 Liver spread
54 Designer Cassini
55 Drinks like Fido
56 Akron's place
57 Soft drink
58 Seaweed

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

KALE ALOU DHOW
ISAAC SOUP OOZE
DEMUR PURE FLOE
DAB OMIT OFFEND
SCAR MOOSE
OBSCURE ATE
PATHS KIEL BASIA
ALLAW GUILD IRON
TIGAMENT FLINT
AMIE VILLAGE
CARUSO ALES
ALBEIT LIKE UFO
BOON ORAN TAPER
CAVE NONE STOLE
SKEW EMER ANNO

8-12-97 © 1997, United Feature Syndicate

Close to Home By John McPherson

"The idea gave me the creeps at first, but when Frank showed me the numbers I had to admit that selling burial plots in our yard is a great way to put the kids through college."

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Pizza
Pizza with Cheese

DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Spaghetti Sausage and Sauce
Tofu Fajita
1/4 lb. Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Sloppy Joe or Vegan Sloppy Joe
Spaghetti w/ Tomato Sauce
Grilled Cheese on Wheat

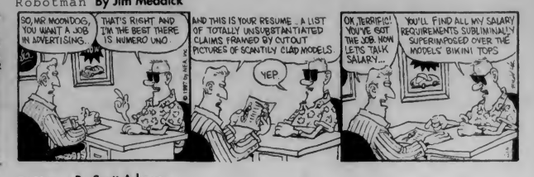
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
3 Cheese Macaroni
Tri-Bean Casserole
Italian Sweet Sausage Grinder

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger
Chicken Pucks
Handcut Cod Sub
Grilled Cheese (not handcut)

DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Baked Fish with Herb Stuffing
Fajitas with Chicken
Herb Stuffing in Baked Chicken

Berkshire
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
Sloppy Joe / Vegan Sloppy Joe
Pizza
Spaghetti

DINNER
Chicken Fajita
World Famous Duchess Meat Pie
Tri Bean Casserole (Tri it...)
1/4 lb Burger



Collegian Staff

Night Editor — Laura Stock
Photo Technician — Chris Cesnick
Copy Editor — Luke Meredith
Prod cio- Supervisor — Leon Latino
Production Staff — Teresa Rodrigues, Jannie Huang

Bruno By C. Baldwin

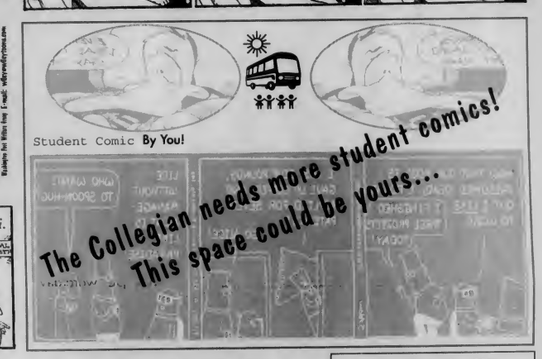
Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen



Non Sequitor By Wiley

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Student Comic By You!

McGwire, Castilla and Calipari?

Wednesday night, Mark McGwire became the first slugger since Babe Ruth in 1927–28 to hit 50 homers in back-to-back seasons. The Babe did it in '20–'21, too.

You're thinkin', hey Vinny Castilla hits home runs, so everybody can, right?

Well, it has seemed that way in recent years, but no modern player jogs around the basepaths as frequently as does "Big Red."

In his career, McGwire has knocked a long fly once every 12 at–bats, a ratio that ranks second all–time to the Guy who Built that

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
with Attitude

Dump for that team with those pinstripes. But I digress.

That's about once every three games or so — just barely more than 8 percent of the time. Let's compare that with some other sports or athletic feats that aren't so easy:

• How 'bout just getting a base hit? If you can do that 30 percent of the time over your career, there's a good chance you're headed for Cooperstown.

• Ever tried to kick a field goal? Ever tried it with 11 gorillas rushing after you? Great place kickers can split the uprights at least 75 percent of the time.

• It's all–the–rage in the NBA now to bomb away from beyond the 3–point arc. But, most sharp–shooters are only successful 40 percent of the time — still a far cry from 8 percent.

• Scoring a goal in the NHL? If you can put the puck in the net 15 percent of the time, you're skating in some good company.

Yet McGwire, one of the most prolific power threats in the history of baseball, can only hit the ball out of the park in 8 percent of his at–bats.

Even if Hideki Castilla can hit home runs, it isn't the easiest thing in the world to blast 'em with the prodigiousness and frequency of McGwire.

He has truly ascended to legendary status well before his time is up.

• In the Oh–So–Shady Department:

Lamar Odom, a blue–chip high school hoop prospect is about ready to play basketball for the University of Rhode Island.

I know what you're thinking: it's only mildly shady that a good basketball player would actually want to play for the Rams. But, here's where the shadiness really begins: Odom placed himself into the NBA's entry draft after allegations surfaced that he was already associating with an agent.

Those allegaiions came about following the firing of then– UCLA coach Jim Harrick after a recruiting scandal that ever–so shadily involved the aforementioned Odom.

Oh yeah... there's more: Odom was all set to go to UNLV once the scandal broke, where former coach Jerry Tarkanian made the word shady part of our everyday vocabulary.

Now, one of the most talented and shady hoopsters to come out of high school in a long while is going to URI where a Mr. Jim Harrick is now the head basketball coach.

Hmmm...

• I wanna know which scheduling geniuses banged their heads together and came up with the idea of having Marcus Camby's Toronto Raptors play John Calipari's New Jersey Nets in Springfield on Oct. 27.

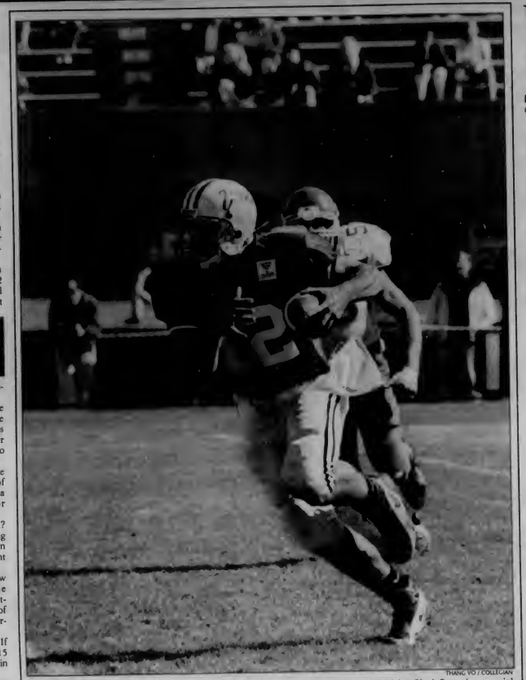
Some football enthusiasts may recognize this date...

No?

On that Monday night, the Patriots will be taking on the Packers on ABC — a much–anticipated re–match of the Super Bowl.

What are fans to do? What are sports writers to do?

• While we're talking Pats, we might as well get into the Hype.



Drew Bledsoe has bombed away on a pair of rather anemic defenses for some astronomical numbers while guiding New England to its first 2–0 record in over a decade.

The lets, are 1–1, and their quarterback, Neil O'Donnell was bombed by Buffalo's defense last week.

The Pats are the AFC Champs; the Jets are the AFC Champs. No need for Hype.

Patriots squeak by, 38–17.

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Smith will lead the Minuteman attack against the Maine Black Bears in a crucial early–season match–up.

Black Bears host UM

Minutemen try to avoid 0–2 in pivotal game

By Corey Peter Goodman
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts football team is trying to forget the past.

When the Minutemen bus it up to Orono, Maine this weekend for a Saturday showdown with the Maine Black Bears (1–0) at 1 p.m., the picture of the opening day disappointment to an over–achieving Richmond Spiders team (21–6) may be still circling around in their heads. Even tougher to forget may be last year's heartbreaking 22–14 loss to Maine that saw the Black Bears run off 10 unanswered fourth quarter points to knock off the Minutemen.

But according to head coach Mike Hodges, UMass isn't looking back.

"You can't do that in this business. This is a new week," Hodges said. "You better move on, or you'll never be successful."

A successful week may require an extraordinary effort for UMass, which lacks horns with a young and talented Maine team Saturday. Coming off a successful 7–4 record in 1996, the Black Bears proved it was no fluke last Saturday in their season opener. Maine traveled to Kingston, RI and dismantled the Rhode Island Rams, 30–14.

Hodges knows it will be a war.

"They're excellent," Hodges said. "Up and down the line, they're stacked. And their kicking game is sound as well. Our hands are full."

The Black Bears attack is centered around their defensive unit. Returning nine starters from last year's group that allowed just over 200 points, Maine appears capable of stifling the A–10's top offensive attacks this year.

Moreover, the Black Bears return three starters to a defensive line that terrorized opposing quarterbacks last season. Maine recorded 51 sacks last year, more than twice UMass' numbers. Lining up against UMass' brand new offensive front may result in serious protection problems for Minuteman sophomore quarterback Jeff Smith.

Still, Hodges remains confident.

"We've prepared hard for them every day," he said. "This is a young outfit (UMass). But they are very mature, and they're all business. They know how to practice, and they'll be ready."

Maine brings a double–barreled attack to the field. On the offensive side of the ball, the Black Bears are sparked by the passing combination of junior quarterback Mickey Fein to junior wide out Rameek Wright.

Fein racked up 1,955 passing yards last season, with 140 completions and 10 touchdown passes. He showed no sign of holding up last week, lighting up the Rams for 197 yards on 16–for–27 passing.

Wright was often on the receiving

UMass Football
Massachusetts @ Maine
Saturday, 1 p.m.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page7

UM women on roll, face DU and Bonnies

By Kathleen Ralls
Collegian Staff

Mesh shirts. Pads. Cleats. Gloves covered in grips, for those who are prone to catch the ball more often than not.

All things someone would expect to see at "the big game" on Sunday, right?

Right.

The game, the No. 14 Massachusetts women's soccer team versus Atlantic 10 rival St. Bonaventure, is Sunday at 1 p.m. at Totman Field. But, for those of you who can't wait for Sunday, there will be a free preview of the Minutewomen today at Totman against Duquesne University at 4 p.m.

It would seem that UMass might view this weekend as preparation for national powerhouses Colorado (Sept. 20) and Connecticut (Sept. 23) in the following two weeks, but this is not the case. UMass defeated nationally ranked Michigan last week, and stand at 3–0 thus far. But as coach Jim Rudy explains, this weekend presents just as much, if not more, preparation.

"We have to put ourselves in the best possible position," Rudy said. "The A–10 has become very important, a more sure step to the NCAA."

This year, the A–10 champion will earn an automatic berth to the NCAA tournament for the first time ever, which means that every conference game counts in their bid for a tournament seat.

Duquesne's record stands at 2–1, with a 1–0 win over Pittsburgh; a 1–0 loss to West Virginia; and a whopping 5–0 win over Robert Morris. What stands troublesome for the Minutewomen is that six different scorers have found the back of the net for the Lady Dukes. Last year they stood at 6–7–4, so they are showing signs of improvement.

"Their coach Shelley Heisey is pretty shrewd," Rudy said. "[They run] a pretty tight defense and have a very competent goalie with Kelly O'Neil."

Sunday's game could prove a toss–up, with St. Bonaventure's record also at 2–1. Recording wins over Youngstown and Niagara, the Bonnies only loss is to nationally ranked Syracuse.

Leading St. Bonaventure's offense is Kelly Nagy, with three goals and three assists, alongside Jo Storms who has tallied three goals as well. Returning goalie Margaret Reif also poses a threat after coming off early, impressive showings.

St. Bonaventure is currently in a transition of their own, though not on the playing field but on the sidelines. Former coach Kim Lemaire left to become assistant coach at Colorado, leaving Kim Early with head coaching duties.

While UMass exudes youth and excitement, they have a couple noticeable injuries in senior defender Amy Burrill (quad) and sophomore forward Kate Webb (bad ankle sprain) who are questionable for this weekend. But for a team who at times had to train with sides of 5–4 in preseason, this shouldn't pose a problem.

"Somebody will play," Rudy said. "We will put 11 on the field."

UMass Women's Soccer
Massachusetts vs. Duquesne/St. Bona.
Today and Sunday

JOSHUA KAVOLIUNAS / COLLEGIAN

Erica Iverson and the Minutewomen host Duquesne University today on Totman Field.

UM looks to rebound with Maine

By Matthew J. Perrault
Collegian Staff

Coming off a disappointing tie on Sunday against Siena College, the Massachusetts men's soccer team returns to Amherst on Saturday for the home opener at Totman Field against the Maine Black Bears at 1 p.m.

UMass coach Sam Koch was upset with the way his team performed against Siena, and will look for a much stronger effort from his team.

"I was not happy with things [against Siena] and anyone who thought we played well wouldn't be on this team anymore," Koch said.

Practice went relatively the same this week, but the team wants to correct things and knows what has to be done.

"Many players stepped up this week but we didn't do anything different, just tried to continue to work on the things that we need to," Koch said.

UMass will be looking to contain a very strong Black Bear offensive attack.

"They have some guys up front that can play," Koch said. "We are going to cover them, whether or not we will stick one man on them will be determined."

The game will be played at Totman field, which is a change for many of the Minutemen players, who played home games last year at Garber Field. But since Garber has been covered in with a new artificial surface, the soccer program has moved to the cozy confines of Totman.

Coach Koch seems to like the field but knows that some adjustments will have to be made in order to play well on the field.

"[Totman's] grass is very beautiful. It's a beautiful surface," Koch said with apprehension. "The field is only 65 yards wide though. We will need to play to the feet and our wide players must be on the sidelines, not five yards in."

The Minutemen made the trip up to Orono last year and took away a 1–0 victory from the Black Bears and hold the all–time series lead 20–10–1.

Still, don't look for UMass to take it easy this game or catch them looking a week ahead, when the No. 8 Boston University Terriers come to town.

Maine was only 4–13–1 last year, but overconfidence got the Minutemen into trouble last week.

"Maine is a strong all around team. We need to play well," Koch said. "If we are thinking about BU against Maine, we are in trouble."

Minutemen Notes: The Minutemen will have a few game time decisions to make. Sophomore Gavin Hewitt has missed the past two games due to injury, but might

UMass Men's Soccer
Massachusetts vs. Maine
Saturday, 1 p.m.

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 6

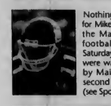
THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore James Redmond and the men's soccer squad look for a better effort against Maine tomorrow.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CVII Issue 9 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Monday, September 15, 1997

"Closer to Fine"

The Indigo Girls appeared at the Mullins Center Friday. They also took the time to talk to the Collegian. For review and interview, see inside (see Arts & Living, page 5).

UMass hurting after Bear attack

Nothing went right for Mike Hodges and the Massachusetts football team Saturday, when they were walloped 49–6 by Maine for their second straight loss (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Israel to return tax revenues

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel will return half of the Palestinian tax revenues it is withholding as a "goodwill gesture," the government said yesterday, citing Palestinian steps to battle terrorism.

The army also announced it would lift the "internal closure" that confines Palestinians to their individual communities, although a general closure keeping Palestinians out of Israel will remain in effect.

The travel restrictions were imposed after a Sept. 4 bombing in Jerusalem that killed five Israelis and the three suicide bombers. Despite the conciliatory gestures, tensions escalated yesterday when a group of 11 militant Jewish settlers took over three buildings in an Arab neighborhood in disputed east Jerusalem, raising fears of new violence in the troubled city.

Dozens of agitated Palestinians streamed to the site, a plot of land in Ras al-Amud neighborhood where city officials have approved a controversial new Jewish housing project that has been delayed by legal wrangling.

NATION

Stealth fighter crashes during air show

MIDDLE RIVER, Md. (AP) — An F-117A stealth fighter broke apart during an air show performance and crashed into two houses yesterday, setting both on fire and causing six minor injuries on the ground. The pilot ejected safely.

The crash happened about 3 p.m. as the jet was making its final passes during the Chesapeake Air Show at the Glenn Martin State Airport.

Several witnesses said they saw parts of the plane break off just before it went down. Home video of the crash showed a piece of the aircraft, which appeared to be from the tail section, flying off the jet before it went into a slow, flat spin and crashed.

"Some people were saying it was part of the show," said Rudy Medina, who was at the air show. "But I knew it wasn't part of the show. No aircraft of that caliber disintegrates in midair like that."

The plane, carrying 11,000 pounds of fuel, went down about a mile from the airport, into two houses and two cars at a condo-marina complex on Chesapeake Bay in this suburb northeast of Baltimore.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tuesday	Wed.
HIGH: 77	HIGH: 67	HIGH: 67
LOW: 52	LOW: 52	LOW: 52

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds.....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword.....page 11
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News.....page 3
Sports.....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Ginsburg receives first Sophia Smith Award

Smith College shines

By Joseph R. Fountain
Collegian Staff

Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg received the first annual Sophia Smith Award at Smith College in a ceremony on Friday afternoon.

In a full–to–capacity John M. Greene Hall, Ginsburg received a standing ovation that was only quelled by her own request. Those gathered included students and alumni of Smith, and judges and lawyers from throughout the area. Gloria Steinem, Congresswoman Jane Lakes Harmon, Judge Stephanie Kulp Seymour of the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and Nina Toteberg were all present to honor Ginsburg.

The award was created by the Smith board of trustees as part of a year long celebration of the birth of the founder of the college, Sophia Smith. It is awarded to an individual who "by virtue of intelligence, energy, vision and courage has made a lasting contribution to the education of women," said Ann E. Shananhan, Director of Media Relations for Smith College.

The award includes a medallion and a gift of $10,000. The medallion was designed with an owl. Kate Belcher Webster, Chair of the Board of Trustees at Smith, said, "The owl in Greek mythology was companion to Athena, goddess of wisdom and it is fitting that Sophia is derived from the word in Greek which means wisdom."

"Ginsburg is the embodiment of what Sophia Smith envisioned for a Smith graduate."
Said Cherilyn Cepriano, junior anthropology major and vice-president of the Smith College Student Government Association.

Ginsburg has chosen two organizations to share the gift: The Women's Law and Public Policy Fellowship Program at Georgetown University and the United States Holocaust Memorial and Museum for the use of purchasing diaries, memoirs and other material on women and the Holocaust.

The honoree was introduced by two friends and colleagues, Wendy Webster Williams, professor at Georgetown University and Herma Hill Kay, Dean at the University of California at Berkeley.

Williams said, "On behalf of women she has been an educator of men." She went on to say, "Ginsburg has changed the fundamental way the constitution is looked upon." According to Williams it was truly an act of genius by President Clinton to appoint Ginsburg to the Supreme Court.

Kay spoke fondly of the work that Ginsburg has done on the Supreme Court, referring to a number of important decisions including United States v. Virginia Military Institute. This case allowed for women to attend the once all–male school.

"Smith College is a very special place for women, which was created by a woman — Sophia Smith — to be as good as the best men's college," said Smith President Ruth Simmons. "Ginsburg has incredible intelligence and a strong disbelief that laws that restricted women

Turn to SMITH, page 3

Steinem, MacKinnon, Harmon and Seymour return to alma mater

By Joseph Fountain
Collegian Staff

The title of the discussion was "In Pursuit of Justice: Women's Equality and the Public Good," and was attended by an overflowing audience that spilled out into rooms with closed circuit televisions.

The talk took place on Saturday at a roundtable discussion which was held in honor of the 1997 Sophia Smith award recipient Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg at Sweeney Concert Hall on the campus of Smith College.

All the guest speakers were asked to take eight minutes to describe a personal experience of gender discrimination. The moderator was Dennis Thompson, the Alfred North Whitehead Professor of political philosophy at Harvard University and a member of the Smith College Board of Trustees.

Congresswoman Jane Lakes Harmon

Harmon was the first person to speak and she brought up the issue of her position on Proposition 209, the bill in California that eliminated preferential treatment of minority candidates for all positions in higher education. Harmon said, "I strongly opposed Prop 209... the goal is to empower everyone and the best affirmative action policy is a good education for every one."

Harmon is a graduate of

Turn to ALMA, page 2

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Associate Justice of Supreme Court, proudly accepts an award at Smith College last Friday evening.

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Quiet time

Kimi Kamiyama, a junior English major, and Leonard Bagasol, a junior computer science major, find relaxation and privacy within the folds of one of UMass' many tranquil gardens.

Mother Jones ranks UM third in its activist poll

By Christine Soh
Collegian Staff

Recently, the University of Massachusetts came in third in a Top 10 Activist Campus poll published by Mother Jones, a liberal cultural and political magazine.

In the September/October issue highlight, nearly 20 organizations which tracked student activism were polled. Sources such as Amnesty International, the Anti–Defamation League, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People — among others — led to the 10 top findings and three honorable mention spots.

Leading the poll was the University of Wisconsin, Madison, which campaigned against human rights abuses, launched an Internet–based Free–Burma coalition, and convinced their university to divest from Texaco, a corporation which has ties to businesses in Burma.

This was U. Wisconsin's fourth year in the poll.

The No. 2 position went to Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley. Highlights mentioned its protest last April and administrative commitments to establish an Asian–American Studies program and to hire a Muslim chaplin.

For both Mount Holyoke and UMass, this was their first appearance in the poll.

The summary of UMass' activism for this past year focused on the Goodell Takeover and cited a coalition of essentially 100s of students supporting the protester's motivations. Among the list of demands were issues concerning affirmative action and multicultural education. A struggle for child care and more financial aid was also mentioned.

Graduate political science student Colin S. Cavell commented, "The fact that UMass is near the top of the Mother Jones magazine's college rankings and not, save for one exception, even mentioned by other published organizational rankings, is that we have a contradiction in values arising out of different theoretical models which influence nominal measurement categories of, say, excellence in education."

Cavell further explained his comment.

"It is becoming clear that the all–white elite university of the past is increasingly out of step with the values of a significant sector of the population; specifically, a more

Turn to ACTIVIST, page 3

Bosnians vote

By Aida Cerkez
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Overcoming fears of violence, Bosnians flooded polling stations yesterday to vote in local elections that could alter the divided country's ethnic map. The unexpectedly high turnout during weekend voting forced election organizers to open additional polling stations and drew praise from international officials.

"It proves the hunger for democracy in this country," said Carlos Westendorp, the top international envoy in Bosnia.

The results of the voting — the first local elections in Bosnia since the end of its 3 1/2-year civil war — are not expected for days. But the number of refugees who crossed former front lines to cast ballots in their prewar hometowns suggest the outcome may change Bosnia's political and ethnic landscape.

OSCE spokesman David Foley estimated yesterday that 89 percent of those eligible to vote registered in their prewar hometowns. That could have serious repercussions in areas now controlled by other ethnic groups — if, as expected, refugees

Turn to VOTE, page 3

UMass grad dicusses Pathfinder mission data in speech

By Julie Siegal
Collegian Staff

Geologist Matthew P. Golombek, a University of Massachusetts alumnus and head scientist on NASA's Mars Pathfinder mission spoke to a packed auditorium Friday about his recent discoveries on the Red Planet.

Golombek presented a lecture at 4 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium to students, professors and local townspeople about the "cheap" $170 million mission.

The Pathfinder, which landed on Mars on July 4, is the first of a series of discovery class missions which take approximately three and a half years from the initial design to the launch.

According to Golombek, the discovery class missions are faster, cheaper, better and cost sufficiently less than the very expensive Viking mission which travelled to Mars 20 years ago.

"How cheap?" Golombek said. "Less than a major motion picture that you all did not see called Waterworld and certainly more successful and cheaper than the movie you may or may not see soon called The Titanic."

In comparing this mission with the Viking, Golombek said that many discoveries have been made since a free–ranging surface rover landed two and a half months ago.

The rover traversed over 80 meters of Martian surface and returned to earth more than two billion bits of information, over 12,000 pictures of the surface surrounding the landing site, 400 images from the rover itself, 6.5 million individual temperature, pressure and wind measurements and 20 chemical composition measurements of Martian rocks and soil.

After the rover landed, Golombek discovered from its wheel tracks the surface material on Mars is similar to baking flour.

The Pathfinder's web site on the Internet is being logged onto at incredible rates, Golombek said, proving noticeable excitement about these discoveries from people around the world.

On July 8, the web site received 47 million hits and during the first 30 days of the mission, 566 million hits were received on the site, Golombek said.

"This rate surpassed anything else in the history of computers or the world," Golombek said. "So, I think lots of people think we've had a successful mission."

But the world's reaction to the mission is not enough to satisfy Golombek.

"My job as a scientist is to look beyond that," Golombek said. "It's nice that people have gotten excited and interested in what we did, but what have we really learned?"

The scientists have received information on all seven areas they wished to investigate on Mars, including weather, the constituency of the surface and magnetic properties.

Golombek and his crew also received a "free-bee" they never expected to see.

By tracking the location of the lander over a two month period, they were able to see it move underneath the antennas on earth. From that, the

Turn to MARS, page 3

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

UMass graduate Matthew P. Golombek, the chief scientist on the Mars Pathfinder Mission, speaks at Mahar Auditorium last Friday.

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Uno, dos, tres

Brooke Hauser, a sophomore biology major, Teresa Stevens, a sophomore biology major, and Sarah Strycharz, a sophomore environmental science major (right to left) enjoy the beauty and each other's company near the Campus Pond on Saturday.

■ alma

continued from page 1

Smith College and Harvard Law School. She was elected to Congress as a Republican from the 36th District of California in 1992.

Catherine MacKinnon

MacKinnon told the story of the alleged abduction of porn star Linda Lovelace. According to MacKinnon, Lovelace was abducted and forced to have sex in front of the camera.

She said, "I was introduced to her by Steinem because every time someone watches Deep Throat they are watching Linda get raped and she wanted to sue to have the movie removed from the market.

"The reason these things happened to her was because she was a woman; women have been treated inferior to men and she was being sexually exploited because of her sex."

The lawsuit was not able to be fought because the time limit ran out.

MacKinnon also responded to her critics by clarifying her views. "I do not think all sex is rape. I do not think that the ending of porn will end all abuse of women and sexual assault is a form of sex based discrimination," she said.

MacKinnon has a Bachelor's degree from Smith College, J.D. from Yale University Law School and a Ph.D. from the School of Political Science at Yale University. She practices law and is a noted author.

Agnes Bundy Scanlan

Scanlan, who has been labeled as someone who was very difficult to work with, addressed the issues of women being in high places in corporations.

Scanlan said that she was considered "to be a tough, terrible person." According to Scanlan, she had to change the way she worked and develop relationships and that women have to work harder in developing working relationships. Men tend to come into these working environments and expect women to be as accommodating as their wives, said Scanlan.

"I just got married, so I don't know how it is to be a wife," she said.

Scanlan is a graduate of Smith College and Georgetown Law School. She is senior vice president and director of corporate community development at Fleet Financial Group.

Judge Stephanie Kulp Seymour

Seymour told the story of how she became a judge on the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals. According to Seymour, an older gentleman, who was organizing the candidate meeting had decided that instead of suggesting the most qualified candidates for nomination, each person at this meeting would name the lesser candidate. He named Seymour.

Seymour said, "The person who felt I was most qualified, and who later became my friend, was astonished. She asked why I was not more qualified. He said that I had four children and couldn't be qualified.

"My friend looked at him and named the person that turned out to be his favorite nominee. He then asked her why his nominee wasn't qualified and she said that he has five children, so he can't be qualified."

Seymour is a graduate of Smith College and Harvard Law School.

Gloria Steinem

Steinem told the story of how she went to buy clothes for a little girl and found that all of the clothes for girls were buttoned from behind and boys clothes were buttoned from the front.

"From the start," Steinem said, "we are causing little girls to learn how to be dependent on others.

"The future of civil rights and gender issues are that we stand together — if we stand together against race and gender issues there is no stopping us."

Steinem is founder of New York magazine and subsequently Ms. magazine. She graduated from Smith College and is a member of the Board of Trustees at Smith.

Nina Totenberg

Totenberg told how she broke the story of the Anita Hill–Clarence Thomas sexual harassment allegations. Totenberg said, "I was pillorried in the media because I was a woman."

Totenberg was the first person to report the case, to have all the proof to prove that the incident really did take place and the Senate was delaying action on Hill's allegations.

"There are some forms of subtler racism that will always exist," she said. "Treat everything with a sense of humor, don't get mad just laugh and never cry in public."

Totenberg works for National Public Radio as host of Gavel to Gavel. She has received numerous awards including ones from the American Bar Association and a Peabody Award.

In Friday's Collegian, an incorrect date was reported for a meeting about Anthropology 390, "Contemporary Issues in Native America, a Focus on the Northeast."

A meeting for interested students will take place at Machmer Hall, room W–25, at 7:15 tonight.

The Collegian regrets the error.

TOTAL FITNESS

WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE

BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES

$139

STUDENT SPECIAL

4 MONTHS

KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

CAMPUS GEAR

HEY UMASS

IT'S GOING TO BE COLD SOON!

BUT WHO WANTS TO PAY $40 OR $50 FOR A SWEATSHIRT?

AT CAMPUS GEAR YOU CAN ALWAYS GET 2 SWEATSHIRTS FOR $30

FROM OUR NEW LINE OF EXCITING APPERAL

Judicial Hearing Board

A GREAT EXPERIENCE FOR STUDENTS WHO

• are interested in campus leadership •
• wish to improve communication and listening skills •
• are enrolled full time •
• have at least a 2.0 G.P.A. •
• are not on judicial sanction •

APPLY NOW TO BE A HEARING BOARD MEMBER

Training held in the Campus Center
from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on:
September 29 & September 30
Room 904-08 Room 162-75

Applications available at:
Residential Cluster Offices
The Dean of Students Office
Student Government Association

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
5:00 p.m. September 25, 1997

Any questions? Please contact:
Paul Vasconcellos or Tara Woolfson
Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore
Phone: 545-2684

■ Smith

continued from page 1

were immutable."

While accepting the award Ginsburg said, "Sophia Smith became a rich women upon her brother Ogden's death. It was once reported Ogden said his money would never go toward woman's education, but Ogden's money became Sophia's and she chose to endow a college of higher education for women."

"This is a wonderful way to start this award because we will only choose the most amazing women," said Cherilyn Cepriano, junior anthropology major and vice-president of the Smith College Student Government Association. "Ginsburg is the embodiment of what Sophia Smith envisioned for a Smith graduate."

Jill Ker Conway, president emeritus of Smith and one of those who reviewed the 60–plus nominees for the award said of Ginsburg, "Her commentaries on the issues surrounding gender discrimination illuminate the way stereotyping can operate to deprive women or men of equal treatment in many aspects of work and education."

Others who sat on the review committee were Barbara Bush, Smith class of '47 and wife to former president George Bush, and Steinem, the editor of Ms. Magazine, class of '56.

Ginsburg received her Bachelor's degree from Cornell University, where she was elected Phi Beta Kappa and graduated with honors and a degree in government. She attended Harvard Law School for two years, making law review in both. She married Martin Ginsburg and transferred to Columbia University where she again made law review and graduated tied for first in her class.

Unable to get a job as a lawyer she took a job as a professor at Rutgers for nine years. She returned to Columbia as a professor in 1972. She was General Counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union and founded the Women's Rights Project. As a litigant, Ginsburg argued six major sex discrimination cases in front of the Supreme Court, winning five of them.

In 1980, she was appointed to the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington D.C. by President Jimmy Carter. In 1993, President Clinton appointed her to the Supreme Court.

Ickes questioned by the Senate

Former Clinton aide asked about Democratic party donations

By James Rowley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former presidential aide Harold Ickes will be called back for more questioning by Senate investigators about how the Democratic Party used donations raised by President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore, Senate sources say.

Ickes acknowledged in a June 26-27 deposition that he asked Clinton to call donors "two, three, maybe four times."

Ickes is also expected to be asked at a second deposition about whether Gore knew when he telephoned donors from his office that he was raising the type of contribution covered by a ban on soliciting donations on government property, said the aides, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Gore denies any wrongdoing. The vice president's 46 calls are being reviewed by the Justice Department to determine if Attorney General Janet Reno should seek appointment of an independent counsel.

The Senate panel's plans to call the former deputy White House chief of staff back for more closed questioning signals that Ickes will not be called as a witness at public hearings until early next month.

In fact, no final decision has been made on whether to call Ickes to public hearings, aides to Sen. Fred Thompson (R-Tenn), chairman of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, said last week.

Based on the defiant tone of Ickes' answers in the first deposition, Ickes would not necessarily help Republicans build their case that the White House sold access to the president in return for large donations to Clinton's re-election effort. Ickes insisted he didn't get into the details of how the Democratic Party raised money. "My focus... was the bottom line, as they like to say in the finance business."

Ickes insisted he knew of no plans to charge donors for the privilege of attending White House social events with Clinton or to sleep in the Lincoln Bedroom.

"As far as I know, there was no direct connection between an amount of money that you gave and being invited to the White House," Ickes said in his deposition.

"Had I known of it, I would have not only disapproved of it I would have told them to stop doing it," he said.

Even though his files contained DNC projections for amounts of money to be raised at White House coffee klatches, Ickes said: "I did not pay that much attention... to the dollar amounts put by each event."

"That was something professional fund-raisers estimated," Ickes said.

Ickes said he was more concerned about whether "enough money was coming in, hard and soft, to finance the upcoming cash flow" and "did the fund-raisers need additional events?"

Ickes said Clinton made only a few fund-raising calls. Clinton himself has left open the possibility he called donors but has no specific recollection of telephoning any.

Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz) told CNN's "Late Edition" that he was disturbed that "Ickes knew that the president made phone calls from the White House."

"The president has denied remembering that he made these calls and apparently it was an ongoing operation," said McCain, a co-sponsor of legislation to reform campaign fund raising. Ickes said he learned Clinton had followed through on his infrequent requests to make calls "when I was fortunate enough to find out that he had, in fact, made a phone call."

"I would ask the president if he would make calls. He didn't volunteer to make calls," Ickes said. To make sure Clinton made the calls, Ickes said, "I would bug him in a very low-keyed way as to whether he had made or was intending to make the phone calls." Ickes couldn't recall any specific discussions about the legality of the calls, but said he was confident he was they would be by "one of the many, many, many lawyers that inhabit the White House Counsel's Office."

Ickes says he wasn't privy to any discussions among Gore's advisers about whether it was legal for the vice president to make fund-raising calls from the White House.

"I did not deal in that regard with the vice president," Ickes said. "He had his own counsel and his own political staff." The former deputy White House chief of staff was first questioned before Senate investigators learned that the DNC had placed $120,000 in unregulated "soft money" donations raised by Gore's telephone calls in an account for "hard-money" contributions. "Soft money" contributions are for party-building activities and are not limited; "hard money" is strictly regulated by campaign-finance laws.

Last week, Senate Republicans produced three 1996 memos by Ickes as evidence that Gore knew that some of the money he was raising in the phone calls would be covered by the statute that bars him from soliciting donations on government property.

But Democrats and the White House argued the memos, even if Gore read them, were not proof the vice president knew that his calls to donors would produce "hard-money" contributions.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

OVER ONE MILLION OF THE BEST MINDS IN AMERICA HAVE ALREADY CHOSEN THE BEST RETIREMENT SYSTEM.

TIAA-CREF.

When it comes to planning a comfortable future, over 1.8 million of America's best and brightest count on TIAA-CREF. With $190 billion in assets, we're the world's largest retirement company, the nation's leader in customer satisfaction, and the overwhelming choice of people in education, research and related fields*

The reason? For nearly 80 years, TIAA-CREF has introduced intelligent solutions to America's long-term planning needs. We pioneered portable benefits. We invented the variable annuity and helped popularize the very concept of stock investing for retirement planning.

Today, TIAA-CREF's expertise offers an impressive range of ways to help you create a comfortable and secure tomorrow. From the guarantees of TIAA's top-rated Traditional Annuity to the additional growth opportunities of our variable investment accounts, you'll find the flexibility and diversity you need to help you meet your long-term goals. And they're all backed by some of the most knowledgeable investment managers in the industry.

To learn more about the world's premier retirement organization, speak to one of our expert consultants at 1 800 842-2776 (8 a.m.-11 p.m. ET). Or better still, speak to one of your colleagues. Find out why, when it comes to planning for tomorrow, great minds think alike.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it."

*Based on a survey conducted in 1996 by an independent organization in which 96% of respondents expressed overall satisfaction with TIAA-CREF. TIAA is one of only a handful of companies that currently hold the highest marks from the nation's leading independent rating agencies for stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability, and overall financial strength: A++ (Superior), A.M. Best Co.; AAA, Duff & Phelps; Aaa, Moody's Investors Service; AAA, Standard and Poor's. TIAA's guarantees are backed by its claims-paying ability. These ratings of TIAA as an insurance company do not apply to CREF. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services, Inc. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509, for a prospectus. Read the prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

© 1997 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund, 730 Third Avenue, New York, NY

Blood donations sought on campus

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Free cookies!

Melissa Swift, a freshman environmental science major, donates blood at the Blood Drive in the Campus Center.

By Kimberly Scammell
Collegian Correspondent

During the past week, the American Red Cross Blood Services of the New England Region made their first of 42 visits to the University of Massachusetts.

The established goal for the Red Cross is to get 75–105 donors a day; a goal which meets the promised quota to hospitals for that day.

"A third of the blood supply is donated through colleges and high schools," said Donna Clarke, an account executive from the Red Cross. "We are happy that school is back in progress."

During its visits to the University, the Red Cross holds two blood drives a day. It usually receives 1,300 units of blood per day. The blood is sent all over the Northeast Region to hospitals in need of certain blood types.

"There's an ongoing need for blood everywhere," said Barbara Ashe, one of the charge nurses for the Red Cross. "We appreciate the wonderful amount of donations we receive here."

The Red Cross is very dependent on the University's donors. Many of the donors give blood frequently, but there are a lot of new donors each visit too. One donor's blood may help two or three needy patients.

A recruiting table, located in the Campus Center for each Red Cross visit, has informative pamphlets and volunteers who can answer any questions concerning donations. Marla Stotsky, an acting recruitment representative, is just one of the many recruiters.

David Boudreau, a graduate student, was one of the many who were recruited in the Campus Center. "My fiance works in a hospital, so I know the need for blood is high."

"I give blood twice a year at least," said sophomore Molly Saunders, while waiting to give blood. "I hope to be able to help someone who needs it." Saunders found out about the blood drive by various posters throughout campus.

The American Red Cross receives much help from volunteers. Vivian Eastmen, who has been a volunteer for 17 years, is one of the steady volunteers in this area. Eastmen works for the chapter located in Northampton led by Ruth Gallagher, the head of volunteers.

"It is difficult to get volunteers because the young have work of their own and the retired either cannot work or have limited time with family and other engagements," said Eastman, who usually volunteers twice a week.

If someone cannot give blood or wishes not too, they can help by volunteering at the refreshment area or registration desk.

For those who do wish to donate, one can donate every 56 days, if desired. Only 5 percent of the general population donates blood, although most are eligible.

Visit the recruiting table in the Campus Center or for more information on the Red Cross's visitations call 1–800–462– 2229. To find out about donor eligibility call 1–800–462– 9400 and ask for the nurse of the day.

■ activist

continued from page 1

broadly educated population which values diversity not only amongst the University population of students, faculty and staff, but as well in choice of academic subject matter being offered, with a premium put on freedom of inquiry and alternative methodologies.

"Indeed, the fact that Money magazine — a bellwether of certain corporate trends — also ranks UMass as one of the best buys in education reflects this new corporate strategy of educating students for the developing global marketplace. That places UMass on the cutting edge, arguably, of U.S. national and foreign policy."

Student Government Association President Lia Wong also commented on the Mother Jones poll.

"We were never in this poll before," Wong said. "But it's great we came in at No. 3.

"It would be even better if we were No. 1 next year," Wong continued. "As long as students will be allowed to express what they feel and to exercise their fundamental rights and freedom of expression, we will be heading in the right direction."

Concerning the No. 3 ranking, in the Sept. 12 issue of the Collegian, Chancellor David. K. Scott said, "I am not against activism but... we are against the disruption of the University as a result of activism."

The fourth through 10th positions went to the University of Minnesota at Morris, Stanford University, the State University of New York at Binghamton, the New School for Social Research in New York City, the University of Illinois, Urbana–Champaign campus, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Howard University, respectively.

Honorable mentions went to the University of California at Berkeley, the University of the District of Columbia, and Boston University.

■ vote

continued from page 1

elect municipal officials from their own ethnic groups. Such a result would reverse losses suffered during the 1992-1995 civil war.

The elections were one more step in a strategy by Western nations to force Bosnians of all ethnic backgrounds to coexist. Organizers have said they won't certify the elections as free and fair unless local councils abide by the voters' wishes by the end of the year. Sanctions could be imposed to isolate communities that insist on continued separatism.

That prospect clearly preoccupied Serb officials over the weekend as they watched buses full of Muslims pull up to vote and absentee ballots pour in from abroad.

Observers said it would be difficult for Serbs and Muslims to work together on town councils.

"It will be very, very hard," said Dragan Coric, a Serb judge who heads the Rogatica electoral commission.

Many refugees, fearing ethnic confrontations if they tried to return to their hometowns to vote, cast absentee ballots. Some 400,000 people voted outside Bosnia.

About 35,000 voters were expected to cross the line separating the Serb and Muslim-Croat halves of Bosnia.

Ethnic Serb refugees showed up en masse in the Croat-controlled western town of Drvar. About 500 spent Saturday night in tents and around campfires outside the town so that they could vote Sunday. "We don't need anything — neither food nor drink — only to vote," said Nada Ceko, a Serb refugee from Drvar, now living in northeastern Serb-controlled Bijeljina.

Serb refugees had been delayed by "attempts by Croat staff to process voters as slowly as possible," said Foley, the OSCE spokesman. Other OSCE officials said the sheer number of Serb voters and the process of verifying documents caused unintentional delays.

In the Muslim-dominated central Bosnian town of Travnik, local officials feared that not all 2,700 people from 89 townships would be able to vote at the one polling station to which they were assigned before it closed at 7 p.m.

The OSCE ordered a repeat vote yesterday for one voting station in the Serb-controlled northern city of Brcko after discovering that election staff had distributed ballots on Saturday to people registered to vote elsewhere.

Serbs said thousands of their voters had been disenfranchised by strict election rules.

Alexa Buha, a top Bosnian Serb official, said yesterday that he was "bitter that so many of our citizens, especially thousands in Brcko, have been denied their right to vote."

The voting deadline will be extended in Drvar and Brcko until all voters cast their ballots, said OSCE spokeswoman Melissa Fleming.

Croats in some central Bosnian towns were boycotting the election, which appeared certain to cut into the dominance of the main Croat party, and some polling stations didn't open at all Saturday in the Croat-controlled, central Bosnian town of Zepce. "This foolish attempt to block the process," Foley said, would hurt the Croats, since Muslims' votes would still be counted, "and some people may not be represented" in Zepce.

On Sunday, Foley said that all polling stations were open in Zepce, but local media in Sarajevo reported no Bosnian Croats voted.

SYRACUSE STUDY ABROAD

ZIMBABWE • ENGLAND • ITALY
HONG KONG • SPAIN • FRANCE

- Wide-ranging courses
- Internships & service-learning
- Business programs in 3 countries
- Organized study-travel
- Grants, scholarships, loans
- Placement in foreign universities

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY 119 Euclid Avenue Syracuse, NY 13244
800-235-3472 suabroad@syr.edu http://suweb.syr.edu/dipa

Now on the Web!
www.umass.edu/rso/colegian.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Why race matters

Focus on Race

Daniel Bodah

"Don't believe that these social problems ended with the Civil Rights Movement, or that Affirmative Action has succeeded in overcoming centuries of hatred against human beings with dark brown skin."

The issue of race is one of our most difficult and serious problems — on campus, in the surrounding towns, and in the larger world.

Race is a very complex concept. The more closely one thinks about it, the more difficult it becomes to define.

So while a blonde, blue-eyed, six-foot tall American of German descent like myself might be called "white" with little uncertainty, race is often less straightforward.

In the first place, race as a genetic category is of small significance. Anthropologists, who study the human being as an animal, long ago realized that the differences between members of the same race are often far greater than the differences between members of distinct races. Genetically speaking, race is minor.

However, these small differences often have an outward effect that is highly visible — skin color and shapes of parts of the face.

Race becomes a big issue because these minor physical differences are given a lot of importance in society. We exaggerate minor differences of physique into categories that we think represent some sort of purity. This purity doesn't exist, though, at least not physically.

We are all the products of racial mixing. In part this is because, throughout history, wars, invasions and migrations have led to separate groups intermarrying.

In part it is because the categories by which we define race shift and change over time. Remember that the Irish were in former times thought of as a separate race, not as whites.

None of this is meant to say that race doesn't exist and isn't a serious issue. It is important, however, to keep in mind as a backdrop to the ways we think about race today.

These malleable, changing ideas that are based on minor physical differences between people have incredibly potent social effects.

Don't believe that these social problems ended with the Civil Rights Movement, or that Affirmative Action has succeeded in overcoming centuries of hatred against human beings with dark brown skin.

Flimsy concepts of racial purity and superiority are still alive and kicking today.

The evidence is all around. When I used to work installing TV antennas and satellite dishes, it was upsetting the number of our clients who would drop tons of racist comments into their conversation.

Explore any major city in the United States and see what a huge percentage of the poor and homeless are people of color.

Read the Graduate Voice newspaper and see how many departments at this University have no or next to no African American students in them. Pay attention to the University administration's responses to the concerns of students of color — you will certainly pick up from that how little importance our own community gives to altering legacies of inequality.

Watch television for a while if you want to be treated to a buffet of stereotypes and racist assumptions. If you aren't white, it shouldn't be a problem to pick up on these. If you are white, try watching the news and imagining that all references to African Americans are changed to references about European Americans.

Racial equality has not been achieved in this country. There are still millions of racist whites that dominate the power structures and the terms of democracy in the world at large, in Amherst and environs, and here at the University.

Daniel Bodah is a Collegian columnist.

It's all in the dough

"Instead of sending high school juniors expensive brochures and course books, just send them menus."

Jay Bachman

Several days this summer, while lying on the warm beaches of my island home, I wondered what it was exactly that drove me to attend the University of Massachusetts. I'm from the very southern tip of New Jersey. An area where three inches of snow closes school for a week, and the only place you find ice is in your beer cooler.

So what convinced me to move 300 miles north and trade beaches for mountains? Why did I give up warm showers (if you live in J.A., take that literally) for cold blizzards? Why am I wearing pants instead of swimming trunks in September? The answer for all these questions can be summed up in seven beautiful letters.

D.P. Dough.

That wonderful mix of dough, meat, cheese and grease that makes my mouth water long after the D.C. has closed for the night. The taste which is as good at 3 a.m. as it is at 3 p.m. That aroma which sucks up my work-study money and gives it to the delivery boys. Yes, D.P. Dough is as much a part of UMass as the famed basketball team; and unlike the latter, the calzones are always good.

I was so influenced by this marvel of culinary technology, that I think the University should use D.P. Dough in its campaign to attract new students. Instead of sending high school juniors expensive brochures and course books, just send them menus. The menus are free! Just walk around Southwest on any Friday afternoon and pick them up in front of dorm rooms. The money that is saved could be put towards lowering tuition and parking fees (I hope someone over in Whitmore is taking notes on this.)

Imagine you were in high school again, and the night of the big game (like it matters what sport, you thought everything was big in high school) you got another boring college pamphlet to add to the pile. You wouldn't even take a second look at it. Now, replace that boring pamphlet with a greasy steak and cheese calzone, and maybe a few coupons. You would call the school and beg for an application. This is a can't miss plan. It could even be incorporated with current UMass recruiting techniques. For instance, every campus tour could end with a certificate for a free "Buffalo Zone." Or that long, pointless walk around the five living areas during orientation could be adjusted so that there was a D.P. Dough break in the middle. There are a million ways these succulent masterpieces could be used to attract new and interesting students.

What if your syllabus for Bio 119 suggested your professor's top five menu selections? Or maybe we could have a D.P. Dough in every dorm. I've got one, how about offering courses so that grad students could obtain their Ph.D.?: O.K., I'm getting a little silly now, but all of my suggestions are still open for anyone in the administration who would like to use them. In the meantime, I propose that all of us who are already here enjoy the surrounding delicacies while we have the opportunity.

Jay Bachman is a UMass student.

"The Mobile Chernobyl"

Last week I was driving to campus behind a garbage truck when a friend of mine pointed out the putrid liquid dripping out the back and staining the pavement. You've seen the marks on the road before, a rusty-brown color dappling the tar.

Nasty.

Now, imagine what would happen if that truck was carrying a big cask of nuclear waste filled with the radiological equivalent of 200 Hiroshima bombs. Yup, rolling right down your street like your average garbage truck.

"Our nation wants to take a lethal substance from one of the most controversial forms of technology and dump it on land inhabited by a people who have existed for centuries living with nature, not overdeveloping or polluting it."

Chris Stamm

Unfortunately, this scene could become a reality if the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1997 passes. The act, formally known as House of Representatives Bill No. 1270, plans to consolidate the near-full nuclear waste units of the nation's 111 reactors to one site.

Bad idea.

For starters, there are approximately 35,000 metric tons of nuclear waste, sitting in current waste sites, which remains lethal for 250,000 years. Do you want this rolling down your street? If this bill is passed, containers of waste will pass down our railways and highways through the towns and cities of nearly 50 million people. Surely, this will only happen in God forsaken, sparsely populated states in the midwest and west, right?

Not so. This "Mobile Chernobyl" could be coming to an interstate near you in the near future.

If the Nuclear Waste Policy Act passes this fall, nearly 10 percent of the nation's high level nuclear waste will travel through the state of Massachusetts. In total, 403 canister shipments will be transported from Vermont Yankee through Greenfield down Interstate 91 to Springfield and beyond. In addition, 357 rail shipments will travel through the Deerfield River Valley along the old B&M tracks. All in all, over 9,000 casks of spent fuel rods will be shipped across 45 states.

Does this sound safe?

In the last 10 years or so, utility companies have pushed to get the liability of removing nuclear waste from their own reactor sights off their backs and into the hands and pocketbooks of the federal government. In April, the Senate passed the act and the corresponding bill could reach the House floor as early as next month.

Even more ridiculous than the fact that the government would consider trucking tons of hazardous waste nationwide is the site they chose to be the permanent dumping ground — Yucca Mountain on Western Shoshone Nation land in Nevada. Currently, the government is testing the feasibility of dumping waste on the Shoshone Reservation, land given to the Shoshone people under the 1863 Treaty of Ruby Valley. This treaty granted the Shoshone Nation full sovereignty of that land, called Newe Sogobia by its people.

This is disturbingly ironic. Our nation wants to take a lethal substance from one of the most controversial forms of technology and dump it on land inhabited by a people who have existed for centuries living with nature, not overdeveloping or polluting it. Even more absurd is our nation, which bills itself as a "melting pot" of cultures, wants to dump this waste on a mountain which is considered a place of worship by both the Shoshone and Paiute people — excuse me, natives.

According to the State of Nevada's Nuclear Waste Project Office, feasibility studies at Yucca Mountain have already cost taxpayers $1.7 billion and raised considerable doubt. For example, the area has had 621 earthquakes in the last 20 years.

Sounds like a great place to store one of the most lethal substances known to man.

How did your senator vote last April? Members of the Commonwealth rest assured, our senators voted against the Nuclear Waste Disposal Act. But what of those of the other 43 states?

Since before The Trail of Tears to the present, our nation has marginalized Native Americans. As I think about this issue, I wonder how much I know about other Native American issues. What is a reservation? Are they really sovereign nations within the United States? Who is Leonard Pelletier, the man behind the bumper stickers (and bars)? Why won't the government work with our country's native people?

Maybe they'll give the Shoshone a hand if they want to build a casino or something.

Chris Stamm is a Collegian columnist.

Focus on Race

This week, the Collegian Editorial page will publish a week-long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

Editorials can be submitted by email (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545-1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement. They should be typed, and between 500- 700 words in length.

For more information, call Daniel Bodah at 545-1491.

Letters to the editor

Defends Textbook Annex

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on Emily Callahan's letter about security. Had she investigated a bit more, she would be surprised to find that about 20,000 or more students have passed through the Annex doors, and out of the 10 bags she claims have been stolen, seven of those bags are sitting in the lost & found pile, along with jackets, notebooks, etc. May I also add that there are no names in the bags! There are signs that state LOCK YOUR VALUABLES IN THE LOCKERS! You even get your quarter back! Emily also suggests that an employee should be stationed at the door to watch bags. (HAH!) If she noticed, when you walk in the entrance there are two employees stationed there! How does she propose they keep track of 1,000s of bags a day, when most of them look the same?

One of the employees suggested a bag check and token hand out. I could see the line now!

As a new employee, I think the Annex has done a great job providing a safe and friendly atmosphere, considering the RUDE comments we all get about the heat, long lines, locking up purses, etc. Last but not least, Emily, about your comment on the hugely overpriced texibooks. I suggest you write to the publishers!

Kerry Naumowicz
South Deerfield

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass, Amherst, MA 01003, or by email to: Letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor-in-Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryant Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Presties Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Hertry Operations Manager
Maureen Majcrowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Indigo Girls Honor the Earth

21-stop tour to raise awareness and funds for environment

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

In an industry which is kept afloat by hype and dollar signs, Epic recording artists The Indigo Girls (Amy Ray and Emily Saliers) continue to buck the trend with the soothing salve of song and a healthy dose of political activism.

Friday night the Georgian duo brought its second annual "Honor the Earth" tour to the William D. Mullins Center. Unlike conventional tours, the Indigo Girls' latest 21-stop jaunt teams them with a collaboration of three sponsoring Native American groups (Seventh Generation Fund, Indigenous Women's Network, and Indigenous Environmental Network) to educate concert-goers on environmental and Native American issues.

"We've been doing environmental work since we started in the '80s," Ray said. "We formed the Honor the Earth campaign along with the Seventh Generation Fund, the Indigenous Women's Network, and the Indigenous Environmental Network. We took representatives of those groups and different Indian communities to form a board.

"Our campaign board has the pulse of different Indian communities and they bring to the table the issues that are timely and what policies and legislations are going on. They make a decision as to where we should be focusing our energies for each tour," Ray said.

"After we make all the money, we regroup and they go through all the proposals that have come in [requesting support] and then grant money to different groups."

This year, the tour focuses on raising awareness of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1997. If passed, the bill will allow the approximately 35,000 metric tons of nuclear waste which sits at 111 reactor sights nation-wide to be transported across the country to a waste sight at Yucca Mountain on the Western Shoshone Reservation in Nevada.

Amherst was added to the tour because, according to the bill, 403 shipments of nuclear waste from the Vermont Yankee nuclear reactor will roll through neighboring Greenfield on trucks travelling on Interstate 91, making western Massachusetts the radioactive waste corridor of New England with nearly 10 percent of the country's high-level nuclear waste travelling through Greenfield and the Deerfield River Valley.

"The utilities want to get liability for the waste off their hands and off their sites, and they are targeting isolated Native lands as the solution," Honor the Earth spokeswoman Wynona LaDuke said in a heartfelt pre-concert speech. "If Congress passes this legislation, it will not only jeopardize Native peoples and lands, it will essentially put 50 million citizens in danger as the waste is being trucked from east coast reactor sites to Yucca Mountain."

Rather than put a song or photo on a glossy brochure, the Indigo Girls are taking an active role in combating the bill.

"A lot of people just don't know about this stuff," Saliers said. "It's amazing how the utilities can pressure this legislation and the American public is completely unaware. Most of the towns we are playing in are very near or right by one of those intersections [where nuclear waste will be traveling]."

The group was previously in up-state New York educating people of the so called "Mobile Chernobyl Bill" in addition to issues concerning local Native American groups.

Members of the Honor the Earth Campaign manned information booths and distributed political action cards addressed to President Clinton asking him to put an end to this potentially lethal legislation. Midway through the show, Ray and Saliers took to the Mullins Center aisles to personally collect the cards and rally support for the cause.

"I guess we want to leave people with a feeling of empowerment — let them know that they can make a difference. We want them to read the information and to listen to it," Ray said.

"I think when you are in college, you get bombarded with a lot of information, but it is also the time you have to really take action. Be involved and know that you are empowered and can make a difference. We realize a lot of students [at UMass] don't live here, but they can be pretty sure that their communities will be impacted by this too."

In addition to raising awareness, the Indigo Girls take the energy of their activism and fuse it into their music. The duo has spoken up for the environment since their national debut in the '80s and have continued to combine politics with song.

"It is certainly a different vibe playing a show for the Honor the Earth Tour than say, playing at Great Woods — that is exciting and fun and everything, but this is working with people that inspire us.

"From going down to places like Chiapas, Mexico and visiting different Indian reservations and starting to get educated about what the government has done to Indians and what multi-national corporations are doing to each of us, you become so emotionally involved in a situation that it becomes part of your consciousness," Saliers said. "We write songs about things that mean a lot to us. You can't help but have that become the subject matter."

The Indigo Girls do not merely stand on a soap box spouting off their political agenda. Instead, they travel the country speaking to the people who are directly affected by these laws teaching and learning along the way.

"They don't just teach you about Indian activism, they teach you about activism. It makes you stronger within the Gay Rights movement. It makes you stronger if you are protesting guns, it makes you stronger if you are pro-choice. Everything that you are doing you learn about grass-roots organizing from these people," Ray said.

"It's about how can you go into your community and organize the people in your community and politicize them so it is from the bottom up and not the top down? And that is what we want to do and that is what seeps into our music more than just the specific issues."

LAUREN KOSKY/ COLLEGIAN

Emily Saliers and Amy Ray of The Indigo Girls speak out against a plan to dump nuclear waste on a Shoshonereservation in Nevada.

The Girls put on great show; focus placed on environment

LAUREN KOSKY/ COLLEGIAN

Emily Saliers captivated the audience, especially during the solo number "Leeds."

By Justin Beland
Collegian Staff

THE INDIGO GIRLS
Mullins Center
Sept. 12

Amy Ray and Emily Saliers, better known to most as The Indigo Girls, charged into the Mullins Center as part of their "Honor the Earth" tour Friday, and attacked it with a musical ferocity unseen in quite some time.

The Indigo Girls have been recognized for years as one of the better live bands, and anyone who saw the show on Friday could attest to how well that label is deserved. Every song the band performed, from the loud, driving songs ("Shame on You," the band's opening number) to the slower more intricate numbers ("Least Complicated") came off flawlessly timed, impeccably performed and beautifully sung.

The Indigo Girls were backed by only a bassist, Sara Lee, and a drummer, Jerry Marotta, but on songs like "Get Out the Map" from their new album Shaming of the Sun, it sounded as if they had an arsenal of instruments behind them. This may be due to the harmonizing of the Girls' voices (one fan called them the best harmonizers of this generation), which play off each other and create a sound that is unique and beautiful.

The band mixed older songs like "Virginia Woolf" and "Chickenman" with material from the new album, such as the crowd igniting "Get Out the Map," and the haunting "Scooter Boys," showing how broad a range of talent they have, and how they have matured as song writers over their brief career. At one point Lee, Marotta and Ray left the stage, leaving Saliers alone at a keyboard to sing the ballad, "Leeds," about the burning of 16 southern churches. The crowd sat in awed silence as Saliers sang, and she was met with thunderous applause upon the song's conclusion. Ray then came onstage again, guitar in hand, and the two Girls performed a gorgeous rendition of Bob Marley's "Redemption Song."

In true Indigo Girls fashion, the band got the crowd involved, urging them to sing and clap, and constantly thanking the crowd for their participation in the evening's events. They also expressed their love of the Valley ("Man, this town is so cool!") and told of how they spent the previous day in Northampton.

Another unexpected treat came with the appearance of local favorite singer/songwriter Dar Williams — fresh off three sold-out shows at the Iron Horse — who performed her song "February" at the Girls' request. She then joined the band (as did several audience members) for the final song, the classic "Closer to Fine," which had the crowd singing at the top of its lungs.

It was also a show with a cause, meant to raise awareness of government plans to store nuclear waste on Native American lands and in Arizona's Yucca Mountain (thus the "Honor the Earth" title of the tour). Guest speaker Wynona LaDuke urged audience members to write Congress to try to stop these plans. She was proceeded by a slide-show detailing how grisly these plans really are — the proposed Yucca Mountain storage site is a heavy earthquake zone. To get to the site, the waste would have to travel through 43 states and within the front yards of 50 million people. Each canister of waste would hold the radiological equivalent of 200 Hiroshima bombs.

The Department of Energy predicts 15 truck accidents a year during the transport; and worst of all, the material will stay radioactive for 6,000 generations, or 250,000 years. Postcards addressed to President Clinton were handed out as the crowd sat down, urging the president to stop the slaughter of buffalo in Yellowstone National Park, and to stop HR 1270, the legislation that would legalize the transport of nuclear waste to Yucca Mountain. The Indigo Girls themselves came out during an intermission to collect the cards.

Opening act Wild Band of Indians played a short but solid set, combining Native American rhythms and chanting with long, blistering rock jams. They also protested against the proposed storage places of the nuclear waste.

It was an evening of terrific music for a terrific cause, and the Indigo Girls proved that they are not just a multi- talented band, but great humanitarians as well. (To find out more about "Honor the Earth," a website has been set up at www.honorearth.com, or call 1-800-EARTH-07.)

LAUREN KOSKY/ COLLEGIAN

Amy Ray brought fire and energy to the Mullins Center stage on Friday.

Mental Health Groups Fall '97

MONDAY

To Your Health
This groups is for students who realize that they cannot consistently control their use of alcohol and /or other drugs and who wish to establish a healthier lifestyle. This group will remain open to new members throughout most of the semester.
Monday, 3:45 - 5 p.m.

MORE Groups Beginning IN LATE FALL

TUESDAY

Succeeding at UMASS as a Latino/a Student
This group will be a safe place for Latino/a students to explore their experiences as UMASS students. Participants will help each other learn techniques for succeeding in a multicultural world. This group will be conducted (mainly) in Spanish.
Tuesday, 2:30 - 3:45pm.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

Making Connections
This 8 week group will help members gain awareness of their relationship styles. It will also be possible to learn skills for forming more positive and lasting relationships.
Tuesday, 5:30 - 7 p.m.

The Art & Science of Relaxation
In this workshop members will learn several valuable strategies for recognizing and managing stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5pm.

WEDNESDAY

When Families Aren't Perfect
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMASS students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5pm.

Groups are FREE OF CHARGE for UMASS student Health Plan members, Kaiser UHS Plan Members, and Five College students. Most groups begin in early Fall and require a pre-group interview. For further information please call the Mental Health Division of University Health Services at 545-2337, Mon - Fri, 8:00am - 5pm.

THURSDAY

Women's Therapy Group
This group is open to OLDER women students and UHS Kaiser Plan Members who would like to address various women's concerns including: self esteem, relationship issues, academic isolation and uncertainty about long-range career goals.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30am.

Stress & the New UMASS Student
A 4 week group, to help new and incoming transfer students learn strategies for coping with college stress. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself. Thursday, 2:30 - 4:00p.m.

Coed Therapy Group for Older Students
This group provides an opportunity to work on those problems which interfere with personal and academic life, such as lack of intimacy, loneliness, lowered self esteem and concerns of professional identity. Thursday, 3:30 - 5pm.

(Which) Home For The Holidays
A 5 week group to help students from separated/divorced families cope with their particular holiday stressors. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

WRITE for ARTS

Layout & Design by Josh Sylvester

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Paid Officials Needed For Flag Football, Field Hockey, Softball, Soccer, & Ice Hockey

Clinics: Football, Soccer - Sept. 17, 18, 19
Co-ed Softball, Field Hockey - Sept. 22, 23
Ice Hockey - Sept. 24
Call for times and locations

Still Time To Enter: Flag Football, Soccer, Field Hockey, & Softball
More Info: 215 Boyden, 5-2693
On The Web: http://www.umass.edu/umim/

Indulgent cruises thing of the past; customers want more

By Paul Tolme
Associated Press

NEWPORT, R.I. — Cruise ships are visiting new ports in an effort to attract passengers who want to do more than float in the sun, drink rum punch and feast.

"We've been to the Caribbean a million times," Roslyn Jordan of Hopewell, N.J., said as she boarded the Regal Empress after a day in Newport, famous for its lavish, turn-of-the-century mansions.

A cruise up the New England coast, including Newport, was an affordable alternative, she said.

The number of ports of call worldwide has increased, along with the number of passengers. There were 4.9 million travelers on board last year compared with 1.4 million in 1980, according to Cruise Lines International Association.

Newport, a popular stop, illustrates the industry's growth. Last year, 14 ships visited 45 times. This year, 17 ships and 60 visits are expected.

Cruises used to average a week to 10 days, but the norm now is a long weekend, and many are within reach of blue-collar workers, families and singles. Regal Cruises of St. Petersburg, Fla., which owns the 1,100-passenger Regal Empress, has four-day "value cruises" up the New England coast starting at $400.

"A long time ago you had retirees or people with a lot of time on their hands who wanted to take a cruise," according to Bob Sharak, marketing director for the trade association representing 26 cruise lines. "It was a very sedentary experience."

Now, he says, destinations are more diverse to appeal to younger clients. There are cruises to visit orphanages in Russia or ports in the Far East or that hook up with African safaris. Closer to home, you can gaze at fall foliage along New England waterways or laze up the Mississippi on a paddle wheeler.

One of the industry's largest growth areas is New England and Eastern Canada. Officials say 66,000 passengers will visit the area this year, up from 37,000 a year ago.

"The cruise experience has become more sophisticated," Eileen Daily, spokeswoman for Cunard Lines, says. "Many Americans, especially on the West Coast, have never visited New England. It's a little piece of history they want to see."

If you've seen New England's autumn, check out the colors in Asia. Oceanic Cruises' fall tour along the Inland Sea visits the southern Chinese cities of Shantou, Fuzhou and Shanghai.

Miramed International of Seattle offers an 11-day humanitarian cruise on the Volga River, from Moscow to St. Petersburg. A requisite for passengers is an extra suitcase of supplies for orphanages along the way.

"It's more of an upscale kind of trip, for people who want to do something good on their vacation and not just chill out," Brook Smith, spokeswoman for Miramed, said.

The Delta Queen Steamboat Co. runs three paddle-wheel boats up the Mississippi River. Similar cruises are available on the Ohio and Illinois rivers, and Delta Queen says its cruises on the Kanawha, from Cincinnati to Charleston, W. Va., are the first in 50 years on the waterway.

Sports fans can take a cruise with football, hockey, basketball, baseball, volleyball or fitness as a theme. Others yearning to learn can cruise with writers and photographers from National Georgraphic to learn about culture, geography, oceanography, photography and nature.

Windstar Cruises of Seattle offers cruises on sailing ships. "We focus on the ports," spokeswoman Mary McDowell said. "There aren't a lot of onboard activities, no shuffleboard and bingo."

Windstar is considering cruises to the Middle East next year.

"It's somewhere people don't want to travel by land," she said.

Jazz fans can board the QE2, perhaps the best-known luxury liner, for three days of music by Chuck Mangione and the Preservation Hall band from New Orleans.

Evan Smith of the Newport County Convention and Visitors Bureau says shipboard travel is a return to tradition.

"It was a fashionable mode of travel at one time," he said. "With the emergence of the auto and the emergence of trains and the highway system, cruising took a back seat and fell out of fashion."

The Arts & Living desk will hold a meeting for new and returning writers on Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in writing about film, television, books, arts, music and more, should attend the meeting. Any questions? Call Seema Gangatirkar, Arts & Living Editor, at 545-1491.

Biker looks, runway chic influence leather styles

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

Leather takes another leap beyond tough chic. For weekend wear, work wear and evening wear, there are new finishes, colors and shapes far more interesting than the basic biker jacket and far more practical than Givenchy's black leather strapless dress or Gucci's black leather bikini.

For a shot of shine and color, there are glazed leather jackets in shades of pumpkin and espresso from Vakko or a distressed leather jacket in burgundy from Identify. Ellen Tracy has a skirted suit in claret, and if money is no object there's Hermes' black lambskin riding jacket. Tres chic and tres cher at $7,600.

"The most important news in leather is that it's crossing over from outerwear to sportswear," according to Lili Kasdan, managing director for the Leather Apparel Association, a trade group in New York.

"Just two years ago the trend was leather field jackets and barn coats. Now the look has totally changed."

So has the places leather can go. "Take a semi-fitted leather jacket that's lightly lined, or a jacket that looks like a shirt," Kasdan says. "You can wear it as a jacket in the office with a skirt or pants, and then as weekend outerwear with jeans, leggings or bootleg pants."

Joel Waller, chairman and CEO of Wilson's The Leather Experts, a national chain of 450 stores based in Minneapolis, says there clearly is a return of leather sportswear.

"It started at the designer end."

Wilson's selection of skirts, jackets and five-pocket jeans in black or chocolate lambskin ranges from $79 to $200.

Jeanette Nostra, president of G-III Apparel Group Limited in New York, which makes leather and suede for labels such as Kenneth Cole and Siena, says color is key for this season's fashions.

"While there's an enormous amount of black leather on the runways," she says, "the new message is also the rich aubergines and plums that are showing up as skirts, pants, vests, and slim, close to-the-body dresses.

So while a customer may have already purchased a black skirt, she can extend her wardrobe with a burgundy leather blazer.

"Another trend, she says, "is the emergence of supple suedes, which take colors from the earth tones and jewel tones particularly well."

look for us on your nearest computer . . .

WWW.umass.edu/rso/collegian

THINGS TO DO WITH SCISSORS.

coupon

Do the right thing. Cut out these MasterCard Exclusives™ coupons and present them along with your MasterCard® card and you'll cut costs on all kinds of good stuff. Which feels a lot better than a sharp stick in the eye.

MasterCard Exclusives FOR COLLEGE

LERNER NEW YORK
SAVE 20% ON ANY PURCHASE OF $75 OR MORE
Use your MasterCard® card and save 20% on your purchase of $75 or more. For the store nearest you, call 1-800-853-2920
RTG #6209

GOLF USA
RECEIVE A CAP OR A PUTTER
WITH PURCHASE OF $40 OR MORE
Use your MasterCard® card to make a purchase of $40 or more at participating Golf USA locations and receive your choice of a FREE cap from any of the top names in golf, such as Nike® Titleist® Taylor Made® and more, or get a FREE putter (up to a $20 value).

BED BATH & BEYOND
SAVE $6 ON A PURCHASE OF $20 OR MORE
Get just the look you need when you shop at Bed Bath & Beyond.® Use your MasterCard® card and save $6 on your purchase of $20 or more. For locations nearest you, call 1-800-GO-BEYOND®

Payless ShoeSource
$2 OFF
Choose from hundreds of fashionable styles and save $2 on any regular price item $9.99 or more when you use your MasterCard® card. For the store nearest you, please call 1-800-444-SHOE (7463)

Pizza Hut
ONE FREE PERSONAL PAN PIZZA®
WITH A PURCHASE OF ANY MEDIUM OR LARGE PIZZA
Use your MasterCard® card for dine in, carry out or delivery at Pizza Hut® and receive a FREE Personal Pan Pizza when you purchase any medium or large pizza at regular menu price.

20% OFF ANY CD, CASSETTE OR VIDEO
Save on the hottest music and movies every day — you'll find thousands of CDs, movies and cassettes. Use your MasterCard® card at participating locations to save 20% on any CD or cassette regularly priced at $7.99 or more, or on any video regularly priced at $9.99 or more.

SPORTS
SAVE $10 ON NCAA FOOTBALL 98 VIDEO GAME
Buy the game and save. Use your MasterCard® card and save $10 on EA SPORTS NCAA Football 98 video computer game (regular price $49.99).
Call Electronic Arts Direct at 1-800-245-4525 to order your copy today.

Cheap tickets.
Great advice.
Nice people.
London $369
Paris $566
Costa Rica $460
San Francisco $355
Council Travel
44 Main St.
Amherst
(413) 256-1261

OFFICE WORKERS
Located on the PVTA bus route, National Evaluation Systems, Inc., is looking for part-time assistance with a variety of office tasks. Preferred candidates will work quickly and accurately and be able to work at least 3 consecutive hours between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on days that we have work. On-call hours will be available beginning mid-September and continuing throughout the academic year. Pay is $7.00/hr. Send your resumé or call to have an application mailed to you.
Personnel
NATIONAL EVALUATION SYSTEMS, INC.
30 Gatehouse Road Amherst, MA 01002
E.O.E. AES.

Black Affairs

Monday, September 15, 1997

Who's World is This?

By Millicent Jackson
Collegian Staff

IF THIS WORLD WERE MINE
E. Lynn Harris
Doubleday

In his latest blockbuster novel, E. Lynn Harris introduces Yolanda, Riley, Dwight and Leland, whose friendship and deep bonds of intimacy are threatened by conflicts of career and romance.

Friends since their days at Hampton Institute, the four group members are as different as the seasons, yet they all share one common bond: a love of one another.

Yolanda is a media consultant who keeps it going with a no-nonsense attitude and independence. Over the years she has established a formula for men and love that she refers to as Yolanda's Plan for a Man. Her primary rule of thumb is to let men know that they are not the be-all and end-all. When they don't return her calls, she doesn't return their calls. When they don't give her honesty or can't find the truth, she's out of there.

Riley is a former marketing executive whose marriage has reduced her to a "kept women with kids". Riley's personal dream is to be a singer and a poet, who will make even Gwendolyn Brooks and Whitney Houston green with envy, have her children studying something impressive and challenging at Hampton and her husband to be more in love with her than he is at the moment.

Dwight is a computer engineer who is angry at the world. He doesn't like white folks and doesn't much care for black folks who try to be like white folks, as he puts it. His goal in five years is to not have to deal with white folks on any level. He wants to have his own business or work for a black-owned company.

Lastly, there's Leland, a gay psychiatrist whose clients make him question why God ever invented sex. His goal is to open a practice that will help little boys and girls speak up when the unspeakable arises.

Together, these four friends keep a collective journal they call, "If This World Were Mine" and share their personal diaries each month at a gathering filled with humor, gossip and affirmation.

Hence, after five years, the once strong bonds of friendship are weakening, and the group must handle challenges of work, lost love and a stranger in their midst. As the group members confront their true feelings toward each other, resentments and long-held secrets surface and the stability of the group begins to disintegrate. Is their past friendship strong enough to survive the future?

"If This World Were Mine" is a fast and entertaining read with lively dialogue and action that zips along. Towards the middle of the novel, the development of Riley and Dwight's characters are not nearly as strong as Harris has made his characters in his previous novels. However, the strength of Yolanda and Leland's characters make up for anything that the other characters' development lacked.

Towards the ending, there is a bit of predictability concerning Riley and Leland, yet there are pleasant revelations for Dwight and Yolanda.

In this novel there is rarely a dull moment. Harris is known for keeping his readers turning pages, whether it be Riley's secret admirer, Yolanda's love thing with an old friend or Leland's moral dilemma, ultimately, there is something for everyone here and fans of Harris will not be disappointed.

Millicent Jackson is a Collegian columnist.

Blaxploitated Again

Hollywood is all set to revisit a genre that supposedly died two decades ago — the blaxploitation film.

It shouldn't.

Producers Doug McHenry and George Jackson plan on remaking "The Mack," a classic of the genre. The two told the Los Angeles Times that the conditions that created the main character, Goldie, exist today.

"We're going after a bigger, more epic film... not a remake," McHenry said. "We see it as a 'Pulp Fiction' and 'Scarface.'"

"The Mack" was a 1973 film starring Max Julien as Goldie, a recently released convict who enters the highly lucrative pimping business on the mean streets of Oakland, Calif. as a way to survive. The movie tried to be a morality play involving two brothers — one a pimp, the other a black nationalist. The two are at constant odds, until white policemen, upset that Goldie won't pay them protection money, kill their mother. This act brings the brothers together in an attempt to clean up the streets.

Technically, the movie was a disaster, with a script so thin that it was barely visible. And it had the look of a not-so- well made student project, not surprising since it was shot in five weeks.

So why was this poor quality film about a pimp so successful within the black community?

"At a time when most black men realized a fundamental freedom and power over their lives was denied at every turn, the pimp, for better or worse, was equated with self assertion," writes Donald Bogle, author of "Blacks in American Films and Television" (Garland, 1988).

"A lot of films today are about victims, but most of the films then were about empowerment," Pam Grier, an actress in some of those films, told Enertainment Weekly in 1996.

Grier, for instance, starred in "Coofy," a film in which beauty, brains and gun-play were the main ingredients. Grier, in her biggest hit and most memorable role, played a nurse out to get the people who turned her sister into a junkie.

It was a strange kind of empowerment that these movies presented. Still, they were doing something that mainstream films hadn't done till then — giving audiences a sense that black people were beautiful.

These films still resonate with the hip-hop generation.

New Line Home Video released "The Mack" on video in 1991. In 1997, the movie sold 67,000 copies.

McHenry and Jackson said they have been besieged by requests from actors willing to do the film, as it seems rapper Snoop Doggy Dog has the inside track on playing Goldie.

It may come as a surprise that white producers in Hollywood are very uneasy about the trend.

"The Mack' is a throwback to an image blacks have been trying to fight off screen," one producer told the Los Angeles Times. "Every black actor of note talks about turning down maid and slave roles, so why make a movie about the industrial–strength pimp of all time?"

That's a tough question.

The past year, three of the better mainstream films dealing with African–American issues — "Rosewood," "Get on the Bus," and "Love Jones" — were critical successes but commercial failures. Contrast this with "Booty Call" and "Baps," both of which did very well at the box office, and the success of action pictures with African Americans.

Apparently, movies about the black condition not relating to its criminal elements are not wanted by the community, and they will be made more and more infrequently as Hollywood sees that these films are not going to make money. The era of blaxploitation films may be upon us again.

Frederick L. McKissack Jr. is a former editor of the Progressive Media Project in Madison, Wis. He lives in St. Louis.

One Time For the Mind

I'm tired of looking. I'm tired of wanting. I'm tired of hoping. I'm tired of wishing. I'm tired of understanding. I'm tired of recovering. I'm tired of seeking. I'm tired of sleeping. I'm tired of relating. I'm tired of stressing. I'm tired of releasing. I'm tired of relying. I'm tired of re- evaluating. I'm tired of swallowing reality. I'm tired of waiting. I'm tired.

Have any of you ever felt tired in any of these ways that I have mentioned? Life's battles do not discriminate. Whether it's life, death or a newborn child, these pivotal experiences affect us all.

Erick Erikson, a psychoanalyst, said there is a certain period in the fifth stage of life where individuals try to understand their identity, as well as try to find their purpose for living.

When a new life is brought into this world, it brings a sense of joy to the family that the young infant brought. Life, at that point, appears to be so precious. Death on the other hand causes people to re-examine their lives.

Princess Diana's death touched the lives of many. Whether Buddhist, Christian, Jewish, Atheist, black or white, everyone came together in one accord. Millions gathered to pay respect to a woman who tried to find solace despite her life which was so publicly analyzed.

At this moment religion didn't matter. Money didn't matter. Status didn't matter, and politics had no place.

For once, the only thing that mattered at this moment was reality. The fact that just as we were brought into the world, we are taken out of it, was an instant reminder to everyone how precious our lives really are.

When I watched the funeral on television and observed all of the people that Princess Diana affected, I was amazed at how hundreds of organizations contributed thousands of dollars to charities in response to her death.

Martin Luther King, Jr. and John F. Kennedy, who were both assassinated in the '60s, affected millions of people when their deaths occurred. Like the recent death of Princess Diana, the people cried deep-rooted tears which expressed pain of loss and pain of trying to understand their place in the world.

How do we move on? How do we live?

In retrospect, what do we say to ourselves about evaluating our lives? Many say that college should be some of the happiest years of our lives.

At such a young age though, we as college students don't understand what effect our lives will have on us in the future; these years are a determinant of how we will thrive as adults. These pivotal years will determine what will either make us or break us.

Abraham Maslow, a humanistic theorist, says that, "What a man can be, he must be."

He also goes onto explain, in his theory, that if a person is great in a particular field of interest, but chooses to expand on something else, that his self–actualization, or fullest potential will be thwarted.

For the time at hand, can you say that you are studying or spending your time on areas of interest that you know you can succeed in? Are you doing what your parents, or friends suggest that you should be doing?

Maslow says that if a man is a good musician, but becomes an accountant, his self–actualization will once again be thwarted.

After we graduate, some of us may be in the lime light, executives of big corporations, entertainers or politicians. For many, this is what we hope for after paying tuition for our education.

Though status and money will be rewards of our success, the true test will be whether or not we have lived to our fullest potential.

As you can recall from above, the feeling of being tired in our search of life can at times discourage us. But once we start thriving in the areas that make us shine the most, we won't have to question our lives, wondering if we have succeeded.

Princess Diana lived in the shadows of what she really wanted to be. She was a humanitarian, she loved people.

In our lives, the roles which we take in our careers should not make us, but add to what we are naturally best capable of. Now is the time to wake up. The only excuse that we have for not living to the best of our capabilities is the respect of our own fear.

Many are afraid to dream these days of an unstable economy, people are putting their ultimate goals on the back burner. When this happens, part of your soul is on the back burner as well. There is still room to dream. If you believe it, then you can achieve it.

Allana E. Todman is a Collegian columnist.

Allana E. Todman

Headspin

Welcome back to a newly renovated and relocated Headspin. This week, we are going to examine some news from the hip-hop absurd.

C. Delores Tucker, the first lady of musical censorship, and her husband have filed a multi-million dollar lawsuit against the estate of Tupac Shakur. It seems that Mrs. Tucker and her husband are claiming that they have been unable to be conjugally together since Tupac referred to her as a prostitute on one of his albums. They claim that the money would be restitution for the marital stress that Tupac caused.

I don't know whether to laugh or start crying.

Regardless of how one feels about Tupac, Delores Tucker or the violent, explicit lyrics used in some hip-hop recordings, this lawsuit is bound to raise the eyebrows. How convenient of the Tuckers to wait until Tupac's death and his estate being divided to file their suit, rather than filing it while he was still alive and seemingly in financial trouble.

I hate to be cynical, but it seems like someone (that's you Delores) smelled the money and wanted a piece of the action. The man made the money himself, with something other than help from Delores Tucker, and she (and the other vultures that are hovering around Tupac's estate like his estranged father) doesn't deserve one red cent.

Gabe Rosenberg

Let us give one more silent prayer that Tupac faked his death so he can come back and tell all of these money– grubbers where they can put their frivolous lawsuits for safe keeping.

On a happier beat, DJ Lazy K, one time winner of the Zulu Nation DJing competition and USA Finalist in the DMC competition, has released a new mix tape. It features the usual highlights of a Lazy K tape, phat introduction, numerous freestyles, underground tracks, and rhythmic scratches that do not disappoint. This particular tape is heavy with KRS–ONE and Wu–Tang songs and samples. It is available from Tape Kingz in Brooklyn and I highly recommend it as a break from the commercialized hip–hop that we had to struggle through all summer long on the radio.

Gabe Rosenberg is a UMass student.

The Honors College Debate

With the Honors College coming to the University of Massachusetts, we need to look at what effects this might have on blacks.

Throughout the history of this nation, black people have invested a lot of time in the battle for access and integration. The administration says that the Honors College will in no way deny access to this University, and that it will bring the most talented students of color to UMass. Fine, but which students of color will you be bringing?

The chancellor of UMass has said repeatedly that the University's first–year students are supposed to mirror the state high school graduation rate. If this is true, then how come from 1996 (when the chancellor unveiled the Strategic Action Plan) to the present, why have Asian students, who in 1995 were 3.7 percent of the Massachusetts high school graduates, were 6.9 percent of the University's incoming class? In fact, the black and Latino populations, which are the two biggest minority groups in Massachusetts, had incoming class percentages that fell under the percentage of those students which graduated from Massachusetts high schools. So, once again, what kind of students will the Honors College be bringing?

Salwa Shamapande

Black people throughout the history of this nation have always been dedicated fighters for themselves and the rest of the world in American society. The Civil Rights Movement did much for blacks in America, but it also did much for everyone else. Without it, many Latinos, Asians, Jews and female students would not be here.

Also, as blacks were fighting for respect in the workplace, we diverted attention from the right–winged who were arguing that women were taking spaces from more capable and qualified men. Even before the Civil Rights Movement, blacks fought for other people's human rights. At the time of World War II, it was black congressmen who were among the very few contesting and forcefully opposing the racist confinement of Japanese–Americans and even after the war, Jewish scholars were able to go to black colleges and universities. These were safe havens during the McCarthy period.

Finally, if it was not for black congressmen, again battling for student financial assistance bills in Congress, many working–class white students could not afford to come to this institution of higher education. So, please, do not forget us when the Honors program upgrade comes.

The Honors College could be a good decision if students and administration work collectively and refurbish the ideas of what it actually will be. The administration, faculty, and staff have spent the entire summer, by themselves, thinking of what the Honors College should be. It is now imperative that we tell them what we want it to become, because we highly doubt that the people who worked on this proposal can effectively come up with the students' ideas of where this institution should be heading.

Salwa Shamapande is vice–president of the Black Student Union.

The Death of Integration?

At the recent annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), a controversy erupted over the issue of school desegregation. But from the perspective of black history, this debate was really about the viability of the goal of "integration."

For decades, the NAACP has preached the political gospel of racial integration, especially in public school education. A cardinal principle of the Association's creed was the belief that full equality and educational opportunity for black Americans was not possible unless all institutional barriers prohibiting full multicultural exchange were eliminated. This was, after all, the logic behind the 1954 Brown v. Board of Education decision which had outlawed school segregation.

In 1995, the NAACP dismissed the president of the Yonkers, New York branch for publicly questioning the "continued use of busing to achieve integration." The next year, the Association's board deposed Robert H. Robinson as the president of the Bergen County, New Jersey branch of the NAACP for publicly stating that "getting quality schools in black neighborhoods was more important than seeking integration."

These dismissals sparked considerable dissension from the organization's rank–and–file, which was still recovering from the embarrassment surrounding the 1994 ouster of former Association national secretary Benjamin Chavis.

To the surprise of many, NAACP chairwoman Myrlie Evers–Williams announced at the convention that the organization needed to reevaluate its long–held positions.

"The NAACP has always believed in integration of the public schools. But a debate has been raging as to whether that's still the position we should take," Evers–Williams said.

As a part of the Association's public soul–searching process, black Wisconsin state legislator Polly Williams, a strong advocate for the use of government vouchers to enable low income children to attend private and parochial schools, was invited to present her views at the convention.

Die–hard racial assimilationists such as Michael Meyers, head of the New York Civil Rights Coalition, lamented this change in direction. "If the NAACP is saying that separate is no longer unequal, that functionally reverses Brown v. Board of Education," Meyers declared.

Dr. Manning Marable

The current debate within the NAACP is about more than means to pursue quality education for black children. What is really on the table is whether "integration" itself remains a viable strategic goal in the post–civil rights era.

Civil rights veteran activist Julian Bond, a member of the NAACP national board, personally opposed the diminishing support for school integration, but understood the frustrations of many black Americans about the strategy's viability. Bond observed, "There is a feeling that this has come to naught, that so much energy has been put into it without commensurate results and that white America has been so resistant that you're butting your head against that wall."

The hope that many black Americans held only a generation ago — that white America would at long last dismantle the barriers of white privilege and defacto segregation — has largely been replaced by attitudes of resignation and pragmatism.

If white liberals no longer support school integration, at least let us improve the curriculum and instructional standards in all–black inner city schools, the pragmatists might say.

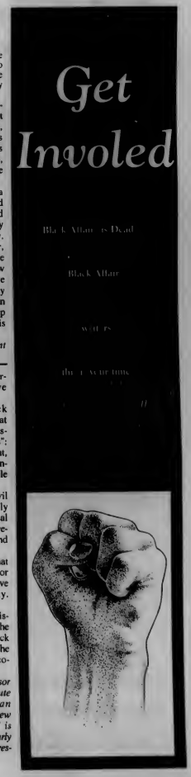
True, racial discrimination is a moral and political evil. But judging from both Clinton's recent oration on race relations, and Gingrich's hasty and intolerant reaction, African Americans should expect little or nothing from the white political establishment in this current period. This is the logic that has created such deep unrest and pessimism within the NAACP's ranks.

One measurement of white racism can be found in the vastly different responses by blacks and whites give to describe the racial contours of daily life. The Gallup Organization recently released the results of a nationwide poll charting African–American and white American perceptions of how blacks are treated.

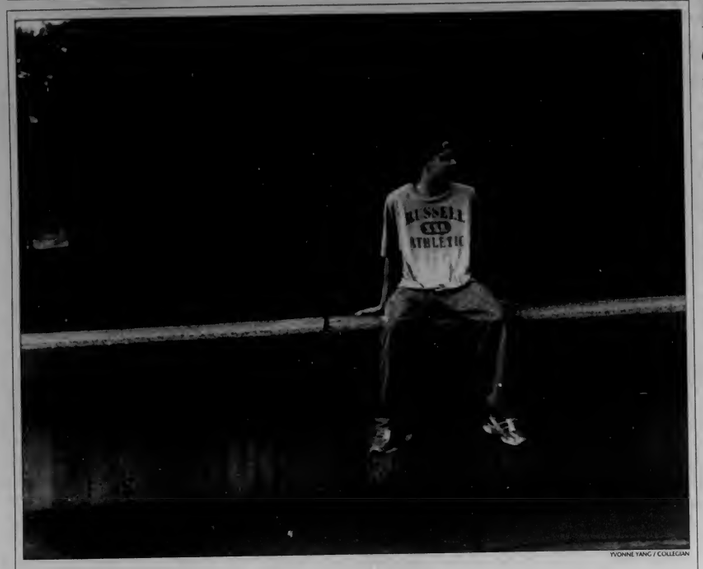
The poll indicated that the vast majority of whites are absolutely convinced that blacks receive at least the same treatment, and perhaps even preferential treatment, in comparison to whites. For example, only 14 percent of all whites responded that blacks were "treated less fairly than whites on the job," compared to 45 percent of the African Americans interviewed who replied affirmatively.

Nineteen percent of whites and 46 percent of blacks interviewed agreed that blacks were "treated less fairly at stores downtown or in malls."

The racial gap extended to virtually every aspect of social intercourse. One quarter of all blacks, and 12 percent of white respondents, concurred that blacks' were treated less fairly on public transportation; in neighborhood shops, 46 percent of the blacks compared to 18 percent of whites; in restaurants, blacks' 42 percent to whites' 16 percent; and by the police, blacks' 60 percent to only 30 percent affirmative responses by whites.



Significant numbers of black Americans interviewed also asserted that they had personally "experienced discrimination within the past thirty days"; while shopping, 30 percent; dining out, 21 percent; at work, 21 percent; encountering the police, 15 percent; and while on public transportation, 6 percent.



While the NAACP and other civil rights organizations are apparently searching for new solutions to racial problems, the Christian Right is prepared to enter the black ideological and policy leadership vacuum.

We urgently need to remember that "integration" was always a "strategy" or "tool" which could be used to achieve our goals of freedom and equality. Integration, by itself, is not a "goal".

Our objectives should be: the dismantling of racism, root and branch; the democratic empowerment of the black community and its institutions; and the realization of greater social and economic justice.

Dr. Manning Marable is a professor of history and Director of the Institute for Research in African–American Studies at Columbia University, New York City. "Along the Color Line" is distributed free of charge and regularly appears in over 325 black and progressive publications worldwide.

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Hangin' ten

Bryan Kramer, a freshman SOM major, waits on the bridge near Southwest for friends to drive in on Saturday afternoon.

FBI used Whitey Bulger as informant years ago in Pryor kidnapping case

BOSTON (AP) — The FBI sought the help of informant James J. "Whitey" Bulger in a desperate attempt to find 9-year-old kidnapping victim Sarah Pryor more than 10 years ago, according to law enforcement sources.

The sources told The Boston Globe that Bulger visited a 22-year-old man suspected of the crime at the Lawrence House of Correction, where he was serving time for breaking and entering. An associate of Bulger's grilled the suspect while Bulger stood nearby.

Bulger and Stephen "The Rifleman" Flemmi were secretly working as FBI informants at the time agents came to him for help with the suspect, who was from Bulger's South Boston neighborhood. The man was suspected of abducting Pryor on Oct. 9, 1985 from her Wayland neighborhood.

After the meetings, Bulger reported back to the FBI that the suspect insisted he had no role in Pryor's kidnapping and Bulger concluded he was probably telling the truth.

The person was later cleared as a suspect when his accuser flunked a lie detector test and admitted she lied to reap a reward. Sources told the Globe the terrified suspect said later that he thought that Bulger's associates were going to kill him.

The cooperation between Bulger and the FBI further stirs the debate going on in federal court over the FBI's relationship with Bulger, who has been a fugitive since his January 1995 racketeering indictment.

Bulger's co-defendants, Flemmi, Francis "Cadillac Frank" Salemme and three alleged underlings, have accused the government of misconduct for failing to reveal information about its informants.

Boston-to-New York ride raises money for AIDS

NEW YORK (AP) — The last exhausted AIDS rider finished the 275-mile journey from Boston to New York shortly after 3 p.m. yesterday, cycling down Eighth Avenue just an hour before the closing ceremony was scheduled to begin.

All 3,200 riders lined up eight blocks away from an outdoor stage at 23rd and Eighth so they could finish the final leg of the journey en masse. They had ridden that morning from Seaside Park in Bridgeport, Conn., where they spent the second night of their journey.

The cyclists took off for the third annual Ride for AIDS on Friday from Boston. The three-day, three-state ride was expected to raise more than $7.5 million in pledges for AIDS programs in Boston and New York.

"It was absolutely spectacular," said Dr. Stephen Boswell, executive director of the Fenway Community Health Center in Boston, one of the pledge recipients. "In the last two years when I've ridden down, it's poured down rain. This is the one year I don't do the ride and it was just beautiful."

Boswell drove down with a volunteer, one of the hundreds who assisted with the event.

He said a few riders had fallen off their bicycles during the ride and suffered abrasions, but there were no serious injuries. Each of the riders had to raise a minimum of $1,500. Some bicycles sported red flags to show their owners have AIDS or have tested positively for HIV, the virus that causes the disease. The ride has been criticized as a costly way to raise money. The organizer, Pallotta TeamWorks, paid Philadelphia AIDS groups $110,000 last year to settle claims after only 20 percent of the proceeds from a ride there went to the charities.

Costs include the medical teams, food and tents that follow the riders along the route.

Last year, about half of the money raised for the Boston-to-New York ride went to charities. This year, Boswell estimates 60 percent of the money will go to charities.

He said the ride's importance goes beyond the actual money raised.

"It's become a tremendously important event in terms of bringing new resources to the fight against HIV," he said. "It does a wonderful job raising awareness. You ride through small towns, you see kids behind fences in schoolyards cheering them on. The riders stopped and talked to the kids. In terms of raising consciousness, it has a tremendous positive effect."

■ Mars

continued from page 1

polar rotation on Mars was calculated, which in turn computes the depth within the planet, consequently determining the makeup of the planet's core.

Now, scientists have their first direct measurements that Mars has a metallic core and the radius must be 1,300 kilometers if not larger, Golombek said.

"So we're starting to get the detailed science that the public is starting to get excited about," Golombek said.

The rover also took pictures of the various rocks on Mars, which was Golombek's mission goal as a geologist.

The rocks imply that liquid water may have been stable early in Mars approximately 3–4 million years ago, which invites an important question, Golombek said.

"If liquid water was stable early in the history of Mars, it begs you to ask, are we alone in the universe," Golombek said. "Does life form anywhere liquid water is stable or was it some sort of divine intervention?"

Golombek's main concern of the mission was whether or not the rover was going to land safely in an area so densely populated with rocks.

To his satisfaction, Golombek said, the rover landed almost perfectly and did bounce 15–20 times, but was protected by its surrounding airbags and has been functioning fine ever since.

Overall, Golombek said he is pleased with the mission and the data acquired over the past two months.

"The Viking data just didn't quite have the capabilities to allow us the data we've received from the Pathfinder," Golombek said.

Golombek's future plans include more discoveries from the fully-functioning rover and determining the length of a day on Mars.

He is also encouraging people to enjoy the Pathfinder mission by continuing to log onto its web site.

IT'S GOOD FOR YOU...

of all the things you get free at this University, this one is actually good for you come see what we're all about at our Open House!

September 23rd from 7pm to 9pm in the Campus Center room 168c

Nutrition Facts

Serv. Size 5 coll. area (127sqMI)
Servings Per Container 17,000

Amount Per Serving

Calories 1/4 (less than a Tic Tac)
	% Daily Value*
Daily Local/World News 3+p	100%
Ed/Op 1+p	100%
Arts 2+p	100%
Sports 2+p	100%
Diversity 1+p	100%
Total Comics 1p	100%
Horoscopes 0.2p
Crosswords 0.2p
Classifieds 1p	100%
Protein (% may vary with paper size)	5%
Vitamin A	8%
Humor	73%
Facts	110%
Zinc	64%

Not a significant source of vitamin C and riboflavin

* Percent Daily Values are based on a one paper per day diet.

INGREDIENTS: UMASS STUDENTS, ELBOW GREASE, PAPRIKA, DETERMINATION, PARTIALLY HYDROGENATED SOY BEAN OIL, CREATIVITY, DEDICATION, INTELLIGENCE, MAD SKILLZ, FOOD COLOR #5, NATURAL AND ARTIFICIAL FLAVORS.

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's Largest College Daily • Founded — 1890 • Daily Since 1967

Field hockey returns from Virginia with split

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

James Madison	2
Umass	1

The Massachusetts field hockey team's trip to Virginia resulted in a weekend split, as the Minutewomen defeated Davis & Elkins, 2–1, on Friday before falling to perennial power James Madison, 2–1, in overtime yesterday.

The Dukes earned a penalty corner just over 6:30 into overtime. Katrina Hunter scored on a direct hit on the corner on assists from Dianne Cegielski and Colleen Hurley to give James Madison the victory.

The Dukes took a 1–0 lead into intermission, after Liz Sanders scored with under 10 minutes to play in the half.

Erica Johnston, who was named the Atlantic 10's Player of the Week for the first week in September scored her conference leading seventh goal. She also leads the Atlantic 10 with 15 points. Kate Putnam picked up an assist on the play.

Sophomore goalkeeper Zowie Tucker register nine saves in the loss, while the Minutewomen fell to 3–2. Tara Perilla made nine saves for the Dukes. James Madison, which improved to 5–1, earned nine penalty corners in the game, while UMass collected only one.

Johnston wasn't the only member of the Minutewomen honored last week. Freshman forward Kristen Schmidt earned the conference's Rookie of the Week honors. Against Davis & Elkins, the Greenfield native proved that she earned the award.

Her first collegiate goal came 4:38 into the contest on a penalty corner, and gave the Minutewomen a 1–0 lead. The goal featured a Greenfield connection as Putnam, who was Schmidt's teammate at Greenfield High in 1994, was credited with an assist on the goal.

Sophomore Chris Millbauer, who was also credited with an assist on Schmidt's goal, scored the Minutewomen's second goal, midway through the second half. Sally Russo registered her first collegiate assist on the goal.

The Lady Senators cut the Minutewomen lead to 2–1, on a goal by April Buger on a penalty corner, but Davis & Elkins couldn't produce an equalizer as the Minutewomen picked up their third victory of the season, while the Lady Senators slipped to 2–4. Tucker, who split time with sophomore Michelle Crooks, was forced to only make one save in the victory.

Umass	2
Davis & Elkins	1

Massachusetts will return to action. Wednesday when it battles Yale University in New Haven. The Elis are reeling after losing to Maine on Saturday. Game time is at 3:30 p.m.

KENNETH W.P. SCOTT / COLLEGIAN

Vicky Browne and the Minutewomen started off the weekend with a 2–1 win over Davis & Elkins.

Nomar hits 29th homer; Sox beat Milwaukee 2–1

MILWAUKEE — Rookie Nomar Garciaparra and the Boston Red Sox refuse to let Milwaukee back in the pennant race.

Garciaparra hit his 29th home run and Butch Henry pitched seven solid innings yesterday as the Red Sox swept the three-game series with a 2-1 victory over the fading Brewers.

While the Red Sox are playing inspired baseball with a look to next season and hopes of reaching .500, the Brewers are tumbling out of contention in the AL Central.

Milwaukee has lost five straight and seven of eight to drop 7 1/2 games behind first-place Cleveland.

"We are letting a week destroy a season that we held together pretty good all year, and that's surprising," Brewers manager Phil Garner said. "Our offense is just dead right now. We had an opportunity to do something here and we haven't done it."

Boston, meanwhile, won its fourth straight and sixth in seven games to climb within two games of .500 (73-75) for the first time since Aug. 27.

"They (Boston) kicked us out of the race," Dave Nilsson said after the Brewers dropped three games below .500 for the first time since Aug. 22. "To lose that many games to them is especially disheartening."

Henry (7-2) allowed six hits in seven innings to beat Milwaukee for the second time in seven days. He defeated the Brewers on Sept. 7 — his first win as a starter since Aug. 10, 1995, while with Montreal.

Henry turned over a 2-1 lead in the eighth that John Wasdin, Steve Avery and Tom Gordon preserved.

"Butch pitched a strong game," Red Sox manager Jimy Williams said. "Those relievers came in and did their job, too."

Gordon, who saved each game of the series, got three outs in the ninth for his eighth save in eight chances.

"You can't do any better than what he's done," Williams said. Jose Mercedes (6-10) held Boston scoreless until the fifth when his two-base fielding error set the stage for Garciaparra's third homer of the series.

Darren Bragg dropped a bunt between first and the mound. Mercedes charged the ball and then had to back up, forcing him to make a backhanded flip to Jack Voigt at first that skipped away. Garciaparra followed with a 405-foot shot to left-center.

Henry cruised through the first five innings, holding the Brewers to three singles, before Milwaukee got a run on third baseman John Valentin's throwing error in the sixth.

Singles by Gerald Williams and Kelly Stinnett put runners at first and second. With the runners going, Fernando Vina bunted toward Valentin who fielded the ball cleanly, turned and threw to an empty second base allowing Williams to score.

The Boston manager was reluctant to criticize Garciaparra's failure to cover the base.

■ watch

continued from page 12

Purdue's first win over the Irish (1-1) in 12 years was an ugly homecoming for Notre Dame offensive coordinator Jim Colletto, who resigned last year after six seasons as Purdue's coach.

And it could have been even uglier, but Shane Ryan missed two field goal attempts in the fourth quarter.

When the game ended, Purdue's fans flooded out of the stands and onto the field. The players were mobbed as fans climbed the goal posts. Notre Dame slowly trudged off the field, and Davie, who replaced Lou Holtz, slowly walked off the field with his head bowed.

Despite bumbling through the entire game, the Irish managed to stay within 14-10 until the fourth quarter. Then it got really ugly. Irish quarterback Ron Powlus took off running on a second-and-5 from his own 39. As he ran for the sidelines and the first down, Rosevelt Colvin knocked the ball loose.

Before Powlus even realized what had happened, Beasley scooped it up and took off for Purdue's end zone. No one came close to getting a hand on him, and Brush was laughing at the Irish as he crossed the goal line for a touchdown.

The Purdue fans erupted, and toilet paper went sailing through the air. It was Purdue's first fumble return for a touchdown since 1994. Notre Dame players pulled off their helmets and walked to the sidelines with their heads bowed.

And Dicken wasn't done. His 40-yard pass to Vinny Sutherland set up Kendall Matthews 2-yard touchdown run.

It's the third-straight season Notre Dame's national championship hopes have ended in September. And it's the second time in three years the Irish have been stunned by lowly Big Ten teams.

Northwestern was still considered to be the Big Ten's doormat when it beat the Irish 17-15 in their 1995 home opener.

Purdue didn't look ready to shed its doormat status in the game's first series, going three-and-out. But the Irish looked just as confused as they did in last week's escape from Georgia Tech. The thin, inexperienced Purdue defense ran all over Notre Dame's massive offensive line all day. When the Irish wanted to run, the Boilermakers were there. Powlus was pressured all day. When he did get off passes, the receivers were quickly shoved out of bounds or knocked off their feet.

Men's tennis to open 1997 season

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

Coming off its best regular season in school history, everything should be in place for the Massachusetts men's tennis team.

But volley in a tougher schedule, the loss of a key player and the pressure of living up to last year, and there are definite question marks.

However, this team seems like they are ready to serve up another winner.

Coach Judy Dixon, whose preparation was instrumental in last year's smashing 16–2 season, is raring to go.

"We cannot wait to get this year started, especially so I can get a better feel for where we are," Dixon said.

The team took their opponents by surprise with their outstanding record and a first place finish in last April's New England Championships.

However, Dixon expected to have all her regular players back, but junior Rufino Navarro will miss at least the fall season.

Another roadblock is the imminent improvement of competition. After such a successful season, it appears that Dixon wants to test higher waters.

The fall schedule is very similar to last fall's lineup, but in the spring the team will face a much tougher schedule.

For the first time, the team will be traveling to play some of their Atlantic 10 rivals. In past years, the Minutemen have played mainly the softer half of the division.

Massachusetts Men's Tennis

The key matchup appears to be at George Washington. GW knocked out the Minutemen in the Atlantic 10 tournament this year.

"It would be really nice to get some revenge against GW in the spring after last year. Hopefully we can build a nice rivalry," Dixon said. "However, we must play well in the fall before we can think about the spring matchups".

With the exception of Navarro, the lineup reads pretty similar to last spring.

Todd Cheney is in the No. 1 singles slot, followed by either Rob Manchester or Pat Slyman. Parsa Samii, Alex Aller, and Kevin Curley round out the singles players.

Dixon will look to Cheney and Manchester to anchor the doubles action.

The '97-98 campaign will kick off today at Wesleyan. While it is a Division II opponent, it will not be taken lightly.

"Wesleyan always fields a competitive team. They will give us a nice challenge to start the season. We will be prepared not to underestimate anybody," said Dixon.

The match will be a reunion of sorts. Wesleyan plays two Amherst locals in their lineup.

Caleb Peeley and Dan Lauren both played at Amherst High School, and were taught locally by Dixon before attending Wesleyan.

Every season, Dixon and the team sets goals for the upcoming year.

This year, the team is looking for a Northeast sectional ranking. In this ranking, only the top 15 teams in the section are placed.

The Massachusetts' women's team has already received this honor. According to Dixon, that gives the men's team more incentive to earn a ranking.

However, Wesleyan and the upcoming West Point Invitational are the immediate concentration points.

"In order for us to get on track, we must win the early matches," said Dixon. "A great fall season will keep this program headed in the right direction."

■ romp

continued from page 12

for 11 yards and four interceptions on the afternoon.

"He's hurting," Hodges said. "Because of the way he played, and because he hurt his head."

The inexperienced offensive line left Smith vulnerable to pounding. Still, Hodges was satisfied with their effort.

"It's going to be like that for a while," he said. "But they work real hard, and they're going to improve."

One thing the Minutemen may have trouble improving on is turnovers. After posting three turnovers two weeks ago against Richmond, UMass gave away the pigskin five times. For a team that is struggling, Hodges knows that penalties add up to losses.

"We had five turnovers," Hodges said. "That killed us."

Maine capitalized on every UMass turnover but one, resulting in 28 points.

Surprisingly, UMass controlled the majority of the first quarter action. The Minutemen moved the ball efficiently on the ground, an area Hodges was concerned about after the opening week loss. But a blocked field goal attempt on the first drive by kicker Matt Murphy proved to be an omen.

When asked if the outcome would've been different had the Minutemen converted the opening field goal attempt, Fein chuckled and said, "Yeah, they would've only had nine points."

UMass did display a much improved rushing attack. After rushing for only 44 yards against Richmond in their opening-day loss two weeks ago, the Minutemen scampered for 149 yards. Junior tailback Jim Pizano rushed for 33 yards on seven carries, and sophomore fullback Jamie Holston powered his way to 36 yards on nine carries.

The story of the game for UMass was the surprising debut of freshman Marcel Shipp. who saw plenty of action while junior tailback Matt Jordan remained on the shelf with a sore left hamstring.

Shipp busted through a small opening in the Black Bear defense for a six-yard gain on his first carry. Displaying breakaway speed, strength, agility and an excellent spin move, Shipp showed flashes of brilliance. He carried the ball 10 times for 77 yards.

Midway through the second quarter, Shipp broke a tackle, applied another spin move and outran Black Bear linebackers to the end zone. Unfortunately, this accounted for UMass' only points.

When the tragic scene was over, Massachusetts appeared to lose a lot more than just the game.

Three key Minutemen left the game with injuries. In addition to Smith's concussion, senior offensive lineman Geoff Thomas suffered bruised ribs, and junior inside line backer Khari Samuel was banged up and did not return.

"It's tough. After a game like this, they have to stay together," Hodges said. "But don't worry. We'll do that."

■ sweep

continued from page 12

half. But UMass continued their scoring extravaganza with two breakaway goals by Lecot, with the assists credited to Alicia King — the first point of her UMass career — and Green.

"They had a measure of success," Rudy said, "They were ready to engage and they did."

This weekend breaks down to two different styles which UMass can facilitate. Friday, UMass controlled the field like Magic Johnson once did with confidence and grace, and yesterday, which could be compared to more of a Larry Bird style: aggressive and gritty.

"We all have our different styles but we are making it a team style," Lecot said, "It feels good."

Demonstrating the calm, unflustered style of Frasier and Felix Unger with the zealous, urgent explosiveness of Kramer, the Minutewomen realized that they can step up to another level and like Lecot said, "make it a team style."

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS

GET THOSE FORMS IN BY

Flag Football (M/W/C)	9/15
Soccer (M/W)	9/15
Co-ed Softball	9/16
Field Hockey	9/16
Ice Hockey (M/W)	9/17
Track & Cross Country (M/W)	9/23

On the Web
http://www.umass.edu/imim/

Don't Miss The ACTION

For entry forms and info 545-2493 545-0242

LATE ENTRANTS SHOULD CHECK FOR EXTENSIONS IN BOYDEN 215

Come see all the action. Check out your sports page on the World Wide Web!
WWW.UMASS.EDU/RSO/COLEGIAN

Come in and see us!
REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS
184 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526

■ domination

continued from page 12

Machamer) and not-physical (Mina Froehlich) natures.

• And, face a list of nagging injuries that have kept the squad slightly healthy most of the time, but never completely healthy all the time, the A-10 might have assumed the danger was at an end, and this might be the year to knock UMass off its pedestal.

Well, like a mighty, ferocious beast with sharp, pointy teeth, the Minutewomen ran through the Rams, the Lady Dukes and the Bonnies this week... on the scoreboard.

The future for the A-10 does not look so bleak as I've already so-unerringly stated. Taking away the 4:46 span against Duquesne where UMass scored its four goals on five shots, and giving credit to a tough St. Bonaventure squad that made the Minutewomen work all 90 minutes, these two A-10 representatives thought they were hard enough, and gave UMass a go.

Except for URI — the Rams were awful.

Also, somebody up above must be seeing the higher level of play in the A-10 as well, with an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament being awarded to the postseason conference champion this year.

Yet, a 5–0 game against St. Bonaventure was a lot tougher than it looked, and both Rudy and assistant coach Leduc, who graduated from UMass two years ago, have noticed the sublime improvement of the team.

"Rachel had said that St. Bonaventure was a much better team than the one she played two years ago, and I think they're better, too," said Rudy, who was a big fan of the play of the Bonnies' freshman midfielder Jen Twardzik. "They had some players that we had to pay some extra attention to, so they wouldn't get started."

For sophomore forward Emma Kurowski, the difference a year makes is a difference that was seen this weekend against the Lady Dukes and the Bonnies.

"I think the two teams we played this weekend have definitely improved from last year," Kurowski said. "The coach thought that was the best St. Bonnies team we've ever played. The league is getting better."

Last Oct. 27, Duquesne gave UMass a scare at Richard F. Garber Field, pushing the Minutewomen to a tight 1–0 score. UMass outplayed the Dukes, massively outshooting them, but it took a garbage goal from then-junior defender Erica Iverson in the 70th minute for the team to take the victory.

It was a dodgy proposition at best to consider Duquesne had a shot at winning the game, but that is the recent history between the two teams.

"Duquesne is better than last year," Rudy said. "I think with last year's team, and style of play, they would have done better against this team. They were more patient, and tentative. But with this year's team, our goals are going to come from a variety of places."

And with a 16–0 scoring margin, you don't need to be Tim the Enchanter... I mean, Jim Rudy, to say that.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sigma Kappa Sorority Open Rush Tues, 9/16, 5:00pm-7:00pm, Wed, 9/17, 6:00pm-8:00pm, Thurs, 9/18, 6:00pm-8:00pm. Please call Beth for more information 256-6887

WOMEN'S ICE HOCKEY TEAM is looking for new players. No experience necessary. For info call Beth at 546-2585.

Cheap Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union. Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

AUTO FOR SALE

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

BMW 733i 1982 blue, beige leather interior, sun roof, automatic 162,000 miles. Still elegant $2500. 549-2604

Must Sell 87 Subaru Wagon good condition, great in winter, high mileage. $1000 or B/O. 582-9872.

1987 Mazda 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1500 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patti)

EMPLOYMENT

Hadley Office has 10 Part-Time Positions Available
Starting pay $6/hr
Flexible schedule
On bus line
Both evenings and weekends
No experience required
Will train
Call 584-7696

EMPLOYMENT

Hairdresser Wanted Afternoons and Saturday. Call Regency Hair Stylist 253-9526

Drivers Wanted Pays $70 to $120 per shift. No car needed. Dominos 256-8911

Recreation Positions at Amherst Leisure Services. Youth basketball supervisors/officials, facility supervisors, tennis instructors, volleyball officials, adult basketball supervisor/scorekeepers. Apply to: Human Resources, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA by 9/24. AA/EOE

Job for the Environment
Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/day. Call Terri 256-6434

Be a member of the Commuter Action Team
Looking for 6-8 friendly students who like living off campus. Job duties are fun- Meet with off campus students and townspeople, coordinate and attend Commuter events and programs, help distribute information. Please contact David or Barbara at 545-2309, or drop by Commuter Services between 10:00am-1:00pm M-F. $6/hr and/or academic credit.

Medical/Legal Assistant
Part-Time for
Springfield/Northampton personal injury law firm.
Job requires knowledge of medical records and anatomy.
Nursing background and legal studies necessary. Must be able to perform online and traditional research in medicine and law. Some work can be done on campus. Flexible hours. Could lead to full-time permanent job.
Fax resume and cover sheet to:
Attorney Alan Goodman
(413)736-4861

EMPLOYMENT

Undergraduate Business Consultant Great business and leadership opportunity on-campus. W/S and H/W/S positions available. CSB 406 Student Union. 5-2167

Drivers Wanted Car needed. Apply in person at Pinocchio's Pizza. 30 Boltwood Walk.

FOR RENT

4 Bedroom House Northampton, near stores but country location. No pets. $950+. Skibiski Realtors.

Fridge Rentels 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Saxophone for sale- Vito/Alto. Good condition $180. Call 549-1479

Waterbed $150
Futon bed/couch $100
Both full size
(413)774-5776

Robots without any human control, searching out and putting out candle. 57 minutes amateur video of Hartford contest. Send a check or money order for $24.50, included shipping and handling, to PRT Press, PRT Video #13, 47 Brattle St., Pittsfield, MA 01201

Dorm Fridges for sale $30-$50. 665-7991

Laptop Notebook Works good $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

ART DECO Bedroom Set-Waterfall- 1930's Period. $800 or best offer. Call (413)536-0772. Leave message if no answer.

FOR SALE

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

Found in Cashin Suite 607 a black backpack with "Bossy Le Boss" name on front (Jansport) Please call 6-7238 to claim.

Attention New Students- Personal items left at The New Students Program this summer may be picked up at The New Students Office, 304 Admissions Center.

INSTRUCTION

Jazz Guitar Lessons
Lear Theory Improvisation and Technique
Joe 665-0499

PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION
offers Group and Private Instruction in Music, Theater, and Dance.
PAD is located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMASS
(413)545-0519 for info.

MISCELLANEOUS

Lose weight! Boost energy using Thermochrome. Send SASE for information or $2.50 for sample packet to: Jennifer James, 59 B St., Hull, MA 02045

FOUND

BANDS! Looking for bands for Wednesday nights at The Pub. 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst. Call 549-1200 Tues thru Fri, 10-6. Ask for Aaron.

PERSONALS

Tim, You are so good looking. I see you on campus and I just melt! Meet me at the pond and I'll make all your dreams come true.

ROOM FOR RENT

1 Month Free Rent Bedroom available that includes free heat and hot water. Call 549-7105

Big room in 4 bedroom Amherst house. Walk to ATM, Bar, Perky Male/Female. Built-in bar, dishwasher. Huge kitchen and living room. 3 girls now. Only $275/month. Call 582-2944. Ask for Jeff or leave message.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 1 or 2 people to share huge room in Puffton with walk-in closet and bathroom. 549-7203

Female non-smoker roommate wanted to share apartment. $200 per month utilities included 1/10 mile from campus. Call 549-0952

Single Room $230/month utilities included in B room house. 549-8696

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for one or two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at 549-3992

SERVICES

Maximize Your PC On-site training, installation, upgrades, troubleshooting. PC Consult 253-1946

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

11 Bridge Street Sunderland, MA

Ben's

new & used vehicles repairs foreign & domestic

Tel. (413) 665-3344
Fax (413) 665-3966

Bob Connelly
Shop Manager

Experienced Seamstress Mending, tailoring, alterations, dressmaking, clothing design. Call Chrysal 253-7573

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

TRAVEL

Vacation Package 4 nights accommodation. Cancun, Mexico for 2 nights. New Orleans 2 nights Bahamas Cruise. $300 for all. Book by December 20th. 253-1751

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Classifieds Special

Need to sell last years books?

Used books $2.00 per 4 lines. Visit us in the basement or on the Concourse.

Call 545-3500 to place your ad.

Classifieds Special

Collegian Classifieds

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names and initials are allowed. The only exception is numbers for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name must be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are only allowed in personals after means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the author signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the ad billed in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students 20¢ per word/day

All others 40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

MONDAY, SEPT. 15

Greek life — The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega would like to invite all University women to attend Alpha Chi Vogue and House Tours from 6:30–7:30 p.m. for open rush, at 38 Nutting Ave., Amherst (behind the Visitor's Center). Any questions, call Danika at 549–6070.

Meeting — The UMass Women's Ice Hockey Team will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 165. No playing experience is necessary. All interested women are welcome. For more information call Beth at 546–2585.

Meeting — A Native American Studies Certificate Program Informational Session will be held 7:15–9:30 p.m. in Machmer W–25. All interested students are encouraged to attend.

Meeting — UVC–TV 19 is having it's first general meeting at 7 p.m. All students interested in any facet of video are encouraged to come, or call 545–1336. The studio is located in the Student Union to the right side of the Hatch.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 16

Meeting — Hampshire Bird Club Program is having a meeting featuring nationally acclaimed photographer/author Arthur Morris 7:30 p.m. at the Amherst Regional Middle School Auditorium, Chestnut Street, Amherst. For further information call Sally Venman at 549–1098.

Meeting — Students Helping Area Reach–out Efforts (S.H.A.R.E.), a community RSO, is having an information meeting form 6–7 p.m. in Goodell 504. Free Pizza. Look for us on the concourse on Sept. 15 and 16.

Meeting — The Animal Rights Coalition will be having its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162–175. All welcome.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17

Meeting — University Productions and Concerts first general meeting at 6 p.m., Student Union, Earthfoods room. Free CD's and pizza. Learn about concert production.

Meeting — The UMass Circle K International is holding its fist meeting of the semester at 6:30 p.m. on the couches downstairs in the Campus Center. Anyone interested in community service that wants to get involved, build leadership skills should attend. For more info call Suzanne at 259–1860.

Meeting — The Five College Peace Corps Recruiting Office will be sponsoring an informational meeting to be held at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 905–909. The meeting will cover the Peace Corps application process, requirements for becoming a volunteer, and highlights of volunteer activities around the globe. Everyone it welcome though the meeting is especially targeting graduating seniors. Call Mike Simsik, the Campus Recruiter at 545–2105 for more information or come by his office in Stockbridge Hall.

NOTICES

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle. Monday, Sept. 15 – Friday, Sept 19, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger, Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. Call 545–0342 for info.

P/Is are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an P/I, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
19 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
28 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
28 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Tonic

LIVE MUSIC
every Tuesday & Wednesday

WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
253-4040

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 15, 1997

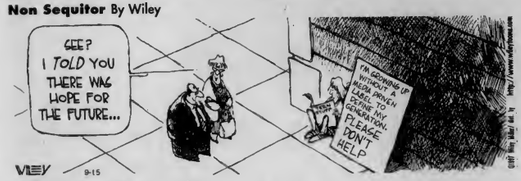
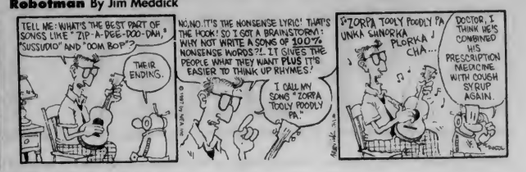
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDN	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		World of National Geographic		Affluenza (In Stereo)		Full Circle		1964 World's Fair (R)
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	InsJe Edition	Real TV	Cosby	Gregory Hines	Cybill	George & Leo	Michael Heyes "Episode One"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Cosby	Gregory Hines	Cybill	George & Leo	Michael Heyes "Episode One"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	World's Most Daring Rescues				NFL Football: Philadelphia Eagles at Dallas Cowboys. (In Stereo Live)		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WLVI		Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	7th Heaven		Buffy the Vampire Slayer		News		News	Tonight Show
WHDH		News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		The Accident, a Moment of Truth Movie" (1997) Bonnie Root.		News		Vibe
WTXX		Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	Good News	Sparks	News		LAPD
WVIT		News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Dateline (In Stereo)		"The Accident, a Moment of Truth Movie" (1997) Bonnie Root.		News		Simpsons	Babylon 5
WTIC	11	Home Imp.	Simpsons	Seinfeld	Frasier	Melrose Place (In Stereo)		Ally McBeal (In Stereo)		News		News	Tonight Show
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		"The Accident, a Moment of Truth Movie" (1997) Bonnie Root.		News		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Full Circle		Affluenza (In Stereo)		Straight Talk
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	House Calls		World's Most Daring Rescues		NFL Football: Philadelphia Eagles at Dallas Cowboys. (In Stereo Live)				Mad Abo. You	Cheers
WSBK	38	Real TV	Mad Abo. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	Good News	Sparks	News		M*A*S*H
WTBS	49	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss	Major League	Baseball: San Francisco (Garri) at Atlanta Braves. (Live)						Allen*	Soprano's Home
A&E	43	Quincy "A Dead Man's Truth"		Law & Order	"Extended Family"	Biography "Edward VIII: The Traitor King"				World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
CNN	23	World View		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live				Daily Show	Stein's Money
COM	32	Margaret Cho	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money			Jaws in the Mediterranean (R)		Treasures of the Earth		Wild Discovery	"Prince" (In)
DISC	42	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Luftwaffe (R)		Wild Discovery "Prince" (R)						Baseball	Sportscenter
ESPN	41	Up Close	Sportscenter			NFL Prime Monday						Homicide: Life on the Street
LIFE	45	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait: Shepherd		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"A Mother's Revenge" (1993, Drama) Lesley Ann Warren.				Oddville, MTV	Loveline
MTV	46	MTV Live	Viewers	Jams Countdown (In Stereo)		Beevis-Butt.	Beevis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Road Rules	Darla	Taxi	Newhart
NICK	47	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Hey Arnold!	Happy Days	Happy Days	Bewitched	I Love Lucy	Odd Couple	Taxi
SCIFI	48	Crash of 2000	Darkside	Amaz. Stories	Miss. Genesis	Sequoia DSV (In Stereo)		Forever Knight "Last Act"		Friday the 13th: The Series		Amaz. Stories	Miss. Genesis
TLC	49	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Extreme Machines (R)		Solving Murder Kansas City		Future Fantastic "Alien" (R)		Extreme Machines (R)
TNT	42	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		WCW Nitro (In Stereo Live)				WCW Nitro (R) (In Stereo)
USA	44	Renegade "Endless Summer"		Nightrider: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger		WWF Raw (In Stereo)				Silk Stalkings "Bisar Instincts"
HBO	50	(5:15) "In the Line of Duty"		Addicted (R) (In Stereo)				"The Crossing Guard" (1995, Drama) Jack Nicholson. (R		Mr. Show (R)	Chris Rock	"First Time Felon" (1997)
MAX	51	(4:30)		"Going Under" (1991) Bill Pullman. (PG				"The Fly" (1958) Vincent Price. (In Stereo)		Man About		"Power Act" (1996) Eric Roberts.	"Ruby" (1992)
SHOW	55	"Summer Camp." (1994, Comedy) Joe Flaherty. (PG						Targets SGA "The Hint" (R)		"Color of Justice" (1997, Drama) Bruce Davison		"Amanda and the Alien" (1995, Comedy) (R

Bruno By C. Baldwin



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Mallard By Bruce Tinsley



Non Sequitor By Wiley

Children for sale Jon + Luke

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Seek and ye shall find today — or, if not, you will get closer to something you've been after for some time. Be patient and cautious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You must be willing to share your thoughts and work with others today if you expect to make any real progress in your career.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You are likely to attract a great deal of attention today, whether you intend to or not. Take advantage of a chance encounter tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Routine can provide you with the time you need to accurately assess a developing situation. Do not shy away from the familiar.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — A series of events are likely to add up to something that may prove too much for you to handle on your own. Recruit help as soon as you can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You can tell one thing from another with ease today, but are you as adept at discerning fact from fiction in your social life?

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — What begins as play is likely to become work very soon, requiring you to bring a number of talents to bear in order to prevail.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Take care you don't jump into a situation you have not tried to figure out ahead of time. A little caution goes a long way.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You must concentrate on those aspects of your personality which are not so easily understood. Focus deep within and you'll solve a puzzle.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You may face a deadline today that you cannot possibly meet without making special arrangements. Do not hesitate to ask for extra help.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You will receive a piece of news today that requires you to adjust to changing circumstances with even greater speed and facility.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You should be able to outsmart an opponent today — with the pleasant result that you are looked upon as an expert in your field. Enjoy kudos!

Quote of the Day

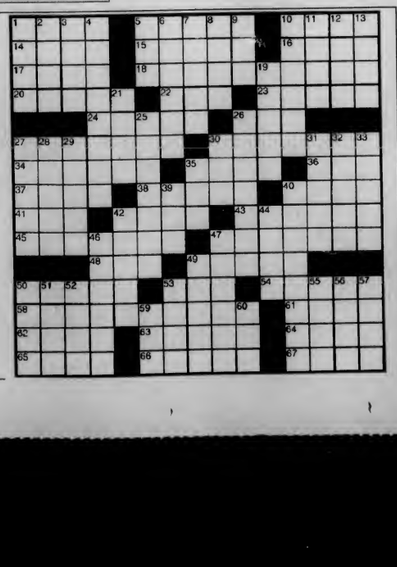
"Pray for the sick, Pray for the poor, and GOD please help our football team."

–Overheard during mass at the Newman center

Close to Home By John McPherson

"I'm curious. Why is this technique called the Holyfield Maneuver?"

ACROSS
1 — spumante: sparkling wine
5 Flent
10 Type of glider
14 Diving bird
15 Caustic
16 Sandwich cookie
17 Young guys
18 Entree on a lunch menu
20 Bobbin
22 Cereal grain
23 Wheat and tobacco
24 Styles
26 Dawn goddess
27 Peeked
30 Ancestry
34 Boom boxes
35 Zoo home
36 Actor Danson
37 "The Mammoth Hunters" heroine
38 Luxurious
40 Wooden shoe
41 Briny deep
42 Tended the garden
43 Harsh speech
45 Exclusive
47 Put into words
48 Type of curve
49 Brick or stoneworker
50 Not tall
53 Pro
54 Scratches
58 Wrestling hold
61 Arm bone
62 Jai —
63 Martinique volcano
64 Demeanor
65 Shabby
66 — -mouthed: insincere
67 Raced



DOWN
1 "— Well That Ends Well"
2 Motel freebie
3 Hubbub
4 Wakefulness
5 Fond du —, Wis.
6 Repeated
7 Territories
8 Use a kitchen device
9 Sullivan and McMahon
10 Like someone with a cold
11 Singer Guthrie
12 One of the tides
13 Mercury and Jupiter
19 Tea cake
21 Crazy
25 Tyrants
26 Fractions

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

9/15/97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

27 Understand
28 Tier
29 Dwight's rival
30 — Vegas
31 Strongman of myth
32 Hollow stone
33 Bordered
35 Cow's "second course"
39 Actor Majors
40 Skulls
42 Careless hurry
44 Press
46 Cockroaches and such
47 Package
49 Cash slang
50 Bandleader Artie
51 Angelic ring
52 Poet Khayyam
53 Go on the lam
55 Barrette
56 Type of jerk
57 Beach stuff
59 Record speed
60 Piano part

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Cheese Strata
Chiligetti
DINNER
Oriental Stew
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Lentil Chili
Quarter Pound Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Charbroiled chicken Sandwich
Barbecued Beef on a Bun
Fettuccini/Tomato Meat Sauce
Golden Burgers
DINNER
Beef Fajita
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Tofu Fajita
Manicotti in Sauce

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
American Chop Suey
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
DINNER
Beef Fajita
Ravioli with Tomato Sauce

Berkshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Rotini/Tomato Sauce
Golden Burger
DINNER
Beef Fajita
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Tofu Fajita
Manicotti in Sauce

Night Editor — Casey Kane
Photo Technician — Yvonne Yang
Copy Editor — Erin Murphy
Production Supervisor — Josh Sylvester
Production Staff — Matt Wolover, Jocelyn Burrows

SPORTS WEEKEND

Monday, September 15, 1997

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Sports Watch

NEWTON (AP) — West Virginia's Amos Zereoue, the nation's No. 2 rusher, couldn't get started. Boston College's Mike Cloud, who wasn't expected to play much, couldn't be stopped.

Cloud rushed for 211 yards, including touchdowns of 11 and 66 yards, as the Eagles overcame a 17-3 halftime deficit for a 31-24 win Saturday.

Cloud ran only once for two yards before Omari Walker, last year's Big East rushing leader, left with a sprained left knee late in the first half after gaining 89 yards on 18 carries.

"The coaches had been telling me all week, 'when you get your opportunity, you've got to step up,'" said Cloud, whose previous career-high was 122 rushing yards.

"I felt as though Omari Walker was the whole running game," West Virginia linebacker John Hadley said. "We didn't see a lot of film on number 21 (Cloud) and figured they would go with the passing game after Walker was hurt."

Matt Hasselbeck did throw scoring passes of 9 yards to Derrick Crittenden and 12 yards to Anthony DiCosmo to tie the score 17-17. And the defense, sometimes putting eight or nine players on the line to stop the run, frustrated Zereoue.

"I just wanted to go out there and be a decoy," said Zereoue, who had averaged 186.5 yards per game but was held to 68 yards and a 1-yard touchdown on 19 carries. "When I did get the ball, everybody was around me."

"We know we can perform. We feel like we can be one of the top defenses in the East," BC nose tackle Chris Hovan said.

Boston College (1-1) rebounded from a shocking 28-21 season-opening loss to Temple and gave coach Tom O'Brien, who replaced Dan Henning, his first win.

West Virginia (2-1) lost to the Eagles for the first time in seven games and the first time in nine games at Alumni Stadium.

BC, which had squandered a 14-point lead at Temple, overcame that deficit against the Mountaineers with four touchdowns in a 12-minute span after Hasselbeck had thrown two interceptions that led to first-half touchdowns.

"It helps when you're able to run the ball," O'Brien said. "He's a tough kid. He hung in there after a tough start." It was not known how long Walker would be sidelined, although he said the injury suffered while he was pass blocking it didn't seem as serious as he first feared.

"I thought it was over," said Walker, who will undergo an MRI Monday. "I never felt pain like that."

After Cloud's 11-yard run gave BC a 24-17 lead with six minutes left in the game, the Eagles held Zereoue to a 1-yard gain on fourth-and-2 at their 14.

"I wasn't surprised" at Zereoue's problems, West Virginia quarterback Marc Bulger said. "Even Amos can't make plays against eight or nine guys."

On the next series, Cloud, who finished with 24 carries, ran on all five plays, covering 87 yards and capped by his 66-yard score that made it 31-17.

Bulger's second touchdown pass of the game to Shawn Foreman, a 38-yarder, cut the lead to 31-24. And West Virginia had an excellent opportunity to tie it when David Richardson recovered the kickoff at the BC 15 with 3:50 to go before an Eagles player touched it.

But the defense held again with two sacks, an incompletion and a fourth-down interception by Markell Blount.

After West Virginia's opening 53-yard march led to Jay Taylor's 36-yard field goal, the Mountaineers managed just five first downs and 115 yards on their next eight possessions.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — So much for Bob Davie's first season at Notre Dame. What a way for Joe Tiller to start at Purdue. The Boilermakers (1-1) outplayed No. 12 Notre Dame in every way possible Saturday, beating the Irish 28-17 in Tiller's first game at Ross-Ade Stadium.

Billy Dicken was 26-of-39 for 352 yards, and he rushed for another 22. Edwin Watson rushed for 34 yards and two touchdowns, and safety Adrian Beasley returned a fumble for a touchdown to seal the victory.

Turn to WATCH, page 9

UMass blown out by Black Bears, 49–6

Maine romp leaves UMass with its worst start since 1957

By Corey Peter Goodman
Collegian Staff

ORONO, Maine — Just when you thought things were already unpleasant for the Massachusetts football team, they managed to get a whole lot worse in just a few short hours.

Hidden away in the confining woods of Orono on Saturday, the Minutemen were punished repeatedly, savagely and unmercifully by a relentless University of Maine attack and a brutal rain and lightning storm that delayed the game for 39 minutes early in the third quarter. The Black Bears crushed UMass, 49–6, at a soaked Alumni Field.

Maine	49
Umass	6

The Minutemen have been outscored 70–12 through their first two games. The 58–point differential marks UMass' worst start since 1957.

"There's no explanation for how we played out there," Massachusetts coach Mike Hodges said. "None. The only thing that went right in the first half was that I didn't get hit by lightning."

Maine dominated both sides of the ball the entire day.

The Black Bears offense racked up 456 total yards, thanks in large part to quarterback Mickey Fein who had a field day. Sitting in the pocket, safe from a non-existent Minuteman pass rush, Fein had time to survey the field all day and pick out receivers scattered all over the field.

Fein — a talented 6–foot–3 junior from Centerville — lit up UMass for five touchdowns, four in the air and one on a keeper. Fein ended the day completing 17–of–31 passes for 258 yards. He also added 19 yards on the ground.

"He's a great player," Hodges said. "We just couldn't stop him today."

Fein's receiving corps — led by junior Drew O'Connor and senior John Tennett and speedster Rameek Wright — utilized its speed and size advantage over the UMass defensive backfield.

Using timing patterns, Fein connected twice in the end zone to the 6–foot–5 O'Connor, who outreached UMass defenders.

"That's stealing," Fein said of O'Connor's touchdown receptions. "He goes up and takes away the ball."

For the afternoon, O'Connor snagged four passes for 35 yards and two touchdowns. Tennett collected five passes for 128 yards. And Wright grabbed four completions for 57 yards and a touchdown.

After the game, Maine coach Jack Cosgrove and Fein spoke about the success of the passing game.

"Our weapons on offense are scary," Cosgrove said.

"And we knew [Massachusetts] couldn't match up against us man–to–man," Fein added. "So we took advantage of it."

COURTESY MAINE SPORTS INFORMATION DEPARTMENT

Maine junior quarterback Mickey Fein went 17–for–31 in the Bears 49–6 over UMass on Saturday.

When Fein did not set his sights on the end zone, short out patterns resulted in big gains when the Minutemen defense failed to polish off tackles. The swampy conditions caused Minutemen defenders to slip and slide and swipe at tackles in the open field all day.

During the first minutes of the third quarter, the sky opened up and rain pelted Alumni Field. When the first strike of lightning threatened the safety of the players, referee Charlie Cloe suspended the game. The delay lasted 39 minutes.

Upon returning, the Black Bears defensive unit was hardly sympathetic to the Minutemen's woes.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Smith spent two quarters on the run and on his back. Maine's defensive line — anchored by sophomore defensive end Jojo Oliphant — had little trouble penetrating UMass' offensive front. Recording nine tackles, Oliphant also got some shots in on Smith.

The constant barrage on Smith culminated in a final blow late in the second quarter that sent him out of the game with a concussion.

Smith completed 3–of–13 passes

Turn to ROMP, page 9

Massachusetts sweeps, 4–0, 5–0

By Kathleen Ralls
Collegian Staff

Frasier and Kramer. The Odd Couple. Larry Bird and Magic Johnson.

What do they have to do with last weekend's wins for the No. 14 Massachusetts women's soccer team over conference opponents Duquesne and St. Bonaventure?

With scores of 4–0 and 5–0 over the Lady Dukes and the Bonnies respectively, it seemed like the Minutewomen took charge of their opponents and never looked back. But in reality, it wasn't quite so clear cut.

All it took was a span of 4:46 and a 4–of–5 shooting percentage for the Minutewomen to score four goals in the second half of the 4–0 win Friday over Duquesne. The game winner came at 70:45 by Amy Burrill with a drilling shot from 35–yards out on the left flank to the far upper corner.

"I just wanted to win so bad," Burrill said. "Before the game I was teasing the girls that [UMass coach Jim Rudy] didn't want me to score, because I am considered a role player."

Kate Webb scored her first goal of the year at the 72:09 mark, assisted by Kara Green. Sophie Lecot connected at 74:21 off Green and Brooke Bartlett, and Robin Smith followed with the encore fourth goal thirty seconds later from 21–yards out off a cross from Liz Rutherford.

"[They were] calm, relaxed, everything opened up," Rudy said. "The goals came from a variety of places... and thank God for Amy Burrill's left foot."

Yesterday's game versus the Bonnies at Totman Field provided even more scoring excitement, though, it turned out to be the Oscar Madison or "Seinfeld's" Kramer–esque game. While the Minutewomen got the job done and took full advantage of their offensive opportunities, it displayed a more scrappy play displayed — unlike the finesse game put on the field Friday — though, UMass continued to dominate.

With the loss of Burrill due to illness and key defender Erica Iverson making frequent trips to the bench for rest due to sickness, UMass integrated more players to mix it up. But the Minutewomen kicked off the win at the 1:20 mark of the game, when Green scored from just outside the box.

UMass was sending urgency signals with their constant battering of the Bonnie's goalie Margaret Reif, who proved invaluable despite the loss.

UMass was eager to score again and kept the pressure on, though they were called offsides numerous times in both halves by the linesmen. A scare swept through Totman and signified the intensity and grittiness which both teams displayed when Green collided with Reif in the first half, and had be helped off the field.

The second goal at 29:56 was a spectacle of athleticism as Tarah Tokarchik sent a cross to the goal, which Emma Kurowski headed to the upper right goal post. Webb scored her second goal of the season, and the third of the game, with a header over Reif on an assist from Kurowski.

"I love it," Kurowski said, "Everyone on the team scores, we can score from anywhere on the field."

Both teams were called for numerous penalties as the game became more physical in the second

Turn to SWEEP, page 9

JORMA KANSANEN / COLLEGIAN

The Minutewomen beat Duquesne 4–0 on Friday and St. Bonaventure 5–0 yesterday for a sweep at Totman Field.

Butler's OT goal leads UM past Black Bears

By Jackie Leroux
Collegian Staff

Senior forward Mike Butler worked his magic Saturday afternoon to help the Massachusetts men's soccer team take an exciting 3–2 victory from the Black Bears of Maine.

With just six seconds to go in overtime and the score tied at two points apiece, Butler scored the game–winning, sudden–death goal.

"I have to give the defense and my team a lot of credit for keeping up the tempo and the pace," Butler said.

"It was a good goal, an excellent goal," UMass coach Sam Koch said. "I'm glad he was able to put it away for us."

Butler, who has a knack for coming though in tight situations, scored his second goal of the season with the 12– yard lob over Maine keeper Nathan Benoit. He was assisted by junior midfielder Jake Brodsky. The goal was also Butler's eleventh career game–winning goal.

The game was a definite turn–around for Massachusetts, after a sloppy and disappointing game against Siena last time out. In a game the Minutemen were expected to win easily, they came out with nothing more than a 1–1 tie. But they came focused and ready to play Saturday, determined not to let another one slip away from them.

After a shaky first half, which ended in a 1–1 tie, the Minutemen came out strong in the second, and settled down to play.

"In the second half we used the midfield better, we knocked the ball around better and used everybody, instead of just putting it over the top, and we play much better when we do that," Koch said.

The Black Bears notched the first goal of the game at the 8:23 mark. Aaron Benjamin converted a corner kick served just outside the goal line to put Maine up 1–0. Brodsky tied the game for the Minutemen at 13:32 with an unassisted goal.

Sophomore Gavin Hewitt put the Minutemen up a point with a 10–yard goal at 60:47. He was assisted by a throw in from freshman Seth Lilburn. But Maine came back at the 65:56 mark with Benjamin's second goal of the game, a shot that just made it over the outstretched arms of UMass keeper Jeff Jablonski.

Hewitt, a transfer from Cal State–Northridge, and Lilburn, in his first year at UMass, have both been pleasant surprises for the UMass soccer program.

"Both of them are very dangerous up front, and the other teams have to be very concerned about them," said Koch. "Gavin, anytime he gets the ball he can put it in from 20 yards out and the same with Seth. They both have good shots and are players who can change the game right away."

Also coming through in Saturday's game was junior keeper Jablonski. He had five saves in the game, all drawing oohs and ahs from the crowd.

"He made two key saves that kept us in," said Koch. "without them the game might have been over earlier."

The Minutemen improved to 2–0–1 on the year, while Maine fell to 1–3–0. UMass now holds a 21–10–1 all–time record over the Black Bears. The Minutemen return to action on Wednesday when they travel to Durham to take on the Wildcats of New Hampshire.

YVONNE TANG / COLLEGIAN

UMass shook off a shaky outing against Siena by beating Maine 2–1 in overtime yesterday at Totman Field.

Massachusetts dominating Atlantic 10

When you look at the history of the No. 14 Massachusetts women's soccer team in the Atlantic 10 conference, references to certain Monty Python movies just can't be helped.

One scene in The Holy Grail has Tim the Enchanter (i.e. coach Jim Rudy) telling the tale of a mighty, ferocious beast with sharp, pointy teeth (now, put forefinger and middle finger to your mouth, while making a biting motion), who guards the cave where the secret of the Grail's final resting place is held.

Yet, when King Arthur and his mates roll up to the cave, and see a rabbit stroll out, they assume the danger is at an end. Stupidly, they charge the beast and get their collective butts whooped, with bodies lying in heaps, and the Round Table in retreat.

Okay, now you have to work with me here.

Some innocent bystanders think that women's sports are all cutesy and nice and stuff — when the case of the Minutewomen is the opposite.

What UMass has done to its competition in the A–10 the past few years can be alluded to the battle scene in The Holy Grail: a bunch of teams lying in heaps at the feet of a beast that may look all nice and cutesy and stuff on the outside, but if you mess with it, will leave you looking for missing body parts.

Once again, the Minutewomen have stepped into their A– 10 conference slate, and after games this week against Rhode Island (7–0 win on Tuesday), Duquesne (4–0 win on Friday) and St. Bonaventure (5–0 win yesterday), they have already outscored A–10 opponents by a 16–0 score.

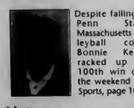
I think a retreat was sounded after the final buzzer yesterday, and with no sign of the Holy Hand Grenade of Antioch in sight for the A–10.

Taking away the minor hiccup that UMass had gainst Dayton in last year's A–10 postseason tournament final loss, the Minutewomen have trudged over A–10 competition like a knife through butter.

UMass has won the A–10 three out of the first four years of the conference, with three A–10 Player of the Year selections (Briana Scurry in 1995, and Erin Lynch in 1994– 95), three A–10 Tournament MVP's (Nicole Roberts in '93, Rebecca Myers in '94 and Rachel Leduc in '95) and 23 A– 10 All–Conference selections.

Hmm, does dominance come to mind?

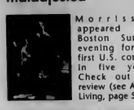
After an offseason that saw the Minutewomen:



- Lose six starters to graduation.
- Lose two prospective starters to injuries of physical (Kathleen

Turn to DOMINATION, page 9

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CVII Issue 10 · New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 · Tuesday, September 16, 1997

Kenny gets 100th win

Despite failing to Penn State, Massachusetts volleyball coach Bonnie Kenny racked up her 100th win over the weekend (see Sports, page 10).

Not so maladjusted

Morrissey appeared in Boston Sunday for his first U.S. concert in five years. Check out our review (see Arts 7 Living, page 5).

WORLD

Sinn Fein enters peace talks

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The IRA–allied Sinn Fein party entered Northern Ireland's peace talks for the first time yesterday, frighening off all five pro–British Protestant parties.

Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams, surrounded by party comrades, passed through gates that had been locked to them when the talks on Northern Ireland's political future began in June 1996.

"We do think that this could be the beginning of the end of conflict on this island, if the political will is there to build agreement," Adams said. Sinn Fein was admitted after the outlawed IRA stopped its violent campaign against British rule of Northern Ireland eight weeks ago.

Ulster Unionist leader David Trimble, whose party represents a critical third of Northern Ireland opinion, boycotted the talks at Castle Buildings, a drab office block within the British administrative center in east Belfast.

As expected, the two most hard-line Protestant parties, Ian Paisley's Democratic Unionists and Bob McCartney's United Kingdom Unionists, failed to show up Monday. Two small but influential parties linked to pro-British paramilitary gangs also refused to participate.

Paisley, however, submitted a motion in absentia calling for Sinn Fein's expulsion. The chairman of the talks, former U.S. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, dismissed it because the plaintiffs weren't there.

NATION

Stealth fighter jet crashed over Md.

MIDDLE RIVER, Md. — Citing national security, military police kept nine families from returning to their homes Monday, seized photographers' film and cordoned off the site of a stealth fighter crash as they searched for pieces of an aircraft whose very existence was once a state secret.

The clamp down in this quiet waterfront neighborhood began almost immediately after the F-117A jet went down during an air show performance Sunday, crashing into a house and causing six minor injuries on the ground.

"There was military everywhere. This road was full, the sky was loaded. I tell you it was something," said Paul Canatella, standing in his driveway less than a 100 yards from the mangled canopy, which was watched by two armed military guards.

"I've never seen anything like it," Canatella said. "You name it they were here."

Three blocks of the Baltimore suburb were quickly evacuated and military troops moved in to scour the area for pieces of the $45 million, black, bat-winged plane.

"It is a secret aircraft, obviously we want to protect it the best way we can," said Capt. Drew Sullins, a Maryland National Guard spokesman.

Film was confiscated from members of the media, including Associated Press photographer Roberto Borea, who had chartered a boat to take him to the neighborhood.

"As soon as we stepped on shore, the military was there and that was it," Borea said. "Had I chosen not to surrender my equipment, I would have been taken into custody."

Sullins said pool photographers were later allowed on the scene for a few minutes Monday under tight military supervision.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wed.	Thursday
HIGH: 75 LOW: 53	HIGH: 73 LOW: 57	HIGH: 75 LOW: 60

INSIDE

Arts & Living .....page 5,6
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial .....page 4
FYI .....page 8
News .....page 2,3
Sports .....page 7,10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Mighty Dog!

Lee Rockford, a graduate student in polymer science, and his dog Wiley play a little frisbee near the campus pond.

Adminstration to restructure, Strategic Action plan unfolds

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is embarking on a major project to assess and restructure its administrative areas.

For the next five years, administrators, faculty and staff will be evaluating campus offices in an effort to conserve financial resources, enhance services to students, faculty and staff and improve the University environment in general.

In a document entitled "Striving for Excellence: a Workplan for Restructuring to Meet the Goals of Strategic Action Initiatives," published in the Sept. 12 edition of The Campus Chronicle, Chancellor David K. Scott outlined the process the campus will take in assessing and restructuring its administrative areas.

The administrative restructuring process is part of Scott's larger plan for the University, the Strategic Action Plan, and will provide $5.4 million for investment in major initiatives such as the library, an advising center, funds for faculty development, public PC classrooms for students, and other initiatives outlined in Strategic Action.

Scott has created a new, 12-person panel, the Campus Committee for Organizational Restructuring (CCOR), to oversee the process.

Chaired by Deputy Chancellor Marcelette Williams, the CCOR will be responsible for identifying administrative areas for review and for appointing project teams to study each area and make suggestions for changes.

The project teams, composed of administrators, faculty and staff both from the area under review and from other areas of the campus, as well as students, will look for ways to cut costs and improve the efficiency of and the quality of service provided by the administrative area.

"It is a restructuring process," Rosio Alvarez, of the Chancellor's Office and the internal consultant for the project teams said. "We will look at all administrative areas on campus, both academic and academic support areas, and look at how services are provided."

Alvarez said that some specific areas the project teams will focus on will be investment in new technology, instituting partnerships with outside firms, and retraining employees.

The project teams will not recommend downsizing of the faculty or staff beyond that contained in Strategic Action, according to Alvarez.

"All the restructuring will be done with the projected staff numbers within the Strategic Action Plan," Alvarez said.

Strategic Action includes an Early Retirement Program (RISPP) which will yield a savings of $5.6 million, which, combined with the $5.4 million to be found in the restructuring process, will provide $11 million for investment in the strategic initiatives noted above.

Alvarez said the restructuring will have a dual impact on the University, by both providing the funding for the major initiatives and by improving the daily services students and faculty receive.

"We will work on process redesign... for example, look at how a student gets a parking sticker and figure out ways to improve the turn around time," Alvarez said. "The goal is to improve the daily administrative services you have to encounter."

The Chancellor's Executive Advisory Committee (CEAC) will be responsible for the ultimate review and implementation of project team recommendations.

The other members of the CCOR are Jim Coopee, Elizabeth Dale, John Dubach, Glen Gordon, Jarice Hanson, Bryan Harvey, Joyce Hatch, Joe Marshall, Susan Pearson and Patricia Vandenberg.

The CCOR will begin meeting this month, and the first project team should be in place in October.

Scott will discuss the restructuring plan at this Friday's Administrators Council Meeting.

U-Store installs security system

By Victoria Graves
Collegian Staff

The University Store is currently in the process of installing a new "check point security system" for this semester.

The new system will consist of an alarm for the store's entrance and all merchandise will be targeted to set off the alarm if an article is not paid for.

The prospect of a new security system has been in the works since last fall when student Pierre Elysee was accused of shoplifting.

"We're looking into putting it into place in the next two weeks. It's been in the planning since the incident last year," Sid Ferreira, University Store Operations Manager said.

"It's a direct result, but it's a good result. There will be a lesser chance of mistakes," Ferriera said.

A group of administrators and students arrived at the check point system after meetings discussing security at the University Store.

"We gathered a committee last fall where students and administration looked at ways of developing a security system in the store. They decided to hire a security consulting firm to make recommendations on how best to handle security," John Kuusisto, University Store General Manager said.

"The committee felt that an electronic article surveiance system was one of the things that should be implemented as soon as possible," Kuusisto said.

A number of security systems bid on the contract for the University Store and then came back with reports of what would be the best system to use. Store officials settled on the tagging system.

Currently, security measures consist of management and student employees walking around the store to deter shoplifters.

Data is in the process of being compiled as to how much merchandise was stolen from the store last year.

"We're trying to deter people from shoplifting. Apprehension is not one of our main goals," Ferriera said.

Hopes are the new system will take the human error out of accusing customers of shoplifting.

"The feeling is that any system in place will be objective, not subjective. A computer doesn't care who you are," Kuusisto said.

Advising services unite to help UM students in need

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Dr. Pamela Marsh–Williams inside of her office in Machmer Hall yesterday afternoon.

Beth McCarthy
Collegian Staff

In an effort to ease the difficulties students faced in their pursuit of advising, the Undergraduate Advising and Academic Support Center (UAASC) materialized this fall.

"I think it's a great idea," Susan Bronstein, Acting Associate to the Deputy Provost said. "The goal is to provide a place where students can go without running all over campus."

According to John Cunningham, Faculty Advisor to the Provost, the idea to unite several of the advising services under one umbrella, as well as one roof, was conceived in June of 1996.

Cunningham said that the Provost appointed a committee to evaluate the advising system as it existed, and then assess what the best route would be to "re–plan and re–pack those groups."

The end result is UAASC, which is simply the title of the six services it covers.

Those services, which have also undergone name changes, will include the Pre–major Advising Services (PAS) which replaced the former University Advising Center and is located in Machmer Hall.

Other branches of UAASC include Learning Support Services (LSS) located in the W.E.B. DuBois Library and Learning Disabilities Support Services (LDSS) located in the Berkshire House.

The Counseling and Assesment Services (CAS) located in the Berkshire House will also fall under UAASC, as well as the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) and English as a Second Language (ESL) both of which are located in Bartlett Hall.

UAASC, along with the five of the six advising services it umbrellas, will optimistically be located and fully functional on the sixth floor of Goodell by the fall year of 1998, according to Bronstein.

Until this can happen, the individual services will remain where they are currently located with LDSS permanently remaining in the library.

"The program is set up to provide a more integrated service to students to better help students," Bronstein said. "It makes things more accessible."

In addition to the new structure, a new face has arisen on the advising scene.

"I was really struck by this institution's vision," Pamela

Turn to SERVICES, page 3

Bosnian map may change due to elections

By Judith Ingram
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Mounds of votes remained uncounted from the weekend's elections, but already claiming partial victory were the masses of refugees who hope the ballot box will finally give them a chance to go home permanently.

"This is the first step back home," Enver Pilav said Monday in Sarajevo. Originally from the mostly Muslim town of Foca, he was a candidate for the local council for that town, renamed Srbinje by the Serbs who took it on the battlefield.

Some 89 percent of voters registered to cast ballots for their prewar hometowns on Saturday and Sunday, including hundreds of thousands of refugees driven out before the fighting stopped in late 1995.

That suggested that the local elections could well change the ethnic map carved in the Bosnian war. If majority Muslims driven out by Serbs elect a Muslim city council in a particular town, for instance, the way would be open for the Muslims to return. The pressure against them by those who drove them out would be intense. But refugees are hoping the NATO-led peace force will throw its weight behind them.

Kris Janowski, a spokesman for the U.N. refugee agency, said the high registration of would-be returnees was "a big chance, but it's obviously the biggest challenge since the Dayton peace agreement."

The Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe — which organized the elections — has ruled that if local councils aren't formed according to the voters' wishes by the end of the year, it won't certify the elections as free and fair.

A host of sanctions could follow to isolate communities that insist on separatism.

Turn to BOSNIA, page 2

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Lending a Hand

"Sam the Minuteman," who is ranked among the top ten mascots in the nation, suits up at the mascot tryout Thursday evening.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Leaving the Scene
Sept. 11
A past hit and run accident in parking lot 32 was reported.

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 10
A two vehicle accident occurred in parking lot 25 on Commonwealth Avenue. No injuries were reported.
Sept. 12
A vehicle backing up in parking lot 44 struck another vehicle.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 10
An individual reported threats being received on a computer.
Sept. 11
An individual was causing problems in the lobby area of Prince residence hall.
Fireworks were set off in a stairwell in Mackimmie Residence Hall.
Sept. 12
A large group was reported mudsliding in the bowl area of Orchard Hill Residential Area.
Objects were being thrown from the windows in Van Meter Residence Hall.
Sept. 13
A large crowd at the entrance of Moore Residence Hall was dispersed.
Graig A. Carrier, 22, 1286 Granby Rd., Chicopee, was arrested on Washington Road for indecent exposure.
Sept. 14
Employees at the Hampden Snack Bar requested assistance in having patrons leave.
An individual reported a laser coming from the 11th floor of Coolidge Residence Hall.

Burglary/Breaking and Entering
Sept. 10
A vehicle broken into in parking lot 22 on University Drive had a telephone, jewelry and a CD player stolen.
Sept. 13
A vehicle in parking lot 44 on Sylvan Drive was broken into. A stereo was stolen.
Furniture and a microwave were stolen from the Graduate Lounge in the School of Management.
Sept. 14
A vehicle broken into in parking lot 22 on University Drive had a cell phone stolen.
A vehicle broken into in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive had a stereo and radar detector stolen.

Disorderly Conduct
Sept. 12
Brian P. Downey, 18, 40 Heritage Hill Rd., Dedham was arrested on Infirmary Way for indecent exposure.

Disturbance
Sept. 12
A large crowd on the 11th floor of Coolidge Residence Hall was dispersed.
Sept. 14
Thomas H. Westerland, 19, 699 Conservation Dr., Springfield VA. was arrested on Fearing Street for disorderly conduct.
Ronald Rateau, 20. 15 Dania St., Mattapan and Brian Bonilla, 20. 22 Lowell St., Waltham were arrested on the Southwest Residential Area Mall for disorderly conduct.

Family Offenses, Domestics
Sept. 13
Jose A. Dejesus, 22, 240 Salem St., Lawrence, was arrested in Melville Residence Hall for domestic assault and battery.

Health/Safety Hazard
Sept. 12
A malfunctioning alarm in Cance Residence Hall was reported to Environmental Health and Safety.

Larceny
Sept. 10
An individual reported his jacket containing his keys and U-Card was stolen from Boyden Gym.
Sept. 11
An individual reported his laptop stolen from his room in Butterfield Residence Hall.
Sept. 12
An office was broken into in Worcester Dining Common.
Hubcaps were stolen from a vehicle in parking lot 33 on University Drive.
A Hampden Snack Bar deposit bag containing $100 was stolen.
Sept. 13
A student who reported his U-Card stolen was referred to Amherst Police Department.
A wallet was reported stolen from Cance Residence Hall.
A telephone was reported stolen from Cance Residence Hall.

Liquor Law Violations
Sept. 11
Robert J. Weaver, 20, 65 Peabody St., Stow, was arrested on University Drive for possession and transporting liquor and misuse of a license and ID card.
Sept. 12
Michael A. Lord, 19, 59 Rural Ln., East Longmeadow, was arrested on John Adams Road for possession of liquor.
Sept. 13
Ryan J. O'Connor, 18, 865 Sunrise Ave., Barre, was arrested on University Drive for possession and transport of alcohol and possession of a class D drug.
David R. Breza, 18, 22 Rowledge Pond Rd., Sandy Hook, CT, was arrested for transport and possession of alcohol.
John P. Bentley, 20, 17 Silver Hill Rd., Weston, was arrested on John Adams Road for possession and transport of liquor.

Motor Vehicle Theft
Sept. 10
Two vehicles were reported stolen from parking lot 49 on Windmill Lane.
Sept. 13
Amherst Police recovered a vehicle reported stolen from parking lot 47.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 11
Rilwan Meeran, 22, 46 Main St., Amherst was arrested on North Pleasant Street for operating a motor vehicle with a revoked license and not having his license or registration in possession.
Sept. 13
Stephen M. Tosti, 21, 65 Drohan St., Huntington, NY was arrested on Lincoln Avenue for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor and driving outside of marked lanes.

Vandalism
Sept. 10
Homophobic graffiti was reported in Bartlett Hall.
A swastika was found painted on a cottage building on Thatcher Way.
A card reader was damaged at Patterson Residence Hall.
A vehicle was "keyed" in parking lot 22 on University Drive.
Sept. 13
A vehicle in parking lot 21 on University Drive was damaged.
A motorcycle was damaged on Orchard Hill Drive.
Sept. 14
Sexual graffiti was written on the wall and doors of Thoreau Residential Hall.
Two electric mirrors were destroyed on a vehicle in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive.
Windows were broken in Webster Residence Hall.
Objects were being thrown from the second floor of Cance Residential Hall.

■ bosnia

continued from page 1

Still, the will to obstruct will be great in many places — especially those packed with refugees fearing to lose the little security they have found with members of their own ethnic group. A single Muslim — married to a Serb — is said to be living in Foca, where the Serbs' desire to eradicate their onetime neighbors was so intense they blew up the town's 16th-century mosque — and dug out the foundations for good measure.

Against such a background, it's hard to imagine how the newly elected council could work if it includes Muslim members, much less a Muslim majority.

"They must," said Hasan Balic, a Muslim who got elected to parliament in the Serb portion of Bosnia during last year's parliamentary elections through the vote of Muslim refugees. "There is no alternative."

OSCE officials say it's too early to give details of how council members will be protected as they cross into hostile territory controlled by another ethnic group, and circumstances vary. Parliament members like Balic travel to Pale for legislative sessions without escort.

The elections themselves were one more step in a complex international strategy to get Bosnians of all stripes to live together after a devastating 3 1/2-year war. The formation of joint, interethnic governing councils and joint police is seen as a precondition for refugees to return areas now dominated by other ethnic groups.

Members of Bosnia's three major ethnic groups — Muslims, Croats and Serbs — have joined in institutions set up at the national level, but critics continue to accuse them of being uncooperative and hindering the reconciliation process.

The European Union on Monday banned five leading Bosnian Serb hardliners — including Momcilo Kajisnik, the Serb member of Bosnia's collective presidency — from entering EU nations after accusing them of undermining the Bosnia peace agreement.

A key provision of the Dayton agreement was easing the way home for refugees, and Bosnians and many international officials say the presence of the NATO-led peace force is necessary for that end. In Brussels, British Foreign Secretary Robin Cook warned Monday that if NATO pulls its forces from Bosnia as scheduled next June, "there is a risk that a lot of the work that's been done could be undone." But he said the British and other troops in the force could stay only if the Americans do too.

Turnout was high, estimated at 70 percent according to the OSCE, and only a few violent incidents were reported — boosting confidence among voters and international officials that coexistence was conceivable.

Partial, unofficial results suggested that nationalist Muslim, Serb and Croat parties were losing their near-monopoly on political life in some towns, opening the way to a more pluralist system. Final results were not expected until Saturday.

EXPANDED STATE OF THE ART MULTILEVEL FITNESS CENTER
ATTENTION CLIMBERS! THE TREAD WALL IS HERE
•Cardio Theater
•New Recumbent Bikes
•Over 10 Treadmills
•Gravitron
•Precor EFX
COMING SOON: New Entrance & More Parking
THE CLUB
Tennis and Fitness Center
659 Amherst Rd Sunderland 549-3638

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Finishing Touches
In the shade of the chapel, freshman art major Sara Dauderis retouches a section of her drawing.

Diet drugs removed from market

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two of the nation's most popular diet drugs were pulled off the market Monday after the government uncovered disturbing new evidence that they could seriously damage patients' hearts.

The Food and Drug Administration urged millions of dieters to immediately stop taking Redux, also known as dexfenfluramine, and Pondimin, also known as fenfluramine.

Pondimin is one-half of the wildly popular fen-phen diet combination; the other half, phentermine, appears safe when used by itself, the FDA said.

But doctors said phentermine, the sole remaining prescription diet drug, has only mixed results — and they predicted a surge ofpatients distraught both at the possibility their hearts were damaged and at losing their treatments.

"We are anticipating lots of very desperate patients that need help," said Dr. John Foreyt, an obesity expert at Baylor College of Medicine.

"Obesity does kill," said Dr. Richard Atkinson of the American Obesity Association, who said many Redux and Pondimin users will regain their weight.

The FDA asked Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, which sells Redux here and whose parent company makes Pondimin, to withdraw the drugs because of new evidence that they damage heart valves, and the firm agreed.

The U.S. decision prompted the French company, Servier, that sells fenfluramine and dexfenfluramine abroad to withdraw the drugs worldwide.

The FDA had been struggling to determine the drugs' risk since it and the Mayo Clinic uncovered the first cases in July. Last week, the FDA analyzed heart tests on 291 dieters and found almost a third — 92 people — had damaged heart valves, even though they had no symptoms.

That's much higher than anticipated. Less than one percent of the general population has such damage to their aortic or mitral valves, said Dr. Richard Bowen of Naples, Fla., who tested 200 of the patients.

Most of the valves leaked blood, a condition that over time can enlarge the heart and seriously weaken it.

Also, the FDA analyzed 25 patients who happened to have had their hearts tested before ever taking diet pills — and after taking the pills, about a third were newly diagnosed with valve damage.

Those patients are in addition to 99 other fenfluramine or Redux users whose doctors have reported to FDA actual symptoms of heart damage, such as shortness of breath, chest pain or swollen ankles. Three of them died, and 17 underwent heart surgery.

The newest findings show the drugs "present an unacceptable risk," said FDA Acting Commissioner Dr. Michael Friedman. Wyeth-Ayerst's Dr. Marc Deitch called the withdrawal "the most prudent course of action." But he said there is still not definitive proof that the drugs are to blame, and said Wyeth-Ayerst will within a few weeks begin studying whether obese people are naturally more prone to valve disease.

Meanwhile, dieters can return unused portions of the drugs for a refund,

Judicial Hearing Board

A GREAT EXPERIENCE FOR STUDENTS WHO
• are interested in campus leadership •
• wish to improve communication and listening skills •
• are enrolled full time •
• have at least a 2.0 G.P.A. •
• are not on judicial sanction •

APPLY NOW TO BE A HEARING BOARD MEMBER
Training held in the Campus Center
from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on:
September 29 & September 30
Room 904-08 Room 162-75

Applications available at:
Residential Cluster Offices
The Dean of Students Office
Student Government Association

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
5:00 p.m. September 25, 1997

Any questions? Please contact:
Paul Vasconcellos or Tara Woolfson
Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore
Phone: 545-2684

■ services

continued from page 1

Marsh–Williams, the new Associate Dean of UAASC and Director of PAC said, on why she chose to come to the University of Massachusetts. "I really wanted to be a leader in realizing that vision."

With only a month under her belt Marsh–Williams has yet to implement any drastic changes in the system, but she was made aware of the past advising problems.

Marsh–Williams' preliminary goals at this point are three pronged. The first of which is "to continue to learn as much as I can of the nature of the program we have been using."

When that happens, and until most of the services under UAASC can be physically moved under one roof, Marsh– Williams would like to "identify a good community network for our staff to become equally informed about each other's services and really create a greater integration of the services we supply."

However, this integration would be easier if all of the services were under one roof, thusMarsh–Williams said that she also plans to push for the sixth floor of Goodell ready by the fall semester of next year.

"As a footnote, I also plan to lobby for more resources in faculty and student aids," said Marsh–Williams who expressed some dissatisfaction with the amount of available general support staff.

"I don't know if anyone will say they ever have enough," joked Marsh–Williams who came from the University of Minnesota where the student to advisor ratio was much smaller than at UMass.

Another area where she would like to see some improvement is the taking into consideration individual needs.

She gave the example of pre–major students who have very different needs than those who are non–declared. Even among the non–declared scope, those who are entering as freshmen will need a different approach than those who are juniors and don't have a major.

"It's important to keep track of students who have become disenchanted with their major," explained Marsh–Williams of yet another group of students who's needs must be addressed in a different matter.

"We want to pull those students in and give them some direction so they aren't taking classes all over the map," Marsh–Williams said.

There are also those called "at risk" students who are on academic probation or close to having to leave campus and need a certain kind of guiding.

Not all of these adjustments will be obviously apparent nor will they be immediate, but according to Marsh–Williams "this institution is committed to pulling these programs into an integrated center" and easing the confusion and stress that seeking advising has caused.

Anti-immigration stance of GOP angers Al Gore

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Vice President Al Gore called Republicans "mean-spirited" Monday for trying to deny benefits to legal immigrants and opposing a census method intended to more accurately count the number of immigrants, minorities and poor.

Gore said statistical sampling, a method opposed by many Republicans, is the only way to get an accurate count of immigrants and the poor in the census for the year 2000.

Addressing the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute, Gore welcomed the decision by budget negotiators to restore benefits to legal immigrants that had been removed earlier by Republican majorities in the House and Senate.

"These men and women who came here to pursue the American dream should be celebrated, not punished," Gore said. "Here you have a mean-spirited attempt to be punitive toward legal immigrants." Congressional negotiators agreed in July to restore welfare coverage for tens of thousands of disabled legal immigrants. The bipartisan budget agreement reached in May called for restoration of welfare benefits, erased by last year's welfare overhaul, for legal immigrants who become disabled in the future.

Gore said attempts to deny such benefits help explain why many people are reluctant to cooperate with census-takers and why millions of people are believed to have been missed by the 1990 census.

"We cannot allow Republican attempts to ban statistical sampling in the 2000 census," Gore said. "We know thatstatistical sampling is the most accurate way to conduct a census.

"Can you with a straight face express bewilderment about the fact that these individuals might not rush to the front door to fill out census forms?" Gore asked rhetorically.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Kicking the Bass. . .
Members of the marching band lay down their tubas after a greuling practice.

Helms condemns NEA, criticizes patrons of the arts

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The annual battle over federal arts funding moved to the Senate Monday with conservative Sen. Jesse Helms urging elimination of the National Endowment for the Arts. The House has already stripped funding for the NEA from a fiscal 1998 spending bill and Senate acceptance of the Helms measure would set up a confrontation with the White House, which strongly supports the agency responsible for federal subsidies for the arts. Helms, R-N.C., contends that the NEA funds programs that many Americans find objectionable or blasphemous. "It is self-evident that many of the beneficiaries of NEA grants are contemptuous of traditional moral standards," he said in a floor speech.

He said the NEA caters to "phony, self-appointed artists who insist on using the American taxpayers' money to finance anything they want to drag up from the sewer and declare to be art." The NEA, founded by President Johnson in 1965, provides grants for nonprofit and community art groups.

NEA spokeswoman Cherie Simon said legislative restrictions and internal reforms have solved past complaints of problematic funding, and that the NEA didn't even fund some of the programs that Helms condemned.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., spoke of NEA backing for theater groups that bring Shakespeare to tiny towns in his home state. "It would be a shame to focus on a few mistakes when there are so many good worthwhile projects that the NEA has made a reality." A vote on the Helms amendment, attached to a $13.7 billion bill to fund Interior Department and Indian programs in fiscal 1998, is expected as early as Tuesday. The bill currently includes $100 million for the NEA.

The Senate has traditionally shown more support for the NEA than the House, which in July voted 217-216 to eliminate all NEA funding. NEA backers, bolstered by a threatened presidential veto of the entire bill if the NEA is killed, are looking to moderate Republicans and Democrats to defeat Helms.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

OVER ONE MILLION OF THE BEST MINDS IN AMERICA HAVE ALREADY CHOSEN THE BEST RETIREMENT SYSTEM.

TIAA-CREF.

When it comes to planning a comfortable future, over 1.8 million of America's best and brightest count on TIAA-CREF. With $190 billion in assets, we're the world's largest retirement company, the nation's leader in customer satisfaction, and the overwhelming choice of people in education, research and related fields.*

The reason? For nearly 80 years, TIAA-CREF has introduced intelligent solutions to America's long-term planning needs. We pioneered portable benefits. We invented the variable annuity and helped popularize the very concept of stock investing for retirement planning.

Today, TIAA-CREF's expertise offers an impressive range of ways to help you create a comfortable and secure tomorrow. From the guarantees of TIAA's top-rated Traditional Annuity to the additional growth opportunities of our variable investment accounts, you'll find the flexibility and diversity you need to help you meet your long-term goals. And they're all backed by some of the most knowledgeable investment managers in the industry.

To learn more about the world's premier retirement organization, speak to one of our expert consultants at 1 800 842-2776 (8 a.m.-11 p.m. ET). Or better still, speak to one of your colleagues. Find out why, when it comes to planning for tomorrow, great minds think alike.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

*Based on a survey conducted in 1996 by an independent organization in which 96% of respondents expressed overall satisfaction with TIAA-CREF. TIAA is one of only a handful of companies that currently hold the highest marks from the nation's leading independent rating agencies for stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability, and overall financial strength: A++ (Superior), A.M. Best Co.; AAA, Duff & Phelps; Aaa, Moody's Investors Service; AAA, Standard and Poor's. TIAA's guarantees are backed by its claims-paying ability. These ratings of TIAA as an insurance company do not apply to CREF. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services, Inc. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509, for a prospectus. Read the prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

© 1997 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund (TIAA-CREF) New York, NY

Focus on Race

This week, the Collegian Editorial page is publishing a week–long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

All editorials to be considered for the Focus on Race series must be received no later than 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Editorials can be submitted by e–mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545–1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement. They should be typed, and between 500– 700 words in length

For more information, call Daniel Bodah at 545–1491 or send email to the Collegian letters account.

Women rediscover an ancient heritage

Focus on Women
Sara Eckel

When Layne Redmond was growing up in Crystal River, Fla., during the 1960s, she told her parents she wanted to play the drums. But they explained that drumming was for boys. "They told me I should play the flute or the piano," says Redmond, who ended up taking dance lessons and later become a cheerleader.

Redmond eventually ended up studying the frame drum, but not until she was 28. And now that she has proven herself in this man's world — she has recorded five albums on the frame drum and is the first woman to have her own signature line of drums — she wants us to know that drumming isn't as intrinsically masculine as we might think.

Because the drum, probably more than any other instrument, definitely has that association. I think of my own elementary school years, which took place a full decade after Redmond's. On the day my fourth-grade classmates and I selected instruments for the school band, our teachers took pains to assure us that girls could play the drums and boys the flute, but we didn't listen.

Only Katrina Nelson broke from tradition, and her decision to play the drums caused a stir amongst my classmates. We knew what she was doing was very bold and, somehow, important. And I remember feeling a deep admiration for Katrina, even as I ticked off "flute" on my own selection form.

What made the drums so different from the other instruments we could have chosen for band? Why weren't the girls in my class who chose, say, the trumpet or the bass considered revolutionaries?

Redmond believes there are a couple of reasons. "One is that women are told to be seen and not heard, and the drum is the loudest instrument," Redmond said. "The other is that the drum is a military instrument."

But as Redmond writes in her new book, When the Drummers Were Women (Three Rivers Press, 1997) the drum has not always been so firmly fixed in the domain of men. In fact, says Redmond, women were the world's original drummers. In the ancient cultures of Europe and the Middle East, drums were a central facet in women's roles as spiritual leaders and priestesses.

"The frame drum was used in the ancient mysteries to induce a trance in which people would experience a symbolic death and rebirth," Redmond said. "And 95 percent of these drummers were women. For thousands of years, women had this position of spiritual authority."

That authority ended with the rise of Christianity, at which time drums were banned from the church and women were forbidden from playing. "Every 50 years there was a new decree against women playing drums," Redmond said. "They had to issue decrees over and over again because it was such a hard tradition to wipe out."

Now, according to Redmond, women are rediscovering this ancient heritage. "The response has been so profound. Women, even if they've never played the drums, are saying how much it means to them to know that there was a time when women held this position," she says.

For her part, Redmond says her studies in the ancient rituals have even helped her appreciate the rhythmic training she received as a cheerleader. "I used to just make fun of the fact that I was a cheerleader," she says. "But then it dawned on me that anything completely associated with women is not valued in our culture. And the more I thought about it, the more I realized that I was at the center of the most important community ritual in our county — the high school football game — and I was rousing and shaping group energy. That's a very ancient thing to be doing."

Sara Eckel is a nationally syndicated columnist.

Send comments to the author in care of this newspaper or send her e-mail at saraeum@aol.com.

Where does a body end?

Michael Mederios

I was flipping through a recent copy of MIM Notes, the official newsletter of the Maoist International Movement, when something really juicy caught my eye. It probably wasn't anything that an ardent Maoist would have found tantalizing; just an interesting sentence buried in an article about "wimmin" (their spelling) unnecessarily starving themselves to conform to societal norms of beauty.

The sentence went: "Communists see wimmin's bodies as we see men's: as living beings which are capable of marshalling their strength for the overthrow of imperialism."

That's all. Very short. But it made me want to climb the Eiffel Tower bereft of ropes.

I don't think that MC45, the anonymous writer of this article, dances much on lawns. Now, I'm all in favor of revolutions. I'm right there behind Newt Gingrich and his mini-revolution in the House. And if these folks want to go on throwing their bodies into a gristmill to make nice ground meal for their incendiary tactics, well, that's their beautiful prerogative.

But my game plan for my 5-foot-9, 160 pound body involves a little more than just a revolution.

The human body has been twisted and churned for centuries by people who forget what a miracle it is. Pulled out of eons of evolution, culled from wild amoeba living on the high plains of the deep ocean floor; then from blue-eyed fish; then rough, roaming chimpanzees stick-tooling their way into termite hills and ant farms; then finally up to heavy browed Cro Magnon and over a few lumbered paces to us, Homo Sapiens, the human body is one of the greatest freaks of design.

We rival dandelions, great tigers with their stripes shimmering velvet gold and midnight across their muscle- twined skeletons, the Carlsbad Caverns and their twisted darks and lights, the waves breaking off the coast of Bali in blues like Picasso might only dream when he was young and bedded with color. We rival them. We are their brothers, sistern, cousins, lovers and we cheapen ourselves sometimes by tossing the notion around in our heads that we are somehow inferior, somehow outsiders in this grand old scheme of nature.

MC45 probably didn't realize that this idea he (or she, or it) expressed about our fragile human bodies causes more death than imperialism ever has. That this sort of idea allows imperialism, gloom, dependency, fervent irrationality, loss of a visceral and full-blooded and sometimes idiotic sense of humor, lack of wonder, and end to irrelevant (but necessary, oh so necessary) activities such as hand-holding, kissing under the stars, good talking, loud singing for no political or feasible reason and running naked on empty beaches.

It's a very good thing to get rid of systems that don't work. If imperialism or communism or capitalism or any other man-made invention dreamt up to allow humans to be happy, full-stomached and free-minded does not work, and seems to be hindering our lives instead of propelling them on to further exuberancies, we should rip it to shreds so viciously that all that is left is confetti to celebrate its demise.

But this attack of systems ain't the whole point of the matter of having bodies. It's a very small portion of the matter, really. The whole point is using our bodies to live. We have heads and hands and feet not to battle against the creations of our heads and hands and feet, but so that we can exist with our life for a good long period of time.

Maybe, maybe there is more to life than that, but I can't explain it. This is a strange wo'ld, and imperialism is a fart compared to the tiny speck we call a fly. There's just so much to see and do, and all I can say about that is rage, rage against the dying of the light, my human friends. Do what you love to do. Climb to the top of Goddell and do the Pee Wee Herman dance, if you have to.

Michael Mederios is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

More criticism for Guidelines on Demonstrations

To the Editor:

Hey Chancellor Scott, where are my flowers and dinner? I mean, if I'm getting screwed, I'd like to know that I'm getting something in return.

In case you missed the front page of the Collegian on Monday, or didn't receive the letter detailing the new picket code, here's the basic gist: you no longer have the right to peaceably assemble at the University of Massachusetts if it disrupts normal school operations. That means if you have a grievance with the operating policies of the UMass system and wish to air your concerns, you must do so between the normal office hours of 9 a.m.–5 p.m., but you cannot interfere with "...the activities and offices of the University, of people's lives, work and rights, over disagreement about such issues." (Ah, bureaubonics!)

Well, if I can't get financial aid, or pre–register for classes, or if I get administratively withdrawn for a $25 phone or health services bill, isn't the administration disrupting my education, my life and my ability to work and get a decent job? Maybe I should have Chancellor Scott sanctioned or expelled for disrupting my life! (Due to continuing problems with financial aid I am at present a part–time student and working full–time.)

Some of you who were at Goodell may remember me, that long-haired guy living in a tent for six days in the freezing cold, rain and snow, trying to stand up for the rights of working class students, minorities, and quality education for people from all walks of life. Sure we had fun dancing around, making new friends, and giving each other group back massages, but we were also there for a purpose: quality affordable education at a PUBLIC UNIVERSITY for ALL who seek to improve themselves, and create a better world community. (Besides, dancing helped keep us warm.)

By limiting access to education we are creating a bipolar elitist society, where the "have–nots" lose more and more, while the "haves" gain more and more. Are people that afraid of having an intelligent, meaningful society with meaningful and open dialogue about issues that affect each of us as individuals?

I guess so. I think the ACLU would be interested to know that the UMass system and Chancellor Scott want to infringe our rights. Last I knew we could still demonstrate peaceably on PUBLIC lands without fear of imprisonment or expulsion. Has UMass become a private institution over the summer? No.

Were there any riots or incidents of violence at Goodell? No. Heck, we even picked up the trash around the building and left it cleaner than when we first occupied it.

Sure, some overpaid bureaucrats and hard–working office staff got displaced by our actions, but who would take notice if we seized a parking lot or some other out–of–the– way location?

The administration treats us like spoiled children, better to be seen and not heard, while lining their pockets with our (or our parents') hard–earned money.

I only hope those of you who got involved last semester will do so again. If you thought about getting involved but didn't, do it now. If you've been given the run–around ("Go to the bursar's office, no I mean financial aid, oh I can't help you here!") at Whitmore, take a stand. Or if you just want to party and throw away all your parents' money, remember that some of us would kill to have the opportunity that is being handed to you.

The students united will never be defeated!

Seamus McKenna
Amherst

Point/Counterpoint on Affirmative Action

This week's Focus on Race series will end on Friday with a Point/Counterpoint on the issue of Affirmative Action. If you are interested in submitting a column to be considered for this feature, please deliver it to the Ed/Op staff no later than 9 p.m. on Wednesday, September 17.

Submissions should be 500–700 words long. They can be sent via e-mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545– 1592), or can be hand–delivered to the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement, room 113.

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by e–mail to: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu
Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Rachael Pepe Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Laura Barcella Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prester Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Wrapping up summer hardcore scene

Adam Dlugacz

Welcome to another semester, my baggy–pants–wearing– friends, and welcome to another year of my column. This is my final year at the University so all you letter writers should get your typewriters warmed up so you can sit behind them instead of trying to do something productive.

Do I sound bitter? Maybe I'm just fed up with kids being more concerned with scene politics than with the music. Hardcore is a broad topic and covers many musical styles (some would say too many), but the point of the scene is that regardless of what style you prefer, we are supposed to have some kind of common ground. Hardcore is supposed to be about being open minded, believing in oneself, and most of all having fun.

So let's forget about who said what to whom, or what the new SXE trend is, lets just have some fun this year. Remember in the words of Sick Of It All, "You can't change the world but you can change yourself."

The two saddest events of this summer were the breakups of Lifetime and CR. Both bands have had a tremendous impact on the scene and both will be missed dearly. As final testimonies to their greatness, Lifetime left us with Jersey's Best Dancers and CR left us with The John Issa LP. Lifetime and CR both left us with their best efforts to remember them by. Texas Is The Reason and Redemption 87 also broke up this summer.

Victory Records was busy this summer releasing full lengths by Strife, Integrity. By The Grace Of God and Cast Iron Hike. By The Grace of God featuret Duncan Barlow and Rob Penticost of Endpoint fame and happen to be the best band on Victory. Their new album Perspective mixes the best early Revelation bands and a mid '80s DC sound to give us a great record. The lyrics deal with living in a corporate world and straight edge as a non–violent movement.

Better Than A Thousand released their debut LP Just One on Revelation Records this summer. The band features the infamous Ray Cappo (no Krishna preaching this time), on vocals and members of Battery backing him up. The faster songs on this album sound like vintage Youth Of Today, the slower songs sound like Dag Nasty, and they have an instrumental that sounds a lot like Supertouch's "Searching For The Light." The only thing missing is the intense back up vocals that made Y.O.T. so much fun. Who knows with Better Than A Thousand, Ignite and Kiss It Goodbye Revelation might be a half decent hardcore label again.

Long Island's favorite sons Silent Majority released their debut LP Life Of A Spectator on Exit Records this summer. The album sounds like a cross between Lifetime and Avail with lyrics that we all should be able to relate to. If you buy one record because of this column, this should be it. Silent Majority will be playing with Hallraker and Floorpunch in Connecticut next month.

Speaking of the 516 area code, you should check out Irony of Lightfoot who are on Wreck–Age Records. I.O.L. have two seven–inches out and they sound like a twisted offspring of Drive Like Jehu and Nation of Ulysses. Kill Your Idols, also from the Island of Long, just released their debut this summer on None Of The Above records. Kill Your Idols sound like a cross between Minor Threat and the Faith and are a lot of fun to pogo to.

A local band, Just About Done, have a seven–inch coming out, but you'll have to see members of the band for information on that. Just About Done will be playing in Boston next month with Murphy's Law and Snuff.

Now for what coming up in the 97–98. H2O's second LP Thicker Than Water will be out on Epitaph Records on Oct. 3. Hatebreed has signed with Victory Records and Earth Crisis has signed with Earache Records, both bands are working on new albums. 25 TA' Life have a new lineup and a new EP coming out on Another Planet Records. Quicksand are back together and are working on a new album. Burn played a reunion show but are not getting back together. Maximum Penalty should have a new LP coming out on Blackout soon. Day In The Life featuring ex–members of Mind Over Matter will have their debut LP coming out on Building Records at the end of September. Floorpunch have a full length coming out on Equal Vision Records. Also on EVR the new Ten Yard Fight has some out. Sunny Day Real Estate has gotten back together but only to record an album of B–side and unreleased tracks and then they are breaking up again. Agnostic Front has tentatively signed with Hellcat Records and should have a 14 song album out by the end of the year. Bouncing Souls have signed with Epitath and are working on a new album. Those kooky Krishna's Shelter have a new album coming out on Supersoul Records. Hallraker should have their full length out some time this century. In November, The Misfits, Sick Of It All, H2O and Hallraker are playing Pearl Street nightclub in Northampton.

Adam Dlugacz is a Collegian columnist.

The Arts & Living desk will hold a meeting for new and returning writers on Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in writing about film, television, books, arts, music and more, should attend the meeting. Any questions? Call Seema Gangatirkar, Arts & Living Editor, at 545–1491.

Morrissey gives fans just enough, focus on new release Maladjusted

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

MORRISSEY
Orpheum Theatre
September 14

BOSTON — Playing his first U.S. concert in over five years, Morrissey's performance at the Orpheum Theatre Sunday could be compared to Christmas at grandmother's house. You may not get everything you wanted, but when you leave, you're happy nonetheless.

By virtually ignoring his more acclaimed earlier work with The Smiths, as well as his first few solo albums, the sold– out crowd of 2,500 was left perplexed throughout most of the brief one–hour show. No matter, because on this night, the Mozzer could do no wrong. Morrissey is the rare performer whose charisma and stage presence alone can carry a show, and on Sunday he showed why.

In a stellar — although not earth–shattering performance — Morrissey gave the audience just enough of what they wanted, but could have given them so much more. Concentrating on his latest album — the month–old Maladjusted — the unfamiliararity of this new material contributed to an overall atmosphere that was less Beatles at Shea Stadium than respectful appreciation.

No; surprising, the two times he dipped into The Smiths' catalog, on "Paint A Vulgar Picture" (off their 1987 swan song Strange Ways Here We Come) and the sole encore of "Shoplifters Of The World Unite" proved to be the evening's high points as the sullen masses danced gleefully in the aisles as they remembered the Morrissey/Johnny Marr glory days of the late '80s.

Making a dramatic entrance to a litany of flashing strobe lights and thunderous drum beats, the Mozzer proclaimed his arrival by announcing "Off your knees, Boston" as the opening chords of "Maladjusted" rang out. The surprisingly subdued crowd stood almost in disbelief, clearly astonished that they were actually in his presence, collectively remembering how long this moment was in coming.

Completely detached from his anonymous backing band of '50s greaser look–alikes, Morrissey bequeathed the spotlight he was obviously born to stand in wielding his microphone cord like a lasso and shaking his sinewy hips like Elvis. His admirers, over a dozen fans were ejected from the Orpheum after climbing onstage and hugging their mercurial hero, far less than the assembled Boston Police were expecting.

The band partly compensated for its lack of stage presence with tight playing. On "The More You Ignore Me, The Closer I Get," Morrissey turned from a whiny, somewhat enigmatic frontman into a passive, seemingly obsessive lunatic, honing in on the crowd with a trance–like wicked stare. He later snapped out of it for a fine rendition of "Satan Rejected My Soul," symbolic of his biting sense of humor that unfortunately gets lost in all his sweeping melodrama.

MARTY KEANE/ COLLEGIAN

The Moz proved just how Maladjusted the former Smiths frontman could be at the Orpheum in Boston Sunday night.

49th annual Emmy Awards announced

The 49th Annual Emmy Awards were announced Monday evening. Here is a partial listing of the winners:

DRAMA SERIES: "Law & Order," NBC.
COMEDY SERIES: "Frasier," NBC.
MINISERIES: "Prime Suspect 5: Errors of Judgement," PBS.
TELEVISION MOVIE: "Miss Evers' Boys," HBO.
VARIETY, MUSIC OR COMEDY SPECIAL: "Chris Rock: Bring The Pain," HBO.
VARIETY, MUSIC OR COMEDY SERIES: "Tracey Takes On..." HBO.
ACTOR, DRAMA SERIES: Dennis Franz, "NYPD Blue," ABC.
ACTRESS, DRAMA SERIES: Gillian Anderson, "The X-Files," FOX.
ACTOR, COMEDY SERIES: John Lithgow, "3rd Rock From The Sun," NBC.
ACTRESS, COMEDY SERIES: Helen Hunt, "Mad About You," NBC.
ACTOR, MINISERIES OR SPECIAL: Armand Assante, "Gotti," HBO.
ACTRESS, MINISERIES OR SPECIAL: Alfre Woodard, "Miss Evers' Boys," HBO.
SUPPORTING ACTOR, COMEDY SERIES: Sun,"NBC.

EMMY, page 6

YOU DEMAND POWER, SPEED, AND MOBILITY.

Color StyleWriter 4500
Now $319 BEFORE REBATE
Save another $50 cash back*

Power Macintosh 6500/250
32/3GB/12XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Zip Drive/Ethernet/Video In/NTSC Out/Kbd
Now $2,199 (or $41/month) BEFORE REBATE
$300 cash back*

got it yet?

WANT SOME CASH TO GO WITH THAT?

PowerBook 1400c/133
16/GB/6XCD/L2/11.3" TFT display
Now $2,999 (or $56/month) BEFORE REBATE
$200 cash back*

Now is the right time to get an Apple Power Macintosh or PowerBook. Because in addition to getting the computer that lets you do more than you can imagine, you can save big time. For a limited time, students are eligible for special cash rebates.

*This is a limited time rebate coupon offer. See your Apple campus reseller today for complete details.

The University Store
Campus Center
Hours: M-F 9-5, Sat. 11-4
(413) 545-2619
http://www.aux.umass.edu/computers

Power Macintosh 4400/200
16/2GB/8XCD/Multiple Scan 15AV/L2
Ethernet/Kbd
Now $1,818 (or $35/month) BEFORE REBATE
$100 cash back*

Offer expires October 30, 1997. No payment of interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during the 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest, which will be included in the repayment schedule. For example, the month of May 5, 1997, had an interest rate of 12.40% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.84%. A monthly payment of $40.14 for the Power Macintosh 6500/250 system is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $1,949.25, which includes a sample purchase price of $1,595 and a 6% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Prime Rate as reported on the 5th business day of the month in The Wall Street Journal plus a spread of 5.9%. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer system prices, total loan amounts, state and local sales taxes and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. ©1997 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Mac, Macintosh, PowerBook, Power Macintosh and StyleWriter are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. OneScanner and QuickTake are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Apple mail-in rebate offer valid from July 12, 1997 through October 30, 1997, while supplies last and subject to availability. Void where prohibited by law. See participating reseller for further rules and details. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

Panoramic photography affordable, low-end cameras enter the mainstream

By Rick Sammon
Associated Press

Panoramic photography is not new. It's been around since the early days of photography. What is relatively new, however, is that you don't need a professional panoramic camera (some models cost more than $8,000) to get nice panoramic pictures.

At the low end of the camera scale, there are one-time-use panoramic cameras. These fully automatic models sell for less than $15 and deliver surprisingly good results. Enlargements, however, tend to look a bit grainy and soft.

Some 35 mm point-and-shoot cameras offer a panoramic mode, which allows you to easily switch from standard format to the panoramic format, and then back again. There are even some 35 mm single-lens reflex (SLR) cameras that offer a panoramic mode in addition to the standard picture size.

The newest cameras to offer a panoramic mode are Advanced Photo System (APS) models. APS cameras let you switch (and switch back midroll) between three picture formats: standard, high-vision (a bit wider than standard) and panoramic.

There are several benefits to using a more sophisticated panorama-format camera if you like to take panoramic photos. First, as the price of the camera increases, so does the picture quality.

Other benefits include creative control over exposure, so you can darken or lighten a scene to create a desired exposure effect — or correct for strong backlighting, and the ability to use different speed films for different lighting situations: slow film for sunny days, fast film for overcast days.

If you have never taken panoramic photos, here are a few simple tips to help you get picture-perfect results:

- Read your camera's instruction booklet. One point that is especially important is the minimum camera-to-subject distance, which is usually three or four feet (farther with less expensive cameras, closer with more expensive cameras). If you get too close to a subject, it will look out of focus in your picture.
- Watch the horizon line. Because panoramic pictures "take in" more of the horizon line, you'll have to make sure the horizon is level in your viewfinder — or else your picture will look lopsided.
- Think vertical pictures, too. When photographing a statue or building, holding your camera vertically may produce the most dramatic picture.
- Try close-ups. Again, keeping in mind the minimum focusing distance of your camera, try using the panoramic mode for people pictures, flower pictures and even pattern and texture pictures.
- Watch out for high-contrast scenes. When shooting panoramic pictures, note the highlight and shadow area of the scene. If the scene has too much contrast, your picture may be too dark or too light. In situations like these, it might be better to recompose your scene or wait for the light to be more even.

Incidentally, panoramic picture frames are available that will enable you to make an excellent gift out of your favorite panoramic photo.

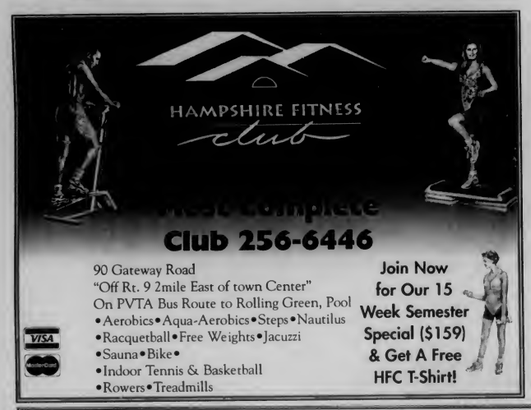
Artist sculpts using Cold War weapons as his material

(AP) — Art show openings are usually exclusive affairs, but rarely has there been an opening so exclusive that the price of admission is a top-secret security clearance.

The invitation for "Junkanimation," an exhibit at CIA headquarters in Virginia, modestly described it as a display of military modeling and art deco sculpting. Jim Wilson wrote in an article in the current issue of Popular Mechanics, but after passing through two security checkpoints, the viewer will realize that there is nothing ordinary about the artist or his choice of materials.

For 24 years, artist Charles "Chase" Brandon had a day job with the CIA — as a spy. Brandon lived and worked abroad as an undercover agent with an alias.

What's even more unusual than Brandon's choice of occupations prior to his recruitment by the CIA — he was working as a machinist and studying for a Ph.D. in linguistics — is his choice of art materials.



The invitation to Brandon's exhibit described his work as made from "everyday scrap." But everyday materials in the spy business is often exotic to the rest of us.

For the past 12 years, Brandon has been making his sculptures from the remains of some of the Cold War's most fearsome weapons. When the former Soviet Union collapsed, the CIA decided it was OK for his collection to come out of the cold.

Besides just being interesting to look at, Brandon's sculptures made from "found objects" provide insights into Soviet warfare capabilities. In many of his pieces, Brandon displays a sampling of the source material next to the finished work. Shell casings from spent cartridges, for example, reveal that Soviet ammunition workers had none of the quality-control problems that plagued the country's automobile industry.

One of Brandon's works provide a rare glimpse at the internal working of the much vaunted MiG-21. Parts from the jet fighter's communications gear, which are intermixed with VCR parts, include old-fashioned vacuum tubes.

In addition to fashioning artwork from weapons, Brandon has made his own interpretations of U. S. and Soviet weapons.

Most Complete
Club 256-6446
90 Gateway Road
"Off Rt. 9 2mile East of town Center"
On PVTA Bus Route to Rolling Green, Pool
• Aerobics • Aqua-Aerobics • Steps • Nautilus
• Racquetball • Free Weights • Jacuzzi
• Sauna • Bike •
• Indoor Tennis & Basketball
• Rowers • Treadmills
Join Now for Our 15 Week Semester Special ($159) & Get A Free HFC T-Shirt!

Gumbel performs host role with class

By John Horn
Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — Bryant Gumbel's opening Emmy Awards monologue got a big laugh. Unfortunately, the best chuckles came from a David Letterman gag.

The former "Today" show host kicked off the awards show with a self-deprecating skit seeking advice from Hollywood's biggest stars. He then strode onto stage and stuck to his playing-it-straight promise.

"Thankfully for you and for me," Gumbel said, "the tap dances didn't take."

It was Gumbel's first big appearance on his new network CBS since ending his 15-year stint on NBC's "Today" show earlier this year.

A 3 1/2-minute "Advice for Bryant" segment kicked off Sunday night's show with Gumbel visiting the set of such shows as "Seinfeld," "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno" and "The Larry Sanders Show" for helpful hints. Other advice-givers included Bill Cosby, Gregory Hines and Chris Rock.

"A lot of times you see these shows and they will get like professional people to host when they should have a comic or an entertainer," Leno told the former "Today Show" host.

"So people at home, they're watching, and they say, 'Wait a minute! Isn't he a news guy? Was there somebody killed at the Emmys? What happened?'"

Perhaps the best laugh was sparked by Letterman's stunt in which he smeared peanut butter on a camera lens and then let a large dog lap it off.

"I am very pleased to be here and, frankly, I am surprised as anyone to be your host this evening," Gumbel said when he came on stage. He spent some of the show strolling around the stage as if it were the set of "Today" set. Twirling his eyeglasses in his hand, Gumbel explained behind-the-scene topics as hair and makeup as if he were still a newsman.

Gumbel said earlier he wasn't a comic and he would play it straight, "with a degree of dignity and class and decorum." It was quickly evident in his opening monologue that Gumbel the Newsman was on stage.

Yet he proved quick with some one-liners. When stiff accountants from Ernst and Young attempted to dance on stage, Gumbel quipped off their bad dancing, "Goes beyond (White Men) Can't Jump."

Gumbel lauded the "most powerful medium on the planet" and noted an estimated 620 million people worldwide were watching.

"It's a medium that regularly brings talented people into millions of homes a medium that chronicles, dramatizes and satirizes our culture and, as we have recently been reminded, a medium with the power to unite the world in passion, in interest and sometimes in grief," Gumbel said.

The first presenter was Ellen DeGeneres.

"It's especially great for me to be here on a night when Bryant Gumbel is hosting because, as you probably already know, we started out in stand up comedy together," DeGeneres joked. "He still cracks me up."

Miss Illinois crowned Miss America '98

By John Curran
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Miss Illinois Katherine Shindle, an aspiring actress who works as a janitor at a dance studio in exchange for lessons, was crowned Miss America 1998 in her native state on Saturday night.

The 20-year-old theater and sociology major in her senior year at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., said she would be an advocate for AIDS issues.

Shindle was among three of five finalists who chose to wear two-piece swimsuits, one of several changes intended to lure TV viewers back to the ratings-starved pageant. Two-piece suits had not been allowed in 50 years.

The first runner-up was Miss North Carolina Michelle Warren and the second runner-up was Miss Mississippi Myra Barginear. Miss Arizona Stacey Momeyer and Miss California Rebekah Ann Keller rounded out the top five.

Shindle, a 5-foot-11 brunette, hugged Warren and broke into tears when host John Callahan announced her name at the end of the nationally televised 77th annual pageant.

Miss America 1997 Tara Dawn Holland put the rhinestone crown on her head, and she was off on her walk down the runway as Holland sang "There She Is."

"I'm a little dazed right now, to be honest with you," Shindle said afterward. "I know I walked down the runway. I didn't drop the scepter, and I'm pretty pleased about that."

Shindle — who prefers to be called Kate but used her full name for pageant purposes — said she was excited about the prospect of being an advocate on behalf of the Miss America Organization.

Saying she has "four left feet," Shindle said she took the dance lessons in hopes of improving her chances at a Broadway career. She sang "Don't Rain On My Parade" for her talent offering; all five finalists sang in the talent portion of the pageant.

A native of nearby Moorestown, Shindle graduated from Bishop Eustace Preparatory School in Pennsauken and was a classmate of Miss New Jersey Kathy Nejat.

She is in line for a $40,000 scholarship and more than $100,000 in appearance fees during her 20,000-mile-a-month national speaking tour.

After last year's pageant drew the lowest TV ratings since the contest took to the airwaves in 1954, there were a number of changes: A new network (ABC instead of NBC), new hosts (soap opera stars Callahan and Eva LaRue Callahan) and a new method of interviewing the five finalists — unscripted questions from "American Journal" host Nancy Glass.

There were some problems with the wrong names and states superimposed on TV screens, and the announcer once swapped the identifications of Miss Oregon and Miss Arizona. The mistake was corrected after a commercial break.

By far the most anticipated change was the one involving swimsuits. The 51 contestants had the choice of wearing either one —or two-piece suits. The only other time Miss America bared her midriff was in 1947, when all the women wore identical two-piece suits — and before the TV age.

There were no thongs or teenie-weenie bikinis. The two-piece suits had to have "full or moderate" bottoms, while tops were "full coverage" with straps at least a half-inch wide. Custom suits were barred.

Pageant CEO Leonard Horn insisted the change was the latest in a series of moves aimed at encouraging the women to be themselves and not someone else's ideal of what a Miss America contestant should look like.

Since Horn took over in 1987, the pageant has eliminated high heels from swimsuit competition, banned professional hairstylists backstage and changed the evening gown segment to "evening wear," allowing the contestants to wear pantsuits if they chose.

This year, the pageant took the "be yourself" concept a step further, telling judges they could penalize any contestant they believed was putting on false airs or misrepresenting herself in behavior or dress.

Also, the pageant now requires contestants to champion a social cause. That gives the winner a ready-made topic for the hundreds of speeches and personal appearances the reigning Miss America makes annually.

■ Emmy

continued from page 5

DY SERIES: Michael Richards, "Seinfeld," NBC.
SUPPORTING ACTOR, DRAMA SERIES: Hector Elizondo, "Chicago Hope," CBS.
SUPPORTING ACTRESS, DRAMA SERIES: Kim Delaney, "NYPD Blue," ABC.
SUPPORTING ACTRESS, COMEDY SERIES: Kristen Johnston, "3rd Rock From the Sun," NBC.
SUPPORTING ACTOR, MINISERIES OR SPECIAL: Beau Bridges, "The Second Civil War," HBO.
SUPPORTING ACTRESS, MINISERIES OR SPECIAL: Diana Rigg, "Rebecca," PBS.
PERFORMANCE, VARIETY OR MUSIC PROGRAM: Bette Midler, "Bette Midler: Diva Las Vegas," HBO.
PRESIDENT'S AWARD: "Miss Evers' Boys," HBO.
GUEST ACTOR, DRAMA SERIES: Pruitt Taylor Vince, "Murder One," ABC.
GUEST ACTRESS, DRAMA SERIES: Dianne Wiest, "Avonlea," Disney Channel.
GUEST ACTOR, COMEDY SERIES: Mel Brooks, "Mad About You," NBC.

— Associated Press

Mental Health Groups Fall '97

MONDAY

To Your Health
This groups is for students who realize that they cannot consistently control their use of alcohol and /or other drugs and who wish to establish a healthier lifestyle. This group will remain open to new members throughout most of the semester.
Monday, 3:45 - 5 p.m.

MORE Groups Beginning IN LATE FALL

TUESDAY

Succeeding at UMASS as a Latino/a Student
This group will be a safe place for Latino/a students to explore their experiences as UMASS students. Participants will help each other learn techniques for succeeding in a multicultural world. This group will be conducted (mainly) in Spanish.
Tuesday, 2:30 - 3:45pm.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

Making Connections
This 8 week group will help members gain awareness of their relationship styles. It will also be possible to learn skills for forming more positive and lasting relationships.
Tuesday, 5:30 - 7 p.m.

The Art & Science of Relaxation
In this workshop members will learn several valuable strategies for recognizing and managing stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5pm.

WEDNESDAY

When Families Aren't Perfect
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMASS students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5pm.

Groups are FREE OF CHARGE for UMASS student Health Plan members, Kaiser UHS Plan Members, and Five College students. Most groups begin in early Fall and require a pre-group interview. For further information please call the Mental Health Division of University Health Services at 545-2337, Mon - Fri, 8:00am - 5pm.

THURSDAY

Women's Therapy Group
This group is open to OLDER women students and UHS Kaiser Plan Members who would like to address various women's concerns including: self esteem, relationship issues, academic isolation and uncertainty about long-range career goals.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30am.

Stress & the New UMASS Student
A 4 week group, to help new and incoming transfer students learn strategies for coping with college stress. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself. Thursday, 2:30 - 4:00p.m.

Coed Therapy Group for Older Students
This group provides an opportunity to work on those problems which interfere with personal and academic life, such as lack of intimacy, loneliness, lowered self esteem and concerns of professional identity. Thursday, 3:30 - 5pm.

(Which) Home For The Holidays
A 5 week group to help students from separated/divorced families cope with their particular holiday stressors. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

Get Higher.

ZAMA
downtown Amherst

New England fries Tuna, 27–24

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

FOXBORO— It was just his fourth play of the game, and Drew Bledsoe already was showing his excitement.

He punched the air twice and spun around in exultation after lofting a 32-yard touchdown pass to Ben Coates. He may have been too pumped up for his own good in trying to beat Bill Parcells. "I don't know if we ever could have controlled Drew's emotions going into this week. I just think it was that big of a deal," New England coach Pete Carroll said yesterday, "and to me it's all about regaining your composure and he did."

The Patriots beat the New York Jets 27-24 in overtime Sunday night, a win that made them 3-0 despite 11 penalties, substitution problems and many other mistakes.

"We were very fortunate to win that game... under the most difficult of circumstances that we created for ourselves," Carroll said.

The win sent Parcells home a loser against the team he coached to the Super Bowl. And Bledsoe, who was just 16-of-34 for 162 yards, was a winner against the coach whose sideline harangues annoyed him in their four seasons together.

Bledsoe did throw two touchdown passes, but he also threw his first two interceptions of the season and incompletions on his last seven passes of the first half. He was 12-for-20 after that, although he threw an interception in overtime.

"He moved the club well, took them down the field for the score that we needed to win the game," Carroll said.

Bledsoe came into the game as the NFL's leading quarterback with eight touchdown passes and no interceptions. But a week of hype about Parcells' return to the team he left five days after the Super Bowl took its toll.

"There were major distractions for our football team," Carroll said. "It just affected a few guys in a few different ways and kept them from playing the best they can play."

Carroll also was affected. He knew a loss to Parcells would revive talk that he's not as effective as his more authoritarian predecessor, who has won two Super Bowls.

This is a special win," Carroll said. "I know that I'll recall this one for a long time."

For now, he and his players are happy to get away from the side issues and prepare to play the winless Chicago Bears next Sunday. "I asked the team, 'Does everybody know who we're playing this week?' They all said 'Chicago,' so that was good," Carroll said with a laugh.

He's already started working on the problems that cropped up against the Jets.

He said that the penalties, four of them against Bledsoe, are correctable, that running back Curtis Martin played, "a phenomenal game from start to finish," and that, "it was most difficult to beat a coach of that stature."

Martin rushed 40 times for 199 yards, both career highs, and did most of the work on the drive that set up Adam Vinatieri's winning 34-yard field goal 8:05 into overtime.

JORMA KANSANEN / COLLEGIAN

You go, girl!
Freshman forward Kara Green was named A-10 Rookie of the Week, helping the Minutewomen to three straight wins over URI, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure.

■ POLO

continued from page 10

the third quarter.

With 3:27 left in the period, Marc Staudenbauer lobbed a high pass down low to Aldo Roman, who leaped high out of the water and tipped in his second goal of the contest. Twenty-seven seconds later, J.C. Limardo — treading in water usually occupied by Stahl — scored to pull the Minutemen within two goals, 5-3.

That two-score deficit is as close as UMass got in falling to Queens for the first time ever in the regular season.

UMass 9, Lehman College 7

In the first match of the day, the Minutemen pulled out to a 6–1 halftime lead and hung on for a 9–7 decision over a resilient Lehman College squad.

Freshman role player Pedro Perez led the UMass attack with a three–goal effort, as Yarworth used his supporting cast for most of the contest.

Freshman goal keepers Fernando Fernandez and J.R. VanderWall each had nine saves in the UMass net.

UMass 23, Iona 13

Stahl led 11 Minutemen in the scoring column with a career–high nine goals in the romp.

The offensive outburst was the Minutemen's highest output since a 23–13 massacre of Richmond back on Oct. 7, 1995. In that game, Luis Limardo set the single–game individual record for goals scored with 12. He also recorded the single–game points mark (13), and shot attempts mark (18) against the Spiders.

UMass 16, Harvard 4

Sophomore goalie Richard Huntley had ten saves while the MInutemen put forth their best defensive effort of the weekend in beating the Crimson by 12.

Stahl and Slingluff each had four goals and six other Minutemen contributed to the rout as UMass dominated Harvard from wire to wire.

VanderWall made another good showing as Huntley's primary back–up stopping five Crimson attempts to hold Harvard scoreless in the final quarter.

■ Meredith

continued from page 10

You'd have to beat the rest of your division to win the division, which is vital given these divisions are set up mainly by market size and location.

Plus, the month of September would be played in your division, which would heat up play on the field and save jet– lag during a pennant race. Even last–place teams would want to play hard in September, because division pride is of the utmost importance when you're playing them that much.

Interleague play— 74 games. Theoretically, you could play a three–game series against every other team in baseball. Schedule this for May into early June, and then for mid–July to mid–August.

Playoffs

Eight teams, the divisional winners and two wild cards. They'd be placed in terms of total record, in a 1–8 system, to even things out. Plus, the first series, a five–game match– up, would go back to the 2–2–1 set–up, instead of this crazy 2–3 thing we have now. Keep the World Series intact.

Records

To be kept divisionally, and by the whole league. For instance, you would have the MLB East batting champion, and then the MLB batting champion. Leave American and National League records alone, and start over. That way, old records are kept alive and sacred.

Awards

Again, divisionally and league–wide. Like if it was in place for this season, Mike Piazza might win the MLB Pacific MVP, but Ken Griffey, Jr. might be the league MVP.

I think this year showed inter–league play to be a success. If they did it right, I think realignment is what could save the national pastime.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

Got Sports?
Write for Collegian sports, 113 Campus Center Basement

Like sports?
Write for the Collegian sports desk.
Fall beats still available.
Come to the Campus Center, room 113 and ask for Sports Editor Luke Meredith or call 545-1709.

Munchie Madness 3-6PM MONDAY-FRIDAY
Nachos 5.99 2.25
Veggie Potato Skins 7.99 3.75
Fried Cheese & Rings 6.99 3.25
1/2 PRICE!
Judie's DOWNTOWN AMHERST
51 N. Pleasant Street 253-3491
http://virtual-valley.com/judies

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call U Mass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

OFFICE WORKERS
Located on the PVTA bus route, National Evaluation Systems, Inc., is looking for part-time assistance with a variety of office tasks. Preferred candidates will work quickly and accurately and be able to work at least 3 consecutive hours between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on days that we have work. On-call hours will be available beginning mid-September and continuing throughout the academic year. Pay is $7.00/hr. Send your resume or call to have an application mailed to you:
Personnel
NATIONAL EVALUATION SYSTEMS, INC.
30 Gatehouse Road Amherst, MA 01002
E.O.E. NES

The Mercantile
NORTHAMPTON 18 Center St. 584-1205
AMHERST Carriage Shops 549-1396
Mon-Sat 10-6 Thur & Fri to 9 Sun 12-5

La Cazuela
RESTAURANT
The Cuisines of MEXICO and the AMERICAN SOUTHWEST
"Mexican food, like Memphis barbeque and Chicago style pizza, doesn't travel well. Generally speaking, the farther away you get from the source, the worse it is; and in the Northeast, good Mexican food is as rare as fresh lobster in El Paso. La Cazuela is one wonderful exception."
Jane and Michael Stern
Eat Your Way Across the U.S.A.
Dinner Every Night
Downtown Northampton
Across From The Parking Garage
7 OLD SOUTH STREET
NORTHAMPTON
413 • 586 • 0400

City Cafe
NORTHAMPTON'S FAVORITE CLUB
*Billiard Club with Private Room
*3 Bars - 18 Draft Beers
*150 Seat Restaurant
*DJ & Dancing
COMING ATTRACTIONS
Thursday 9/18
7th Annual
Half-Way to St. Pat's Day
The Blackthorn Band
No Cover, Must be 21
Register for 2 Roundtrip Tickets to Ireland
Sunday 9/21
5 Mike Road Race & Block Party
Food, Beer, & Bands
11am till 5pm

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sigma Kappe Sorority Open Rush Tues, 9/16, 5:00pm-7:00pm; Wed, 9/17, 6:00pm-8:00pm; Thurs, 9/18, 6:00pm-8:00pm Please call Beth for more information. 256-6887

Cheep Skiing 'N' Boarding? The UMass Ski 'N' Board Club is having its first general meeting. Learn how to Ski and Board for less. All levels welcome. 7pm, Earthfoods Cafe in the Student Union, Sept. 17. Be a part of the tradition.

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sugarloaf Estates Luxury 2 bedroom apartment homes. FREE HEAT AND HOT WATER. State of the art kitchens, designer baths, w/w carpeting, washer and dryer. On PVTA. Call Today. 665-3856

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 Olds A/C, all power, AM/FM. $1500 or B/O. 549-8999

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Call The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

AUTO FOR SALE

\BMW 733I 1982 blue, beige leather interior, sun roof, automatic. 162,000 miles. Still elegant. $2500. 549-2604

Must Sell 87 Suberu Wagon good condition, great in winter, high mileage. $1000 or B/O. 582-9872

1987 Mozde 323 automatic, reliable. Asking $1400. Call (413)256-1743

'84 Jeep CJ7 hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1100 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

EMPLOYMENT

Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communications and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $5.75 per hour with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call (413)587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

EMPLOYMENT

Hadley Office has 10 Part-Time Positions Availeble
Starting pay $6/hr
Flexible schedule
On bus line
Both evenings and weekends
No experience required
Will train
Call 584-7696

Hairdresser Wented Afternoons and Saturday. Call Regency Hair Stylist 253-9526

Drivers Wented Pays $70 to $120 per shift. No car needed. Dominos 256-8911

Recreation Positions at Amherst Leisure Services. Youth basketball supervisors/officials, facility supervisors, tennis instructors, volleyball officials, adult basketball supervisor/scorekeepers. Apply to: Human Resources, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA by 9/24. AA/EOE

Job for the Environment Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/day. Call Terri 256-6434

Be a member of the Commuter Action Team Looking for 6-8 friendly students who like living off campus. Job duties are fun- Meet with off campus students and townspeople, coordinate and attend Commuter events and programs, help distribute information. Please contact David or Barbara at 545-2309, or drop by Commuter Services between 10:00am-1:00pm M-F. $6/hr and/or academic credit.

Medical/Legal Assistent Part-Time for Springfield/Northampton personal injury law firm. Job requires knowledge of medical records and anatomy. Nursing background and legal studies necessary. Must be able to perform online and traditional research in medicine and law. Some work can be done on campus. Flexible hours. Could lead to full-time permanent job. Fax resume and cover sheet to: Attorney Alan Goodman (413)736-4861

Undergraduate Business Consultent Great business and leadership opportunity on-campus. W/S and H/W/S positions available. CSB 406 Student Union. 5-2167

FOR RENT

4 Bedroom House Northampton, near stores but country location. No pets. $950+. Skibiski Realtors.

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Saxophone for sale- Vito/Alto. Good condition. $180. Call 549-1479

Waterbed $150 Futon bed/couch $100 Both full size (413)774-5776

Dorm Fridges for sale $30-$50. 665-7991

Laptop Notebook Works good. $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

ART DECO Bedroom Set- Waterfall- 1930's Period. $800 or best offer. Call (413)536-0772. Leave message if no answer.

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Amherst Tues and Thurs. Call (413)732-8817

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Contact Steven Page at 253-3354

Jazz Guiter Lessons Lear Theory Improvisation and Technique Joe 665-0499

LOST

Grey Hound Route 9, Hadley area. Reward. 323-8255

MUSICIANS

BANDS! Looking for bands for Wednesday nights at The Pub. 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst. Call 549-1200 Tues thru Fri, 10-6. Ask for Aaron.

ROOM FOR RENT

1 Month Free Rent Bedroom available that includes free heat and hot water. Call 549-7105

ROOM FOR RENT

Big room in 4 bedroom Amherst house. Walk to ATM, Bar, Packy Male/Female. Built-in bar, dishwasher. Huge kitchen and living room. 3 girls now. Only $275/month. Call 583-2944. Ask for Jeff or leave message.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 1 or 2 people to share huge room in Puffton with walk-in closet and bathroom. 549-7203

Female non-smoker roommate wented to share apartment. $200 per month utilities included. 1/10 mile from campus. Call 549-0952

Single Room $230/month utilities included in 8 room house. 549-8696

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

FREE RENT! Housemate/Respite help. Easy, fun. Call (413)527-6279. Easthampton.

Looking for one or two people to share 1 large room in two bedroom apartment in Amherst. On bus route, behind campus. For info please call Brad at 549-3992

ROOM WANTED

Experienced Seamstress Mending, tailoring, alterations, dressmaking, clothing design. Call Chrysal 253-7573

TRAVEL

Vacation Package 4 nights accommodation, Cancun, Mexico for 2 nights. New Orleans 2 nights. Bahamas Cruise. $300 for all. Book by December 20th. 253-1751

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIELDS

available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the author placing the ad filled in on the classified. Non-students must provide for the driver's license and the license number will be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students 20¢ per word/day

All others 40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS
Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

TUESDAY, SEPT. 16

Meeting — Students Helping Area Reach-out Efforts (S.H.A.R.E.), a community RSO, is having an information meeting form 6–7 p.m. in Goodell 504. Free Pizza. Look for us on the concourse on Sept. 16.

Meeting — The Animal Rights Coalition will be having its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162–175. All welcome.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17

Auditions — Riverside Hallowscream will be taking applications for the Scream Team from 3–7 p.m. at the Riverside Personnel Office, 1623 Main Street/ Route 159, Agawam, MA 01001. Or stop by the Personnel Office thru Fri, 9 a.m. –5 p.m. to fill out an application. Must be available weekends from Oct. 10 through Nov. 2. For more information call 786–9300.

Meeting — University Productions and Concerts first genereal meeting at 6 p.m. at the Student Union, Earthfoods room. Free CD's and pizza. Learn about concert production.

Meeting — The Umass Circle K International is holding its fist meeting of the semester at 6:30 p.m. on the couches downstairs in the Campus Center. Anyone intersted in community service that wants to get invovled, build leadership skills should attend. For more info call Suzanne at 259–1860.

Meeting — The Five College Peace Corps Recruiting Office will be sponsering an informational meeting to be held at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 903–909. The meeting will cover the Peace Corps application process, refquirements for becoming a volunteer, and highlights of volunteer activities around the globe. Everyone it welcome though the meeting is especially targeting graduating seniors. Call Mike Simsik, the Campus Recruiter at 545–2105 for more information or come by his office in Stockbridge Hall, room 112.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 162. All are welcome to attend. Bring your own poetry or someone elses or just come and listen. Call Tim at 6546–0819 or Kaye at 548– 8042 for more information.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18

Meeting — Amnesty International will be having it's second meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 917.

Meeting — Find out how to apply to Graduate School, how to finance your education, how to find the best schools, and the in's and out's of the procedure. 1:30–3 p.m. in Campus Center, room 811–815, Sponsered by the Graduate School's Office of Graduate Student Recruitment and rEtention. 528 Goodell. RSVP 545–5284.

NOTICES

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle, Tuesday, Sept. 16 – Friday, Sept 19, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. Pilease contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

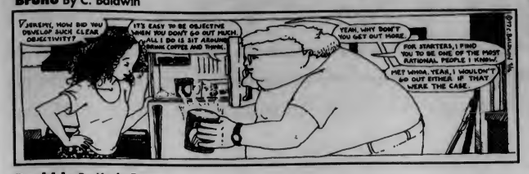
P/S are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an P/S, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by: WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

Live Entertainment featuring: Lonesome Brothers!!

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN 4 Housing Services Cable Network



2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
26 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
29 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

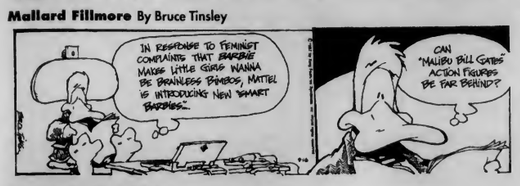
WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Tonic

TUESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 16, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Cat to the Heart"		Question of Genes: Inherited Risks (In Stereo)				Wm. or Oppor.	People=Hero
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Wheel Fortune	Jeopardy!		Mad About You "The Birth"		Frasier (R) (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra		Ent. Tonight		"Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves" (1991, Adventure) Kevin Costner. (In Stereo)				News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Home Imp.	Soul Man	Home Imp.	Spin City	NYPD Blue (In Stereo) (PA)		News	Nightline
WLVI	6	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	"Blow Out" (1981, Suspense) John Travolta, Nancy Allen.		News		Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Mad About You "The Birth"		Frasier (R) (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married...With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	Moesha	Malcolm-Eddie	Hitz (In Stereo)	Head-Heels	News		Vibe
WVIT	9	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Mad About You "The Birth"		Frasier (R) (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Home Imp.	Simpsons	Seinfeld	Frasier	Moesha		"In the Line of Fire" (1993, Suspense) (PA) Clint Eastwood. (In Stereo)			News	News	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Mad About You "The Birth"		Frasier (R) (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo)		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Cat to the Heart" (R)		Question of Genes: Inherited Risks (In Stereo)				News	Nightline
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Home Imp.	Soul Man	Home Imp.	Spin City	NYPD Blue (In Stereo) (PA)		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Real TV	Mad Abo. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	Moesha	Malcolm-Eddie	Hitz (In Stereo)	Head-Heels	News	M*A*S*H	M*A*S*H	Cheers
WTBS	17	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Who's Boss?	"The Shakespeare Revolution" (1994, Drama) Tim Robbins, Morgan Freeman.						"Flight of the Navigator" (1986)
A&E	69	Quincy "A Question of Time"		Law & Order		Biography: Dale Carnegie				"Cracker: The Mad Woman in the Attic" (1993) Robbie Coltrane.		Law & Order
CNN	23	World View		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	28	Comedy Net 3	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Aspen Comedy Festival II (R)		1 Night Stand	Comedy Net 3	Viva Variety	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	63	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Strange Planes		Wild Discovery: Elephants		Detectives "Short Fuse"		Treasures of the Earth		Wild Discovery: Elephants
ESPN	21	Up Close	Sportscenter		Major League	Soccer: New England Revolution at D.C. United.		Baseball Hall of Fame		Baseball		Sportscenter
LIFE	67	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"I'm to Say Goodbye" (1997, Drama) Eva Marie Saint.				Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	65	MTV Live	Viewers	Jams Countdown (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Jenny M.	Alt.films-MTV	Oddville, MTV	Loveline (R)
NICK	68	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug		Secret of Alex	Happy Days	Happy Days	Bewitched	I Love Lucy	Odd Couple	Taxi	Newhart
SCIFI	66	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Buzz (R)	Sequest DSV (In Stereo)		Forever Knight (In Stereo)		Friday the 13th: The Series		Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Buzz (R)
TLC	26	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Medical Detect	Trauma-ER	Inferno-Storm King Mtn.		Future Fantastic (R)		Medical Detect	Trauma-ER
TNT	30	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		"Firepower" (1992, Drama) Bill Paxton. Ice T.		Boxing (In Stereo Live)		"The Warriors" (1979, Drama) Michael Beck, James Remar
USA	62	Renegade (In Stereo)		Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger				"The Last Supper" (1995) Cameron Diaz. (R)		Ck. "God's Chillin" (In Stereo)
HBO	60	(5:00) "Fly Away Home" (1996)		Flashback (R) (In Stereo)		"Space Jam" (1996) Michael Jordan. (PG)		"Eyewitness" (1996, Suspense) Kiefer Sutherland. (R)		"Executive Decision" (1996, Suspense) Kurt Russell. (R)
MAX	59	"Absence of Malice" (1981, Drama) Paul Newman. (PG)				"Fairytale" (1996, Suspense) Harvey Keitel. (R)		"Mrs. Winterbourne" (1996) Shirley MacLaine. (PG-13)		"Powder" (1995, Drama) Mary Steenburgen. (PG-13)
SHOW	61	(4:50) "September" (1995, Drama) Jacqueline Bisset. (In Stereo)

Bruno By C. Baldwin

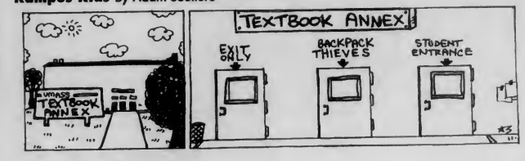
Robotman By Jim Meddick



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley



Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Loedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Inadvertently, you may cause strife between two people who are very close to you today. What you begin, you must stop immediately!

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You are likely to be attracted to someone else's manner today, but that doesn't mean you have to convert to his or her ways entirely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You will face a chalenge before the day is out, and only your resolve will see you through. You must be firm, resolute and decided.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You must be sure that your little games are not misunderstood by those who haven't played for very long. Explain your rules clearly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may prove on eof the moodiest individuals in the Zodiac today, thanks to a sudden shift in what is most important to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You are likely to find yourself engaged in a fight to the finish over who will control a pet project at work. Try to compromise.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Take care that your pride doesn't prove an overwhelming obstacle today. You are going to have to admit that perhaps you've been mistaken.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Your organizational skills may let you down today, so you must be prepared to trust someone else who can come in and save the day for you.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — This is a good day for you to turn over a new leaf and concentrate on those things which can be most beneficial to you and those around you.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Even the most subtle changes can have far-reaching effects at this time. Do not hesitate to do those things which instincts prompt.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Relationship issues may be tested today as you come up against an obstacle that threatens to isolate you for a time. Stay in touch!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Your unpredictabiltiy today is the very thing that can give you the advantage over your most formidable opponents. Do not telegaph your next move!

Quote of the Day

"Liberty, equality, fraternity, or death!"

–motto of the French republic

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Ms'am, we're filming an episode of 'Real Adventures of the Highway Patrol.' Even though all we've got you on is speeding, would you mind making a break for the woods and letting Randy here tackle you?"

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Kielbasa Grinder
Chicken Burrito
DINNER
Korean Night

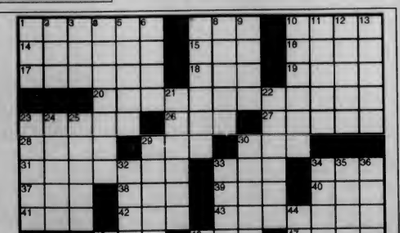
Worcester
LUNCH
Chicken Burrito
Stir Fry Pasta and Vegetables
ZBU Tomato Sauce
Bean Burrito
DINNER
Korean Night

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Chicken Burrito
DINNER
Korean Night

Berkshire
LUNCH
Chicken Burrito
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Chef's Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Bean Burrito
DINNER
Korean Night

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Chris Stomm
Photo Technition	Brian McDermott
Copy Editor	Petra von Ziegesar
Production Supervisor	Rob Snow
Production Staff	Joe Savitch, Mike Krozy



ACROSS
1 Ms. Streisand
7 Kettle
10 Earthenware jar
14 Toughen
15 Writer Tan
16 "The First —"
17 Poem part
18 The — of luxury
19 Pace
20 "Drink up!"
23 Talent
26 — pro nobis
27 Luau welcome
28 Football's Swann
29 Pigpen
30 Rapper Dr. —
31 Paper-folding art
33 "Diamonds — Forever"
34 Chart
37 Soak (flax)
38 Chairman —
39 Poorly ill
40 Gold: Sp.
41 Quiet — mouse
42 Coffee container
43 Kind of computer
45 Supermodel Carol
46 Evergreen
47 Face part
48 Chatter
51 Earth's star
52 Colts' fathers
53 Firefly
56 Land measure
57 Plus
58 Stick
62 High-schooler
63 Chill
64 George Clooney role
65 Natural resources
66 Guided
67 Followed

DOWN
1 —-relief
2 Aardvark's prey
3 Genetic material
4 Learning
5 Shaver's need
6 "There ought to be —"
7 Trivial
8 Old cattle town
9 The strong silent —
10 Reduced for clearance
11 Sweepstakes
12 Parasite
13 Omega's opposite
21 Idea
22 Sheik's households
23 Plant life
24 Stringed instruments
25 Actress Ekberg
29 Brainy
30 Less damp
32 Magic charm
33 Summing up
34 Engine
35 Originated
36 Vatican heads
44 Round Table members
45 Site of the Parthenon
48 Greek philosopher
49 Kitchen tool
50 Match
51 Subsequently
52 Egypt's neighbor
54 Finger part
55 Baseball's Ruth
59 Ostrich's cousin
60 Actress — Dawn Chong
61 Conclusion

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

9-16-97 © 1997, United Feature Syndicate

Baseball plan for realignment

You've heard the realignment talk. Everyone and their mom has a plan on how to do it.

Well, I've heard your mom's plan, and it doesn't work.

So I figure it's about time I threw down my little plan.

My plan is as ambitious as the "Marshall Plan" of 1947 and as daring as the "Louisiana Purchase" of 1803.

Luke Meredith

Oh yeah. Its big.

The name, alas, isn't that great. I'm just calling it: "Luke Meredith's Guide to the Future of Baseball."

The plan?

Six divisions, no leagues. Regionalities reign. Eight team playoffs. Emphasize divisional match-ups. Cute names for all these new divisions. And for God sakes, no more Bud Selig.

•MLB East
Boston Red Sox
New York Yankees
New York Mets
Philadelphia Phillies
Baltimore Orioles

A good start. All are big markets teams, which is why Montreal, a seemingly geographical match, doesn't fit here. This division would be a powerhouse, but remember, they'll be knocking heads with each other half the time.

•MLB Atlantic
Atlanta Braves
Florida Marlins
Tampa Bay Devil Rays
Houston Astros
Texas Rangers

Houston isn't too close, but close enough. The Devil Rays should be competitive in 2–4 years, given the current expansion set–up. This puts Texas and the Astros together, and gives us an instant Rays–Marlins rivalry. Plus, they have the Braves. This would force Houston to either build a new stadium or make that oft–threatened dash to Charlotte, (if the Twins don't beat them to it.)

•MLB
Cleveland Indians
Toronto Blue Jays
Detroit Tigers
Chicago Cubs
Chicago White Sox

The Cubs and White Sox already hate each other, so that would heat things up. Once Detroit gets that new park, this will be a revenue–rich division, provided they can get people to the ballpark. All established ball clubs, and the Blue Jays and White Sox could use the kick in the butt Cleveland and the Cubs would dish them — attendance wise at least.

•MLB Central
Pittsburgh Pirates
Cincinnati Reds
Minnesota Twins
Milwaukee Brewers
Montreal Expos

Second choice. "MLB Have–nots." But remember, winning your division is the key, and these teams can afford to play each other, making for an even race.

•MLB West
Kansas City Royals
St. Louis Cardinals
Colorado Rockies
Seattle Mariners
Arizona Diamondbacks

Kansas City and St. Louis might have trouble keeping up, but they're strong clubs in terms of fan, base and tradition.

•MLB Pacific
Los Angeles Dodgers
Anaheim Angels
San Francisco Giants
Oakland Athletics
San Diego Padres

This way, all of California's together, making for intense rivalries. Plus, it keeps the Giants and Dodgers together.

The schedule would be big here. Emphasize divisional rivalries, because that's the main reason we'll do this in the first place.

Divisional play— 88 games, which was what you did before realignment in 1969. For instance, the Red Sox would play the Yankees 22 times, the Mets 22 times, etc.

Turn to Meredith, page 7

Men's Cross Country finishes 2nd to Northeastern in first meet

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Correspondent

On the first cross country meet of the regular season at Franklin Park in Boston, the Massachusetts men's cross country team placed a respectable second in a tri–meet with Iona and Northeastern. Ryan Carrara, Peter Gleason, and Brendan Sullivan led the way for head coach Ken O'Brien with top 10 finishes for the Minutemen. They placed fifth, sixth, and ninth, respectively.

Carrara, who ran a time of 25:37, was only eight seconds out of first place, which was held by Iona's Corey Munn. Last year, Carrara placed 14th at the Atlantic 10 Championship meet, and has been publicly dubbed the leader of the team this year. He could not muster enough speed from his teammates, however, as the UMass total team score of 47 was not as close to Iona's 21.

The Minutemen could not overcome a strong performance by the Iona runners, who claimed the top three race positions, as well as six out of the top 10. Munn, Chip McGair, Connor McGee, Steve Bishop, Jay Wassell, and Brian Opperman all slid by UMass and Northeastern athletes to give the winning team an overwhelming lead.

Although their finishes did not warrant an overall victory, the impressive times of the younger members of the Massachusetts cross country team seem to project future success. Gleason, Sean Murphy, who came in 17th, and Kevin Somer, who came in 18th, are all sophomores. Sullivan, placing ninth, is only a freshman. In fact, Carrara, a senior, is one of only six upperclassmen — the only one that placed.

"The rest of our kids [besides Carrara] have run in their share of meets," O'Brien said. "But they have not been responsible for scoring positions during competitions. We'll take our bumps and bruises early, however as time goes on I think a group of three or four will emerge."

"Brendan has the credentials and should step in right away," O'Brien said. "Despite his lack of experience at the college level, his ability will override the experience."

This weekend, the bumps and bruises came from a talented Iona group, but the UMass men figure to gain experience and savvy as the season progresses.

"We must approach the first month as time when we see where we stand and see how they adjust. There is enough talent on this team that if they can mentally learn their lessons, that we can have a good second half of the season," O'Brien said.

The convincing defeat of the Northeastern squad gives the Minutemen something to work with early on. The Huskies managed only one runner in the top ten, being Nate Thompson in the fourth position. This dismantling of Northeastern should leave UMass optimistic as they head into the September 20th meet in Vermont against the Boston University Terriers and Maine Black Bears. Ken O'Brien's previous achievements against Atlantic 10 competition, which includes 11 straight top three finishes in the conference championship meet, should keep him prepared for this upcoming A–10 matchup. In a preseason poll, Massachusetts was predicted to finish third in the conference.

Carrara, Sullivan, Gleason, and the rest of the team look to come up strong in Vermont while learning from the meet at Franklin Park.

"Many of these men have the potential," said O'Brien. "They are now a year older and some of them will be thrust into a position where they have to compete at a higher level. Our success will be reflective in how they can adapt to competing at that level."

Queens College bloodies UM 8-5 in tournament

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

AMHERST— A little bad blood in the pool? Probably.

A little Brian Stahl blood in the pool? Definitely.

A physical battle between the Marsachusetts men's water polo squad and Queens College resulted in the ejection of Stahl after a second–quarter altercation with a referee, and an 8–5 UMass loss.

However, the Minutemen won both of their previous matches in their first Collegiate Water Polo Association league tournament of the season. UMass (7–1) also thumped Harvard on Friday night.

Queens College 8, UMass 5

Struggling with the tremendously physical defensive effort of the Queens two–meter players, Stahl, an All–America candidate, began to get frustrated. He spun aggresively in the hole, took an elbow to the mouth and was forced to leave the pool with a cut lip late in the first quarter.

Minutes after he re–entered the pool late in the second quarter, Stahl was called for an offensive penalty, then ejected for arguing with the referee while swimming back on defense.

UMass coach Russ Yarworth was visibly and demonstratively furious with his junior superstar, who still struggles with keeping his emotions in check.

By that time though, the Minutemen were already trailing Queens 5–1, well on their first loss of the season.

That second–quarter Queens outburst was led by junior field player Andre Doria who, in the span of 45 seconds, scored a natural hat trick that sunk the hopes of the already visibly frustrated Minutemen.

After a closed–door meeting at half–time — unusual in water polo when most of the time teams meet at opposite corners of the pool — Yarworth's club came out of halftime rather ominously when sophomore Rich Slingluff didn't even try to win the opening swim off.

But, the Minutemen started to play better, forcing a stalemate for the first three–and–a–half minutes of

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Junior Aldo Roman led the Massachusetts water polo team to a 3–1 record over the weekend, with wins over Harvard, Lehman and Iona.

Turn to POLO, page 7

Volleyball falls to No.1 ranked Nittany Lions

By Jorma Kansonen
Collegian Staff

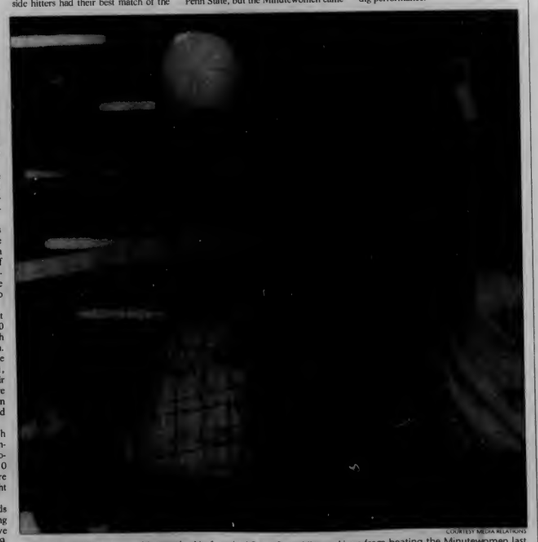
Basic reasoning states that when you give a team a No. 1 national ranking, they will probably be pretty good.

That is what the Massachusetts volleyball team faced in the final of the Penn State Classic last Saturday, with the No. 1 Nittany Lions showing why they're ranked so high with a 3–0 win (15–3, 15–0, 15–9) over the Minutewomen before a crowd of 3,190 at Recreation Hall.

Although the match against Penn State (9–0) was an event for UMass (4–5), who had to deal with the largest crowd the program has witnessed in its history, the benchmark last weekend was coach Bonnie Kenny's 100th career win for the UMass program — a 3–2 victory over West Virginia.

Kenny deflected any sort of praise for that career bench mark, and instead focused on the people who got her program to this key juncture in its development.

"All the credit goes to the players we've had here," Kenny said, about the 100–win mark. "Of course, we have a long way to go to get to the level of Penn State. But, we've had some student–athletes here that have really made the commitment to put in the work to win. This goes to them."



The two wins this past weekend that pushed Kenny's career mark to 100 wins were against University of North Carolina–Asheville and West Virginia. The Minutewomen defeated the Bulldogs by a 3–1 score (15–2, 15–11, 5–15, 15– 2), and were paced by their All–Tournament selection, sophomore middle blocker Jill Meyers, who had an 18–kill performance, with five digs and two blocks.

Meyers had plenty of help, with senior outside hitter Leslie Nolan contributing 12 kills and nine digs, sophomore Karl Hogancamp putting in 10 kills and nine digs, and sophomore Sarah Watters adding 10 kills and eight assists in the win.

UMass took the next step towards facing the Nittany Lions by defeating West Virginia on Saturday in a five game thriller, 15–17, 15–8, 7–15, 15–9, 15–13. Watters had a career–high 23 digs, while pacing the Minutewoman offense with 20 kills. Career highs abounded, with freshman setter Jennifer Drennan setting a new individual mark with 61 assists in the match.

"We played very well against UNC–Asheville," Kenny said. "Our outside hitters had their best match of the season, and Nolan and Watters really played well for us. The West Virginia match was great, and we came back to win it."

It would have been unrealistic to think that UMass had a chance to defeat Penn State, but the Minutewomen came out and proved they could stay with the Nittany Lions. In the match clinching 15–9 loss for UMass, the Minutewomen scored the most points against Penn State this season. Hogancamp led UMass in the match with a nine kill, 11 dig performance.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Not even Jill Meyers could stop the No.1 ranked Penn State Nittany Lions from beating the Minutewomen last weekend.

C's fans wait for tickets

BOSTON — They began lining up at the FleetCenter about 21 hours before the ticket window opened Saturday, and about 50 diehards even had a slumber party inside the arena.

They were there early for first crack at the choice seats on the choice dates. But they weren't there for a rock concert, an appearance by the Pope or even professional wrestling.

They were there for the Boston Celtics.

But not the same Boston Celtics that finished 15-67 last year for the worst record in the NBA and the worst record in the club's 51 seasons. They were there for the new Celtics — Rick Pitino, Ron Mercer, Chauncey Billups, Chris Mills, Travis Knight, etc.

"We're excited about all the new players and just wanted to get a chance to see them this year," David Webster of Brookline said.

Webster and his 12-year-old son, Evan, were the first people in line at 1:30 p.m. Friday for single-game tickets. By the time the ticket windows opened at 10 a.m. Saturday, about 1,000 basketball fans were lining Causeway Street.

After last season, the Celtics realized that things must change — and they have. In addition to cleaning its personnel house, the team's marketers have updated the tradition-rich Celtics ways. On Saturday, the Celtics rewarded those in line for tickets with a mini-Fan Fest. There was food, music, basketball hoops, card tricks and free Celtics promotional materials.

Fans even got to watch another new Celtic, Tyus Edney, shoot a few foul shots.

"I heard about the excitement before I got here and it is terrific to hear," Edney said, who is expected to back up the rookie Billups at point guard. "I am really excited about the turnout today and can't wait to start playing."

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 11 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Wednesday, September 17, 1997

Doh! What a house!

Henderson, Nev. is home to an exact replica of the house the cartoon Simpsons call home. See story inside (see Arts & Living, page 5).

It Ott–ta be wonderful

Senior defender Amy Ottá will help lead a tough UMass defense against the Ells of Yale on the road today at 3:30 p.m. (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Doctor: Diana's bodyguard able to talk

PARIS (AP) — The man who may hold the key to the mystery of why Princess Diana's Mercedes crashed in a Paris tunnel — bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones — is conscious and able to communicate, doctors said yesterday.

The news raised hopes that investigators could soon question the 29-year-old British former paratrooper and sole survivor of the high-speed crash last month.

The accident in the early-morning hours of Aug. 31 killed Diana, her companion, Dodi Fayed, and driver Henri Paul.

Investigators have been focusing on Paul, who was legally drunk and on Prozac at the time of the crash. But they also are looking at the role of paparazzi who were pursuing the Mercedes once it left Paris' Ritz Hotel.

Investigators had not yet questioned Rees-Jones on last night, but were expected to do so within days. However, ABC news yesterday quoted a hospital source as saying that Rees-Jones remembers nothing of the events after leaving the hotel.

"The condition of Mr. Trevor Rees-Jones has noticeably improved," said Pierre Coriat, chief of anesthesiology at the Pitie-Salpetriere hospital.

NATION

Air Force gives up search for bombs

EAGLE, Colo. (AP) — Frustrated and puzzled after a more than two-month sweep, the Air Force yesterday gave up the search for the four 500-pound bombs from an A-10 warplane that crashed mysteriously in the Rockies.

"I'm not going to speculate as to where they are. I'm just going to stick to the facts," Brig. Gen. Donald Streater said. "We have not found any conclusive evidence of the bombs."

During the search of 13,300-foot Gold Dust Peak, Air Force crews recovered the remains of A-10 pilot Capt. Craig Button along with nine tons of debris from the 13-ton aircraft, but found no trace of the bombs.

Radar, reconnaissance flights and magnetometer devices were used in the hunt for the bombs, and a Navy diver explored one of the seven lakes in the area, the general said.

An environmental recovery company will continue to collect debris until the snow returns, probably in about two weeks, but Streater said the Air Force has no plans to resume the search for the bombs in the spring.

Button veered off course April 2 during a training run in Arizona for reasons Air Force officials still don't know. The debris was found about 15 miles southwest of Vail more than two weeks later.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 75 LOW: 59	HIGH: 73 LOW: 57	HIGH: 73 LOW: 48

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegion

Racial motive may be behind vandalism to Amherst store

By Paul Hayes
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — While Amherst Typewriter and Computer owner Robert Green picks up the pieces following an act of vandalism committed early Sunday morning, angered residents debate whether race was a motivating factor behind the incident.

According to the Hampshire Gazette, an eyewitness not wishing to be identified reported seeing three tall white males shatter the display window and smear feces on the storefront of Amherst Typewriter early Sunday morning.

Amherst police denied knowledge of an eyewitness or description of the suspects.

Vandals also stole a notebook computer worth $150 from the storefront display, and broke a laptop computer worth $400.

Green, an African–American, who has been an Amherst residents for 24 years, and owner and operator of Amherst Typewriter for 20 years, will have to pay over $1,000 out of his own pocket to cover the damages, because coverage from their insurance didn't begin until the Tuesday after the incident.

Green's financial difficulties are compounded by the amount of money he spent to move this summer into his new Amity Street location, which had been unoccupied for 44 years and required extensive renovation.

He made the move to avoid paying an increased rent for his prior location on North Pleasant Street.

Without a display window, he has also lost essential student business.

"A lot of times, people see something in the window," Green said. "They don't buy it, but they come back later."

Some residents said that they feel the attack on Amherst Typewriter was racially motivated, and have formed the group "Not In Our Town" (NIOT) to combat hate crimes.

Flo Stern, an Amherst resident, member of the critical issues committee of the Jewish Community of Amherst, and a NIOT member, said that this violent episode was not the first hate crime committed in Amherst recently, pointing out that racist letters had previously been found in typewriters outside Amherst Typewriter.

"We hope people know they won't get away with racism, sexism, anti–Semitism and homophobia," Stern said.

Green is unsure whether the incident was racially motivated or a prank, but said that it's inconsequential what the motivations were.

"People try to hang all sorts of reasons on incidents like this," he said. "But it wouldn't be any less painful if I was white in the same predicament."

A blessing

On the morning following the incident, Green said he burst into tears at the sight of his store. He then hung a sign on his smashed window asking residents the question he asked himself, "Why?"

He said that while he was on his knees on the sidewalk cutting boards with which to secure the window, seven or eight separate groups of guys mockingly repeated, "Why, why?" as they passed by.

The next day, his sign was defaced.

"Why would people be so mean–spirited as to pick on people in their misery?" Green said.

He said that people suggested that he put a wire screen over his window like they do in cities, which he vehemently opposed.

"I said hell no, that's what evil people want," he said. "I won't be driven out or intimidated."

Green said, however, that he is worried that his family might be put in a dangerous position.

Following the vandalism, Green has experienced an outpouring of support from the community in addition to Not In Our Town. Many residents have donated money to help him pay the costs for the repairs.

"[Recently] a person waited for me at my store door, 80– years–old, apologizing for something she didn't do," he said. "And gave $10 to help me."

Others have offered to help out in his store, including a business woman and a white teenager, neither of whom he'd met before.

Green said if the vandals' intentions were to make him feel bad, then they were immediately successful, but now he thinks what happened was a blessing.

"I got to see a side of people I'd never seen or known," he said, "and I feel better than ever."

THANG VO COLLEGIAN

Vandalism at the Amherst Typewriter and Computer Store is suspected to be racially motivated.

I'll take...

KEN MC DONALD/ COLLEGIAN

Four year–old Lia Kaz chooses a drink at the Blue Moon Cafe in Amherst yesterday afternoon.

Bomb explodes in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A bomb exploded yesterday at a police station outside Belfast, complicating Northern Ireland's peace talks and making pro–British unionists even more reluctant to negotiate with old enemies.

There was no claim of responsibility for the blast, and no one was injured. The Irish Republican Army denied it was behind the bombing, which damaged the police station at Markethill, 35 miles southwest of Belfast.

But pro–British unionists still pointed the finger at the IRA, and anti–Catholic paramilitary groups threatened retaliation.

"At a time when almost everyone is working hard to try and get talks under way... we still have sinister people who are prepared to engage in this type of pointless terrorism," said Northern Ireland Secretary Mo Mowlam, the senior British official in Northern Ireland.

The chairman of the talks, former U.S. Sen. George Mitchell, urged the province's leaders "not to give in to those who use these reprehensible and immoral tactics."

"It is obvious that those who planted the bomb are attempting to damage this talks process and the inclusive nature of it," said Ireland's foreign secretary, Ray Burke.

The Ulster Unionists, the largest pro–British Protestant party, withdrew from the talks Monday when the IRA–allied Sinn Fein party joined, in part because the IRA said it had "problems" with the principles of nonviolence that its political ally, Sinn Fein, had affirmed.

Ulster Unionist leader David Trimble met with Mowlam late yesterday as pressure from Protestants grew for him to follow smaller pro–British parties and pull out of the talks.

Trimble said his party had formally complained about Sinn Fein's involvement in the negotiations before the bombing.

"It's now a matter for the chairman and the secretary of state to answer the question: 'What happens to Sinn Fein now that this has happened?'" Trimble said.

Turn to IRELAND, page 3

Everywoman's Center presents annual reception

By Christine Soh
Collegian Staff

The Women of Color Program of the Everywoman's Center will be hosting the fifth annual Woman of Color (WOC) Reception on Thursday, Sept. 18.

Traditionally, the WOC Reception has become a forum for panel discussions, films, lectures and entertainment. Presenters in the past have included Yuri Kochiyama, a noted activist from Harlem and comedian Emma Gay.

This year awards will be presented to six members of the University of Massachusetts community. These six women are being honored for their commitment to women of color and for being mentors, as well as friends, to young women in general.

Recipients include Professor Deirdre Almeida from the School of Education. Affectionately known as Deedee, Almeida has collaborated with students and the WOC Program as an advisor for childcare and workstudy, in addition to academics.

Joyce White Deer Vincent, Director of the Dr. Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center, has been an indispensable source for students and others. She has made herself available for mutual collaborations on more programmatic levels.

Lucy Mae San Pablo Burns, a graduate student who also worked as New WORLD Theater's Access and Education Coordinator, has facilitated talkbacks for many of their productions. Burns has also played a vital role in the ongoing struggle for Asian American Studies at UMass.

Professor Alexandria Deschamps from the Women's Studies Department, recently received her Ph.D in Educational Policy, Research and Administration in 1996. She is known for her outreach.

Professor Jennifer Ire, also from Women's Studies, is known for bringing resources to the WOC program. She advises on an academic as well as personal level.

Jannette Berrios of the Bilingual Collegiate Program has been a staunch advocate for people of color, particularly Latinas. She has also collaborated with other programs on campus and used to be involved with the Summa program.

Aside from the awards ceremony, there will also be a performance by Jane Sapp and "The Voices of Today." This group of young teens will perform with music, verse and thoughts about their visions for the future.

Weld gives up fight against Helms

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — William F. Weld, the moderate Republican nominated by President Clinton to be U.S. ambassador to Mexico, abandoned his fight against conservative Sen. Jesse Helms yesterday and told the White House to withdraw his nomination. Clinton agreed to do so.

In a White House news conference, the former Massachusetts governor said, "I asked President Clinton to withdraw my name... so I can go back to New England, where no one has to approach the government on bended knee to ask it to do its duty."

He said he would have been nominated if a confirmation hearing had not been blocked by Helms — the conservative North Carolina senator he derisively called "that man."

He praised Clinton for fighting on his behalf.

"The president has stood treetops tall on this entire matter," Weld said. Clinton did not appear with Weld. but "the man has a day job," he said. Though the nomination was not made official until July 23, Clinton let it be known weeks earlier that he would cross party lines to tap the popular Republican governor for the post. The nomination sparked an explosive debate in the Republican ranks, with moderates lining up behind Weld and conservatives siding with the prickly Helms.

The White House's support of the nominee wavered from time to time, though Clinton's political aides immediately recognized the benefits of challenging Helms.

"To the extent that people look at Jesse Helms as the face of the Republican Party, I think that carries a certain amount of freight with it," Weld said.

Weld made his announcement in the White House briefing room, a setting normally used by presidents and their press secretaries — not failed ambassadorial nominees.

Weld said he will remain active in politics, though he's returning to the private sector for now.

"I've had enough of Washington for the next little while," he said.

Perhaps positioning himself as an independent-minded moderate, Weld lashed out at Washington and Helms.

He called Washington "a funny town" and accused Helms of criticizing him "as though shot from gunn."

"It's evident that for some reason he was laying in wait for me," Weld said.

And he offered advice to Clinton's next nominee: "Stand up for your rights. If not, they'll run right over you."

Aides said today the president had no ready candidate to replace Weld. Gov. Bob Miller, a Democrat from Nevada, has been mentioned as a possibility, but aides note that the state's lieutenant governor, Lonnie Hammargren, is a Republican.

Weld said he was afraid Helms and conservative Republicans would attack other Clinton initiatives — such as "fast track" authority for trade agreements — if he continued to fight.

Press secretary Mike McCurry said a new nominee would not be named soon. The selection process "is back at the starting point now," he said.

Helms, (R-N.C.), is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He refused to grant his fellow Republican a hearing, saying that Weld was "a little loose with his lips."

He also said Weld, a moderate on many issues, including his backing of the medical use of marijuana, was the incorrect choice for a posting in Mexico, which has long struggled to fight drug traffickers.

Weld said Helms disliked his political philosophy, not his drug record. He resigned as governor on July 29 to head to Capitol Hill to make his case personally.

As recently as Sunday, Weld said, public opinion could force the Senate to at least vote on his stalled nomination.

"I'd anticipated he'd at one point see the wisdom of withdrawing his nomination because it wasn't going to be confirmed," Lott told a group of reporters today, adding that Weld "conducted himself outrageously" by personally attacking Helms. "The nominee didn't handle himself well."

Even after Clinton and scores of senators called on Helms to grant Weld a hearing, and fellow Republican Richard Lugar called Helms "dictatorial," the senator refused. That forced an extraordinary meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee on Friday in which Helms asserted his right to block a nomination.

AIDS infection increasing among women, especially in South

By Paul A. Driscoll
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The AIDS infection rate is rising among women, especially those living in the South, and transmission through sex with infected men has outpaced intravenous drug use, federal researchers say.

"Prevention efforts remain critical," the researchers said, particularly since those women who are most at risk can be difficult to educate because of their poverty, substance abuse, alcoholism and other problems.

From 1991 through 1995, the number of women diagnosed with AIDS increased by 63 percent versus 12.8 percent for men.

By the end of 1995, 67,400 women nationwide had been diagnosed as having AIDS since the epidemic began, with 11,500 of them being diagnosed in 1995.

The researchers did not immediately have figures yesterday on the total number of men infected.

Throughout the 1980s and early 1990s, the disease was spread in women primarily through sharing injection drug needles. But by 1993, sex with infected men had become the main culprit and two years later had risen to 52 percent of the cases nationwide. In the South, it was even worse — 58 percent.

More up-to-date data to be released later this week will show the trend continuing, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The trend toward infection through sex is particularly evident for women under 25, who are 2 1/2 times more likely to have been infected through heterosexual contact than by injecting drugs, said CDC epidemiologist Dr. Pascale M. Wortley, chief researcher of the study.

"So it's critical to reach young people before they reach the age of having sex and injecting drugs," she said. "The key is to get them before they even start."

The findings highlight the continuing spread of the disease despite the success of new drugs in prolonging life, said Daniel Zingale, executive director of AIDS Action, an advocacy group.

"There has been a lot of attention on the declining death rate... this is the rest of the story," Zingale said.

The study also found evidence suggesting that many adolescent women become infected by older men and that in cases of a large age gap the women are less likely to insist on using condoms.

Former state senator McGovern announces candidacy for governor

By Martin Finucane
Associated Press

BOSTON — Former state Sen. Patricia McGovern vowed to bring a woman's perspective to the governor's race and to focus on improving education and health care as she announced her candidacy yesterday.

"Frankly, it is time that Massachusetts finally breaks through the glass ceiling," McGovern, 56, of Andover, said in a news conference at a downtown hotel attended by about 50 supporters, most of them women.

McGovern, who served six terms in the state Senate from 1981 to 1993 and eight years in the influential post of Ways and Means chairman, will be competing with Attorney General Scott Harshbarger for the Democratic nomination.

Former Boston Mayor Raymond L. Flynn is also expected to announce his candidacy.

If elected, McGovern would be the first woman governor in Massachusetts. There are no women holding statewide office either in Congress or at the Statehouse.

McGovern called for pre-kindergarten and compulsory full-day kindergarten as a way of giving children a good start in life. And she promised to make sure the state has the "finest public state college system in the United States of America."

She also promised to fight to make health care more available and affordable. "We've got to make sure people are treated with the respect they deserve," she said.

A leader in the Legislature during a period in which the state's finances turned sour and a major tax increase was enacted, McGovern portrayed herself as someone who had warned of fiscal problems and taken the lead in fighting them.

"I was the voice of reason during the latter part of the 1980s," she said. "I spoke out first. I spoke out earliest. I spoke out loudest."

She said she supported the current proposal to roll back the income tax from 5.95 percent to 5 percent. McGovern supported the tax increase that brought rates to that level, but she said it was temporary.

She declined to promise that she would never raise taxes, saying the "no new taxes" pledge taken by former GOP Gov. William F. Weld and acting Gov. Paul Cellucci were "a fraud."

"Respectable and honest people and decent people don't take these pledges," she said.

Cellucci, who boasts of 20 tax cuts during the Weld-Cellucci years, said he was "not interested in starting the 1998 campaign for governor. I am trying to focus on doing my job and getting things done for the people of this state."

But he said that when he and Weld arrived in 1991, "This state was a fiscal basket case, thanks to Pat McGovern and the Democrats."

As for McGovern's leaving the door open to taxes, Cellucci said, "That's a real difference, in general, between Democrats and Republicans. We tried their way back in the late 1980s. Look where it got us."

Since leaving office, McGovern has worked as a partner at the Boston law firm, Goulston & Storrs. She also has offered opinions as a panelist on WCVB-TV's "Five on Five" and chaired the commission that put together the merger between Boston City Hospital and University Hospital.

If she gets by Harshbarger and Flynn in the Democratic primary, she would face either Cellucci or Treasurer Joe Malone, who are competing for the Republican gubernatorial primary.

McGovern had been looking at a run for state treasurer. Her name quickly surfaced, however, at the end of August when Democratic U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, D-Mass., announced that he was not going to run.

Mental Health Groups Fall '97

MONDAY

To Your Health
This groups is for students who realize that they cannot consistently control their use of alcohol and /or other drugs and who wish to establish a healthier lifestyle. This group will remain open to new members throughout most of the semester.
Monday, 3:45 - 5 p.m.

TUESDAY

Succeeding at UMASS as a Latino/a Student
This group will be a safe place for Latino/a students to explore their experiences as UMASS students. Participants will help each other learn techniques for succeeding in a multicultural world. This group will be conducted (mainly) in Spanish.
Tuesday, 2:30 - 3:45pm.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

Making Connections
This 8 week group will help members gain awareness of their relationship styles. It will also be possible to learn skills for forming more positive and lasting relationships.
Tuesday, 5:30 - 7 p.m.

WEDNESDAY

When Families Aren't Perfect
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMASS students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5pm.

Groups are FREE OF CHARGE for UMASS student Health Plan members, Kaiser UHS Plan Members, and Five College students. Most groups begin in early Fall and require a pre-group interview. For further information please call the Mental Health Division of University Health Services at 545-2337, Mon - Fri, 8:00am - 5pm.

THURSDAY

Women's Therapy Group
This group is open to OLDER women students and UHS Kaiser Plan Members who would like to address various women's concerns including: self esteem, relationship issues, academic isolation and uncertainty about long-range career goals.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30am.

Stress & the New UMASS Student
A 4 week group, to help new and incoming transfer students learn strategies for coping with college stress. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself. Thursday, 2:30 - 4:00p.m.

Coed Therapy Group for Older Students
This group provides an opportunity to work on those problems which interfere with personal and academic life, such as lack of intimacy, loneliness, lowered self esteem and concerns of professional identity. Thursday, 3:30 - 5pm.

MORE Groups Beginning IN LATE FALL

The Art & Science of Relaxation
In this workshop members will learn several valuable strategies for recognizing and managing stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5pm.

(Which) Home For The Holidays
A 5 week group to help students from separated/divorced families cope with their particular holiday stressors. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

COMPLIMENTARY PASSES
EXCLUSIVELY FOR AMERICAN EXPRESS® CARDMEMBERS.

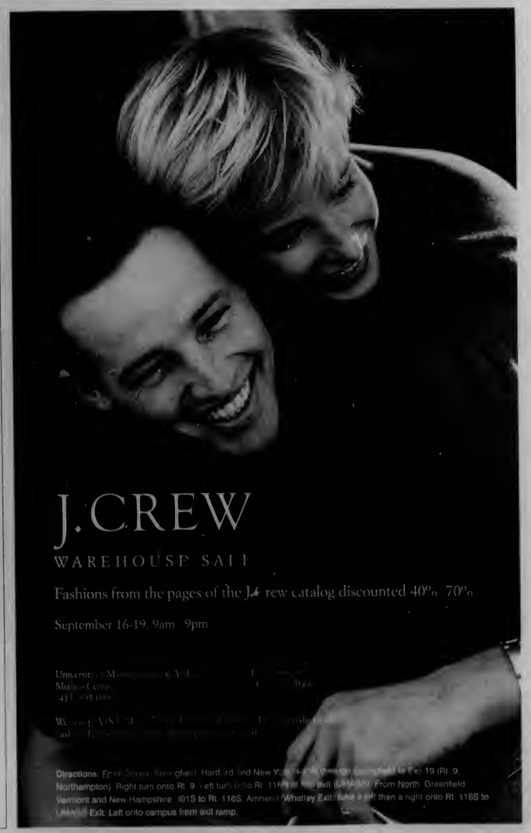
WHEN & WHERE.
September 17, 8:00 pm
AMC Hampshire 6 Theatre

WHAT.
Cardmembers get two complimentary passes to a preview screening of DreamWorks Pictures' new film The Peacemaker, to be released 9/26/97.

HOW.
Just bring the American Express® Card or Optima® Card and your student ID to the location listed below to pick up your passes.

NOW.
If you're not yet a Cardmember and would like to take part in our exclusive previews, it's easy to apply for the Card. Just call 1-800-942-AMEX, ext. 4114.

MORE TO COME.
The Peacemaker is one in a series of five major motion pictures to be previewed on your campus this year, compliments of American Express.



AFI PREVIEW NIGHT

PICK UP YOUR TICKETS HERE.
University Center
September 15-17

AFI Entertainment Cards

©1997 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc

Craft Center opens for semester

Plenty of opportunities available for creativity for students

By Sarah Kimmel
Collegian Staff

The University Craft Center is opening tomorrow for the fall semester. This center is a craft supply store as well as an art center that dedicates its services to any students interested in the field of arts and crafts.

The Center offers a creative outlet for the student community. Silver, copper and brass jewelry making, beading, sewing, stained glass, silkscreening, photograph developing, leather crafting, ceramic molding and firing are among the many skills the Craft Center offers to its 4,000 members. If a medium is not offered and it is of some interest to the Craft Center's public, the materials will be purchased and made available upon request.

Membership to the Craft Center is free to all University of Massachusetts faculty, staff and students. There is a fee of $15 a semester or $25 a year to other students in the Five College area. Students must pay for their necessary materials, which are sold at cost, but all of the tools and machines are free to use. The majority of funding for the center is from the Student Activities Trust Fund.

For those students who do not know a certain skill that interests them, there are weekly workshops offered by the Craft Center staff to teach these areas of interest. These workshops are offered on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Liz Giza, an employee at the Craft Center, said, "Basically what I show in a beginning workshop I show here (in the center) every day. The difference is that in a workshop you get undivided attention."

The Craft Center was founded in 1971 and is under the direction of Paula Hodecker, the only permanent full-time staff member. There are also 14 student employees that are trained in the various areas of expertise.

"I just learned silver last year... I just picked it up from everyone who knew it... now I'm the area coordinator," said Giza.

The student employees not only teach members of the center the desired skills but they also create programming that is offered to the students. This October, the Craft Center is holding its second annual Fall Photo Expedition. This weekend long retreat is being held at the Outing Club's cabin in New Hampshire from Oct. 24 - 26. Twelve members of the Craft Center will hike in the mountains of N.H. and photograph nature as they receive instruction by the Center's photography coordinators.

The Craft Center is also co-sponsoring a Poetry Slam with the UMass Poetry Society this Friday night and an annual craft fair in early December. This crafts fair is composed of a combination of student and professional artists.

Craft Center employee, Marah MacRostie, said, "The Center is a good way to relax and to make presents for family and friends... you just need the desire to make something. We encourage everyone to come down, if only to look."

The Craft Center is located across from the Hatch in the Student Union basement

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Craft Center opens today for the fall semester. UMass students can take advantage of the many opportunities offered at the Craft Center.

KEN MC DONALD/ COLLEGIAN

What! Me worry?

Mike Katsoulis takes a break from classes yesterday afternoon under the shade of a tree by the campus pond.

■ Ireland

continued from page 1

Sinn Fein negotiator Gerry Kelly, who served a prison sentence for IRA bombings in the 1970s, said in a British Broadcasting Corp. radio interview that unionists "had latched onto this bomb and used it as another excuse to actually stay outside the talks." Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams said the bombing "should be an incentive for all political leaders and the two governments to make sure this process works."

Sinn Fein was barred from the talks when they began in June 1996 because of continuing IRA violence. An earlier IRA cease-fire ended in February 1996 with a bomb blast in east London.

So far, Protestant paramilitaries have been officially abiding by their own cease-fire. But a breakaway group, the Loyalist Volunteer Force, said yesterday it would retaliate for the bombing.

"No unionist worth his salt would sit in these talks with Sinn Fein/IRA," the statement said.

After a day of diplomacy Monday among unionist parties, the British and Irish governments had hoped that three of Northern Ireland's five Protestant parties would end their talks boycott. Mowlam met early yesterday with representatives of the Ulster Democratic Party and the Progressive Unionist party, both associated with pro-British paramilitary groups.

The parties now at the table, in addition to Sinn Fein, are the moderate Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party, which represents the largest block of Catholic opinion; the Alliance Party, a tiny women's rights party and an even tinier Socialist party.

City Cafe

NORTHAMPTON'S FAVORITE CLUB

*BILLIARD CLUB WITH PRIVATE ROOM
*3 BARS - 18 DRAFT BEERS
*150 SEAT RESTAURANT
*DJ & DANCING

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Thursday 9/18
7th Annual
Half-way to St. Pat's Day
The Blackthorn Band
No Cover, Must be 21
Register for 2 Roundtrip Tickets to Ireland

Sunday 9/21
5 Mile Road Race & Block Party
Food, Beer, & Bands
11am till 5pm

1 Pearl St, Northampton
584-4100

"Want a Greater Sense of Community on Campus?

Join Other Students, Faculty and Staff at a Conference on

"Building Communities at UMass: Breaking Barriers, Making Connections"

Friday, September 19, 1997
8:30 a.m.- 3:30p.m.
Campus Center 163

Preregistration is REQUIRED for the morning session and lunch

Afternoon sessions are open to the campus

For registration and more information, contact Chris Piquette, Office of Human Relations, at piquette@admin.umass.edu or 545-0851.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Improving the Connecticut focus on Environment

Jason Davis

Stephen Gephard remembers the days, not so long ago, when the water of the Connecticut River was so polluted that it was nearly phosphorescent, and entire populations of herring would die overnight from lack of oxygen.

In contrast, Gephard, senior fisheries biologist for Connecticut's Department of Environmental Protection, has some reason to be encouraged by the recent upswing in the river's health. Despite persistent problems, the Connecticut River has shown signs of recovery and recently earned recognition as the source of a "Wetland of International Importance" by Interior Secretary Bruce Babbit. In addition, the Connecticut River is under strong consideration for official designation as an American Heritage River, a distinction that would open up the possibility of federal aid and enhanced cleanup efforts.

So what's all the fuss about? The Connecticut River doesn't look all that special when viewed from bumper-to-bumper traffic on the Calvin Coolidge Bridge when driving to Northampton. It is interesting enough, however, to consider that the river, called "Quinnatucquet," or "The Long Tidal River" by Native Americans, stretches 410 miles from the Canadian border to its mouth on the Atlantic — longer than the Tiber, the Jordan or the Nile.

The tidal region is home to one of the richest ecological communities in the northeast and is also the last refuge for six species of plants and animals that are endangered globally. Thanks to intensive cleanup efforts, the lower Connecticut River supports the world's largest run of blueback herring and a very healthy population of American shad, both species important to recreational and commercial fishers.

To much fanfare, bald eagles, first sighted last winter, have been making a slow comeback. In fact, the eagles and their new hatchlings were even the subject of a well-watched cable access television show, and became unwitting symbols for the hope, promise and fragility of the ecological movement on the Connecticut River.

It wasn't always this way. Just a few years ago, most people viewed the river as the source of foul odors and sometimes fascinating colors. Tom Miner, director of the Connecticut River Watershed Council, set the scene.

"The river changed colors according to what dyes were being used in the mill and the water stank," he said. Most homeowners along the shores of the river were only too glad to see concrete dikes constructed along the banks in Hartford to control flood waters, allowing them to separate themselves both physically and emotionally from the poisoned river. The Connecticut eventually earned the unofficial classification of "America's Best Landscaped Sewer."

Although conditions have improved in recent years, thanks in large part to national fisheries conservation legislation and several clean water acts, the Connecticut still faces a multitude of threats. The vast quantities of agricultural and commercial pesticides that find their way into the river through run-off and erosion are toxic to aquatic life and extremely difficult to trace and regulate. Poor land use practices also lead to an influx of nitrogen-based fertilizers, creating algae blooms that rob the river of oxygen and disrupt aquatic ecosystems. This non-point pollution has become an increasingly difficult problem for the Connecticut and for other rivers worldwide.

Industrial and residential construction and waste near the banks is a constant threat, although it is often couched in politically ambiguous lingo such as "sustainable development" and "pollution rights." This waste, released directly into the river, includes the combined sewer overflows for the towns of Chicopee, Holyoke, West Springfield and Springfield.

Perhaps the greatest danger, given that federal legislation finally provided the needed push to begin cleaning the river, is the current trend towards passing off environmental responsibility to state governments, industry, and private individuals. Although this development is too new to judge its outcome for the Connecticut River, the effects can be seen in other attempts to dismantle federal legislation such as the Endangered Species Act, one of the cornerstones of environmental policy.

What can you do to help? One way to get involved is to take part in a hands-on environmental event, such as river cleanup. "The Source to the Sea Cleanup" is a one-day community service event that will focus on cleaning the Connecticut River and its tributaries on Saturday, Sept 27. Cleanups give students, faculty, legislators and local residents a chance to get together and help make a positive difference by participating in the environmental movement in a hands-on manner. They are also a good way to become more familiar with the Connecticut River, the problems it is facing, and long-term concerns and goals.

For more information, stop by the MASSPIRG office at 423A Student Union or call 545-0199.

Jason Davis is a UMass student.

A hair–raising issue

Seema Gangatirkar

I came to me suddenly the other day that we, as a human race, spend just way too much time on hair. Whether it's dying your hair with Kool-Aid or just taking care of your mane, there's just way too much going on with hair.

For instance, let's start with the simple act of buying shampoo.

Most of us agree that clean hair is preferable to dirty, greasy, smelly locks. So we have to buy shampoo to clear out all the gunk we've put into it.

Yeah — don't forget about the gunk. All those millions of dollars spent every year on must–have products like hair spray ("You too can have hair that does not move"), mousse and gel.

So you hit the drug store or supermarket or wherever the heck you buy shampoo. Now, in our consumer–driven capitalist market, there are times when we just have way too many choices. Just think how much shampoo is out there. How can you possibly make an informed decision?

Allegedly, shampoo ranks low on the consumer decision model. I beg to differ. Do you pick the green bottle over the red one? Or would you prefer Pert Plus' Ammonium Xylenesulfonate to Pantene's Methylchloroisothiazolinone?

So forget about the ingredients. Half of them probably cause cancer anyway. Let's think about the ads instead. You've probably seen Yasmine Bleeth promoting Pantene and tossing her luxurious tresses. I suppose advertisers think we consumers are silly enough to actually believe Yasmine's hair came out of a bottle.

In case we don't fall for the promise of hair like Yasmine Bleeth's, marketers try to tempt us with the catchy slogan "leaves no residue behind." I have yet to discover a shampoo which admits to leaving a residue on your hair. But obviously there must be such a shampoo, otherwise people wouldn't be backing away, saying, "Nope, not us. Not our product."

There are also the organic blends to appeal to the crunchy side of our nature. Or maybe you're the type to be tempted by aloe vera or the apple scented stuff. God only knows what aloe vera does for you, but I'm pretty sure any perfumed shampoo would attract bees.

Shampoo is only half your problem. Then you've got to work on picking a conditioner. A conditioner makes your hair bouncy and full — a full step closer to Yasmine Bleeth hair. If you're smart, you won't spend much time thinking about the different types of conditioner. Just throw one of the same brand as your shampoo into your cart and move on to your next problem.

After clean hair, there basically arises two polar opposite situations. Fifty percent of us are trying to get rid of excess hair and the other 50 percent are trying to grow hair.

Getting rid of excess hair seems to be a problem reserved exclusively for women. I don't know what we women are thinking when we invest tons of money for razors and shaving cream so that we can spend 40 minutes in the shower getting nicks.

And shaving is the easy way out. If you've ever spent five minutes looking at an infomercial on television, you know manufacturers are trying to sell the modern day equivalent of medieval torture devices. Most of us grimace when we see a smiling woman peel a huge chunk of wax off her leg. But wait, look how silky smooth her skin is. The allure of hairlessness is just too great, so we all jump to buy this stuff.

Other common methods of getting rid of hair include bleaching and Cleopatra's stand-by: sugaring. Some people even choose to send electrical currents through their bodies in order to kill off hair follicles.

But whatever your own self–torture routine might be, I can pretty much guarantee that you are spending way too much time on your hair.

As for me, I am still trying to decide between the red shampoo bottle or the green one.

Seema Gangatirkar is a Collegian columnist.

Focus on Race

This week, the Collegian Editorial page is publishing a week–long series on racial issues. This is an open call for all members of the University community to submit opinion pieces on this important subject.

All editorials to be considered for the Focus on Race series must be received no later than 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Editorials can be submitted by e–mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545–1592), or by dropping them off at the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement. They should be typed, and between 500– 700 words in length.

For more information, call Daniel Bodah at 545–1491 or send email to the Collegian letters account.

Weekend warriors

Fred Hurlbrink Jr.

It will be a competition on the grandest scale when Massachusetts travels down to Harrisonburg, Va. to take on James Madison University on Sept. 20.

A war fought on the cleat–stomped, chewed–up gridiron battlefield of Bridgeforth Stadium, where both sides will leave their souls after putting their pride and reputation on the line. A fight where past accomplishments shall be cast aside. And, when the dust clears, only one side will emerge.

An all–out battle for not only regional supremacy, but national prominence.

Now, any of you who have witnessed or heard about the early–season performances of the UMass football squad must know that this is not the proud group of which I am dramatically speaking. Though they spill their guts and battle to the end, those Minutemen will not take part in this skirmish.

This confrontation — without shoulder pads, cleats or stickum — will take place at halftime.

Huh?

You better believe it!

"This is [for] a championship," said University of Massachusetts Minuteman Marching Band director George N. Parks unequivocally at the end of a recent UMMB rehearsal.

With an omni–present fiery look of determination in his eyes, he was telling his troops, "This is war!"

The Minutemen of the march will be challenging one of the most revered and respected marching band programs in the country when they travel down to JMU to take on the Dukes.

This is an unprecedented — and kind of crazy — maneuver by Parks and his confident staff. JMU boasts a powerful, thunderous, in–your–face presence matched by few, and chalienged by fewer.

But, the Minuteman band is itself far from a slouch. They have been the "Power and Class of New England" for nearly two decades and they have put on shows the likes of which Bridgeforth Stadium has never seen.

Their style and flamboyance are largely unmatched, much like their enthusiasm and work ethic.

The sheer energy level the band produces is tangible enough to force the audience onto its feet. Constant movement which generates constant excitement is the calling card of this inimitable group that perennially marches close to 300 strong.

You're thinking, "How can a group of 'band nerds' take itself so seriously?"

How can anybody not?

They rehearse with an undeniable purpose and burning intensity, but manage to enjoy themselves and keep the energy flowing at a high level. They live up to their "Power and Class" moniker by winning over crowds every time they perform.

This will be without a doubt one of the fiercest competitions witnessed at a UMass football game in years. It's a matter of pride for the Minutemen as they strive to distinguish themselves among the elite marching squadrons in the nation.

Very seldom does Parks get the chance to show people outside of Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium how good his band really is. And, this is the opportunity which his talented and hard–working group needs to take advantage of in order to ascend to the upper–echelon.

You're still thinking, "They're just band kids." Band can't be all that cool.

Can it?

Well, how cool would it be if you could call yourself the best. The Minuteman Marching Band already is the best in the Northeast, and now they have a chance to show a lot of people that they might just be the best in the country.

They're not just band kids.

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Textbook Annex no bargain basement

To the Editor:

I wasn't going to say anything, but then I read Kerry Naumwoicz's glowing defense of the Textbook Annex and I figured she let the door swing wide-open.

I partly blame myself for being too lazy to find the book at any of the other book stores in the area, but I knew it would be fairly inexpensive and I was in a hurry. I bought George Orwell's 1984 for one of my classes at the Textbook Annex.

Here's the good part. It was one of those Signet Publishers paperbacks which has the set price printed right there on the front cover and on the binding. The Textbook Annex sold me a used copy which was marked $3.95 by the publishers, for $4.50. Not a bad little profit, especially because the book was at least 13 years old. I can only imagine what kind of profit they make on textbooks that are on the expensive side.

So Kerry, the next time you decide to bash one of your understandably disgruntled customers, and advise them to do more investigating, or tell them to blame someone other than the parties at fault, do a little more investigating of your own. While you're at it, you can ask your awesome employers exactly how this price inflating practice is legal. I'm curious.

Emily Jewell
Belchertown

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.
Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to the Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by email to: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu
Letters may be edited for length, clarity and style.

Point/Counterpoint on Affirmative Action

This week's Focus on Race series will end on Friday with a Point/Counterpoint on the issue of Affirmative Action. If you are interested in submitting a column to be considered for this feature, please deliver it to the Editorial/Opinion staff no later than 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Submissions should be 500–700 words long. They can be sent via e–mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), fax (545– 1592), or can be hand–delivered to the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement, room 113.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Rachel Pepe Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Laura Barcella Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Blur puts on exquisite pop show

By Adam Levine
Collegian Staff

BLUR / THE DANDY WARHOLS
Orpheum Theatre
Sept. 13, 1997

For far too long, England's premier pop revisionists Blur, have hovered within the shadows of the recent British invasion. Although they have been together longer than their chart topping nemesis, Oasis, Blur has continuously struggled, mostly in the United States, to have their sound heard. With five full–length albums, each one containing its own unique visions, under their belt Blur has set certain pop music standards and then broken them down just as easily as they created them.

Yet, to see Blur live is an extraordinary experience in itself. It is a time when the band's charisma, or often lack there of, brings their music to whole new levels and safely secures their position as one of the most innovative bands in recent history. For nearly one and a half hours last Saturday night, Blur played a pure energy–driven set that will not be forgotten easily by all those in attendance.

Although the set was primarily geared towards Blur's most recent self–titled album, all the songs performed were carefully chosen, in order to properly chronicle their eight– year history. They purposely seemed to refrain from performing certain obvious crowd pleasers, including their 1995 mega hit "Country House" from their fourth album, The Great Escape, in order to play other extremely notable, but lesser–known songs. Of the 20 songs performed, half were from their latest recording. Still, no album went unrecognized, including two songs from their first release, Leisure, and another handful of tracks from '93s Modern Life is Rubbish and '94s Parklife.

MARTY KEANE/COLLEGIAN

Blur crossed the pond to play at the Orpheum Theatre in Boston last Saturday.

As they took the stage, Blur seemed fatigued and uninterested. It only took heartthrob frontman Damon Albarn to the chorus of their first song, Beatleburn, to finally shake his head and feel the vibrancy of the atmosphere. Bassist Alex James dangled a cigarette from his mouth and

Turn to BLUR, page 6

Architect builds Simpson home

By Angie Wagner
Associated Press

HENDERSON, Nev. — Round a corner in the new Springfield subdivision of this booming town and you're awestruck by the wacky house and its 27 gaudy colors.

Mixed with the more mundane tan and stucco homes is an eye–popping power orange and solar yellow house that replicates the terrible tastes and absurd lifestyle of "The Simpsons."

A home builder has captured every detail of the TV cartoon family's life, from Marge's corn–print kitchen curtains to Homer's driveway grease spot from his car. The bizarre house captures the best (or worst) of television's longest–running animated prime–time series.

Where else should the cartoon family live but just outside Las Vegas, where you can bet on the bizarre?

"Does Bart really live there?" asked one boy, waiting in line under a tent set up to shade the curious.

Bart may not REALLY live there, but someone will. Kaufman and Broad Home Corp. is teaming with the Fox network and Pepsi–Cola to give away the four–bedroom, 2,200–square–foot home as part of a national promotion coinciding with "The Simpsons" season premiere this Sunday. A drawing will determine the winner of the $150,000 home.

But before the lucky real life family moves in, the show's fans and even those who aren't get to tour the home.

Framed by a shiny orange picket fence, the yellow house features the purple family car parked outside. An antenna is perched on the roof, though unlike Homer's house, this one is cable–ready.

Inside, it's easy to feel trapped in a cartoon with all the Playdoh–colored paint and appliances.

Behind a hall tree where Homer's hard hat hangs is the "mystery door." No one goes in and no one comes out, just like on the show.

Logs in the fireplace are painted bright green, as are the leaves and branches of the fig trees in the living room. Above the blue piano is the sheet music Lisa uses to play her saxophone. Instead of carpet, the architects opted to paint the floors to get the full cartoon effect.

Next to the couch in the TV room is an empty can of Homer's Duff beer. In the kitchen, food is set out for the family dog, Santa's Little Helper, and dirty dishes are in the sink.

Out back is a swing set, Homer's orange barbecue grill and Bart's treehouse, with the legend, "Come in. NOT."

In every closet hangs three sets of the same outfit worn by each character. They never change clothes on the show.

To build the replica of the cartooned house, Kaufman and Broad architects spent hours watching episodes of "The Simpsons," figuring out how the characters moved from room to room and even noting where mouseholes were. (There are three.)

Gonzalez said he and his colleagues looked through 7,400 different colors before deciding on the 27 used throughout the house. The cartoon showed arched doorways, so the architects joked they built them to accommodate Homer's girth and Marge's hair. A Hollywood set designer was hired to handle all the props while another crew painted them with wild colors in the back yard.

Gurtu & The Glimpse treat audience to special night of music

By Jeffrey R. Yusah
Collegian Staff

TRILOK GURTU & THE GLIMPSE
Bowker Auditorium
Sept. 13

Last Saturday, the Asian Dance and Music Program at the Fine Arts Center presented Trilok Gurtu and The Glimpse in Bowker Auditorium. The Asian Dance and Music Program at the Fine Arts Center has made it a habit to bring unique and entertaining Asian performers and performances to the University community and Saturday night was no different.

In the past, Gurtu has played with an array of notable musicians ranging from Charlie Mariano to Yo Yo Ma playing everything from jazz and fusion to classical and traditional Indian music.

Nowadays he is accompanied by The Glimpse Ensemble, an assortment of similarly established international musicians, which includes Teodosii Spassov, Geetha Bennett, Kai Eckhardt and Jaya Deva.

Spassov played the eight hole wooden flute which holds claim as one of the oldest musical instruments in Europe. Bennett accompanied the band on the Carnatic Veena. German born Eckhardt played the bass and Italian Deva specialized in the Moroccan ganawa.

Together these unique musicians played an amazing set featuring compositions by Gurtu.

The night began with Gurtu's "Cherryiqwn" which perfectly demonstrated the percussionist's ability to redefine groove. Deva and Bennett laid down the vocals giving the song a mesmerizing harmony amongst scattered chants and jazzy solos.

Throughout the night they would throw down beautifully rhythmic grooves singing and chanting steadily on top of it. Gurtu would suddenly break the music down into layers and jump on another groove forcing the others to ride his flow. In perfect timing he switched from instrument to instrument with little glances and points to direct the ensemble.

One of the highlights of the night came during "Future Heat" as Gurtu demonstrated his ability to manipulate his own voice. Chanting in ska–like rhythm, Gurtu's solo mesmerized the audience. As the tempo of the chant kept increasing and increasing the amazement was evident in the crowd. Finally as Gurtu hit the climax, the song was brought back into clarity by Bennett accompanying his vocals.

And as the instruments crashed back into the groove you could just see on all of their faces how much the musicians love what they do. This was also evident in a dance circle they had on stage in which Spassov, whose demeanor was rather conservative all night, started dancing a mad jig.

The concert closed with a sing–along — ending a special night of music.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian's annual

RSO Section

Look for it in your Monday, Sept. 28 edition!

UPC

(University Productions and Concerts)
20th Year Anniversary

1st General Committee Meeting
ALL STUDENTS WELCOME
Wednesday, September 17th at 6:00PM
in the EARTHFOODS ROOM
Student Union

For more information please call 545-2892

- Come learn about getting involved with Concert Production.
- Find out how to meet your favorite bands/artists.
- Meet other students who share your interest in the Music Industry.

FOR THE EDUCATION + RESEARCH COMMUNITY

HELPING YOU BUILD A SECURE FINANCIAL FUTURE IS AN IMPORTANT JOB. FORTUNATELY, WE HAVE THE PERFECT RESUME.

With nearly 80 years of leadership experience in our field, TIAA-CREF is eminently qualified to help you build a comfortable, worry-free retirement.

Our references are equally impeccable — today, nearly two million of the best minds in America trust us with their financial future. Allow us to review our qualifications.

Superior strength

With over $200 billion in assets, TIAA-CREF is the world's largest retirement organization — and among the most solid. TIAA is one of only a handful of companies to have earned top ratings for financial strength, and CREF is one of Wall Street's largest investors.†

Solid, long-term performance

We seek out long-term opportunities that other companies, in pursuit of quick gains, often miss. Though past performance can't guarantee future results, this patient philosophy has proven extremely rewarding.

Surprisingly low expenses

TIAA-CREF's operating costs are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries. Therefore, more of your money goes where it should — towards ensuring your future.‡

Easy diversification

We offer a wide variety of expertly managed investment options to help build your assets. With stock, bond, money market, and real estate accounts — as well as a guaranteed annuity to choose from — TIAA-CREF makes diversification easy.

Unrivaled service

We believe that our service distinguishes us from every other retirement company. In the latest Dalbar Consumer Satisfaction Survey, a study of 2,000 financial companies, TIAA-CREF was voted the leading provider of retirement plans.

If you work in education, research, or related fields, why not put TIAA-CREF's experience to work for you? To find out more, visit our Web site at www.tiaa-cref.org or call us at 1-800-842-2776.

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

†As of September, A.M. Best Co. - AAA, Duff & Phelps Aaa, Moody's Investor Services AAA, Standard and Poor's for stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability, and overall financial strength. These ratings of TIAA as an insurance company do not apply to CREF. ‡Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis, 1996; Lipper Analytical Services, Inc., Lipper Directory Analysis of Data, 1996 (Quarterly). For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1-800-842-2733, extension 5509, for CREF and TIAA Real Estate prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money. TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services, Inc. distributes CREF certificates and the variable components of TIAA contracts.

■ Blur

continued from page 5

continuously brushed his hair out from his eyes. Drummer Dave Roundtree was barely noticeable peaking out from the percussion fortress that surrounded him and guitarist extraordinaire Graham Coxon appeared to be slightly above comatose, as he would spontaneously awake every once in a while from a deep sleep and nod gently to the audience.

Albarn's enthusiasm more than filled the theatRE as he attempted to break in the new pair of trainers he had bought earlier that day. After Beatlebum, Albarn put down his acoustic guitar, grabbed a hold of his microphone and exploded into the surreal, trance-like sound of Movin' On followed by their latest U.S. single MOR, both from their latest album. Albarn then quietly said, "This is an old one," before performing the bubbly Beatlesesque There's No Other Way, from their first album.

The tempo for the remainder of the set varied from earlier pop gems like She's So High and Advert to the trash of Chinese Bombs. The major highlights, however, were the bands in your face biopic of sorts, Popscene, where the stage took on a classic disco feel with thousands of lights circling around above them, as well as their classic sing- a-long favorite, Girls and Boys.

After a brief pause, Blur came out again to perform perhaps the most intense encore to have ever been witnessed. The band got warmed-up again with "Commercial Break," an instrumental from Modern Life Is Rubbish, before making an easy transition into "Theme From Retro," a creepy chant-driven tune from the recent album.

"On Your Own" with Damon leading the sing-a-long to nearly every member of the audience, was the unquestioned high point. After a sped-up version of "Parklife," the ultimate rock anthem "Coping," and the rather disturbing "Killer For Your Love," Damon preceded to finish the evening with a scream. He yelled as loud as he probably could into his microphone and the rest of the band thus continued with the opening to "Song 2."

Woo-hoo, indeed.

Write Arts...

(It'll make you feel good!)

Florida's QB Johnson looks for win over Tennessee without Wuerffel

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — No matter how hard he tries, Doug Johnson can't seem to escape Danny Wuerffel's legacy at Florida. It is printed on the pages of the record book, etched in the bronze of a Heisman Trophy, painted in the form of Wuerffel's jersey on the south facade of the end zone at Florida Field. On Saturday, Johnson will get the starkest reminder yet. With a chance at a record-tying fifth straight Southeastern Conference title hanging in the balance, Johnson will try to prove to more than 85,000 fans that No. 3 Florida can still beat Tennessee — even without Wuerffel.

"I'm not worried about how someone played before me, before my time," Johnson said. "That's not fair to compare myself to that."

It would be a tough act to follow.

Along with setting four dozen records, winning the Heisman and leading the Gators to their first national championship, Wuerffel never lost to the Volunteers in three starts.

He made his first start against them as a redshirt freshman in 1993, throwing for three touchdowns in a 41-34 victory.

In 1995, Wuerffel led the Gators to seven straight touchdowns in a steady rain, turning a 30-14 deficit into a 62-37 victory that sent them to their first undefeated regular season.

And a year ago, he outplayed Peyton Manning by throwing four touchdown passes in the first 19 minutes to stake Florida to a 35-0 lead, too much for the Vols to overcome.

Your turn, Doug.

"Everyone that has come in here and started as quarterback had to play in a big game early," Johnson said. "I don't think it's any different. I think I'll be ready."

Johnson, a 19-year-old sophomore who has a stronger arm and a more aggressive personality than Wuerffel, has only two starts under his belt, and it's hard to learn anything from either one of them.

He threw for three touchdowns but also had three interceptions in his debut, a 21-6 victory over Southern Mississippi in which coach Steve Spurrier blamed just about everyone but Johnson.

Except "Booty, booty, booty!"

This is the most inconceivable score in the history of college football.

I'll repeat that.

This is the most inconceivable score in the history of college football.

Now, Texas joins Boston College as the only two-time winners of the Booty Schwag. Congratulations, guys, and "hook 'em Horns!"

Friends of the Program "Inside Tip" Pick of the Week...

FSU is a 20-point favorite at Clemson. Nope. Clemson, please.

Thank you.

Oh yeah, my Peyton v. Florida pick. A jacked UT defense and a fired up Manning will give Tennessee its long-awaited Gator romp. Vols — 38, Gators — 27.

Remember, just because they wear orange doesn't mean they're wussies.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

A week later, he tied a school record with seven touchdowns in the first half of an 82-6 win over outmanned Central Michigan. "This one is going to be a lot tougher," Spurrier said. "This is a team with an excellent pass rush, good cover guys. It's not going to be as easy. Hopefully, he'll be prepared to execute the best he can."

Johnson at least knows what to expect.

He grew up not far from the Swamp, where the Gators have lost only one SEC game since Spurrier took over as coach in 1990. He knows the significance of this game — the winner essentially has a two-game lead in the SEC East division and one foot in the door to the SEC title game.

And he knows that when it comes to the Fun 'N' Gun offense, all eyes are on the quarterback.

"I'm one of the most highly publicized positions, especially now, especially with Danny playing it," he said. "He left a great deal of expectations around here."

That's not to say Johnson doesn't bring any measure of hope. While Wuerffel got by with skill and savvy, Johnson relies almost exclusively on an arm so strong that Spurrier gave him the nickname, "Slinger."

He is not lacking in confidence either, a sharp change from the choir boy demeanor of Wuerffel.

"I think people who get worried about things like this aren't sure about themselves, aren't sure they're going to be able to compete well," Johnson said, looking down as he picked at his fingernails. "That's never been a problem for me."

Still, Johnson has never faced the kind of pressure he will experience on Saturday. The Vols had the best defense in the SEC a year ago, and coach Phillip Fulmer is thinking about moving Leonard Little from linebacker to defensive end.

"Inexperience at quarterback is something I know would be a little bit of concern in a big game like this," Fulmer said. "I guess as a coach, you try to protect him with some play-calling. Florida has tons of other things that they do. They have plenty of other weapons."

Back To School House ROCK!

aiwa
3 DISC CHANGER
20 WATTS/CHANNEL SHELF SYSTEM
• Full logic cassette deck • 2-way bass reflex speakers
• 3-disc CD changer • Remote control
• Aiwa NSXA22
$199.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SONY
50+1 MEGA STORAGE CD CHANGER
• Jog dial for rapid selection of dics
• Multi-disc 32 step programming
• Will work off any Sony receiver remote control
• Sony CDPCX50
50+1 CD Changer
$199.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SONY
WHY MAKE A COPY WHEN YOU CAN MAKE A CLONE?
HOME MINIDISC PLAYER/RECORDER
• Records up to 74 minutes of digital audio on one 2-inch disc
• Remote commander® remote control
• Digital inputs & outputs • 25 track programming
• Jog shuttle dial • Text display & entry
• CD synchro • Sony MDSJE510
$299.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

PICK-UP FREE STUFF just for stopping by!
maxell FREE
chili's GRILL & BAR $5 GIFT CERTIFICATE toward any Chili's menu item (limit one per customer) while supplies last

klipsch
FLOORSTANDING SPEAKERS
• Horn-loaded tweeter
• 8" woofer in a vented enclosure
• Cabinet in sleek black finish
• Perfect for home theater
• 100-watt power handling
• Klipsch KG3.5V
Buy SAVE $100.00
$149.98 ea
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

Panasonic
4-HEAD VCR WITH VCR PLUS+
• Hi-Tech 4-head for better picture
• VCR Plus+ simplifies recording
• Digital auto picture
• Panasonic PV7401
$169.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SONY
900 MHz CORDLESS TELEPHONE
• 900 MHz extends range and improves sound
• 10-number speed dialing
• Up to 7 hr. talk time and 7-day standby
• Out of range alert
• Sony SPP930
$99.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

Panasonic
13" TV/VCR COMBO
• VCR features g high tech 4 video head system and auto clock set
• Swivel base • FM Radio
• Front A/V jacks
• Available with black or white cabinet
• Panasonic PVM1347/1357W
13"
TV/VCR Combo!
$349.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

SAMSUNG
25" DBX® STEREO TV
• Comb filter with contrast circuit enhancement
• Dark-tint picture tube
• Front and Rear A/V inputs
• Stereo output with dbx noise reduction
• Universal remote control
• Samsung TXS2548
25"
$299.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

KENWOOD
HIGH POWER AM/FM CD PLAYER
• 30 watts x 4 channels • Single preamp output
• Disabled system indicator
• Detachable faceplate for security
• Kenwood KDCS3007
$249.95
90 DAYS SAME-AS-CASH

Panasonic
PERSONAL CELLULAR PHONE
• Lightweight, slim size
• 2-line Alpha-numeric LCD display
• 60 minutes of talk time, 10 hours of stand-by
• Two one-touch dial locations
• 99 memory locations
• Panasonic EBH63S
Certain restrictions apply. Price of phone is higher without activation. Subject to credit approval. See store for details.
FREE! WITH ACTIVATION
FREE Car adapter and leather carry-in case

Holyoke, MA
27 Holyoke Street in Holyoke Crossing
(413) 532-0400
All speakers sold in pairs only. Some pictures may be representational. We reserve the right to correct and/or clarify errors due to typography, photography or printing. Some items are of limited quantity.
Tweeter etc.
Stay Tuned...

LET'S PLAY VIDEO
...Sycuan,...
Movies $.99 / day!!
Best of the new releases
Saturn / N64 / Genesis / SNES
Call-Trade Games & Systems
Pleasant Pub!
Call us at 549-4500
...Wed, Thur, Fri 9am-...

OFFICE WORKERS
Located on the PVTA bus route, National Evaluation Systems, Inc., is looking for part-time assistance with a variety of office tasks. Preferred candidates will work quickly and accurately and be able to work at least 3 consecutive hours between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on days that we have work. On-call hours will be available beginning mid-September and continuing throughout the academic year. Pay is $7.00/hr. Send your résumé or call to have an application mailed to you:
Personnel
NATIONAL EVALUATION SYSTEMS, INC.
30 Gatehouse Road Amherst, MA 01002
E.O.E. NES

Cheap tickets.
Great advice.
Nice people.
London $369
Paris $566
Costa Rica $460
San Francisco $355
...Travel
44 Main St.
Amherst
(413) 256-1261

■ football

continued from page 10

could go down in "The Swamp."

Nebraska at Washington

Mark it down. Saturday will be the day Nebraska's mid- 1990s football dynasty comes crashing back to earth. The Central Florida scare shows that it just ain't Nebraska's year, and look for Washington to make a loud statement by crushing the Huskers.

Booty Schwag of the Week Award...

All the boys and girls at Texas were asking one question this week.

"How do you spell booty?" The answer? H-O-R-N-S.

That's right, kids. The schwag was an easy one this week. I'm sure you all saw the score. UCLA 66, Texas 3.

When the No. 10 team in the country loses at home by nine touchdowns to a team with a quarterback (Cade McKnown) who sounds like a cross between English class and a new burger at McDonalds, there really isn't much to say. ('Cause he's like, McNoun, you know? O.K., sorry about that.)

JORMA KANGANEN/COLLEGIAN

It's all about the kwan...

Junior forward Sophie Lecot topped off a big week by being named Co-Atlantic 10 Player of the Week.

■ hoop

continued from page 10

reimburse all season ticket- holding fans for any home loss.

"The average fan is fed up with big-time athletes who don't care if they win or lose," Driesell said. "When fans buy tickets, they want to get their money's worth. Well, now we area all in this together. If we lose, they don't pay. It's that simple."

• Neil Reed, who has played point guard for Indiana the past three years, has transferred to Southern Mississippi, where his father Terry, is an assistant coach. The 6-foot-3 guard will have one year of eligibility remaining when he begins playing next year.

After a first-round NCAA loss to Colorado (all of Reed's seasons have ended with first-round losses), IU coach Bobby Knight told Reed and fellow juniors Andrae Patterson and Richard Mandeville to consider transferring. He questioned their dedication to the team.

Reed, who accused Knight of physically and mentally abusing him, is the 14th player to leave IU early by transferring, going pro or leaving school altogether.

• Courtney Alexander has moved out west to Jerry Tarkanian's Home for Wayward Criminals at Fresno State.

The former Virginia Cavalier player was dismissed from the UVA squad on July 19 after his allegedly assaulted his girlfriend. He was arrested July 18 for hitting, choking and kicking 21-year-old Joeil Coleman, his girlfriend and the mother of their 4-month-old son. He was found guilty and sentenced to four days in jail last month and he left school officially Aug. 21.

Alexander announced Sept. 9 — with Coleman and child by his side — that he was leaving Virginia to bang out license plates in Fresno. Last year, the 6-foot-6 forward led the team with a 14.8 ppg average. He started 42 of 53 games over the course of his two years and he will have two years of eligibility remaining when he begins play in a Bulldog uniform in 1998-99.

• Also in the "Why-Parents-Shouldn't-Give-Their-Sons- Girl's-Names" category: there especially seems to be a problem with the name Courtney.

This month, Minnesota forward Courtney James was convicted of one misdemeanor count of intending to cause fear, but he was acquitted of a misdemeanor count of intending to cause harm to his girlfriend. Melanie Olson testified that James slapped her across the face with a memo pad, choked her and kicked her in the ribs. She said that he became upset when he heard a brief message on her answering machine from Los Angeles Lakers star Shaquille O'Neal.

There's a reason assault begins with those three letters.

• Quick quiz: Why in the world would Tarkanian suspend Rafer Alston from his team?

If you said "for fighting with his girlfriend and allegedly assaulting her," you're wrong. It's his ex-girlfriend.

Apparently Rachel Anderson didn't want to return a few personal items to Alston, Fresno's incoming point guard. So he did what any other Tarkanian player would do — he fought. Now, he'll be riding the pine through Fresno's season opener against Florida A&M on Nov. 17.

Jerry Tarkanian laying down the law instead of trampling over it? What is this world coming to?

Casey Kane is a Collegian columnist.

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

opponent's end of the field, the UMass defense has held its own as well. Sophomore goalie Zowie Tucker has played all but four minutes in the UMass cage, recording a 1.39 GAA and a .806 save percentage with 29 saves.

Minutewomen Notes: Johnston is only two points away from the 50-career point mark... Millbauer, Lucy Koch and Amy Ott all have defensive saves to their credit... Junior Kate Putnam is currently tied for sixth on the UMass career assist list. She is tied with Sue Packard, who was a teammate of current Minutewoman coach Patty Shea.

Collegian Sports... Keep your eye on the ball.

■ Azzinaro

continued from page 10

and then expect him to be violent on Saturday."

Azzinaro previously coached with the Minutemen, from 1992-1994. First, he served as a linebackers coach, then was promoted to defensive coordinator in 1994. In all three years, the UMass defense was ranked either first or second in the YanCon. After Azzinaro's huge success for the maroon and white, he started to receive job offers from top schools around the country. After testing the waters and initially spending some time with Iowa St., he got a call from Chestnut Hill.

It didn't take him long to make a decision. It was an opportunity he had been waiting for his whole life. A job, not only doing the thing he loves to do, but doing it for a nationally recognized team.

"When you're trying to be the best at what you do, you want to try and be the best with the best," Azzinaro explained.

Unfortunately, there were some athletes who took Azzinaro's absence hard. Namely Dawson, who spent his freshmen year under Azzinaro's leadership and primarily came to UMass because of him.

"Coach Az was one of the main reasons why I came to UMass," Dawson said. "I was pretty upset when he left."

Azzinaro regrets how the other players might of felt, but explained that people must move on.

"Change is always difficult," Azzinaro said. "When young people come to a university, they shouldn't come here because of me. They should come here because of what it represents."

He spent two seasons coaching the defensive line for the Eagles. His contribution helped guide four players to the professional scene: Stalin Colinet (third round draft pick, Minnesota Vikings) and Nick Gianacakos (free agent, Seattle Seahawks) of last year's team, Tim Morabito (free agent, Cincinnati Bengals) and Chris Sullivan, who has played in place of the injured Willie McGinest on the Patriots defensive line, from the graduating class of 1996.

"I was fortunate enough to coach four guys who we knew could play at the next level," Azzinaro said. "It doesn't effect the way you coach. I may effect the way you motivate them, but the coaching is the same."

Unfortunately, after the Boston College football program was caught amidst a gambling scandal, the athletic department decided to clean house and Azzinaro, along with all of the other coaches, were fired. It was then that Hodges, Azzinaro's long-time friend and former colleague, invited him back to coach in Amherst.

So far, the players have acknowledged the new system.

"He doesn't beat around the bush with you," Dawson said. "He wants to tell you what you're thinking. You have to be prepared, because he's going to tell you what he's thinking — whether it's good or bad."

Now with two losses to deal with, it's up to Azzinaro to turn the Minutemen defense around — and to maybe make Chris Sullivans and Tim Morabitos out of the Mike Dawsons and the Khari Samuels.

"We don't try to get all hooked up on the X's and O's," Azzinaro concludes. "This is college football, let's have some fun. ...but it's a lot more fun when we win."

haircuts ★ colors ★ highlights ★★★
REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS
109 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526
★★perms ★tanning ★facial waxing

College Pro Computers
Power through Education
Pentium Tower System: $499.95
16 MB RAM/Mouse/Keyboard
Color VGA Monitor/Dual Drives
RIGHT NOW!
166 MHzSystems w/monitor starting at: $1,095.00
206 Route 9, Hadley 413-584-8857 http://www.jevanet.com/~cpcusa/

CAMPUS GEAR
HEY UMASS
IT'S GOING TO BE COLD SOON!
BUT WHO WANTS TO PAY $40 OR $50 FOR A SWEATSHIRT?
AT CAMPUS GEAR YOU CAN ALWAYS GET 2 SWEATSHIRTS FOR $30
FROM OUR NEW LINE OF EXCITING APPAREL

Check out the Collegian's special RSO spread on Monday, September 22!
It's the coolest way to get involved.

Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TODAY & TOMORROW
Resume Writing Workshop conducted by the Campus Career Network
Where: Campus Center, Room 917
When: [illegible] 97
And
Tomorrow, Thursday September 18, 1997
Time: 3:30 pm
Resume ?????'s. Get answers from the pro's!!!!
For further information
Please phone Career Network Central 545-2224

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Thinking about going to Graduate School? See FYI below for further information. There is a Graduate and Professional School Day at the Royal Sonesta Hotel, 5 Cambridge Parkway, Cambridge, MA, this Saturday, September 20. $5 admission fee; 10-3. September 26 is the deadline to sign up for the Nov. 1 GRE, which will be the only paper and pencil test until April.

Sigma Kappa Sorority Open Rush Tues, 9/16, 5:00pm-7:00pm; Wed, 9/17, 6:00pm-8:00pm; Thurs, 9/18, 6:00pm-8:00pm. Please call Beth for more information. 256-6887

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sugarloaf Estates Luxury 2 bedroom apartment homes. FREE HEAT AND HOT WATER. State of the art kitchens, designer baths, w/w carpeting, washer and dryer. On PVTA. Call Today. 665-3856

AUTO FOR SALE

'84 Jeep CJ7 4x4, hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1100 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

1989 VW Golf excellent condition. 1 owner, new clutch. 43 mpg highway. $3900/BO. Sunderland 665-8358

1985 Olds A/C, all power, AM/FM. $1500 or B/O. 549-8999

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

BMW 733I 1982 blue, beige leather interior, sun roof, automatic. 162,000 miles. Still elegant. $2500. 549-2604

EMPLOYMENT

Hairdresser Wanted Afternoons and Saturday. Call Regency Hair Stylist 253-9526

Drivers Wanted Pays $70 to $120 per shift. No car needed. Dominos 256-8911

EMPLOYMENT

Recreation Positions at Amherst Leisure Services. Youth basketball supervisors/officials, facility supervisors, tennis instructors, volleyball officials, adult basketball supervisor/scorekeepers. Apply to: Human Resources, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA by 9/24. AA/EOE

Job for the Environment Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/day. Call Terri 256-6434

Be a member of the Commuter Action Team Looking for 6-8 friendly students who like living off campus. Job duties are fun- Meet with off campus students and townspeople, coordinate and attend Commuter events and programs, help distribute information. Please contact David or Barbara at 545-2309, or drop by Commuter Services between 10:00am-1:00pm M-F. $6/hr and/or academic credit.

FOR SALE

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

Big Fish Tank All equipment included. $40 or B/O. 549-6926

Technics SA-EX 700 Prologic Receiver w/ Jensen Center Speakers and 2 surround sound speakers. Pioneer 100 Disc Changer. Both 1 year old. 1 year left in CD Changer warranty. All $600 with Fisher 15in. woofer used as subwoofer. Call 549-5079

Used Bicycles Buy/Sell/Trade/Consign. All styles, makes, and models. Hampshire Bicycle Exchange 256-4537. Sun 9-4. In Hall at Mt. Farms Mall on Route 9, Hadley.

CD ROM or P.C. Speed 8X. 1 year old. PERFECT CONDITION $150. 256-8607

Saxophone for sale- Vito/Alto. Good condition. $180. Call 549-1479

FOR SALE

Waterbed $150 Futon bed/couch $100 Both full size (413)774-5776

Dorm Fridges for sale $30-$50. 665-7991

Laptop Notebook Works good. $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Amherst Tues and Thurs. Call (413)732-8817

FOUND

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Contact Steven Page at 253-3354

Jazz Guitar Lessons Lear Theory Improvisation and Technique Joe 665-0499

LOST

$10 REWARD Glasses lost in/near Management Building on Monday. Call 582-4333

Grey Hound Route 9, Hadley area. Reward. 323-8255

MUSICIANS

BANDS! Looking for bands for Wednesday nights at The Pub. 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst. Call 549-1200 Tues thru Fri, 10-6. Ask for Aaron.

PERSONALS

Tim P. All to pieces. You amaze me. M

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent in private home. 1 mile to UMass. Furnished kitchen privileges. Laundry, parking, quiet, friendly. $335/month. Barbara 549-4853

1 Month Free Rent Bedroom available that includes free heat and hot water. Call 549-7105

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 1 or 2 people to share huge room in Puffton with walk-in closet and bathroom. 549-7203

Single Room $230/month utilities included in 8 room house. 549-8696

Looking for one female to share a two bedroom apt in Brandywine. $180 a month with three other females. Call 549-5244

SERVICES

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find Out! Contact The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Experienced Seamstress Mending, tailoring, alterations, dressmaking, clothing design. Call Chrysal 253-7573

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the ad billed in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the criminal code.
9. The College Press reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students 20¢ per word/day

All others 40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17

Auditions — Riverside Halloweream will be taking applications for the Scream Team from 3–7 p.m. at the Riverside Personnel Office, 1623 Main Street/ Route 159, Agawam, MA 01001. Or stop by the Personnel Office thru Friday, 9 a.m. –5 p.m. to fill out an application. Must be available weekends from Oct. 10 through Nov. 2. For more information call 786–9300.

Meeting — University Productions and Concerts first general meeting at 6 p.m. at the Student Union, Earthfoods room. Free CD's and pizza. Learn about concert production.

Meeting — The UMass Circle K International is holding its fist meeting of the semester at 6:30 p.m. on the couches downstairs in the Campus Center. Anyone interested in community service that wants to get involved, build leadership skills should attend. For more info call Suzanne at 259–1860.

Meeting — The Five College Peace Corps Recruiting Office will be sponsoring an informational meeting to be held at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 905–909. The meeting will cover the Peace Corps application process, requirements for becoming a volunteer, and highlights of volunteer activities around the globe. Everyone is welcome though the meeting is especially targeting graduating seniors. Call Mike Simsik, the Campus Recruiter at 545–2105 for more information or come by his office in Stockbridge Hall, room 112.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. In the Campus Center, room 162. All are welcome to attend. Bring your own poetry or someone else's or just come and listen. Call Tim at 6546–0819 or Kaye at 548–8042 for more information.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18

Meeting — Amnesty International will be having it's second meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 917.

Meeting — Find out how to apply to Graduate School, how to finance your education, how to find the best schools, and the in's and out's of the procedure. 1:30–3 p.m. in Campus Center, room 811–815. Sponsored by the Graduate School's Office of Graduate Student Recruitment and Retention, 528 Goodell. RSVP 545–5284.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19

Meeting — Male survivors of abuse and trauma peer support group. Free, facilitated drop–in group for male survivors. 7–8:30 p.m. at the Men's Resource Center, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst. This is a closed group for male survivors only.

Service — Kesher (reform) Shabbat Service. 6 p.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome.

NOTICES

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle. Wednesday, Sept. 17–Friday, Sept 19, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0542.

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle. Wednesday, Sept. 17–Friday, Sept 19, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle. Wednesday, Sept. 17–Friday, Sept 19, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations open today at 10 a.m.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

EVERY WEDNESDAY: The New Horizon Band

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
26 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
29 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

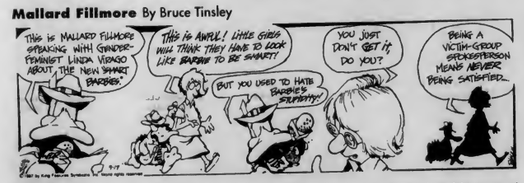
WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Tonic

WEDNESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 17, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	4	12 Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Living Edens (In Stereo)		Live From Lincoln Center: Philharmonic Opening Night				Quest II: Path to Success
WFSB	3	3 News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Reel TV	Nanny (S)	 "A League of Their Own" (1992, Comedy) Geena Davis. (In Stereo)					News	Late Show
WBZ	4	4 News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Nanny (R)	 "A League of Their Own" (1992, Comedy) Geena Davis. (In Stereo)					News	Nightline
WCVB	5	5 News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Drew Carey	Soon City	Drew Carey	Ellen (R)	Primetime Live		News	Late Show
WLVI	56	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	Sister, Sister	Smart Guy	Wayans Bros.	Steve Harvey	News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine	Tonight Show
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Wings "The Finali Approach"		3rd Rock From the Sun (R)		Law & Order "Corruption"		News
WTXX	20	Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	Sentinel "Three Point Shot"		Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)		LAPD		Vibe	Tonight Show
WVIT	30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Wings "The Finali Approach"		3rd Rock From the Sun (R)		Law & Order "Corruption"		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Home Imp.	Simpsons	Seinfeld	Fraser	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Party of Five "What s Drag"		News		Simpsons	Deep Space N
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Wings "The Finali Approach"		3rd Rock From the Sun (R)		Law & Order "Corruption"		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Live From Lincoln Center: Philharmonic Opening Night				Life-of Allen Ginsberg		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Fraser	Drew Carey	Spin City	Drew Carey	Ellen (R)	Primetime Live		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Real TV	Med Abo. You	Seinfeld	Fraser	Sentinel "Three Point Shot"		Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)		News		M*A*S*H	Cheers
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who s Boss?	Who s Boss?	 "Dumb and Dumber" (1994, Comedy) Jim Carrey, Jeff Daniels.						 "Jumpin' Jack Flash" (1986, Comedy)
A&E	53	Quincy "Death Casts a Vote"		Law & Order "Vengeance"		Biography "Andrew Cunenan"		American Justice "Hot Pursuit"		20th Century		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
CNN	42	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News (R)	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	63	Past Provenze	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein s Money	 "Mystery Date" (1991, Comedy) Ethan Hawke, Teri Polo.				South Park (R)	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein s Money
DISC	48	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Red Star (R)		Wild Discovery: Marsh		Discover Magazine (R)				Treasures of the Earth	Wild Discovery: Marsh
ESPN	43	Up Close	Sportscenter			Major League Baseball: Teams To Be Announced. (Live) (R)						Major League Baseball: Teams TBA
LIFE	69	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait "Brett Butler"		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.		Countdown to the 10 Spot		Reel World	Austin Stories
MTV	45	MTV Live	Viewers	Jenna Countdown (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.		Happy Days		Bewitched		I Love Lucy	Odd Couple
NICK	46	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Hey Arnold!	Happy Days	Happy Days		Bewitched		I Love Lucy	Odd Couple
SCIFI	68	Twilight Zone	Darkside	Amaz. Stories	Masters	Seaquest DSV "Dead End"		Forever Knight (In Stereo)				Friday the 13th: The Series	Amaz. Stories
TLC	49	Furniture	Renovation	Homeline (R)	Homeline (R)	Sea Tek (R)	Pop Science	Gainesville				Future Fantastic "Robot" (R)	Sea Tek (R)
TNT	44	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark: Supermen		 "An Officer and a Gentleman" (1982, Drama) Richard Gere, Debra Winger						 "Terms of Endearment" (1983, Drama)
USA	47	Renegade "Honor Bound"		Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger						 "Where's the Money, Noreen?" (1995) Julianne Phillips.
HBO	50	(5:15) "Eye of the Wolf" (1995)		Fight Against Drugs		 "Tid Great White Hyde" (1996, Comedy) R		 "The Road Killers" (1985, Suspense) R				 "Maximum Risk" (1996, Adventure) R
MAX	51	 "Threshold" (1981, Drama) Donald Sutherland. PG				 "Screamers" (1995, Science Fiction) Peter Weller. R						Deed Man's Gun (R)	Feet Track
SHOW	60	(5:00)		 "All Dogs Go to Heaven 2" (1996) 'G'		 "Merlute" (1996, Fantasy) Mera Wilson. PG		Extra: Fen				Deed Man's Gun (R)	Feet Track

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Drabble By Kevin Fagan



8 Years in Braces By Eric Pedersen

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Loser Crew By Alan DeMonde

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You mustn't put all your eggs in one basket today; diversify, and you're sure to enjoy success in at lest one important endeavor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You may not have complete confidence in those who are at the helm today, but it is not up to you to change things or take control just yet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You can count on more excitement being added to your life at some point during the day, and only chance can supply what you truly want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Your patience may wear thin today, thanks to a Virgo native who isn't aware that you and she are wholly incompatible at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Concentrate on domestic affairs whenever you can today; it's important that you nip a growing problem in the bud, and smooth the way for others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Someone may try to use your own rules against you today, but if you are careful you should prevail with ease. Stay alert!

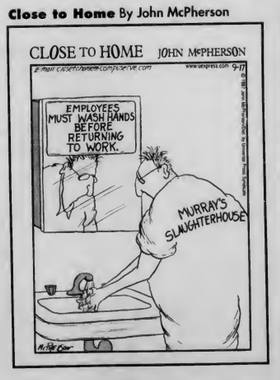
PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Today, you must address a complicated issue at home. You have been avoiding something that is getting out of hand at this time.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You may not be on the same track as those who are supposedly leading the way today. What you discover along the path is more valuable; however.

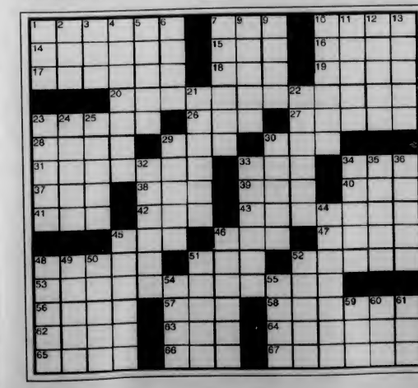
TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Your steady, dependable manner is much appreciated at this time, especially by those whose affairs are closely linked to yours.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You may have trouble deciding just what you must do in a difficult situation today. You have your own and someone else's needs to consider.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Last–minute changes may be required today before you put your well–made plans into motion. An unforeseen element is exerting an influence.



LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Take care that you're not letting your dreams hold you back. You must be prepared to take action when pragmatism reigns.



Quote of the Day

"We may do dumb things from time to time, but we are not certifiably insane"

White House spokesman Michael D. McCurry

Close to Home By John McPherson

ACROSS
1 Ms. Streisand
7 Kettle
10 Earthenware jar
14 Toughen
15 Writer Tan
16 "The First —"
17 Poem part
18 The — of luxury
19 Pace
20 "Drink up!"
23 Talent
26 — pro nobis
27 Luau welcome
28 Football's Swann
29 Pigpen
30 Rapper Dr. —
31 Paper-holding art
33 "Diamonds — Forever"
34 Chart
37 Soak (flax)
38 Chairman —
39 Poorly lit
40 Gold: Sp.
41 Quiet — mouse
42 Coffee container
43 Kind of computer
45 Supermodel Carol
46 Evergreen
47 Face part
48 Chatter
51 Earth's star
52 Colts' fathers
53 Firefly
56 Land measure
57 Plus
58 Slick
62 High-schooler
63 Chit
64 George Clooney role
65 Natural resources
66 Guided
67 Followed

DOWN
1 — -relief
2 Aardvark's prey
3 Genetic material
4 Leaning
5 Shaver's need
6 "There ought to be —!"
7 Trivial
8 Old cattle town
9 The strong silent —
10 Reduced for clearance
11 Sweepstakes
12 Parasite
13 Omega's opposite
21 Idea
22 Sheik's households
23 Plant life
24 Stringed instruments
25 Actress Ekberg
29 Brainy
30 Less damp
32 Magic charm
33 Summing up
34 Engine
35 Originated
36 Vatican heads
44 Round Table members
45 Site of the Parthenon
46 Financed
48 Greek philosopher
49 Kitchen tool
50 Match
51 Subsequently
52 Egypt's neighbor
54 Finger part
55 Baseball's Ruth
59 Ostrich's cousin
60 Actress — Dawn Chong
61 Conclusion

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

A	S	T	U		L	E	A	S	E		H	A	N	G
L	O	O	N		A	C	R	I	D		O	R	E	O
L	A	D	S		C	H	E	F	S		S	A	L	A	D
S	P	O	O	L		O	A	T		C	R	O	P	S
		M	O	D	E	S		E	O	S
G	L	A	N	C	E	D		L	I	N	E	A	G	E
R	A	D	I	O	S		C	A	G	E		T	I	E	D
A	Y	L	A		P	L	U	S	H		C	L	O	G
S	E	A		H	O	E	D		T	I	R	A	D	E
P	R	I	V	A	T	E		P	H	R	A	S	E	D
		E	S	S		M	A	S	O	N
S	H	O	R	T		F	O	R		N	I	C	K	S
H	A	M	M	E	R	H	E	A	D		O	L	G	A
A	L	A	I		P	E	L	E	E		M	I	E	N
W	O	R	N		M	E	A	L	Y		S	P	E	D

9-16-97 © 1997 Universal Press Syndicate

Today's D.C. Menu

Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin

LUNCH
Chicken Breast Sandwich
Sloppy Joe
Ravioli Alfredo

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Broccoli & Cauliflower Casserole
Mesquite Chicken Sandwich

Worcester

LUNCH
Grilled Steak Sandwich
Chicken Pot Pie
Pasta w/ Tomato or Lentil Sauce

DINNER
Cauliflower Eggplant Casserole
Roast Turkey
Cheese Lasagna
Pastabilities

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger
Chicken Cutlet
BBQ Pork on a Bun
Grilled Sneeze

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Fried Shrimp Dinner

Berkshire

LUNCH
Grilled Steak
Mesquite Chicken
Rotini

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Handcut Cod Sub
Penne w/ Tomatoes & Spinach
Pastabilities

Night Editor: Seema Gangatirkar
Photo Technician: Ken McDonald
Copy Editor: Lorraine Kennedy
Production Supervisor: Joylyn Lombard
Production Staff: Mark McGrath, Samantha Mahon

Do you call him a freak?

If you're the kind of guy who wears a faded old Rocket Ismael Notre Dame jersey to class; has a poster of Keith Jackson in your dorm room signed "Dear Jimmy. Take Miami and the under. Love Keith;" and, pranks Chris Fowler's house with messages like, "I told you TCU would beat Rice, and why won't you return my calls, Christopher?"; then, you've had the date Sept. 20 circled on your calendar since the NCAA schedule came out.

Of course, you're also a freak.

But hey, that's okay. Everyone's going to be freaky this weekend, because this is the biggest Saturday

College Football

Luke Meredith

of the season. So, in the words of my hero, early '90s talk show cult–hero Arsenio Hall, "Let's get busy!"

(Hey look. He made Andrew Dice Clay cry. That's enough for me).

Peyton Bowl IV, or "The reason Peyton Manning stayed in school even though he got his degree wicked early and could have made a buttload of cash in the NFL..."

The Florida game is the reason Peyton Manning came back to school. Well, that and the college chicks. (Ha, ha, just kidding).

Manning will either win or lose the Heisman on Saturday, depending on how well he threads the Florida secondary. But this game is riddled with question marks, such as...

- How will new wonderboy Florida QB Doug Johnson handle the pressure of both the expectations of the Gator faithful and a stellar UT defense?
- Will Tennessee crack under the weight of a history of failure to Florida?
- Will either team attempt a running play? (I'm not kidding, they really might not).

This game is about the toughest college game to call I've ever seen, because of all the variables. If Peyton has the day he wants, Florida

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 7

Azzinaro makes return to the Pioneer Valley

Defensive coordinator needs to find remedy for an 0–2 start in Atlantic 10

By Jonathan M. Place
Collegian Staff

Last season, the University of Massachusetts football team's defense was ranked last in the Yankee Conference. Even with talent like Justin Reimer, Khari Samuel and Mike Dawson in the linebacker positions, the Minutemen didn't have what it takes to effectively contain opposing offenses.

After the season, defensive coordinator Ted Roof left UMass in January to accept the defensive coordinator position at Western Carolina University.

With the obvious need for improvement, head coach Mike Hodges went in search for a new man to lead his defense back to respectability — a man who could bring his defense back to the level at which it performed three years ago, when it ranked first in the YanCon.

If only Hodges could find a coach like the one he had back in 1994. Well, he didn't have to find somebody like his former defensive coordinator. He found the same one.

He found Jerry Azzinaro — former UMass defensive coach and long–time friend.

"It's good to be back," said Azzinaro who was let go from the Boston College coaching staff amid the post–gambling scandal house cleaning. "I've learned to appreciate it more. Appreciate the campus. Appreciate being close to home. I consider coach Hodges my friend. He had everything to do with me coming back."

When Azzinaro came back to UMass, it was apparent to him that changes needed to be made. It's safe to say that in the short time here, he has done open–heart surgery on the defense. From moving Dawson to defensive end, Samuel to middle linebacker and changing the set–up to a four–man front, Azzinaro has completely reworked the appearance of the Minuteman defense.

"When you see us play over the next couple weeks, then you'll understand what we are trying to do," Azzinaro said. "We believe that great defenses' win football games."

Although things haven't gone as planned in the last two games — a 21–6 loss to Richmond and the 49–6 whipping by Maine — the extremely young defense is learning to gel.

"Sometimes statistics can be misleading," Azzinaro said. "I'm not sure this defense was as bad as they were made out to be."

In order for his squad to perform well, he needs to get a team effort; when they don't perform well, it is also done as a team. Azzinaro's job is to completely eliminate the latter.

"[Against Richmond], we gave up a couple of good plays," Azzinaro said. "We lost control of our fundamentals. We forgot some of the things that we've been preaching. We made some bad calls."

One might think after spending two seasons with BC that Azzinaro's philosophies and styles changed. According to him, that's not the truth.

"I really didn't learn anything new," Azzinaro said. "I think it just reaffirmed a lot of the things I believe in. First of all, you need to have good people. Second of all, those people need to be able to execute the system, and you need to have a plan. Coach Hodges has allowed us to do the things we need to do to get the job done."

One of his defensive proteges agreed.

"The defense has grown up," Dawson said. "He's gained a lot of experience and has grown with it. I would definitely say that he has matured."

Only three of "Coach Az's" starting defenders are seniors — Dawson, Mike Batelli and Jeron Alston. It's a tremendously difficult job for Azzinaro to have his young team prepared week after week.

"The University of Massachusetts has good players," Azzinaro said. "That hasn't changed. We've always had good players. They love to play football."

In order for Coach Az to get his youthful team to understand his philosophies, they first must learn the language of the new defense.

"These guys are great learners," Azzinaro said. "They really understand what it is we are trying to get across. They understand the desire of the defensive system. It's a very simple system, but it's not an easy system."

Anytime a new coach steps into a system that for all intents and purposes has been stagnant, it is a tremendous accomplishment to just point the players in the right direction, and that is what Azzinaro has done.

"We have a system, here, that is just trying to make them understand what their roles should be," Azzinaro said. "We try to create a competitive situation. If young people have pride in themselves, than it doesn't matter who they go against.

"You can't ask a guy to be violent four hours a day, five days a week

THANG VU/COLLEGIAN

Defensive coordinator Jerry Azzinaro will have to work with his players to stop a 0–2 start to the season, the worst since 1957.

Turn to AZZINARO, page 7

Purple Rain in Kentucky?

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team has received its first verbal commitment of the season.

Scott Clark, a 6–foot–4 two–guard, put his professional aspirations on hold and has chosen UMass over St. John's. ESPNet SportsZone has rated Clark as the 14th best shooting guard in the country, although various other recruiting publications rated him as high as the top five.

Clark, who plays this year for Notre Dame Prep in Fitchburg, has a sweet shooting touch and doesn't need to come off a screen in order to find a shot. He played with current Minuteman freshman Jonathan Dipina this summer at the Boston Shootout.

College Basketball

Casey Kane

- In other recruiting news, analyst Bob Gibbons has rated five blue–chippers at the top of this year's recruiting class. All five, he says, are tied for the top spot in his mind, which indicates how good this class is.

His top high school seniors are: 6–foot–10 center Rashard Lewis (Alief–Elsik H.S. in Texas); 6–foot–7 power forward Korleone Young (Virginia's Hargrave Military Academy); 7–foot–0 center Joel Pryzbilla (Monticello H.S. in Minnesota); in–state product 6–foot–11 center Dan Gadzuric (Governor Dummer Academy) and 6–foot–7 forward Jason Capel (Maryland's Prospect Hall).

ESPNet SportsZone, however, doesn't agree completely. Capel doesn't have a top spot on that list. Instead, Stromile Swift, a 6–foot–8 center out of Fair Park H.S. in Shreveport, La. is listed as the nation's No. 2 player.

- Kentucky seems to be the front runner for Compton's Tayshaun Prince, a 6–foot–8 forward. Meanwhile, the Southeastern Conference has already gotten a verbal from a highly touted recruit. Vincent Yarbrough has opted for Jerry Green's Tennessee team.
- Lamar Odom will not attend Rhode Island, the school announced late last week.

After the Associated Press quoted university officials saying Odom's grades still had to be evaluated, the recruit who has been dogged by controversy since he reneged on his decision to play hoop for former UMass assistant Bill Bayno at UNLV, withdrew his application. Odom has been in three different schools in the past year and his grades are not believed to be strong.

- Georgia State coach Lefty Driesell has devised a new plan to get season ticket holders into the seats for all of his team's games this year — at least the home games.

This new plan will be guided by the notion that regular fans are fed up with the almost always high prices, and not always high scores, of big time college basketball. So, Driesell said that the school will

Turn to HOOP, page 7

Minutewomen face old friend on the road

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

A former assistant coach and her former players.

That will be the side story when the University of Massachusetts field hockey team travels to Yale for a 3:30 p.m. match–up today.

The game marks the first formal reunion between the Minutewomen (3–2) and former UMass assistant coach Ainslee Press. At the close of last season, Press and fellow assistant Amy Robertson left Massachusetts to take different posts.

Press ended up in New Haven, where she is helping a team that has gone 0–2 in its season–opening swing. The Elis were on the unfortunate end of a 3–2 overtime contest at New Hampshire, before they dropped a 4–1 game at Maine.

In layman's terms, that means Yale has a tough road ahead. New Hampshire participated in the UMass/Phoenix Invitational, where the Wildcats lost to eventual Invitational champion Michigan State before capturing a win over California. Maine, meanwhile, is not exactly known for its field hockey prowess.

Massachusetts, on the other hand, is ranked No. 17 in the first NCAA poll of the season. Coming off a weekend that saw the Minutewomen split a pair of games in Virginia (a 2– 1 win over Davis & Elkins and a 2–1 loss in OT to James Madison), Yale provides UMass a chance to get back on track.

The fact that UMass has five games under its belt to Yale's two is a factor that plays in the Minutewomen's favor. The additional game time has given UMass a chance to gel, and it has also helped develop the scoring game of a relatively new offensive unit.

Erica Johnston has assumed the role of leader of the offensive corps. The junior forward leads the team in points (15), goals (7) and shots (25).

Vicky Browne, who anchors the transition game at center midfield, has added a potent punch to the scoring line as well. The junior transfer has recorded three goals and four assists in her brief career as a Minutewoman.

Christine Millbauer, who saw action in eight games last season, has already made her presence felt. The sophomore forward has three goals and two assists to her credit this year.

Because of their limited early schedule, the Elis have not found a standout scorer. In fact, three different players have recorded the team's three goals this season. Lindsay Hobbs has notched a goal and an assist, while Kate Niles and Christine Anthony each have a goal. Anthony also has a defensive save to her credit.

For Yale, some consolation can be derived from the fact that all three scorers are underclassmen; Hobbs is a junior, Niles a sophomore and Anthony is only a freshman.

Senior Magen Reed will likely get the call in the Yale goal. The keeper has recorded a .68 save percentage and a 3.38 goals against average.

While the Minutewoman offense is taking care of business at the

Field Hockey

Massachusetts vs. Yale

at Yale

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 7

Go north, Minutemen; travel to UNH

By Matthew J. Perrault
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team is finally going to see why coach Sam Koch called this season's schedule one of the team's toughest ever. UMass (2–0–1) travels north today to take on No. 22 New Hampshire in Durham at 3:30 p.m., the first of three consecutive nationally ranked opponents.

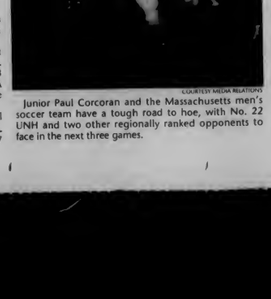
The Minutemen will be looking for senior forward Mike Butler to recreate his heroics of last Saturday, with his game–winning score in OT against Maine. If UMass is going to run with the Wildcats, they will not be allowed the luxury of starting slow and playing without their top two goal scorers. Butler and senior Joenal Castma, who sat out the first half of the Maine game due to a coach's decision.

Koch is aware of the talent level of UNH, and the need for the Minutemen to play well from the start of the match.

"[UNH is] very direct, and they attack the front third of the field as quickly as possible," Koch said. "If you are not prepared, they will beat you. They play the ball very quickly."

The Minutemen have the all–time lead in the series (21–8– 3), but tied the Wildcats last year 1–1 in Amherst.

This next stretch of three games is extremely important for UMass to see where they match up in the nation. After No. 22 UNH, the Minutemen will host No. 8 Boston University, and then play last year's NCAA semi–finalist Hartford. BU, UNH and Hartford are ranked 1–2–3 in the New England region, respectively.



"These games will tell us where we are, and will

Men's Soccer

Massachusetts vs. New Hampshire

at UNH

Turn to SOCCER, page 7

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Junior Paul Corcoran and the Massachusetts men's soccer team have a tough road to hoe, with No. 22 UNH and two other regionally ranked opponents to face in the next three games.

Get off my turf; Jeffs battle with UMass

By Justin Rudd
Collegian Correspondent

Confidence should be high today when the University of Massachusetts women's tennis team goes for point, set and match against Amherst College at 3:30 p.m. on the Upper Boyden Courts. The last time these two teams met was in the 1996 season, when the Minutewomen had to endure an unfortunate blow, losing 5–3.

This years' Lord Jeffs team lost two players who contributed with wins in their last victory over UMass. In lieu of their losses, the Amherst women have four freshman additions, led by their captain and only senior on the team, Sally Childs. Thus far in their season, Amherst and UMass have faced one common opponent, Trinity, and like UMass, the Jeffs swept the courts, coming up with a 9–0 victory.

When it comes to singles, this season's Amherst squad may be a tad questionable in facing the Minutewomen. Those two players that Amherst College lost to graduation were the ones who contributed with singles victories in their 5–3 win over UMass.

There is only one player returning to the courts with a win in singles over the Minutewomen, and that is junior Nelley Steinberg, who defeated now–graduated Noelle Ortini, 6–1, 6–1. As a result, UMass will be presented with a young team as their opponents on the courts.

Going into today's match, UMass should be feeling pretty good about their tennis skills. With their impressive win over Hartford exactly one week ago, the Minutewomen hope they don't ride in on their high horse. In their last match, exactly one week ago, the Minutewomen obliterated the Hartford Hawks, 7–0.

"They exceeded my expectations," said UMass coach Judy Dixon.

In tomorrow's match, taking the No. 1 spot for only her second time this season, and her college career, is senior tri– captain Marie Christine Caron. In her last match, Caron defeated her opponent 6–2, 6–0, and impressed Dixon with her excellent play and mental strength.

Retaining the No. 3 spot is freshman Robyn Lebovitz. In her first ever collegiate match last week, Lebovitz left a memorable and lasting impression on those watching with a 6–0, 6–0 sweep, contributing to UMass' 7–0 win.

Moving on to doubles, the Minutewomen impressively produced results strikingly similar to those of the singles matches. The women's tennis doubles record is 3–0, not letting their opponents score in excess of three points a match.

Last week, the doubles teams' of Lebovitz/Steele and Braunstein/Gorodetskaya both gave their opponents a quick seat to the bench, with consecutive 8–2 victories. The third and final doubles pair of sophomore Ola Gerasimova and Caron, like their teammates, quickly disposed of their opponents, 8–3.

Minuteman Notes: The Massachusetts men's tennis team was victorious over Wesleyan last Monday afternoon in Middletown, Conn., led by junior captain Todd Cheney's wins in No. 1 singles and doubles for a 6–1 final.

The Minutemen took five of the six singles matches, while sweeping the doubles competition. Sophomore Rob Manchester joined Cheney in the No. 1 doubles match, with the duo winning their eighth consecutive doubles match — a streak that goes back to last spring.

Fellow sophomores Patrick Slyman and Kevin Curley won their singles matches in straight sets to help UMass to the victory.

UMass plays next on Tuesday, Sept. 17, travelling to Kingston, R.I. for a match with the University of Rhode Island.

Women's Tennis

Massachusetts vs. Amherst College

Upper Boyden

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 12 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Thursday, September 18, 1997

A breath of fresh air

Looking for ways to spend that extra time you have? The Collegian has some ideas on getting out (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Leading with her foot

Women's soccer standout Emma Kurowski takes on the fine art of balancing athletics and academics (see Sports, page 14).

WORLD

Crews continue search for survivors of crash

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — With hopes of finding survivors all but gone, search and rescue crews slogged though heavy fog and strong wind yesterday for bodies and wreckage from the weekend crash of U.S. and German military planes.

An overnight search by three U.S. C-130s equipped with special night-vision equipment turned up only one small piece of wreckage, Lt. Col. Stony Steenkamp of the South African air force said yesterday.

There has been no hint of any survivors since faint distress signals were detected Sunday and early Monday. Officials had no plans to stop the search, however.

"The search will continue as long as necessary," Steenkamp said. "There is no thought yet of putting it off."

The two planes were carrying 33 people when they vanished Saturday over the cold treacherous waters off Namibia's coast.

NATION

Messinger closing in on Democratic nomination

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruth Messinger closed in yesterday on winning the Democratic mayoral nomination, avoiding a runoff next week with activist Al Sharpton.

With fewer than 2,000 absentee ballots left to count, Messinger had 40.175 percent of the vote. Unless the final ballots swung overwhelmingly to Sharpton, she would clear the 40 percent threshold needed to win the nomination without a runoff.

That would hand Sharpton a bitter defeat after an unofficial tally from polling places in the Sept. 9 primary indicated Messinger had 39 percent of the vote and he, finishing second in a field of five, had 32 percent, setting up a runoff between the top two finishers on Sept. 23.

Sharpton said yesterday he will challenge the count in state court regardless of the outcome, "because the Board of Elections has to be challenged and changed."

"We find ourselves in a situation now where no matter what, people feel like the system is less than protective of their rights," he said on WLIB radio.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 79 LOW: 51	HIGH: 75 LOW: 59	HIGH: 78 LOW: 57

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Comics.....page 13
Editorial.....page 4
News.....page 3

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Ombudsman receives vote of no confidence

By Christine Soh
Collegian Staff

"On Issues of Neutrality," was the title of the motion put forth at Tuesday night's Graduate Student Senate (GSS) meeting.

Presented by Department of Education student Rosie Castañeda, the motion read, "whereas there is only one office on campus for students, faculty, and staff that provides neutrality and confidentiality in matters of dispute and otherwise,

"Whereas the code of ethics and standards of practice for the Ombuds profession requires a commitment to confidentiality, neutrality and trustworthiness,

"Whereas the role of that office and the Ombudsperson at UMass is to assist in resolving conflicts and grievances,

"The conduct of the Ombudsperson has been in blatant violation of these principles and practices."

The motion then concluded, "We, therefore, announce our lack of confidence and trust in the credibility and abilities of the Ombudsperson and the office."

The motion received votes of 22 in favor, 1 opposed, and 3 abstentions.

The motion was made in regards to a statement given by Ombudsman Robert Ackermann to the Massachusetts State Advisory Committee for the United States Commission on Civil Rights on April 25.

Ackermann was asked during the Goodell takeover in March, to serve as an intermediary. "His violation of several codes occurred when he attended the meeting on April 25," said Castañeda.

In presenting the motion, Castañeda also distributed a copy of The Ombudsman Association Standards of Practice, as well as a copy of Ackermann's letter written for the April 25 meeting.

Castañeda first noted code B of the Standards of Practice article which reads, "there is a privilege with respect to communications with the ombudsman and we resist testifying in any formal process inside or outside of the organization."

To this, Castañeda commented, "with presenting this statement, he testified, thus violating the code."

According to Castañeda, Ackermann also violated code F of the Standards of Practice. This section reads, "The ombudsman, as a designated neutral, has the responsibility of maintaining strict confidentiality concerning matters that are brought to his/her attention unless given permission to do otherwise."

"The conduct of the Ombudsperson has been in blatant violation of these principles and practices. We, therefore, announce our lack of confidence and trust in the credibility and abilities of the Ombudsperson and the office."

–taken from Tuesday's GSS motion.

Castañeda then said, "he was asked to not speak at this meeting, but violated [the code] by giving a speech."

"Neutrality was also violated for Deputy Chancellor [Marcellete] Williams," said Castañeda, "by using her name in the letter."

According to Castañeda, Ackermann "used a lot of his own opinions and perceptions." Castañeda said he "claimed that ALANA students wanted child care issues [resolved as part of the Goodell demands], but ALANA students did not say that at all."

Castañeda also quoted from Ackermann's statement reading off segments to back up this point. From Ackermann's letter, she read, "Some students seem to believe that, in addition to individual civil rights violations, the civil rights of all ALANA students... are systematically violated on the campus of the University by virtue of policies and procedures... If civil rights are restricted to current legally enforceable civil rights, then I do not think that this is true."

The Senate then opened the floor up for discussion. Tom Taaffe, a graduate student in anthropology, said "after Goodell, I was threatened by my own department with trumped up charges."

"I brought these issues to the Ombuds Office and received a letter threatening my academics if I continued to persist in protesting."

Jennifer Fasulo, a graduate student in curricula and learning, said, "Ackermann violated issues of neutrality when it's his job to not take a position on an issue."

After the motion was voted on, GSS President Deepika Marya said in response to a senator's suggestion to table the motion until the following week, "Three students spoke to him soon after Goodell, about the issue of neutrality and he didn't step back."

Marya further commented, "this thing has already gone on for too long."

Ombudsman Ackermann was unavailable for comment.

Bulger to be installed today; UM orchestra will perform

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

Today, in one of the largest celebrations in the history of the University of Massachusetts, William M. Bulger will be officially installed as the 20th president of the UMass system.

Bulger, who was appointed president by the Board of Trustees in November 1995 and assumed his position in January 1996, will be installed at 11:30 this morning at Fanueil Hall in Boston.

Prior to coming to UMass, Bulger served as president of the Massachusetts Senate, a position he held for 17 years. The 63 year old graduate of Boston College Law School also sits on the Board of Trustees of the Boston Public Library and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

As president of the UMass system, Bulger is responsible for distributing the state budget allocation for the system to each campus and for setting system wide priorities, policies and standards.

He is also expected to lobby the State Legislature and other officials for the University system.

Several events are planned for the day–long installation celebration, including a luncheon at the John F. Kennedy Library, following the installation ceremony, and a black tie scholarship fund raising dinner at 6 p.m. at Symphony Hall.

The Department of Music

The UMass Amherst Department of Music has been asked to provide the music for the installation festivities. Over 250 UMass students, accompanied by eight of their professors, will perform at the morning and evening events.

"We are very honored that we were invited," said Marilyn Kushik, the departments director of public relations. "It is a wonderful performing opportunity and we hope that we will enhance the inaugural festivities."

John Salvi, a graduate student in the music department, said that he is especially looking forward to singing in Symphony Hall.

"It is a great opportunity just to sing in the hall, with its acoustics and its heritage, and it is going to be a great sound," Salvi said.

Professor Fredric Cohen, who will direct the University Orchestra, said that the students have been practicing hard and are ready to meet the challenge of playing for the state government.

"We are not playing background music, we are featured. It is a great honor for the students," Cohen said. "They are performing for the highest level of the state government. People that are used to hearing the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be hearing the UMass Orchestra, and the students

Turn to BULGER, page 3

LAUREN ROSKY/COLLEGIAN

A little off the top

Trimmings from an Eastern White Pine tree lay on the ground by the campus pond.

Florist opens in Campus Center

By Jason Eiserman
Collegian Correspondent

There is a new resident in the Campus Center this year, as Montgomery's Florist, of South Hadley, has opened an outpost outside of the University Store in the Campus Center.

According to Valerie Strunjo, the owner, the store is meant to provide students with the plants that best fit their lifestyle.

"We try to get a feeling for what students like to have," says Strunjo, who owns and operates Montgomery's Florist with her husband Tom. "I know they're not going to mother this plant... so we provide low light, low maintenance plants for students."

According to Strunjo, Montgomery's Florist is most well–known for its roses, which are grown in a greenhouse behind the store in Hadley. Presently, there is a special on roses, which Strunjo will continue through the end of September.

"We're going to try to have one special here every week that's inexpensive," Strunjo said.

Besides the roses and low maintenance plants, Montgomery's carries many special cuts of flowers. This week they are carrying "bird of paradise" flowers, and last week their sunflower cuts "went like mad," according to Strunjo. They carry many assortments which students like, but do not sell well at their main store in Hadley.

"Cacti have sold well here, but not at the other store," Strunjo said.

After 6 years of owning Montgomery's Florist, Strunjo said that she knows what students want. "You get a feel for what

Turn to FLORIST, page 3

LAUREN ROSKY/COLLEGIAN

The Montgomery's Flower Shop near the University Store, displays its beautiful flower arrangements in the busy Campus Center.

Palestinians protest compound; Jewish settlers could be evicted

By Jack Katzenell
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Volleys of Palestinian stones and Israeli tear gas cannisters flew outside a Jewish settler compound yesterday as Israeli police pushed back hundreds of Palestinians who demanded the settlers leave the Arab neighborhood.

Defying the Israeli government and ignoring the threat of increased violence, the Florida multimillionaire who owns the compound said he would not shut the new settlement down.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is awaiting a Supreme Court ruling today before deciding whether to evict the Jewish settlers by force, a senior aide said. Israel television said Netanyahu was determined to get the settlers out.

The government's top legal adviser has told Netanyahu he could remove the settlers if he felt their presence in the Mount of Olives neighborhood of 11,000 Palestinians endangered national security.

Israeli security officials have predicted widespread Palestinian riots if the settlers don't leave the compound, located in an area of east Jerusalem the Palestinians want as the capital of a future state.

Yesterday, hundreds of Palestinians chanting "God is great!" marched toward the compound, but were pushed back by Israeli riot police, who clubbed and beat them.

Several Palestinians threw stones and were chased into alleys by Israeli troops, who fired back tear gas. Four Palestinians and two settler supporters were arrested, and five Palestinians were injured.

Hundreds of Israeli peace activists joined the Palestinian protesters, but were not forced out by police.

Irving Moskowitz, the Florida millionaire who owns 3.5 acres in the Arab neighborhood and has rented two buildings to the settlers, met yesterday with Public Security Minister Avigdor Kahalani, who tried to persuade him that the settlers should leave voluntarily. "We didn't come to a solution," Moskowitz said after two hours of talks.

Moskowitz, who lives in Miami Beach, bristled when asked how he could justify sending a whole region into turmoil when he doesn't even live there. "I don't see it like that," he told reporters. Rather, he insisted, he was trying to defend the Jews' right to live anywhere in Jerusalem and would welcome the Palestinians as neighbors. "We will have good relationships with them, just as in any democratic country people of different races and religions and nationalities live together," Moskowitz said.

Despite the conciliatory talk, Jewish settlers who have bought homes in the city's Arab neighborhoods acknowledge their real purpose is to thwart the establishment of a Palestinian capital. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat said yesterday that allowing the settlers to remain violates the peace agreements. "We hope it will be solved very quickly. Otherwise there will be a negative reaction," Arafat told reporters in Gaza City.

Yesterday's protest was a first sign the Palestinians were getting impatient. Some protesters said if the settlers weren't out within 24 hours, there would be widespread riots after noon prayers on Friday, the Muslim sabbath.

Needle exchange program lacks funds; AIDS activists protest government's ban

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of AIDS activists descended on the Department of Health and Human Services yesterday carrying symbolic tombstones as they protested the ban on federal funding for needle exchange programs.

Thirteen people were arrested after trying to carry a 12-foot "moral backbone" into the building for Secretary Donna Shalala, who has said the needle exchange programs can be effective in fighting AIDS but has stopped short of lifting the ban.

"I have known people who have died of contaminated needles. It's not necessary," said Kate Sorensen of San Francisco, one of the protesters arrested in a show of civil disobedience.

"It all started with a dirty needle," said Sheila Catherine Hair Fuoco, a Birmingham, Ala., woman with HIV. She said she was infected by her late husband, who was infected by a dirty needle. She passed the virus to her son when she was pregnant.

Shalala was in the building during the rally, which organizers said attracted 2,000 protesters.

About one-third of adults with AIDS got the killer virus through contaminated needles or sex with injecting drug users. Needle exchange programs give drug addicts clean needles for their used ones in hopes of keeping contaminated needles from spreading the virus.

There were at least 87 needle exchange programs around the country in 1995-96, operating with local or private funding. To lift the ban on federal funding, HHS must certify that the programs reduce AIDS without increasing drug use.

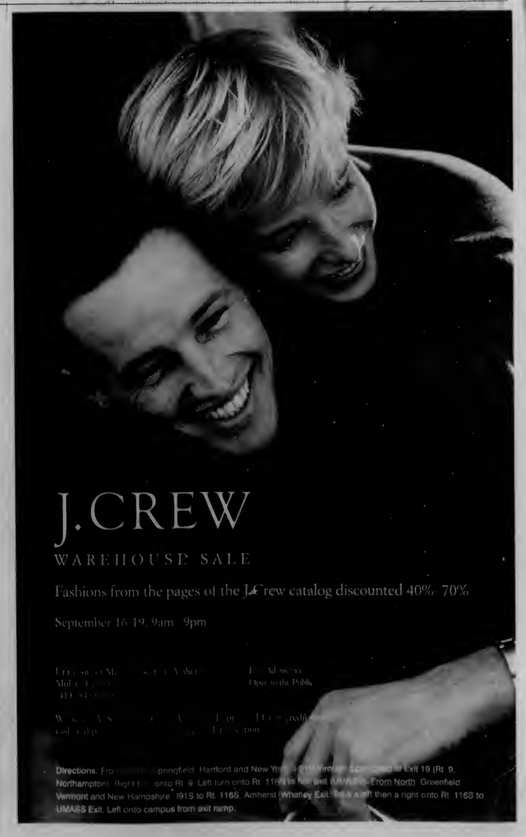
A panel of experts convened by the National Institutes of Health said early this year that these programs are a powerful weapon against AIDS that have been blocked by politics.

In a report to Congress in February, Shalala cited research that drug use did not increase when communities began needle exchanges, and that the programs allow health officials to offer drug treatment to addicts they might otherwise never see.

But the department is still studying whether needle exchanges increase drug use, HHS spokesman Victor Zonana said Wednesday. "We will make a decision based on science and public health, not politics," he said.

He added that the Clinton administration is funding other AIDS efforts including expensive research and medications.

LAUREN KOSKY \ COLLEGIAN



A "foundation" for learning

Art majors' self portraits and a suspended wire sculpture showing in the Foundations "1997 Exhibition: The Class of 2000," in the Herter Gallery.

EXPANDED
STATE OF THE ART
MULTILEVEL
FITNESS CENTER
ATTENTION CLIMBERS! THE TREAD WALL IS HERE
•Cardio Theater
•New Recumbent Bikes
•Over 10 Treadmills
•Gravitron
•Precor EFX
COMING SOON:
New Entrance &
More Parking
THE CLUB
Tennis and Fitness Center
659 Amherst Rd Sunderland 549-3638

University of Massachusetts Amherst presents
CROSSWORLDS
A CONVERSATION
PERSUASIVE VOICES OF CONSTRUCTIVE CHANGE
CORETTA SCOTT KING
PAT SCHROEDER

EVENT SPEAKERS:
Coretta Scott King, Widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Patricia Schroeder, Former Congresswoman of Colorado
Thursday, September 25, 1997
7:30 pm, Mullins Center
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Ticket Prices: General Public - $20, $15, $10; Students - $5.
Tickets on sale at the Mullins Center Box Office (413) 545-0505 and Ticketmaster (413)733-2500 beginning August 25, 1997 at 10:00 am
RESERVED SEATING: Available at box office until sold out. TTY (413) 545-3102
sponsored in part by BankBoston Friendly's

J.CREW
WAREHOUSE SALE
Fashions from the pages of the J.Crew catalog discounted 40% 70%
September 16 19, 9am 9pm
Directions: From Springfield Hartford and New York Take Interstate 91 North to Exit 19 (Rt. 9, Northampton) Right onto Rt 9 Left turn onto Rt 116 to first exit (UMASS) From North Greenfield Vermont and New Hampshire I91S to Rt. 116S, Amherst (Whately Exit) Take a left then a right onto Rt 116S to UMASS Exit. Left onto campus from exit ramp.

Legislators give themselves a $3000 raise

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With remarkable swiftness, the House of Representatives reached out yesterday for a $3,000 increase in the congressional salary of $133,600.

On a vote of 231-192, and after a desultory debate in which the subject of a pay raise was never mentioned, lawmakers approved a routine Treasury Department spending bill shorn of a provision used routinely in recent years to block cost-of-living increases for lawmakers.

"They're pushing it through so they don't have to talk about" the 2.3 percent raise, Rep. Linda Smith (R-Wash.) said of the GOP leadership as the multibillion-dollar spending bill was whisking through the House in scarcely an hour.

"No one was trying to pull a fast one on anybody," countered Rep. Jim Kolbe (R-Ariz.) who steered the bill to passage. Even so, the tension on the House floor was evident, as GOP Whip Tom DeLay of Texas, a behind-the-scenes supporter of a pay raise, patrolled the floor continuously while the measure was pending.

While the legislation moved through the House quickly — and with little advance notice to lawmakers — final passage capped weeks of quiet discussions among senior lawmakers. Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.) and Rep. Richard Gephardt, (D-Mo.) the Democratic leader, were involved in conversations over whether and how to proceed in securing the first cost-of-living increase in congressional pay since 1992.

In separate closed-door caucuses earlier in the day, according to congressional officials, rank-and-file members of both parties discussed the issue. These officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said lawmakers were cautioned by their leaders that they would be subject to attack by their rivals in the next campaign if the pay raise took effect.

Ultimately, it was decided to bring the legislation to the floor under a procedure designed to bar a direct vote on the pay raise itself. In the end, pay-raise opponents seemed caught off guard, and none of them even sought recognition to try to amend the measure.

Even so, some Republicans worried aloud about the potential for political fallout on an issue that has proved volatile in the past. Rep. John Linder (R-Ga.) chairman of the House Republican campaign apparatus, said, "It's one more issue we don't need to have." He said that incumbents in "politically vulnerable districts" would be attacked by their campaign opponents over the pay raise. Republicans hold a slender 227-206 majority in the House.

In fact, the legislation contains no mention of an increase in pay for members of Congress. By custom, though, it has been used in recent years to block such increases.

Under a law passed in 1989, lawmakers are entitled to an annual cost-of-living salary increase linked to what the president recommends for federal workers. Officials said that for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1998, that would amount to a raise of 2.3 percent for lawmakers, or $3,072 annually.

The same 2.3 percent increase would go to federal judges.

Witnesses seek immunity, forcing delay in House

By James Rowley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The first three witnesses scheduled to testify at House hearings on campaign-finance abuses are demanding immunity from prosecution, forcing postponement of their appearance this week, the panel's chief counsel said yesterday.

The three were scheduled by the panel's chairman, Rep. Dan Burton (R-Ind.) to testify today about being asked to make "straw donations" to the Democratic Party on behalf of others. But their eleventh-hour demand for immunity threw Burton's plans to start hearings this week in disarray, committee aides said. Lawyers for Manlin Foung, who is the sister of Democratic fund raiser Charlie Trie, and two other witnesses notified the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee that they want immunity from prosecution before appearing at hearings, said Richard Bennett, the committee's chief counsel.

The three witnesses were not represented by lawyers when they were questioned by Burton's investigators, said committee aides, speaking on condition of anonymity.

One witness asked if he should hire a lawyer. The investigators replied they couldn't give advice on that but assured him he was not in trouble, said a Democratic committee aide. Investigators only taped the last 15 minutes of a two-hour interview with Fuong, the aide said.

Bennett said that Burton would confer with Democrats on the panel today about whether they would be willing to join GOP members in voting to give immunity on the three witnesses.

A two-thirds vote is needed to confer immunity, meaning that seven Democrats would have to join 23 Republicans in approving the grants. One Republican member, Rep. Steve Schiff of New Mexico, is ill and would not vote.

One leading Democrat, Pennsylvania Rep. Paul Kanjorski, has raised the possibility his colleagues would withhold support for immunity unless the chairman was more cooperative to the minority. But Bennett said, "We are hopeful the Democrats will join us in that regard."

Democrats will want to know what the Justice Department thinks about immunity, as well as the Senate's chief investigator, Sen. Fred Thompson (R-Tenn.) said a Democratic aide, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Burton had scheduled to start hearings yesterday with opening statements by members of the committee. That proceeding is likely to be cancelled and Burton hopes to schedule a vote today on immunity at a business meeting, Bennett said.

Committee lawyers are also consulting with the Justice Department, which is investigating the activities of Trie, John Huang and other Democratic fund-raisers, he said.

None of the three witnesses has been contacted by government prosecutors and Bennett said the committee's investigators do not believe they would likely be charged with crimes for giving a donation on behalf of someone else.

"Basically, we have always felt that while they don't need immunity, the offense has not fallen within the Justice Department" guidelines for prosecution, Bennett said.

The Justice Department's campaign-finance task force, however, objected to immunity grants the Senate panel conferred on three Buddhist nuns who testified about their temple's scheme to reimburse 11 monastics for $55,000 donated to the Democratic Party following a fund-raiser attended by Vice President Gore.

LAUREN KOSKY \ COLLEGIAN

Shop till you drop!

Students take advantage of the bargain prices at the warehouse sale at the Mullins Center yesterday morning.

■ Bulger

continued from page 1

have risen to the occasion."

The Chamber Choir, Chorale, Jazz Ensemble, String Quartet, Wind Ensemble and University Orchestra will perform at the installation and dinner reception.

Write for News! O K -2

■ florist

continued from page 1

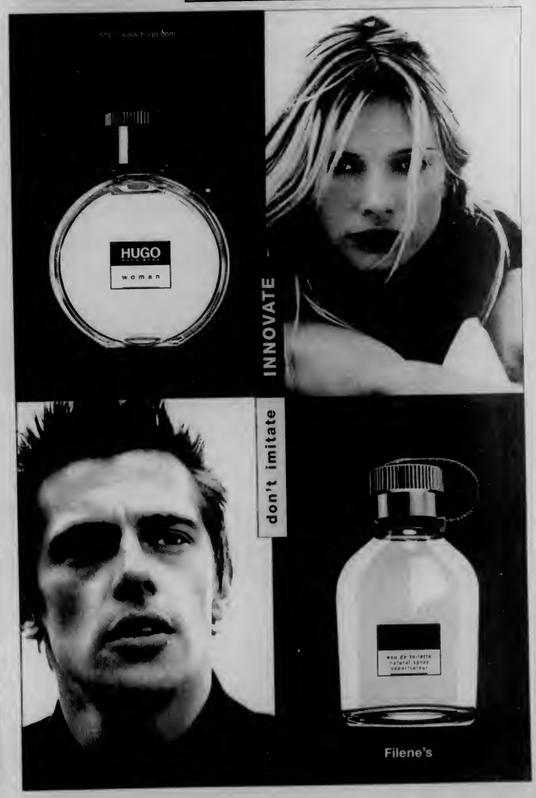
the University students are looking for," she said.

There is more than just flowers and plants at the new shop. The store also sells odd variety items including good luck snippets and cycle braking stones. They also carry colorful vases, teddy bears to be sent along with roses, an assortment of cards and helium balloons.

Montgomery's Florist also delivers. "We deliver locally all over. On Valentine's Day we have an entire truck that does nothing but UMass deliveries," Strunjo said.

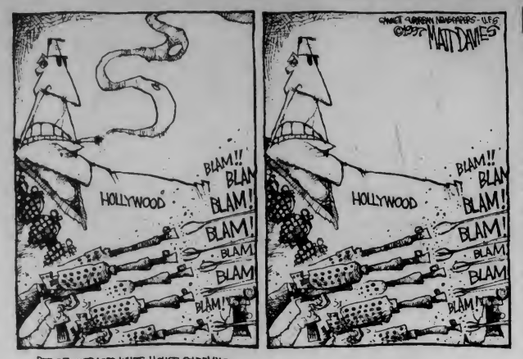
Montgomery's Florist also has a toll free number for parents to call, in order to have flowers or balloons delivered, "because everyone has a birthday," Strunjo said.

The store will be in the Campus Center for the entire year, open Monday through Friday, 10–5 p.m., and 10–2 p.m. on Saturday. According to Strunjo, "Saturday is the slowest day, most of the business comes from the hotel, or some "I'm sorry" bouquets, because someone messed up on Friday night."



"The UMass staff, the core of this building did a great job getting us in here this timely," Strunjo said. "I see our role here as a fun role. It's just a way to lighten up, to get to know people."

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
• By Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-Time Evenings
• Classes Start Sept. 15, 1997
• Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474



UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!
922 Campus Center
545-1995 Call Today!

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.- Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m.
Tel: 549-2692.
THANK YOU FOR YOUR PATRONAGE
$hop Scott's & $ave Lot$!
Bud, Bud Light & Ice 1/2 Kegs $39.99
Rolling Rock 12 packs $6.99 + dep.
Coors Extra Gold 15 packs $5.99 + dep.
Bud Dry 30 packs $10.99 + dep.
Bud Ice & Ice Light 30 packs $15.49 + dep.
• Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials •
• Quantity discounts always available •
Come In and Register to Win a FREE T.V.
No Purchase Necessary. Must be 21.
Jose Cuervo $11.49/750ml
Southern Comfort $8.49/750ml
Poland Springs Vodka $8.99/1.75L
Malibu Rum $12.49/Liters
UMass
Always Tons of Unadvertised Specials!!!
MasterCard VISA DISCOVER
Tele-Check for your personal check
We want to be your favorite Liquor store
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

A NEW CHAPTER BEGINS
Umass Student's Hindu Association
Presents
"PEHLI RAAT"
A Reception to Welcome you to our Family
Featuring
An Entertainment Show and Dinner
Admission is Free. Dinner is $5.00
Saturday Sept. 20 at 5:30pm
At the Campus Center Auditorium, UMass
Sponsored by India House, Starbucks, Daily Collegian & Superior Pizza
For more info call 546-1511 or e-mail hindu@stuaf.umass.edu

-- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

BEFORE OUTRAGED WHITE HOUSE CONDEMNS COMMON MOVIE ACTIVITY & IT'S HARMFUL INFLUENCE ON CHILDREN...

AFTER.

Notes from the Campus Center basement

La, la, la.

When you see me chirping "La, la, la," you know I'm feeling a little funky.

So, in classic Collegian tradition, I'm going with a little "Notes from the Campus Center basement" action, something only seniors can write.

I feel so privileged that they cut us old–timers at least a few breaks. (I've been here so long that I think they'll just switch my financial aid to Medicare when I finally leave this place.)

* * *

I will now wager in with my first and only political comment here on the pages of the Collegian. Back in August (which seems to long ago, doesn't it?), my friend Ian and I got into a heated argument about the political career of a certain William Weld.

Luke Meredith

I said that it didn't matter if he got the Mexico post or not, because all he wanted was to put himself up as the good guy in a fight with GOP ogre Jesse Helms, thus giving him publicity and precedent he could use to start up a presidential campaign in 2000. Ian said no (and then he called me a name).

He said nobody becomes president from the ambassador post in Mexico. I said that doesn't matter because he'll never get it anyway, but he will now be a national GOP figure, a moderate national GOP figure who hates Jesse Helms just like you do.

Well, Willie dropped his bid on Tuesday. For once in my life, a venture into the political ring didn't end with disaster. But I think I'll just stick to stories about girls, beer, mails and teeth. At least I know a little bit about that stuff.

* * *

Alright, here's the scene. Saturday... noon. My housemate and I (housemate C for those keeping score) decide to order food for lunch. I order a meatball sub. He orders a salad. Food gets there at 1 p.m. — without the meatball sub. I call up. They're like, "Sorry sir, we be there soon."

1:25... no sub.

My housemates start picking on me because I feel bad about yelling at the kid on the phone, because he's probably a student just trying to pocket some beer money, something I can relate to. Guy comes at 1:40 with a sub. I take it. Only one problem. It's a sausage with green peppers. Not what I ordered. I call the manager, but all I could do was laugh. Meatball sub came at 2:08 p.m., 128 minutes after I ordered it.

True story.

(P.S. Housemate C ate the meatball sub for dinner. I ended up just eating some tuna fish from the cabinet).

* * *

You know you're getting old when you see the new Mariah Carey video and can only think, "Damn girl, put some clothes on!"

Fortunately, I'm not that old yet ('cause it's just like honey, baby).

Yeah, Mariah.

* * *

Speaking of music, a fall tip for you guys. James Taylor's new album, Hourglass, is amazing. IT can still crank out the love, even though he's like 214 years old. (I can't believe he wrote "Sweet Baby James" after hanging out with Arlo Guthrie. Arlo Guthrie! He's so old, I don't even know who he is.)

I just saw him at Tanglewood for the second summer in a row in August, and it was, in the words of friend from Kansas, "spiritu–alll, dude."

P.S. The Samples are coming Oct. 1 to NoHo. I love the Samples. But then, that's because I'm so old. So if you see some guy stumbling uptown chirping "I'd to stay, but I couldn't stay with you...," be gentle, and steer me home.

Us old guys forget our way every now and again.

Bye, bye guys.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

Do you have something to say...

...about the "Guidelines on Demonstrations and Picketing Code" mailed to members of the University community earlier this month? If so, please contact the Editorial/Opinion desk. We will be running a full page devoted solely to this issue in the upcoming week.

The deadline for submissions will be noon on Monday, September 22. Editorials should be 500–700 words long and can be submitted by fax (545–1592), e–mail (letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu), on a PC disk, or on paper. Please make sure that any electronic submissions are in plain–text format, and be sure to include your phone number.

Letters to the Editor

Praise for new Picketing Policy

To the Editor:

In regard to the new Picketing Policy at the University, I would like to congratulate President Bulger and Chancellor Scott on passing this policy.

We all know the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech. However, the Supreme Court and its lower appeals courts have time and again stated it is not unlimited. One person's rights end when they invade the rights of another.

One does not have the right to obstruct someone from doing their daily business in the name of the First Amendment. In an appeal case against the 15–foot buffer around abortion clinics, a federal court stated, "the First Amendment (and its guarantee of freedom of speech) does not, in any context, protect coercive or obstructionist conduct that intimidates or physically prevents individuals from going about ordinary affairs." (USA Today, 5/28/96).

This case is now being used as a precedent in cases against the ACLU, PETA and AFL-CIO. It was also used in the UPS strike.

This policy, if enforced equally, protects everyone's rights. People can still protest outside the offices without violating this policy. It prevents a disruption in the daily business of others who do not wish to participate.

In the Goodell incident, Student Activities Office seize and Franklin blockade, there were people who had legitimate business to conduct in these places. When you cut off their right to enter or exit the space, not only do you violate their rights, but you alienate them from your cause.

Before anyone takes over an office or DC, stop and think how you would like to have your office, dorm, or DC entrance blocked when you need to get inside. Not every student agrees with your protests. How would the GEO, BSU, ALANA, or any other organization like to have their office occupied by a rival? They wouldn't.

And this policy protects them from that.

Peter Kurek
Sunderland

Picketing Code isn't new

To the Editor:

Over the summer, students received a document detailing the "new" Picketing Code. Since its release, this document has been a target of severe criticism from various segments of the student body. As a student leader whose responsibilities over the past several years have included the need to be intimately familiar with even obscure aspects of University policy, I feel a need to respond to the students' protests of this policy.

First, the idea that this policy is new is ludicrous. It has appeared in the Student Rights and Responsibilities manual for years. This policy is really no different than the policies governing any public administration building. Its flexibility exists to allow the University leniency in dealing with students — not to screw students over. If the state legislature had the choice, it is likely that they would abolish all leniency from the policy.

A student takeover is effective because the students involved are taking a serious legal risk. The risk the students take in occupying a building is a statement of their commitment to their cause. Without the possibility of legal sanction, a building takeover cannot be effective.

The Chancellor and his administration have chosen to use the leniency of the Picketing Code to the benefit of the students over the past few years. They have received harsh criticism for this from a number of state legislators, some of whom felt that all of the students in the takeover should have been expelled. The likelihood of the administration being able to take the stance of leniency in the near future is slim at best. They have chosen to remind students of the possible consequences of a student takeover, in my view an extremely responsible and respectful thing to do.

There is a time and place for student takeovers. The Chancellor's message in releasing this policy isn't a strike against the students. It's a statement encouraging students to work with his administration in a collaborative manner. Next time the Chancellor may not have a choice to be lenient to the students — that he is willing to tell us that should be taken as incentive to work with the Chancellor, to collaborate, to effect change by methods that don't offend the legislative body that funds the University.

Give the Chancellor a break, he's doing his job, and he's doing his job well. He does not deserve the harsh criticism he's been given — not from the students, the faculty, or the legislature.

Ashavan Whitman Doyon
Sunderland

The campus and Cassini

To the Editor:

In James Shaw's editorial, "In Defense of Protest" (Collegian, Sept. 9), he asks, "Why shouldn't protests occur at the place of oppression and continue until the wrongs are right?" Shaw is referring to the recent action by the Administration when they sent out a letter with the new system-wide picketing code to UMass students as a way of intimidating students from taking further radical actions such as building takeovers in social protest in hopes of bringing public awareness to institutional sexism, racism, classism and the militarization of campus.

Shaw says that the Picketing Code is "an attempt by the University to cut out the students' political tongue." I totally agree with Shaw. In my 17 years of researching student activism at UMass, I have witnessed the Administration become less concerned with human rights and more concerned with maintaining the status quo— keeping their big salaries and their snobbish, elitist, arrogant, gas guzzling lifestyles in tact.

The Picketing Code is a denial of democracy. It is their intention to stifle the creative activism we need to build a lovolutionary community whose ultimate goal is to establish justice world-wide. Business as usual at UMass equals keeping the rich rich and the poor ignorant of the causes of their sufferings. This economic imbalance is also the background for the reason why we live in a degenerating environment and why they find it necessary to use brainwashing techniques to stupefy the majority. Thus, the masses are mesmerized to accept their own economic and mental slavery with smiling faces.

The picketing code nonsense needs to be changed and the only way this is ever going to happen is for UMass students to break the "code" by organizing actions of civil disobedience. Students should begin to hold public forums to start the process of creating an alternative educational and governance structure to replace the outdated and dangerous UMass dictatorship. Such a student movement and counter-culture was beginning to happen on college campuses throughout America in the '60s and early '70s, until the Administration started sending in the National Guard and shot and killed students, like at the tragic event which occurred at Kent State.

Since the Administration has drawn a line in the sand and threatened to expel or fire anyone who steps over the line by demonstrating outside of their narrowly defined borders and their nine to five time slot, a lot is at stake for anyone who speaks out and acts against the corrupt Administration, which has sold out to Corporate America. Daring to break the picketing code, you could loose your job if you are a faculty or staff or you could be expelled from school or loose your financial aid if you are a student, and thus be forced to drop out of school because of lack of funds. If you are a community activist, they could arrest you for trespassing, ban you from campus and make you serve a jail sentence. Or you could even loose your life if the Administration has a brutal showdown, as they have done in the past to silence peaceful, sane, anti-military protesters by bringing in armed state troopers, fierce dogs, horseback riding robocops and other police-state high-tech armory.

But the stakes are even greater if we don't have the courage to act. The future of campus free thought is at stake! In my opinion, in order for students of conscience to be victorious in our struggle against the Administration, we must target our energies on issues which have universal consequence and affect everyone's lives, an issue of great significance which could capture the public imagination. One such issue could be the mid-October launching of the Cassini spacecraft which will be carrying 72.3 pounds of plutonium, the deadest substance known to humans. If the spacecraft was to blow up as the Space Shuttle Challenger did, much of the southeast coast would be polluted with radioactive fallout. Millions of people would die as a result of cancers caused by the accident and the land would be contaminated for thousands of generations to come.

Mark Elsis (www.lovearth.org) points out that NASA has sold its soul to the militarization and nuclearization of space. Even though the Cassini mission's official goal is to explore Saturn and its satellite Titan for signs of life, the unofficial mission is to begin the nuclear domination of space, NASA has scheduled a dozen more nuclear missions over the next 12 years. Elis writes, "The U.S. Space Command is already preparing itself for a future of U.S. military control of space, which would depend upon the ability to use nuclear reactors in space as a power source for hypervelocity guns, particle beams and laser weapons on battle platforms." They see space as a new military high ground, not as a way of working to solve our pressing problems on Earth, such as soil erosion, deforestation and world hunger.

To help bring attention to another phase of this insane nuclear arms race, campus-wide rallies need to occur. Teach-ins and sit-ins at places like the engineering department and the astronomy department are necessary to get our message out that we don't want this launch to take place and we demand an end to the nuclear–powered space weapon regime! We must occupy these buildings until the Administration turns to the light of solar power and redesigns science and the space program to focus their research energies into finding ways to liberate our species from the tyrannical oil and nuclear industries. By moving ahead with solar power engineering, cleaning up the atmosphere of Earth by hauling the burning of fossil fuels, and finally venerating the miracle of true love, we can begin to put our resources where they ought to be going, into building a global culture of world peace — ecovillages and ecocities — the brain children of our most high-minded ideals.

Doctress Neutopia
Amherst

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by e–mail to: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quint Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Iaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

get Out!

into the vast wilderness

Venture out with the Outing Club

Autumn is a perfect time to get out and enjoy the last vestiges of nature before snow and cold snuff out any enthusiasm you may have for the great outdoors.

There are many options to be had when it comes to spending time outside. For people looking to get involved in activities like hiking, caving and kayaking, the Outing Club at the University of Massachusetts provides a safe and enjoyable way to get close to nature.

Seema Gangatirkar

"The Outing Club is a student organization that pretty much takes students, faculty, or anybody who is in the Five College student affairs, and just take them out to the woods, have them explore the woods, get them used to woods [and gain] knowledge of the woods," said Howard Asher, the Outing Club's locker manager.

The Outing Club is the second largest Registered Student Organization (RSO) on campus, with about 400 active members.

"By the end of the year, we usually have about 600 [members]," Asher said.

Not only does the Outing Club hold the distinction of being one of the largest RSOs on campus, it also is the largest Outing Club in the country.

Membership in the student–run organization is easy, according to Outing Club secretary, Kristy Michalek.

"People who participate in trips or lead trips or people who rent equipment to go on their own trips" are considered members, Michalek said. "Basically anyone who is involved."

The Outing Club's popularity can be attributed to the wide range of activities the club provides for its members. The RSO schedules rock climbing, caving, hiking, canoeing and kayaking trips every weekend.

"If people are pretty much aware of what's going on outside, then we have a lot of fun," Asher said.

In the past, the Outing Club has

Turn to OUTING, page 10

Rallying the couch potatoes

All right, take a big breath and hold it. Now exhale. Did you feel that brisk autumn scent tickle your nose hair? If not, it's about time you should get a big old slice of Mother Nature. I don't mean walking a total of 10 feet outside of your dorms and taking a peek at the scenery. But I do encourage you to strap on those dusty hiking boots, pick up that trusty old compass and head for the hills.

For many of you couch potatoes and nature non–believers, who will be venturing out after this highly informative article, there is an overwhelming abundance of adventures you can embark on, without even breaking a sweat. Now, doesn't that sound interesting?

You can easily find a tranquil spot to practice the inquisitive art of bird watching or perhaps a stroll with your friends along the many trails in the area is more your thing. And don't fret — peace of mind isn't that far away. Even if you're looking for that favorite American combo — fishing and camping — all can be done within a hop, skip and a jump from the everyday bedlam of the University of Massachusetts.

Why indulge yourself in the great outdoors? The answer is elementary. Nature is the one place where you are able to estrange yourself from your nerve–racking everyday life. Even if you've brought along with you a few life–sustaining essentials, it's only you, an occasional squirrel and a couple of curious bears.

"I enjoy the fact of going someplace where you know nobody is around for miles," said Mike Loux, a senior pre– med major.

The fun isn't always as peaceful as taking a leisurely Sunday stroll through the woods. Many times it's defined as a roller coaster ride down a raging river on a kayak. For those of you searching for thrills and have a need for speed — rip it up on your 20–speed bicycle down the vertical side of a mountain. If this sounds too tame, maybe you'd prefer a bird's eye view of nature. in which case, you may join in the elegance of free–falling from 8,600 feet.

"Skydiving makes you feel like a bird... tranquility and complete

Turn to COUCH POTATOES, page 10

inside this issue

Jazz/Blues Weekly 6
Trax On Trax Off 7
Conway New Music Series ... 8
Apple Recipes 8
State Park Listing 10

Places off the beaten track to get away from it all

Joshua Boyd

You have the time — i know it, you know it. You have the time to go outside and do something. I work, and i do this whole Collegian writing thing here, and still i find time — correction: I make time — to get outdoors.

It is understandable that as students, we all have responsibilities. If all those responsibilities are to our work, whether it be that of a job, or school, we must keep a responsibility to ourself. We all have the responsibility to keep ourselves sane. We all need a little peace from time to time — yes, I'm talking to you New Yorkers, too. There is a world of wide wonder out there past the bounds of campus. I'm talking about these places where water shines like silver as it flows through a mixed forest. I'm talking about places where one can see the Connecticut River Valley laid out like a gameboard before them.

We are all entering the season when nature sheds its green skin for a long winter hibernation. The bright reds, yellows and oranges mixed with the last remaining green specks of oak trees, maples, elms and birches attract visitors from out– of–state, as well as giving parents an actual reason to come out and see Amherst (you think they're out here for you!?). Fall in Amherst is the most beautiful time of year to get outside and see what the Pioneer Valley has to offer.

There are a few places out there that I, myself, have ventured to repeatedly because of their beauty. After years of enjoying these quiet places, I will now introduce them to you at the risk of causing hordes of people going there and causing them to lose their placidity.

The Peace Pagoda — Leverett Atop a hill deep within Leverett, a large white pagoda for Buddhist religious purposes, sits, overlooking the sprawl of the Valley all the way to the Holyoke Range. There aren't hiking trails or anything like that around, but it is a pleasant place on a nice day to sit around the reflecting pond and relax. Look around, and take in all that lays before you. it is a nice place to lose your mind, forgetting all the worries of the school world.

First, you've got to get to the Pagoda. Drive up Route 63, and turn right at the sign to Leverett Center. From there, you should start seeing littl.e white arrows with "Peace Pagoda"

Turn to AWAY, page 10

Layout & Design by Josh Sylvester & Seema Gangatirkar • Photos by Thang Vo

Billy Higgins takes on second jaunt as band leader

Jazz/Blues Weekly

BY JOSHUA BOYD

This week in "Jazz/Blues Weekly," we'll be looking at a couple of forthcoming Evidence CDs that have as their rhythm section, the 20-plus-year-old trio of pianist Cedar Walton (who's worked with Art Blakey, J.J. Johnson and others), drummer Billy Higgins (who counts among his large list of bosses Sonny Rollins and Dexter Gordon), and bassist David Williams, a man whose dedication to his work with the other two musicians has risen him to notoriety.

The Billy Higgins Quintet is a churning, assertive release, and is only Higgins' second as a leader. Joining Walton, Williams and Higgins are saxophonist Harold Land and trumpeter Oscar Brashear. Higgins' mind for variations and fills always excite the basic pulse of a song move along the opener, "Step Right Up To The Bottom," and the closer "Churn." However, the star of the disc is bassist Williams, whose eighth runs on "Seeker," encapsulating backing and vamps on "The Vision," and "Step Right Up..." illustrate his virtuosity.

Walton's the star on a few tunes, and Land fires up "Churn" and Michel LeGrand's "You Must Believe In Spring." Brashear's parts are rather commonplace, but he does take on a macabre tone on "Seeker."

Another disc with the Walton-Williams-Higgins rhythm section is the Cedar Walton Sextet's live The Art Blakey Legacy (Evidence). Starring an all-star cast with former Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers vets Walton, trombonist Steve Turre, trumpeter Philip Harper, tenor saxophonist Javon Jackson and guest alto sax player Lou Donaldson, the men tackle tunes from Duke Ellington, Benny Golson, and Horace Silver, as well as a couple of Walton originals. The music here is not as firey as The Billy Higgins Quintet, as it stays safely within long-practiced be-bop precepts.

Not to say that some of the men don't shine, and that the looming ensemble sound doesn't impress. Turre's solo on The Duke's "Caravan," Walton's on Golson's "Whisper Not" and Higgins liveliness on Walton's "Mosaic" are all highlights.

Stripping down to a trio lineup, we have veteran pianist Tommy Flanagan's Sea Changes (Evidence). Flanagan, bassist Peter Washington, and drummer Lewis Nash revisit tunes like the fast-paced "Verdandi," the sweet, minor modal tune "Delarna" and upbeat blues "Eclypso" from Flanagan's first album as a leader 40 years ago, Overseas, now available by Fantasy, Inc. Flanagan also adds tunes to those old gems of his, like the mellow "I Cover The Waterfront," and the smooth jazz and blues of the old tune "C.C. Rider."

The Legacy branch of Sony music has been one of the leaders in re-issues for about 20 years now.

They've been responsible for the CD issues of most all of Columbia Records' jazz output since 1917, when the first jazz album was made.

One of their most recent re-issues is a 1960 album by trombone master J.J. Johnson's Sextet of that time, featuring a young Freddie Hubbard (trumpet), Clifford Jordan (tenor sax), Arthur Harper (bass), Albert "Tootie" Heath (drums), and even Cedar Walton (piano). The disc has a basic soulful be-bop feeling. That static song-to-song sound does drag a bit, but nevertheless, there are some winners here, like "Mohawk," a dark waltz, "Aquarius," a beautiful composition and the R&B horn arrangements and piano in "In Walked Horace."

Next week's "Jazz/Blues Weekly" will make up for this week's single blues review. In the meantime, here's Melvin Taylor & The Slack Band's Dirty Pool (from Evidence, who have been churning out discs like baby bunnies as you can see) in brief:

Do you like Stevie Ray Vaughan and Albert King? If so, you'd end up listening to Melvin Taylor's guitar playing and choice of songs (a few of which on Dirty Pool were written by S.R.V. and Doyle Bramhall), and end up rushing out to buy an S.R.V. or Albert King album. He is a staunch tributary of the Texas guitar style, despite his Chicago upbringing. Sometimes his band will get all funky and fresh, but nothing that will stir up blues. Stevie Ray Vaughan probably wouldn't be turning over in his grave, because Taylor does have the technique, but I'm sure if Vaughan were alive today, he'd talk to Taylor about a word critical to the continuation of blues: "Originality."

Joshua Boyd is a Collegian Columnist.

COURTESY JUDY ARRITT

Tommy Flanagan has a new release out on the Evidence label.

Pearl Street Nightclub
Live Music & Dance Club
EVERY THURSDAY • 9-2am
18+ NO COVER BUDGET
HIGH ENERGY
Dance Party
PROPER DRESS & ID REQUIRED
21+ EVERY FRIDAY • 9-2am
SELECTROCUTION
THE GAME OF HI-TECH FLIRTATION
TOP 40 DANCE HITS
FREE BEFORE 10PM
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs. Sept. 25 @ 8:30PM 18+
FOOL'S PROGRESS
JIGGLE THE HANDLE
Fri. Sept. 26 @ 8:00pm 18+
LOBSTERZ FROM MARZ
GRATEFUL DEAD TRIBUTE
Sat. Sept. 27 @ 9:00pm 21+
"CHRIS TRACY OLDIES PARTY"
Sat. Sept. 27 @ 7:00pm
ANOTHER SOCIETY
Hypnotic Kich & Ride, Inc.
Wed. Oct. 1 @ 8:00pm 18+
THE SAMPLES
Fri. Oct. 3 @ 8:00pm 18+
FAT BAG
Sat. Oct. 4 @ 7:30pm
HELMET W/ THE MELVINS
Mon. Oct. 6 @ 8:00pm 18+
THIRD EYE BLIND
DAMBUILDERS
Fri. Oct. 10 @ 6:30pm 18+
SISTER HAZEL
OMINOUS SEAPODS
Sat. Oct. 11 @ 8:00pm
TAJ MAHAL with full band
ROBERT BRADLEES BLACKWATER SURPRISE
Tues. Oct. 14 @ 8:00pm
GOD STREET WINE
Sat. Oct. 18
THE MACHINE
UPCOMING
WED. OCT. 22 MACHINE HEAD all ages
TBBS / SHOOTZ GROOVE
SAT. NOV. 1 BOOGIEFUL OF BLUES 21+
MON. NOV. 10 ENTOMBED all ages
WED. NOV. 12 TESTAMENT all ages
SAT. NOV. 15 MISFITS / SICK OF IT ALL all ages
TUES. NOV. 18 MUDDY WATERS 21+
Tribute Band
Advance tickets available at the Northampton Box office, 586-8686, 1-800-THE-TICK, Strawberries Record Stores, For The Record in Amherst, Absent Music in Greenfield, Tix Unlimited in W. Mass, Plantagenet Records in Westfield, Music Outlet in Enfield, & B Side Records in Northampton 584-9156
10 PEARL STREET, NORTHAMPTON
http://www.virtual-valley.com/pearl-street
★★★★★413-584-7771★★★★★

American Heart Association
If this is the only pressure you check, your tires may outlast you.
Checking your tire pressure is a good idea. Checking your blood pressure is an even better one. High blood pressure greatly increases your risk of heart attack and stroke. And those are harder to deal with than a flat tire. To learn more, contact your nearest American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 or online at http://www.amhrt.org

Mental Health Groups Fall '97

MONDAY

To Your Health
This groups is for students who realize that they cannot consistently control their use of alcohol and /or other drugs and who wish to establish a healthier lifestyle. This group will remain open to new members throughout most of the semester.
Monday, 3:45 - 5 p.m.

TUESDAY

Succeeding at UMASS as a Latino/a Student
This group will be a safe place for Latino/a students to explore their experiences as UMASS students. Participants will help each other learn techniques for succeeding in a multicultural world. This group will be conducted (mainly) in Spanish.
Tuesday, 2:30 - 3:45pm.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

Making Connections
This 8 week group will help members gain awareness of their relationship styles. It will also be possible to learn skills for forming more positive and lasting relationships.
Tuesday, 5:30 - 7 p.m.

The Art & Science of Relaxation
In this workshop members will learn several valuable strategies for recognizing and managing stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5pm.

WEDNESDAY

When Families Aren't Perfect
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMASS students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5pm.

Groups are FREE OF CHARGE for UMASS student Health Plan members, Kaiser UHS Plan Members, and Five College students. Most groups begin in early Fall and require a pre-group interview. For further information please call the Mental Health Division of University Health Services at 545-2337, Mon - Fri, 8:00am - 5pm.

THURSDAY

Women's Therapy Group
This group is open to OLDER women students and UHS Kaiser Plan Members who would like to address various women's concerns including: self esteem, relationship issues, academic isolation and uncertainty about long-range career goals.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30am.

Stress & the New UMASS Student
A 4 week group, to help new and incoming transfer students learn strategies for coping with college stress. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself. Thursday, 2:30 - 4:00p.m.

Coed Therapy Group for Older Students
This group provides an opportunity to work on those problems which interfere with personal and academic life, such as lack of intimacy, loneliness, lowered self esteem and concerns of professional identity. Thursday, 3:30 - 5pm.

(Which) Home For The Holidays
A 5 week group to help students from separated/divorced families cope with their particular holiday stressors. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

MORE Groups Beginning IN LATE FALL

Department of Music & Dance
MULTIBAND POPS
With Five Hundred Musicians & Dancers in Concert
Friday, September 26
8pm Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
FEATURING UNIVERSITY BRASS, JAZZ, WIND, PERCUSSION & MARIMBA ENSEMBLES, DANCERS, ORCHESTRA, VOCAL JAZZ AND AFRICAN-AMERICAN MUSIC ENSEMBLE & MINUTEMAN MARCHING BAND
Tickets: $15 general admission
$10 UMass students, elders & Children under 18
Order tickets early!
Tickets available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office
413-545-2511
Co-sponsored by:
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Advertise
22 WWLP
WEEB

Summer is over but the sales are still HOT at Liquors 44!!
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive

BUD, BUD ICE & BUD LITE $13.99 + DEP
CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
COORS GOLD $10.49 + DEP
CASE 30-12 OZ. CANS
ZIMA 12 PK. BOTTLE $7.99 + DEP
MAGIC HAT & BOSTON BURTON $5.99 + DEP
ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES
PABST BLUE RIBBON $8.99 + DEP
CASE 24-12 BAR BOTTLES
ROLLING ROCK $32.99 + DEP
1/2 KEGS
1/2 KEGS $39.99 + DEP
BUD, BUD LT, BUD ICE, MICH, MICH LT, MICH AMBER, LITE, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG

WINE OF THE MONTH
Domaine St. George $4.99 750 ML
CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON
CARLO ROSSI WINES $6.99
ALL FLAVORS 4.0 LT
VENDANGE $6.99
CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 1.5 LT
GEO DUBOEUF $7.99
CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 1.6 LT
JOLIESSE $4.99
MERLOT 750 ML
SUTTER HOME $3.99
WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML

SEAGRAM'S V.O. 1.75L SALE $16.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -4.00 FINAL COST $12.49
RON ROBERTO RUM WHITE & GOLD 1.75 L SALE $9.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -2.00 FINAL COST $7.99
Smuggler SCOTCH 1.75 L SALE $14.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -4.00 FINAL COST $10.49
GIRO TEQUILA SILVER & GOLD 1.0L $6.99
TANQUERAY GIN 750 ML $13.99
LIQUORS 44 VODKA 1.75L $8.99

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 586-3007
HOLYOKE 534-4555
We Accept Cans and Bottles for Redemption
SALE PRICES THURS. 9/18/97 THRU WEDS. 9/24/97
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Fleetwood Mac returns with easy, pop tunes

Misfits, Ry Cooder & Insane Clown Posse show solid effort

FLEETWOOD MAC
The Dance
Reprise

The Mac is back. After an acrimonious split nearly 10 years ago, Fleetwood Mac is reuniting on the 20-year anniversary of Rumours, the most influential and innovative album of their career, and an enduring landmark of the '70s rock era.

Since their inception in 1967, Fleetwood Mac has sold a staggering 70 million albums worldwide and in the process has evolved into one of those bands where you may not know any of the titles, but the songs are instantly recognizable from the first few bars.

Recorded earlier this year for an MTV special and to prime the pump for their upcoming tour, The Dance (Reprise) is an excellent live document of Fleetwood Mac's diverse catalog of easy listening pop tunes.

The Dance re-affirms that Fleetwood Mac — at their best — wrote some of pop's prettiest melodies wrapped around the distinct vocalisms of Stevie Nicks' emotional turbulence and Christine McVie's languish.

Songs like "Dreams" and "Everywhere" sound as fresh today as they did two decades ago, and the four new songs "Temporary One," "Sweet Girl," "Bleed To Love Her" and "My Little Demon" are all worthy of the Fleetwood Mac moniker.

The only downside of The Dance, and a slight one at that, is to hear how the effects of aging have taken their collective toll on the group's members. While Nicks' voice has lost a touch of its vaunted range — she doesn't hit the high notes on "Landslide" — it still cuts into the listener like a surgical knife. B+ (Marty Keane)

COURTESY DENNIS KEELEY

Fleetwood Mac reunites on the 20th anniversary of Rumours, one of their influential records

THE MISFITS
Static Age
Caroline

The release of Static Age (Caroline), featuring the original Misfits line-up with Glenn Danzig on vocals, is the first time that their complete debut album session tracks have been made available. Over the years, many of the tracks have been released on various out-of-print records such as the Beware EP and on last year's boxed set.

The Misfits, at their core, always were a merging of the best elements of punk and metal. Featuring a manic wall-of- guitar sound and Danzig's brutish vocal delivery, Static Age is a glorious introduction to the wonderfully twisted world of the Misfits. A- (M.K.)

RY COODER
The End Of Violence: The Original Score
Outpost/MGM

Trax On Trax Off

Thirteen years after his startling score of the dramatic Wim Wenders-directed masterpiece film, Paris, Texas, Ry Cooder has once again teamed up with Wenders for a score to the director's forthcoming film, The End Of Violence, starring Bill Pullman.

For this new work, Cooder pulls together industrial beats and acid-jazz rhythms to form the backdrop to his spine-tingling acoustic-electric slide guitar style as well as other instrumental ornamentations. The opening track, entitled "Define Violence," is one of the few songs that showcase Cooder. "Pourquoi?" is a sad, minor-key piano solo that would fit well on an album from the experimental-jazz label ECM. Acid-jazz trumpet, Latin rhythms and synthesized space dictate the three disparate parts of the track "Observatory." Cooder takes on a Robert Fripp-ian timbre in the otherworldly "You Shoot Him!"

With a score as compelling, erratic and mind-teasing as this, the film is sure to leave more than a few mouths hanging open. B (Joshua Boyd)

INSANE CLOWN POSSE
The Great Milenko
Island Records

Some folks actually believe the anti-Christ himself could be held responsible for the release of this gorish album. The Insane Clown Posse (ICP) has returned with yet another traumatizing musical disaster.

After a breach of contract with their original label, Hollywood Records (whose parent company is Walt Disney Co.), ICP inked a long-term deal with Island Records which provided the go-ahead of their re-released and devilishly improved The Great Milenko.

The infamous team of Violent J and Shaggy 2 Dope — who masquerade in colorful facial paint that bear a slight resemblance to KISS — have erupted all over the rap scene as the most unprofessional artists in the industry. The Great Milenko has by far surpassed its three predecessors — including the womanizing Riddlebox— after becoming the most irritating album on the market.

Even with the album's additional bonus tracks, "Neden Game," "Boogie Woogie Wu" and "Under the Moon" — which were censored from the original Hollywood Records incarnation — there is still much uncertainty whether to classify The Great Milenko as pure musical trash.

The album does generate a hidden political voice with "Hellalujah" as it chants "Give God the first portion of the income...," but more often than not leaves the listener miffed after being barraged with daunting obscenities.

The Great Milenko is in a sense the Howard Stern of the rising industry. A true class act. B- (Alex Iglesias)

COURTESY EDWARD CLOVER

Insane Clown Posse fail musically on their latest.

LET'S PLAY VIDEO
Movie, Game, and System Rentals/Sales
All Movies 99¢/day!!
The Best of the New Releases!
9 East Pleasant Near "The Pub"
Call Us at 549 4505
Hrs: Sun,Mon,Wed, Thu,Fri 2-7:30
Sat 12-7:30
(Closed Tuesday)
Recent Arrivals: The Saint, Devil's Own, Dante's Peak, Father's Day, Road Racers, Silent Trigger, Day Trippers, Murder at 1600, First Strike, Inventing the Abbots, Snow White, Asteroid, Fierce Creatures, The Relic, Love and War, Bullet Proof, Fools Rush In, Plus Many More!
Next Week: The English Patient, Selena, Commandments, Ullysses Gaze, Warriors of Virtue

Friday nites LIVE!
• Live Music.
• Live Entertainment.
• Live Raffles.
• Live Giveaways.
• Live Shoe and Clothing "Sale Specials".
• Live Fun Friday Nites 5-8pm.
ZANNA
downtown Amherst

THE FINE ARTS CENTER SERIES
The Corner of Wall Street and Broadway
How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying
Big business meets show business in this classic musical full of great songs, lively dances and delicious deals. Climbing the corporate ladder has never been so much fun!
"...a non-stop delight." –The New York Times
SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 7PM
CONCERT HALL
PRESENTED WITH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF FLEET BANK AND THE DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
THREE'S THE CHARM
The Bachmann-Klibonoff-Fridman Trio
Hailed by The Boston Globe as "masters of their respective instruments" this celebrated piano trio has established itself as a premier force on the American concert scene in a program which showcases works by Schumann, Shostakovich and Schubert.
"...perfection and sensitivity of the greatest piano trios." –The Baltimore Sun
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 8PM
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Music of Inspiration: Mozart and Part
THE ESTONIAN PHILHARMONIC CHAMBER CHOIR & TALLINN CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
TONU KALJUSTE, MUSIC DIRECTOR
The internationally acclaimed Arvo Pärt Litany sung and played by an ensemble of 63 musicians is one of the premiere musical events in the Valley. The program also includes Ave verum corpus and Litanie Lauretanae in D major by Mozart, and Pärt's Trisagion.
"...a musical experience beyond compare." –The Michigan Daily
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 8PM, CONCERT HALL
TICKETS ONLY $5 FOR FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS
Call 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS for tickets
Visit our Website at www.umass.edu/fac/fac.html
CONNECT WITH YOUR CENTER!
The Fine Arts Center at the University of Massachusetts Amherst

Building Communities at UMass: Breaking Barriers, Making Connections • Friday, September 19
Concurrent Conference Sessions from 1:15-3:15 p.m. Open to the Public

University 101: Education, Empowerment, Exploration, Excellence Campus Center 911-915
Drawing on their experiences with the Patterson project and similar "University 101" courses offered in the past, the presenters in this session will focus on the campus need to expand both the number and variety of University 101 courses for incoming undergraduates. These courses provide an introduction to the campus and its resources, address preparation for academic success and are central to building connections between students, faculty and advisors. More importantly, these courses also begin developing the personal and academic skills needed not only for retention, but for student success after graduation
Michael Jenkins, Athletics
Ted Slovin, Counseling and Assessment Services

Caste, Class and Community Campus Center 911 -915
Two of the greatest, although least discussed, obstacles to community are the issues of class andcaste. Classified staff feel alienated from faculty and students, students are cut off from faculty, professional staff don't interact with faculty, and so on. Come discuss these issues and hear about, and perhaps get involved with Class Intersections, a creative effort to organize across caste and class lines and focus campus-wide attention on this long-neglected issue.
Discussion facilitated by Felice Yeskel, Stonewall Center

Panel Presentation: Using Technology to Build Community Campus Center 168-170
Presenters in this session will each show how technology can be used in creative ways to enhance and build community between students and faculty, staff and alumni free of the constraints of geographic location
Laurel Hellerstein, Housing Services Cable Network, and John Stacey, Audio-Visual Department, "Connecting Faculty and Students with Live Call-in Study Sessions and Other Innovations"
Victoria Dowling, University Without Walls, "Weekends @UWW: A Low-Residency, Online Program Which Creates a Learning Community of Adult Undergraduates"
Tom Greene, English, "How the Professional Writing and Technical Communication Program uses a Web Site to Link Students, Alumni and Prospective students"

UMass Festival: Creating an Annual Welcoming Festival for the Campus Campus Center 174
Over the past several years there has been a growing sense that the campus must do a better job in welcoming new members to the campus, especially undergraduates. This session will highlight emerging efforts to create a welcoming festival on the campus in the second or third week of each fall semester which will showcase the best of campus departments and programs, from lectures, poetry readings and performances, to large-scale laboratory demonstrations and food from cultures around the world. Come and get involved in getting this program started for next fall.
David Schimmel, Education
Try Sek, Graduate Student, Office of ALANA Affairs

Panel Presentation: Race, Ethnicity and Community Campus Center 172
These presenters will describe two different approaches to address issues of race, ethnicity and community on the campus, one through faculty governance, the other through programs organized by undergraduates for several years. The presenters will also highlight upcoming plans for both groups this academic year and solicit ideas and suggestions from participants.
Jim Craig, Faculty Senate Council on the Status of Minorities
Nikki Morse and Linda Vannoni, Undergraduates, Race Talks

University Center 2000: Reinventing the Campus Center and Student Union Building Complex Campus Center 163
This presentation will describe the large-scale planning efforts which are bringing students, faculty and staff together to revitalize and transform the CC/SUB Complex as the heart and core of the campus. The presenters will also outline steps this project will take this fall and next spring, invite comments and suggestions, and explain how interested students, faculty and staff can get involvedin this exciting project.
Beverly Wood, Campus Planning and Space Management
Judy Steinkamp, Campus Planning and Space Management
Jason Vecchio, Undergraduate, Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA)
Scott Conlin, Undergraduate, Student Government Association (SGA)

Transforming Unused or Underdeveloped Space Into Environments Which Invite Studentsand Others Into a CommunityCampus Center 165
This presentation will utilize recent photographic slides of the campus to examine the impact of space on community on campus and explore how alterations of these spaces can make dramatic improvements in both the sense and reality of community.
John Nelson, English
Dean Cerdasis, Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning
Learning about Mass Transformation and What is PossibleCampus Center 189
During four days in September 1986, 4000 students, faculty and staff worked together torenovate the 27 story University Library in four days. Then they had a picnic to celebrate andposed for a group portrait in their Mass Transformation tee shirts. Come hear the stories of MassTransformation and explore how this high energy form of community-building could be activated again.
Betty Brace, Library

Creating a Leadership Program for Undergraduate Students Campus Center 803
This session will review the current opportunities available to students in the areas of Leadership Development, and then explore ways these leadership resources might be pulled together to creates Leadership Program and additional supports for student leadership. Session participants will be invited to provide feedback, make suggestions and become involved in this effort.
Margaret Arsenault, Campus Activities
Kella Hahn D'Errico, Campus Activities
Kevin Grennan, School of Education
Ben Schlatka, Undergraduate, Housing
Dominic Turano, Undergraduate, SGA
Jen Japinga, Undergraduate, Campus Activities

The Leadership Coalition: Another Way to Build Community Campus Center 178
The Leadership Coalition was formed 1988 with the goals of promoting cooperation amongcampus unions and governance groups, and keeping the University an accessible public institution.Several members of the Leadership Coalition will provide a presentation of the history andaccomplishments of the group and outline their agenda and projects for the coming year in theareas of child care, parking, a labor teach-in, a consensual relations policy, privatization and more.
Sara Lennox, Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP)
Rosemary Riley, University Staff Association (USA)
Jennifer Fasulo, Graduate Employees Organization (GEO)
Emilie Woodward, Graduate Employees Organization (GEO)
Jon Zobel, Student Government Association (SGA)
Tom Colish, Service Employees International Union (SEIU)

Panel Presentation: Community-Building Through Collaborative Projects Campus Center 905-09
Members of the campus are often aware of the public side of campus projects and programs,while being unaware of the behind-the-scenes collaboration and community-building between faculty, students and staff which makes these efforts possible in the first place. This presentation provides the story-behind-the-story for both of these innovative campus programs and invites participants to consider developing similar efforts.
Daria Fiske, Labor/Management Workplace Education Program, and David Ducille, MUA
"Upfront: Campus Community-Building Through Radio"
Renersea Devi, Asian Dance Music Project and UMass Dance Program, and Alive with Dance
RSO members: Building Bridges Between Faculty, Students and Staff through MultimediaProjects"

Conway New Music Series Fest features Tchicai, Shipp & more

By Mike Burke
Special to the Collegian

Prepare yourself as the Conway New Music Series blows back into town tomorrow night for a thunderous show featuring the John Tchicai Group, the first of four free jazz performances this semester at the Unitarian Meeting House in Amherst.

Organized by Northampton resident Michael Ehlers, the Conway New Music Series has produced many of the most exciting and daring local performances over the past year. Developed by Ehlers because of his belief in the value of seeking new expressive forms and languages, the Conway New Music Series has consistently brought internationally acclaimed players in the free jazz/improvisational world to Amherst. Past performers include Harry Pussy, Marco Eneidi Quartet, Thurston Moore/ Nels Cline Duo, Black Market Horn Show Collective and the Ellery Eskelin Trio.

Like many past performers, Tchicai's resume reads like a who's who in Avant-Garde jazz: John Coltrane, Albert Ayler, Archie Shepp, Milfred Graves, etc., although most recognized for his work as part of the American scene in the 1960s (Tchicai appeared on Coltrane's landmark album Ascension). Tchicai's roots lie in the European jazz community; he is of Afro-Dane heritage.

According to Ehlers, he is regarded as a highly creative and individual composer and as one of the most delicate and lyrical improvisers in any genre of jazz.

Next week, on Sept. 26, the Conway New Music Series hosts Ensemble Blue, featuring Peter Brotzman, Dennis Charles, Thomas Borgmann and John Voight. Known as ferocious and passionate power improviser, the German-born hornplayer ranks high amongst the European avant-garde elite. And on drums, Dennis Charles makes a quick return to town after stand-out performances at this summer's Fire in the Valley Festival, alongside the Raphe Malik Quartet.

Another Fire In the Valley alum, William Parker, returns to town on Saturday, Oct. 25, for a solo performance on bass and tuba. He was named by the New York Times as "the greatest free jazz bass player of all the time." Ehlers notes that Parker is a "tireless grassroots advocate for social and personal transformation through creative music and improvisation."

Two years ago, the Matthew Shipp/William Parker duo put on a phenomenal show in the Augusta Savage Gallery that is still being talked about. And just this past summer, Parker took center stage at the Fire in the Valley Festival, playing with the Raphe Malik Quartet and Trio Hurrican (featuring Glenn Spearman and Paul Murphy). Opening for Parker will be the Yuku Fujiyama/Roy Campell duo.

And, finally, in a fantastic double bill, on Saturday, Nov. 8, the Conway New Music Series hosts the Matthew Ship/Rob Brown Duo alongside the Raphe Malik Quartet with Glenn Spearman.

Still in his youth, Shipp is one of the most exciting new faces in the free jazz world. His piano rivals that of the legendary Cecil Taylor and must be seen to be believed.

This summer, Malik (trumpet) and Spearman (saxophone) led the two most exciting acts at Fire in the Valley (the Raphe Malik Quartet and Trio Hurricane respectively). Together their work is even more bombastic and exhilarating; for an example check out the wonderful Malik recording on Eremite Records. Ehlers may be right when he warns that "nothing will be left standing" after this show.

The Fire in the Valley Festival, a Conway New Music Showcase, which also featured Malcom Goldstein, Loren Mazzacane Connors and the Jackson Krall Ensemble, proved to be one of the few local musical highlights of the summer. If you missed the show, don't make the same mistake twice and miss any of these stellar performances.

The Conway New Music Series is sponsored in part by Dynamite Records, Toonerville Trolley Records, the Ecstatic Yod Collective and Eremite Records. Tickets are available in advance at For the Record or at the door.

Celebrate autumn with a few apple dishes

The apple is often referred to as the great American fruit, and is associated with Johnny Appleseed. Legend has it that he gave up all his worldly possessions and travelled across the country planting apple trees. He felt apples would thrive where other crop failed. He carried around a sack filled with apple seeds and scattered them across the country.

This is the season for apples. If you're interested in going apple picking, a great orchard is Atkin's Orchard, located on Route 116 in Amherst. However, the Orchard is only open on the weekends for picking.

On Sept. 27, the orchard will have Cortland apples. They recommend that you call a day or two in advance to make sure that the season is going well enough for picking to be available. The Orchard also has a general store where they sell numerous farm products, including bags of apples from their orchard.

There are so many varieties of apples, and below are listed some of the more popular ones:

• Granny Smith: This is a green apple that is tart and crisp. It's the all purpose apple — it can be used for general eating, cooking and baking.

• McIntosh: This is a speckled, red apple that is slightly tart and very tender. It's good for eating, sauces and pies.

• Cortland: This apple is very red and quite tart. It's a cross between a McIntosh and a Ben Davis. The apple is great for eating, sauces, cooking and salads. It doesn't turn brown when exposed to air.

• Empire: This apple is very popular. It's a cross between a McIntosh and a Red Delicious. It was developed in NY and named after the Empire State Building. This apple is good for eating, sauces and baking.

• Red Delicious: This apple has a dark, red color. It's firm, crisp and juicy. It's on the sweet side and is good for eating, but not for cooking or baking.

• Gala: This apple has a yellowish, reddish color. It's a new variety and is very popular. It's great for eating and is one of my personal favorites.

Amy Soffer

Below are some delicious recipes that are easy to make. They're perfect for dinner, a fun get-together or a party.

General Applesauce Recipe
Makes 1 quart
6 apples, peeled, cored and cut into eight pieces
1/2 cup apple cider, water or orange juice
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
2 tbsp. brown or white sugar

Mix all ingredients into a medium saucepan. Cook on medium heat for a few minutes, then simmer for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve warm or cold.

Oatmeal Applesauce Cookies
Makes 3 1/2 dozen
1/2 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 3/4 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ground cloves
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 cup raisins
1 cup quick or old fashioned oats-uncooked
1 cup applesauce

In a large mixing bowl with an electric mixer, beat butter and sugar until soft, smooth and creamy. Stir in egg.

Sift flour, baking soda and powder, salt, cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg in separate bowl. Stir in oats and raisins.

Add flour mixture to butter mixture in three portions, alternating with applesauce in two portions. Stir until well blended.

Drop dough by tablespoonfuls onto greased baking sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 12–15 minutes, or until done. Let cookies cool on baking sheets a few minutes before transferring them to racks to cool completely.

These cookies should be stored in containers by themselves. Other cookies could draw the moisture from them and cause them to be dry and crumbly. Half an apple placed in the container should help keep them moist.

Adapted from Cookies–Food Writers' Favorites

Apple Crisp
Serves 4
4–5 tart apples, peeled, cored and sliced
6 tbsp. flour
6 tbsp. rolled oats
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
5 tbsp. butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place apples in greased 8" pan. In a separate bowl, combine ingredients and sprinkle over top of apples. Bake for approximately 30 minutes.

Come see us on line • come see us on line • come see us at

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Spirit Haus
YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT!

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Kahlua Royal Cream $8.99/750 ml
99 Bananas $9.99/750 ml
Gordons Flavored Vodka (Citrus, Wildberry, Orange) $13.99/750 ml
Jack Daniels Country Cocktails $3.99/4 pack

MICROBREWS
Wachusett Brewing Co. (I.P.A., Country Ale, Nut Brown, Octoberfest) $4.99/six Oregon Ales (I.P.A., NSB Brown Ale, Raspberry Wheat, Honey Ale) $4.99/six
Magic Hat (Ale #9, Mind Eraser, Hooter Ale) $5.99/six Harpoon (I.P.A., Hub Brown, Assorted) $8.99/six
Nor'wester & North Country Sampler 12-Pack Bottles $9.99

BEER SPECIALS
Bud 15 oz cans $14.49
Icehouse & Red Dog 30-pack $11.99
Busch & Bud Light 30-pack $10.99
1/2 Keg Specials
Rolling Rock $35.00
Pilgrim Wilberry $80.00
Wachusett All Flavors $85.00

Micro Kegs In Stock | DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED - OPEN 8am to 11pm RT. 9 EAST / 338 COLLEGE ST (413)253-8384 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT. 9 east | Full Redemption Center

COUNTING CROWS
ON SALE SATURDAY AT 10 AM!
plus special guest dog's eye view
recovering the satellites
saturday november 1
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TICKETS ON SALE SATURDAY AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE, THRU ALL TICKETRON OUTLETS: (NRM MUSIC • RECORD TOWN • FILENE'S) & CHARGE-BY-PHONE: (413) 733-2500 • (860) 525-4500. FOR MORE INFO CALL (413) 545-0505. EVENT DATE & TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP
AN OGDEN ENTERTAINMENT COMPANY VISIT US AT WWW.METROENT.COM

City Cafe
NORTHAMPTON'S FAVORITE CLUB
*BILLIARD CLUB WITH PRIVATE ROOM
*3 BARS - 18 DRAFT BEERS
*150 SEAT RESTAURANT
*DJ & DANCING
COMING ATTRACTIONS
Thursday 9/18
7th Annual
Half-way to St. Pat's Day
The Blackthorn Band
No Cover, Must be 21
Register for 2 Roundtrip Tickets to Ireland
Sunday 9/21
5 Mile Road Race & Block Party
Food, Beer, & Bands
11am till 5pm
1 Pearl St, Northampton
584-4100

Don't just read it... BE IT!

The Collegian is always looking for interested (and interesting) new writers. If you've ever considered writing (Don't try to deny it, we know you have), don't hesitate. Find yourself a niche now. Be a part of New England's largest college daily.

Jewish Affairs

Thursday, Septembner 18, 1997

Hillel House hires new staff to work with students

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Hillel House has hired two new full-time employees, a Program Director and Jewish Campus Core Service Fellow (JCSC), positions revolving around interaction with students.

David Arfa has been hired as the new Program Director and Lissa Loeb as the new JCSC. Their predecessors were UMass graduate Kim Richman and Emory graduate Beth Seewald.

The Search And The Job Description

Since these two positions work so closely with students, the hiring process involved participation of students involved with Hillel, said Hillel Executive Director Saul Perlmutter. Students involved with the Hillel Council and Executive Board helped review applicants' resumes and submitted interview questions.

Perlmutter said these two positions work closely together, but there is a fundamental difference between them.

"The [position of] Program Director is about empowerment, while the JCSC is about engagement," said Perlmutter.

What this means is the Program Director is mainly concerned with helping students already involved in campus Jewish life get the most out of their experience, while the JCSC serves as an outreach coordinator, helping more students become involved.

"The goal is to have [Jewish students] do stuff with other Jewish students wherever they are," said Perlmutter.

Lissa Loeb, the Jewish Campus Service Core Fellow, sits enthusiastically in the Campus Center Concourse.

The Program Director

David Arfa brings a wide array of knowledge to his new position, both in traditional Judaism and the natural sciences. Arfa is originally from Shelburne Falls, Mich., and received a degree in wildlife ecology from Michigan State and his masters degree from Lesley College.

Arfa has worked as an environmental educator at both the high school and college levels. Recently, he had been an instructor at the Jewish Community Center of Springfield. He has also worked as a professional storyteller, fusing Jewish tales with dramatic technique.

He spent a year in Israel where he, "felt a connection with traditional Judaism."

Arfa has developed a philosophy which combines his love for the environment and traditional Judaism.

"There is a tradition in Judaism of G-d being in the world, based on the Talmud and reintroduced by Hasidism (a religious movement begun in Eastern Europe in the 17th century)."

He hopes to bring more outdoor activities, such as camping, to Hillel's itinerary to help students explore the connection between religion and nature. And that is just one of his goals.

"The Hillel House serves Jewish identity on campus... provides social, cultural, political activities, and hopefully they will feel their Jewish identity strengthened, keeping them open with other cultures as well," said Arfa.

The Jewish Campus Service Core Fellow

Lissa Loeb graduated from George Washington University with a degree in Judaic studies last May. At George Washington she was active in Hillel and the Greek system, and was a writing tutor.

"Being a writing tutor was really great. It helped me become a better writer while helping others," Loeb said.

Loeb said that the JCSCs she came into contact with at college were great resources and good friends to her, which is one of the reasons she applied for the job. Another reason was her year abroad, spent in a rural Israeli town.

"I loved my time in Israel, traveling abroad," she said.

After spending time in such a rural area, she appreciates the college town atmosphere.

"This is a really big campus... there are so many students doing so many things," she said.

Some of her focuses will be continuing the first year students group that was started last year, and creating programs for the Southwest Residential Area (the previous JCSC focused on Orchard Hill).

Earlier this month, she organized a Freshman outing to Northampton, which included a scavenger hunt and dinner.

"My goal is to work with students and give them a slice of Jewish life," she said.

David Arfa, the Hillel House Program Director, proudly displays his new office.

A Jewish Tourist visits Italy

Bryan Schwartzman

I would not have thought twice about picking up the book bag and bringing it to the lost and found. It had a patch with a picture of Mickey Mouse stitched on, how harmful could it be?

Before I had the chance to reach for the bag, I was startled by a female museum worker who yelled into the men's room, "let me inspect the bag!"

I was not in America, and the rules were different. I was in a men's room outside the Jewish Museum and Synagogue in Florence, and somebody thought the book bag left in the men's room might be a bomb.

It turned out to be a false alarm, it was simply left in the bathroom by a young student visiting the museum with his class.

"You will have to forgive me for my paranoia," she said with an exasperated smile which betrayed her relieved anxiety. "I'm Israeli, I'm trained to be paranoid. Besides, this is Italy."

What were the implications of what she had just said? I wondered how closely she was affected by the recent bombings in Jerusalem. Then I tried to discern the second part of her statement: was there enough viable anti-Semitism in Italy to actually fear a landmark temple being bombed?

I was always told stories of a new wave of anti-Semitism spreading throughout the former Soviet Union, Germany and France, but Italy was never discussed. Since the turn of the century, the United States has seen strong cultural ties develop between European Jewish emigrants and people of Italian descent. I was curious about the relations between Jews and their host Italian society over the last 1000 years, and in recent times.

It was obvious to the casual observer that Italy's two decades of fascist rule have not been completely erased from the national consciousness or public debate. Italians still harbor strong feelings toward Mussolini, whether it is love or hate.

The Jewish Synagogue in Florence. Courtesy of Becocci Editore.

The streets of Rome, one of the worlds oldest cities, which is still home to over 30,000 Jews, are slightly disfigured with the site of Swastika graffiti over walls, interspersed with bigger graffiti saying "Nazi go home." A Jewish foreigner wandering through the labyrinth and splendor of Rome cannot help but wonder two things: why is the graffiti not painted over, and are we welcome here or not?

Italy, a nation that was not unified until the latter half of the 19th century, has a wide range of economic developments and culture based on geography, making the condition of Italian Jews throughout history anything but a constant. However, since the time of the Crusades, Italian Jews lived in relatively stable environments, despite periods of great distress. Although they were segregated, Jews had built strong communities in cities such as Leghorn, Florence and Venice. The Synagogue of Florence, a beautiful and intricately designed house of worship, was built in the 1880s, several years after Jews were granted equal rights in a unified Kingdom of Italy. (During World War II the Germans tried unsuccessfully to destroy the Synagogue.) Although there are over 1000 Jews living in Florence, there are only 100 active members of the synagogue. More puzzling still is that this is an awesome synagogue, with thousands of seats, and the of the congregation still has to sit in the upper balcony during services.

So with this brief, vague, and yet somewhat compelling, sense of history, how does or should a Jew feel and react while traveling in a European country? Obviously, the only input I have into that question is to explain my own reactions.

First, almost everyone my family and I came into contact with displayed genuine warmth and enthusiasm, which reinforced my belief that an American Jew could and should visit other lands besides Israel.

Then, there were the sites, the ruins, the Basilica's, the history. From Roman times to the Renaissance, Italy's historical and aesthetic tradition is still vividly and literally intertwined with modern life. The awesome appeal of this tradition, from the Coliseum to the Sistine Chapel, was juxtaposed in my mind with the understanding that the Roman Empire and the Catholic Church caused a great deal of suffering for the Jewish people.

While the city of Jerusalem ignites a sense of distant familiarity to me, Rome, while awesome, was definitely more foreign. While I was admiring the ruins of the Roman Forum, I was hearing about how one of the buildings was constructed to commemorate the conquering of Jerusalem. Similarly the stained glass ceilings of St. Peter's Basilica stir the imagination, but I could not help but feel a small sense of loss knowing that there had once been a grand temple in Jerusalem and that history had knocked it down, leaving us with only remains now known as the Western Wall.

Then, there was Michelangelo, arguably history's greatest sculptor. His masterpiece, David, in the Academy, brought the Bible figure to life in a way that was both human and superhuman. The statue captures the ancient Israeli king right after he has slayed Goliath, and chiseled on his face is the expression and emotions of a warrior-poet.

Michelangelo's statue of Moses, in Saint Sebastian's Basilica, was much more puzzling. Although it was near anatomic perfection, how can the man who liberated the ancient Hebrews from Egypt be portrayed with horns extending from his head? Supposedly it had to do with semantics, the Hebrew Bible describing Moses's face as having a heavenly light sounded very similar to the lain phrase which described horns coming from the face. However, It is difficult to imagine that the Medieval stereotypes of Jews having horns and tails did not influence Michelangelo.

So are these uncomfortable feelings reasons for Jews not to travel to Italy or Europe? Absolutely not! Being confronted by the complexities of ancient and modern culture are perfect reasons to travel. (Not to mention having a great time.)

So in the words of Marco, a good friend I met in Italy, "Wherever you go, the world is beautiful. Enjoy traveling, it is one of the best enjoyments of life."

Bryan Schwartzman is a Collegian Columnist.

GET ACTIVE IN UMASS' JEWISH COMMUNITY, WRITE FOR JEWISH AFFAIRS.

To get involved contact Bryan Schwartzman. You can find him at 113 Campus Center or Call 545-1794.

Hillel, Chabad Calendar

Wednesday, Sept. 17
Speaker: Marcia Falk (A Smith College Hillel Event)
7:30 p.m. Neilson Browsing Room, Smith College
The author of The Book of Blessings, the first Jewish prayer book written by a woman.

Thursday, Sept. 18
Three Women Poets (An Amherst College Hillel Event)
7 p.m. Converse Hall, Red Room-Amherst College

Friday, Sept. 19
Kesher (reform) Shabbat Service
7 p.m. Hillel House (All are welcome.)
Service at Chabad House at Amherst
7 p.m. followed by mean

Saturday, Sept. 20
Morning Service
10am Hillel House
Party in Boston at Harvard Hillel
Meet hundreds of Jewish Students
Charter Bus Leaves UMass at 7:45 Sharp
$10/$7 Activity Card

Shabbat morning service at Chabad House
10 a.m. meal to follow.

Wednesday, Sept. 24
Israel Winter Session Trip Info Meeting
7 p.m. Hillel House

Israeli Folk Dancing
Grayson/Orchard Hill
8:30–9:15 p.m.–Teaching Session
9:15–10:00 p.m.–Review

Friday, Sept. 26
Hillel Open House for Homecoming
10 a.m.–noon
Multicultural Jewish Service
Hillel House

Shabbat evening service at Chabad House
7 p.m. meal to follow, all are welcome

Sunday, Sept. 28
Freshman Apple Picking Trip
1 p.m. at the Haggis Mall Bus Stop

Monday, Sept. 29
Josh Kaplan, a representative of Ben Gurion University will meet with students and discuss opportunities for study in Israel.
5:30 Bluewall

Wednesday, Oct. 1 — Rosh Hasahana Eve
Dinner 5:15 p.m. Hillel House
Call 545-1710 for sign-up and cost
Services (followed by Kiddush)
7 p.m. Student Union Ballroom (liberal)
7 p.m. Hillel House (traditional)

Thursday, Oct. 2 — Rosh Hashana
Friday, Oct. 3 — Rosh Hashana
Services
9 a.m. Hillel House (traditional)
10 a.m. Student Union Ballroom (liberal)
Service
6 p.m. Hillel House
Rosh Hashana High Holiday Service
7 p.m. meal to follow, all are welcome

Friday, Oct. 3 — Saturday, Oct. 4
Services through out both days at Chabad House
call 545-4094 for more information

Friday, Oct. 10
Pre-Yom Kipur Meal at Hillel House 5 p.m.
7 p.m. Service at Student Union Ballroom
Note–For those students looking to go home for the High Holy Days and are looking for a ride the Hillel House is conducting a ride board via the world wide web. Their site is Http://www.Unix.OIT.Umass.Edu—UMHillel-

■ away

continued from page 5

written on them directing you. Unfortunately, y'all who are dependent on the PVTA, the bus lines do not go there. Make friends with car owners.

•Rattlesnake Gutter Road — Leverett Driving up from the Leverett side (follow the arrows to the Pagoda — the sign for Rattlesnake Gutter Rd. is quite visible along the way. Again, no PVTA busses go there), one sees a road go by a few small houses into some thick woods, with a few gray rock outcrops on the side. As you drive or walk up, the road climbs higher and higher, while a very small brook remains at its level. The rock outcrops become more like cliffs and by the time you're a quarter–mile up, you find yourself at the top of a 75–foot gorge. Once the trees change over, this will be an especially beautiful experience. Don't worry, though, I haven't seen any rattlesnakes along there.

•Mt. Sugarloaf Reservation — Sunderland A more well– known and visible spot than the previous two (as well as a bus–accessible site), a road that is about a mile or a mile–and–a–half long curves around this erosion–resistant mound to an observation tower at the top. From this point, UMass is visible, the Holyoke Range is in full, splendid sight, and the Connecticut River snakes its way through this valley reaching down toward Northampton and Springfield.

From this high vantage–point, one can see from the scattered hills and mounds around the Pioneer Valley how this whole Valley once was buried underneath a glacial lake, after the last ice age. Many thousands of years ago, when the Holyoke Range was a couple of thousand feet higher, Mounts Norwottuck and Tom stuck up like islands in a world recovering from a land–engrossing freeze.

•Wentworth Farm Conservation Area — South Amherst This is an old favorite of mine, right on the Belchertown bus line. You can get off around the Rolling Green Apartments and walk up the road a little in the direction of Amherst Center to Old Farm Road. Turn onto Old Farm Road, and you walk down until you see the sign, next to a little pond, gleaming in sunshine (weather permitting, of course), and — in a few weeks — reflecting the brilliance of Autumn in its waters.

The pond has eroded some of the grounds around the pond, cutting off access to some of the trails that used to go out to a beautiful field, from which another winning view, closer now, of the Holyoke Range is visible. You might be able to get over to the trails and this field with the right waterproof footwear, though.

Josh Boyd is a Collegian columnist.

■ couch potatoes

continued from page 5

peacefulness," said Tony Fazio, a Junior English major.

The most important aspect which no one must ever forget is to educate yourself, and make sure you are adequately prepared for the activity you chose to take part in. Many times the largest problems facing outdoor activities is a lack of concern for the wildlife and lack of safety knowledge when an emergency arises.

"Do activities with at least two people, three is ideal and don't litter. People have good intentions, but they don't realize they are doing the damage," said Alan Powell, Assistant Manager of Eastern Mountain Sports.

Take a trip over to EMS sometime, stroll around, ask questions. You will be astonished by the amounts of outdoor gadgets within the store you'd want to play with. They have kayaks, canoes, backpacks, mountain climbing gear, maps, informational pamphlet, and even chicken–flavored dry food packets. If you just happen to be curious and only feel like getting your feet wet in the whole outdoor scene, fear not rookies, they have a variety of rental equipment and instructional sessions for everyone.

Hey, you never know... you might find yourself on the next cover of Outdoor Life — just a thought.

Alex Iglesias is a Collegian staff member.

■ Outing

continued from page 5

journeyed as far away as Atlanta for white water rafting. The club also has its own cabin in New Hampshire — built for the club by alumni. And last spring, the club set a record by traveling 68 hours in a canoe from Montreal down the Connecticut River.

"It was very fun," Michalek said.

The trips are posted on the group's bulletin board in the Student Union and according to Michalek, anyone can lead a trip.

"You have to be skilled in the area and professional level pretty much. But anybody, faculty, student can lead a trip as long as you know where you are going," Michalek said.

Setting up a trip is a straight forward process, Michalek said.

"Write down a description of where you are going, how many people can go on a trip, how much it will [cost]," Michalek said.

And don't worry about not having the proper equipment if you're planning to go on a trip with the club — or even on your own.

"We supply the equipment for very little [cost]," Michalek said.

Keeping the cost of trips and equipment down is very important to the Outing Club.

"We like to keep the costs down. Depending on the trip, it's been $5 to $7," Asher said. "We know that students don't have much money."

For example, the Outing Club has gone caving in Albany, N.Y., and the total cost for participants came to $7.

As for equipment rental, club members can rent as much equipment as they need for a specific trip for just $1.

For those interested in joining the Outing Club, the club holds meetings every Monday evening at 7 p.m. You can also reach the Outing Club at their locker (located in the Campus Center) or in their office (located in the Student Union). For more information, call 545–3151 or 545–2020.

Seema Gangatirkar is a Collegian columnist.

Some local areas to check out

Elwell State Park — located on Damen Rd., Northampton, 1 acre, activities include fishing, boating (non–motor), canoeing. Rest rooms are available. 527–4805

Holyoke Heritage State Park — located on Appleton St., Holyoke, 8.5 acres, activities include historic site, scenic viewing area. Rest rooms are available. 534–1723

Holyoke Range State Park — located on Rte. 116, Amherst, 2,936 acres, activities include skiing (cross–country), hiking, horseback riding trails, hunting (restricted), snowmobiling, historic sites, scenic viewing area, walking trails. Rest rooms are available. 586–0350

Mt. Tom State Reservation — located on Reservation Rd., Holyoke, 1,800 acres., activities include hiking, fishing, canoeing, skiing (cross–country) and scenic viewing area, walking trails. Rest rooms are available. 527–4805

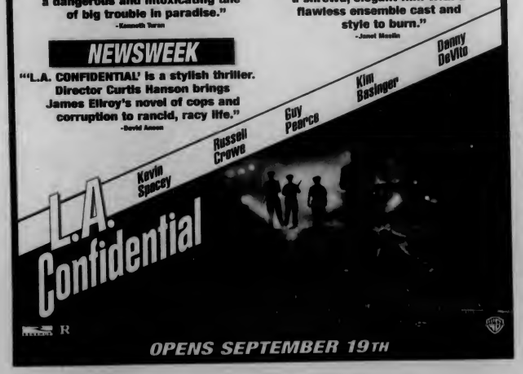
Norwottuck Rail Trail — located on Damon Rd., Northampton. 8.5 miles, activities include biking, skiing (cross–country), walking trails. Rest rooms are available. 586–0350

Skinner State Park — located on Rte. 47, Hadley, 390 acres, activities include fishing, hunting (restricted), swimming. Rest rooms are available. 586–0350

Mt. Sugarloaf State Reservation — located on Rte. 5, South Deerfield, 532 acres, activities include hiking, picnicking, scenic viewing area. Rest rooms are available. 545–5993.

8 Ball's Billards 9
10A Belchertown Road Amherst, MA 01002 256-8284
BIGGER IS BETTER!
•$6/hr Everyday Unlimited Players!
•Every Thursday $5 Cash 8Ball Tournament@5pm
•This Friday @10:00pm
THE NEW LIFE

Weekly Drink Specials
Vodka & Tonic 16oz $2.00
Miller Lite Draft The Big One 20oz $1.99
Fri-Sat Dancing Beat the Cover No Cover Before 10pm
1/2 Price Nachos & Appetizers 3-5 & 7-9
Bar Lounge & Restaurant
fun•food•spirits THE PUB amherst
15 East Pleasant Street Amherst, MA



classé café
Great Breakfast Till 3 P.M.!
Remember: -All Homemade- You are what you eat.
Mon - Sat 7am-9pm Sunday Brunch 7-3
168 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-2291
O.C.M.P. Welcome

So Much Better Than Soap, You'll Be Hooked.
Introducing Gillette Series Body Wash for Men
There's a brand new feeling of clean out there. Gillette's new Body Wash. Hang it up. Squeeze some out. No matter how many times you shower, your skin won't get all dried out. So why reach for a bar when you can get hooked on something so refreshing. New Gillette Series Body Wash.

PLANNING TO OBSERVE
ROSH HASHANAH AND YOM KIPPUR?

Students planning to be absent from class due to religious observance must notify their instructors at least one week in advance. In the event of a dispute between a student and faculty member, either party should contact the Department Head or the Ombuds Office at 545-0867.*

* Taken from the Major Days of Religious Observance 1997/98 Calendar

"THE MOST VIBRANT CRIME DRAMA SINCE 'PULP FICTION.'"
★★★★ 'L.A. CONFIDENTIAL' IS SMART, FUNNY, TWISTED AND ULTRA-COOL!"
-Jeff Craig, SIXTY SECOND PREVIEW
LOS ANGELES TIMES "'L.A. CONFIDENTIAL' is riveting – a dangerous and intoxicating tale of big trouble in paradise." -Kenneth Turan
THE NEW YORK TIMES "Gangbusters! L.A. CONFIDENTIAL is a shrewd, elegant film with a flawless ensemble cast and style to burn." -Janet Maslin
NEWSWEEK "'L.A. CONFIDENTIAL' is a stylish thriller. Director Curtis Hanson brings James Ellroy's novel of cops and corruption to rancid, racy life." -David Ansen

R
OPENS SEPTEMBER 19TH

■ Emma

continued from page 14

to UMass' all– time leading scorer Rebecca Myers halfway through last season, the scoring burden was placed squarely on Kurowski's shoulders. A tough task to assign to a freshman, but she admirably took on the responsibility, and finished off her first campaign as the leading scorer for the Minutewomen (11 goals, 7 assists, 29 points).

This season, Kurowski has been getting used to a whole new world on the frontline. With the additions of freshman Kara Green and junior transfer Sophie Lecot to this year's roster, and the return of fellow sophomore Kate Webb, the forward situation for UMass has transformed from one for all to all for one.

"I've always had that kind of pressure put on me, because with all the teams I've played on, I was the person they would go to if they needed a goal," Kurowski said. "So, I was kind of used to it, but it's great not being the only one that has to score. It's a relief.

"Last year, even if we did dominate, we wouldn't get many good scoring opportunities, but this year, it seems like we're shooting every five seconds."

Each forward brings something different to the game — with Lecot's hard north–south running and leaping game, Webb's propensity to pounce on any loose ball in the penalty area, Kurowski's ball handling skills and passing technique and Green's ability to incorporate all of the above helping to develop a offensive unit that has scored 22 goals in five games this season.

The incumbent of the Minutewoman offense is more than willing to dish the ball around, and UMass now has the most diverse offensive attack in years.

"Last year we didn't have that much offense, but this year we have four or five players that can play forward, and score," Kurowski said.

"I'm playing center midfield more this year, and it's a little more running, because I have to track back and play defense," Kurowski joked. "But, coach is letting me go forward a lot more, and I can still score some goals for the team."

Rudy has had to alter his time–honored UMass tradition of soccer with this whole new world of goal scoring diversity. In years past, skill and finesse were the key words, and his teams have used a possession–oriented, Dutch–style of soccer. But this season, speed has been added to his roster, and so has a run and gun type of offense.

With Kurowski, he has style and finesse, and with his new recruits, he has the speed the team needs to compete against teams like Colorado (Saturday at 12:00 p.m.) and Connecticut (Tues., Sept. 23 at 3:30 p.m.). Rudy has known that fact for a long time; and, even the stereotypical dumb jock would eventually figure it out as well.

"She is changing her game," Rudy said. "She is giving up some of her goal–scoring chances to combine and connect the team, and she's done that really well.

"I think she is a great kid, and her best quality is that it seems she does not think any bad things of anybody. She's a real kind and decent person."

The Collegian's first annual RSO Pages will run on Monday, Sept. 28. Read them or be Square!

You talking to me?
Senior defenseman Brad Norton, one of Hockey East's more intimidating players, will lead the UMass hockey team into its home opener Nov. 2 against Boston College.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Collegian Sports... Da, Da, Da.

■ Jets

I've had this conversation a million times. Most of my friends believe that quarterbacks are just like any other football player and should take the wrath of opposing defenses just like running backs and receivers. What they don't understand is the make–up of a quarterback and the way they play the game.

When Aikman steps back to pass on any given play, he's surveying the field, looking for a wide open receiver. He's not looking for Bill Romanowski to come barrelling around the corner on his blind side and whap him one in the jaw. He's expecting his left tackle to protect him. But most of the time, these guys just walk right in and blast him.

The question is, "Should these defensive players be allowed to hit the quarterback anywhere on the body?"

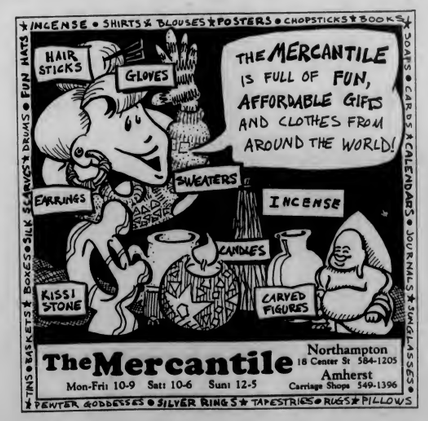
My answer is, "No!"

Way back when, around the '60s, players were taught to tackle opponents with their heads up, looking in to the other players' eyes, and wrap them up with their arms. It seems that style has been long forgotten.

If Young is just like any other player, why has he had over 30 concussions during his career. I don't recall too many other football players that have taken the beating he has.

One more conclusion and Young may not even be able to choose for himself whether or not to retire.

Jonathan M. Place is a Collegian columnist.



Cahillane Auto Rentals
Rt 9 @ Howard Johnson's in Amherst
48 Damon Rd, Northampton
Amherst 549.8099 Northampton 584.8099
on the Web @ http://www.cahillane.com
Now Featuring the ultimate 4-WD Jeep Grand Cherokee & Dodge Caravan
LEASING RENTALS

FEEDING FRENZY!
1/2 Price Appetizers
Bar Restaurant & Lounge
Wed-Sat 3-5pm & 7-11pm
Sun-Tues 3-5pm & 7-9pm
★ Super Nachos & Guacamole (Reg. $6.95)
★ Homemade Onion Rings (Reg. $4.25)
★ Potato Skins (Reg. $5.95)
★ Buffalo Wings (Reg. $5.25)
★ Artichoke & Cheese Dip (Reg. $5.95)
and lots more ! ! !
fun•food•spirits THE PUB amherst
15 East Pleasant Street

LET'S PLAY VIDEO
Buy-Sell-Trade Games & Systems
All Movies $.99 / day!
The best of the new releases
Call us at "The Pub"
Hours: Sun, Mon, Wed, Thur, Fri 12:00-7:00 Sat 12:00-7:00

PANDA EAST
Chinese Restaurant & Sushi Bar
Voted Best 1997
"We bring Chinatown to you"
★BEST CHINESE RESTAURANT IN THE VALLEY★ SINCE 1987
Lunch Specials Starting At $3.95 7 Days A Week
Full Menu For Sushi, Sashimi and Teriyaki Is Available
Telephone: (413) 256-8923 / 256-8924 Fax: 253-1173
103 North Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002
Delivery Express: 549-0077

CAMPUS GEAR
HEY UMASS
It's Going To Be Cold Soon!
But who wants to pay $40 or $50 for a sweatshirt?
At Campus Gear you can always get 2 sweatshirts for $30
From our new line up exciting apperal

The Mercantile
Northampton 18 Center St 584-1205
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-1396
Mon-Fri 10-9 Sat 10-6 Sun 12-5

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring "Busch & Busch Light!" 30-pk $10.49
Michael Shea's "Amber" & "Blk. & Tan" $6.99 12-pk bots.
J.W. Dundee "Honey Brown" $6.99 12-pk bots.
"Fantastic Pricing!"
"MICRO MADNESS Continues"!
Pete's Oregon ALL FLAVORS! Catamount North Country
Mix & Match "TWO" 6-pks . . . $9.95 New!
Citra wine $5.49 1.5 Liter
Bacardi Rum $9.99 1 Liter
Yagermeister $13.99 750 ml.
Check Out Russell's Indoor Specials!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Thinking about going to Graduate School? See FYI below for further information. There is a Graduate and Professional School Day at the Royal Sonesta Hotel, 5 Cambridge Parkway, Cambridge, MA, this Saturday, September 20. $5 admission fee; 10-3. September 26 is the deadline to sign up for the Nov. 1 GRE, which will be the only paper and pencil test until April.

Sigma Kappa Sorority Open Rush Tues, 9/16, 5:00pm-7:00pm; Wed, 9/17, 6:00pm-8:00pm; Thurs, 9/18, 6:00pm-8:00pm. Please call Beth for more information. 256-6887

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sugarloaf Estates Luxury 2 bedroom apartment homes. FREE HEAT AND HOT WATER. State of the art kitchens, designer baths, w/w carpeting, washer and dryer. On PVTA. Call Today. 665-3856

AUTO FOR SALE:

Auto For Sale '83 Chevy Caprice Classic. Great shape, low mileage. $1200. Call Robin 253-6348

AUTO FOR SALE

'84 Jeep CJ7 4x4, hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1100 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patti)

1989 VW Golf excellent condition. 1 owner, new clutch. 43 mpg highway. $3900/BO. Sunderland 665-8358

1985 Olds A/C, all power, AM/FM. $1500 or B/O. 549-8999

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

BMW 733i 1982 blue, beige leather interior, sun roof, automatic. 162,000 miles. Still elegant. $2500. 549-2604

EMPLOYMENT

Needed Immediately Part-Time Veterinary Assistant. Weekday afternoons. Apply in person to: The Cat Hospital, 139C Damon Rd., Northampton, MA.

House Cleaner Responsible, references. Part-time, permanent. Bus. $6 hourly. 549-0413

NOW HIRING!!! Alumni Relations is looking for student help for Homecoming '97. Must be available on Friday, September 26 and Saturday, September 27. $5.50/hour. Stop by Memorial Hall to fill out an application. Questions? Call Ann Thompson at 545-2317.

Pinocchio's Now Hiring Delivery drivers. $15 an hour. Car and positive attitude a must. Apply in person. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Fitness Instructor for Women's Only Club in Belchertown. Must be certified. Call Jenn 323-0125

Hairdresser Wanted Afternoons and Saturday. Call Regency Hair Stylist 253-9526

Drivers Wanted Pays $70 to $120 per shift. Car needed. Dominos 256-8911

Recreation Positions at Amherst Leisure Services. Youth basketball supervisors/officials, facility supervisors, tennis instuctors, volleyball officials, adult basketball supervisor/scorekeepers. Apply to: Human Resources, 70 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA by 9/24. AA/EOE

Job for the Environment Campaign with MassPirg to protect our planet. Flexible schedule. $50-$75/day. Call Terri 256-6434

EMPLOYMENT

Be a member of the Commuter Action Team Looking for 6-8 friendly students who like living off campus. Job duties are fun- Meet with off campus students and townspeople, coordinate and attend Commuter events and programs, help distribute information. Please contact David or Barbara at 545-2309, or drop by Commuter Services between 10:00am-1:00pm M-F. $6/hr and/or academic credit.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Refurbished 486 Computer for sale. 16MB RAM, 850 MB HD, 15" monitor, WIN 95. $499. Call ACI at (413)256-1147.

Computer- Macintosh SE30 Excellent condition. $250. Call Diana 256-8155

Big Fish Tank All equipment included. $40 or B/O. 549-6926

Technics SA-EX 700 Prologic Receiver w/ Jensen Center Speakers and 2 surround sound speakers. Pioneer 100 Disc Changer. Both 1 year old. 1 year left on CD Changer warranty. All $600 with

FOR SALE

Fisher 15in. woofer, used as subwoofer. Call 549-5079

CD ROM or P.C. Speed 8X. 1 year old. PERFECT CONDITION. $150. 256-8607

Saxophone for sale- Vito/Alto. Good condition. $180. Call 549-1479

Waterbed $150 Futon bed/couch $100 Both full size (413)774-5776

Dorm Fridges for sale $30-$50. 665-7991

Laptop Notebook Works good. $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons Beginner-Advanced 1-888-908-8898 Call Peter (Toll-Free)

Boxing Lessons in Amherst Tues and Thurs. Call (413)732-8817

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Contact Steven Page at 253-3354

Jazz Guitar Lessons Lear Theory Improvisation and Technique Joe 665-0499

LOST

$10 REWARD Glasses lost in/near Management Building on Monday. Call 582-4333

Grey Hound Route 9, Hadley area. Reward. 323-8255

MISCELLANEOUS

FREE T-SHIRT + $1000 Credit Card fundraisers for fraternities, sororities & groups. Any campus organization can raise up to $1000 by earning a whopping $5.00/VISA application. Call 1-800-932-0528 ext. 65. Qualified callers receive FREE T-SHIRT.

MISCELLANEOUS

www.movieposter.com Vintage-Current (416)391-0133

#1 Campus Fundraiser Raise all the money your group needs by sponsoring a VISA Fundraiser on your campus. No investment & very little time needed. There's no obligation, so why not call for information today. Call 1-800-323-8454 x95.

MUSICIANS

BANDS! Looking for bands for Wednesday nights at The Pub. 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst. Call 549-1200 Tues thru Fri, 10-6. Ask for Aaron.

PERSONALS

Tim P. All to pieces. You amaze me. M

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent in private home. 1 mile to UMass. Furnished kitchen privileges. Laundry, parking, quiet, friendly. $335/month. Barbara 549-4853

1 Month Free Rent Bedroom available that includes free heat and hot water. Call 549-7105

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 1 or 2 people to share huge room in Puffton with walk-in closet and bathroom. 549-7203

Single Room $230/month utilities included in 8 room house. 549-8696

SERVICES

Transcription, Editing, Typing for students, professors & businesses. Call Domenichelli Transcription Services (413)783-8607 domenbus@javanet.com

Experienced Seamstress Mending, tailoring, alterations, dressmaking, clothing design. Call Chrysal 253-7573

TRAVEL

Spring Break "Take 2" hiring reps. Sell 15. Take 2 free. Hottest destinations! Free parties, eats, drinks. Sunsplash 1-800-426-7710. www.sunsplash-tours.com

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS available on the concourse

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Pretucible of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not accepable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth or Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18

Meeting — Amnesty International will be having its second meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 917.

Meeting — Find out how to apply to Graduate School, how to finance your education, how to find the best schools and the ins and outs of the procedure 1:30–3 p.m. in Campus Center, room 811–815. Sponsored by the Graduate School's Office of Graduate Student Recruitment and Retention, 528 Goodell. RSVP 545–5284.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19

Meeting — Male survivors of abuse and trauma peer support group. Free, facilitated drop–in group for male survivors. From 7–8:30 p.m. at the Men's Resource Center, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst. This is a closed group for male survivors only.

Service — Kosher (reform) Shabbat Service, 6 p.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome.

SATURDAY, SEPT.20

Service — Morning service 10 a.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome.

Comedy — There will be a free improv comedy show at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 163.

NOTICES

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle. Thursday, Sept. 18–Friday, Sept. 19, 10 a.m.–2 p.m. at the Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Daily Listings sponsored by: WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

ALWAYS: $1 Bud Light Drafts

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
18 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
26 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
28 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL 41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Tonic

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 18, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Wishbone Jr.	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Mystery!: "Poirot" "Yellow Iris"		Wait for God	Keeping Up	Murder-Horrid	This Old Hse.
WFSB	3	News		Inside Edition	Real TV	Kids Say the Darndest Things		Diagnosis Murder		48 Hours (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News		CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight		Kids Say the Darndest Things		Diagnosis Murder		48 Hours (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News		ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle		Nothing Sacred		20/20		Cracker "Pilot"		News	Nightline
WLVI	56		Full House	Boy World		Fresh Prince		Friends (R)	3rd Rock-Sun.	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "One More for the Road"		News	Tonight Show
WHDH	7		News	NBC News		Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)	3rd Rock-Sun.	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	News	LAPD	Vibe
WTXX	58		Married...With	Cheers		Judge Judy		Friends (R)	3rd Rock-Sun.	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "One More for the Road"		News	Tonight Show
WWJY	38		News	NBC News		Ent. Tonight		Living Single	Between Bros.	413 Hope St.	"Fatherhood"	News		Simpsons	Deep Space 9
WTIC	61	11	Moms Imp.	Simpsons		Seinfeld	Frasier	Friends (R)	3rd Rock-Sun.	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "One More for the Road"		News	Tonight Show
WWLP	22	22	News	NBC News		Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R)		Mystery!: "Poirot" "Yellow Iris"		Brideshead Revisited		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGBY	57	4	Creatures	Business Rpt.		News/Hour With Jim Lehrer		This Old Hse.	Drs. on Call	Cracker "Pilot"		20/20		News	Nightline
WGGB	40	40	News	ABC News		Seinfeld	Frasier	Nothing Sacred				News		Frasier	Cheers
WSBK	38		Real TV	Mad Abo. You		Seinfeld	Frasier	a.k.a. "Cover-Up" (1990, Drama)		Dolph Lundgren, Louis Gossett Jr.,		M*A*S*H		★★½ "An Eye for an Eye" (1981)	Chuck Norris.
WYBS	68		Family Matters	Family Matters		Who's Boss?		Major League Baseball		New York Mets at Atlanta Braves. (Live)				Law & Order	Second Opinion
A&E	69		Quincy: "Issue at Truth"			Law & Order		Biography: Cassidy Kid		Sea Tales		Unexplained		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
CNN	30	30	WorldView			Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		1 Night Stand	Daly Show
COM	35	35	1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh		Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	★ "Dr. Sx. Where Are You?" (1994, Comedy)		David Johansen.		1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daly Show	Stein's Money
DISC	67		Movie Magic	Beyond 2000		Modern Combat	Aircraft (R)	Wild Discovery: Wildebeests		Mystery Univ.	Movie Magic	Winge "Flying Coffins"		Wild Discovery: Wildebeests
ESPN	29		Up Close	Sportscenter			Wkend Kickoff	College Football: Marshall Pirates @ Lions.						Sportscenter
LIFE	62		Supermarket	Debt		Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		"Journey Into Darkness: The Bruce Curtis Story" (1991, Drama)				Homicide: Life on the Street.
MTV	63		MTV Live	Viewers		Jenks Countdown (In Stereo)		Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Yo! (In Stereo)		Dateline, MTV	Loveline (R)
NICK	64		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon		Doug	Rugrats	Secret of Axes	Happy Days	Happy Days	Bewitched	I Love Lucy	Odd Couple	Taxi	Newhart
SCIFI	65		Twilight Zone	Darkside		Sightings (R) (In Stereo)		Sasquest DSV "Meltdown"		Forever Knight "False Witness"		Friday the 13th: The Series		Sightings (R) (In Stereo)
TLC	66	38	Furniture	Renovation		Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Treasures		Soldier's Turning Point		Future Fantastic (R)		Treasures	America
TNT	59		Kung Fu: Legend			Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger		★★ "Kluffy" (1992, Comedy)		Chrisitan Slater. (In Stereo)		Silk Stalkings	"Social Call"
USA	60		Renegade "Hard Rider"			Highlander: The Series		Walker, Texas Ranger		★★ "Kluffy" (1992, Comedy)		Chrisitan Slater. (In Stereo)		Silk Stalkings	"Social Call"
HBO	33		(7:45) ★★ "Man Trouble" (1992)			Jack Nicholson.	★★½ "Coneheads" (1993)		Dan Aykroyd. PG	"The Invader" (1997)		Stan Young. NR		Edge-1st Look	Inside the NFL (R) (Stereo)
MAX	34		(4:30) ★½ "Black Sheep" (1996)			Chris Farley. PG-13		★★★ "The Terminator" (1984)		Arnold Schwarzenegger. R		★★ "Scorpion Spring" (1995)		Alfred Molina. R	"Blue Thunder"
SHOW	36		"Soul Survivors" (1995, Comedy-Drama)			Ian McShane. (In Stereo)		★★½ "Hero" (1992, Satire)		Dustin Hoffman (In Stereo)	PG-13	★½ "Johnny Mnemonic" (1995)		Keanu Reeves.	"Human Time"

Bruno By C. Baldwin

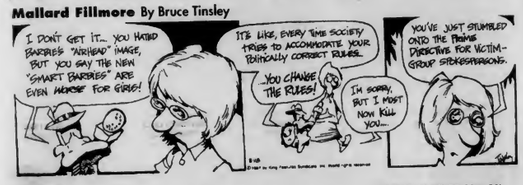
Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

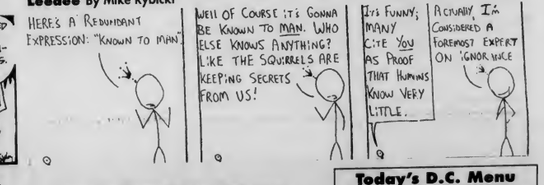
Dilbert By Scott Adams

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Non Sequitor by Wiley



Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere



Thatch By Shesol

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You are likely to be more vulnerable today than you think, so you will want to steer clear of obvious dangers, both at home and at the workplace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You may get something for nothing today, but you mustn't make the mistake of thinking that this will become a pattern. Be willing to work!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You must try your best to avoid overreacting today. If your behavior is out of proportion in any way, someone will take you down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You are concerned with stability and comfort at this time, and there is much you can do to ensure that home affairs yield much in this way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You mustn't be overly critical today; you'll spot flaws as a matter of course, but you needn't go out of your way to point them out!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You and a friend will discover today that you have yet one more thing in common. This is likely to bring you both great profit!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You must balance emotional response with intellectual assesment today. Your mind and soul must work together if you expect to progress.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You may be intimidated by someone who seems to know it all today, but soon you'll realize that you can compete with the best.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You and a Leo native will have a chance to put your heads together and come up with a valuable solution to a long-term problem.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You will have a lot to talk about once the busy part of the day has passes. It is important to realize that process itself is paramount.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Your dreams are likely to yield some important information today, but the big surprise is likely to come when you least expect it.

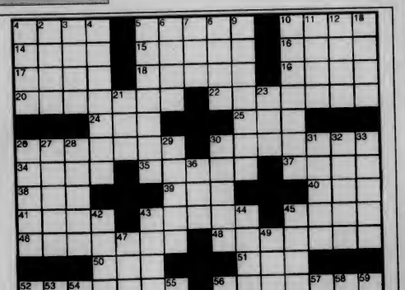
LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You have more going for you at this time than you think, and others are willing to go out of their way to help you live up to your true potential.

Quote of the Day

"Let's see...What would Brian Boytano do?"

–Stan from the Christmas Episode of "South Park"

Close to Home By John McPherson



ACROSS
1 Made cloth
5 Fragrant shrub
10 Enthralled
14 Matinee —
15 Novelist Jong
16 Actress Raines
17 Brief letter
18 Consumer advocate Ralph —
19 Custard dessert
20 Mischievous one
22 Scorching
24 Inspect
25 Before, in poems
26 Well-known
30 Outdoor game
34 Stolen goods
35 Floor pieces
37 Damage
38 Promise
39 Morse-code signal
40 Capture
41 Writer Dinesen
43 Caesar's tongue
45 Alleviate
46 Mauritania's neighbor
48 Like some horses
50 Adam's spare part?
51 "— folly to be wise"
52 Boss
56 Manicurist's concern
60 Border on
61 Beer
63 Temporary gift
64 Abominable Snowman
65 Crumble away
66 Science magazine
67 Org.
68 Goes out with
69 Call for

DOWN
1 — it: improvise
2 Scent
3 Act like a citizen?
4 Zinc or xenon
5 Indulgent
6 Persia, today
7 Cover
8 High cards
9 Livelihoods
10 Vivify
11 "— Want for Christmas"
12 Scheme
13 Sharp taste
21 Soap ingredient
23 Onassis' nickname
26 Lisa Marie's dad
27 North Woods
28 animal
28 Des Moines resident
29 — basin or pool
30 Rank
31 Trite
32 Rub out
33 Surround closely
36 Set fire to
42 Nail ingredient
43 Tagged
44 Temperaments
45 Greek letter
47 Musician's job
49 Hollow place
52 Yucatan native
53 Fortas and Burrows
54 Crazy
55 — avis
56 Grant
57 "— Back, Little Sheba"
58 Freeway strip
59 Oklahoma city
62 Fetched

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

H	E	M	P		A	V	A	S	T	M	A	L	T
A	R	I	A		D	I	S	C	O	O	B	E	Y
L	I	L	Y		O	N	T	A	P	M	A	S	K
T	E	D	D	Y	B	E	A	R		J	E	S	S	E
		T	I	V	E			Z	E	N
A	C	T	R	E	S	S		B	E	T	T	I	N	G
M	E	A	T	S		T	I	A	R	A		S	I	U
I	D	S		S	E	V	E	N		I	R	E
G	A	T	E		A	N	E	W		C	E	A	S	E
O	R	E	G	A	N	O		S	C	U	D	D	L	E
		G	A	S			A	L	I
M	O	C	H	A		G	H	O	S	T	T	O	W	N
A	M	O		S	A	I	N	T		O	G	R	E
T	I	N	A		H	E	N	C	E		R	E	E	S
T	O	E	D		E	L	D	E	R		S	E	N	T

9-18-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Broccoli Royale
Veal Parmesan Sandwich
DINNER
Szechuan Beef and Broccoli
Baked Ziti
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Worcester
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Bow Ties/Italian Sausage Sauce
Lightburger
DINNER
Szechuan Beef and Broccoli
Handcut Cod Sub
Szechuan Tofu and Broccoli
Pastabilities

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Veal Parmesan Sandwich
DINNER
Szechuan Beef and Broccoli
Baked Ziti

Berkshire
LUNCH
Worcester Breakfast Sandwich
Hamburger on a Roll
Ziti/Tomato Sauce
Lightburger
DINNER
Szechuan Beef and Broccoli
Chicken Cacciatore
Szechuan Tofu and Broccoli
Pastabilities

Night Editor: Mark McGrath
Photo Technician: Lauren Kosky
Copy Editor: Melissa Tauben
Production Supervisor: Sam Smullin
Production Staff: Angie Annese, Matt Guilmette

SPORTS

Thursday, September 18, 1997 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Eagle's view of I–A football; the parking is lousy

CHESTNUT HILL — As the old song goes, Charlie of the MTA rode forever beneath the streets of Boston.

Charlie of BC rides forever on the streets of Boston on football Saturdays at Boston College.

Poor 'ole Chuck. Of 7,500 BC undergrads, only 160 get on–campus parking and those must be either juniors or seniors, hold a job on campus, and then apply by explaining their hardships in a one–page letter for a lottery with about 1,000 of their closest friends. The winners pay $200 for a hallowed sticker which is valid at all times, except for football Saturdays.

Such is the joy of life at the Heights, where the high and mighty decree that no student shall park on campus football Saturdays. So, the hung–over masses yearning to breathe the freedom of owning a car roll out of bed by 8:00 am for this noon game. They circle Newton, Allston and Brookline aimlessly in search of Boston's one available meter spot before settling in Bangor, Brattleboro, Barnstable or Belchertown and calling for daddy's private 'copter to fly them back to campus before kickoff.

But that's I–A football. That's what it's all about.

If there's one thing I've felt deprived of at this school it's the true measure of a school's atmosphere. College football Saturday. UMass could be a great school, but no school can be truly great without the ritual of a big–time game. Athletic Director Bob Marcum's working hard to make sure that future generations here aren't left flipping their remotes on Saturdays when the big game comes on, but rather watching it in person. But that doesn't help this senior.

Just once I'd like to walk into the Big House, one of 105,000 wearing Maize and Blue, for a game with Ohio St.

LEIGH TORBIN

Just once I'd like to see the Minuteman marching band go up against USC's band and kick its ass.

Just once I'd like to see Florida State's Chief Osceola ride on horseback across McGuirk Alumni Stadium and plant his burning spear at the 50.

Tradition, crazy fans, crazy mascots. That's I–A football. That's what it's all about.

Perhaps even more so than with the Final Four, campuses around the nation just stop on Saturdays in the fall. The NFL just can't compare with the college game.

It's one thing to root the team that happens to play in your city that year, until the owner wants more luxury boxes, in a game against America's (Most Wanted) Team, the Dallas Cowboys. It's something else altogether to root on your school, especially against someone like Notre Dame. The passion and pagentry stand up to the pro game like Stride– Rite to Nike Town or Tang to Wu–Tang.

If you live in New England then all you could ever have for a I–A experience is BC's Alumni Field. Sitting high above it Saturday along side WZBC's Tyler Walsh, I couldn't help but be shocked by the differences from there to here. The press box chowder is comparable, but UMass doesn't repeal campus open container laws on game days.

We have to live vicariously through other schools. I wasn't the only non–BC or even UMass student hanging out in the Mods at 3:30 in the morning.

It's not to say that UMass doesn't have good I–AA football, but even big games won't sell out. When Colorado goes to Texas on Oct. 25, they could announce that the game was cancelled and instead Bevo the Longhorn Steer and Ralphie the Buffalo would fight to the death in a steel cage match, and Royal–Texas Memorial Stadium will be filled to the Austin sky with no animal rights activists for a country mile. Winner gets an invitation to join the NWO.

Half the parking lot's filled with Coors cans and black and gold Winnebagos, the rest with Texans and Jack Daniels, all united in the quest for a good time.

That's I–A football. That's what it's all about.

There are several plusses to I–AA though.

Here at my State U., I get to fall out of bed at 11:59 for the same noon game, park for free in purple lot, walk up to the gate, get in just flashing an ID, and sit wherever I want on the visitor's side of the field. If the mighty Minutemen should fall, Saturday night spirits uptown aren't overly dampened. Win or lose there'll be lines at the bars, kegs at the frats, and Puff Daddy blaring from the towers.

Yeah, I'd like Keith Jackson coming to my alma mater for a game with someone like Florida. But, looking on the bright side, I don't have to waste a perfectly good Saturday morning driving in circles in search of a parking space.

But hey, that's I–A football. That's what that's all about.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

UMass forward Emma Kurowski breaks the mold

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Dumb jock. Muscle freak. The body of a Venus, but the brain of a Pluto.

Admit it — these are common notions of the "athlete."

For most of you in the Pioneer Valley, the athlete is considered the embodiment of all that's evil in today's society. Also, while you sit there and read Rudyard Kipling or some writer who believes all sports are "immoral," you might even place this piece into the same category.

Like all stereotypes, though, any preconceived notion of what is an "athlete" can be thrown out the window, and in a lot of cases, sports can be considered fine art. One of those examples is Emma Kurowski, a sophomore forward for the No. 12 Massachusetts women's soccer team.

In only her second campaign for the Minutewomen (5–0), Kurowski has begun to master the fine art of scoring, and on both sides of the stat sheet. After her 1996 Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Year season, the will o' the wisp from Sutton has already picked up where she left off last season, with 4 goals and 3 assists for 11 points.

But, is that any surprise? Not really, because you would expect nothing less from a Fine Arts major.

Stereotypically, you see the "athlete" sticking with his/her own discipline when it comes to their major, and the majority of the time, they will choose one athletically related; such as sports management, business or exercise science. However, like stereotypes, all those preconceptions can be thrown in the circular file, because Kurowski is one athlete that busts that kind of thinking apart.

Kurowski's academically creative side has translated over to her competitive side, and that has benefited both herself and her teammates.

"I like the way that you can be creative with the major," said Kurowski, who has thought about changing it to a minor purely because of time conflicts with her soccer schedule. "Its not just about right or wrong, or how every answer is the same — no matter what you do or say.

"It's the same with when I played basketball, and I was always the point guard, creating plays and making things happen. That's what I like... to be creative, and to always try new stuff."

Kurowski's creativity on and off the field is not lost on coach Jim Rudy.

"It's the artistic stuff that comes here and there, and the next thing you know...boom, there's a goal," Rudy said. "She's probably the best pure finisher we've had here, in terms of her repertoire and methods of scoring goals.

"She can hit the full volley, the half volley, and she can toe–poke, shoot from the knee down and the outside of the foot, and do diving headers and overhead bicycle kicks. She has the full range of the know–how to score."

JORMA KANSANEN/COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Emma Kurowski has taken flight this season, leading the Minutewomen to a perfect 5–0 start.

First Impression

Like 19th century French impressionist style of painting, at first look, it is sometimes hard to find a meaning in Kurowski's style of play. For example, you look at a painting by Monet, and the intermixture of form and color of the person in the foreground, and the landscape in the background, can be hazy and indistinct.

Yet, when you step back and take a second look, like a hidden secret, the meaning to the piece reaches out and grabs you by the crux of your creative imagination. What hits you first is the sheer color of the painting, and then the texture and meaning of both the person and the landscape becomes one with each other.

The same is true with Kurowski on the pitch, and at first glance, the observer can be left wondering what exactly is going on in this picture. The match will go on for a period of time, and the sophomore forward will not be involved in any phase of the game what–so–ever.

Yet, the next thing you know, like a hidden secret, the meaning to her game becomes evident, and it is the other team that becomes the befuddled. All it takes is a step back and a second look, and Kurowski will burn you with either a ball handling clinic, a serve to a teammate or a strike to either corner of the net — and the meaning of the player within the soccer landscape becomes clear.

"I don't think Emma could play for a lot of coaches, because they couldn't appreciate her style, and what she brings to the table," Rudy said. "She's in a system here where we do appreciate what she has, and she has the ability to get goals at almost any time.

"Since we don't do a lot of subbing, her play can be deceptive sometimes, until it gets to the goal. In those times, she somewhat puts the other team asleep, because she is not as visible as other people on our team. Emma has a subtlety to her, and that is a strength for her."

A whole new world

One thing that has taken some getting used to for Kurowski this season is her new surroundings — and it is not the fact the Minutewomen have moved from Richard F. Garber Field to Totman Field.

After the season and career ending injury

Turn to EMMA, page 11

UMass, AC grudge match halted by darkness

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Correspondent

While the Massachusetts and Amherst College women's tennis teams were fighting it out for bragging rights in Amherst, Mother Nature stepped in with some ideas of her own as to who would be the victor.

With the two schools deadlocked at 3–3 in the final matchup of the afternoon, the match was suspended because of darkness.

"This is tennis in New England," Massachusetts womens' tennis coach Judy Dixon said. "The doubles match took an hour and a half, and that's the piece that got us behind."

As for those doubles matches, UMass was victorious in all three nail biters to claim the point.

The duo of Ola Gerasimova and Marie–Christine Caron rallied from a 5–2 deficit to fight back and take a 10–8 victory over the Lord Jeffs.

Senior co–captain Caroline Steele and Robyn Lebovitz also pulled out a close one, turning a late 7–6 Amherst advantage into a 9–7 UMass win.

The last doubles match on the afternoon was claimed by Jackie Braunstein and Lana Gorodetskaya, who won their match 9–7.

"We were very strong and intense and fired up in doubles play," Dixon said.

The singles side was just as much of a dogfight.

After Lebovitz easily disposed of her opponent 6–1, 6–0, Amherst started to shift the tides in their favor. Three consecutive victories over Caron, Braunstein, and Gerasimova put the Minutewomen in a 3–2 hole.

"Robyn played excellent. She is unbelievably mentally tough," Dixon said. "I thought that we could have had better thought out matches at one, two, and three singles."

Steele came back to lead the charge with a straight–set victory, which knotted the match at 3–3 and kept UMass in the hunt.

"Caroline just refused to give up. She's kind of like a dog who's looking for a bone, and that's what won her that match," Dixon said.

Then, during the third set of the final match of the afternoon, darkness covered the Upper Boyden Tennis Courts and forced the match to be postponed to an undetermined date.

Despite the sour and abrupt conclusion of the match, Dixon was pleased with the way that her squad played.

"I came away pleased today with my recruiting class. They are exceptional," Dixon said. "We are a good, solid team. Now we'll go to the Eastern Championships this weekend."

LAUREN KINSLEY/COLLEGIAN

Caroline Steele won both her doubles and singles matches yesterday at the Upper Boyden courts during a suspended match with Amherst College.

N.Y. Jets aren't that bad; Marino needs some help

OK, I was wrong.

I'm a strong individual.

I can admit to my mistakes.

When I wrote in last weeks column that New England would destroy New York 45–10, maybe I got a little overzealous.

Perhaps my bogus bias attitude got in the way.

Maybe I was being immature.

So in the most experienced and wise manner, I will attempt to redeem myself.

Here it goes:

New York fans, "Naah nah nah nah, nah nah nah nah, Hey, hey, hey, goodbye!"

Was that better? I don't know about you, but I feel good.

In other NFL news:

After three weeks have been completed by all but four teams, it's a good time to look over the progress throughout the league. Let's assess, shall we?

•No matter how biased I may be toward the Patriots, the Jets are a solid football team, I'll give them that. However, Jets fans, don't expect them to come out against every team the way they did against the Pats. As bad as the Pats played, they still defeated the Jets.

Also, if you thought that New England played as well as they could have, then you are sorely mistaken.

Anyway, look for them to go back home to the Meadowlands and defeat the Raiders this weekend, 17–10.

•My "Inside the Locker Room" pick of the week is Carolina over Kansas City. Perhaps not a very exciting game, but it involves two 2–1 teams that have not gotten into the full flow of the season yet.

Kerry Collins is due back on Sunday, which gives the Panthers an obvious advantage.

•Dan Marino looks very alone in his own little world. His receivers do not run their routes correctly or with much assurance. Marino spent half the game last weekend trying to teach his receivers where to go.

Although they lost to Green Bay 23–18, the Dolphins put on one heck of show in Lambeau Field. They took advantage of a less than sufficient Packers team, which in the last two weeks has not performed well enough for Mike Holmgrom's liking. Brett Favre has been trying too hard to be a superman when he should just play the type of football he's best at.

This Sunday night on TNT, the Dolphins will fall to 2–2 when the Buccaneers prove to be a serious playoff contender.

Bucks 35, Fish 24.

•...I wonder how long it's going to be before some quarterback is carted off the field on a stretcher for the last time. Steve Young, Troy Aikman, Jim Harbaugh and Stan Humphries are not that far away from retirement, or maybe even permanent brain damage. It may take one of the best players in the league to get seriously damaged before this league does something drastic to change what has been happening to quarterbacks.

Jonathan M. Place
the Jet

Turn to JETS, page 11

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CVII Issue 13 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Friday, September 19, 1997

Time to party

The BMCP presents its annual Jeans 'n T–Shirts party this weekend. Check out an interview with D.J. Mars inside (see Arts & Living, page 5).

JMU puts up its Dukes against Minutemen

Senior defensive end Mike Dawson leads the UMass football team against James Madison tomorrow in a quest for their first win (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Six Hamas arrested for kidnapping plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Shin Bet secunity agency has arrested six members of the Hamas militant group who planned to kidnap Jerusalem mayor Ehud Olmert, Israel Radio said yesterday.

The two men from east Jerusalem and four from the West Bank also planned a terrorist attack at the Malha Mall, Jerusalem's largest shopping center, the report said.

The army said the arrests were made Aug. 19, but did not confirm the details of the report.

The radio report said the Hamas members had walked around the mall carrying bags containing nails as a way of testing security at the site.

Hamas is blamed for a string of suicide bombings that have killed scores of Israelis since 1993 as part of a campaign to kill the peace process between Israel and the Palestinians.

The report said the charges against the six had been submitted to a military court in the central Israeli city of Lod. They are charged with planning to attack the mail and kidnap Olmert and his deputy Haim Miller. They are also charged in connection with a January bombing in Tel Aviv that caused injuries and damage but did not kill anyone.

NATION

Maine legislature halts gay–rights bill

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Maine's gay–rights law was put on hold yesterday — one day before it was to take effect — after opponents gathered enough signatures for a possible referendum on the anti–discrimination act.

Elections officials have 30 days to certify the signatures. If an insufficient number is valid, the law will take effect the following day, Secretary of State Dan Gwadosky said.

Otherwise, the law will remain on hold until the referendum, which would be scheduled after November and before April.

The law, approved by the Legislature earlier this year and signed by Gov. Angus King, bars discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation in housing, public accommodations, credit and employment.

Michael Heath, director of the Christian Civic League of Maine, said petitioners had gathered more than enough signatures for a referendum.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	day	day
HIGH: 84 LOW: 60	HIGH: 78 LOW: 56	HIGH: 68 LOW: 41

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News.....page 2
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

UM, Five College grad program unites history dept. resources

Beth McCarthy
Collegian Staff

The unique University of Massachusetts/Five College Graduate Program in history, incorporating the resources and faculty of the Pioneer Valley, was inaugurated last night with a lecture given by published historian Bonnie Smith.

"This inauguration is about intellectual capital," Mary Wilson, Chair of the history department at UMass, said in her introduction speech. "Together, we have a graduate program that is one of the best in the country in intellectual breadth and intellectual depth."

According to Wilson, this new program, which has been five years in the making, will allow graduate students in the field of history access to a rich range of academics and enormous diversity in their pursuit of their Master's degree.

"I am so happy to be giving an inauguration lecture for such a fine program," said Smith, who received her bachelor's degree from Smith College.

Professors and students say that this is going to be a memorable and positive move in a higher direction.

"It has tremendous potential in terms of spreading knowledge and ability across channels," said Patric Whitcomb, a UMass graduate student in history.

Dr. Patricia Warner, a professor of consumer studies at UMass, agrees that the new program is a "win win situation all the way."

"It will be wonderful for the Five Colleges to finally be able to focus at the graduate level and use the Five College faculty," Warner said.

This program is particularly rewarding for Lynda Morgan, a professor of history at Mount Holyoke College, where there is no offer of a Master's degree, because "we are getting drawn into the graduate program."

While the consensus was positive towards this innovative program, Smith's lecture took on a more controversial route.

Her lecture was titled "History of Gender," in which she pointed out gender in the hierarchy of history.

Smith spoke of gender being "in our scientific method," and how "once sexed, historians placed women's bodies on a hierarchial level.

"This has never been a genderless enterprise," Smith said during the question and answer period. "It is constructing the field. It's saturating everything and they are making history out of it."

Such a tantalizing subject, brought about arguments and debates during the question and answer period of the

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK / COLLEGIAN

Bonnie Smith speaks on the History of Gender yesterday at Memorial Hall.

Turn to HISTORY, page 2

Inter-Religious Project provides spiritual community for students

By Julie Siegal
Collegian Staff

When Shreedeep Bhachech came to the University of Massachusetts from India last year, he hoped to engage in a strong interest of his religion, but found the topic to be hidden and almost invisible on campus.

Coming from a country where a majority of the religious population is either Hindu and Muslim, Bhachech never got to expand his knowledge until he took history Professor William Johnston's "Introduction to World Religions" class.

"There's freedom of religion in this country, but there are no classes about religion in high school," Bhachech said. "People try not to talk about it with their peers. While at school, they'd rather talk about something else."

Bhachech said the concealed religious community on campus created an obstacle for students because it didn't allow students of various religions to interact and discover people's spirituality.

Johnston also identified with this problem, and after becoming aware his students appreciated extracurricular activities. He started working on the Inter–Religious Project, a student–organized activity for students who desire religious activities not already available at the University.

"This organization promotes contact between all the religions, but does not promote any one of them," Johnston said.

Students with or without religious backgrounds can benefit from this organization, he said, because it gives them a chance to explore and experiment other religions while getting to know each other at the same time.

The Inter–Religious Project will provide opportunities for students who want to be spiritual human beings but don't know how to pursue that goal, said Merle Ryan, assistant dean of students and chairperson of religious affairs on campus.

The project will benefit the campus community in many ways, Ryan said.

It will allow students to find spirituality and receive support from other students. It will also allow a greater acceptance of those different from others, give a broad understanding of different cultures and build a stronger campus community, Ryan said.

The Inter–Religious Project is the working title at the present time, but they might change the name since the project will also take on a cultural approach.

"Religion is very closely tied with cultures other than the Western culture," Ryan said.

The project will have faculty support for resources and other materials, but students will be in charge of setting the agenda.

Since the project is still in its developmental stage, activities for the semester have not been carved in stone, but are focusing on community service, excursions to worship places of different religions, inter–religious discussion and celebration and the creation of a web page, radio show or other media.

The primary goal of creating a web page is to improve awareness of ongoing activities, especially religious ones that get inadequate coverage.

Johnston's other goal of the project is to network all the many other organizations on campus.

"There are more than 250 RSOs [Registered Student Organizations] on campus, but none know what others are doing," Johnston said. "The campus is divided into cells."

The project is a novel and experimental idea for the University, Johnston said.

Turn to RELIGION page 2

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK / COLLEGIAN

Beautiful butterfly symphony

A butterfly takes a brief respite on a friendly hand yesterday.

People's Market argument leads to employee arrest

An alleged argument between two co–managers at People's Market, a student–run business in the Student Union, on Wednesday afternoon lead to an arrest of one of the co– managers of the store.

Omar O. Gayle, 21, of 256 Sunset Ave, was arrested for assault and battery and assault with a dangerous weapon.

According to University of Massachusetts Police Chief John Luippold, "Gayle was involved in an alleged argument which escalated to a fight with another student."

The fight, which began with a push, ended when Gayle "picked up a knife and showed it to the victim," Luippold said.

The victim's name has not been released.

The knife was not a personal belonging of Gayle's. It belonged to the store.

Neither Gayle nor the victim was injured.

Gayle left the store, and following a police investigation, was located and arrested.

When asked to comment on Wednesday afternoon's fight, a co–manger who refused to give his name said, "we [People's Market] decided as a group not to comment on this issue."

In addition, members of the Center for Student Business refused to comment.

The investigation is still pending.

— Leigh Faulkner

Artists and their work

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNIK / COLLEGIAN

Andrew Bergeron, a freshman BFA major, draws his interpretation of the Old Chapel.

Pres. Jiang Zemin's plan for capitalist-style economy approved by communists

By Joe McDonald
Associated Press

BEIJING — Communist leaders approved President Jiang Zemin's new economic reforms and retired a top rival yesterday in the final moves of a major party congress, strengthening Jiang's status as heir to Deng Xiaoping.

The economic platform is another step away from the party's communist roots, as it approves layoffs, bankruptcies and other capitalist-style steps to revive state companies, nearly half of which are losing money.

Approval of Jiang's ambitious plans moved him closer to establishing himself as a leader in his own right. He lost his patron with the February death of Deng, pioneer of the economic changes that have allowed millions of Chinese to lift themselves out of poverty.

Jiang, who also is party secretary general, will benefit from the makeup of the 193-member Central Committee of powerful figures elected to guide the party for the next five years.

Left off the body was Qiao Shi, No. 3 in the party hierarchy and head of the Chinese legislature. The move, rumored in advance, was a setback for Qiao, a frequent critic of Jiang who has tried to build up the legislature as a counterweight to excessive government and party power.

The elderly Gen. Liu Huaqing also was left off, clearing the way for Jiang to promote his supporters to leadership posts. The Central Committee meets today to pick a party Politburo and its ruling standing committee.

Delegates said Qiao, 72, and Liu, 80, were retiring because of age.

"They're too old," said Wang Zhiwei, a delegate from the northern province of Shaanxi. "We need to rejuvenate."

Qiao looked dejected, sitting with his head bowed during the 15-minute closing ceremony in the Great Hall of the People. At one point, he waved to the television cameras as if saying goodbye. Premier Li Peng, No. 2 in the party and a Jiang ally, beamed. Without a party post, Qiao will likely have to relinquish leadership of the legislature. Li, whose term as premier ends in March, is said to be interested in the job.

Qiao is believed to be in bad health, often a euphemism for political problems. Although ostensibly being retired because of his age, Qiao, at 72, is only one year older than Jiang. It was unclear whether Qiao would get another state job.

Added to the committee was Zeng Qinghong, a former Jiang aide when he was party boss in Shanghai.

"It was a unified congress. It was a victorious congress," Jiang, 71, said at the closing ceremony, speaking in front of a gold hammer-and-sickle, the communist symbol.

Jiang, picked from relative obscurity in 1989 to lead a divided party after the Tiananmen Square crackdown, used the congress to stake a claim to Deng's leadership mantle.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNEK / COLLEGIAN

Don't pull that switch!!
This switch controls power on campus.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Leaving the Scene
Sept. 17
An individual who struck a parked vehicle in parking lot 12 on Forestry Way will be cited for leaving the scene.

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 16
A minor two-vehicle accident occurred in parking lot 65 on Natural Resources Road.
Sept. 17
A minor two-vehicle accident occurred on Stockbridge Road.

Alarm — Fire
Sept. 16
A small fire in a trash can in Bartlett Hall was extinguished.

Assault & Battery
Sept. 17
Omar O. Gayle, 21, of 256 Sunset Ave., Amherst was arrested for assault and battery and assault with a dangerous weapon.

Family Offenses, Domestics
Sept. 15
Martin J. Fallon Jr., 62, of 11 So. Whitney St., Amherst was arrested in the campus for domestic assault and battery.
Irma Fallon, 55, of 11 So. Whitney St., Amherst was arrested in the Campus Center for Wanton Destruction over $250 and domestic assault and battery.

Health/Safety Hazard
Sept. 15
Environmental Health and Safety was notified of a diesel spill on Holdsworth Way.

Larceny
Sept. 15
An individual reported that his wallet was stolen from a locked room in Cance Residence Hall.
A stereo system worth $1000 was stolen from the 19th floor lounge in Kennedy Residence Hall.
A telephone was reported stolen from the Campus Center.
A mountain bike was reported stolen from Kennedy Residence Hall.
Sept. 16
Movie videos were reported stolen from the hotel desk in the Campus Center.
A vacuum cleaner was reported stolen from Boyden Gym.
A telephone was reported stolen from Boyden Gym.
A backpack was reported stolen from the Textbook Annex.
Core locks were stolen from several doors on Facilities Building Road.
Sept. 17
A mirror was reported stolen from a truck in parking lot 22 on University Drive.

Motor Vehicle Theft
Sept. 16
A vehicle was reported stolen from parking lot 13 Authority Way.

Suspicious Vehicle
Sept. 15
An individual reported a peeping tom in the shower area in Cance Residence Hall last weekend.

Stolen Motor Vehicle
Sept. 17
Amherst Police recovered a stolen vehicle from UMass. The vehicle was located in the Kaiser Permanente parking lot

Traffic Stop
Sept. 15
Frankie Sanchez, 38, of 23 Calhoun St., Springfield was arrested on Presidents Drive for operating a motor vehicle with suspended license, operating an unregistered and uninsured motor vehicle, a license plate violation and a one way violation.

Vandalism
Sept. 17
A room door in Patterson Residence Hall was vandalized.
Offensive signs regarding a social event were hung in Brown Residence Hall.

■ religion

continued from page 1

"There is nothing like it on campus," Johnston said. "It's a totally fresh initiative."

Bhachech said he thinks the project will benefit UMass students.

"It'll give them [students] an opportunity to come forward and talk about it [religion] without feeling guilty or ashamed," he said.

Bhachech admits the project will probably get off to a slow start, however.

"People are going to be shy to go to something like this in the beginning," Bhachech said. "In the near future, five or six years from now, more and more students will start joining the project and won't be as shy. It's going to take some time, but it will happen."

To gain a better idea on how to further develop the project, Johnston is sending 10-12 people to Brown University on Oct. 20 for a national conference of religious scenes at various American universities.

The first general meeting of the Inter-Religious Project will be held from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 23

■ history

continued from page 1

lecture, was certainly a good choice according to Whitcomb.

"It was very revealing," Whitcomb said. "It was definitely thought provoking."

As the lecture broke and the more than 50 participants trickled out of Memorial Hall, the merging of minds between the Five Colleges was already apparent with members of each community intermingled in the discussions that flared over Smith's topic.

"These are lucky, lucky students," Warner said.

Collegian News...
We know what goes on in the world,
we know were your jive is at,
and we know that your reading the paper this very instant...
How do we know all this? Come write for us and you'll find out.

Latino Heritage Month kicks off next week at Du Bois Library

By Joseph Fountain
Collegian Staff

In honor of Latino Heritage Month, the W.E.B. Dubois Library at the University of Massachusetts is hosting several events next week.

The library, which has the largest publicly funded research collection on Latin America in the Northeast, is also ranked 14th in the nation.

"Latinos in the area should know this is also their library and we are trying to forge links into the Latino communities," co-coordinator Lori Mestre said.

"In 30 years one out of ever four Americans will be Hispanic and the demand for Latin American classes is ever expanding; the classes are always full," said Dr. Peter Stern, bibliographer for the library's Latino collection.

To kick off the events, the main floor of the library will host a celebration on Sunday, Sept. 21, featuring keynote speaker Dr. Sonia Nieto, an education professor. The event will include a poetry reading by English professor Dr. Martin Espada.

Food will be prepared and served by Martin Carrera of La Veracruzana, and music will be played by classical guitarist Francisco Hernandez, followed by a performance by Bill and Patrick Dunn.

On Monday Sept. 22, Howard J. Wiarda, the Leonard J. Horowitz Professor of Latin American Studies, spoke about, "The Democratic Revolution in Latin America" at 7 p.m. on the 25th floor of the Library in Special Collections.

"Latin America is the 2nd largest growing economies in the world and there importance to the United States is growing along with the study of Latin America itself," Wiarda said.

Dr. Stern will be giving a talk titled "Does the Colonial Past Still Matter?" at noon in room 168C of the campus center on Sept. 23. Later in the evening there will be a tour of the Latin American resources and internet at the library at 6:30 p.m.

Amherst College Professor Ilan Stavans will give a presentation titled "Latinos into the future: Has the Fiesta Begun?" on Wednesday, Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. in the special collections room of the Library.

On Thursday, Sept. 25 Mount Holyoke College Spanish professor Roberto Marquez will give a talk on Literature and Identity in the Carribean at 7 p.m. in the special collection room.

A tour of the library will be offered and a demonstration of materials available on the internet on Sept. 26 at 2:30 p.m. on the library's main floor.

The library's final event, a bilingual children's program is set for Sept. 27 at 10:30 a.m. in the Jones Library on Amity Street in Amherst. All the events are open to the public and students, staff and faculty are encouraged to attend.

Come On In Out Of The Plain!

3 floors • stores galore • food & more

dictionary / six bucks • cup o' joe / a buck • "For Dummies" guides / nineteen bucks
beaded curtain / nine bucks • book bags / from eighteen bucks
Genko (for mental sharpness) / fifteen bucks • magic stone / twelve bucks
Armani hosiery / nine bucks • Lucky Jeans / sixty-eight bucks
shower caddy / eleven bucks • CK boxer shorts / eighteen bucks
Hard Candy lipsticks / sixteen bucks

THORNES 150 MARKET PLACE
"under the big green awning"
On the bus route • Open Mon–Tue- Wed 10-6; Thur-Fri-Sat 10-9; Sun 12-5 • 150 Main Street, Northampton

HELPING YOU BUILD A SECURE FINANCIAL FUTURE IS AN IMPORTANT JOB. FORTUNATELY, WE HAVE THE PERFECT RESUME.

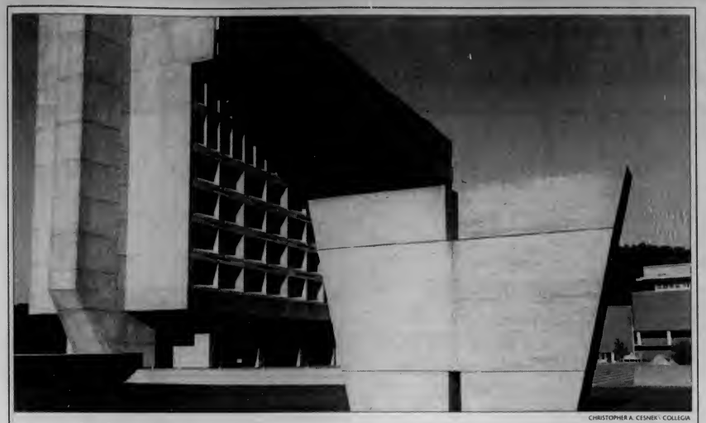
With nearly 80 years of leadership experience in our field, TIAA-CREF is eminently qualified to help you build a comfortable, worry-free retirement.

Our references are equally impeccable — today, nearly two million of the best minds in America trust us with their financial future. Allow us to review our qualifications.

Superior strength
With over $200 billion in assets, TIAA-CREF is the world's largest retirement organization — and among the most solid. TIAA is one of only a handful of companies to have earned top ratings for financial strength, and CREF is one of Wall Street's largest investors.†

Solid, long-term performance
We seek out long-term opportunities that other companies, in pursuit of quick gains, often miss. Though past performance can't guarantee future results, this patient philosophy has proven extremely rewarding.

Surprisingly low expenses
TIAA-CREF's operating costs are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries. Therefore, more of your money goes where it should — towards ensuring your future.



Easy diversification
We offer a wide variety of expertly managed investment options to help build your assets. With stock, bond, money market, and real estate accounts — as well as a guaranteed annuity to choose from — TIAA-CREF makes diversification easy.

Unrivaled service
We believe that our service distinguishes us from every other retirement company. In the latest Dalbar Consumer Satisfaction Survey, a study of 2,000 financial companies, TIAA-CREF was voted the leading provider of retirement plans.

If you work in education, research, or related fields, why not put TIAA-CREF's experience to work for you? To find out more, visit our Web site at www.tiaa-cref.org or call us at 1-800-842-2776.

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

† As of September 3, A.M. Best Co. AAA, Duff & Phelps Aaa, Moody's Investor Services Aaa, Standard and Poor's for stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability, and overall financial strength. These ratings of TIAA are an assessment of companies, do not apply to CREF (Standard / Poor's Investment Advisory Services, Inc. / Lipper Analytical Services, Inc. / Lipper Director / Statistical Data, 1996 (Quarterly). For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1-800-842-2733, extension 5509, for CREF and TIAA Real Estate prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money. TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services, Inc., distributors. CREF certificates and the variable components of TIAA contracts.

CHRISTOPHER A. CESNEK / COLLEGIAN

Natural relaxation
A peaceful photograph of the Campus Center that may stir emotion.

UMass Magazine launches series with famous alums

By Michelle Hillman
Collegian Staff

UMass Magazine, an alumni magazine distributed quarterly, is launching a new ad series featuring recognizable University of Massachusetts alumni.

The series, which is an advertisement for Chancellor Scott's Campaign UMass "To Dream, To Act, To Lead," will tentatively be called "The Dream Starts Here" and will feature Norm Abrams from "This Old House" as the first celebrity.

Editor of UMass Magazine Patricia Wright got the idea for the ads because she said she "liked the idea of a series where people actually look for the ad."

The first ads the magazine featured for the "To Dream, To Act, To Lead," campaign was a series of art objects created by Mariana Rilleau, (BFA '86) that incorporated the campaign logo of the W.E.B. Du Bois library juxtaposed with the Old Chapel. "We were trying to get people to look at the logo and recognize it," said Wright.

The "The Dream Starts Here," series is aimed at raising awareness of the campaign and encouraging people to support it by bringing celebrated people in a campus setting, Wright said.

Wright wants to "increase a sense of place the magazine conveys," by using the campus setting in the ads.

"The physical campus is the common denominator," Wright said.

The first in the four part series of UMass alumnus, Norm Abram visited campus last week for a photo in the Old Chapel. Abram was a member of the class of '72 and was a engineering/business major.

Since his time at UMass, Abram has became a key figure on "This Old House" as the master carpenter. Ten years after the premiere of "This Old House," Abram is the host of the spin-off series, "New Yankee Workshop." He is also the author of five books and founder of Integrated Structures Inc., a general contracting firm.

The next celebrity alum to be featured in the series will be Brianna Scurry, who was a member of the 1996 U.S. Olympic women's soccer team, which won the gold in Atlanta.

Gunmen attack German tour bus, 10 dead

By Salad Nasrawi
Associated Press

CAIRO — Three men in white shirts and ties strode calmly up to a bus as German tourists climbed aboard yesterday — then pulled a gun and explosives from a black plastic bag. Ten people were killed in a hail of gunfire and firebombs that set the bus ablaze.

The noontime attack — which police blamed on Muslim radicals — sent frightened tourists and bystanders streaming in panic from Cairo's Egyptian Museum, a major tourist landmark that contains one of the world's greatest collections of Pharaonic antiquities. Police fired on the gunmen, wounding and capturing two of them. A third suspect was arrested nearby as hundreds of people fled the museum, famed for its rich gold artifacts from the tomb of King Tut.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, but police described the gunmen as Muslim extremists. The attack came three days after Egypt convicted 72 people of subversion in its largest trial yet of Muslim extremists.

"I saw one man hurl a Molotov cocktail at the left side of the bus, while another opened fire," said Mohammed Fadl, an office worker. "There was black smoke coming out of the bus, and then it burst into flames."

"The whole place was in panic," said Stephen Thomas, a Briton who was visiting the museum with his wife and two children. Another witness, an American from Buffalo, N.Y., who gave his name only as Mark, said the gunfire continued "for what must have been 10-15 minutes. It was crazy, people were running."

Other witnesses said the gunmen threw one firebomb under the bus and another inside.

Twenty-four people were wounded, including seven hospitalized in stable condition in Qasr el-Aini hospital, police said. Officials said other victims were treated and released, but had no details. More than 30 German tourists were already on the bus when the gunmen opened fire shortly after noon, when the museum was crowded with visitors and nearby Tahrir Square was jammed with pedestrians and vehicles.

After the attack, two bodies, one riddled with bullets, lay across the stairs of the charred bus, its tires melted and its windows blown out. Seven other bodies were inside, some sprawled across the aisles. A tenth victim died after being removed from the bus.

There was disagreement over the nationalities of the dead: police said nine were Germans and the other was the Egyptian bus driver. But German officials said only seven of the dead were German. Police said six of the dead were women and four were men. After the attack, hundreds of policemen carrying plastic riot shields, assault rifles tipped with tear gas canisters and rifles sealed off the downtown museum to search for the gunmen.

Mahmoud Hamdy, the driver of a tour bus parked nearby, said the attackers wore white shirts and ties and looked just like any other Egyptian tourist agent working in the area.

A police statement identified two of the suspects as Saber Farhat Abu el-Ulla and his brother Mahmoud. It said Saber Abu el-Ulla was convicted of a 1993 attack on a Cairo hotel that killed two Americans and a Frenchman, and was committed to a mental institution after being ruled mentally ill.

The police statement said Saber Abu el-Ulla had escaped three days ago. But police officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he had been released after spending two years in the institution.

Police officials said Saber Abu el-Ulla told interrogators yesterday's attack was to avenge posters depicting the Prophet Mohammed as a pig distributed by a Jewish extremist in the Palestinian city of Hebron in June.

The incident has been widely condemned in the Muslim world, as well as by Israeli leaders.

Yesterday's attack came three days after a court convicted 72 people of subversion in Egypt's largest trial of Islamic extremists. Four of the defendants were sentenced to death and eight to life imprisonment.

N.H. police arrest three on double-murder charges

SALEM, N.H.(AP) — The three men suspected of killing two teenage girls in Salem have told police the victims were fine when they left them during the weekend.

But police are rejecting the explanation, saying the Massachusetts men used two days on the road between Salem and northern Michigan to come up with a story.

"They spent a number of days on the road together and it appears they rehearsed things," said Salem police Capt. Alan Gould.

The three are charged with stealing a car belonging to one of the victims. Police say jewelry belonging to the dead girls was found in one of the cars used by the three to flee.

Prosecutors said they hope to file murder charges by the end of the week. They said they're trying to determine if one suspect had less to do with the crimes than the others.

Leeann Millius, 17, and Kimberly Farrah, 18, were killed in a Salem park early Saturday.

James Grant of Fitchburg and Christopher Doucette and Eric Jeleniewski, both of Lunenburg, Mass., are under arrest on charges related to the car theft. They are to be arraigned on theft charges today.

Authorities said the suspects told friends they were planning a trip to Doucette's hometown, Manton, Mich. They stopped to see Doucette's mother Sunday. She told them police were looking for them and they left. She then called authorities. They were arrested not far from Manton the next day.

They waived extradition to New Hampshire in a Michigan court Tuesday and arrived around 4:45 p.m. Thursday at Logan Airport, from where they were taken to New Hampshire.

Police searched Wednesday for the murder weapon, a knife, and other evidence in the woods across from Hedgehog Pond and the surrounding area.

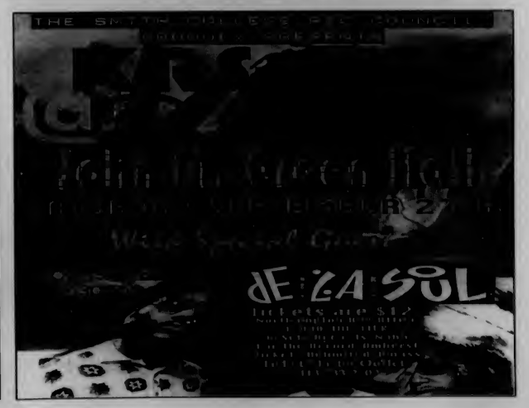
AST COMPUTER ...is Back!! as low as $2,299
with the hottest new mobile technology on September 23rd and 24th

Ascentia™ M Series

M Series Key Features:
° All-in-one, slimline design
° Intel 430TX® chipset
° MMX, high speed EDO RAM
° Large 12.1 SVGA & 13.3" XGA
° Modular HDD and swappable media bay
° USB, FIR, ZV, Cardbus
° ExpressONE Overnight Notebook Exchange
° 3-Year Worldwide Limited Warranty

AST offers the best all around feature set, price/performance.

Ascentia™ A60 Plus Series



A60 Plus Key Features:
° 150 MHz Intel Pentium Processor
° 12.1" SVGA TFT Screen
° 16MB RAM
° 2MB/32-bit PCI bus
° 1.44 GB HDD 3.5
° 10XCD-ROM Drive
° NiMH Battery
° Bundled Software
° ExpressONE Overnight Notebook Exchange
° 3-Year Worldwide Limited Warranty

UNIVERSITY STORE — Campus Center 545-2619 — M-F: 9AM - 5PM SAT: 11AM - 4PM

WANT IT? NEED IT? GET IT!

STUDENT TUESDAY DISCOUNT CARD — Hampshire Mall — Advocate
Every Tuesday
We'll Give Students 25 Reasons Why . . .
Save 10% -25% at EMS Media Play Weathervane & Other Cool Stores!
So, What are You Waiting For?
Get your Student Tuesday Discount Card at Customer Service!
Good for discounts at 25 stores!
(Valid Student I.D.Required, Restrictions Apply)

Hampshire Mall
Route 9, Hadley, MA
(413) 586-5700
SHOPPING HOURS:
MON - SAT 10AM -9PM
SUNDAY 11AM -6PM

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Affirmative action vital

The debate on affirmative action was billowing across the United States years before it was California as Proposition 209. This official test of affirmative action passed by a narrow margin, leaving those who fought against it with hope. Students throughout the University of California system continued to protest this legislation, which eventually led to an appeal in the California Judiciary System.

"Affirmative action was meant to assist people of color in the workplace and at educational facilities so that economically, they could better their lives despite the constant burden of racism or sexism"

Christine Soh

Not more than a month ago, this appeal was denied, sending hundreds of Californians marching in protest over the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco. It was a scene reminiscent of images from the Civil Rights era of the '60s. But this is a different time.

Or is it?

More than half of California voted to dismantle Affirmative Action for reasons that remain crystal clear for those who live under, and according to some, by the hand of the government. Seemingly, those who are traditionally in favor of affirmative action are those who are economically disadvantaged or experience some type of discrimination, namely racism or sexism. But the issue remains infinitely obscure for the others.

Already the percentage of applications from students of color have dropped for the UC system. African-American applications have dropped 7.7 percent between 1995 and 1997. The numbers for Chicano, Latino and especially American Indian applicants have also decreased considerably. For Asian Americans, Filipino Americans, white and other students, applications are on the rise. Graduate admissions are already on the decline in California as a result of race-blind admission policies. And after Prop. 209 is put into full effect, these numbers are projected to drop even more.

It may be difficult to see why students of color are underrepresented in higher education because the source of such low numbers are not found around a university campus (though retention of students of color is also a problem not unrelated). As a proposed solution for the inequities brought on by racism in this country, affirmative action was meant to assist people of color in the work place and at educational facilities so that economically they could better their lives despite the constant burden of racism or sexism. It was a provision for non-discrimination.

We must now be in the position where our history has been forgotten just as our realities are now obscured. Ironically, while Prop. 209 was being passed in California, workers of the Texaco Corporation were bringing their company up on charges of racial discrimination. A tape recording of a 1994 Texaco board meeting was also released in which top executives referred to African Americans as "black jelly beans who stick to the bottom of the bag." Obviously, corporate America's standards for hiring have not changed much since the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was passed.

Affirmative action is still vital to the workplace. Texaco is just one of many businesses in the US that have been accused of racial discrimination (the MBTA in Boston is another notable).

Affirmative action is also vital to educational facilities. Without them, most students of color who are now in school would not be. Discrimination abounds, especially when prestigious universities publish racist works such as the Bell Curve justifying low admission numbers for people of color as genetic inferiorities.

To simply dismantle affirmative action in California, or to simply stand against it, is to say that one no longer believes that racism, sexism and an economic disadvantage exists in the U.S. This position is too simplistic and denies too much of what actually happens today.

Those who proposed Prop. 209 did not put forth any better ideas to take the place of this provision for non-discrimination. Perhaps what they should have done was instead of proposing to dismantle affirmative action, they should have worked to modify it. Maybe affirmative action should focus more on assisting economically disadvantaged people as opposed to just assisting those who are racially discriminated against. But one must question what their motives could have been. By eliminating these provisions, exactly whose interests were they working for?

Christine Soh is a Collegian Columnist.

Rethinking affirmative action

Point Counterpoint

Christine Soh & Jonathan Liberty

It is a sad period in the United States.

Affirmative action has created a dependency far worse than any narcotic.

Created by the government in 1961, under President John F. Kennedy, affirmative action seemed to be an answer for the torrid discrimination of so many years past.

"Immediately, affirmative action places non- whites in a position of inferiority and whites, especially males, in a position of superiority."

Jonathan Liberty

By the age of 14, I was in full support of affirmative action. As an Asian-American growing up in middle-class, white America, my civil rights education was limited to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and I honestly believed that affirmative action was the partial vindication of the civil rights movement.

Not only was my vision limited by my lack of education concerning civil rights, but I was yet to experience affirmative action for myself.

Through the last two years of high school, my college search began. Immediately it was brought to my attention by both peers and counselors that I was very lucky — I would have a better chance at getting into competitive colleges, not due to my grades and resume, but due solely to my status as an Asian-American.

"Very lucky," in the mind of my white peers was slightly troubling for me. Already, affirmative action was leading to a sense of inferiority. But taking advantage of affirmative action seemed empowering. It made sense to me — whereas non-whites, and specifically African-Americans, have been discriminated for so long in America, I viewed affirmative action as a basic necessity for contemporary American culture.

I refuse to argue that affirmative action leads to aversive racism or the decline of a free market system and equal opportunity — all points which came out of the very conservative Reagan years.

My problem with affirmative action is far less philosophical; there are more personal and far more dangerous reasons to stop, or at least wean the country off of this addiction.

Not only does affirmative action undermine the self- confidence of the person who accepts it, it has the ability to undermine the entire purpose of the civil rights movement.

Immediately, affirmative action places non-whites in a position of inferiority and whites, especially males, in a position of superiority.

As explained by Rupert W. Nacoste, a professor at North Carolina State, in Affirmative Action In Perspective, "If it is known that different selection criteria are used for different groups, and if it known that the quality of performance depends on how one did on the criteria of selection, then it is a rational statistical inference to impute a lowered quality of performance to persons of the group preferentially favored in selection."

In other words, upon walking into the workplace of an affirmative action business or school of higher education, a non-white is, or can be, immediately looked down upon.

I do not doubt that this de-moralizing premise was known by the government upon the creation of affirmative action. This supposedly, well-intentioned liberal policy has undermined the traditions of self-help, community responsibility and personal tenacity that which brought the civil rights movement into existence.

We must realize that affirmative action, much like welfare, is stigmatizing the already stigmatized.

When did we decide that our pride and self-confidence was worth filling a quota at a job where our qualifications will be questioned and doubted every day, not so much by words, but by the sideways glances of our white co- workers?

It is the under-evaluation, of which affirmative action reeks, that we must avoid at all costs.

Affirmative action has set up inferiority as a self-fulfilling prophecy for all non-whites, while giving even more superiority to white males.

Non-whites must stop depending on this subversive government policy, cleverly titled, "affirmative action," before it subdues the civil rights movement even more — be sure, there is nothing affirmative about this action.

Jonathan Liberty is a Collegian staff member.

AIDS ride challenges body and mind

This summer, during a conversation with a good high school friend, Casey, I was told about this phenomenal fundraiser for research and care of patients living with AIDS. The fundraiser presented both a physical and a fundraising challenge. The physical challenge was to train for a three-day, 275-mile bicycle ride from Boston to New York City. The fund raising challenge was to meet the $1,500 minimum to participate in the ride. He asked me to do the ride with him.

I decided to commit myself to this fund raiser because I wanted to know how AIDS had affected my generation and I wanted to contribute positively to the epidemic. The money that would be raised would contribute to the Gay and Lesbian Center and Community Health Plan in New York and also the Fenway Community Health Center in Boston.

Thang Vo

With only two-and-a-half months to raise funds, I found great inspiration from frightening facts about AIDS given to me by the Fenway Community Health Center. For all the teenagers who come to the Center to get tested for HIV, one teenager per day will test positive for HIV.

I found the fund-raising end to be slow and a little frustrating when I only had half of the minimum by the time I moved back to school. The physical end felt good, because I was riding my bike everywhere I went this summer. With only three weeks until the deadline and AIDS Ride, I was on a mission to ask friends, professors and businesses to sponsor me for the ride. With one week left, I found myself surrounded by their generosity and support to make the minimum pledge amount.

I could not help but be overwhelmed with excitement as day zero came closer. Day zero is the registration day at Northeastern University in Boston. My wonderful RAs from Butterfield took time to drive me to Boston. On day zero, I had to go through the logistics to be able to do the ride, everything from parking my bike in the holding area to attending a mandatory safety video viewing. After registration, I met up with Casey, whom I was going to be riding with for the next three days, and we prepared for day one of the ride.

Day one. Casey and I woke up at 4:45 a.m. and were driven to Northeastern to eat breakfast and hand in our camping gear. As the 8 a.m. opening ceremony began, riders lined up with their bikes. As we got on the main road, it seemed as though the 3,100 bikers filled the street to infinity. The first day of the ride proved to be the hardest and longest day of the three-day ride. There were pit stops about every 20 miles and each of them had themes such as the "Underpit" where the crew were handing out lunch dressed in underwear.

Our destination was Storrs, Connecticut for that day. At the last pit stop, I found my butt to be sore and my legs to be exhausted. At the stop, a crew member said the last 20 miles is the hardest section of any AIDS Ride in America. He was not kidding. I found myself running to the massage tent at the end of the first day. The camp sight soon became a tent city with mobile showers, port-o-toilets, and food services. I went to bed at 8 p.m. that night, hoping my soreness would go away before the next day.

Day two was probably the best day of the three day ride. Riders hit the road as early as 6:45 am. We rode through diverse scenery, seeing everything from a gunshot convention held at an outdoor firing range to the urban city of Bridgeport, Conn. where all the riders received a warm welcome from the city.

The finish in Bridgeport was the highlight of the ride for me. I realize that all the riders were on the same journey, but each rider had brought their own stories with them on the ride, so they each expressed themselves uniquely. Some riders were pumped and excited at the finish line while others were overwhelmed with the support of the crew and riders and expressed their feelings with happy tears. If you could see love, it was the sight at the finish in Bridgeport.

When I went to park my bike that night, I saw a bike with a sign on the back of it. The sign had a picture of a man and it said next to the picture, "You were my partner, my soulmate, my best friend, and now you are my angel." I couldn't help but feel choked up.

Day three, the last and final day of our journey, was relaxing and short compared to the other two days. We rode from Bridgeport, Connecticut to Manhattan, New York. The traffic in the city alerted me to the possible dangers on the road and made me forget the pain on my butt and in my legs. I made it to Manhattan in a group of 10 riders. We then relaxed and waited for the rest of the riders to get to the holding area. From the holding area, the 3,100 riders would bike a two-mile victory ride to the finish together.

For me, knowing that 3,100 riders and 500 crew members can take three days out of their lives, work and support each other for a common cause is the one of the most beautiful thing to experience and observe.

Thang Vo is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

Making Contact longer

To the Editor:

I am writing in regards to the review of the film Contact by Adam Levine in the September 3 issue of The Daily Collegian.

... My problem with Mr. Levine's review of the film is that he gave it a few brief sentences, which made the film sound like a silly SF flick. Perhaps a film with a brain that did not show naked, stupid women and gun battles isn't very inspiring to write about? Perhaps Mr. Levine is not a big fan of astronomy and the wonders of the Universe? Did he read the novel?

I will give... anyone... the chance to read the novel for free by simply linking to the following Web site, where you will find the entire novel available....

http://hourglass.ml.org:8080/contact/

Perhaps if Mr. Levine reads the novel and delves deeper into Sagan's works... he can have a better appreciation that Contact is much more than just another way to be entertained for several hours and give it the praise that is due. Yes, I think the messages in Contact are so important that a stronger review of the film is required to make more folks see it.

Larry Klaes
larryk@microsys.com

Nuclear waste scare exaggerated

To the Editor:

Chris Stamm's concern for Native Americans displayed in his Monday editorial is admirable, however his lack of knowledge, or research into nuclear materials is inexcusable. If Mr. Stamm had made any attempt to uncover the facts about the Yucca Mountain Nuclear Waste Repository, he could have avoided several errors propagated in his writing.

Mr. Stamm's first mistake is his attempt (deliberate or not) to mislead the reader with his statement that a single nuclear waste transport truck carries "the radiological equivalent of 200 Hiroshima bombs." The radiation released by the Hiroshima bomb was produced in milliseconds, lethally exposing people to many lifetimes worth of radiation in much less than one second. The radiation released by a truckload of nuclear waste is released very slowly over tens of thousands of years, exposing no one — even those living near the disposal site — to greater than one percent of the radiation they are naturally exposed to every day. (Natural radiation exposure comes from the sun, ordinary rocks, and from within our own bodies.) Simply moving from Massachusetts to Denver, where high altitude and naturally radioactive rocks result in increased exposure, would be far worse, from a radiological standpoint, then moving to Yucca Mountain.

Mr. Stamm's attempt to compare nuclear waste transport trucks to typical garbage trucks is similarly inaccurate. Nuclear waste, by law, may only be transported in specially designed and thoroughly tested containers. All containers must survive upon being struck by an actual freight train, being dropped from several stories up onto a steel spike, and being set in a 10,000 degree inferno for 24 hours. I can assure Mr. Stamm that there will be no "putrid liquid dripping out the back" of any nuclear transport vehicle. Nuclear waste will be far safer once placed in sealed transport casks than in the open pools at reactor sites in which it sits today.

Mr. Stamm also claims that "In the last 10 years or so, utility companies have pushed to get the liability of removing nuclear waste... into the hands and pocketbooks of the federal government." I wonder if Mr. Stamm is aware that nuclear utilities have been paying heavy taxes — specifically for waste removal — to the federal government since the first commercial reactor opened in this country. That the federal government has agreed, as a condition for collecting those taxes, that it would have the problem of waste removal solved more than 10 years ago, is good reason for utilities to be pushing for action on this matter.

If the intent of Stamm's editorial is to criticize the U.S. government for its treatment of Native Americans, then he should focus on that issue. If his intent is to educate the public about nuclear waste and nuclear waste disposal, then he should take the time to educate himself first.

John Wilkinson
Grayson

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 300 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes.

Letters can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor,

Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center
UMass
Amherst, MA 01003.

or by email to:

letters@collegian.oit.umass.edu

Letters may be edited for length, clarity and style.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor-in-Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangaiirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor

Marc Dionne Editorial Production Manager
Chris Lavin Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

ARTS & LIVING

DJ Mars hits Jeans 'n T–Shirts

By Lamaretta Simmons
Collegian Correspondent

Coming to the University of Massachusetts by way of Atlanta is DJ Mars (a.k.a. The Chief Party Rocka) who is about to blow up at tomorrow night's Jeans 'n T–Shirt bash at the Student Union Ballroom, presented by Black Mass Communications Project (BMCP).

Mr. Party himself has exploded onto the DJ scene as one of the hottest hip–hop spinners in the nation. With his uncanny ability to mix the most dramatic fades and combinations, DJ Mars is sure to give fans what they're looking for.

Whether your preference is hip–hop, reggae or R&B, DJ Mars knows how to keep the people on their feet. A native of nearby Springfield, Mass., DJ Mars recently sat down for a quick interview about his trade and homecoming.

Although being a DJ is demanding, Mars loves what he does, but warns that there is more to it than just playing music;

"I have to know what the people want before they want it... what's gonna make them lose their mind," Mars said. "There's a science to it. I have to know that you like the Benjamin's before I put it on. So when I drop it, the crowd is like, 'O my God!'"

The former DJ of LaFace recording artist Usher, Mars has become one of the most respected DJ's in the industry. His catalogue of parties include: Freaknick, Black College Weekend, the Wu-Tang cookout on MTV and various benefit concerts. Among some of his most famous clientele are the late Tupac Shakur, KRS-One, Da Brat, Sean "Puffy" Combs, Jermaine Dupri and many more. Featured in the April 1997 issue of Rap Pages, Mars is slowly gaining the publicity a DJ of his caliber deserves.

"I love coming home. It feels really good. A lot of people don't realize I'm actually from Springfield because club DJ's always introduce me as an Atlanta DJ," Mars said.

With so much of the hip–hop club scene depending on DJ's for entertainment, Mars is one of the few to truly have a grasp on the art form.

Mars cites such luminaries as Mingo Madness of WAIC, DJ Red Alert, Kid Capri and DJ Tron among his most admired fellow DJ's and considers them his primary inspiration and competition.

Many followers of urban music have noticed that within the past two years, hip–hop has been plagued by a maelstrom of negative publicity, mostly surrounding the murders of Tupac Shakur and The Notorious B.I.G. "The negative aspects of hip–hop, more specifically rap, are over-publicized. You can find something negative in every industry," Mars said. "But I do think that we, as entertainers, need to clean up our act. There are far more important issues that need to be dealt with rather than the petty stuff the media feeds on."

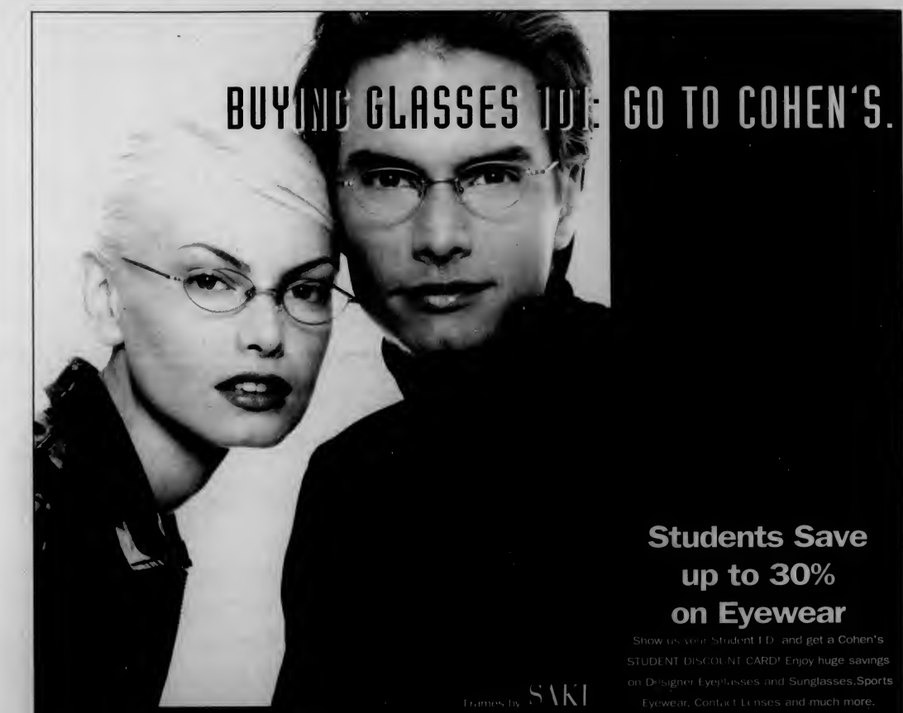
BMCP presents Jeans 'n T–Shirt '97 with DJ Mars — along with DJ Kurupt, 4.0 and The Wise Guys — this Saturday at the Student Union Ballroom. Doors open at 9 p.m. and close at midnight. Tickets are $10 and are available at Tix Unlimited. The show is 18+.

COURTESY LOUIS PINKNEY

D.J. Mars will provide the music tomorrow night at Jeans 'n T–Shirts.

UMass theater set for fall production

By Alex Iglesias
Collegian Staff



The University of Massachusetts Theater Department is back and prepared to bring forth another exciting year of entertainment to the stage. This year marks a very special anniversary year for the well–established department. It's been 25 years since the department emancipated itself from the direction of the UMass Speech Department — which no longer exists.

This season, each member of the theater department has been hard at work to present its most diversified schedule in decades. The line up of engagements reaches far and wide to lure in audience members from every walk of life.

Production themes for the 1997–98 include a vast range of genres, that stretch from modern contemporary musicals to the works of William Shakespeare. The department has also scheduled three unprecedented co-productions with the highly acclaimed New WORLD Theater — not to mention two honorary plays by UMass alumnus Constance Congdon.

A few up–and–coming productions will soon be staging their presence on campus in the next few weeks. An

Turn to THEATER, page 6

Students Save up to 30% on Eyewear

Show us your Student I.D. and get a Cohen's STUDENT DISCOUNT CARD! Enjoy huge savings on Designer Eyeglasses and Sunglasses, Sports Eyewear, Contact Lenses and much more.

Frames by SAKI

Choose from these and other designer styles

Calvin Klein GUCCI DKNY MODO REVO FENDI Ray-Ban

HOLYOKE MALL
50 HOLYOKE STREET
HOLYOKE
(413) 534-3100

SQUARE ONE SHOPPING MALL
SAUGUS
(617) 231-9171

EMERALD SQUARE MALL
999 SOUTH WASHINGTON STREET
NORTH ATTLEBORO
(508) 643-2200

328 WASHINGTON STREET
BOSTON
(617) 542-9221

COHEN'S Fashion OPTICAL

CALL 1-800-EYES-440 FOR OTHER CONVENIENT LOCATIONS NEAR YOU.

Béla Fleck & Co. to play NoHo

COURTESY JEFF FRAZIER

Béla Fleck and the Flecktones will hit the Academy of Music in NoHo tonight.

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

Fresh off a summer tour opening for the Dave Matthews Band, Béla Fleck & The Flecktones bring their engaging fusion of jazz, bluegrass, bluest and worldbeat sounds to Northampton's Academy of Music this Sunday at 7 p.m.

Drawn to the road by a passion to bring their message of harmony to the people, The Flecktones have been logging an amazing 200 plus shows a year since their formation in 1990. Playing venues ranging from huge urban arenas to intimate rural clubs, Fleck sees each audience as a unique and integral part of the live experience. He describes them as "the catalyst that often causes magic to happen."

Their recently released double live opus Live Art highlights several brand new tunes, as well as renditions of audience favorites like "Sinister Minister" and "Flight Of The Cosmic Hippo."

"If the live version didn't offer something substantially different from the studio recording, it didn't go on this album," Fleck said.

Having almost single-handedly redefined the banjo for an entire generation, Béla remains on the cutting edge of today's progressive music scene. He often performs with guest musicians and finds eager colleagues, such as saxophonist Branford Marsalis and pianist Bruce Hornsby to collaborate with.

A 1976 graduate of New York's High School of Music and Art, Fleck moved quickly to the forefront of acoustic music, performing and recording with top bands and releasing several critically-acclaimed solo albums.

Since the formation of his exuberantly unique band, The Flecktones, Béla — along with bassist Victor Wooten and percussionist Future Man — have released five albums and have received a multitude of critical accolades, culminating in a 1995 Grammy Award for Fleck's featured performance in "Hightower" with Johnny Gimble.

Béla Fleck & The Flecktones play the Academy of Music in Northampton this Sunday at 7 p.m. Tickets, priced $28.50, $24.50 and $19.50 are available from the Northampton Box Office (586-8686) and at For The Record in Amherst.

This Game sure ain't no monopoly

Douglas gets taken for quite a ride in Fincher's latest film

By Adam Levine
Collegian Staff

THE GAME
Directed by David Fincher with Michael Douglas, Deborah Kara Unger, Sean Penn
Playing at Mt. Farms Theater

A quick first impression of The Game, David Fincher's (Alien 3, Seven) latest psychological mind teaser, would leave one with an uneasy feeling of "what the heck was that all about?" Fincher, however, is precisely aware of every direction his film is taking and his latest accomplishment may just be even more slick than its silly premise should have allowed. As a result of Fincher's intelligent yet macabre sense of storytelling, his film can transcend its predictability and absurdity, therefore creating a quite decent suspense thriller.

Fincher first made a respectable name for himself back in 1995 with his disturbing noire-crime drama Seven. Although The Game may seem like a logical follow up, another nail- biter with a twisted ending, it is far inferior in many ways, but does contain something Seven lacked——a sense of humor. After all, even Hitchcock knew he couldn't make every movie a dark thriller. In fact, The Game is so immensely over-the-top that it's hard not to just enjoy it for its sophisticated campy appeal.

Michael Douglas dominates every frame of the movie with a typical character we would associate him playing. He's a spoiled rich investment banker named Nicholas Van Orten. Now, Van Orten would seem like the kind of guy that any money-hungry capitalist would think had everything of any importance. He's a suave, attractive millionaire with more power than most of us would know what to do with, yet he manages it well. Van Orten is a carbon-copy of Douglas' earlier role in Oliver Stone's Wall Street, but Van Orten has a lot of pain swept under the closet. The film begins on the day of his 48th birthday, the same age his father was when he committed suicide.

As cliche as it may sound, The Game is a movie about what to give to the guy who has everything. Sean Penn, in an unfortunately small role, plays Conrad, Nicholas' straight out of rehab brother. For his birthday, Conrad gives his big brother a gift certificate for Consumer Recreation Services and simply says "just try it." Before Van Orten can even realize it, the game has begun and Fincher finally gets to have some fun with not only his unsuspecting character, but with his audience as well.

The Game chronicles Van Orten's short decline to near insanity as his sense of reality is continuously challenged. He runs about in circles, trusting everyone, including femme-fatale waitress Deborah Kara Unger (Crash), until they have each betrayed his trust and then won it back, and over and over again.

The film works because it is beyond our imagination to assume that a game like this could exist, therefore there must be another purpose. Fincher saves the plot from becoming too monotonous and irritating by introducing this other purpose, yet never makes anything to clear, enabling him to continue to arouse our suspicion.

The Game is one more example of Hollywood's fascination with wealthy yuppie culture, in which Douglas is a staple of. What is so intriguing about this particular genre (an example being The Player) is how we can sympathize with these characters while being fascinated by their falls from power. Yet, The Game is not so much a film satirizing popular culture as it is a celebration of it. Fincher exemplifies this celebration well by creating a thriller which is as disturbing as it is enjoyable. B

■ theater

continued from page 5

Evening of One-Acts by Early African American Women Playwrights is a new realm in theater for the ambitious department. Directors Al-Bilali and Beth Maxwell present some of the great works by the over-shadowed women playwrights of the Harlem Renaissance. Not far behind, is William Shakespeare's The Tempest, which under the direction of Professor Richard Trousdell presents a passionate tale of "young love, old wrongs and brave new hopes."

Wrapping up the fall line up is Stephen Sondheim's Broadway hit Assassins. This rarity of a musical is under the direction of Max Mount, director of last spring's sensation, The Fantasticks. Mount's unique style will stretch the limits, in order to bring about the dark humor within this unconventional show.

"I'm tired of boy meets girl, girl meets boy, boy and girl fall in love [formula]," Mount said.

The 25th anniversary extravaganza of the UMass Theater Department will come to a close with a special anniversary gala, taking place on the weekend of May 8–10. This year of celebration hopes to connect the surrounding community.

"We're thrilled about celebrating our place in and our ties with the community, both on and off campus," publicist David Cline said.

For more information on up-coming shows or ticket prices, call the box office at (413) 545-2511.

LET'S PLAY VIDEO
Movies $.99 / ...
Best of the new rel...
Atari / N64 / Genesis / ...
Wall-Trade Games & Sy...
...Pleasant Call us
...Plaza (Next to Pizza Hut) 549-...
Open: Mon.-Wed., Thur. 9...
Sat 12:00-7:00

WEEKLY DRINK SPECIALS
VODKA & TONIC 16OZ $2.00
MILLER LITE DRAFT THE BIG ONE 20OZ $1.99
FRI-SAT DANCING BEAT THE COVER NO COVER BEFORE 10PM
1/2 PRICE NACHOS & APPETIZERS 3-5 & 7-9
BAR LOUNGE & RESTAURANT
fun·food·spirits THE PUB amherst
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET AMHERST, MA

WORDS & PICTURES MUSEUM
Schedule of Events
SEPTEMBER 18 - NOVEMBER 16 — HEAVY METAL : CELEBRATING 20 YEARS
In 1977 Heavy Metal magazine hit the stands and for artists and fans it changed their lives forever. Over 20 artists from around the globe are to be represented in this exhibit which is accompanied by the largest signing and exhibit reception event the Museum has ever brought to audiences.
SEPTEMBER 20 10AM - NOON — 2ND ANNUAL PANEL DISCUSSION
Special Guests: Evan Dorkin and Sarah Dyer (Space Ghost Coast-To-Coast, Superman Adventures), Ben Edlund (The Tick), Kevin Eastman (TMNT) and more!
This year's panel group will focus on the elusive world of animation - its peaks and pitfalls, as well as its relationship with the comic medium. Contact Membership Coordinator Phil Straub for details.
SEPTEMBER 20 SIGNING 1 - 4PM; RECEPTION 6PM — ANNUAL MUSEUM MEMBERSHIP DAY
Special Guests: Ben (The Tick) Edlund, Sarah (Action Girl) Dyer, Evan (Milk and Cheese) Dorkin and David (Stray Bullets) Lapham. Contact Membership Coordinator Phil Straub for details
SEPTEMBER 26 6 - 8PM — IN-STORE CREATOR SIGNING as part of the Small Press Expo tour, including; Shannon (Too Much Coffee Man) Wheeler, Paul (Kane) Grist, Chris (The Staros Report) Staros and Gary (Strangehaven) Millidge. Contact Retail Manager Tonya Talbot for details
OCTOBER 9 6:30 - 8:30PM — CREATORS FORUM a monthly series. Contact Matt Smith for further details
HALLOWEEN, FRIDAY OCTOBER 31 9PM - 1AM — COSTUME BALL: Raffles, Prizes, Giveaways: The wildest costume ball you'll ever attend!! This is one stylin' fundraiser. Contact Membership Coordinator Phil Straub for details.
NOVEMBER 6 6:30 - 8:30PM — GUEST SPEAKER--Lurene (Getting Into the Business of Comics) Haines
Creators Forum: a monthly series. Contact Matt Smith for further details
NOVEMBER 7 6 - 8PM — NORTHAMPTON FILM FESTIVAL OPENING RECEPTION
Call Northampton Film Associates at (413) 586-3471
NOVEMBER 8 SIGNING 1 - 4PM; RECEPTION 6PM — HEAVY METAL EXHIBIT RECEPTION & CREATOR SIGNING SINGINGS
Confirmed appearances by: Stephen R. Bissette, Mark Bodé, Dave Dorman, Kevin Eastman, Scott Hampton, Jeff Jones, Joe Kubert, Jon. J. Muth, George Pratt, Bill Sienkiewicz, Dave Sim, Rick Veitch and Berni Wrightson.
Words & Pictures Museum of Fine Sequential Art
140 Main St. Northampton, MA 01060
413-586-8545 • 413-586-9855 (fax)
www.wordsandpictures.org
OPEN
NOON - 5PM TUESDAY - THURSDAY
NOON - 8PM FRIDAY
10AM - 8PM SATURDAY
NOON - 5PM SUNDAY
CLOSED MONDAY

FAMOUS FOR 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
I always get Fish n' Chips at Pete's
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA YEAR 'ROUND http://www.javanet/~mrburger/

Goten in Sunderland
We are open Tuesday - Sunday
Tues., Weds., Thurs., Fri., and Sat. 5 till close
Sunday 2 till close
Excellence in Japanese Cuisine
OF JAPAN
COOKING AT YOUR TABLE
TWO DINNERS FOR $ 18 SHRIMP AND STEAK COMBINATION
TWO DINNERS FOR $ 18 SHRIMP AND SCALLOP COMBINATION
TWO DINNERS FOR $ 15 STEAK AND CHICKEN COMBINATION
SPECIALS SERVED UNTIL 8:00 TUES-FRI & SUN
All Dinners include salad, vegetable noodle, soup, rice tea & ice cream
Function Room available for your party
Casual dress • Full Bar • Exotic Specials • Take the Sunderland Bus from campus- get dropped off at our front door
Please call for reservations today!! (413) 665 3028 Rt. 116 Sunderland

A NEW CHAPTER BEGINS
Umass Student's Hindu Association
Presents
"PEHLI RAAT"
A Reception to Welcome you to our Family
Featuring
An Entertainment Show and Dinner
Admission is Free. Dinner is $5.00
Saturday Sept. 20 at 5:30pm
At the Campus Center Auditorium, UMass
Sponsored by :India House, Starbucks, Daily Collegian & Superior Pizza
For more info call 546-1511 or e-mail hindu@stuaf.umass.edu

■ men's soccer

continued from page 10

Poole has been the main player in the net for B.U., knotting 11 saves, and with a save percentage of .688.

UMass head coach Sam Koch will look for junior keeper Jeff Jablonski, last year's Atlantic 10 goal-keeping leader, to continue the stellar play he has been having, for newcomers Lilburn and Gavin Hewitt to continue with their remarkable adjustment to the team, and of course for his one-two punch of Castma and Butler to knock the Terriers down.

Men's Soccer
Massachusetts vs. Boston University
Saturday, 2p.m.

Minutewomen to host Buffaloes

By Kathleen Ralls
Collegian Staff

Mix it up. Make the segments short and long. Come up with a new style. Up and coming.

It kind of sounds like the jacket for the Spice Girls CD. But it's not.

They are the words and wisdom coming from the Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy in preparation for their game against Colorado on Saturday at Totman Field at noon.

Pacing themselves with an impressive 5-0 record, the Minutewomen are looking to take on the Buffalo, who stand at 2-4, in a showdown of youth and cross-country rivalry.

UMass has outscored their opponents 22-1, with junior Sophie Lecot, freshman Kara Green, and sophomore Emma Kurowski all finding the back of the net. The defense has supplied the near impenetrable wall of senior tri-captain Danielle Dion in the goal, junior sweeper Amanda Thompson, senior Amy Burrill and senior tri-captain Erica Iverson. But Rudy still expects more from his squad.

"We play segments that are either all short or all long," Rudy said. "We'd like to mix it up a little."

Colorado has displayed early signs of trouble while losing to Arizona St., Florida, Nebraska and Oklahoma St. But they defeated Iowa St. 2–1, in overtime and Oklahoma, 2–1, previously this week.

"They are a younger side but they are at a school which can draw people," Rudy said. "They are on their way to becoming a perennial Top 20 team."

For now, the Buffalo have to deal with a lack of scoring punch on their only trip to the Northeast this season. Donna Holyman and Melissa Carmell lead the team with four points each, as their goal total in six games is only six. A bright spot could be goalie Sloane Cox of Canada, who shut out the Minutewomen when she played for Hartford in 1995.

"On paper they have a nice, young team," Rudy said. "Kelly Kaitanklan is a great player and Laura Kulmann is a solid midfielder."

What will spice up this meeting is Colorado coach Austin Daniels. Once the coach at the University of Hartford, he is heeded as a creative coach with inside knowledge of his former rival coach Rudy and UMass. Besides his notoriety, Daniels also carried a few players from Hartford like Cox and Kulmann.

"He is always comig up with new ways [to beat opponents]," Rudy said. "It will be a very tight, close, hard-fought game."

Women's Soccer
Massachusetts vs. Colorado
Saturday, Noon

UM returns home to A–10 this weekend

By Jamie Jee
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts volleyball team will be looking to post their first conference wins of the season this weekend when they face Dayton and Xavier in the Curry Hicks Cage tonight and tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

The Minutewomen are coming off a 2–1 performance at the Penn State Classic last weekend, with their only loss coming at the hands of the nation's No. 1–ranked Nittany Lions. According to UMass coach Bonnie Kenny, her team will look to play tough, and grab a couple of wins before their Atlantic 10 Conference road play next weekend.

Dayton is coming in with a 3–4 record on the season, winning their last game against Morehead State, with the Flyers being picked to finish second in the A–10 this year. UMass will have to contend with senior Zhaohui Ma and Ou Huang, both from Beijing, China. Ma was named to the NIU All–Tournament and IU All–Tournament Teams, and leads the Flyers with 145 kills and 97 digs.

UMass will also have to contend with senior captain Sheila Kreim, UD's leading blocker and floor leader, with the team leading the A–10 in assists, and are second in kills. The Flyers are coached by Pete Hoyer, who comes in with a .606 winning percentage, second best all–time at Dayton.

Dayton will be hosting this year's Atlantic 10 volleyball championship this season, with the top four teams in the conference slamming it out on November 28–29.

UMass will face the Xavier Musketeers tomorrow, and Xavier is coming off their own 2–1 performance last weekend, with the loss coming against Miami Amerihost Classic champ, the University of Miami. The Musketeers are led by sophomore outside hitter Beth Osterday, and sophomore middle blocker Jenny Janszen. Osterday leads the teams in kills and digs, and both players earned All–Tournament honors.

According to Kenny, everyone on the team will have to play above and beyond expectation in order to get the team over a key hurdle in their run at an A–10 title. Jill Meyers, who has more than held her own this season, and setter Jennifer Drennan will also look to contribute. Meyers has been consistently strong this season, and is coming off of three consecutive All–Tournament selections.

Michelle Paciorek, UMass' all–time leader in blocks (321), needs just two solo blocks this weekend to pass former Minutewoman Rachel Sky in that category, and needs only 14 block assists to pass Dionne Nash's school mark of 263.

Coach Kenny will stress good ball movement, so UMass can gain enough opportunities on offense and digs on defense to keep the ball in play for the Minutewomen.

Volleyball
Massachusetts vs. Dayton & Xavier
Tonight and Saturday

Cross Country races up to Vt.

■ Women try to heal wounded

By Jim Eltringham
Collegian Correspondent

Tomorrow, the Massachusetts women's cross country team will venture into Vermont's green mountains to take on Boston University and Maine. Although the two-time defending Atlantic 10 Champions might be going in on a bit of a down note, having finished second in their season opener, the Minutewomen should be right on track.

When discussing the women's cross country program, the word "dynasty" is only a guarded whisper, because while UMass has won four of the last six A–10 titles, this year's team has some lingering questions. However, last Sunday's tri–meet, against BU and Dartmouth, gave UMass reason for optimism.

Christy Martin and Rebeca Donoghue were both causes for preseason concern due to injuries, but last week they were UMass's top two finishers; Martin came in sixth with a time of 20:30. Donoghue finished eighth at 20:35. Especially encouraging was Donoghue's performance. Last year she became the first Minutewoman to run at the NCAA Championship and continues to be the team's cornerstone, despite the bursitis in her heel which has bothered her since last spring.

Overall, four of the top ten finishers wore Minutewoman maroon. Senior Katie Greenia's 20:39 garnered her ninth place, and junior Tracy Meager was 10th with a time 20:49. Melissa Henderson, a freshman, ran the course in 21:06, good enough for 13th.

While winning is always the goal, the focus will be on healing the wounded. Consider the words of coach Julie LaFreniere, who has anticipated the impact of injuries on her squad in the early going, "With our situation as it is, we are going to use September and October to train through meets so we can prepare for the real goal in November of Atlantic 10's and the NCAA qualifier."

Women's XC
Massachusetts @ Vermont
Saturday

■ Young men's XC growing

By Scott Hamill
Collegian Correspondent

After splitting their first meet, the Massachusetts men's cross country team looks for a strong showing tomorrow against Boston University and Maine in Vermont starting at noon.

Last Saturday at Northeastern, senior Ryan Carrera led UMass, finishing fifth overall, in 25:37. Sophomore Peter Gleason was right behind Carrera, sixth in 25:52. Also scoring for the Minutemen were freshman Brendan Sullivan, ninth, sophomores Sean Murphy, 17th, and Kevin Somers, 18th.

Carrera is the only returning member from last year's varsity squad, which is a concern for coach Ken O'Brien.

"Ryan had a great season last year, he moved himself up to the second best or best distance runner on the team," O'Brien said. "I am excited about his potential this year. The rest of the kids have run in their share of meets, but they have not been responsible for scoring positions during competition."

O'Brien is excited about Sullivan, a freshmen from New York, who is stepping up early as a key member of the Minutemen's top seven.

"Brendan has the credentials and should step in right away. Despite his lack of experience at the college level, his ability will override the experience," O'Brien said.

With two tri–meets early in the season, O'Brien is building up his inexperienced group for the larger meets down the road.

"We must approach the first month as a time when we see where we stand and see how they adjust. There is enough talent on this team that if they can mentally learn their lessons, that we can have a good second half of the season," O'Brien said.

Men's XC
Massachusetts @ Vermont
Saturday

■ football

continued from page 10

the Maine rout.

Another concern is turnovers. Against Maine, UMass turned the ball over five times — four interceptions, one fumble. James Madison has only turned the ball over once in two games.

The Dukes are coming off a big 32–27 victory over East Tennessee State. After falling to Ball State, 24–6, in the first week of the season, the win against ETSU has JMU on track.

The main Duke to watch out for is freshman tailback Delvin Joyce. He set a stadium record with 322 all–purpose yards against the Buccaneers. For his efforts, Joyce was named Atlantic 10 Offensive Player and Rookie of the Week.

Greg Maddox, JMU's sophomore quarterback was named College Insider's Division I–AA offensive player of the week after completing 12–of–23 passes for 269 yards against the Bucs.

Material from yesterday's Boston Globe was used in this article.

■ luke

continued from page 10

Sheffield money."

Sheffield just hit his 20th home run this week.

But most importantly, he's a credit to the organization. Mo won the MVP in 1995 not because he had the best numbers, but because he carried the team on his back in the dog days of a heated pennant race. He's the best hitter to dawn the piping of the Olde Town Team since Yaz.

But Duquette wants it done his way. He wants to win a championship with the likes of Brian Rose, Carl Pavano. Nomar and Michael Coleman.

If Mo wants out, screw him, Danny says. I'll make my own team.

But what happens when they start winning, and Danny's little projects become high–priced free agents? Whose to say he won't low–ball them?

He thinks he's the savior of the team — a modern–day Branch Rickey who will build a contender on the field and at the turnstiles. But Danny Boy forgot one essential truth in his quest to build the Sox into a corporately–sound pennant contender.

It's the players, stupid.

Luke Meredith is a Collegian columnist.

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

offensive charge that couldn't find the back of the Yale cage.

Minutewoman Notes: Old Dominion received the No. 1 ranking in Tuesday's NCAA Division I poll... UNC, Maryland, James Madison and Virginia claim the No. 2 through No. 5 spots... Northeastern assistant coach Patti Bossio was a teammate of current Minutewoman head coach Patty Shea in Shea's freshman campaign in 1980.

8
Friday nites LIVE!
•Live Music.
•Live Entertainment.
•Live Raffles.
•Live Giveaways.
•Live Shoe and Clothing "Sale Specials".
•Live Fun Friday Nites 5-8pm.
ZAVA downtown Amherst

..COMING SOON... TO CORNER POCKETS EVERYWHERE.. R30 PAGES SEPT. 28, 1997 THE COLLEGIAN POOL HALL OPEN DAILY HE.HE.HE 8
9

Come in and see us!
REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS
109 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526
JBH

La Cazuela
RESTAURANT
The Cuisines of MEXICO and the AMERICAN SOUTHWEST
"Mexican food, like Memphis barbeque and Chicago style pizza, doesn't travel well. Generally speaking, the farther away you get from the source, the worse it is; and in the Northeast, good Mexican food is as rare as fresh lobster in El Paso. La Cazuela is one wonderful exception."
Jane and Michael Stern
Eat Your Way Across the U.S.A.
Dinner Every Night
Downtown Northampton
Across From The Parking Garage
7 OLD SOUTH STREET NORTHAMPTON
413 • 586 • 0400

EARRINGS • INCENSE • DRESSES • SKIRTS • RUGS • JOURNALS • SWEATERS • CARDS • TOYS • RICE BOWLS • GIFTS • SUNGLASSES • WATERFALL • NEW T-SHIRTS • CANDLES • BOOKS • BATH CREAMS
THE MERCANTILE HAS TAPESTRIES!
AND COOL POSTERS!
The Mercantile
NorthHampton 18 Center St. 584-1205
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-1396
Mon-Sat 10-6 Thur & Fri to 9 Sun 12-5

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

TOPLESS!!!

Come to UMass Sororities' "TOPLESS" Carwash and see what it is all about!
WHEN?
Saturday, Sept. 20
WHAT TIME?
12-3pm.
WHERE?
On N. Pleasant St. behind Sigma Alpha Mu (SAMMY)
UMASS PANHELLENIC TOPLESS CARWASH
Just one of the benefits of going Greek...

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sugarloaf Estates Luxury 2 bedroom apartment homes. FREE HEAT AND HOT WATER. State of the art kitchens, designer baths, w/w carpeting, washer and dryer. On PVTA. Call Today. 665-3656

AUTO FOR SALE

Auto For Sale '83 Chevy Caprice Classic. Great shape, low mileage. $1200. Call Robin 253-6348

'84 Jeep CJ7 4x4, hardtop, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1100 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

1989 VW Golf excellent condition. 1 owner, new clutch. 43 mpg highway. $3900/BO. Sunderland 665-8358

1985 Olds A/C, all power, AM/FM. $1500 or B/O. 549-8999

AUTO FOR SALE

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

BMW 733i 1982 blue, beige leather interior, sun roof, automatic. 162,000 miles. Still elegant. $2500. 549-2604

EMPLOYMENT

Maintenance Person Wanted at Hampshire Fitness. $7/hour. 8am-noon. Minimum of 3 mornings. 256-6446

Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communications and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $5.75 per hour with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call (413)587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

The Amherst Boys & Girls Club needs work-study assistants for recreation program. Must be able to work evenings 7-9pm and 1-5pm on Saturday. $5.50 per hour. UMass bus stops in front of Club at 390 Main St. Please call Richard Britt 253-3261

EMPLOYMENT

Needed Immediately Part-Time Veterinary Assistant. Weekday afternoons. Apply in person to: The Cat Hospital, 139C Damon Rd., Northampton, MA.

NOW HIRING!!! Alumni Relations is looking for student help for Homecoming '97. Must be available on Friday, September 26 and Saturday, September 27, $5.50/hour. Stop by Memorial Hall to till out an application. Questions? Call Ann Thompson at 545-2317.

Pinocchio's Now Hiring Delivery drivers. $15 an hour. Car and positive attitude a must. Apply in person. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Fitness Instructor for Women's Only Club in Belchertown. Must be certified. Call Jenn 323-0175

Hairdresser Wanted Afternoons and Saturday. Call Regency Hair Stylist 253-9526

Drivers Wanted Pays $70 to $120 per shift. Car needed. Dominos 256-8911

FOR SALE

1 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Available Oct 1st. $535/month + elec. Call 549-0455 to take over lease.

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Computer 486/66mhz, CD ROM, monitor, software. Must sell. $400/BO. 587-0854

Macintosh Plus with 20mg external hard drive, Mac Image Writer II. Asking $350 or B/O. Call 665-7794.

Himalayan Kittens
C.F.A. Registered
$175.00
(413)634-5789

Refurbished 486 Computer for sale. 16MB RAM, 850 MB HD, 15" monitor, WIN 95. $499. Call ACI at (413)256-1147.

Computer- Macintosh SE30 Excellent condition. $250. Call Diana 256-8155

Technics SA-EX 700 Prologic Receiver w/ Jensen Center Speakers and 2 surround sound speakers. Pioneer 100 Disc Changer. Both 1 year old. 1 year left on CD Changer warranty. All $600 with Fisher 15in. woofer, used as subwoofer. Call 549-5079

CD ROM or P.C. Speed 8X 1 year old. PERFECT CONDITION. $150. 256-8607

Saxophone for sale- Vito/Alto. Good condition. $180. Call 549-1479

FOR SALE

Waterbed $150
Futon bed/couch $100
Both full size
(413)774-5776

Dorm Fridges for sale $30-$50. 665-7991

Laptop Notebook Works good. $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St, Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Two legal books in front of Whitmore. If you can tell me what they are, they're yours. Call 565-5472

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

CHRIS
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
Here's to getting better with age! In our case that sure is true!
Make a wish and tap the keg!
Love,
Jessica
& 89 Crew!

INSTRUCTION

Guiter Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
1-888-908-8898
Call Peter (Toll-Free)

Jazz Piano Teacher
Offering Fall Lessons
Beginner to Advanced
Contact Steven Page at 253-3354

Jazz Guitar Lessons
Lear Theory Improvisation and Technique
Joe 665-0499

LOST

Lost Watch- Ladies Hamilton Watch. Lost on Mt. Toby Fireroad/Trails in mid-July. Roman numerals, black strap. Reward. Su (413)367-2755

Grey Hound Route 9, Hadley area. Reward. 323-8255

MISCELLANEOUS

TAG SALE

Tag Sale Sept. 20, 8-4pm. Amherst High School Football Team Booster Club. Amherst Commons. Furniture, clothes, misc items.

www.movieposter.com
Vintage-Current
(416)391-0133

PERSONALS

Tim P. All to pieces. You amaze me. M

ROOM FOR RENT

1 MONTH FREE RENT Bedroom available that includes free heat and hot water. Call 549-7105

Room for rent in private home. 1 mile to UMass. Furnished kitchen privileges. Laundry, parking, quiet, friendly. $335/month. Barbara 549-4853

ROOMMATE WANTED

Seeking Grad Student or Professional to share a large modern Northampton apt. Great location. Two bedroom, two bath. $560+. 584-2247

Female and Male Grad Students seek female Grad Student for share in large, sunny, modern post and beam house in Wendel, with hot tub and deck on wooded acreage. $200 per month inclusive, but worth much more. Must see. About 20 minutes from UMass with no stoplights. (508)544-2688

Looking for 1 or 2 people to share huge room in Puffton with walk-in closet and bathroom. 549-7203

Single Room $230/month utilities included in 8 room house, 549-8696

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

SERVICES

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact The Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Experienced Seemstress Mending, tailoring, alterations, dressmaking, clothing design. Call Chrysal 253-7573
Spring Break "Take 2" hir-

TRAVEL

ing reps. Sell 15. Take 2 free. Hottest destinations! Free parties, eats, drinks. Sunsplash 1-800-426-7710. www.sunsplashtours.com
Looking for TI-85 Graphing

WANTED

Calculator Call Kelsey @ 549-9462, anytime get your money's worth...

CLASSIFIEDS

Feel lost in this big University? Become a part of a small community

Tri Sigma invites all University women to get to know what we're all about... sisterhood, leadership opportunities, and a place to belong

mon. Sept. 22 thes. Sept. 23 weds. Sept. 24

contact Tara for more info and times @ 546-1623

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals ad a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day
All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00
min./day

NO REFUNDS
Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES
ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19

Meeting — Male survivors of abuse and trauma peer support group. Free, facilitated drop–in group for male survivors, from 7–8:30 p.m. at the Men's Resource Center, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst. This is a closed group for male survivors only.

Service — Kesher (reform) Shabbat Service. 6 p.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 20

Comedy — There will be a free improv comedy show at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 163.

Service — Morning service. 10 a.m. at the Hillel House. All are welcome.

Meeting — Yiddish Club Meeting and National Yiddish Book Center Trip. Brunch at the Hillel House at 11:30 a.m. and Book Center Trip at noon. Come and learn about Yiddish language, culture, and experience.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 21

Meeting — Amherst Men's General Support Group 7–9 p.m. Free, facilitated drop–in group for men. Everyone welcome. Men's Resource Center, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst.

Service — The United Christian Foundation campus ministry invites all students to worship at North Congregational Church, on the corner of Pine and North Pleasant Streets in North Amherst, at 10 a.m. All are welcome.

NOTICES

Bike registration — Prevent theft by registering your bicycle from 10 a.m.–2 p.m. at the Student Union circle.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Student government — Nominations papers for the Undergraduate Student Senate will be made available in the Student Government Association office, located in the Student Union, room 420. Nominations close today at 5 p.m. If there are any questions, please contact Jodi Bailey at 545–0342.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

THE COLLEGIAN'S RSO PAGES WILL RUN NEXT MONDAY, SEPT. 23

BIG ORGANIZATIONS, BIG PEOPLE, BIG DEAL? YOU BET! OH YEAH, BIG MONDAY. BIG FOOTBALL, ON BIG TV'S. BIG PEOPLE. BIG CAMPUS. BIG PRINT.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
ALWAYS:
$1 Bud Light Grafts
WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
253-4040

HSCN — Housing Services Cable Network

2	HSCN	Bulletin Board
3	CBS/3	Hartford
4	CBS/4	Boston
5	ABC/5	Boston
6	PBS/57	Springfield
7	HSCN	Movie Ch.
8	UPN/20	Hartford
9	Weather Channel
10	NBC/30	New Britain
11	Fox/61	Hartford
12	PBS/24	Hartford
13	WOCH & HSCN
14	International
14	UMass Academic TV
17	HSCN Programming
18	TV–19
20	ABC/40	Springfield
22	NBC/22	Springfield
23	CNN
24	CNN SI
25	Headline News
26	UCTV
27	TBS
28	BET
29	TV Land
30	Univision
31	Comedy Central
32	Cartoon
33	Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL
41 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink:
Vodka & Tonic

FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 19, 1997

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	62	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Wks.	Wall St. Week	Connecticut Journal		McLaughlin	Religion	Nova "Cat to the Heart" (R)
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	Family Matters	Meego	Gregory Hines	Step by Step	Nash Bridges "Lost and Found"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Family Matters	Meego	Gregory Hines	Step by Step	Nash Bridges "Lost and Found"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Gol	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	20/20		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	"The Manhattan Project" (1986, Drama) John Lithgow				News		Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	All-Star TV Censored Bloopers		Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Passion" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	20	Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	"Footloose" (1984, Drama) Kevin Bacon, Lori Singer				News		Vibe
WVIT	30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	All-Star TV Censored Bloopers		Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Passion" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Home Imp.	Simpsons	Seinfeld	Frasier	Visitor "Pilot"		Millennium		News		Seinfeld	Deep Space 9
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	All-Star TV Censored Bloopers		Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Passion" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Features	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We Are In	Follow Money	Morning Report		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	Sabrina-Witch	Boy-World	20/20		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Real TV	Mad Abe. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	"The Big Easy" (1986, Drama) Dennis Quaid, Ellen Barkin				News		M*A*S*H	Cheers
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Major League Baseball	Montreal Expos at Atlanta Braves. (Live)						"Dragnet" (1987, Comedy)	Jan Aykroyd,
ARE	63	Quincy "Rocking Patriot"		Law & Order		Biography: Sidney Poitier		America's Castles (R)		Grand Tour		Law & Order "Purple Heart"
CNN	10	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden Proof	Larry King Live		World Today		Sports Illus.	Moneyline
COM	66	Comic Relief	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	A-List (R)	Mike MacDonald: Happy			"28 Smokin'" (1983) Tommy Chong,		South Park (R)	South Park (R)
DISC	64	Movie Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings "The MG Story" (R)		Wild Discovery		News		World Wonder "Italians" (R)
ESPN	67	Up Close	Sportscenter		Bodybuilding	Strongest Men	Superbouts (R)			Billiards	Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	69	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait: Shermeri		Dey With... (R)		"Body of Evidence" (1988, Suspense) Margot Kidder				Homicide: Life on the Street
MTV	70	MTV Live	Viewers	Week in Rock	All Films-MTV	Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the '19 Spot		Beavis-Butt.	Ass. 39" (R)	Osbofilia, MTV	Loveline (R)
NICK	68	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Kablam! (R)	Happy Days	Happy Days	Bewitched	Love Lucy	Odd Couple	Yast	Newhart
SCIFI	65	Odyssey	Masters	Night Stalker "The Youth Killer"		"Burned at the Stake" (1981, Horror) Susan Swift, Albert Salmi,				Friday the 13th: The Series		Night Stalker "The Youth Killer"
TLC	72	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Quest (R)	Passwords! (R)	Murder in Mississippi		Future Fantastic "Immortals"		Quest (R)	Passwords! (R)
TNT	60	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark: Superman		"Police Academy 2: Their First Assignment" (1985, Comedy)				"Toy Soldiers" (1991, Drama) Sean Astin, Wil Wheaton,
USA	59	Renegade "Bad Seed" (R)		Highlander: The Series (R)		Welker, Texas Ranger		"Rambo III" (1988, Adventure) Sylvester Stallone.				"Miracle Beach" (1992)
HBO	53	(5:30) "Space Jam" (1996)		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)		"Chain Reaction" (1996, Adventure) Keanu Reeves. PG-13				Boxing (In Stereo)		"The Last Boy Scout" (1991, Drama) Bruce Willis. R
MAX	51	"The Phantom" (1996, Adventure) Billy Zane. PG						"Stan" (1996, Science Fiction) Mario Van Peebles. PG-17				"The Last Boy Scout" (1991, Drama) Bruce Willis. R
SHOW	55	(5:50) "Awakenings" (1990) Robin Williams. PG-13						"The Spitfire Grill" (1996, Drama) Alison Elliott. PG-13		Stargate SG-1 "Brief Candle"		Hangar (R)	"Fargo" (1996)

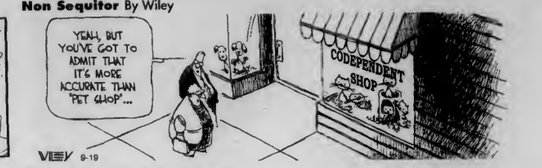
Bruno By C. Baldwin

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

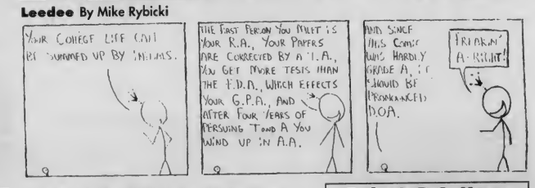
8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Here in My Head By Bree Goldstein



Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams



Non Sequitor By Wiley

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Leedee By Mike Rybicki

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You will be attracted to an unusual form of physical activity today. You may find it impossible to explain what is happening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You may prove a slow starter today, but once you get going you're likely to outperform even those who are known for getting things done quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — It is important that you talk about how you feel today, and discuss with those around you ways to improve interaction and cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You are after something more fulfilling than routine endeavors. Throughout the day, explore options presented by those around you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — What you do on your own today is likely to have great value, and you must work hard to advertise your accomplishments so they are acknowledged.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Indecision has the potential to ruin your whole day. Even acting prematurely and making an error as a result is preferable at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You can enjoy far more relaxing activities today than expected, thanks to someone who allows you to follow a rather unconventional course.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You will have much to remember today, not only for the sake of nostalgia, but also because there are so many details to keep track of now.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You are going to have to make up your mind early today if you expect to proceed according to schedule. Two plans compete for your favor.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Today, you are likely encounter someone who knows how to take care of you better than you do! Consider deepening this relationship.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You will feel a strong attraction to someone who does not plan to grant you any leeway at this time. Any relationship may prove a struggle.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — If it's equality you're after, you may be disappointed today. Still, you can be satisfied with being an underling, provided you have some authority.

Quote of the Day

"Milk is for babies, when you grow up you have to drink beer!"

-Arnold Schwarzenegger 1975

Close to Home By John McPherson

"It's the latest version of the stress test. We'll monitor your heart rate as you try to feed these seven hungry babies with just one bottle."

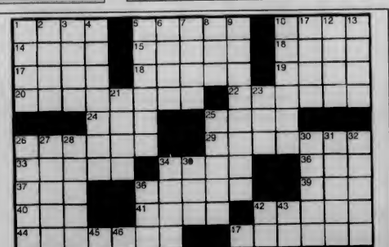
Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Pizza
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Spaghetti, Sausage and Sauce
Tofu Fajita
Quarter pound Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Sloppy Joe
Spaghetti/Tomato Sauce
Vegan Sloppy Joe and Grilled Cheese
DINNER
Chicken Fajita; 3 Cheese Macaroni
Tri-Bean Casserole
Pastabilities
Italian Sweet Sausage/Grinder Roll

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Handcut Cod Sub
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Baked Fish with Herb Stuffing

Berkshire
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Sloppy Joe
Spaghetti/Tomato Sauce
Vegan Sloppy Joe and Grilled Cheese
DINNER
Chicken Fajita and Duchess Meat Pie
Tri Bean Casserole
Pastabilities
Italian Sweet Sausage/Grinder Roll



ACROSS
1 Lucre
5 Marry in haste
10 Lickety-split
14 Vile
15 Part of a jacket
16 Entr'— intermission
17 Fictional captain
18 Reflection
19 Easier said — done
20 Describing some storms
22 Patron
24 Luau fare
25 Molecule part
26 Rise
29 Japanese grill
33 Necklace parts
34 Toast topper
36 Actor Chaney
37 Hockey great
38 Atlantic, e.g.
39 Roe
40 Pair
41 Libya's neighbor
42 Weighed down
44 Hug
47 Mules
48 China/Russia divider
49 Hearing organ
50 Short snooze
53 Pasta cheese
58 Psyche parts
59 Solo
61 A Chaplin
62 Letterman's rival
63 Missays
64 Downtown Chicago
65 Swarm (with)
66 Off-industry city
67 Sicilian volcano

DOWN
1 Confined
2 "If — I Should Leave You"
3 VIP's car
4 Failed
5 Call forth
6 Buddhist monk
7 Fiery stone
8 Wooden pin
9 November event
10 Daughter of Mohammed
11 Feel sore
12 Ollie's partner
13 Backpacker's need
21 Charged particles
23 Tennis shot
25 In the lead
26 Residence
27 Antitoxin
28 Chocolate substitute
30 Lumps of clay
31 Hut
32 Silly
34 Yellow pigment
35 Meadow
38 Junk-mail addressee
42 Garden soil
43 Halo
45 Mel Gibson movie
46 MDs' group
47 Mother —
50 Ancient inhabitant of Britain
51 "The African Queen" scriptwriter
52 Dial —
53 Natatorium
54 Beattie and Reinking
55 Carbon deposit
56 Soon
57 California wine valley
60 Comedian Costello

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

W	O	V	E		L	I	L	A	C		R	A	P	T
I	D	O	L		E	G	I	C	A		L	U	L	A
N	O	T	E		N	A	D	E	R		P	L	A	N
G	R	E	M	L	I	N		S	E	A	R	I	N	G
			E	Y	E			E	R	E
E	M	I	N	E	N	T		F	R	I	S	B	E	E
L	O	S	T		H	I	L	L	S		H	A	R	M
V	O	M			D	I	I	T			N	A	B
I	S	A	K		L	A	T	I	N		E	A	S	E
S	E	N	E	G	A	L		D	A	P	P	L	E	D
			R	I	B			T	I	S
M	A	N	A	G	E	R		C	U	T	I	C	L	E
A	R	I	A		L	A	G	E	R		L	O	A	N
Y	E	T	I		E	A	O	D	E		O	M	N	I
A	S	S	N		D	A	I	T	E	S		N	E	E	D

9-19-97 © 1997 United Feature Syndicate

SPORTS

One time for the English football mind

Here we go, here we go, here we go...

Like a distant cheer that inches into your cranial cavity from the collective gobs of a ravenously drunken crowd, once again it's time to talk football — real football, that is.

Whether its the NFL, Div. I-A, or the Div. I-FF that our Minutemen stake claim to, all those unsanctimonious displays of the real game pale in comparison to the one actually played with your feet; more specifically, England and the FA Carling Premiership.

Jorma Kansanen goes

It sounds royal and magnificent, just say it one time...

The FA Carling Premiership.

It has been a very interesting start to the Premiership season, with bodies colliding more than in a mosh pit at a Rage Against The Machine show.

Liverpool's Robbie "Wunderkind" Fowler has been absent from the top goal scorers list after a stellar 32–goal campaign last season due to a knee injury, and former Manchester United star Paul Ince has returned to the Moothah–land from Inter Milan of Serie A — but to don the colors of the scousahs (Liverpool, for all you non–believers).

Anyways, another young phenom has hit the pitch at Anfield, and 17–year–old Michael Owen has begun to make the Liver–pudlians forget about Fowler. But, not so fast...

Liverpool has started slow out of the gate, and some of my insiders here in the Valley rumor that coach Ray Evans is gone by the New Year if things don't turn around faster than a cabbie in the bad part of Merseyside.

But I can't be bothered with the scousahs!

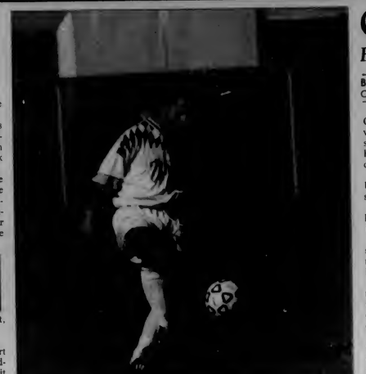
Let's talk about the real team of the English Northwest — Manchester United. In an age of huge salaries (believe me, overspending is not indigenous to the good ole U.S.A.), the Reds have kept their salaries manageable, while also putting on the Old Trafford pitch the best the Anglo–Irish soccer world has to offer.

Teams such as Arsenal and Chelsea have heavily dipped into the burgeoning international pool of talent, with the Gunners picking up Dutch international Marc Overmars from Ajax of Amsterdam over the summer for £7 million (yeah, that sounds as big as it is, about $10 million dollars), joining fellow clog–head Dennis Bergkamp in Highbury.

Since Ruud Gullit's takeover at Chelsea, the former Agent Orange midfielder has signed a few Italian internationals from past and present, like Gianluca Vialli (who is in the top five in goal scoring while mainly coming off the bench) and Gianfranco Zola. All quality players, but you look at the table, and Man–United is still at the top.

Coach Alex Ferguson might have the personality of a cold, wet noodle (and I still can't understand a bloody word he says), but he has pieced together a side reeling after the early retirement of Eric "Ooh Aah" Cantona at the end of last season's second straight championship run.

The Reds have allowed only one goal past goalkeeper Peter Schmeichel this season, while scoring 10 goals, and stand at a 5–0–1 record going into this weekend. In their first round Group B Champions League match against FC Kosice in Slovakia on Wednesday night, Man–United blew past Kosice 3–0, using a Terry Venables'–esque 4–3–2–1 formation. They now face Juventus on Oct. 1 in a rematch of last season's Champions League thriller at Old Trafford.



The roll the Reds are on is amazing considering the departure of Cantona, and the fact the best club in the Moothah–land is doing it with their own players. Only the Czech Republics' Karel Poborsky and Holland's Schmeichel are making an impact from the continent.

Irish international Roy Keane can be considered one of the best central midfielders in the European game, and David Beckham (who gets more shags than a bedroom carpet), Paul Scholes and the Neville Brothers, Gary and Phil, are young stars for the English national team.

Even though Welshman Ryan Giggs has been hampered by injuries, Ireland's Denis Irwin has picked up the slack on the left flank, picking, up a goal in the 3–0 win over FC Kosice. And, the only major signing for Man–United was a home boy as well — English international Teddy Sheringham from the Tottenham Hotspurs for £3.5 million.

Combined with the coaching of Ferguson, a Scotsman, and the Reds are the jewel of the Anglo Isles. All this and a bag of crisps... I say. But, you better make them salt and vinegar, with a pint of Boddington's on the side, please.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

JHANG YO / COLLEGIAN

Junior Carmelo Garcia and the Minutemen beat No. 22 New Hampshire 2–1 Wednesday night to remain undefeated.

Castma suddenly defeats UNH

Butler, Castma duo will be needed as they face BU tomorrow

By Jackie Laroux
Collegian Staff

Call them the perfect pair. Call them the dynamic duo. Call them a match made in heaven. Call them what you will, because however you put it, the combination of senior midfielder Joenal Castma and senior forward Mike Butler is a winning one for the Massachusetts men's soccer team.

Last Saturday, Butler scored the game–winning goal for UMass in a match against Maine that went into sudden–death overtime.

Butler brought the Black Bears to their knees and the home crowd to its feet when he hit the 12–yarder with just six seconds to go.

On Wednesday Castma performed the same magic when he nailed the game–winning goal in a match against No. 22 New Hampshire.

With the score tied at one goal apiece, Castma wasted no time in pulling out his bag of tricks. Merely 10 seconds into sudden–death overtime he scored on UNH goal keeper Mitch Osman. The score kept the Minutemen undefeated, pushing their record to 3–0–1.

The Wildcats had the lead for the first half of the game, when Jeff Rothlein scored at the 20:36 mark. Finally at 84:17 freshman phenom Seth Lilburn tallied a goal at the short side to tie things up and send the game into overtime.

UMass was outshot by UNH 7–5, but took 11 corner kicks to the Wildcats' six. Minuteman keeper Todd Fowler had four saves on the day, as did his counterpart Osman.

Castma's goal was his first of the season. He had been unable to produce much of anything in UMass' previous games. It looks as if the Minutemen will have their old one– two punch of Castma and Butler back in full swing.

The team will need that one–two punch along with a solid effort from everyone else on the team when they take on the Terriers of Boston University in a double–header soccer performance tomorrow at Totman Field.

After the UMass women's soccer squad plays Colorado, the men take on the Terriers at 2:00 p.m. No. 9–ranked B.U., a member of America East, will be an imposing opponent for the Minutemen.

The Terriers are coming into Saturday's game with a 4–1–1 overall record, and a 1–0–0 conference record. They are returning from a disappointing trip to San Diego, where they played in the Diadora Cup. B.U. fell 3–0 to Cal–State Fullerton, and took a 1–1 overtime tie against San Diego.

Nevertheless, they are a daunting team and will look to change their luck against UMass.

The Terriers have ten returning starters this year. Head coach Neil Roberts has a 160–51–25 career record at B.U., and finished last season at 10–7–1. This year they have been led by Terriers Sigurd Falen and Nick Bone, each with three goals apiece.

Boston University has outscored its opponents 12–8 this season, and put up 76 shots to opponents' 69. Keith

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 7

Massachusetts	2
Northeastern	1

UMass to Duke it out at JMU

Minutemen face big challenge to avoid Hodges' worst start

By Jonathan M. Place
Collegian Staff

If we travel through time and take a look at the history between the football teams of Massachusetts (0–2) and James Madison University (1–1), things are cooking up for this weekend. Five times these two schools have clashed, and the Minutemen hold a 3–2 lead over the Dukes.

Neither school has won two games in a row against each other, alternating wins since 1986 — UMass took the last meeting in 1993, so it's almost as if it's JMU's turn.

If the Minutemen don't win on Saturday, it will be the worst start in the Mike Hodges era and the first 0–5 start for UMass since 1987.

Tomorrow, UMass travels down to Harrisonburg, Va. to kick off the first game against the Dukes in four years. The game is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. at Bridgeforth Stadium.

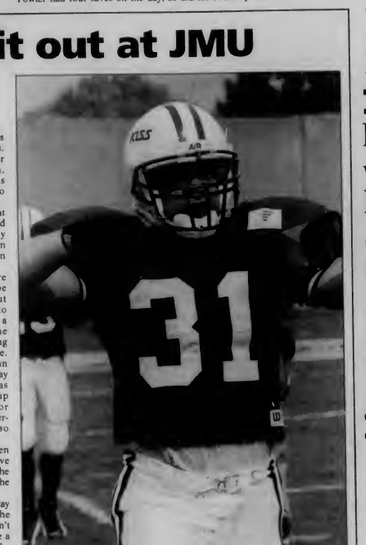
The last time these two teams met — 1993 in Amherst — UMass won, 33–10. That season was the last time the Minutemen finished more than one game over .500 (8–3).

The only time the Minutemen have ever traveled down to Harrisonburg and won was during the first–ever meeting in 1986, when UMass won a nail–biter, 16–14.

Marcel Shipp, the freshman tailback who has been the brightest spot for UMass this season, is expected to start against the Dukes. He has rushed for 78 yards thus far with a 20–yard touchdown run. However, the speedy tailback has only carried the ball 11 times in two games.

Jamie Holston will again start at the fullback position for the injured Matt Jordan, who will be slowly inserted into the running rotation and may platoon with Holston tomorrow night.

The big question is sophomore quarterback Jeff Smith. It may be too early to put Smith back into the mix after a concussion he sustained during the Maine game. True freshman Ed Campbell may see time as Smith's back–up since senior back–up quarterback Anthony Catterton is also injured.



Smith's practice time has been limited and a banged up offensive line may not be able to give him the protection he needs to stay in for the whole game against the Dukes.

"He still had a headache Monday morning but was all right by the afternoon," Hodges said. "He didn't practice Monday because we have a rule here that says players must be symptom–free for 24 hours before they can practice."

The anemic UMass offense has only scored two touchdowns all season. Kerry Taylor caught the only receiving touchdown in the loss to Richmond, while Shipp ran in for UMass' only rushing touchdown in

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 7

Football
Massachusetts @ James Madison
Saturday, 6 p.m.

JHANG YO / COLLEGIAN

Matt Jordan will try to give the UMass offense a boost this weekend as the try to post win No. 1 in 1997.

"But the Duquette Sox haven't done anything at the major league level. In fact, they look a lot like the Lou Gorman Sox."

Loss of Mo would be a Dan shame

All of a sudden, Mo Vaughn's being booed in Boston.

The 1995 AL MVP, the man who has been the heart and soul of the Red Sox in the 1990s (a decade that has not been kind to either the Sox or their Fenway faithful) received the Bronx cheer from Red Sox nation Wednesday night after ripping the organization in the Boston Globe for failing to give him a contract extension equal with that of other players of his ability. It has been reported that the Red Sox will get rid of Vaughn unless he takes a "hometown discount" to stay in Boston, but Mo won't back down.

How can anyone blame him?

Luke Meredith

Dan Duquette was brought in a few years back to "modernize" the Red Sox organization — an organization often accused of being a "country club" in the past. And so he did, upgrading the minor league system with quality talent that will supposedly save the Sox.

Someday.

But the Duquette Sox haven't done anything at the major league level. In fact, they look a lot like the Lou Gorman Sox. Inadequate pitching, horrid defense and an offense that hits like a college team but can't compensate for horrible mound work.

But don't blame a lack of talent. The Sox have had players like Jose Canseco, Roger Clemens, John Valentin and Vaughn pass through Fenway in the past few years. And next year, they'll all be gone. Why?

Danny Boy.

I find it hard to see Mo as the bad guy, knowing Duquette's history of low–balling his stars. Danny Boy fired the one manager that the players liked, Kevin Kennedy, because he didn't like him. He reasoned that Clemens was washed–up, and offered him a contract that was so insulting that Clemens to this day just might kick Danny Boy's butt if he met him in a dark alley.

Clemens will win his fourth Cy Young next month.

Jose? You might have hated him, but he produced in his two seasons in Boston. No way do the Sox win the AL East in 1995 without Canseco. Jose left Boston cursing Danny B.

Valentin? Danny went over the manager's head and pushed John V. to second, to make way for Nomar Garciaparra Yeah, it was the right move, but the diplomacy with which Danny handled it has left Johnny V. looking elsewhere for 1998.

That's what it comes down to. Respect for your employees. Anybody in the business sector knows that "contented cows make better milk."

Well, contented Mo's hit more home runs.

Contented Mo's also stay in town. Vaughn has been nothing but a blessing for the Red Sox since he came up, which isn't exactly easy to accomplish in Boston. Vaughn won over fans favor In a city that hasn't always embraced its black athletes. He has also produced on the field, something his .317 average and 33 home runs this season attest to. All he's asking is "Gary

Turn to LUKE, page 7

No. 17 Minutewomen try to tame Huskies

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts field hockey team faces its fourth game in a row on the road tomorrow, when the Minutewomen travel to Boston to take on Northeastern at 1 p.m. at Parsons Field.

The challenge is a stiff one for No. 17 UMass, a team that has dropped its last two games — a 2–1 overtime loss to No. 4 James Madison on Sunday and Wednesday's 3–0 defeat at unranked Yale.

Northeastern, meanwhile, has had a rough start to its post– final four season. Last year, the Huskies defeated the Minutewomen in the opening round of the NCAA tournament, before advancing to the semi–finals, where they lost to eventual champion North Carolina.

Northeastern opened its season with a 1–0 loss to Syracuse, a 3–0 win over William & Mary and a 5–0 beating at the hands of No. 1 Old Dominion.

But the Huskies are not the same team that made a run for the title last year. A damaging graduation crunch left some sizeable holes in the NU line–up. All–America Regina Carl and All–Northeast Region All–Americas Katie West and Jill Haiko are key components from last year's squad are all gone from the roster.

Among the players who do remain, Heidl Benson and Kerri Bettenhauser have the team's only goals. Benson has two to her credit. Jen White has taken charge of getting her teammates the ball, as she has racked up three assists. Holly Holmberg has one.

The Minutewomen did not see any change in their season point totals after Wednesday's game at Yale. Erica Johnston still leads the team in goals and points, with seven and 15, respectively.

Junior Vicky Browne has keyed the team's transition game at center midfield, and has recorded three goals and four assists on the season.

Chris Millbauer and Courtney MacLean have each gotten into the scoring mix as well. Millbauer has collected three goals, while MacLean has a pair.

Wednesday afternoon at Yale, the Minutewomen fell victim to the Bulldogs, 3–0, in UMass' first game on natural grass since November of last year (when UMass played Yale in the Minutewomen's final game at Totman Field).

Bulldog goalie Courtney Lane was a stalwart in the cage, turning back 24 UMass shots.

Erica Johnston fired off 10 shots to lead a UMass

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 7

Field Hockey
Massachusetts @ Northeastern
Saturday

Line of the Day

"See, I told you Texas was a basketball school."

— Texas basketball coach Tom Penders, referring to the football team's 66–3 loss to UCLA on Saturday.

Also Today

- Women's Soccer, hosts Colorado... page 7
- Men's XC, runnin' in the woods... page 7
- Volleyball, serves against Dayton... page 7
- Women's XC, in Vermont too... page 7

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CVII Issue 14 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Monday, September 22, 1997

"Tell me lies"

Fleetwood Mac reunited on the 20th anniversary of their influential album, Rumours, for a concert the Meadows in Hartford. Check inside for our review (see Arts & Living, page 8).

Dukes sneak by UMass

Despite shutting out James Madison in the second half, Khari Samuel and the Massachusetts football team lost to the Dukes 13–10 on Saturday (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Six dead in London after train wreck

LONDON (AP) — Huge cranes maneuvered into position Saturday at Southall station in west London to shift the crushed and mangled cars of a train wreck that killed six people and injured at least 150.

Police teams searched through piles of twisted metal for clues about why a mainline passenger train from western Britain collided with a freight train Friday afternoon.

The site was declared a crime scene, so workers had to wait until officers completed a minute day–light search before the cranes could be used to move the wreckage and free the rail line for weekend traffic.

The driver of the passenger train had been arrested by British Transport Police and questioned about the crash before being released on bail overnight. He remained under investigation for a possible manslaughter charge. Police said the driver, whose identity was not released, had passed an alcohol breath test. Service was suspended until wreckage strewn across the rail line could be cleared. Two mangled passenger cars lay on their sides and a third sat piggyback on freight cars.

NATION

Officer dies in taped shooting

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A police officer was killed, a second wounded and two suspects shot to death in a gunfight outside a tavern early Saturday that was captured on audiotape.

The young officer killed was the first to die in the line of duty in the department's history. The second officer's injuries were not life–threatening.

"This didn't have to happen," Police Chief Larry Paulson said at a Saturday morning news conference as officers wept in the lobby nearby.

The department said later in the day one officer died while undergoing surgery at a hospital. The second officer was listed in stable condition.

Neither the dead nor the wounded were immediately identified, but Paulson said the conflict began when two officers stopped a suspicious vehicle at about 1:20 a.m. One of the officers made the tape.

On the tape, an officer can be heard telling the driver to get out of the car, raise his arms and lift his jacket up. Then there was a yell, "Look out!" and a series of gunshots. Seconds later, someone screams, "Officer down!"

Another voice yells, "Help! Don't shoot us..."

Officers can be heard calling for an ambulance and trying to calm one of the wounded lawmen.

"Where're ya shot, buddy?" one officer asks.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 68 LOW: 46	HIGH: 68 LOW: 48	HIGH: 55 LOW: 39

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 8
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 2
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET
www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Bulger inducted; over $4 million raised

By Tamar Carroll
Collegian Staff

William M. Bulger was formally installed as president of the University of Massachusetts last Thursday, Sept. 18, in a day filled with both ceremony and the most successful fundraising the University system has ever experienced.

At the official installation ceremony, held at 11:30 a.m. at Fanueil Hall, Robert S. Karam, chairman of the Board of Trustees, welcomed the many government and faculty representatives in the audience.

"This is indeed a special day, as we officially honor our leader, a man who has made a lifelong commitment to learning and to building the Commonwealth," Karam said.

After several speeches, including an address in Latin by Jon Westling, the president of Boston University, Karam and Acting Governor Paul Cellucci presented the 63–year–old Bulger with the symbols of office, the President's Medal and the University Mace.

"Your vision is this University's future," Cellucci said to Bulger. "I present to you this medallion, the symbol of the President's Office."

In his inaugural speech, Bulger called for a renewed focus on the Humanities and emphasized the value of education for its own sake.

"I perceive the ideal of the University to be the pursuit of knowledge as an end in itself," Bulger said. "Universities are the fountainhead of the Humanities... the building blocks upon which we must structure the ideal of knowledge."

Bulger said that it is the study of the Humanities which sustains people during the "dark times" in their lives, and that it is the responsibility of the University to instill in its students an appreciation for the Humanities.

"We should strive unremittingly to prepare a student body ever sensitive to the teachings of the Humanities. The Humanities provide the ennobling grace essential to our lives," Bulger said. "We must prepare our students for life, not merely a living."

The induction was followed by a luncheon at the John F. Kennedy Library, attended by Cardinal Bernard Law, the archbishop of Boston, Senate President Thomas F. Birmingham, House Speaker Thomas Finneran and Boston Mayor Thomas M. Menino, among others.

Fundraising gala at Symphony Hall nets $4 million

The day–long celebration was completed with a black–tie dinner reception at Symphony Hall which featured Pulitzer Prize–winning author and historian David McCullough.

McCullogh read an original passage for the occasion, highlighting the long history of public education in the Commonwealth and stressing the importance of continued support for public higher education in the state.

"The teacher is our most important citizen. Who else does more important work?" McCullough asked. "How we spend our money is a very good indication of our society. What do we care about, really? We in Massachusetts have the chance to be an example for the world of great, strong leadership in public education."

Two alumni, Jack Smith and Jack Welch, were recognized at the gala as the first recipients of the President's Medal. The medals are in recognition of the pursuit of excellence and the reflection of the University's high ideals, and will be awarded annually.

"We are awarding the President's Medal for the first time this year," Bulger said. "These two alumni are models of perseverance, competence and the various high ideals of the University. We applaud them for their achievements and express our gratitude to them for their shining example."

TAMAR CARROLL / COLLEGIAN

William M. Bulger celebrates at Symphony Hall after his official induction as president of the UMass system last Thursday.

Smith, the CEO and president of General Motors Corporation, graduated with a bachelor of business administration degree from UMass Amherst in 1960 and sits on the Chancellor's Executive Committee.

Welch, the CEO of General Electric Company, graduated with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering from UMass Amherst in 1957 and is a former chairman of the National Academy of Engineering.

Both men were recently included in Time Magazine's list of the 10 most powerful people in America.

A scholarship fund of $500,000 was also established in each man's name.

The gala itself served as a major fundraiser for the University's scholarship fund. The $10,000–a–table event raised $2.5 million, which will garner an additional $500,000 from the state under the matching funds program in which the Legislature matches a portion of all private donations to the University.

In a surprise announcement during the gala, Board of Trustee member Charles Hoff pledged $1 million for the scholarship fund, bringing the total for the evening to over $4 million for student scholarships.

Bulger thanked the audience mem–

Turn to BULGER page 2

Women of Color hold reception

By Allana E. Todman
Collegian Staff

On September 18, the Women of Color Program held its Fifth Annual Reception. Alexandrina Deschamps, who gave opening remarks, began the reception with a brief explanation of how the Women of Color Program began.

Proposed in 1993, the Women of Color Program was a result of students, faculty and staff who wanted women of color's issues to be addressed.

Deschamps spoke about the power of their voices.

"Power has always been ours and has been denied to us," she said. She urged everyone in the room to use the power that is within each person to lift up themselves, as well as each other.

Saying that without a vision the people will perish, Deschamps pointed to the student choir Voices of Today, as a sign of hope.

Voices of Today stunned the audience as they recited poetry and music, based on personal experience and feeling.

"People don't change things until they feel they can change things... music is important, it nurtures the spirit," Jane Sapp, the director of Voices of Today, said.

Sapp allows the students to use arts to express their vision in their after–school program. With an at–risk group of students between the ages of 11 and 15, she was able to put their words to music.

The influence of women of color voicing their words was the consistent focus throughout the night. Speaker Lita Scott–Crumpt reiterated the idea of women being allies with one another.

Purposely planned, there was a formal open microphone where any student, faculty or staff could make comments or announcements.

Ruth Carey, of the Mather Career Center, voiced her concerns of students using the Career Center for internships and career job placement.

She also spoke of the planned hopes of adding seven new people of color to the staff. Lastly, Carey spoke of the missed opportunities that students of color encounter because of the lack of usage of the Career Center.

Lia Wong, president of the student body, also expressed her views. One comment she made was that the ALANA caucus could have a very strong voice on campus. She also went on to say that besides the caucus,

Turn to WOMEN, page 2

White House fund–raising could receive special probe

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno has taken a first step toward naming a special prosecutor to investigate President Clinton's 1996 fund–raising activities. The president's lawyers insisted Saturday no laws were broken.

The Justice Department opened a 30–day review of Clinton's involvement in campaign money raising irregularities in the last day or two, officials said. The White House was notified on Friday. Reno must now determine whether to launch a more extensive, 90–day investigation that could lead to her requesting the appointment of a special prosecutor.

During this 30–day review, Clinton's attorneys hope to convince the Justice Department there is not enough evidence against him to even begin the 90–day review.

"The Justice Department is reviewing whether allegations that the president illegally solicited campaign contributions on federal property should warrant a preliminary inquiry under the independent counsel act," Justice Department spokesman Myron Marlin said. A similar initial review is already under way in the case of Vice President Al Gore.

"We understand the Department of Justice is in the process of determining whether a preliminary investigation is warranted," said White House attorney Lanny Davis. "We are cooperating and will continue to cooperate with the Department of Justice to ensure

Turn to PROBE, page 2

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

Mother Earth calls to her beloved natives

Robert Angus of Connecticut and S.A.M. Paddlefoot, with the Florida Eastern Band Cherekee of Vermont, await the pow wow celebration dance, partly sponsored by the UMass Native American Association, on Saturday at the Campus Pond.

Money raised for Amherst Typewriter

By Sarah J. Kimmel
Collegian Staff

The window in front of Amherst Typewriter and Computer on Amity Street will be repaired this week, thanks to the help of countless Amherst residents who have given money and support to store owner Robert Green.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, an eyewitness wishing not to be identified reported seeing three white males shatter the front window of Amherst Typewriter. The vandals also smeared feces on the storefront, stole a notebook computer worth $150 and broke a laptop computer worth $400. The estimated cost of damage is over $1000. This money would have had to come out of Green's pocket because his insurance coverage did not begin until the Tuesday after the incident.

The majority of the funding that will go toward the repairs was raised by a bake sale held on Amherst Common on Saturday. Donations from 26 local restaurants and vendors were sold and raffled off to raise $1,179 that will help renovate the store.

This bake sale was the brainchild of two local women, Treb Patane and Ann King heard about the vandalizing of Amherst Typewriter in the Hampshire Gazette and decided to attend a meeting of Not In Our Town (NIOT). NIOT is a group made up of members of the Amherst community who are concerned with the condition of the town of Amherst.

"One part of it (the bake sale) was started by wanting to help Mr. Green," Patane said. "We are concerned that this is the worst season we have seen since the kids have come back. We want to bring the town back to an even keel."

Recently there have been several other vandalism cases in town. Zanna had its window broken by a brick and Donatello's reported that plants have been stolen from outside of the store front.

"There have been stabbings here... I am so concerned that it is from all the parties and alcohol," King said.

The duo planned the fundraiser in a matter of three days. The bake sale was so successful that they ran out of the baked goods in only three hours; however, they did not quit there. The volunteers drove over to Farmer's Market and asked for donations. In half an hour the tables on the Common were covered with farmstand vegetables.

Roughly 10 people worked the tables, some who began at 9 a.m. and stayed through to the end. Riki Hing is one of those people.

"I hope that the town officials and the police will say that they will take a much stronger stance and that they will not tolerate racism," Hing said.

Hing is not the only person calling this a racially motivated offense. However, Green, an African–American, said he is not sure it was a racial incident.

"People today like to play the race card," said Green. "I don't like that. Nobody knows what happened or the motive. It could just be obnoxious people... The witness saw three tall white guys, that fits 50 percent of the local population. Pulling race into it diminishes the main point. People should focus on the crime."

Green emphasized that his color does not determine his feelings.

"This would have bothered me anyway... it's the same impact as a human being."

Green also said that his hope is to forget about the whole incident once the window is repaired.

"I'm tired of the whole thing and I wish it would go away. If the motive was to humiliate me, it worked, but only for a little while," Green said.

Several community members have stopped into Amherst Typewriter to support Green.

"The community itself has been coming by and making personal donations," Green said.

He told a story of an elderly woman who passed by the store on her way to the Amherst Cinema.

"She remembered me from 15 years ago," Green said. "She gave me a dollar, she said she would have given me more, but she wanted to have enough to get into the movie."

These efforts to help have rekindled Green's, and his supporters', faith in humanity.

"The outpouring of the community has been unbelievable," King said.

"This has given me a new confidence in humanity and a new perspective on life," Green said.

Nike, Reebok shoe reps deny sweatshop allegations concerning Asian factories

By Verena Dobnik
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Subcontractors making shoes in China for Nike and Reebok use workers as young as 13 who earn as little as 10 cents an hour toiling up to 17 hours daily in enforced silence, independent observers charge.

The motive of the two American companies is: "Where in the world can we find the cheapest labor — even if it's in the most repressed circumstances?" said Medea Benjamin of Global Exchange, a watchdog group that provided a study of the Chinese factories to The Associated Press.

Nike has used human rights activist Andrew Young to "whitewash" abusive working conditions not only in China, but also in Vietnam and Indonesia, said Benjamin, co-director of the private, nonprofit San Francisco-based group, which has an office in New York.

Young insists he saw no sweatshop conditions when he toured plants making Nike shoes. Nike said the report was erroneous and Reebok said it monitors work records at the plants making its shoes.

Nike, the world's No. 1 athletic shoe manufacturer, has been accused by human rights groups of running overseas sweatshops. Clothing makers also have come under fire for conditions at factories elsewhere in Asia.

Global Exchange is acting for two human rights organizations in Hong Kong that interviewed scores of workers from four major sports shoe subcontractors in China's southern Pearl River Delta. The four factories, which employ at least 80,000 people, were monitored in 1995 and again in June and July 1997.

The subcontractors at all four sites are violating not only "the most basic tenets of Chinese labor law, they're also flagrantly violating (Nike's and Reebok's) own codes of conduct," which the companies formulated to regulate their practices overseas, Chan Ka Wai, assistant director of Hong Kong Christian Industrial Committee, said Saturday.

The 30-year-old private, nonprofit group wrote the report with Hong Kong-based Asia Monitor Resource Centre. The two groups are funded by church groups and private donations worldwide, Chan said. At the Wellco plant in Dongguan County near Hong Kong, owned by a Korean subcontractor for Nike, people as young as 13 reportedly were doing sewing and cutting work, workers said.

Chinese labor law says no child under 16 may work in a factory, the report said.

Researchers said talking during work was not allowed, with violators fined $1.20 to $3.60, according to the report.

It said that at the nearby Taiwanese-owned Nority plant that makes Reebok shoes, workers were paid only $1.20 to $1.45 a day, in violation of the Dongguan minimum wage requirement of about $1.90 for an eight-hour day.

YVONNE YANG / COLLEGIAN

How dare thee!
Valerian the Archer aka Jordan Applebaum, a senior computer science major, who also teaches fencing, and Mistress Roen Deutelliere aka KC Kozminski, who is a designer/lecturer from the deptarment of theater art at Mount Holyoke College, practice duel on the lawn near the Campus Center on Friday evening.

■ Bulger

continued from page 1

bers for their contributions to the scholarship fund, and said that the money will allow students who otherwise couldn't afford the cost of tuition to attend the University.

"One of our very fundamental policies is to raise academic standards and eliminate any unfair economic bars in admission to the University," Bulger said in a press conference. "It is a tough grind for people who may have all sorts of potential. We want to try to make it possible for those that have the drive, ambition and competence to come to UMass."

Bulger also said that the fundraising gala, with the presentation of the President's Medals, will be a yearly event.

Speakers tout Bulger's accomplishments

Many of the day's speakers affirmed Bulger's actions since he took office 18 months ago, noting his firm leadership and his advocacy for the University in the Legislature and in the corporate world.

"It is a unique pleasure to see first hand the real leadership exercised by President Bulger... he has galvanized the government, the corporate world and academia under the same umbrella," Hoff said. "Never before have I seen such cooperation."

Since he took office, Bulger has raised the admission standards, awarded scholarships to valedictorians and salutatorians from Massachusetts high schools, increased private donations to the University system, and traveled to high schools across the state to encourage students to attend UMass. He also instituted a system-wide picket code and told students that he will "not tolerate" disruption of the normal activities of the campus by student protests.

Bulger has also worked to influence the Legislature on behalf of the UMass system, and was rewarded this year with a major budget increase and a five-year, $343 million facility construction and repair program.

In a speech delivered in Fanueil Hall, Menino praised Bulger's actions and expressed confidence in his future leadership of the University system.

"Through your leadership, President Bulger, UMass is blossoming into one of the nation's finest institutions, private or public," Menino said. "You have a bold vision for the future of UMass, making UMass a model for the rest of the nation to look to for guidance."

President Bulger will be coming to the Amherst campus this Friday for Homecoming Weekend.

■ women

continued from page 1

students of color should personally become more actively involved, in order to be heard.

Other people at the open mic consisted of representatives of WMUA, the Campus Center Student Union Commission, American Cancer Society, BASIC, and Boundaries.

The honorary segment of the reception followed.

Six women, who dedicated their time and energy to the enhancement of students learning academically or personally, were recognized.

Dierdre Almeida, Lucy Mae San Pablo Burns, Alexandrina Deschamps, Jenner Ire, Jannette Mendes and Joyce White Deer Vincent were honored.

Joyce White Deer Vincent, also known as Dede, in response to her award, said that it is an honor to receive an award from your own.

These women, who were the highlight of the reception, were admired by all of the women in the room.

Lisa Scott-Crompt spoke of their dedication to the work that they spent with students, as educators as well as mentors.

Scott-Crompt ended the night by saying, "Ladies we need to be a form of support for one another, and we may not like everybody... it's okay to have disagreements with one another, but if you can't agree with them, don't tear them down."

■ probe

continued from page 1

that it has all the information it needs.

"We are confident that no laws were broken," Davis said. Word of Reno's action came one day after officials told the AP that Gore had hired two defense attorneys to try to head off the appointment of a special prosecutor. Clinton already retains defense attorney David Kendall for Whitewater counsel.

Kendall said he expected Justice to resolve the matter speedily, and used language similar to Davis: "No laws were broken and any kind of enforcement action would be absolutely unprecedented."

Congressional and FBI investigators have been conducting a sweeping inquiry into the actions of Clinton, Gore and senior White House officials to raise money for the 1996 presidential election, including allegations that foreign donations were tunneled to the campaign.

Although White House officials said they did not know how Reno reached her decision, congressional and Justice Department investigators have been studying whether Clinton made fund-raising calls from the Oval Office. The president has said he does not remember making any fund-raising calls, and White House officials contend he and Gore are exempt from the law that prohibits fund raising in government buildings.

A federal law enforcement source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the initial inquiry was opened this week and deals with whether the president violated a statute against raising campaign funds on federal property by making telephone calls from the White House.

Former White House chief of staff Harold Ickes told Senate investigators last June that Clinton made several fund-raising calls at his request. Ickes said he asked Clinton to make such calls on two to four occasions, and he subsequently learned the president had made several calls.

macromedia® Tools to power your ideas.

...e your limits
...then push them

Take advantage of these valuable rebates available at your campus bookstore through 10-31-97.

$40 Director 6 Multimedia Studio
Explore the most powerful tools for multimedia and the Web.

$30 Director 6 with Electronic Documentation
Explore the most powerful tool for multimedia and the Web.

$25 FreeHand Graphic Studio 7
Explore the most powerful design tools for print and internet graphics.

$15 FreeHand 7
Explore the most powerful design tool for print and internet graphics.

$10 Flash 2
Explore the easiest way to create fast Web multimedia

*See specially marked boxes at your campus bookstore for details. Director 6 with Electronic Documentation available to students and faculty only 2906.8.97.

AST® COMPUTER ...is Back!! as low as $2,299
with the hottest new mobile technology on September 23rd and 24th

Ascentia™ M Series

M Series Key Features:
- All-in-one, slimline design
- Intel 430TX® chipset
- MMX, high speed EDO RAM
- Large 12.1 SVGA & 13.3" XGA
- Modular HDD and swappable media bay
- USB, FIR, ZV, Cardbus
- ExpressONE Overnight Notebook Exchange
- 3-Year Worldwide Limited Warranty

AST offers the best all around feature set, price/performance.

Ascentia™ A60 Plus Series

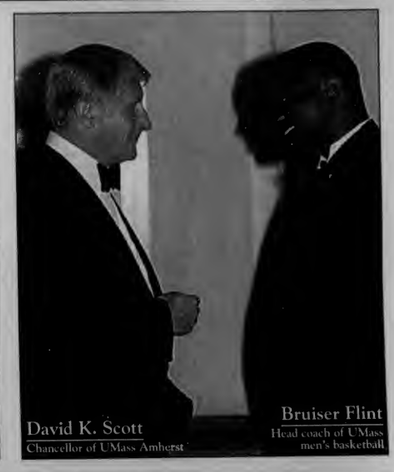
A60 Plus Key Features:
- 150 MHz Intel Pentium Processor
- 12.1" SVGA TFT Screen
- 16MB RAM
- 2MB/32-bit PCI bus
- 1.44 GB HDD 3.5
- 10XCD-ROM Drive
- NiMH Battery
- Bundled Software
- ExpressONE Overnight Notebook Exchange
- 3-Year Worldwide Limited Warranty

UNIVERSITY STORE Campus Center 545-2619 M-F: 9AM - 5PM SAT: 11AM - 4PM

The Inauguration of William M. Bulger as president of the UMass system

Cardinal Bernard Law
Archbishop of Boston

Mr. & Mrs. Robert Goodhue
Alumni Association President



William F. Weld
Former Governor of Massachusetts

Photo Essay

By Tamar Carroll

Last Thursday, Sept. 18, 1997, the inauguration of William M. Bulger as president of UMass system was marked with a day-long celebration in Boston.

Members of the Massachusetts state government joined the UMass community at Bulger's official installation at Fanueil Hall in the morning and at a gala [illegible] Symphony Hall in [illegible]. $1 million was raised for [illegible] scholarship fund, [illegible] including [illegible] Tom Weld, [illegible] the [illegible]

David K. Scott
Chancellor of UMass Amherst

Bruiser Flint
Head coach of UMass men's basketball

DAILY COLLEGIAN

campus center, room 168c

you've read it everyday

now see how it's put together

all are welcome to attend

guided tours and information sessions available

This is not the way peace is built

"We are going to judge Chairman Arafat by deeds. Deeds are the coin of reelm when it comes to fighting terrorism" said James Rubin, the U.S. Department Spokesman, in response to the chilling pictures of Yasser Arafat in Gaza kissing leaders of Hamas and Islamic Jihad. Is Arafat fighting terrorism, or the peace process itself? Arafat said he would actively fight terrorism, as he promised to do so in the Oslo accords. The credibility of such a stance is at the breaking point. If an American president had declared war on the Mafia and then publicly embraced Al Capone, no one would take his "war" seriously. The worst thing Arafat has said about terrorism is that it is bad for the Palestinians. At no point has he spoken out against terrorism as a way of achieving Palestinian political aims. He does not say that terrorism is no longer moral, or justified now that Israel and Palestinians have recognized each other's political rights.

"It is now clearer than ever that Arafat will not fight terrorism because it is wrong, or because he has committed himself to do so, or even because it is in his enlightened self interest."

David Bloch

It is, perhaps, theoretically possible that Arafat could fight terrorism and embrace terrorists at the same time. But, since the Ben Yehuda and Mahaneh Yehuda bombings these past few weeks, there has been no massive wave of arrest by Arafat, as took place after the suicide bombings in February and March of last year. Arafat is doing nothing but the absolute minimum to fight terrorism. It is now clearer than ever that Arafat will not fight terrorism because it is wrong, or because he has committed himself to do so, or even because it is in his enlightened self interest.

By appealing to the Islamic movements, Yasser Arafat is admitting weakness and putting his leadership at risk. Every failure of the peace process strengthens the hand of terrorists. Hamas was and still is a movement intent on killing Jews regardless of what else happens. The most recent example is the triple suicide bombing on Ben Yehuda street in Jerusalem less than two weeks ago, perpetrated by three members of Hamas, killing seven and injuring 190.

Hamas must be satisfied with the current situation, particularly with the only marginal actions the Palestinian Authority (PA) is taking against them. The PA could really act against the terror infrastructure if they wanted to. But the problem is a matter of making the decision, not the capability. By embracing the Chief of Hamas last month, Arafat showed the world of its intentions; would he have decided to kiss peace good-bye?

As I was writing this article, I decided to log on the Internet to check out the news and found in a Jerusalem Post something I wanted to share with you.

Last Monday, the Commander of the Palestinian Police, General Ghazi Jabali, reacted with derision to the arrest warrant and extradition request issued against him by Israel the previous day. He said, "This reminds me of Goebbel's (Hitler's propaganda minister) methods, who said tell lies and lies, and in the end they will believe you." The comparison is not surprising if one monitors the official publications of the Palestinian authority. For example: "Every year, the Jews inflate the number of Holocaust victims. Having profited from talk of their murder, they increase the numbers from time to time." Another quote: "The Jews belong to a colonialist entity, they are nothing but thieves." This is not the way peace is built. The extradition request against general Jabali was issued by Justice Minister Tzahi Hanegbi in the wake of Jabali's involvement with the Palestinian Police unit, which was sent by Jabali to kill Jews. At the end of last week, an arrest warrant was issued against Jabali by an Ashkelon court.

Charging Israel, Zionism and its leadership with Nazism, as well as denying the Holocaust have become a daily routine, meshing with theories of nefarious Israeli plots. This educational battle is being waged by the official PA radio and television, as well as the newspapers financed by Yasser Arafat, which have recently adopted a strident, uninhibited and undisguised anti–Semitic and anti–Zionist line: "It is well known that every year the Jews exaggerate what the Nazis did to them. They claim there were 6 million killed, but precise scientific research establishes that there were no more than 400,000."

The relations between Israel and its two neighbors, Egypt and Jordan, keep improving because both sides mean peace and are ready for compromises and sacrifices, because a Peace Process only works if there is reciprocity. Unfortunately, Chairman Arafat is going his way, the other way...

David Bloch is a graduate student at UMass.

Letters to the Editor

Why?

To the Editor:

Almost every night, for the past two years, I have sat down in front of my old reliable Smith Corona typewriter to type up my poetry, to work on my novel or to send out cover letters and thank you notes to editors. I purchased that typewriter at Amherst Typewriter, instead of the mall or any other store because of the excellent customer service and the dedication to quality and satisfaction I received at the store, one of Amherst's finest businesses. It is with profound sadness that I read about the vandalism that occurred.

It is unfortunate that with all the positive things happening on and outside of campus, that as usual, a few children are obliged to act like ignorant fools. Why? In order to feel that they too have a place, a role, a niche in Amherst. Unable to blend in with the intelligent, kind and interesting people of the community, they do what they must to feel important. But they are absolutely not! This a case of a bunch of scared little boys whose mothers didn't hold them enough as babies.

I look forward to visiting Amherst Typewriter this summer with my fiancee, so that I can share some of the works, created on my typewriter, which have been published across the nation, with one of the finest individuals in the Amherst community.

Justin Seigel
Charlotte, N.C.

Student representatives well received

To the editor:

It was with great pleasure that I attended the various events associated with the Inauguration of President William M. Bulger in Boston on September 18, 1997. The highlight of the day for me and many others in attendance was the participation by various musical groups from our campus. At each event, the performance of these outstanding students was stunningly beautiful and warmly received. I realize that these wonderful students are merely representative of the overall excellence of our entire student body. I want all of you to know that they represented you well.

Go UMass!

Robert M. Goodhue
'70 President
UMass Amherst Alumni Association

Textbook Annex benefits students

To the editor:

In response to Emily Jewell's comments, I'll again come to the defense of the Textbook Annex and myself! I did some investigating before I wrote my first letter. Regarding the price of books, I told her to write to the publishers. They are indeed the people that set the prices. Used books are priced by a standard formula used by schools everywhere and by the used–book wholesalers that provide them with books. When the Annex buys a used book from wholesalers, they are charged 50 percent of the current list price established by the publisher. It doesn't matter what the price of a new or old book was when it was printed. The price of this day in the 90s is what matters. The used books are resold by the Annex with a 25 percent margin which is quite low in retailing.

You also mentioned that you were partly to blame for your laziness in finding a less expensive price on your book. You didn't even have to leave your room to leaf through the phone book to find that there are about 25 used book dealers in the area. You should shop around, but if you don't, don't complain.

The profit you claim the Annex gets is wrong. That money goes back to the Campus Center to provide students with the extras that don't cost them anything (lounges, student offices, etc.).

As for my awesome employers, they are just that, Emily. I will continue to advise disgruntled customers until they get their facts straight. I was hired by the Annex for bookrush. I am now working in food services, but I still find this whole matter humorous and interesting. Please stop bashing the Annex. You are paying for a service at the Annex which makes it possible for you to not have to run around to 25 stores.

As for your comments on the legality of price inflation, that's life. What price hasn't gone up in the last 20 years, including antiques? My best suggestion to you is to get a job at the Annex and find out what really goes on.

Kerry Naumowicz
South Deerfield

CRC tackles dorm room rights

To The Editor:

The Cannabis Reform Coalition would like to thank the Collegian for covering our meeting on student's rights in the dormitories. We don't want to be seen as encouraging students to break every little housing policy, but we do think it is extremely important that students, especially freshmen, exercise their rights. For many young adults, the dorm room is the first home they "own" — the first freedom from the parent-child living arrangement. It is important that this freedom be realized (and enjoyed) to the fullest extent — so that when someone tries to take it away, we will notice and will fight to preserve it. This is one of the basic foundations of our society.

Unfortunately Housing Services seems bent on asserting it's control over students' homes, and this is not restricted to relatively trivial things like banning incense burning. A trip down memory lane, the Cannabis Reform Coalition recalls several times that our members have had to act up to get housing to treat its residents like American citizens. Several years ago; RAs used to be instructed, in violation of federal law, to withhold student mail which had arrived during the intersession as bait to entice students to attend the first floor meeting of the semester. When that mail contained important financial aid information for a CRC activist, a call to the State Postmaster General's office fixed that problem. When word got out that an entire Southwest tower was to be the subject of an unannounced search, rest assured that everyone in that tower knew they were at legal risk beforehand. In fact, they complained so much the search was called off.

We can't take all the credit — SGA has tackled this issue as well. But it doesn't always pan out for the students. A while back, we heard that an out-of-control fire sprinkler system in Cashin Hall destroyed property of students on several floors. Housing refused to pay damages and in fact, some say to cover damages to dorm furniture, they fined students for hot-plates and other policy infractions while assessing the rooms. We were astounded that there was so little backlash from the students, and we often wonder why there is no on-campus housing tenant union. It underscores just how passive you can get if you let the "tiny things" slip.

The Giuliani-style tactics that were promoted by Public Safety officials during recent RA training do not help one bit. We know that our comments have probably gotten several officers and a small number of RAs a bit rankled, but we'd like to assure those few individuals of one thing. No matter where you are, and who's around you, there is a very good chance that a member or ally of the Cannabis Reform Coalition is watching. So respect the rights of others.

John Lanzerotta,
Joe Davis,
Brian S. Julin
UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian though letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted to Editorial/Opinion Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass Amherst MA 01003, or by email to: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu Letters may be edited for length, clarity, and style.

Write for Ed/Op!

The Collegian Editorial page needs new writers. We want you to write humor, politics, satire, lifestyle, or any of a thousand other styles — let us be as broad as the student body.

Anyone who is interested should contact Dan Bodah at the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, call 545–1491.

Mir is still a success

With all of the problems that have occurred with the Russian space station Mir, I have overheard things to the extent that a "failure like this" only goes to show that we have no place in space. It is unfortunate that some people feel this way, for two reasons.

First of all, Mir is by no means a failure. I view it as one of the greatest successes the world has had in space technology. One thing that is often overlooked is that Mir has lasted for a far longer period of time than it was originally built for. Even with the problems of the past few months, recent polls taken in Russia indicate a large amount of enthusiasm for the Russian space program as a whole. Perhaps the most important role of the Mir space station was as a model of cooperation between the U.S. and Russia that has been in progress for over a decade. The Cold War is long dead, the Mir is greatly helping to keep it that way. It is also a tragedy that some feel that the human race has no reason to pursue a space program at all.

Some also feel that we have gained nothing substantial from exploring space except the loss of billions of dollars. We have learned an incredible amount as a result of the space program. For example, were it not for satellite technology, we might still be completely unaware of our damage to the ozone layer, and could be using CFC's more than ever. And wouldn't we be wondering why half the population would be dying of skin cancer? Weather forecasting would also be a difficult business if we were to remove the satellites, or neglect replacing old ones. Furthermore, the zero-gravity environment has shown itself to be an excellent testing ground for new materials, even ones that cannot be produced in the presence of Earth gravity. One example is a type of super-lightweight material called "aerogel." This is a solid substance only 4 times the weight of air, yet stronger than glass. However, gravity may account for the cloudiness of the material. If a transparent version can be produced in zero-gravity, we would be in possession of a material as clear as glass, yet far lighter, stronger, and with high insulation properties (a thin pane could insulate as well as standard thickness of fiberglass insulation).

Justin Smith

Perhaps the most important reason for the space program is the pursuit of knowledge. Those of us who are content to merely "exist," should question why we should be existing at all. I want to know for certain whether or not life does, or has ever, existed on Mars. I want to know whether or not an ocean of water lies beneath the frosty surface of Jupiter's moon, Europa. I need more than to exist.

So, when I look at the recent problems of the space station Mir, I do not see a failure. If anything, I see that we just need to hurry up with getting the International Space Station (the Mir's planned replacement to which the U.S., Russia, Japan, and others will contribute) up and running.

Justin Smith is a UMass student.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Christopher Stamm Editor–in–Chief Laura Stock Managing Editor Ryan MacDonald Business Manager Josh Sylvester Production Manager
Luis Luna Advertising Manager David Voldan Advertising Production Manager Humphrey brown III Senior Diversity Editor

Seema Gangatirkar Arts & Living Editor
Humphrey brown III Black Affairs Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Developing Nations Editor
Daniel Bodah Editorial/Opinion Editor
Rachael Pepe Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Bryan Schwartzman Jewish Affairs Editor

Christine Soh Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jonathan Liberty News Editor
Thang Vo Photography Co-Editor
Kenneth W.P. Scott Photography Co-Editor
Luke Meredith Sports Editor
Laura Barcella Women's Issues Editor

Position Vacant Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Editorial Production Assistant
David Quist Systems Manager
Kimberly Berardi Finance Manager
Mark Presties Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majercowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
David Quist Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially Independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Plight of a people

Editor's note: This is part one of a two–part series.

Seeing that last week was the week for race issues to be addressed on our Editorial Page, I felt the urge and concern to bring up the economic and social plight of black people. I will concentrate mainly on blacks living in the United States and blacks living in Africa.

Let me make it clear what I mean by "black." Any person of color who is African, or of African descent is black.

Now, let us begin. Economically speaking, today, black people (as a whole around the globe) are behind most of the world. Blacks in the U.S. are behind and black nations in Africa are behind, as well. A lot of people, including myself, may wonder why this is. Why can't blacks catch up or hang, economically, with the rest of the world? After asking themselves this question, many people develop their own ideas and answers in response. Common answers that I have received from many blacks and have been implied by many whites include the notion that black people just do not want to succeed. They tell me that black people are lazy, they don't work, they don't know how to govern themselves, they are just violent by nature, and I've even read magazines that state that black people, by nature, are not as intelligent as white people.

"Economically speaking, today, black people (as a whole around the globe) are behind most of the world."

Edgar Barros

Basically, these stereotypical comments are saying that blacks are doomed. I would like to restate the fact that I have received these types of responses by not only white people, but black people as well. Many blacks have been so brainwashed by society that they, themselves, believe the stereotypes and do not understand how they ended up where they are today. The ideas mentioned above are a common misconception among a good number of people, many of whom you personally know. Plenty of people reading this article, due to their education, probably know that these stereotypes are not true, but we must not forget the millions around the world who are not as fortunate as we are. From lack of education, millions are ignorant to what has occurred in our world's history. Therefore, these stereotypes, and other stereotypes pertaining to other races, various ethnic groups, the opposite sex and many religions, seem valid.

We'll start first by examining the plight of the nations of Africa and then the conditions of black America. Although most African nations are rich in natural resources, many suffer from ongoing economic depression. By and large, the continent as a whole is economically trailing the rest of the world.

How can a continent which supplies so much of the world's cobalt, diamond, copper, gold and uranium be so economically behind?

For one thing, most of the mining companies that mine these minerals are foreign owned. Therefore, most of the profits go directly back to their parent nations and not to the African nations where the mining took place.

Another factor which has played a major role in the slow economic condition in much of Africa is colonization. Yes, colonization of Africa ended 30–50 years ago, but the effects still linger on. In fact, much of the economic and social problems in Africa today can be put squarely on the shoulders of the colonial powers. England, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Portugal and Spain violently established colonies in Africa and violently maintained these colonies.

One of the first foreign laws, which was established in the colonies, was the requirement of tax payments from the indigenous people of Africa. This tax system was foreign to them. They never operated their economies in terms of "money," they simply traded. The suggestion was made by the colonial powers that the indigenous people plant "cash" crops, such as coffee, cocoa and tea, which they would sell to the colonial powers for money, which in turn would enable them to pay the colonial taxes in monetary units. Of course, this had a devastating effect on a lot of the land in Africa. Many acres were getting overused from the continuous growing of the same crops, season after season.

Another devastating effect on the economy was the borrowing of money by the African people from the Europeans. As tractors and other farming equipment became available, many Africans bought them on credit from the Europeans. These pieces of equipment would obviously make farming a lot easier, but they also cost a lot of money. Therefore, more land was used to farm cash crops which would then be sold to the colonial powers for money, which would help pay for the various farming equipment along with paying their taxes.

As taxes increased, and the price of farming equipment rose, more and more land was used to grow cash crops and help pay debts. The ultimate effect was the shrinking of land space available to grow food crops (corn, beans, rice, etc.) This unavailability of land for food led to an increasing number of Africans buying imported foods from abroad. As you can probably tell by now, this lead to more land being used to plant cash crops which meant an even greater decrease in land space for food crops. This system, as well as other factors, has had a devastating effect on the economy and soil quality in Africa. After years of abuse, the soil became useless. Many Africans had to abandon the land because it could no longer support the overwhelming farming that was necessary.

If we fast forward to today, most independent African nations are still paying off debts that they owe from colonial times. As you can see, the young economies of the African nations, most of which just recently gained their independence, got off to a rough start. They were in debt before they were born. This fact, coupled with the fact that African nations are still in their infancies, help us understand the plight of these nations. Therefore, it should be of no marvel to anyone why the economies of most African nations are behind the rest of the world. I believe that the hardships that African economies are experiencing play a part in the attempt of overthrowing governments in Africa.

By the way, have you noticed how African wars are stereotypically glorified in the American media as tribal guerilla wars, in contrast to European revolutions, which are portrayed as religious wars or wars of democracy? Things that make you go hmmm.

The knowledge of the economic history of Africa can help us disprove the stereotype that blacks do not know how to govern themselves. The truth of the matter is the colonial powers themselves are the ones who did the majority of the misgoverning!

Edgar Barros is a UMass student. From Africa to black America, part two of, "Plight of a people" will appear on next Monday's Black Affairs Page.

Reopening 1963 bombing case is a step in the right direction

Their names, for the most part, have been forgotten: Denise McNair, who was 11; Carol Robertson, 14; Addie Mae Collins, 14; and Cynthia Wesley, 14. These four girls died in a brutal bomb blast set by a local white–supremacist group on Sept. 15, 1963, in Birmingham, Ala.

This bombing at the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church became one of the defining moments of the civil–rights movement.

After 34 years, a new Spike Lee documentary 4 Little Girls has revived interest in the event. And last week, the Department of Justice began a fresh investigation into the incident. The case was previously reopened in 1980 and 1988 without results.

"We received new information and are pursuing it in every way possible," said Attorney General Janet Reno at a weekly press conference. Reno said the reopening of the case had nothing to do with the Lee film.

Despite the high–profile nature of the bombing, only one person, Robert Chambliss, was convicted. Even that conviction occurred 14 years after the incident. Three other men were suspected but were not even arrested, let alone convicted of the crime.

The efforts to reopen the 34–year–old case and track down the culprits who have eluded justice is a step in the right direction for the Justice Department and the Clinton administration. But it falls far short of what is really needed.

A 1996 Investigation by Emerge Magazine found that from the mid–1950s to the 1970s, more than three dozen African Americans were killed in cases that have remained largely unsolved and unprosecuted. And just as the parents and relatives of the four young women who died in the Birmingham bombing have waited years for justice, dozens of other African American families have waited to no avail for the Justice Department to reopen the cases.

For many people, there is no Spike Lee film to document the death of a loved one. Dennis Dahmner of Baton Rouge watched his father, Vernon F. Dahmner, die in an attack by Klu Klux Klan members in Mississippi in 1966. Mavella Moore's husband, Oneal Moore, was killed by Klansmen in an ambush in 1965 shortly after he became the first African American police deputy in Washington Parish in Louisiana.

Ron Nixon

In each of these cases, suspects were arrested. Some were even jailed for a short time, but many got away. African American families who have worked tirelessly to get the cases reopened have been stonewalled by the Justice Department even though many of the suspects and witnesses are still alive.

That's why the Clinton administration's renewed interest in the Sixteenth Street bombing smacks of an attempt to capitalize on the popularity of a documentary. Where is the serious commitment to providing answers for other families whose lives were forever altered by the tragic years of the civil–rights movement?

In the future, Spike Lee should perhaps head up an investigation into the unsolved murders of other African Americans during the civil rights movement. Since the Justice Department seems to be following his lead, maybe that will result in the reopening of more such cases.

Ron Nixon is a contributing editor of Southern Exposure magazine.

Speak out

Write Tell the world how you feel for Black Affairs.

Li'l Mama's Rules

By Millicent Jackson
Collegian Staff

LI'L MAMA'S RULES
Sheneska Jackson
Simon & Schuster

"Rule No. 1:

Never invite them back to your place. Once a man gets into your home, it's all over. It's like something clicks in his head and he starts thinking he's in paradise. He'll start smiling and looking all around with his eyes bulging out of his head as if he just hit the lottery and landed his butt in heaven. What he's really doing is marking his territory, just like a dog who's found his favorite spot and pisses on it."

This is one of Madison McGuire's many dating rules. Fiercely independent and extraordinarily outspoken, Madison believes there is a proper way to do everything: especially dating.

Over the years, she has run across men who were ornery, dangerous creatures. So, in order to protect herself, she devised a precise method for dealing with them. If anyone would know that men can turn your life upside down, Madison would.

Her father took off when she was a baby, leaving her mother to raise Madison and her younger sister, Serena, by herself. Then, enter Christopher, the aspiring doctor who was the lover of her life, before he admitted that he'd cheated on her. But, Madison decided she doesn't need a steady man in her life. She's got Malik, her best friend, whom she might consider worthy if he weren't gay.

Being single and loving every minute of it, Madison is playing the field as hard as men have played her. She still has to deal with advances from two bit actors, her boss, and her secret admirer: a man determined to bring love into her life and may turn out to be everything Madison ever wanted but was too blind to realize.

Just as she's set to embark on a new life, tragedy comes knocking once again and Madison, always taking care of everyone and everything, must learn how and whom to trust. Now, her rules must change and Madison is unexpectedly forced to learn what her own life's mission will be, something other she nor the reader is expecting.

Li'l Mama's Rules is an outspoken novel with an unforgettable heroine, whose wisdom and mistakes keep the reader laughing, crying and most of all, thinking about life and what really matters.

In this second novel, Jackson develops her characters to perfection, making you feel like you are in the company of your closest friends. Her voice is lively and demands your attention. While there is a bit of predictability towards the novel's ending, there is more than enough in areas of character development, pacing and dialogue to compensate. Li'l Mama's Rules is a feel good novel about the power of love, faith and second chances.

Conversation on race

Two events this summer were symbolic of this country's retreat from civil rights and equality of opportunity. On Aug. 14, the Clinton administration initiated changes in a Small Business Administration program, making it much easier for white–owned companies to obtain government contracts which had previously been set aside for minorities.

Experts predict that thousands of white small businesses will immediately take advantage of the new provisions. This means, in effect, that a smaller share of federal contract dollars will go to blacks and Latinos.

The second event occurred in San Diego, which was of course President Clinton's much–publicized address on the state of race relations in America. Beneath his charming rhetoric of reconciliation and harmony was an unmistakable message: blacks must lower their expectations.

At first, Clinton reaffirmed his support for affirmative action, but quickly added that opponents of the policy were "without any ill motives." The president then challenged his audience to ask, "Can we fulfill the promise of America by embracing all our citizens of all races, not just at a university, where people have the benefit of enlightened teachers and the time to think and grow and get to know each other, but in the daily life of every American community?"

But Clinton's next statement made his previous words seem hollow and heartless:

"I know I've said it before that money cannot buy this goal. Power cannot compel it. Technology cannot create it. This is something that can only come from the human spirit..." Clinton observed that despite the "evidence of bigotry" which still remains, "minorities have more opportunities than ever today..."

Dr. Manning Marable

In his concluding remarks, Clinton recalled that at the "high tide of the civil rights movement, the Kerner Commission said we were becoming two Americas, one white, one black, separate and unequal."

Today challenges of race and ethnicity are fundamentally different: "Will we become not two, but many Americans, separate, unequal and isolated? Or will we draw strength for all our people and our ancient faith in equality and human dignity, to become the world's first truly multiracial democracy?"

The general response from the media was warmly positive, praising Clinton for proposing a year–long conversation about race. Predictably, the Republican party's first major response to the president's address was critical.

Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich declared that there was already too "much talk on the issue" of race, and not enough action.

"We must make America a country with equal opportunity for all the special privilege for none by treating all individuals as equals before the law and doing away with quotas, preferences and set–asides in Government contract, hiring and university admissions," Gingrich said.

Gingrich's approach to constructive race relations included policies to push welfare recipients into low–paying jobs, support for minority entrepreneurship, tougher sentences for violent criminals, and the establishment of a "multiracial" category to the census and other government forms as an attempt to phase out "black," "white" and other racial classifications.

It was, in short, an abbreviated version of the Republicans' "Contract for America" program, calling for the elimination of key reforms achieved by the Civil Rights Movement during a half century of struggle, filtered through Gingrich's own peculiar notions about blacks.

The confrontative and polemical character of Gingrich's remarks could not entirely obscure the similarities between the two leaders' positions on the issue of race. Beyond the establishment of a blue–ribbon committee to study race relations headed by historian John Hope Franklin, the president deliberately proposed no new policies to uproot discrimination.

Clinton was virtually silent when California's Proposition 209 eliminated that state's affirmative action programs. In 1996, Clinton signed a welfare bill which threatened to push one million children into poverty. His administration did nothing to respond to the Hopwood v. Texas 1996 decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, outlawing the use of race as a factor in admissions to universities.

You can have a "conversation" only when both parties respect each other, and see themselves as equals. Gingrich doesn't want a conversation; he wants a "monologue," where blacks will be lectured to. Clinton may personally want to bridge America's great divide, racism. But sadly, many of his policies serve only to push us further apart.

Dr. Manning Marable is Professor of History and Director of the Institute for Research in African–American Studies at Columbia University, New York City. "Along the Color Line" is distributed free of charge and regularly appears in over 325 black and progressive publications worldwide."

Phat Albert

On Sept. 9 of this year, I searched the media for any coverage on the 25th anniversary of the debut of "Fat Albert." And that's exactly what I didn't find — any coverage whatsoever. Some of you readers may be thinking, "Well, who cares? It's just an old Saturday morning cartoon anyway." But it wasn't your ordinary weekend kiddie fare.

"Fat Albert" had more to offer than silly jokes and sight–gags — much more.

Christopher P. Lehman

In 1972, Saturday morning television was a wasteland of uninspired adventures. "The Archies" and "Scooby–Doo" ruled the morning. As a result, most of the cartoons on television starred teenagers as either rock stars or mystery solvers. Contrary to popular belief, however, "Fat Albert" was not the first television cartoon with black characters. "The Harlem Globetrotters" (essentially a "Scooby–Doo" clone) featured an all–black cast in 1970, as did the "Jackson Five" (basically a half–hour animated commercial for their music) a year later. But what were children getting as a result of watching these cartoons?

Bill Cosby could not find much of an answer to that question. So, he decided to create a show that would combine entertainment with education. How does a rich and famous comedian accomplish this, you ask? Why, he hires some of the best comedy writers in the industry as well as some psychiatrists and sociologists from UCLA, of course. As for the star of the show, the Fat Albert character had been part of Cosby's stand–up routine about his childhood for years.

Some people remember "Fat Albert" for the topics that it tackled throughout its 12–year run on CBS (1972–1984). In the first year, the show started mildly with episodes on lying, sexism and hero–worship. But in the second year alone, it discussed divorce, drug–dealing and racism. Through the years, the show became more hard–core, exploring death, gambling, child abuse and teenage– motherhood. In one of the last episodes, a child was killed in gang–violence crossfire. Try seeing that on the "Smurfs!"

Most people probably remember "Fat Albert" for its entertainment value. An animator once said that children love repetition and being able to figure out what happens next. "Albert" certainly had its fair share of catch phrases, like Russell insisting Rudy, "No class!" The Brown Hornets warning, "We're running out of tiiiiime!" Cosby's introduction to each song by the junkyard band, "They wrote a song about it. Like to hear it? Here it goes." And of course, Fat Albert's, "Hey, hey, hey!"

Cosby always seemed to balance the education with the entertainment — never appearing too clownish but not seeming too authoritative as to be rigid. I always considered him an informative big brother.

Will "Fat Albert" go down in the annals of history as one of the greatest programs of our time? Probably not. But the show's "edutainment" was a great and pioneering accomplishment that shouldn't be ignored. The cartoon also gave children — especially black children — characters with whom they could identify. "Fat Albert" kept it real.

Christopher P. Lehman is a UMass student.

Black Affairs is Dead...

WITHOUT DEDICATED WRITERS TO KEEP IT ALIVE.

The Black Affairs page is looking for creative, thought provoking writers to represent on the page.

If you've been meaning to get involved, THIS IS YOUR TIME.

All members of the ALANA community with an interest are urged to contact Humphrey brown III at 546–0977 or come down to the Collegian in the Campus Center Basement.

THIS IS YOUR VOICE. TAKE CONTROL.

UPC, the proud sponsor of the RSO Pages

RSO's Registered Student Organizations

Campus Activities
University of Massachusetts
416 Student Union
Box 37310 Amherst
MA 01007-7310
(413) 545-3600

info?

ACADEMIC Accounting Association
Alive With Dance
American Institute Society of Landscape Architects of Industrial Engineers
Anthropology Undergraduate Caucus
APICS
Arnold Air Society (ROTC)
Biological Sciences Student Association
Business Club
Chamber Choir
Club Communications
Club Managers Student Chapter
Communication Disorders
Debate Union
Design Student Club
Independent Restauranteurs
Marching Band
Marketing Club
National Society tor Black Engineers
Poetry Society
Pre-Medica
Pre-Vet & Animal Science Club
Russian Club
Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers
Society of Women Engineers
Student Hospitality Marketing Association International Student Nurses Association
Travel & Tourism
Wildlife Society
Women in Sports Management

SERVICE
Alpha Phi Omega
Boltwood Project
Circle K Club
Collegiate 4-H
Fire and First Aid
Hands
Kappa Kappa Psi/Tau Beta Sigma
LBG Counselling Collective
Nia Student Organization
Peer Mentor Network
Share STARS
VIVA

STUDENT BUSINESSES
Bicycle Co-op
Campus Design & Copy
Earthfoods
Federal Credit Union
Greenough Snack Bar
People's Market
SOM Food Services
Sweets And More
Sylvan Snack Bar
Tickets Unlimited
Valley Women's Voice

HONOR SOCIETIES
ALANA Honor Society
Alpha Lambda Delta
Alpha Zeta
Beta Alpha Psi
Eta Sigma Delta
Golden Key Honor Society
Mortar Board
Phi Alpha Theta
Pi Sigma Alpha

PERFORMING ARTS
Dance Team
Juggling Club
New World Theater
Student Valley Productions
UMass Theatre Guild

SPORTS
Bicycle Racing Club
Cheerleaders
Club Volleyball
Crew Club
Croquet Club
Equestrian Team
Fencing Club
Golf Club
Rugby Club
Tennis Team
Women's Ice Hockey
Wrestling Club
Zoo Disc Frisbee Team

ETHNIC/CULTURAL African Student Association
AFRIK-AM
AHORA
Armenian Student Club
Asian American Student Association
Black Student Union
Boricuas Unidos
Cambodian Student Association
Cape Verdean Student Alliance
Casa Dominicana
Chinese Student Club
Haitian American Students Association
Hellenic Association
Hillel
Hui Hawaii Ohana
Irish American Student Assoc.
Italian American Students Union
Japan America Club
Korean Student Association
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance
Native American Student Association
SETA
Shades
South Asian Club
Vietnamese Student Association

RECREATION
Ballroom Dance Club
Chess Club
College Bowl Team
Grenadier Society
Hang Gliding Club
Japanese Animation & Manga Society
Kodokan Martial Arts
NE Collegiate Karate Club
Outing Club
Pioneer Valley Combat Club
Racquetball Club
Shotokan Club
Ski Club
Snowboarding Club
Sport Parachute Club
Tae Kwon Do
WTF Tae Kwon Do

GREEKS
Alpha Chi Rho
Alpha Delta Phi
Alpha Epsilon Pi
Alpha Epsilon Phi
Alpha Kappa Alpha
Chi Omega
Delta Chi
Delta Sigma Theta
Delta Upsilon
Delta Zeta
Iota Gamma Upsilon
Iota Phi Theta
Kappa Alpha Psi
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Lambda Chi Alpha
Omega Psi Phi
Order of Omega
Phi Beta Sigma
Phi Kappa Sigma
Pi Kappa Alpha
Sigma Alpha Mu
Sigma Delta Tau
Sigma Kappa
Sigma Phi Epsilon
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Zeta Psi
Zeta Psi Theta

RELIGIOUS
ALANA Christian Alliance
Alliance Christian Fellowship
Ananda Marga
The Ark
Baha'i Club
Campus Crusade for Christ
Chabad Students
Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship
Hillel
Hindu Students Organization
Intervarsity Christian Fellowship
Meditation League
Muslim Students Association
Newman Club
Pagan Students Organization
Upside Down

POLITICAL
Allied Students Against Prejudice
Amnesty International
Animal Rights Coalition
Cannahis Reform Coalition
Clean Rivers Coalition
European Club
Friends of Bosnia
MASSPIRG
Out of State Student Association
Progressive Organization for Women's Rights
Radical Student Union
Rainforest Action Group
Republican Club
Soviet Community Empowerment Program
Students Advocating Financial Assistance
Students Against Driving Drunk
Students for Life
Truth Task Force
Twenty/Twenty Vision
University Democrats
Young Americans For Freedom

SOCIAL Bridge Club
Honors Students Association
International Student Assoc.
National Exchange Club
PHNORD
Science Fiction Club
SCUM
Single Parents Association

CAMPUS WIDE PROGRAMS
Distinguished Visitors Program
University Productions & Concerts

GOVERNMENTAL
Campus Center/Student Union Commission
Central Area Government
Commuter Area Government
Interfraternity Council
National Pan-Hellenic Council
Northeast Area Government
Orchard Hill Area Government
Panhellenic Council
Southwest Area Government
Stockbridge Senate
Student Government Association
Sylvan Area Government

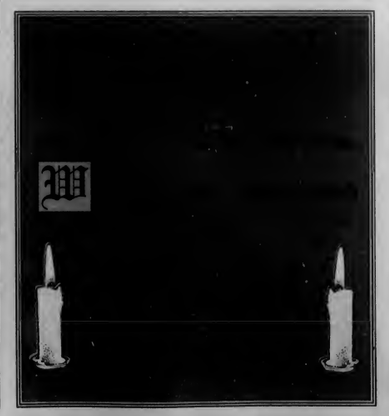
MEDIA
Black Mass Communication Project
Collegian
Concepto Latino
In Focus
Index (Yearbook)
Noratoo News
Silent Majority
Spectrum
Union Video Center
WMUA Radio Station

AGENCIES
Center for Student Businesses
Commuter Services & Housing Resource Center
Student Legal Services Office
Office of Third World Affairs
Student Center for Education, Research & Advocacy
Student Union Art Gallery
Student Union Craft Center

Celebrate 20 Years of Student Run Concert Productions

October 26th...

Watch OUT!



To find out about meetings and getting involved call UPC @ 545-2892 or stop by the office located at 415 Student Union

UMass
Science Fiction Society
166 C.C. basement
545-1924
- ALL WELCOME -

Spectrum
Art & Literary Magazine
General meeting
Sept. 25
@ 6 p.m. in the Campus Center
Your submissions accepted beginning in November
Look for our upcoming cover contest!
For more info call 545-2240

Tae Kwon Do Club
• No experience needed
• Practice with all levels
White - Black 5th Dan
• Meet up to three days a week
Call Woody 6-0329
Rick 6-3181
Hilda 6-3743

Freshman, Get Involved

Audience responds to Elijah's emotion

By Kristin Stewart
Collegian Correspondent

THE RETURN OF ELIJAH, THE AFRICAN Bowker Auditorim
Sept. 19

"Exploring the most enduring issues between West Africa and North America, the slave trades and the cultural links between Africans and African-Americans..." It sounds like a lofty challenge for director Talvin Wilks to undertake in The Return of Elijah, the African. But Wilks and his cast in conjunction with the New WORLD Theater succeeded in presenting a powerful and spiritually moving piece on Friday night, Sept. 19, in Bowker Auditorium.

The cast of Elijah made a valiant effort to bridge the continent gap through a meshwork of music and poetry. Unlike theater in the traditional sense with an established plot and character developments, Elijah, a work in progress, relied heavily on a spiritual response from the audience to the music and lyrical verse. Set to the backdrop of a pulsing African drumbeat and based on the work of poet Sekou Sundiata, the narrator Elijah, accompanied by four vocalists, transported the audience back to a time when European oppression lead to slavery and religious persecution.

The highlights of this show were its riveting music and Ramone Moses' incredible interpretaion of Sundiata's poetry through the character of Elijah. Twice during the night, the audience was left breathless by overpowering crescendos and soulful lyrics. Due to Moses' brilliant acting, hardly anyone in the theater was left untouched by Elijah's immense suffering or by his explosive pride in "the body black."

Elijah, however, did have its weak moments. With a 20 minute start delay, it took both the impatient audience and the performers at least two numbers before settling into the show's routine. The flow of the show also seemed disjointed at times. Visible looks of uncertainty on the vocalists' faces followed by verbal communication beneath the music not only interrupted the "magic" feeling of the show but demonstrated to the audience that the performers did not know exactly what came next.

After leaving Amherst, the company of Elijah plans to continue changing and working on this piece under a new title. Overall, Elijah entertained the audience on both an emotional and intellectual level. With a few more changes and rehearsals to smooth out the fluidity of the show, the company of Elijah will have a hit.

Write for arts. Write for arts. Write for arts.

Interested? Come down to the Collegian talk to Seema.

PAIGE'S CHEVROLET Geo Amherst

- Full Service Autobody Insurance Approved
- Full Selection of Genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
- Mass. State Inspection Station #3243
- Fine Selection of New and Used Cars & Trucks
- Ask About our FREE 18 Point Maintenance Check.

Award Winning Local Service

located conveniently on

Dickinson St. between Rt. 9 & Main St.

253-3444 - Parts Line 253-5928

An inspiring night of enchantment

Rumours–era Fleetwood Mac returns to form in jubilant fashion

COURTESY DAVID LACHAPELLE

Fleetwood Mac reunited for a show at the Meadows in Hartford last week.

By Marty Keane
Collegian Staff

FLEETWOOD MAC
Meadows Music Theatre
Sept. 17

HARTFORD, Conn. — Rarely, if ever, does a "reunion" project actually manage to live up to its prodigious build–up in the music industry. After all, in most cases the impetus for getting back together is merely in the name of the almighty dollar. Understandably, it was with a great degree of skepticism and cynicism that most viewed the all–too– convenient occurrence of Fleetwood Mac's most popular line–up re–forming to go on a lucrative cross–country jaunt.

Opening a national tour in front of a near–capacity crowd of 19,000 in Hartford, the Rumours–era incarnation of the '70s supergroup — Stevie Nicks, Lindsey Buckingham, Christine McVie, John McVie and Mick Fleetwood — gloriously rekindled their magic after a 14–year hiatus to give an invigorating 2,–hour performance that went far beyond simply reprising their recent MTV concert (collected on the album The Dance).

The opening three songs were identical to the TV special — "The Chain" (with Fleetwood's thunderous drumming), "Dreams" (a signature Nicks tune), and McVie's joyous "Everywhere," which was brought to new heights by her ex– husband's seamless bass lines.

Nicks, looking like she's lost quite a bit of weight and singing better than she has in years, followed with "Gold Dust Woman" — a song recently covered by Courtney Love and Hole. Later, on the wistful "Landslide" (which provided a touching moment with ex–lover Buckingham), Nicks proved that her voice hasn't lost any of its biting intensity as she wailed "Children get older, I'm getting older too" over a single acoustic guitar with arms outstretched — her enchanting personality taking hold on the crowd as she weaved a mystifying wizardry through her spell–binding stage presence.

From there, the focus quickly switched to Buckingham. On "I'm So Afraid" and the new "Bleed to Love Her," his jovial manner vanished as he became a man possessed, furiously battling with his six–string, coaxing otherworldly sounds through his angular playing style. The guttural squalls emitted from his Gibson proved that Buckingham's musicianship has improved by leaps and bounds since his last Mac tour, most likely due to his time with a guitar orchestra he took on the road a few years back.

Throughout the performance, the group used two extra guitarists (Neale Heywood and Brett Tuggle), two back–up singers (Sharon Celani and Mindy Stein), and percussionist extraordinaire Lenny Castro, which afforded the band a rich, full–bodied sound that perfectly framed the songs around the celestial harmonies of Nicks, McVie and Buckingham.

Nicks' signature solo song, "Stand Back," got the royal treatment and was one of the show's too–many–to–mention high points, as she pleaded with the audience to give her some sympathy. Clearly though, she didn't need it, and neither did her bandmates. Opening night jitters? Forget about it.

On the perfunctory encore of "Don't Stop," one could almost tangibly sense the giddy enthusiasm that each member was feeling and could not hold in. Without question, the Mac is back.

The week's dish on the soap operas

After months of speculation, ABC has finally confirmed the much anticipated return of Bob Guza Jr., as head writer for "General Hospital." Those of us who have had to endure the shamble that the once great "GH" has become over the past few months can now breath a collective sigh of relief. Our show has been saved! Guza is most notably known for masterminding such plots as Lily's death and the return of the Cassadines — who have definitely raised some people's blood pressure since their arrival.

The long awaited nuptials of one of "GH's" most popular duos — Sonny and Brenda — finally comes to pass this week... or not? Those who have been following the current "GH" gossip know that Maurice Benard (Sonny) is set to leave the show at the end of this month. What does that mean for "GH's" dynamic duo or more importantly, what will be the fate of PC's resident "goodfella?" I'm not going to ruin the surprise, but executive producer Wendy Riche has made no secret of the fact that the doors will be left open for a return engagement (no pun intended). I'd suggest keeping a box of Kleenex handy or perhaps sending me a few.

Hot on the tail of this, comes news that Brenda's sister, Julia Barrett (played by the talented Crystal Carson) will return to the show for a short stint in October. There've been some mumblings that her character will cross paths with Jax. Looks like Jax may have his hands full this summer with Brenda, V. and maybe even Julia (if those rumors are true) pining away for his affections.

On a quick side note, Anthony Geary (Luke) returns to "GH" on Oct. 3. Still no news as to when or

Turn to SOAP, page 9

Soap Chat

Jacob Fanning

Munchie Madness 3-6PM MONDAY-FRIDAY

Bacon 'n Cheese Skins ~~7.50~~ 3.75
Cold Shrimp Cocktail ~~5.50~~ 2.55
Nachos Especial ~~7.50~~ 3.75

Watch the World Go By From Our Greenhouse!

Judie's — DOWNTOWN AMHERST — 51 N. Pleasant Street 253-3491

http://virtual-valley.com/judies

UMass Student Legal Services Office

FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!

922 Campus Center

545-1995 Call Today!

The Right Place to Be!
3 Barbers Everyday
Unisex Hair Styling

Jim — Guys & Gals, Layer Cuts, Flat Tops, Fades
Terri
Gabe
Amherst Barbers
Clipper Cuts, Razor Cuts, Kids Cuts
Tel. 253-1722
40 Main Street, Amherst, MA (Next to Newbury Comics)
Appointment Not Neccessary
$8 & up
Hours: Mon- Wed & Fri, 8-5:15pm • Thurs 8-7pm • Sat 8-4:45pm

La Cazuela
RESTAURANT

The Cuisines of MEXICO and the AMERICAN SOUTHWEST

"Mexican food, like Memphis barbeque and Chicago style pizza, doesn't travel well. Generally speaking, the farther away you get from the source, the worse it is; and in the Northeast, good Mexican food is as rare as fresh lobster in El Paso. La Cazuela is one wonderful exception."

Jane and Michael Stern
Eat Your Way Across the U.S.A.

Dinner Every Night
Downtown Northampton
Across From The Parking Garage
7 OLD SOUTH STREET
NORTHAMPTON
413 • 586 • 0400

Mental Health Groups Fall '97

MONDAY

To Your Health
This groups is for students who realize that they cannot consistently control their use of alcohol and /or other drugs and who wish to establish a healthier lifestyle. This group will remain open to new members throughout most of the semester.
Monday, 3:45 - 5 p.m.

TUESDAY

Succeeding at UMASS as a Latino/a Student
This group will be a safe place for Latino/a students to explore their experiences as UMASS students. Participants will help each other learn techniques for succeeding in a multicultural world. This group will be conducted (mainly) in Spanish.
Tuesday, 2:30 - 3:45pm.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

Making Connections
This 8 week group will help members gain awareness of their relationship styles. It will also be possible to learn skills for forming more positive and lasting relationships.
Tuesday, 5:30 - 7 p.m.

WEDNESDAY

When Families Aren't Perfect
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMASS students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5pm.

Groups are FREE OF CHARGE for UMASS student Health Plan members, Kaiser UHS Plan Members, and Five College students. Most groups begin in early Fall and require a pre-group interview. For further information please call the Mental Health Division of University Health Services at 545-2337, Mon - Fri, 8:00am - 5pm.

THURSDAY

Women's Therapy Group
This group is open to OLDER women students and UHS Kaiser Plan Members who would like to address various women's concerns including: self esteem, relationship issues, academic isolation and uncertainty about long-range career goals.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30am.

Stress & the New UMASS Student
A 4 week group, to help new and incoming transfer students learn strategies for coping with college stress. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself. Thursday, 2:30 - 4:00p.m.

Coed Therapy Group for Older Students
This group provides an opportunity to work on those problems which interfere with personal and academic life, such as lack of intimacy, loneliness, lowered self esteem and concerns of professional identity. Thursday, 3:30 - 5pm.

MORE Groups Beginning IN LATE FALL

The Art & Science of Relaxation
In this workshop members will learn several valuable strategies for recognizing and managing stress. Tuesday, 4:00 - 5pm.

(Which) Home For The Holidays
A 5 week group to help students from separated/divorced families cope with their particular holiday stressors. Thursday, 1:00 - 2:15pm.

Williams makes mark at home

COURTESY 97.5KUD

Local girl Dar Williams sold–out four shows at the Iron Horse last week.

By Joshua Boyd
Collegian Staff

DAR WILLIAMS
Iron Horse Music Hall
Sept. 17

Pioneer Valley residents got a real treat this week, as Northampton's own singer–songwriter Dar Williams — whose nationwide popularity is growing and growing — played four shows as a rehearsal for her first full U.S. tour. Williams has played all over the country already, but never in such a structured coast–to–coast way, as she will be doing over the next month, from the Iron Horse to Berkeley, Calif.'s First Congregational Church and many points in between.

The late show on Wednesday night featured Williams coming out alone for her first song "When I Was A Boy," a song that characterizes William's lyrics that often touch on surreal life situations, such as a young boy blossoming into womanhood as this solo, acoustic tune shows. Her strong but sweet voice carried well through the hall, leading the sing– along for her tune, "Iowa," which she, ironically enough, dedicated to Massachusetts.

For the next six songs a great band comprised of Doug Plavin, a fantastic, imaginative and driving percussionist, Billy Masters on electric guitar, Stephanie Winters on cello, and opening act Richard Shindell on guitar and harmony vocals joined her on stage, for some true rocking tunes.

"Christians & Pagans" illustrates an eventful Christmas at home. "If I Wrote You," showcased solid, crisp vocal harmonies between Williams, Winters and Shindell, and her salute to the beer commercial life, "The Party Generation," had the whole band joining her for the frat–song chorus.

With just Masters and Winters on stage, she continued through the title track to her new album The End Of The Summer, also the namesake of her fall tour. "Babysitter" was a very serene song about being an infant amongst hippies in the '60s.

Shindell and Plavin returned for the last three numbers of the set, running through "Cool As I Am," Shindell's "Mary Magdalene" and "What Do You Hear," all possessing that same foot–tapping, folk–rock beat that ran through all the full–ensemble numbers that night.

The almost alternative–rock sound of "Teenagers, Kick Our Butts!" complemented the sweet, smooth sincerity of "February," Williams' dedication to winter in the Valley.

With songs like "Kentworth Of My Dreams," about the trucking life, Shindell's solo opening set showed another truthful, lonesome–hearted man in the long line of the re–emerging musical niche of singer–songwriters. Mixing country influences with the folk–rock of Michael Penn and the glossiness of James Taylor, Shindell and his humorous asides went over very well in his opening slot.

George Clinton hits NoHo tonight

By Tricia Van Winkle
Collegian Staff

George Clinton and the P–Funk All–Stars are playing John M. Greene Hall tonight in Northampton. This concert is part of his Mothership tour, which began in July and continues through 1999.

Capital Records will be releasing a new record on Oct. 29. It will be a collection of remixed Parliament, Funkadelic and George Clinton called Greatest Funkin' Hits. The new record is unlike others due to the fact that it is not a retrospective of Clinton's work, but a celebration of his ongoing musical influence on pop, alternative, dance, R&B, funk and hip–hop. The record will have new versions of chart–toppers such as "Atomic Dog," "Flashlight" and "Bop Gun (one nation)," featuring artists such as Q–Tip, Busta Rhymes, Ol' Dirty Bastard and Ice Cube.

Clinton was born July 22, 1941 in Kannapolis, N.C. He then moved to Newark, N.J., in 1952. At the age of 14, Clinton had formed a doo–wop vocal group called the Parliaments, later to be known as Parliament. In 1962, the Parliaments' "I Just Wanna Testify" rose to No. 20 on the charts and also hit No. 5 on the R&B charts. The song was written and produced by Clinton. He then started to collaborate with other artists and those collaborations led to the Parliament–Funkadelic group.

Clinton established the Parliament–Funkadelic team of Grady Thomas, Ray Davis, Eddie Hazel, Billy "Bass" Nelson and Clarence "Fuzzy" Haskins in 1968. By 1980, the combination had sold more than 10 million albums in the United States alone.

Included in these America Eats Its Young in 1972, Tales of Kidd Funkadelic in 1976, Funkadelic's One Nation Under a Groove in 1976 and Parliament's Motor Booty Affair in 1978.

George Clinton and his team of the P–Funk All–Stars will perform tonight at 8 p.m. at the John M. Greene Hall at the corner of Main and Pleasant Streets in Northampton. For tickets, call the box office at (415) 586–8686.

■ football

continued from page 12

giving JMU a 13–7 lead at half–time.

If there was any consolation for the Minutemen heading into the locker room, it was a sub–par JMU kicking game. JMU kicker Nelson Garner missed two field goals in the first half, of 34 and 37 yards, and freshman Mike Glover was brought in and could fare no better, missing the extra point right before the end of the half.

Khari Samuel, who was banged up in last week's 49–6 loss at Maine, returned to the form that made him a pre–season first team All Atlantic 10 selection. The junior line–backer led the team with 13 tackles (8 unassisted) and continued to level the Dukes with punishing tackles throughout the game. Sophomore line–backer Chris Price, whose presence was bigger than his seven recorded tackles, was all over the field, helping lead a UMass defense that only allowed 203 total yards. Free safety Bryan Mooney made 11 stops as well.

The Minutemen try to pick up their first win at Homecoming next Saturday against Rhode Island.

"We need to learn to hang on to the football or we're going to get blown out of the park," Hodges said. "We just can't keep turning the ball over the way we are right now. We just don't understand the respect of the football, and I guarantee you, by next Saturday we will respect the football."

■ Minutewomen

continued from page 12

Kate Webb and Cox collide in each player's attempt to gain possession. Off of the ensuing scramble, Green found the ball at the top of the penalty area, turned and fired a strike that gave UMass the golden goal against the black and gold of the Buffaloes.

The quality of Daniels' new side made it hard for Rudy's team, but his team also made it hard on itself. To him, with a 39–10 shot advantage, the Minutewomen should have put the game away a lot earlier.

"This was harder than it had to be," Rudy said. "We really needed to finish our scoring opportunities, but we're pleased to get a win against a good young team that's well coached, and they were a solid side. This is going to be a very, very good Colorado team, and we have to improve immensely when we play them next year at their field."

If the first half of this match was a title fight, then UMass would have won on points. Late rushes by Webb and Lecot were to no avail, and the Minutewomen could not land the knockout punch. The second half saw Colorado play with more confidence, and the tides of confidence surged back and forth with the escalating physical play.

As the game continued, options for UMass began to dwindle, with senior defender Erica Iverson out with the flu, and senior defender Amy Burrill and sophomore forward Emma Kurowski still feeling the effects of their respective bouts with the flu. The match looked to go into overtime, until senior goalkeeper Danielle Dion made the save of the game with 2:20 left in regulation.

Buffalo midfielder Donna Holyman picked up a loose ball 10 yards out, firing a shot with Dion leaping to her right, and saving the day for the Minutewomen. Efforts like Dion's and Burrill's had Rudy beaming after the game about their performances, and in the end, his freshman capitalized on an opportunity that was well–timed.

"We do that in practice three times a week, so I would expect nothing less than Dion to catch that ball," Rudy joked, with Dion sitting nearby. "She's good, and I'll keep her until the end of the season, and that's it... I'll let her go.

"Amy had the moxie, the courage and the mental strength to come back from being sick, and she added a lot to this game. Particularly in overtime, when we brought her back in... it was so moving to me."

Dion had a feeling that the team would pull through, but not without a little help from her friends.

"As soon as I got up this morning, and we walked out on to the field, I knew we were going to win," Dion said, who credited her performance to her pregame warmup with Leduc. "With Erica out, and Amy sick, our defense changed, but the people who stepped in did a phenomenal job."

In the first overtime, the momentum continued to change consistently, with both teams exchanging time of possession almost every five minutes. The bedraggled Minutewomen, though, looked to tire at the end of the first sudden death period, but that fact turned out to be a misnomer.

Green provided the finishing touch for a scoring opportunity that was well overdue.

"We were putting our shots right into the keeper's hands, and we weren't really testing her low to the ground," Green said, who is the team's leading scorer with four goals and seven assists for 15 points. "I knew once we started hitting them low and hard, we would break through at least once."

Use the force and write for sports. Luke does.

Contact Luke Meredith, Sports Editor at the Collegian (545–3500)

■ last 5

continued from page 12

have persuaded a few muffled jeers, but now each call could be game–deciding and, therefore, deserved more attention.

Each missed shot deserved an "ohhh," and for these little boys sitting next to me a comment like, "Man, I'm glad I'm not the goalie, but imagine how good we'd be if one of these girls were on our team?"

So, the five–minute drill does serve a purpose in more than a party situation. It fires up the team and collides all their hopes and efforts into each possession, and it provides the pinnacle of excitement for the fans.

■ Shipp

continued from page 12

me so much. How to stay focused, play hard and not just take what they're [the defense] giving you."

What Hodges clearly hasn't taught Shipp is the signature spin move he's displayed this season.

"No, that's mine," Shipp said.

The move — a quick, 360 degree burst — has helped Shipp turn normal plays into big ones.

Shipp said it was not taught to him by a coach of his. He said he started using it when he was younger and playing two–hand tag in the street.

"I don't know, I guess it just stayed with me," he said. "I used it all through high school too."

With the fate of his team hanging in the balance, Shipp is trying to keep his head in the game.

"I still think we can win a lot of games this year," he said. "Things are getting better for us every game. But they just haven't clicked yet. It's tough."

"It really doesn't feel like we're 0–3," he said. "But this is football. The season isn't over yet."

■ soap

continued from page 8

if Genie Francsi (Laura) will be returning to the show. Her absence has left a void in my heart. I can't tell you how much I miss her locking horns with Stefan. I would never encourage a split between Luke and Laura, but the idea of them together is awfully intriguing (those of you who saw them lock lips on the prime–time episode, "Twist of Fate," know what I mean).

"All My Children"

I'm not sure what to think about the attempted "conversion" of Kevin. As much as I love the idea of him and Kelsey together (doesn't this girl deserve a bit of happiness?), I think it would be a real cop out, not to mention a disservice to the gay community, to have him suddenly turn heterosexual (especially now that they've spent the last few months trying to educate the audience that one's sexual preference is not a choice). But on the other hand, maybe Kevin could discover he is bisexual (a topic never before addressed on daytime television). Wouldn't that be interesting?

A few more quick notes: Sky really needs to tell Edmund the truth about the paternity test and Dmitri needs to get a life (preferably somewhere else at this point).

"Days of Our Lives"

Rumors are flying fast and loose concerning a possible romance between John and Hope. Despite the assurances of head writer, James E. Reily, that the rumors are false, fans are still in a tizzy over the mere innuendo of such a love connection. I sadly report that Eileen Davidson, who has been superb in her role as the conniving witch, Kristin, will soon be leaving us at the end of December. Whether you love her or hate her (I happen to love her), you have to admit she's been fun to watch. She'll be sorely missed — at least by this viewer.

Jacob Fanning is a UMass student.

EXERCISE REGULARLY AND YOU COULD LIVE LONGER. INVEST REGULARLY SO YOU CAN AFFORD TO.

Americans are living longer than ever. So it's quite possible you'll spend 20 or 30 years or more in retirement. Can you afford it? Unless you're independently wealthy, chances are you'll need more than your pension and Social Security to support the kind of lifestyle you'll want.

How can you help ensure that you'll be in good financial shape? Sign up for TIAA-CREF SRAs — tax-deferred annuities available only to people in education and research.

SRAs are easy. No pain, no sweat.

The best way to build strength — physical or fiscal — is to start at a level that's comfortable and add to your regimen as you go along.

With TIAA-CREF SRAs, you conveniently contribute through your employer's payroll system. You can start with a modest amount and increase your contribution as your salary grows.

The important thing is to start now. Delaying for even a year or two can have a big impact on the amount of income you'll have when you retire.

Your contributions are made with pretax dollars, so you pay less tax now. Your earnings are also tax-deferred, so your money can accumulate faster than in a taxable account with the same rate of return. You'll pay taxes on your contributions and earnings only when you receive them as income. There may be some Internal Revenue Code limitations or tax penalties if you withdraw the money before you turn 59½.

SRAs offer you a range of income choices, including lifetime income, payments over a fixed period, or cash. If your employer's plan includes loans, you can borrow against your SRA to meet your other needs.

TIAA-CREF: The Retirement Experts.

TIAA-CREF is the world's largest retirement system, managing approximately $200 billion in assets for more than 1.9 million people. We offer a wide range of SRA allocation choices, long-term investment expertise, and remarkably low expenses.

Call 1 800 842-2776 for an SRA Enrollment Kit or our interactive SRA Enrollment Software.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF — Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

1. Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis, 1997; Lipper Analytical Services, Inc., Lipper Directory: Analytical Data, 1996 (Quarterly). For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509, for CREF and TIAA Real Estate Account prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money. TIAA-CREF Individual & Institutional Services, Inc. distributes CREF certificates and the variable component of TIAA contracts.

©1997 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund, 730 Third Avenue, New York, NY

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Sugarloaf Estates Luxury 2 bedroom apartment homes. FREE HEAT AND HOT WATER. State of the art kitchens, designer baths, w/w carpeting, washer and dryer. On PVTA. Call Today. 665-3856

AUTO FOR SALE

Auto For Sale '83 Chevy Caprice Classic. Great shape, low mileage. $1200. Call Robin 253-6348

'84 Jeep CJ7 4x4, hard-top, new battery, needs some work. Asking $1100 or B/O. Call 549-1609 (Tony) or 549-9267 (Patri)

1989 VW Golf excellent condition. 1 owner, new clutch. 43 mpg highway. $3900/BO. Sunderland 665-8358

1985 Olds A/C, all power, AM/FM. $1500 or B/O. 549-8999

1991 Dodge Colt white, 4 cyl., hatchback, alarm, excellent condition, $1700. Call 546-3640

EMPLOYMENT

Tutors
Bilingual Tutors for part-time paid assistance to students speaking Arabic, Czech, Hindi, Japanese, Khmer, or Korean
Contact: ESL/Bilingual Office at 413-549-9857
Amherst Public Schools
An Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer

Drivers and Kitchen Help Wanted. Apply at D.P. Dough

Maintenance Person Wanted at Hampshire Fitness. $7/hour. 8am-noon. Minimum of 3 mornings. 256-6446

Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communications and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $5.75 per hour with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call (413)587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

EMPLOYMENT

The Amherst Boys & Girls Club needs work-study assistants for recreation program. Must be able to work evenings 7-9pm and 1-5pm on Saturday. $5.50 per hour. UMass bus stops in front of Club at 390 Main St. Please call Richard Britt 253-3261

Needed Immediately Part-Time Veterinary Assistant. Weekday afternoons. Apply in person to: The Cat Hospital, 139C Damon Rd., Northampton, MA.

NOW HIRING!!! Alumni Relations is looking for student help for Homecoming '97. Must be available on Friday, September 26 and Saturday, September 27. $5.50/hour. Stop by Memorial Hall to fill out an application. Questions? Call Ann Thompson at 545-2317.

Pinocchio's Now Hiring Delivery drivers. $15 an hour. Car and positive attitude a must. Apply in person. 30 Boltwood Walk.

Fitness Instructor for Women's Only Club in Belchertown. Must be certified. Call Jenn 323-0125

EMPLOYMENT

Drivers Wanted Pays $70 to $120 per shift. Car needed. Dominos 256-8911

FOR RENT

1 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Available Oct 1st. $535/month + elec. Call 549-0455 to take over lease.

Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Free Delivery

FOR SALE

Buy/Sell/Trade Home stereo components. Used, reconditioned. 253-5312

Paintball 2 semi-auto guns for sale. VM-68 for $150. Snyder with two 9oz. tanks for $250. Call Fred at 549-8757.

Computers! Computers! Computers! THE VERY BEST PRICES AROUND! IBM Thinkpads. Compac as well as printers, scanners, and supplies. Call File Management Solutions and ask for Jason. 549-4850

Rolling Stones Foxboro Oct 20 and 21. Floor seats! 665-0241 Leave message.

Computer 486/66mhz, CD ROM, monitor, software. Must sell. $400/BO. 587-0954

FOR SALE

Macintosh Plus with 20mg external hard drive, Mac Image Writer II. Asking $350 or B/O. Call 665-7794.

Himalayan Kittens
C.F.A. Registered
$175.00
(413)634-5789

Refurbished 486 Computer for sale. 16MB RAM, 850 MB HD, 15" monitor, WIN 95. $499. Call ACI at (413)256-1147.

Computer- Macintosh SE30 Excellent condition. $250. Call Diana 256-8155.

Big Fish Tank All equipment included. $40 or B/O. 549-6926

Laptop Notebook Works good. $150. Good for school. Call Steve (413)295-2027

Color VGA Monitor for computer. Works great. Call CPC (413)584-8857

Watch batteries, ear piercing, eyeglass repairs, jewelry restoration, diamond engagements, wedding rings. Silverscape Designs, 264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst. 253-3324 Open Daily.

FOUND

Two legal books in front of Whitmore. If you can tell me what they are, they're yours. Call 565-5472

Sum of Money Found in Campus Center Post Office on Friday morning. Call Maureen at 545-3502

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
1-888-908-8898
Call Peter (Toll-Free)

LOST

Lost Watch- Ladies Hamilton Watch. Lost on Mt. Toby Fireroad/Trails in mid-July. Roman numerals, black strap. Reward. Sue (413)367-2755

Grey Hound Route 9, Hadley area. Reward. 323-8255

MISCELLANEOUS

www.movieposter.com
Vintage-Current
(416)391-0133

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent in private home. 1 mile to UMass. Furnished kitchen privileges. Laundry, parking, quiet, friendly. $335/month. Barbara 549-4853

ROOMMATE WANTED

Seeking Grad Student or Professional to share a large modern Northampton apt. Great location. Two bedroom, two bath. $560+. 584-2247

Female and Male Grad Students seek female Grad Student for share in large, sunny, modern post and beam house in Wendel, with hot tub and deck on wooded acreage. $200 per month inclusive, but worth much more. Must see. About 20 minutes from UMass with no stoplights. (508)544-2688

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

TRAVEL

Spring Break "Take 2" hiring reps. Sell 15. Take 2 free. Hottest destinations! Free parties, eats, drinks. Sunsplash 1-800-426-7710. www.sunsplash-tours.com

WANTED

$20 Reward for any information pertaining to the incident at The Pub the night of Sat., 9/13/97, whereby a 30 year old male was thrown into a plate glass door causing it to shatter. Call (508)653-1761

WANTED

Looking for TI-85 Graphing Calculator Call Kelsey @ 549-9462, anytime.

COLLEGIAN CLASSFIEDS

available on the concourse or visit our friendly office in the campus center basement

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be processed by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the ad filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal ad that does not meet the Collegian's standards, in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

Students
20¢ per word/day
All others
40¢ per word/day

$2.00 min./day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

ACTIVITIES ANNOUNCEMENTS
APARTMENT FOR RENT
AUTO FOR SALE
COMMUNITY EVENTS
EMPLOYMENT
ENTERTAINMENT
FOR SALE
FOUND (2 DAYS FREE)
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
HOUSES FOR RENT
INSTRUCTION
LOST
MUSICIANS
MISCELLANEOUS
MOTORCYCLES
PERSONALS
ROOM FOR RENT
ROOM WANTED
ROOMMATE WANTED
SERVICES
SUMMER SUBLET
TO SUBLET
TRAVEL
TRANSPORTATION
WANTED TO RENT
WANTED

Five College Community Calendar

TUESDAY, SEPT. 23

Film — Johnny Guitar, an off–beat western with women in the two leads, starring Joan Crawford. Sponsored by the Women's Studies and Lounge Staff and part of the Women in Film Noir series. 5:30 p.m. in Bartlett 208A.

Meeting — The Distinguished Visitor's Program is having a General Interest Meeting at 7 p.m. in the Student Union, Dukes Room. If you are interested in bringing your favorite speakers to the UMass campus then DVP is for you. Pizza and soda served. For more information call 545–0046 or stop by Student Union, room 404.

Meeting — The Index (UMass Yearbook) will hold a general meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union, room 304. All are invited. Contact Jill Aordkian at 545–0848 for more information.

Spiritual — All students invited to a Spiritual and Religious Opportunity Summit for seekers and leaders at UMass, to plan and launch student–run spiritual activities. 7– 9 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 805–809. For more information, call Merle Ryan at 545–2684 or Kent Higgins at 256–0109.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24

Dance — Israeli Folk Dancing. 8:30–9:15 p.m. teaching session, 9:15–10 p.m. review. Grayson/Orchard Hill. All are welcome. Experience is not necessary.

Meeting — Winter Session Israel Trip information meeting at 7 p.m. at the Hillel House. Come and find out about a great opportunity to travel to Israel with other UMass students.

Speaker — Arne Holte, professor of Behavioral Sciences in Medicine, University of Oslo, and professor of Clinical Psychology, University of Tronso, Norway will be guest speaker at the UMass School of Education at the Early Childhood Education and Development Program's Fortnightly Breakfast series from 8:30–9:45 a.m., Furculo 225.

NOTICES

Course — The Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies is offering a Certificate in Film Studies to all majors (equivalent to a minor). Includes six courses in film/video studies. For more information and to fill out an application, stop by the office in 101 South College or call 545–3659. Office hours MW 8 a.m.–5 p.m., TuTh 10 a.m.–5 p.m., F 8 a.m.–2 p.m. Or visit the web page: www.umass.edu/film.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Internships — Environmental internships offered. Campaigns this semester include: Hunger and Homelessness, Pesticides, Endangered Species, Updated Bottle Bill and Campaign Finance Reform. Looking for motivated students to take leadership positions. Call MassPIRG at 545–0199 or stop by 423A Student Union.

Daily Listings sponsored by:

WALKER'S GRILL #1 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST

FIGHT THE TUESDAY NIGHT BLUES
Ed Vadas & The Fabulous Heavyweights

WALKER'S GRILL BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST 253-4040

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board
3 CBS/3 Hartford
4 CBS/4 Boston
5 ABC/5 Boston
6 PBS/57 Springfield
7 HSCN Movie Ch.
8 UPN/20 Hartford
9 Weather Channel
10 NBC/30 New Britain
11 Fox/61 Hartford
12 PBS/24 Hartford
13 WOCH & HSCN
14 International
14 UMass Academic TV
17 HSCN Programming
19 TV–19
20 ABC/40 Springfield
22 NBC/22 Springfield
23 CNN
24 CNN SI
25 Headline News
28 UCTV
27 TBS
28 BET
28 TV Land
30 Univision
31 Comedy Central
32 Cartoon
33 Much Music

WALKER'S GRILL #1 BOLTWOOD WALK • AMHERST
This week's $1 drink: Vodka & Tonic

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 22, 1997

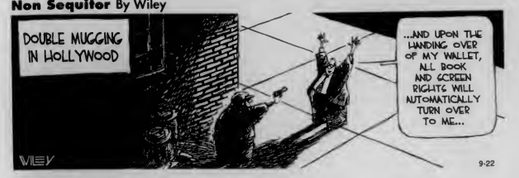
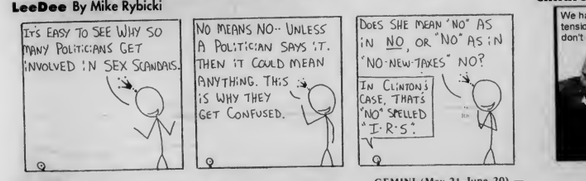
C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
(2)	Wheaties	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		World of National Geographic		American Experience "TR, the Story of Theodore Roosevelt"				Connecticut Journal
(3)	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	Cosby	Raymond	Cybill	George & Leo	Brooklyn South "Pilot"		News	Late Show
(4)	News	CBS News	Extra	Ent. Tonight	Cosby	Raymond	Cybill	George & Leo	Brooklyn South "Pilot"		News	Late Show
(5)	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Timecop "A Pig in Time"		NFL Football: Pittsburgh Steelers at Jacksonville Jaguars. (In Stereo Live)
	Full House	Fresh Prince	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	7th Heaven (In Stereo)		Buffy the Vampire Slayer	News			Star Trek: Deep Space Nine
	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Fired Up	Caroline	Naked Truth	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
(13)	Married... With	Cheers	Judge Judy	Grace Under	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	Good News	Sparks	News	LAPD	Vibe
(9)	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Sudden-Susan	Fired Up	Caroline	Naked Truth	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
(10)	Home Imp.	Simpsons	Seinfeld	Frasier	Melrose Place (In Stereo)		Ally McBeal "The Kiss"		News		Simpsons	Babylon 5
(22)	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden-Susan	Fired Up	Caroline	Naked Truth	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
(14)	Creatures		Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Full Circle		American Experience "TR, the Story of Theodore Roosevelt"				Connecticut Journal
(20)	News	ABC News	Frasier	Ent. Tonight	Timecop "A Pig in Time"		NFL Football: Pittsburgh Steelers at Jacksonville Jaguars. (In Stereo Live)
	Real TV	Med Abc. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	Good News	Sparks	News		NFL's "5"	Med Abc. You
	Family Matters	Family Matters	Who's Boss?	Major League Baseball: Montreal Expos at Atlanta Braves. (Live)			Point			Miss Marple (Part 1 of 2)		Law & Order
(7)	Quincy "Mom Man"		Law & Order "The Blue Veal"		Biography: Frank Serpico
(8)	WorldView		Moneyline	Crossfire	Prime News	Burden-Proof	Larry King Live			World Today	Sports Illus.	Moneyline
(21)	1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money						(1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daily Show
	Movies Magic	Beyond 2000	Wings of the Red Star (R)		Wild Discovery: Sea		Primates Guide: Big Cats (R)			Would You Believe It?		Wild Discovery: Sea
(15)	Up Close	Sportscenter		NFL Prime Monday			Figure Skating: Tributs to Carlo Fassi.				Baseball	Sportscenter
	Supermarket	Debt	Intimate Portrait		Unsolved Mysteries (In Stereo)		Celebrity Jeopardy! (1994) Special Guest Lt. McCoskey. (In a Bunker)				Homicide: Life on the Street
(17)	MTV Live	Viewers	Eagles: Hell Freezes Over (R)		Beavis-Butt.	Beavis-Butt.	Countdown to the 10 Spot		Road Rules	Daria (R)	Oddville, MTV	Loveline (R)
(18)	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Hey Arnold!	Eqqsy Days	Happy Days	Bewitched	I Love Lucy	Odd Couple	Taxi	Newhart
(19)	Twilight Zone	Twilight Zone	Masters	Miss. Genesis	Seaquest DSV "Lostland"		Forever Knight (In Stereo)		Friday the 13th: The Series		Masters	Miss. Genesis
(24)	Furniture	Renovation	Hometime (R)	Hometime (R)	Extreme Machines		History of Rock 'n' Roll		History of Rock 'n' Roll (R)		Extreme Machines (R)
	Kung Fu: Legend		Lois & Clark-Superman		WCW Nitro (In Stereo Live)				WCW Nitro (R) (In Stereo)
	Barnwatch "Tequila Bay"		Highlander: The Series (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger		WWF Raw (In Stereo)				Silk Stalkings "In Too Deep"
	"Sweet Bloom" (1996, Drama) Jon Voight, Eric				ex "Rock of Time" (1995, Comedy) Dep. "R"		Execution Machine			Mr. Wild Side (1995) Christopher Walken. "RR"
	"Three Wishes" (1995, Drama) Patrick Swayze. "PG"				69 (1995, Drama) Robert De Niro. "R"		"Nobody's Fool" (1994, Comedy) Paul Newman. "R"			"Nobody's Fool" (1994, Adventure) "R"		"Homeward B
	"Wild Hogs" (1995, Comedy) Tom Hogan. "R"				Targets 50-1 "Bad Candy"		"Hopes Party 2" (1991) Christopher Reid. "R"			"Kimwolfe's Cow" (1993) Bill Murray. "PG"

Bruno By C. Baldwin



Drabble By Kevin Fagan



8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Non Sequitor By Wiley

LeeDee By Mike Rybicki

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Thatch By Jeff Shesol

Mallard Fillmore By Bruce Tinsley

Children for Sale By Jon + Luke

Horoscopes

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — A promise made today can pay off for you in unforeseen ways in the near future. Be sure that you know just what you are pledging to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — A surprise is in store for you, but you can get back on top in no time if you are willing to do more than you had planned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You will have a chance today to surround yourself with only the best, but you're going to have to make a sacrifice in the process.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Seeking something more than what you have will take some time — and perhaps a good deal of money,. The status quo isn't that bad!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — An insight into a difficult domestic situation will have you working hard to correct what needn't have happened in the fist place.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may decide today that you're fed up with the way things are — but how can you make them better? Take time to think things through completely.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You must remind yourself today of those things that are most valuable to you in order to get yourself firmly back on track.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Tend to one thing at a time today for best results. You will want to steer clear of situations that are too complex to assess accurately.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You will have to be more generous and sociable than expected today. You can do it, and impress others in the process as well.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — What begins as a difficult day may turn out to be memorable for all the things that come to you as if by luck. There is more to it!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You may want to lie low today. Energy and enthusiasm may be waning dramatically at this time, and you can't afford to make a costly error.

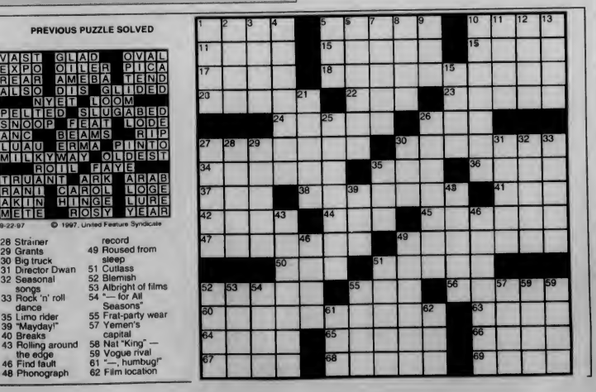
VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Today you'll enjoy an awakening of sorts that should enable you to see things as they really are. Judgment has been rather faulty of late.

Quote of the Day

"Only two things are infinite, the universe and human stupidity, and I'm not sure about the former."

–Albert Einstein

Close to Home By John McPherson



ACROSS
1 Throat-clearing sound
5 Woodworking machine
10 Promises
14 Bad-mannered
15 Assortment
16 Domain
17 Chowder ingredient
18 Window material
20 Mead's "Coming of Age in —"
22 McMahon and Sullivan
23 Smallest littermates
24 Nonsensical
26 Mai — cocktail
27 Regard as belonging (to)
30 Dressmaker's scrap
34 Celebration
35 Life, in Quebec
36 Shimmer
